PASTOR AND WIFE SOME SURPRISED

Mr. and Mrs. Thompson Presented With Silver Cake Basket

Between thirty and forty of the young people of the Y. P. S. C. E. of the First United Presbyterian Church of this city sprang a May-basket surprise party upon their pastor, Rev. A. M. and Mrs. Thompson at their home 198 Whitwell street Wednesday. Mr. and Mrs. Thompson were away from home in another part of the city at the time of the arrival of the young people. But the latter were not going to be thwarted in their plans. They managed to reach them by phone. They arrived home about 9 o'clock. At the Front door was a hugh May-basket filled to the top with oranges, boxes of choice chocolates and boxes of the very choicest biscuit that the young people could procure.

Miss Marion Russell the president of the Society then called Mr. and Mrs. Thompson into the Setting Room and in a few well chosen words presented them with a beautiful Silver Cake basket beautifully engraved with their names on the inside as a present from the Young People's Society. Mr. and Mrs. Thompson thanked the young people kindly for this kind token of remembrance and assured the young people that this occasion would be one long remembered by them. After playing several games a light luncheon was served after which the happy young people left for their homes, followed by the best wishes of the pastor and his wife.

BATES--MURRAY NUPTIALS

East Milton Man Came to Quincy For a Bride

Miss Bella H. Murray, who recently resigned as teacher in the Coddington school and Percy Elliot Bates of East Milton were married at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. John C. Murray, 20 Huntley Road, Wednesday evening. The ceremony was performed by Rev. Benjamin A. Willmott of the Bethany Congregational church.

The bride was given away by her father John C. Murray, a well known granite manufacturer. Miss Florence Williams was the bridesmaid and Walter H. Murray, a brother of the bride, was the best man. As the wedding party entered the parlor Bates orchestra played the Lohrengrin Wedding March.

The bride was dressed in white crepe de chine and carried bridal roses. The bridesmaid was dressed in white satin and carried sweet peas.

Following the ceremony the couple were assisted in receiving by Mr. and Mrs. John C. Murray and the parents of the groom, Mr. and Mrs. Oren F. Bates.

Mr. and Mrs. Bates left for a wedding trip to New York, Philadelphia and Washington and will return in about 10 days. They will reside in East Milton.

MORE TROUBLE FOR COUNCIL

Pony Express Licenses Will Again Come Up Monday Night

From present indications another scrap is due at the meeting of the City Council Monday evening over the granting of permits for the transportation of liquor in or into the City of Quincy. In order to act on any more of the applications however it will be necessary to suspend the rules which means a affirmative vote of two thirds of those present and voting.

ADVERTISE IN THE LEDGER.

THIRD DIVISION SPELLING BEE

Followed by Supper and Entertainment at Bethany Church

The entertainment and supper provided by the members of the third division of the alphabet, from L to P., in the Bethany chapel, Wednesday evening was largely attended.

After supper an adjournment was made to the chapel where an old-fashioned social was enjoyed. Miss Esther Sidelinger announced as the first attraction a May basket contest, with a prize to the man and a prize to the woman who made the most artractive basket. The judges were A. L. Melcher, W. F. Sidelinger and Mrs. H. Everett Crane. The winners were Ernest L. Collins and Mrs. A. H. Gibson, and the degree of N. A. B. M. was conferred on them.

Sides were chosen for a spelling match by Harry Brooks and Albert L. Hayden, and Ernest L. Collins headmaster at the High school was the teacher. Keen interest was taken in the contest. The leaders early dropped out, and the Hayden side had three up when the last of the Brook's side, Miss Esther Beckford, went down. It took some time to spell down Miss Gladys Hunt and Mrs. Edward A. Damon, leaving Mrs. Ernest L. Collins the winner. Some of the words missed were: lieutenant, menagerie, molecule, vehicle, archipelago, prairie, ejaculate, fuchsia, inveigle and reminiscene.

Other games were played and a good time enjoyed.

PROGRESS CLUB FORMED.

At a meeting of the Senior members of the Y. M. C. A. Wednesday evening in Association hall, a constitution was adopted and a club formed. The name adoptedw as The Progress Club of Quincy Y. M. C. A. The evening was taken up in going over the different articles of the Constitution and the election of officers will take place at the next meeting on May 12th.

TIME LIMIT IN McDEVITT CASE

Quincy Senator Had Not Presented any Apology

ACCORDING TO LAST REPORTS

Up to the time of going to press suspended Senator John J. McDevitt of Quincy, of th e First Norfolk district had not offered an apology to the senate for his recent utterances and is according to the decree still on the suspended list.

SENATOR JOHN J. McDEVITT.
Will he Apologize?

Today is the day fixed for the return of Senator McDevitt on condition of submitting to the Senate a satisfactory apology in writing. When some weeks ago the Senate found the Quincy man guilty on a charge of falsely accusing a member of the House of offering a bribe or tendering one, the verdict was that he should be publicly reprimanded and suspended till May 1, with loss of pay, with an apology clause added.

There has been a feeling right along that McDevitt would not return to the senate, would not apologize, but would be a candidate for re-election next fall, appealing to the sympathy of the voters on the grounds that his punishment was unjustifiable and too severe.

NO PLACE FOR A NERVOUS MAN

Annual Ladies Guest Night of Catholic Club Barred Males

AFFAIR A GREAT SUCCESS

The annual ladies' guest night of the Quincy Catholic club was held Wednesday evening at Colonial Hall and was the occasion for a large gathering of members and their lady friends. Mere man was rigidly excluded from the function, even the janitor of the hall being forced to make a retreat. The only semblance of the male gender present was the son of the president of the club who was so small that his presence was hardly noted.

The entertainment was of a unique character and opened with a piano solo by Miss Helen Galvin. This was followed by a selection by the Kitchen orchestra which was a decided hit. Then came the presentation of a laughable farce entitled "Tommy's Wife."

The cast called for the impersonation of three men's characters. These were taken by Miss Lulu Crowley, who as Thomas Pittman Carothers a promising young portrait painter, yet unknown to fame, was exceptionally good.

Miss Anna J. Walsh impersonated the character of Dick Grannis, Carothers chum and in love with Rose, and an ardent lover she proved to be and Rose could be forgiven for responding to the love making.

The third male character was taken by Miss Emma Biganess, who impersonated the character of Pierre De Bouton, a French fencing master and so true to life was her impersonation that it was hard for some of the ladies to be convinced that a man had not been smuggled into the cast unbeknown to the audience.

The other characters were impersonated as follows: a Rose Carothers, sister of Thomas, Miss Helen Galvin; Patty Campbell, a student at the Broadway dramatic school. Miss A. Gertrude Crowley; Mrs. De Yorburgh -Smith, a wealthy society woman, Miss Mary R. Lyons; Silvia her daughter, Young and impressionable, Miss Margaret Brown and Edith Bronson, a friend of Rose, interested in charities, Miss Zorine McDonnell.

The farce was given in three acts, The first was a scene in Carothers studio, and the second the same place two weeks later and the final scene was the library of Edith's home, in the evening.

At the conclusion of the farce, ice cream and cake was served by the entertainment committee. One of the features of the evening was the presentation to Mrs. D. J. Deasey, the president of the club with a handsome bouuet of marguerites and bachelor buttons, the presentation speech being made by Miss Anna J. Walsh.

The ushers were: Miss Lora Bganess, Miss Mary Coyle, Miss Nellie Mundy, Miss Elizabeth Walsh, Miss Gertrude Carroll, Miss Margaret Gallagher, Miss Elizabeth Keating, Miss Bertha Trepanier, Miss Elizabeth Powers, Miss Beth Anderson.

Tht committee in charge of the refreshments were: Mrs. George Norris, Mrs. William P. Reardon, Mrs. John A. McGowan, Mrs. J. J. McAnarney and Mrs. James E. Dunn.

The officers are Mrs. Eva M. Deasy, president, Mrs. E. J. Murphy, Vice president, Miss S. E. Dunphy, Financial secretary; Miss Mary W. Dinegan Treasurer; Miss Nonie O'Connor, Recording Secretary.

Mrs. Elizabeth S. Lovejoy and Miss Edith M. Lovejoy of 30 Huntley road, leave this week for the North Shore for a visit with friends.

MAYFLOWERS RATHER SCARCE

People Have Been Careless Picking Them By the Roots at Plymouth

Today is May day and as usual for the past few years the air is cold and raw. For years many people have made it a practice on the first day of May to journey to Plymouth in search of Mayflowers. Unfortunately however from all accounts the Mayflowers are about run out for the reason that in picking the flowers people have been in the habit of pulling up the flowers by the root instead of breaking them off. Several who have been to Plymouth during the past week report that the flowers are very scarce.

COMPLIMENTARY SUPPER AND DANCE

The participants of the minstrel show held by the Loyal Ladies of Clan McGregor in Music hall a few weeks ago, were last night guests of the association at a supper and dance tendered to them in Clan McGregor hall. A sumptuous supper was served to the guests by the ladies, after which dancing was enjoyed.

An entertainment was provided by those who took part in the minstrels. The ends received hearty applause. The Loyal Ladies took this means of showing their appreciation of those who took part in the show.

HOWARD CASE IN MILFORD COURT

IN HOPEDALE STRIKE

Caleb F. Howard of Quincy, an I. W. W. organizer, charged with violation of the Hopedale town by laws was before the court in Milford, Wednesday, pleaded not guilty and had his case continued one week.

Joseph J. Coldwell, the leader of the Draper mills strikers, and 19 others were charged with violating the by-laws of the town of Hopedale by parading through the streets of the town without a permit.

All pleaded not guilty to the charge and were allowed their freedom on their personal promise to appear in court on Saturday for a hearing, with the exception of Howard, whose case was continued one week.

The men were represented by Atty. Alfred Cenedella, while the case for the town of Hopedale was handled by Atty. Wendall Williams. Atty. John C. Lynch, who assisted Williams, asked Judge Cook to restrain the men from again going to Hopedale, but this was overruled by the court on the objection to Atty. Cenedella.

Despite the fact that he was arrested by State Officer Capt. Proctor Tuesday night, charged with again violating the bylaws of Hopedale. Coldwell, Wednesday appeared in that town. He did not go there, however in company with a body of strikers, but rode over from Milford in a trolley

EDITORIAL COMMENT.

The woman who divorced her husband named Mudd changed to her maiden name of Dirtt hardly made much of an improvement.

Dr. Eliot may have a very high opinion of the Japs, but has he had the experiences of the Californian people?

After eight years, the Hackett murder mystery of Readfield, Me., is thought to be solved. Murder will out, but Charlie Hoss has not been found yet.

And now experts claim the few days rest will do the base ball players good. On this theory the spring training and practice must have been hard on the poor boys.

Another press agent stunt. An aviatrix is going to cross the Atlantic this summer and take her brother along as he does not know how to fly and she will take this opportunity to teach him.

And now an investigation of the Street railway companies is planned. Some will stand the test, others will not.

Wall street is all of a flurry with the war talk thick and fast on both sides of the continent.

Taft is popular among the Yale students as his classes increase daily. Taft was all right, the only thing he lacked outside of a popularity was the confidence of the voters. He suffered for the weakness of his party and was not strong enough to shake the companion.

The bill forbidding the conveyance of lost, destitute, abandoned or neglected children in the police ambulance was as absurd as it was unnecessary. If the child's life was at stake would the law save it if waiting for a satin lined barouche with a top shade of crimson and a box of candy thrown into make it more pleasant?

Chairman Riley has launched the Walsh boom whether he wanted it or not Wonder will the Governor say of this that "Tom likes to hear himself talk."

PROGRAM REVERSED.

The fresh young man who invaded Paterson, N. J., during the progress of the strike found that he was not the only one who could do a thing or two. He claimed to be a magazine writer. He was reported to have said that he came to "put one over the police of Paterson." He declined to move when requested to by the police which afforded the officer the opportunity they no doubt were delighted to accept The young man was sentenced to 20 days in jail He did not "put one over" on the police but it looks very much as if the police "put one over" on him in good style. Probably in his conceit he thought his claims to being a magazine writer would fill the police with fear that he would picture them to his liking and make them appear in a poor light.

On the whole there is too much of this trying to "put one over" on the police. The average police officer is human. He is not looking for trouble. It is his duty to avoid trouble and have the law respected. That is what he is paid for and the average officer does it in a faithful manner. Of course it would be strange if there were not some black sheep. But the people have nothing to complain of about the police in general. In Paterson, the young man talked too plenty. His activity of tongue was far ahead of that body, hence he received what was coming to him.

REPUBLICANS TO THE RESCUE.

But two Democrats supported Gov. Foss in the senate in his veto of the supplementary listing of voters of the city at the police stations. The Republicans therefore found it either necessary to come to his rescue in the effort to sustain him or else they performed that duty because they were firmly convinced of the merits of the governor's contentions. On the whole Gov. Foss took a very good view of this situation. His claim was such action would be liable to make the police stations political headquarters which is quite apparent on the face of it.

Why such a measure should be in demand is not made quite clear to the average citizen, but then it has to be accepted as so many more bills are, because some one advocated them, without any one except the person directly interested diving their real purpose or cognizant of what is actually intended although having a strong suspicion of the result.

LIGHTS ON AXLES.

Darkness is the reason given for the collision of a motor car and a wagon at the crossing of Reservoir avenue. and Algonquin street, Friday night. The claim of the automobile operator, that he could not see the wagon, would not be easy to dispute. The accident affords another object lesson as to the need of a law for lamps on all vehicles.

The cost of a lantern is negligible. There is no hardship in keeping it lighted. There is economy in the use of lights which show the position of wagons on dark roads, even without reference to the automobile hazard. Rarely is the automobile complained of on this score.

It is strange that some wagon drivers are so gingerly disinclined to take a simple precaution.—Lowell Courier Citizen.

THE INCOME TAX.

Is your net income for this calendar year 1913 likely to reach $3500? If so, here is what you must do before March 1, 1914, supposing this new tariff and revenue act is adopted in the form in which it has been written and agreed upon by the ways and means committee and the President.

You must, if you have a net income of $3500, go before the collector of internal revenue of your district and under oath or affimation make a complete and accurate return setting forth specifically the gross amount of your income from all separate sources and the total thereof and the deductions to which the law entitles you.

If your income, after the legal deductions and allowances have been made does not exceed $4000, you will not be taxed upon it. If it exceeds $4000, you will be taxed 1 p. c. on the amount in excess of $4000.

That is, if your income should be $5000, you will be taxed 1 p. c. on $1000 of it. But the government does not purpose to take the chance of overlooking anybody whose income may be near the taxable limit and likely to grow.—Buffalo Express.

DISTRICT COURT.

Charles Olson was fined $10 and ordered to pay the railroad a fifteen cent fare for drunkenness at Quincy.

The continued cases of John P. Robery for alleged assault and battery on Alton Burrell for threatening to assault William B. Summers at Braintree were called and dismussed.

Charles F. Richards, alias Lord Ashburn, who was sentenced to six months in the house of correction a few days ago and appealed, came into court this morning and retracted his appeal and took his sentence.

The Ladies Aid Society of the First Presbyterian church will present the sketch entitled "How the Story Grew," on Friday evening in the vestry of the church. There will also be an apron sale and refreshments will be served. A most enjoyable evening has been prepared.

SURPRISE PARTY AT BRAINTREE

Mr. and Mrs. Joseph P. Levangie Given Rocker and Mascot

Mr. and Mrs. Joseph P. Levangie of 32 Hancock street, South Braintree were tendered a surprise party at their home Wednesday evening by a large party of friends and relatives. The affair was a complete surprise and was in the nature of a house warming, owing to the fact that Mr. and Mrs. Levangie and family have occupied their present home but a short time.

In a neat little speech, they were presented by Charles H. Custance with a handsome mahogany rocker, the gift of the assembled company. Mr. and Mrs. Levangie responded in brief but heartfelt words of acceptance and appreciation. Another gift was an ornamental mascot presented by the crew of the "Never," the yacht formerly owned by J. Marcus Levangie brother of Joseph P. Levangie.

Refreshments were served and a general good time was enjoyed.

There were piano and piccolo duets by Mrs. Eva B. McDonald and Carmen Salabrino, harmonica solos by Frederick Sampson, songs by Susie Raymond and Michael Levangie and a piano solo by Miss Evelyn Levangie, the accomplished four year old pianist.

Among those present were Charles Custance, Edgar W. Gerry, Frank Link, Mrs. Florence Kiley, Miss Jennie Bennett, Miss Ida Canavan, Miss Mildred McDonald, Frank Allen, Frank Beals, Samuel Beals, John Thompson, James English, Frederick Sampson, Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Levangie, Mr. and Mrs. W. S. Levangie, Mr. and Mrs. John Simpson, Miss Rose Stetson, Miss Gladys DeForrest, J. M. Levangie, Wilfred Levangie, Andrew Dauchur, Thomas Phillips, Joseph MacKough and Harvey Williamson.

The party was very pleasant and the guests lingered until a late hour. Great credit for the success of the evening is due to Mrs. Eva B. McDonald and her daughter Miss Mildred McDonald who arranged the whole affair.

YOUNG PEOPLE RAISING FUNDS

Give a Delightful Concert at Swedish Baptist

A successful concert was given Wednesday evening at the Swedish Baptist church, by the Y. P. S. C. E. and The Gleaners. The concert was given to enlarge the church funds and proved successful both financially as well as socially. The program was a most excellent one and consisted of piano solos, recitations, selection by the choir, and trombone selections with piano accompaniment. The latter feature was most pleasing as the instrument was played with skill and delighted the audience.

The speaker of the evening was Rev. Palmer of the Calvary Baptist Church, Salem, who proved most interesting. Paper decorations were conspicuous throughout and a large star when illuminated showed the words "Welcome"— "Gleaners and Y. P. S. C. E."

At the close of the program refreshments were served interspersed with recitations. Much credit for the success of the evening was due to the most efficient committee in charge of the affair.

ANNUAL PARTY.

The annual dancing party of the Retahnier Club will be held in St. Mary's halll Friday evening.

Jerry McCarthy, mascot of the Red Sox will make his first appearance before a Quincy audience at the party and "Jerry" will sing some of the latest composition of a Dorchester composer. James Donovan, a well known minstrel man will again sing his catchy arrangement of melodies which he sang in the St. Mary's minstrel show. Miss Mary Maseda will present a snappy song and dance skit.

Joseph I. Garrity will be floor director, with Michael Saville as his assistant. John Rooney will be chief of aids and the aids will be John J. DeCoste, Thomas Murphy, Frances Rourke, William Avery, George McDonnell and Nicholas Reinhalter.

CONTEST DUE OVER WILL OF FLETCHER

Relatives of Palmist Want a Share of His Estate

Cambridge, Mass., May 1.—Eleven contestants to the will of the late John W. Fletcher, the palmist and clairvoyant, who killed himself to avoid arrest at the Pelham hotel, Boston, on April 22, entered petition at the probate court here yesterday.

The document under whose provisions Cameron A. Patchin, the young artist and protege of the dead clairvoyant, stands to inherit from $35,000 to $40,000, is likely to be bitterly contested.

The eleven respondents are all distant relatives, and most of them claim residence in Bath, Me.

PLEADS NOT GUILTY

Another White Slave Indictment Returned Against Jack Johnson

Chicago, May 1.—An additional indictment, amendatory of a previous indictment, was returned by the federal grand jury charging John Johnson, the negro prize fighter, with violation of the Mann white slave act.

The indictment alleges that Johnson brought Belle Schreiber from Pittsburg to Chicago, Oct. 15, 1910, "for immoral purposes and in perpetration of a serious crime."

The fighter was in court when the indictment was returned and entered a plea of not guilty. His trial is set for next Monday.

DEBATE ON THE TARIFF

Underwood Expects It to Come to an End by Saturday Night

Washington, May 1.—"I think we we'll finish with the tariff bill in the house by Saturday night," said Democratic Leader Underwood last night, after an all-day debate on the iron and steel schedule.

The metal schedule is only the third of the fourteen schedules, which are followed by the free list, the technicalities of the administrative provisions and the income tax plan, and many of the members of the house are prepared to see the debate stretch into next week.

FORE RIVER SALE WHAT IT MEANS

Boston News Bureau Has Additional Comment on Subject

THROWING MORE LIGHT

Further commenting on the Fore River sale the Boston News Bureau says:

"On its face it looks as if the offer of $60,000 in Bethlehem Steel 5s for the Fore River Shipbuilding property was absurdly cheap. The Fore River represents a cash investment of nearly $5,000,000 and yet preferred stockholders are apparently to get but $25 per share in Bethlehem Steel bonds selling in the market for $83, an actual cash equivalent of but a little over $20 per share.

"There is, however, a very different side to the question of price.

"The Argentine contract which the Fore River Co. took two or three years ago has been a most disastrous one. The loss on this big Argentine battleship has run into impressive figures, sufficient not only to wipe out $1,500,000 of working capital but seriously impair assets as well.

"Directors of Fore River were facing the alternative of selling out or closing down the plant, and both plans were actually under consideration.

"At the time it was taken the Argentine contract seemed to promise a small profit of about $100,000. There have been most unusual delays in contruction, in delivery of steel, while the eight-hour law and higher labor costs have imposed a heavy additional burden.

"Mr. Schwab's intention in buying the property is to form a new corporation, the stock of which will be owned by Bethlehem Steel.

"In order to provide working capital this new corporation will issue $750,000 20-year 5 per cent mortgage bonds, which because they are a direct mortgage on real estate are tax-exempt in Massachusetts.

"The stockholders' committee has made itself responsible to the purchaser for the sale of these bonds and if any profit is realized on the marketing of this issue, that profit will be added to the $600,000 which Fore River preferred stockholders are to receive.

"Practically speaking, Mr. Schwab is of course paying a large sum above the $600,000 Bethlehem Steel bonds which Fore River stockholders are to receive. This sum represents what must be paid to permit the present company to pay its debts and liquidate.

"Mr. Schwab through his four shipbuilding plants, three of which are on the Atlantic coast, now has a chain of companies forming a most valuable outlet for his Bethlehem Steel armor, ordinance and allied products.

RICH BARON HELD AS PRINCE'S SLAYER

Accused Man a Close Relative of Alleged Victim

Warsaw, May 1.—Baron John Bisping, one of the wealthiest landlords of Lithuania, was arrested here on the charge of murdering Prince Ladislas Drucki Lubecki, a close relative by marriage, whose body was found in the park adjoining his residence at Teresin, near Warsaw, pierced with two bullet wounds.

The prince, who was president of the Automobile club of Warsaw, left his house on April 22, with Baron Bisping, with the intention of accompanying him to the railway station. Later the prince's body was found in the park, his carriage and horses standing near by.

Baron Bisping married a princess, Radziwill, daughter of Count Andrew Zamoyski and Princess Caroline de Bourson.

SURPASSED BUT ONCE

Jury In Boston Court Hangs After Being Out TwentyFive Hours

Boston, May 1.—A record for a jruy remaining out on a case that has been surpassed but once in the history of the Suffolk superior criminal court occurred when the jury that has been hearing the evidence in the case of the government against Michele Lembo, a contractor, charged with murder in the second degree, reported to Judge Stevens after twenty-five hours and ten minutes of deliberation that they were unable to agree upon a verdict.

When the jury reported they were unable to agree upon a verdict Lembo's counsel moved that Lembo be allowed to go on bail, but Assistant District Attorney Webber objected, and Judge Stevens sent the prisoner back to jail.

Lembo was charged with murder in the second degree in causing the death of Salvatore Bonsuoro, who had been employed by Lembo. The trouble arose over $5 which Bonsuoro claimed Lembo owed his brother.

A TRUE STORY OF A SMALL DOG

Objected to be Tied But Liked Mrs. Fallon's Feeds

It was all about a little Irish terrier dog which Salvatore Pollara, an inoffensive Water street fruit peddler was accused of stealing from George Sullivan. George valued the pup at $10, but it is doubtful if a purchaser at that price could be found.

George said that the dog was given him and that for a time he kept him tied in his yard. The pup resented being tied up and eventually made his escape and no more was heard of him for upwards of six months when one day George spied him in the yard of the fruit peddler. He immediately demanded the return of the pup, but the Italian said that a woman had given him the dog and he had given her a small pup in exchange.

The woman in the case was Mrs John Fallon and in court this morning she said that last August the dog came to her house. He was very poor and apparently half starved. She always fed stray dogs that came to her house and this one got his stomach filled. The pup evidently knew a good thing for when she attempted to drive him away the dog would not go. Finally the dog became a nuisance and she wanted to get rid of him so when the peddler, whom she bought fruit of came round, she gave him the dog.

The court found no evidence of theft, and said that if the Italian would return the dog he would dismiss the case. After court had adjourned the pup held an informal reception in the corridor until Court officer Marden came along and put the dog and the others in the party, out. Mr. Sullivan got his dog.

WEDDING BELLS AT BRAINTREE

Bride Wore a Necklace Worn By Her Grandmother in 1833

Miss May Estelle Thayer, daughter of Mrs. William Howe Thayer of 31 Hancock street, South Braintree was united in marriage Wednesday evening to Henry Trowbridge Cushman of 4 Hall avenue, son of Isaac Cushman. The ceremony was performed at 8 o'clock at the Methodist parsonage by Rev. A. Lowell Ryan, pastor of the Methodist Episcopal church at South Braintree.

The bride's brother, Frederick H. Thayer was best man and the bride was attended by her sister Miss Alice V. Thayer, gowned in blue and old gold changeable silk with jet and lace trimmings. The bride wore blue messaline with brocade and lace trimmings and hat to match. Her necklace was the one worn by her grandmother on her wedding day in 1833.

The groom carried a silver dollar bearing the date 1799 that has been in his family for 100 years.

The groom's present to the best man was a gold watch chain and from the bride the bridesmaid received a gold pendant.

After a wedding trip to Boston and other places, Mr. and Mrs. Cushman will reside at 4 Hall avenue where they will be at home to their friends after May 12th. They are both well known people of South Braintree and are active in the work of the South Methodist Episcopal church. Mr. Cushman is a member of Puritan Lodge, No. 179, I. O. O. F., Court Autumna, No. 9, Loyal Knights and Ladies and Amana, Rebekah Lodge No. 96.

Mrs. Cushman is a member of Sons of Veterans Auxiliary, No. 16, the Krowelden society, Sunset Lodge, No. 429, N. E. O. P. and the Braintree Grange.

PUBLIC LIBRARY NOTES

A very enoyable story hour was held last Thursday in the Children's Room of the Library under the direction of Miss Irene T. Hibbard, children's librarian. Miss Hibbard gave a very interesting original sketch on the "Life of Nathan Hale" and also told an "Uncle Remus" story. Miss J. Eleanor Whittemore assisted in the program by reading some laughable short stories and Miss Mary Shyne read "The Little Rid Hin."

After the story hour Miss Hibbard and Miss Whittemore gave out the prizes and honorary mentions for the guessing contest which has been going on for the past month. The first prize for girls, a silver mesh bag and chain, was awarded Doris Congdon, and the first boy's prize, a pocket knife, was won by James Greenhalgh. The second prizes, both books, went to Constance Ford and Robert Millar. There were about seventy-five children in attendance and they proved to be a very appreciative audience, making this one of the most successful story hours that has ever been held. Honorary mentions, in the form of amusing post cards were presented to all those who had guessed over 15 of the 20 subjects correctly. The following received one of these:

The Library has issued this week a list of books on birds, which may be had at the Main Library, the Childrens' Room and at both Branch reading rooms.

IS AN AID TO THE FARMER

Trolley Freight Has Made Farms More Valuable

New England, according to agricultural experts, ought to support herself from her farms, yet the figures show that their productivity has diminished rather than increased and that over 800,000 acres of New England farm lands were abandoned last year.

The problem of keeping people on the farms is largely one of providing easy communication between agricultural communities and the more populous centres, particularly such communities as are not directly served by steam railroads. Let means be afforded for the farmer to get his produce to the large market, and for both the farmer and the small storekeeper to obtain merchandise easily in return, and life in such places instantly becomes more attractive and the sense of isolation to a large extent removed.

How the electric street railroad can contribute to the solution of this problem is illustrated in the case of the Rhode Island Company, which was a pioneer in furnishing an express freight service between the farm and the city. The Rhode Island Company operates the street cars in Providence and in other parts of that State. For some years now it has had in operation fast freight lines to the farms and small communities within a radius of forty miles of Providence. The result has been that farms which could have been bought some years ago for the amount of the taxes are now held for high figures, and but few are to be obtained at any price. This company has made profitable along one of these trolley freights lines covering thirty miles a large milk business where there was none at all before.

Today it is possible for a farmer living near one of these lines to order supplies by telephone in Providence in the morning and have them delivered in the afternoon. He can stop a fast electric express car in front of his farm, put on his load of apples or potatoes right by the roadside and get in return a bill of lading which he can turn into cash any time he wants to ride into town himself. What is more, the electric express car will take his produce, if he so desires, put it into a storage warehouse for him and give him a receipt for it. The farmers make frequent use of this, sending in their apples in the fall and selling them in the spring.

Before the electric express cars were put on betwen Providence and Narragansett Pier there was no milk business in this region whatever, due to the fact that farmers had to drive to the station of the steam road at the Pier, a distance sometimes of over eight miles. The effect of the express service was instantly to open up an entirely new market for milk and the farmers were quick to take advantage of it. Today this line handles a business of over 200 cans a day. The returns of the milk business of the company last year amounted to $8,000, which was an increase of $6,000 over the previous year, showing what this service has meant to these communities. Quincy will soon need a milk service from the South Shore.

The Rhode Island Company maintains two freight depots in Providence, from whence the cars are sent out over the various lines. Not only Providence and eastern Connecticut is so covered but points in Massachusetts as well. From the depot at Fox Point, where freight is taken and received from the boat lines, three trips are made daily to Fall River and way points; three to New Bedford, two to Riverside and Barrington and two to Taunton, Brockton, Middleboro, Plymouth, Quincy and Neponset. By the first of next May a through service to Boston will have been established in connection with other lines.

Naturally it is not the cities or large towns which are the gainers by this service as much as the wayside farms and stores, though even the towns and cities derive great advantage in receiving the benefit of what is really an express service at freight rates. These lines are operated under the Interstate Commerce Commission tariff classification, the waybilling and routing being the same as on a steam road. There are special commodity rates for cotton bales, for granite and stone in carload lots, for ice, milk, ties and lumber in bulk. Twenty cents a hundred pounds, for example is the highest charge from Providence to Putnam, a distance of forty-one miles.

MISS FRENCH'S FUNERAL.

The funeral of Miss Sophia W. French who died in Swansboro, N. C. was held Wednesday afternoon from the home of her sister, Mrs. Robert Josselyn at 783 Hancock street. The services were of a most impressive nature and were conducted by Rev. Dr. A. Norton, Rev. Dr. Adelebert L. Hudson and Rev. William S. Key a former pastor of the Wollaston Unitarian church.

Rev. Mr. Key spoke of the very high esteem in which Miss French was held in Swansboro, telling how the children gathered wild flowers and completely covered the casket. On the day that the body left for the north buisness in general was suspended throughout the town and the casket was borne on the shoulders of the men to the depot.

Dr. Norton spoke of her work in the Unitarian association and Rev. Dr. Hudson spoke of her work in the First church in Quincy.

There were many beautiful floral tributes. The burial was in the family lot at Mt. Wollaston cemetery.

DUNBAR'S TALE NOT BELIEVED

Not His First "Confession" Regarding Hackett Murder

OFFICIALS WILL INVESTIGATE

Told Detective Who Brought Him From West That Principal In the Case Was a "Prosperous Manufacturer"—Detective Who Worked on Case Calls Confession a Farce

Augusta, Me., May 1.—County Attorney Fisher and Sheriff Getchell have gone to New York to hear the alleged confession of Richard F. Dunbar that he was implicated in the murder of Mattie Hackett at Readfield, this state, on Aug. 17, 1905.

Once before Dunbar made a somewhat similar statement regarding the crime, according to the police. Following his arrest at Cheyenne, Wyo., he was brought to New York, where, on March 17, he was sentenced to one year's imprisonment on Blackwell's island. The detective who brought him from the west said Dunbar told him that the principal in the murder of the girl was "a prosperous manufacturer," who had planned an abduction and killed the girl when she resisted.

After the publication of this story Fisher received two letters purporting to come from Dunbar. In one of these the writer said: "I am willing to tell all I know about the Hackett murder if I am given protection." Fisher was not prepared to promise immunity.

Dunbar, under the name of "Dillon" Dunbar, was sentenced in 1905 to six months in the Kennebec county jail, for assault with intent to kill his father-in-law, Henry E. Wing of New York, who was stopping at Readfield. He escaped from jail, but two years later returned and completed his sentence. He was not confined on the date of the unexplained murder of Miss Hackett.

Detective Weyand's Opinion

Boston, May 1.—Characterizing as a farce the alleged confession in which Richard F. Dunbar, the Blackwell's island prisoner, implicates himself and two other men in the murder of Mattie Hackett in 1905, F. J. Weyand of the Weyand secret service bureau says that the "confession" is that of someone seeking notoriety or a free trip to Maine.

Weyand worked with the Kennebec county district attorney from April to November in 1912. The detective says the shoes in the case were a woman's and not a man's. In the alleged confession it is said that these shoes, with the rope that strangled the girl, are hidden near the scene of the murder. The cord, which Dunbar claimed to have bought at a hardware store, was traced by the detective, who found that it came on a consignment of furniture.

Dunbar is alleged to have said that he went to the Hackett home to get the hired man out of the way. Hackett, according to Weyland, had no hired man. Hackett himself was in the house and not in the barn. Mattie ceased preparation of a meal for her father and the man who was with him and left the house.

There was no evidence brought out in the recent trial in which Mrs. Raymond was acquitted of the murder that showed why anyone would want the girl "put out of the way."

DEWEY'S GREAT VICTORY

Manila Bay Society to Celebrate Anniversary at Washington

Washington, May 1.—Dewey's victory over the Spanish fleet in Manila bay fifteen years ago will be celebrated here tonight at the annual reunion and banquet of the Society of Manila Bay.

Twenty-two of the survivors of the famous battle, including Rear Admiral Walker, who commanded the cruiser Concord, and the only survivors of the six officers who commanded vessels of Dewey's fleet, will gather around the banquet table to do honor to Admiral Dewey, president of the society.

Personal reminiscences of the battle will be a feature of the celebration.

MINNESOTA LOSES ITS CASE

Has No Title to Iron Ore Under Public Bodies of Water

Duluth, Minn., May 1.—An important decision was handed down in the district court by Judge W. A. Cant. It denies the claim of the state of Minnesota as to mining rights in bodies of ore lying under public bodies of water.

The decision disposes of the test case brought in 1909 against the White Iron Lake Mining company and the Euclid Iron Mining company. The decision declares the state has no title to the ore beds under water unless mining operations interfere with navigation or other marine interests.

Ellis Milk Bill Loses

Boston, May 1.—The senate defeated the Ellis milk bill, which had come up for concurrence, by a vote of 18 to 11. The bill would provide centralized authority for the inspection of milk in the commonwealth.

MILITANTS ARE CLEARED OUT

Their Headquarters Stripped by Scotland Yard Detectives

LITERATURE IS CONFISCATED

Suffragette "Cabinet," Taken by Surprise, Has No Time to Hide or Destroy Anything—All Books and Records of the Organization In Hands of Police—Seven Sent to Jail

London, May 1.—Seven militant suffragettes, arrested when Scotland Yard detectives, at the behest of the home office, raided, stripped and closed up the headquarters of the Women's Social and Political union, were remanded to Holloway jail without bail and their trials set for Friday.

A. H. Bodkin, the prosecutor, announced to the court that the government is determined to put down violence on the part of the suffragettes. He said that any suffragette addressing a public meeting anywhere would be arrested and jailed, and that the police would prosecute any person purchasing militant literature or subscribing to W. S. P. U. funds.

Evidently "fighting fire with fire," Home Secretary McKenna turned "militant" when Scotland Yard raided the hotbed of suffragette militancy.

Superintendent Quinn of the Yard led the spectacular raid, witnessed by thousands, and all books, documents and literature of the union were confiscated.

The police siezed proof sheets and several galleys of type set up for today's issue of The Suffragette, the union's publication. They forbade the further publication of the newspaper and declared that anybody printing the literature of the union, as well as purchasing it and subscribing to suffragette funds, would be prosecuted.

About the same time, the suffragettes of Newcastle-on-Tyne discovered that their local Women's Social and Political union headquarters had been forcibly entered earlier in the day and wrecked as completely as though militants themselves had done the job.

Windows, doors and desks were smashed and typewriters put out of commission, so that it looked as if anti-suffragists had done the mischief, but when the women discovered that their books and papers were missing, they charged the police with making the raid.

The raiders made no arrests when they first took possession of the union headquarters, but when some of the more militant of the suffragettes became obstreperous in their protests and made efforts to interfere with the policemen searching the rooms seven of them were were taken into custody.

A dozen or more of the women, including Mrs. Despard and the "cabinet," were in the place when the raid occurred, but they were taken by surprise and had no time to hide or destroy anything before the policemen hustled them into the street.

In spite of the angry protests of the suffragettes Superintendent Quinn searched the entire building for documents and any other papers that might make evidence against the suffragettes, and confiscated all the books and records of the organization.

The suffragettes who were ejected from the union headquarters collected on the sidewalk outside the police line and angrily denounced the officers. They were quickly surrounded by a crowd of several thousand persons, some of whom cheered and the rest jeered at the "bashi-bazouk-esses." The taunts of the throng, some of which were none too gentle, enraged the evicted militants the more, and some of the women openly threatened that there would be doings that would make Scotland Yard sit up and take notice.

As soon as the union headquarters were cleared of the suffragettes the police began stripping the building of all its furniture, indicating that the home office intends permanently to break up the organization.

The raid on the union headquarters was ordered by the home office upon evidence gathered by women detectives of Scotland Yard, who posed as suffragettes and got themselves into the inner circle of the organization.

Lowell, Mass., May 1.—Fire destroyed the grandstand and bleachers of the Washington baseball park late last night, causing a loss estimated at $10,000.

WOMEN'S CLUB BIG MAY SALE

Mrs. Marnock Managed Successful Affair For the Q.W.R.C.

The May Sale in charge of Mrs. Emma Marnock of the Q. W. R. Club, was held Wednesday afternoon at the club house and was certainly a great success. The May baskets found a ready sale as did the candy, cake and ice cream. There was a goodly number present together with several invited guests. The company enjoyed the singing of Miss Marguerite Louise Holbrook of Atlantic very much. Miss Holbrook has a fine voice and pleasing manner and rendered several groups of songs. The reader Mrs. James Hennessey of Edison park is certainly an artist. Her selections were varied and full of wit and humor, many being compositions of James Whitcomb Riley. A large sum of money was realized on the braided rug made and given by Mrs. Marnock and was drawn by Mrs. Stack of River street. A large May basket filled with fruit was drawn by Mrs. Beatrice Marnock.

Acid Put Etchings on Pains Which Must Be Removed

When the men who are cleaning City Hall get through their work it will be necessary to replace some of the window glass as several of the panes have been spattered with the hydrofluoric acid which is being used in cleaning the granite for wherever it strikes the glass becomes etched. This is one of the most powerful acids known and great care has to be exercised in handling it. Most of the windows on the first floor of the building have been more or less spattered with it.

FORMER MEMBERS DECLINED INVITE

To Appear Before Fire Investigation Committee

The fire department probers met again Wednesday evening at City Hall, and as usual the meeting was held behind closed doors. It is understood that the members of Hose 4, company at Quincy were the men examined at this session. It is also understood that some of the ex-members of the company were requested to appear at the hearing but did not do so.

EMPLOYED BOYS BEAT BEACONS

The Quincy Boys Fairly Smothered the Visitors

The Employed Boys of Quincy Y. M. C. A. defeated the Beacon Club, composed of Boston Y. M. C. A. Employed in a pool and bowling and checker tournament held in the local association last evening. The final score was Quincy 10 1-2, Boston 4 1-2. In pool Boston had a walkover taking both matches easily. Ferris of Boston defeated Peterson of Quincy 50-22 and Burns of Boston won from Sullivan of Quincy 50-16. In checkers, Skinner proved to be Quincy's star man defeating both the Boston players McSorley and Murray. McNeil of Quincy lost to McSorley. The bowling match went to Quincy by 114 pins. J. Gronberg of Quincy had the high single with 102 and Roman did the best work for Boston. The bowlers were: Quincy—Gronberg, Peterson, Johnson, Rahaim, Djerf. Boston—Burns, McSorley, Ferris, Murray and Roman.

COAL BUYING BY THE NEW HAVEN

PRODUCT OF POOR QUALITY

"Diamond Jim" Brady, President's Closest Friend, Figures In Many Big Contracts—Prouty and Choate In Verbal Tilts—Denial That Road Is on Verge of Receivership

Boston, May 1.—With rumors afloat that the New Haven road was to go into the hands of a receiver, accompanied by an emphatic denial from President Mellen, and the revelation that Mellen's chum was given all contracts for freight and passenger cars and his son contracts for the coal that proved to be poor, the interstate commerce commission investigation yesterday was full of interest.

That "Diamond Jim" Brady, the closest personal friend that the president of the New Haven road has, and who is with him almost constantly, has secured for his own companies contracts amounting to many millions for cars by that road and its allied lines, was only one of the sensations developed. The reason alleged was the effort to patronize New England industries that were on the New Haven lines.

It was also known that poor service, particularly upon the Fitchburg division of the Boston and Maine, was due to poor coal, and that much of the coal was bought through Mellen's son, who is the eastern sales agent for the coal company. The son of President Cassatt of the Pennsylvania railroad is the president of this company, the Keystone.

Some very interesting verbal exchanges between Lawyer Choate and Commissioner Prouty enlivened the afternoon session, during one of which the commissioner asked Choate to explain why the New Haven road had paid $33,000,000 for the New York, Port Chester and Boston railroad, that had cost only $21,000,000.

The only reply the lawyer made was "I understand."

Again, in discussing the sale by the American Express company of its holdings in the Worcester, Nashua and Rochester road, Prouty said: "The commission did not know that the express company had made a contract with the Boston and Maine road before it made its contract with you to sell you its stock."

"We were very much in the same condition," said Choate.

"The American Express company was apparently fooling you on its side, but you were giving it the stock represented by the Consolidated company on your side, wasn't that it?" the commissioner queried.

An attempt was made by Choate in cross examining Auditor Brown, to make him admit that the New Haven's capitalization had increased only 100 percent instead of 400 percent, as he testified at a previous session. Brown, however, would only say that the increase had been 100 percent on its steam lines.

Up to the session of yesterday, the testimony as transcribed by the stenographers makes nearly 5000 typewritten pages. The end of the investigation is in sight, however, for Prouty announced yesterday that the arguments must be made on May 7.

"ABSURD AND UNTRUE"

New Haven Road Makes Denial of Rumor of Receivership

New York, May 1.—The following statement was made at the offices of the New York, New Haven and Hartford railroad relative to the rumor current throughout New England that a receiver had been applied for by the road:

"We have just been in communication with the general counsel's office at New Haven, and they declare that the report is absurd and untrue. They are unable to trace the source of the receivership report."

CRANK AT WHITE HOUSE

Wanted to See President Wilson About Investigation of a Marriage

Washington, May 1.—A man giving the name of Albert L. Wood was arrested by Sergeant McWade, detailed at the White House grounds, when he insisted on seeing the president at the White House entrance.

He asserted he had a letter requesting President Wilson to investigate a marriage which he said was performed by President Taft, uniting him to a Washington girl. He is believed to be demented.

Mania For Swallowing Pins

Fishkill, N. Y., May 1.—An elderly woman patient at Matteawan asylum is called "the human pincushion," having swallowed a four-inch hat pin and six safety pins, all removed by operation.

Railroad Trackmen Strike

Boston, May 1.—About 280 trackmen employed in the terminal division of the Boston and Maine railroad are on strike to enforce a demand for $2 a day.

EASILY WINS $5000

McCarty Experiences No Difficulty In Disposing of Moran

New York, May 1.—Luther McCarty beat Frank Moran of Pittsburg decisively last night and the bell saved the blond heavyweight from the Smoky City from being knocked out.

McCarty was trained to the minute. He weighed 204¾ pounds. As the battle progressed he fought better and better. He was at his very best in the tenth and last round. He was never flustered.

McCarty received a guarantee of $5000 for his bout, and won it in hollow fashion.

MONTENEGRO SENDS TROOPS TO FRONTIER

Austria Is Also Continuing Preparations For War

London, May 1.—The Balkan question has shown no development here. The Austrian ambassador had a prolonged conference with Sir Edward Grey, secretary of foreign affairs, who was also consulted by the Russian ambassador.

A Constantinople dispatch says the porte has ordered Essad Pasha to disarm and disband his native troops and send the regulars to Bierut.

Both Austria and Montenegro, according to Vienna advices, are continuing their military preparations. Montenegro has dispatched 5000 troops drawn from Scutari toward the Austrian frontier and has mounted heavy guns above Cattaro.

Great ministerial and diplomatic activity prevails in Vienna, where a council of war was held at the foreign office last evening.

BANDIT IN HUB HOTEL

Relieves Woman Cashier of Cash on Hand and Makes His Escape

Boston, May 1.—An armed bandit entered the office of Hotel Venice on Hanover street last night, levelled a loaded revolver at Miss Nellie O'Connor, cashier, and demanded all the money which she had, the safe being locked.

The desperado got $9 in bills and then backed his way down stairs, declaring he would shoot the woman full of holes if she made an effort to sound an alarm. He escaped, though the cashier, after the robber had turned on the stairway to bolt, summoned sufficient courage to give an alarm.

WINS PRIZE OF $10,000

Guillaux Also Takes Pommery Cup For His Thousand-Mile Flight

Paris, May 1.—Ernest F. Guillaux, a French airman, with his aeroplane flight on Sunday last, when he traveled from Biarritz, France, to Kollum, Holland, a distance of nearly 1000 miles, won a prize of $10,000 and the Pommery or single day distance cup, which was decided at sandown last night.

Competition for the Pommery cup, valued at $1500, is open every six months, and the prize is awarded to the aviator making the longest flight on a straight line between sunrise and sunset of the same day.

FACING EVICTION

Strikers Must Get Out of Houses Owned by the Draper Company

Milford, Mass., May 1.—Seventy-five families of strikers living in the Draper company's houses will be evicted from their homes, if they do not obey the notice of the company and move out of their own volition. Eviction papers have been placed in the hands of the sheriff.

Strike Leader Coldwell says the I. W. W. has made arrangements for housing the families, if they are evicted.

Colonel TODHUNTER of Missouri

By RILEY D. SAUNDERS

Copyright, 1912, by the Bobbs-Merrill Company.

"What is your name?"

"My name is Abram Lincoln Tolliver, suh—dass my name."

"What is your occupation, Abram—what do you do to make a living?"

"Mostly I ketches fish, suh. I hunts some, too, and I sets traps for coon and mink down yander in de Black Bottom swamps, suh."

"Where were you, Abe, on the night of July 26 just past?"

"Part de time I was right hyar in dis heah town o' Nineveh, and atter dat I went on my way to whar I done got my camp in de bottom lands, suh."

"What time did you leave the town of Nineveh to go to your camp in the Black Bottoms?"

"How do you know this?"

"'Case I done ax Ben Dalton, de cullud man whar I been visitin', what was de time dess as I was a-tellin' him goodby, suh."

"What road did you take to go to your camp in the Black Bottoms?"

"Why, suh, 'cose I took'n de Black Bottoms road, suh—leas'ways 'twell I comes to a li'l hog path what leads down into de big swamps off'n dat-ar road, suh."

"How far is it from town before you come to that hog path, Abe?"

"Dess 'bout'n a mile, suh, ter de bes' o' my knowledge and speakin' sorter offhand lak, suh."

"Do you know where the Tucker place is on the Black Bottoms road?"

"Yass, suh."

"Is that path of which you speak more or less than halfway to the Tucker place as you go out from town?"

"Hit dess a li'l mo'n halfways, suh."

"Now, Abram," and the prosecuting attorney straightened to his full height and spoke with especial earnestness, "I want you to tell the jury exactly what happened to you on your way to your camp in the Black Bottoms that night. Tell it in your own way just as it happened."

"Mistah Cromwell, you—you done gimme yo' wu'd dey ain't no harm a-comin' to me ef I tells dat?" he cried appealingly. "And you done tole me I hatter tell it, whur' I wants to er no. Ain't dat so?"

"That is the truth, Abe. The law compels you to testify to the facts of your knowledge bearing upon this case. And it is the law's intent that no harm shall come to you for so doing."

The witness began in a low voice. "Dey wa'n't nothin' happened to me 'twell I come nigh to dat ar hog path what cuts off inter de bottoms," he said. "Dess fo' I got dar, suh, I heern shootin'—one shot and den annurr', hit seem lak ter me, suh. I was skeered when I hear dat ar shootin' and seem lak I better not go on ter whar I sho' ter run smack into it. Mistah Cromwell—yass, suh, I's a-tellin' it ter de jury, suh. So huccome I done hid in de brush side o' de road, suh, layin' flat on de groun'. And dar I stayed, suh."

The witness hesitated.

"Go on," said the prosecuting attorney. "Tell the jury precisely what happened next."

"I lay dar, lak I say," resumed the witness, "when all of a sudden lak a man come down de road f'um whar I heern de shootin'. He pass straight by me on de road, and he seem to be staggerin' lak. He was talkin' to his se'f as he pass whar I was hidin' in de brush. He had his pistol swingin' in his hand, suh, lak a man what was too excited to put it back atter he use it, suh."

The prosecuting attorney moved a step nearer the witness. "You saw that man plainly, Abe?" he asked. "You got a good look at his face?"

"Yass, suh. Hit was a bright moonlight night. I seen dat ar man dess as plain as I done see you dis hyar minnit, suh."

"Did you recognize him?"

"Yass, suh. I knowed him soon's I set eyes on his face, suh."

"Do you see him in this courtroom now?"

"Yass, suh."

"Point him out to the jury, Abe."

The negro, now feeling reassured, leveled his black finger at Tom Strickland dramatically. The eyes of the two, the white man and the black, met, each holding the other's as if fascinated. In those of the witness there was a sort of histrionic relish of the value of the situation tempered by a latent apprehension. In those of the accused there was a strange and pitiful perplexity.

"Dass him, suh," spoke the witness. "Hit was Mistah Tom Strickland what I seen passin' me on dat ar road, suh Lawdy massy! I done know him since he wa'n't mo'n knee high to a duck, suh!"

There was a sudden stir throughout the courtroom, a movement of tense excitement, followed by a sinister hush.

"After you saw and recognized this man," said the prosecuting attorney, "what happened then?"

"I laid right dar 'twell he done gone out o' sight, suh. He was a-goin' in to'ards town, and I done keep my eyes on him 'twell he turn a ben' in de road and I cain't see him no mo'. Den I wait 'twell I sho' he ain't a-comin' back. Atter dat, I got up and started on my way, keepin' in de shadow side o' de road."

Again the witness paused.

"Well?" asked the prosecuting attorney. "Tell the jury what happened then, Abe."

"I—I had come purty nigh to de hog path whar I was to strike off inter de bottom lands," he resumed, "when I stumbled ovah sump'in a-layin' on de groun', part in de road and part in de grass side o' de road."

He wiped his face with his open palm. "Hit was a man," he said—and then, his voice solemn—"and de man was dead. He been shot. I seen de place whar he shot—right in de head, 'twix' de eyes, on'y des a li'l bit higher up. When I stumble ovah him and nigh fall I stretch out my hand, down lak, and hit tech de place whar he been shot and got all bloody."

"Did you see the face of this man?" asked the prosecuting attorney.

"Yass, suh."

"Did you recognize it?"

"Yass, suh."

"Abram," said the prosecuting attorney, "tell the jury who the dead man was whose body you thus found and whose face you saw and recognized."

"Hit was young Mistah Stamford Tucker," the witness made answer. "I knowed him, suh, dess as well as I know Mistah Tom Strickland settin' right hyar 'fo' my eyes, suh."

"Abe," he asked, "why didn't you at once report the finding of Stamford Tucker's dead body and the seeing of Thomas W. Strickland, pistol in hand, as he came away from the spot where that body lay?"

The witness shook his head stubbornly. "'Twan't none o' my business, suh," he replied. "Hit's a mighty fool nigger what goes mixin' biss'ef up in a shootin' scrape 'twix' two white gent'mun, suh. I was skeered ter do it, suh—dass why—and I dess pick up my feet and make tracks fas' as I could to whar my camp in de bottom lands was, suh. And you ain't heern no wu'd 'bout'n what I seen, and you ain't had me fotched to yo' office, 'cept'n I was fool ernuff ter tell dat ar ole Isr'el Fant what I run ercross down in de bottom lands, suh!"

The state's attorney turned to the counsel for the defense. "You may take the witness," he said.

A searching cross examination failed to weaken in any respect the testimony just given. At its conclusion Major Gentry Dryden whispered earnestly with Colonel Bill Strickland.

And, although the words were not audible, this certainty of conviction seemed to be in the thought of all. Into the jurors' faces there came a look of pity as their eyes met those of the accused man, the latter perplexed, bewildered, helpless.

CHAPTER XIV.

Acquitted.

"THE state rests its case," announced the prosecuting attorney. A profound and ominous silence followed.

It was broken by the entrance of Colonel Todhunter into the courtroom. He came through a door opening from the sheriff's office in the rear. His clothing was covered with dust, as of hurried travel along sun scorched roads. He made his way direct to where Colonel Bill Strickland and Major Gentry Dryden were sitting. The latter rose a moment later.

"I beg the court's indulgence for a little time," he said hurriedly. "An adjournment is not asked—merely opportunity for a brief conference."

The request was granted.

Taking hasty notes meanwhile, Major Dryden was deep in consultation with Colonel Todhunter. Suddenly he stood erect and faced the trial judge, his eyes ablaze with excitement.

"May it please the court," he said, "new evidence of a most important character has just come into possession of counsel for the defense."

Then he turned to the Nineveh sheriff. "Call Lottie-May Doggett," he said. Lottie-May Doggett, emerging from the sheriff's own room, took the stand in answer to his call.

The murmur of excitement that had swept through the courtroom at hearing Major Gentry Dryden's announcement sank into absolute silence as the girl confronted the crowd. She herself was deadly pale.

"Where were you, Miss Doggett," asked Major Dryden, following the necessary questions as to the witness' name, place of residence and the like, "on the morning of the 27th day of July just past?"

There is more Catarrh in this section of the country than all other diseases put together, and until the last few years was supposed to be incurable. For a great many years doctors pronounced it a local disease and prescribed local remedies, and by constantly failing to cure local treatment, pronounced it incurable. Science has proven catarrh to be a constitutional disease and therefore requires constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, Ohio, is the only constitutional cure on the market. It is taken internally in doses from 10 drops to a teaspoonful. It acts directly on the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. They offer one hundred dollars for any case it fails to cure. Send for circulars and testimonials.

"IN A BAD WAY"

Many a Ledger Reader Will Feel Grateful for This Information.

If your back gives out;
Becomes lame, weak or aching;
If urinary troubles set in,
Perhaps your kidneys are "in a bad way."

Don't delay—use Doan's Kidney Pills.

Here is good evidence of their worth.

Mrs. S J. Mortimer, 9 Woodville St., Roxbury, Mass., says: "Kidney trouble made me miserable about six years ago. I had severe pains in my back and sometimes I could hardly move. It was next to impossible for me to do any housework. When I attempted to get up in the mornings, the pains were so bad that I had to roll out of bed on my hands and knees. If I moved quickly or brought a strain on my back, I would almost scream with the pain. Doan's Kidney Pills were so highly recommended to me that I got a box and began using them. The first few doses helped me and in less than a week, the trouble was gone. Whenever a cold or strain brings on an attack of kidney complaint, Doan's Kidney Pills cure it."

For sale by all dealers. Price 50 cents. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, New York, sole agents for the United States.

Remember the name—Doan's—and take no other.

CHAMPION TIED WITH LAWRENCE

FORMER SCRATCH MAN

The golf season opened at Montclair links, Wednesday, with medal play handicap and qualifying round for the Wollaston cup, it being the annual spring event.

Francis Ouimet of the Woodland G. C., Auburndale, and V. S. Lawrence, a club-mate, shared the honors for the best scores of the day, both getting 78 for their round. The chances for carrying off the prize for the best gross were lost by both Ouimet and Lawrence at the home hole, the latter taking three putts on the green, while the former tried hard for a 3, but overran and took 5.

Ouimet and Lawrence were both out in 40 and home in 38 strokes. Ouimet's 2 at the 9th showed that the player from Woodland, who is rated as the best amateur in the State, was on his game. He played excellent golf throughout. Lawrence also played consistant golf, only getting into trouble at the 11th hole, where he took 6.

The scores drawn for match play ran from 78 to 90, four players being tied at the latter figures for the one place for the Wollaston Cup. The players who will try for his position today at 2 o'clock are J. J. Gallagher of Wollaston, W. S. Brophy of Wollaston, J. F. Sanderson, Woodland and H. H. Cook, Albemarle.

In the drawings for match play for the Wollaston Cup, the first round of which will be played today should result in some keen and interesting play. Ouimet, who captured the prize for the best gross last year, will again be unable to compete. Arthur G. Lockwood, who won the cup last year, is found in the upper half of the drawing, being pitted against Richard R. Freeman of the home club.

The contest between F. H. Hoyt and B. S. Evans will, it is expected, create a great deal of interest as well as that of P. W. Whittemore and V. S. Lawrence.

Leading Scores of the Day.

The three leading scores were as follows:

—The Boston Chamber of Commerce is asking how it might co-operate with the New Haven management for the betterment of New England transportation facilities. Good. With a little more of this spirit throughout New England we are likely to get somewhere. There has been too much pulling down by those who have no constructive remedies to offer, and the Chamber recognizes this, and now proposes to work with Mr. Mellen in a constructive way. It is gradually becoming recognized that the interests of New England and the interests of the New Haven road are mutual—Banker and Tradesman.

NOON CONTESTS OPENED.

C. Moyle, won the opening event of the Wednesday noon contests at the Fore River Co. with a mark of 8 ft, 4 in. for the standing broad jump. After 18 men had competed it was found that C. Blanchard and C. Moyle had each jumped the same distance, 8ft. 3 in. On the jump-off Moyle cleared 8 ft. 4 in. while Blanchard was unable to better his record.

R. Howe was 3rd with a mark of 8 ft. 1 in.

LAUNCHING OF LIFEBOATS

Fore River Employee has Invented a Patent Device for Work

Sometime ago one of the employees at the Fore River ship yard invented a life raft for vessels, which was immediately adopted by one of the large steamship companies. Now another employee at the shipyard has invented a device for the rapid and safe launching of lifeboats from sea going vessels in time of disaster. The inventer of this device is Wilhelm Friman, who has been a ship's carpenter for many years.

Mr. Friman's plan provides for a chute extending from an underdeck of the ship transversely through the hull of the vessel to the water at a point near the stern. On the steel ways with which this chute must be equipped lifeboats, provided with rail guides, may slide into the water at a gentle decline and with no possibility of injury or harm to anyone.

The invention arranges for the storage of lifeboats on an inner deck or compartment just below the main deck the floor of which, covered with stationary rollers, affords easy and quick passage to the boats, which may be moved over it to the head of the chute At this point, in time of accident, the boats would be loaded and released by a lever for their slide down the rails into the water.

The advantages which are claimed for this method of launching over the ordinary one are speed and increased safety. Mr. Friman says that four men on a ship could launch two filled boats within two minutes after orders from the captain or commanding officer. The size of the boats may vary.

Mr. Friman is a native of Finland and in his articles filed with the United States Patent Office still declared himself a "subject of the Czar of Russia." He sailed as ship's carpenter on various vessels for nearly 13 years and was himself shipwrecked at one time. He has been employed as a carpenter in Quincy for many years.

MAY DAY PARTY A GREAT SUCCESS

May-day was celebrated at the Mall place M. E. church, Thursday evening when the young ladies of the Sunday school entertained gentlemen friends and guests in the vestry.

The guests assembled shortly after eight o'clock and a short social chat was enjoyed. Miss Jessie Burke favored with piano selections.

The hit of the evening was a farce entitled "The Champion of her sex."

The cast of characters was as follows:

Mrs. Duplex, a widow with money and a mission,—Florence Manhire.

Mrs. Deborah Hartshorn, her mother,,—Dora Ward.

Florence Duplex, her daughter,—Jessie Burke.

Caroline Duplex, her step-daughter, Jennie Manhire.

Rhoda Dendron, Pollie Nay, her friends, Edna Miller and Addie Newcomb.

Kate O'Neil, the cook—Edna Burke.

Maggie Donovan, the chambermaid Hilda Francis.

Mrs. Duplex, who has recently come out for "women's rights finds the literal meaning of her words very disconcerting when her daughter decides to be a lawyer, Maggie Donovan, a sailor Kate O'Neil a soldier with a gun, Pollie Nay an auc-sh-sh-shuneer, and Rhoda Dendron a butcher, while Mrs. Hartshorn voices her disgust with the Female Reform club in no uncertain terms. Caroline, by the finding of a new will is transformed from a household drudge into an heiress.

Florenc Duplex, whose previous experience with the principal of the Seminary as a "woman's rights" worker successfully cures her mother of her zeal in that direction and turns her thoughts to her home.

Games were played. Ice cream and cake were served by the refreshment committee in charge of Miss Florence Manhire, Miss Edna Burke and Miss Addie Newcomb. The entertainment was in charge of Miss Hilda Francis and Miss Dora Ward.

Miss Jennie Manhire, Edna Miller and Jessie Burke were in charge of the decorating. A good time was enjoyed by all.

SCANDIA LODGE ANNIVERSARY

Scandia Lodge, Order of Vasa held its seventh anniversary celebration in Electa and Protection Halls, Thursday evening.

A class initiation was conducted on 25 candidates by President Carl Bastin The conductress was Miss Eva Honberg, of Ingeborg Lodge of Campello.

Music for dancing was by Johnson's orchestra and games and folk songs were generally participated in by those present. Refreshments were served.

A basket party will be held in Protection Hall, May 15 in charge of the following committee, Carl Bastin, Carl Bonivier, Miss Alfrida Carlson, Mrs. Hilma O'Brien, Oscar Johnson, Miss Hilma Johnson and Wolfred Anderson.

THREE CANDIDATES.

The 19th anniversary of the institution of Quincy Council occurs June 5. A banquet at Music hall will be the principle feature. The committee in charge is Past Grand Knight Edward D. Barrett, Past Grand Knight John J. Cunniff, Secretary Richard A. Cole, Treasurer Michael T. Sullivan, Peter M. Sullivan and Grand Knight Michael T. Walsh and Secretary John T. Caine acting ex officio.

POINTERS MAY PARTY.

The Waseca Social Club, the premier social organization of Quincy Point held a May Party and dance at Alpha hall, Thursday evening which was largely attended by guests from surrounding towns.

Dancing commenced at eight o'clock when Wilson's orchestra circled on the platform. The midnight hour closed the festivities.

W. Fields was floor director with H. Shea as the assistant. N. Allen was chief of aids and the aids were Charles Costello, John Pinel, James O'Toole, James Miur, Walter Myatt and Chester McDonald.

PARISH PLANS TRIPLE AFFAIR

Members of St. John's Church Getting Ready for Anniversaries

The contemplated triple celebration which the parishoners of St. John's Church are preparing to observe in June will probably be the biggest event ever undertaken by the parish. Rev. Fr. John J. Coan, pastor, is the spiritual director to nearly 3500 people.

This year marks the 50th anniversary of St. John's church, the 25th anniversary of the ordination of Father Coan, and the 10th anniversary of his pastorate.

At a meeting in Parochial hall, Sunday, Edward J. Parker was chosen chairman and Miss Nonie O'Connor secretary. Another meeting will be held Sunday afternoon when definite plans will be arranged.

The committee is large and will report their findings to the parishoners in the hall Sunday afternoon at 3 o'clock for action. The committee is as follows:

Edward J. Parker, Miss Nonie O'Connor, Michael T. Sullivan, John H. Dinegan, Thomas H. McDonnell, Henry Clare, Edward Powers, Albert A. Murphy, P. H. O'Brien, Dr. Joseph Harkins, Michael E. Cook, Marcus Mahon, John Lynch, William T. Donovan, Charles Keating, Joseph A. Keating, John Manning, John Cain, William Collagan, Francis McCormick, Joseph M. Larkin, John Harkins, J. J. McDEVITT WILL NOT APOLOGIZE

Suspended Senator May Appeal His Case to Courts

LAWYERS NON-COMMITTAL

There is a strong belief and a persistent rumor about the State House that suspended Senator John J. McDevitt may make a formal demand for his seat, reinstatement and even have the whole matter threshed out in court.

May Day on Beacon Hill passed without the appearance of Senator John J. McDevitt.

By the order of March 13 the Senator was suspended from all Senatorial rights, privileges and pay until May 1 and his reinstatement as a member in full standing on this latter date was made conditional on his submitting a satisfactory apology in writing for making statements against the integrity of another member of the Legislature which the Rules Committee had reported to be "untrue."

On the afternoon of March 13., when Pres. Greenwood administered a public rebuke to the Senator, McDevitt declared he would never apologize and up to date he has kept his word.

Under the order of the Senate the Quincy man stands suspended until the apology is forthcoming.

A rumor gained persistent circulation at the State House during the day that McDevitt's counsel plans to make a formal demand for the suspended Senator's seat, and subsequently to thresh out the whole case in the courts.

Daniel T. O'Connell, when asked if he proposed to take such action in behalf of Senator McDevitt, declined to either confirm or deny the rumor, said "Our attitude is to say nothing."

"Are you still acting as counsel for Mr. McDevitt?" he was asked.

"I cannot discuss even that phase of it," he replied.

Ex-Congressman Joseph F. O'Connell was asked if he would take the case to court for McDevitt, but he was non-committal.

DRUNKS SOUGHT RAILROAD TRACK

Officer Olson Probably Saved Two Lives Last Night

Police gathered in a few May day drunks Thursday night, and but for the promptness of Officer Charles Olson two of the bunch might have furnished a headline story for they were found on the railroad tracks. It was a little after 8 o'clock when Officer Olson found Martin Kain on the railroad tracks just south of the Quincy station. Martin had evidently become tired and had laid down between the tracks for a little sleep. It was but a few minutes before a train was due that Officer Olson dragged him off of the tracks and sent him to the police station for the night. This morning Judge Avery imposed a sentence of ten days in the house of correction but Martin took an appeal and was held in $100.

About 11 o'clock Officer Olson received word that another drunk was on the tracks between the depot and the granite street bridge. This man proved to be George Curtis and he was walking down the tracks toward the approaching Double Iron freight that was thundering along toward Boston In court this morning Judge Avery imposed a fine of $10 and then suspended the sentence.

DISTRICT COURT.

James F. Fogarty of Weymouth was fined $15, William Jones of Randolph 315, Patrick Manning of Quincy $5, John Casey and George Curtis of Quincy $10 each for drunkenness.

Martin Kain was sentenced to ten days in the house of correction for drunkenness at Quincy. Appealed.

CARPENTER GETTING BUSY

Believes Common Shareholders of Fore River SHOULD GET SOMETHING

E. E. Carpenter of New York, a large shareholder of the Fore River Company is evidently not satisfied with the results of the sale.

The Boston News Bureau commenting upon the situation Wednesday contained the following:

E. E. Carpenter, of New York, who claims to be a large shareholder in the Fore River Shipbuilding Co., is of the opinion that if the sale of property to the Bethlehem Steel Co. for $600,000 goes through as planned there should be something available for common stockholders. Mr. Carpenter is now soliciting minority stockholders to get in touch with him.

To a Boston News Bureau representative in New York Mr. Carpenter said: "The company had $600,000 cash in bank on Saturday night, against $393,000 at the end of 1912, and over $900,000 at the close of 1911. Of the total assets, approximating $6,000,000 on Dec. 31, about $3,500,000 represented plant and the balance liquid assets.

I figure that liquid assets alone are sufficient to care for the entire $2,400,000 are preferred at par leaving about $40 a share for the common to be derived from sale of plant.

At the company's annual meeting last February I suggested that there be created $1,200,000 first preferred stock to be sold to employees at par which would supply new working capital. The matter was referred to the directors, but I have heard nothing from them.

I am at work on the matter with about eight other stockholders, but we have not yet outlined any course of procedure. Before a sale of property could go through as planned it would seem as though stockholders should have the privilege of voting on the question."

EDITORIAL COMMENT.

A Charlestown woman forgot her relatives when she was dying but remembered her two cats for whom she left a man $10,000 on condition that he provide a home for the two felines.

California has been stirred to even more drastic measures and the political game goes on.

Representative Sisson of Mississippi, is one of the acrobats of congress. Eight weeks ago he condemned an increase of the navy and proclaimed that this country should be for peace, first, last and all times and now he is calling loudly for war with Japan.

It is now believed that the bustle is to be resumed. Next thing the crinoline will be in order.

Caleb F. Howard is becoming active and popular.

Will McDevitt stick it out for the balance of the session?

Boston has a few more 12 o'clock licenses. Will there be any demand in the suburbs for a later train?

Uncle Sam is to draw some revenue from the money deposited in the National banks. About time some benefit was derived from this plum to the banks.

A paris birdman flew nearly 1000 miles in a day. He has some license to enter the Atlantic ocean handicap.

The hunger strike has reached the Pennsylvania jails. A woman operated it successfully in one of them.

If all prisoners followed this practice the problem of emptying jails would be solved.

By all means of American coastwise shops are to be exempt from canal tolls let the government go further and include all American ships.

American women should hesitate before accepting the advice of Mrs. Belmont to enter upon a wrecking campaign. They are gradually gaining their ends by more lady like methods.

There seems to be a spice of selfishness mixed up in this California affair. With all their boasted claims of California for the Californians, the aforesaid Californians could not resist the big profits in land sales to the very people they are trying to keep from holding land in that state.

Ortie McGonagle is to have his face changed and commence a new life. It is to be hoped that he makes better use of his time, than he did in the past.

All Mr. Mellen and his directors have to do is to offer a reasonable explanation of their methods, as shown. The public is not so terribly concerned about Mr. Brandeis. It is the railroad officials, to whom the public look for service and good management.

THE TRIBE OF SMITH.

The call has gone forth. Let every member of the Smith family respond. It is planned to hold a reunion of the people bearing this name in the near future. This does not apply to any particular branch of the family, or whether they spell their names, Smith, Smithe, or Smythe. The whole tribe is included and the invitation to gather is nation wide. If a banquet is to be one of the modes of entertainment, there will be some difficulty in securing a covering large enough to accommodate the whole family, but this may be overcome in a measure by selecting a good day and having the feed in the open. Even then a pretty large field would have to be engaged and megaphones would need to be employed to carry the remarks of the speakers to the outer fringes of the throng. So much for the Smiths. If they accomplish their stunt with any degree of success, the Browns and Joneses will be in order to follow suit. If they all fall in line, a complete census may be secured and thus a correct line secured to determine the much mooted question of which is entitled to the crown of supremacy in numbers, the Browns, Joneses or Smiths. So that those reunions will accomplish something.

THE WHITE SLAVE TRAFFIC.

The extermination of the White slave traffic or at least an honest effort to check it and a measure of success along those lines are to be commended and encouraged by every decent self respecting citizen. This is an offense against the law, which calls for the strongest contempt of decent people and the most severe condemnation. It is difficult to determine where or how it originated. That it flourishes in the larger cities of the country, and is in some of them a part of the political system is a blot, a disgrace, a never ending source of shame to such communities.

Some of the loud toned efforts to suppress it at the present time, border upon the ridiculous and would be accepted as a joke were it not for the serious character of the crime. Investigation by appointed bodies, commissions and the like can hardly accomplish much reform, when conducted in the open. Such a course practically warns the offenders, puts them on their guard and affords them a chance to cover up their tracks and make conviction more difficult. A remote case is reported here and there where a conviction has been secured. But those are not a thousandth part of the offenders.

The only way by which this debasing condition can be reached at all is by secret investigation. The work of a few policemen who know what is going on among the haunts of a big city would accomplish more in a week, than ten commissions conducting an open investigation and spending many thousands of dollars to find out or make public what every one who follows the trend of affairs knows full well.

MR. OLNEY'S VIEWS.

"As a lawyer, thinker and statesman, Richard Olney ranks high, and Senator Root will find him an opponent worthy of his best intellectual efforts. Mr. Olney holds that the phrase "all nations" in the Hay-Pauncefote canal treaty means "all customers" of the United States, and that we are free to exempt our coasters from tolls or in any other wise discriminate in favor of our nationals.

"If this is true, why limit the exemption to coastwise shipping? Why not extend it to American ships engaged in foreign trade? Doubtless Mr. Olney would say, as Taft did, that if congress chose to extend the exemption it had the power to do so, and that the treaty would not be violated thereby. But other authorities sharply dispute that view.

"Granting, purely for the sake of the argument, that Mr. Olney is right, in what position does he leave congress? There might be some sense and profit in exempting our foreign trade from canal tolls, since all agree that our foreign trade should be encouraged in proper ways; but what sense or national advantage is there in subsidizing the coastwise shipping monopoly? Why should the American taxpayers pile privilege upon privilege and relieve a prosperous monopoly of reasonable payments?" —Chicago Courier-Herald.

SEAL RING FOR MISS TAYLOR

Retiring President Wollaston, Y. P. S. C. E.

The semi-annual business meeting of the Y. P. S. C. E. of the Wollaston Congregational church was held in the vestry Monday evening. The following officers were elected for six months: President, Eugene G. Smith; vice-president, George W. Brown; recording secretary, Miss Agnes Eastman, corresponding secretary, Miss Marion Farwell, treasurer, Miss Dorothy Taylor.

Reports were given which showed that all the committees are actively at work, and the thermometer for the efficiency campaign was raised to 77 per cent.

In behalf of the society, Dr. Sneath presented a beautiful Christian Endeavor seal ring to Miss Ruth A. Taylor, who has been president of the society for the past two years.

At the close of the business meeting a social hour was enjoyed and refreshments served by the social committee.

YOUNG PEOPLE GIVEN GOOD TIME

Danced, Played Games and Enjoyed A Fine Supper

The annual children's party of the Sunday school of the First church, postponed from last December was held Thursday afternoon and evening in the chapel of the church. The festival began at 4 o'clock and closed at 8 o'clock.

The program for the afternoon consisted of a number of folk dances given under the direction of Miss Ella Packard. First there was the sailors hornpipe by Harold Stoddard. Then came a Norwegian dance, called the Mountain dance given by nine little girls dressed in white. Then the little boys gave a Danish dance called "I see you" and a Swedish dance.

For the next half hour the children played games, Hickery, Dickery Dock and a Hob Goblin dance. Then a magician appeared on the platform and entertained the children with many mysterious tricks of ledgerdemain.

More games were played by the children while awaiting for the word to go to the dining room in the basement for supper. These games came to a sudden end when supper was announced. An appetizing meal was thoroughly enjoyed by the young people.

Returning to the chapel a series of aesthetic dances were given on the platform under the direction of Miss Ethel Hersey.

A CLEVER DODGE.

Rumor has it that one of the expressmen who received one of the coveted permits to transport liquor from the City Council at the meeting of April 21, and which he received on Thursday, has given one of the expressmen who was refused a permit, permission to use his name. That is it is reported that one of the men turned down is using his teams under the name of the man who got the permit. It was for doing this same kind of business that several were refused a license, or permit this year.

DENNIS FARRELL BURIED.

The funeral of Dennis Farrell who died in his 66th year Tuesday was held from his home 152 Willard street this morning and was largely attended by relatives and friends.

A high mass of requiem was celebrated at St. Mary's church by Rev. Fr. Henry T. Grady. The Gregoriann chant was rendered by the choir under the direction of Miss Francis Cronin, organist. John Hoey of Randolph was the soloist.

A large delegation from St. Francis Court, M. C. O. F. of which the deceased was a charter member was present. Floral tributes were numerous, among them being standing pieces from the Metropolitan Park Employees, Quincy Police Department and the St. Francis Court, M. C. O. F.

The bearers were Sargent John Larkin, Edward J. Curtin , Henry F. Riley and Daniel Doran of the Police department and Patrick W. Mannix, John F. Daley, James Ogle and John F. Burke of the Foresters.

The deceased was born in West Quincy, within sight of his home and was the father of Officer David Farrell. He is survived by his wife, Annie, four daughters, Mrs. Michael Riley, Mrs. Helen Prendergast, Elizabeth and Anna and two sons, Simon of Wooseter, Ohio and David.

BIRTHDAY SURPRISE PARTY.

Miss Hattie May Lermond of 20 Glenwood way, was pleasantly surprised Thursday evening, the occasion being her birthday. Otis MacDonald on behalf of the company gathered, presented her with a gold locket, Mrs. W. F. Perry also presenting her with another package containing a photograph of herself, which was also a surprise to her parents. She responded with a few words showing her appreciation.

Games and pleasing music, also readings by Mrs. Hennessey were enjoyed. Refreshments were served.

The many friends present were Mr. and Mrs. James Hennessey and son Wendall, Mr. and Mrs. Otis MacDonald, and son Otis, Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Pinel, Helene Pinel, Gladys Pinel, Ray Oliver, Mrs. Keene, Miss Aljuline Keene, Roland Phinney, Mr. and Mrs. W. F. Perry, Mr. and Mrs. Merritt Lermond, Mrs. Wright, G. C. Russell, and Miss H. M. Lermond.

After wishing her many happy birthdays her friends departed at a late hour.

Colonel TODHUNTER of Missouri

By RIPLEY D. SAUNDERS

Copyright, 1911, by the Bobbs-Merrill Company.

"I was at home that mornin', suh."

"Were you alone there?"

"Yes, suh, after grandfather left me, soon as he got his breakfas'—until Colonel Todhunter come there, maybe some two hours later'n that, suh."

"What did Colonel Todhunter come to see you about?"

"He came to tell me that Stam Tucker had been shot and killed the night befo' and that Tom Strickland had been arrested for killin' him."

"Was that the first you had heard of Stam Tucker's death?"

"Yes, suh."

"Did you know before then that a threat against Stamford Tucker's life had been made?"

"Yes, suh."

"Did you know by whom that threat had been made?"

"Yes, suh. I knowed the man who made it. He made it to me when him and me was alone together."

"Who was that man, Miss Doggett?"

"It was Jesse Bream, suh—'Chickasaw Jesse' folks here in Nineveh calls

"Who was that man, Miss Doggett?"

"When did Jesse Bream make this threat against Stamford Tucker's life in your presence?"

"What led him to make the threat?"

"Somethin' that I told him about Stam Tucker, suh; somethin' that had come up at the party I just spoke of."

"You must be more definite than this if you please, Miss Doggett. What has you told Jesse Bream that caused him to make this threat?"

"He come to see me about somethin I had said to Mrs. Todhunter the night befo' at the party. They shamed me that night, and I told Mrs. Todhunter that Tom Strickland was the man who had brought that shame on me. And then Jesse Bream came to see me the next mornin'. He had been worryin me to marry him, and he still wanted to marry me, but he said he was goin to kill Tom Strickland for wrongin me, and it was then I told him about Stam Tucker."

"What about Stam Tucker, Miss Doggett?"

"Why—I—I got skeered for Tom Strickland, suh—and—and—well, 'fo' I knowed what I was a-sayin' I told Jesse the truth—that it was Stam Tucker and not Tom Strickland who had brought my shame 'pon me. And it was then that Jesse said he meant to waylay and kill Stam Tucker the first chance."

"Why did you not tell Colonel Todhunter this?"

"'Cause I was afeared to, suh. Jesse had done told me that he was a-goin' to do it for my sake and that if I ever so much as breathed a word of it he would kill me, too, but that he'd take me away and marry me if I didn't. He would ha' killed me too. I knowed that mighty well."

"Had you promised Jesse Bream to go away with him?"

"Yes, suh, I had. I wanted to get away from Nineveh, where I'd been shamed and disgraced, and he was the only man what would ha' married me after that. I might ha' told Colonel Todhunter the truth if I hadn't been afeared o' Jesse and if I hadn't seen that it would be evenin' things up with Tom Strickland as well as Jesse ha evened 'em up with Stam Tucker if went away with him."

Both Mr. and Mrs. Abele senior enjoy exceptionally good health and were pleasantly remembered by their children on this occasion with gifts.

GRANITE CITY WHIST SCORES

Mr. Ames Appears to Have a Lien on the Consolation

The best scores for the month of April in the Granite City club whist tournament as well as the best scores for the season were announced Thursday. For the month of April, William R. Dimock had the best score and Henry F. Tilden the second best. The consolation for the month went to Samuel T. MacQuarrie. The best season score went to George H. Field and the second best to Henry F. Tilden. The consolation for the season went to Nathan Ames. Mr. Ames seems to have the inside track on the seasons consolation trophy for he also captured it for the season of 1911-12.

THE FORE RIVER SALE.

"Boston stockholders and directors of the Fore River Shipbuildings Co., were rather surprised by a statement made in New York by E. E. Carpenter of that city, who expresses the opinion that if the sale of the property to the Bethlehem Steel Co., goes through the preferred stockholders should receive face value with something left for the common stockholders.

"I wish it were so, but unfortunately I cannot see it in that light, was the way one of the men conversant with the affairs of the company put it last night.

Mr. Carpenter is quoted as saying that the company had $600,000 cash in bank on Saturday night. Of the total assets, approximating $6,000,000 on Dec. 31, about $3,500,000 represented plant and the balance liquid assets, he says.

"He figures that liquid assets alone are sufficient to care for the entire $2,400,000 preferred at par leaving about $40 a share for the common to be derived from sale of plant.

"He expresses surprise that the stockholders have not had the privilege of voting on the question.

"It was pointed out in Boston that Mr. Carpenter did not seem to consider the fact that in paying $600,000 in bonds for the property, the Bethlehem Co. was to take over all the assets of the company, and what the directors feel is more important still, all the liabilities. Some of the contracts will be carried out at a very heavy loss, and this loss the Bethlehem Co., will meet as part of the purchase price.

"It is expected that a stockholders' meeting will be called very soon, but as over 90 p. c. of the stock had been deposited yesterday with the Old Colony Trust Co., the result will be a foregone conclusion."

LIFE AFTER DEATH.

Rev. John Whitehead M. A., Th. B. of Cambridge, will give a free lecture on "The Life After Death, How Proved?" Mr. Whitehead is a member of the Society for Psychical Research, and will show the facts on which the belief in the life after death rest as on a solid rock. The lecture will be illustrated by charts which will make clear the nature of death, the resurrection and life after death. The lecture will be given, Sunday, 3.30 P. M., at Hancock Hall, Quincy Square, Quincy. The public is invited, seats free. Mr. Whitehead is well known as a lecturer on psychical research and psychial subjects.

POLICE LEAGUE READY FOR FRAY

Eight Cities Will Be Represented on Diamonds By Coppers

THE SEASON'S SCHEDULE

The Massachusetts Police Base Ball league is being royally supported by the business men throughout the state, and they are the recipients of many cups and prizes, that have been donated for the champion batsman, baseman, home run and two base hitters. They have been presented, by a well known sporting goods house of Boston, with a very beautiful gold lettered silk banner, valued at $50.00 emblematic of the World's Championship, which will be given to the winning team at the finish of the season.

The teams comprising the league this year are—Cambridge, Chelsea, Everett, Lowell, Metropolitan Park, Newton, Quincy, Revere and Somerville.

It was voted to open the season on Tuesday, May 6, and to play as per the following schedule, closing on Tuesday, September 2nd.

After which there will be a grand banquet and presentation of the Championship Banner, cups and prizes to the various winners. Much interest has been shown in police circles all over the country. A baseball league having been orgahized in California the past year. The same as in Massachusetts. There is a movement now on foot by the league officials to raise funds to send the Massachusetts champions to California next fall to battle with the best team that the California Police League can produce.

The auto police patrol wagon which was put out of commission several weeks ago in an accident came out of the shop Thursday. The car was in need of some repairs before the accident and since it has been in the shop it has been overhauled and put in thorough repair.

There is more Catarrh in this section of the country than all other diseases put together, and until the last few years was supposed to be incurable. For a great many years doctors pronounced it a local disease and prescribed local remedies, and by constantly failing to cure local treatment, pronounced it incurable. Science has proven catarrh to be a constitutional disease and therefore requires constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, Ohio, is the only constitutional cure on the market. It is taken internally in doses from 10 drops to a teaspoonful. It acts directly on the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. They offer one hundred dollars for any case it fails to cure. Send for circulars and testimonials.

Should invest 25c or 50c in a pair of

Interwoven Hose

Notice the man in front of you when you come down town tomorrow—see the hole in the heel of his sock—or the bunch of darning not neatly done. Otherwise he is well dressed—but, oh! that hole spoils it all.

Wear Interwoven Hose and have no holes or darning.

They fit the foot as snug as a glove, and are reinforced where the wear comes.

BRIEFS

The Girls' Friendly Society of the St. Chrysostom's church of Wollaston will meet this evening.

Mrs. A. Fraser of Quincy avenue, East Braintree left today from Nova Scotia to attend the funeral of her father Robert Irving.

A dispatch in the Boston papers reports the safe arrival at the Panama canal of the Boston Chamber of Commerce party, in which are several from Quincy.

Miss Edith Randall will give a talk on "Rambles Abroad," before the members of St. Margaret's Guild of Christ church at their meeting this evening.

Clarence A. Rogers has moved from the Faxon house on the corner of Washington and Coddington streets to Bigelow street, and the Faxon house is occupied by Frank Wrigley.

Dr. John H. Anderson of Edwards street, is ill at the Massachusetts Homeopathic Hospital in Boston, where he has just undergone a critical surgical operation.

Miss Edith Randall will give a talk on Germany before St. Margaret's Guild this evening at 8 o'clock at the parish house. All women of the church are invited.

The City Council Committee on Licenses met Thursday evening.

James H. Lalley, the master painter has opened a shop in the N. B. Furnald building on Washington street.

Open cars on the street railway are gradually making their appearance although thus far there have been but few days when the air was hardly warm enough for them.

The street railway has commenced work relaying rail on Washington street between Temple and Canal streets. The old T rail is being taken up and a grooved girder rail is being laid.

Catcher George Barry has been traded from Brockton to Calais, Me Barry showed good form with Brockton. He is well known here, having filled the catcher berth on many Quincy teams. Last season he played in the Novia Scotia league.

The adjourned hearing before the Railroad Commissioners on the approval of the decree plans for the seperation of the grades at the Water and Saville street crossings will be held next Monday afternoon. The hearing is sure to be a lively one.

DAUGHTERS OF ISABELLA.

Plans are being considered by the members of the Quincy Council, No. 96 to form a branch of the Daughters of Isabella, the auxiliary to the organization, among the Catholic women of the city. The society is national in scope and is particularly strong in Massachusetts. The branch will be instituted in the near future.

CITIZENS' ASSOCIATION.

The executive committee of the Wollaston Citizens Association met Thursday evening with William Dean Sanford, 191 Belmont street. Charles H. Johnson will be the speaker on ladies night; subject—"The demands of the hour."

TO ENTERTAIN LEAGUE.

The Luther League of the Swedish Luthern Church will be hostess to the Luther League of Brockton Thursday evening. Preparations are being made to receive a large number. The entertainment program will be rendered by the visitors and refreshments will be served by the local members. A pleasant evening is anticipated.

ADVERTISE IN THE LEDGER.

GOOD PLAYING IN GOLF CONTEST

Much Interest Centered in the Wollaston Cup Tourney

The first elimination round in the Wollaston golf championships for the club cup was played yesterday, and the second will be played today. A number of class Y players are still in the running, including P. W. Whittemore, B. .S Evans and F. Sargent. The best match today should be the one between Evans of Belmont and Sargent of Harvard. Whittemore and Evans are the favorites to win the tournament.

Several matches were very close and interesting. R. R. Freeman, past master of roll in the difficuulties presented by the undulations, chasms and cuttings of the Wollaston course, defeated A. G. Lockwood by 1 up.

B. S. Evans met an old rival in F. H. Hoyt and won by 2 up. P. W. Whittemore defeated V. S. Lawrence, the rising young playwright, by 5 and 3, the latter not playing up to his golf of Wednesday when he tied F. Ouimet for the best gross score. J. H. Sullivan was quite off his game with J. M. McNamara, but the latter was going very steadily.

Freeman and Lockwood gave a succession of thrills for the gallery, the former repeatedly distinguishing himself by clever short approaches and accurate putting. At the 14th hole the players were even, but Freeman won the 15th in 3 and kept his lead of 1 up to the end. The cards:

Freeman	6	5	3	5	5	4	5	3	—41
Lockwood	6	4	4	4	6	4	4	3	—41
Freeman	4	5	4	4	5	3	3	5	4—37—78
Lockwood	4	5	6	3	5	4	3	5	4—39—80

B. S. Evans was out in 40 in his match with F. H. Hoyt and 1 up. Hoyt won the 10th in 3 and the long 11th in 5 and stood up. But Evans won the next two holes, but Hoyt squared the match almost immediately. Evans made a magnificent drive to the 16th hole and was able to run the ball down in 3, giving a lead of one hole. They halved the 17th and Evans won the home hole in 4 to 5. The card:

Evans	4	5	4	4	5	5	6	4	3—40
Hoyt	4	5	3	4	5	6	6	4	4—41
Evans	4	6	4	2	6	3	3	4	4—36—76
Hoyt	3	5	5	3	5	3	4	4	5—37—78

F. W. Lawrence, although 2 down going to the ninth hole won his match with W. Hickox, Jr., the old Harvard player, by 2 and 1. W. H. Thayer was too good for L. J. Malone and D. H. Goodspeed, although to a lesser extent, for H. H. Cook.

P. W. Whittemore's score for the round was 77, which makes him a favorite with Evans to win the cup. Whittemore was out in 41 and 2 up on V. S. Lawrence. He won the match on the 15th green and finished the round with 3, 3, 5, or 36 coming home, for a total of 77. Lawrence's total was 86. The summary:,

WOLLASTON CUP.

First Round.

J. M. McNamara, Alpine, beat J. H. Sullivan, Commonwealth, by 8 and 7.

R. R. Freeman, Wollaston beat A. G. Lockwood, Belmont, by 1 up.

B. S. Evans, Belmont, beat F. H. Hoyt, Woodland, by 2 up.

F. Sargent, Essex, beat H. B. Driver Wollaston, by 5 and 4.

F. W. Lawrence, Woodland beat W. Hickox, Jr., Albemarle, by 2 and 1.

W. H. Thayer, Wollaston, beat L. J. Malone, Woodland, by 3 and 1.

D. H. Goodspeed, Wollaston beat H. H. Cook, Albemarle by 2 and 1.

P. W. Whittemore, Country beat V. S. Lawrence, Woodland by 5 and 3.

The matches today are:

J. M. McNamara vs R. R. Freeman.

B. S. Evans vs F. Sargent.

F. W. Lawrence vs W. H. Thayer.

D. H. Goodspeed vs P. W. Whittemore.

Several tables were in play at the whist party of the George L. Gill club in Odd Fellows Hall Thursday afternoon. The awards were made to Mrs. M. Davidson 50 points, Mrs. Mary Joss 45, Mrs. Albert Jardine 43, Mrs. J. E. Keniley 43, Mrs. Mary Thomas 41, Mrs. E. Berzer 41 and Mrs. George Belcher 22.

SWEDISH MAY PARTY.

An enjoyable May Party, consisting of a supper and basket auction was held by the Ladies Aid Society of the Swedish Lutheran Church in Union Hall, Thursday evening. Nearly 200 attended.

The feature of the evening was the auctioneering of the baskets by Rev. Leander Hokenson, pastor of the church. His salesmanship netted a tidy sum which will be devoted to church purposes.

The supper was prepared in Swedish style and consisted of meat balls, fried bologna, potatoes, turnips, cranberries, coffee and cake. A long table was set in the centre of the hall and prettily decorated with crepe paper, May flowers and spring shrubbery. The table accommodated 50 at one time.

Music was rendered by the church orchestra and songs were sung by the choir.

The committee of arrangements consisted of Mrs. Leander Hokenson, Mrs. Andrew Carlson, Gustaf Nelson, Mrs. Herman Kjellberg, Mrs. Anna Nordine, Miss Anna S. Peterson, Mrs. Edward J. Sandberg.

The serving committee consisted of Mrs. W. R. Lofgren, Mrs. Charles Chiltedt, Mrs. Carl Turn, Mrs. Anna Olsen Mrs. Andrew Nelson. The business committee was Mrs. George Nordhal and Mrs. Mary Nelson.

WILL EXCHANGE PULPITS.

A pleasant feature of the Sunday services of the Swedish Lutheran Church will be the officiating of Rev. A. F. Andrea of Waltham, who will exchange pulpits with Rev. Leander Hokenson, the pastor. Rev. Mr. Andrea is a Quincy boy and has many friends here. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Sven J. Johnson of Whitwell street and on that day will be their guest.

HOME RULE FOR CITIES

First Step In That Direction Is Made In Connecticut Assembly

Hartford, May 2.—The first step toward home rule for the cities of the state was taken when the general assembly adopted the New Haven home rule bill, regarded as one of the most important measures before this legislature.

Its importance lies in the fact that it leads the way to ultimate home rule for cities in local matters so that they will not have to petition the general assembly for amendments to their charters. The bill now goes to the governor.

French Repulse Tribesmen

Rabat, Morocco, May 2.—A French column fought a fierce engagement at Sidiali with a strong body of tribesmen. The French troops succeeded in repulsing the tribesmen after seven hours.

TRUNK MEASUREMENT.

Forty-five inches is the longest trunk that may be carried as free baggage on railroads in the United States after June 1. Also the new rules frown on the trunk with bulging side or bottom designed so that it must stand in a certain position so the gown and hats inside will travel right side up. It may be some time, however, before the "freak" trunks can be refused. Notice is required in order to reject them lawfully.

Five pounds for each inch over forty-five inches is the rate of excess charge that will be levied under the new baggage rules.

GERMAN PEOPLE THEIR CUSTOMS

Subject of Interesting Talk By Miss Edith Randall

St. Margarets Guild of Christ church entertained the Reapers Circle and the Woman's Guild in the parish house Friday evening.

Miss Edith Randall gave a talk on Germany, its customs and its people. German songs were rendered by J. Barraja-Frauenfelder, accompanied by J. Barraja.

Soprano solos were given by Miss Catherine Saville and Miss Edith Hyland. A pleasing feature of the evening was the novelty selection of Miss Eleanor Whittemore who gave an imitation of a violin, playing her own accompaniment.

SWEENEY MAKING GOOD.

"Den" Sweeney, known throughout Quincy and the South Shore as one of the best minstrel ends and dispensers of ballads has been receiving royal receptions at the Auditorium Theatre where he recently accepted an engagement. "Den" has been in great demand at concerts ever since his boyhood days. This is his first professional engagement and a continuous applause has been his greeting at each performance.

The annual city reports have been delivered. The book as usual is very voluminous and contains about 600 pages. As usual there is much matter in the reports that might well be eliminated.

$14,500 AWARD IN INJURY SUIT

William H. Mears Formerly of Quincy Given Heavy Damages

FOR RAILROAD ACCIDENT

In the superior court in Boston Friday the jury awarded William H. Mears, formerly of Quincy a verdict of $14,500 in his suit against the Milford & Uxbridge street railway company for injuries received in an accident while a passenger on the defendants car Sept. 29, 1911.

Mr. Mears was riding on the front seat of an open car when it came in collision, head on, with another car of Whitney's hill, Holliston. There was an awful crash and Mr. Mears suffered injuries from which he has never fully recovered.

He received two fractures in one leg, two in one arm and had a wire run through his foot. He was taken to the hospital in Framingham where he remained in a precarious condition for a long time, and even now he has not fully recovered being able to get about but little and then only with the use of crutches, as one leg is considerably shorter than the other.

Mr. Mears is over 60 years of age and always made his home in Quincy up to a few years ago when he moved to Chelsea, where he has since resided. He owns considerable property in Quincy situated at Houghs Neck. He also has several relatives residing in Quincy.

$500 WORTH OF POLISHED STONE WRECKED BEYOND REPAIR BY VANDALS

Monuments From Cemeteries And Railroad Stone Damaged By Skillful Hand

Badger Bros. Mill the Scene of the Wicked Depredation

The first act of deliberate vandalism ever committed in the history of Quincy's granite industry was discovered by Louis K. Badger when he opened his works on Willard street this morning and saw polished granite, valued at $500 chipped in such a way that it is beyond repair.

The stock was set in a polishing bed, under a polishing wheel and was owned by Michael Devaney of Dysart street, D. T. Fitzgerald of Quincy avenue and Umberto Santisino of Willard street. Devaney is the heaviest loser, estimating his damage at about $300.

The firm of Badger Bros., suspended their polishing mill May 1st and the stock damaged was ready for delivery, to be set in cemeteries for Memorial Day. The mill was open on the Willard street side and the vandal had no trouble in reaching the stock.

The breaks were made by a hand set, in an intelligent manner and is evidently the work of a stone cutter who took this way of satisfying his grouch.

A valuable piece of railway stock, highly polished, was chipped on four corners. A fair sized die set in the centre was not damaged because it could not be reached without much trouble.

The police department was immediately notified and an investigation is being made by Inspector Alfred W. Goodhue. Several parties are suspected but as yet no arrests have been made.

The news of the vandalism travelled throughout the city like wild fire and granite men from all centres flocked to the scene.

No placards or messages were left anywhere about the premises in explanation of why the deed was done and none of the three men operating the business have been threatened. When seen this morning they said that as far as they knew they had not been marked by any granite cutter or stone polisher. They also said that they have had no trouble with any workmen.

An extra act at the Kincaide theatre tonight, illustrated song, "When I lost you."

EDITORIAL COMMENT.

Mr. Carnegie ridicules the case of the American soldier and declares there will never be an invasion of the United States. He need have no fear. There is no doubt where he would be insuch a condition, in Scotland where he was during the Homestead trouble.

Mr. Choate's explanations of the New Haven transaction do not appear to clear the atmosphere much.

The last lap in the school year begins Monday.

That New York judge who objected to the way a woman conducted herself in court, should seek appointment as fashion censor.

The length of the trousers worn by the smart young men of the present day were called "highwaters" a few years ago.

Mr. Sisson of Mississippi seems to have entered in the race with Capt. Hobson.

There was a time when May first was the signal for moving, but things have changed since the advent of the new registration law.

An excited young man rushing into a house in Boston where an incipient blaze was in progress failing to find anything else by which to display his heroism, tore out the banisters and rushed with them to the street. He caused more damage to the property than the fire.

A recorgnization of the Republican party appears to be very much needed if it is to weather many more storms.

Leader Mann's advice to pass the tariff, and if it is good all right, and if it is bad the Republicans will frame another one in a short time, appears logical enough.

Hetty Green never gave a waiter a tip in her life. If she entered a swell eating house or hotel she would receive twice the attention and service that the poor boob who is all the time diving into his meagre hoard for tips for the waiters.

Congressman Gardner would be chairman of the Republican National committee. It is about time Massachusetts received some National recognition and regained her place in the fore front of things in the country.

And Boston witnessed another parade with a red flag displayed, desplte the recent agitation against such display.

It would be worth while knowing just what Bill said to Hi and what Hi said to Bill.

There are 24 posts of defence along the coast of the United States. It is hardly likely that an invading force would seek them out in preference to more exposed points.

There is agitation to license newspaper men. Some of them exercise a license to do and say what they please regardless of facts or circumstances.

President Wilson went back this week to give his former state folks a heart to heart talk. It was just like a big brother telling them to behave.

BASE BALL IN THE SCHOOLS.

Base ball has been entered in the regular course of studies in the schools of Washington. This appears to be quite natural for the capital city. If there is one place in this country which has the base ball fever more than some other places that could be mentioned it is Washington. It is at time difficult to secure a quorum in congress if the Washington team is playing on the home grounds.

But this dragging it into the schools as a means of study and aid to the educational development, seems rather far fetched. The average youngster of the present day, gets enough actual base ball during his leisure hours and sufficient technical study of the game from the newspapers.

When it becomes necessary to teach a boy or girl the science of per centage and averages, by framing the question thusly, "If the Washington team, played 11 games, lost four and won seven, what would be the percent be?" there seems to be something lacking in the school system or else the teachers are so eager to keep up with the base ball parade that they seize every pretext for keeping next.

On the whole though it would be just as well if this particular means of instruction was eliminated.

MORE TIME WASTED.

The legislatures of many states, and Massachusetts is no exception, break out each year in the effort to enact legislation, for which their appears to be no great demand, and at the same time, produce some measures which are so ridiculous that they are dead letters and more honored in the breach than the observance. The recent hat pin law was an example of this latter. A fair sample of the former was the one which Gov. Foss vetoed, which if adopted would prevent the police conveying lost children or neglected children to places of safety in the police ambulance. The commissioner was opposed to such a law, and gave good reasons which should have been heeded by the legislators who would have saved much time, of more less value if they had accepted his views. But no, they pushed it right along and it went to the Governor who promptly affixed his disapproval of the scheme. Now let it go to the waste basket where it belongs. The legislature would probably feel that it had neglected its prerogatives if it did not each year attempt to tinker up something effecting the police department of Boston.

PURIFYING THE JURY.

President Wilson while not smashing precedent in his latest movement, is certainly departing considerable from the routine of presidential duty, in returning to his own state, New Jersey to speak for a purification of the jury system. In this act the president displays remarkable courage and his utterances contain much of the same tonic. He did not hesitate to call the men who opposed proper measures which he advocated towards the end sought.

There is ample opportunity for a cleaner jury system than exists in some states. It would be no backward step by any state which would pass enactments to bring about a remedy.

President Wilson may lose by the attitude he has assumed, but there is one thing certain that he will never have accasion to regret it, judging the man from the results thus far in his administration.

JURY REFORM.

President Wilson comes back to New Jersey to impress the influence of his national office upon state politics. He will make several public speeches in behalf of a legislative measure which the elected representatives of the people refused to approve, with the purpose of constraining them in a special session to do what they were unwilling to do in the regular session. More than that, he will hold a star chamber caucus with a select company of party managers, bosses and governorship candidates, with a view to promoting the execution of the policies which he desires in that state.

All this is contemplated in blithe disregard of a somewhat notable and historic precedent, in which a President from New York exerted his influence upon state politics with disastrous results. But that was 31 years ago, and much water has flowed down the Delaware, as well as the Hudson, since then. And, besides, jury reform is a good thing, which was advocated by republicans before Mr. Wilson became governor and which is doubtless much desired by the people of the state.—New York Tribune.

BOARD OF TRADE.

A. G. Reynolds, chief clerk for President Bancroft, of the Boston Elevated railorad will be the guest of the Quincy Board of Trade at its regular meeting next Wednesday evening and will deliver an address. The Board has received an invitation to meet with the Norwood Board of Trade next Tuesday evening and quite a few are planning to go. The party will take the train leaving Boston for Norwood Centre at 5.24 or 5.27.

No special topic has been assigned for discussion for the meeting Wednesday evening.

TENNIS CLUB PROGRESSING

Big Tract of Land For Tennis Courts Secured

ORGANIZATION GROWING

No more progressive step has been taken among Quincy's many social organizations than the ones taken by the Quincy Tennis Club this spring which are surely in the paths of progress. At the annual meeting of the club held the middle of March an agitation was started toward increasing the grounds and facilities of the club. The four courts controlled by the club between Whitney road and Russell park were too few for the growth of the organization and as the club's tenure there was from year to year and as it was appreciated that the demand for building lots in that vicinity brought continued pressure on the owners of the land,—Dr. N. S. Hunting and the Russell estate,—the more far-sighted members of the club felt it was time for a long look ahead.

The executive committee was instructed to look up a new location and make a complete study of the problem. This committee, composed of J. Brooks Keyes, George E. Pfaffmann, Harold L. Davenport, Carl R. Sheppard, Henry W. Porter, Henry R. Holden and James H. Slade, presented a carefully prepared report to the club April 7, recommending the purchase of some 80,000 sq. ft. of land on Goffe street and Glendale road from the Adams trustees. It was voted to proceed on this report and to have the club incorporated. James P. Roberts, Esq., acted as attorney in securing a charter which was granted on Wednesday, the object being broadly stated as:

"This Corporation is constituted for the purpose of promoting the game of lawn tennis and for encouraging athletic exercises of any and all kinds tending to better the physical and social welfare of its members, and for the maintenance of such grounds, rooms, facilities and associations as will best serve such purposes."

The officers are: President, George E. Pfaffmann; vice president, Arthur W. Hall; treasurer, James H. Slade; secretary, Carl R. Sheppard, and these with Messrs. Harold L. Davenport, Henry R. Holden and Henry W. Porter composed the executive committee. Title to the land in question will doubtless be passed this week, a number of gentlemen having subscribed $25 each towards its purchase, and an imposing list of candidates for membership at $10, having been added. The club's budget for the year will approximate $2500. The contractor has begun the work of building some half dozen new courts and before the end of the week the clubhouse will be removed to the new location, where it will have a delightful setting on a knoll covered with oaks and cedars.

The Quincy Club had an extremely successful tennis season last year, defeating the Wollaston Tennis Club fourteen matches out of twenty, and winning the championship of the Suburban League. During the present season the club will play in the Mystic Valley League as well as the Suburban League. With the new grounds, approximately two acres in extent, and with the large President's Hill contingent being added, the club confidently expects to double its membership, its resources and its activities the present season.

Will Be in the Finals For the Wollaston Golf Cup

FORMER THE FAVORITE

P. W. Whittemore of the Country Club, Brookline and R. R. Freeman of the Wollaston Golf club will meet this afternoon in the final round of the first local amateur golf tournament of the year at the Montclair links for the Wollaston cup.

Whittemore met D. H. Goodspeed of the home club in the second round of match play, which was contested Friday afternoon and easily defeated the Wollaston golfer by 7 and 6. R. R. Freeman, Wollaston, also won his match with J. M. McNamara by the large margin of 9 and 7. W. H. Thayer of Wollaston scored a victory over F. W. Lawrence, Woodland, by 5 and 4 and F. Sargent of Essex, captain of the Harvard golf team, won the best match of the afternoon play from Brice S. Evans of Belmont by 1 up, 20 holes.

In the match between Freeman and McNamara, the former won the first seven holes and halved the eighth and ninth and stood 7 up, going out in 38 to his opponent's 45. The match finished at the 11th hole, Freeman winning the 10th and 11th in 4, 5. The cards:

Freeman	4	4	4	5	4	5	4	4	4	—38
McNamara	5	5	5	6	5	6	5	4	4	—45
Freeman	4	5	5	4	5	4	4	4	4	—39—77
McNamara	6	6	5	4	6	4	4	5	4	—44—89

In the F. Sargent-Brice Evans match the Harvard man was 1 up going to the home hole, which he lost by missing a short putt, and the match was all even. Both players took 4 at the first extra hole, but Evans flubbed his drive at the second extra hole and Sargent won the hole in 4 to 5 and the match. The card:

Sargent	6	6	*3	5	5	5	5	4	3	—42
Evans	5	5	3	4	5	5	4	5	4	—40
Sargent	3	5	4	3	5	3	3	4	5	—35—77
Evans	4	5	5	3	5	4	3	4	4	—37—77

*Approximated—Extra holes: Sargent, 44; Evans 45.

Whittemore was out in 40 in his match with D. H. Goodspeed and stood 4 up starting for home. The Country Club player, who is picked by many to win the Wollaston Cup, then won the next three holes in succession and the match was over. The card:

Whittemore	4	6	4	4	6	5	4	4	3	—40
Goodspeed	5	6	4	4	6	7	4	7	4	—47
Whittemore	3	4	4	3	5	4	4	5	4	—36—76
Goodspeed	4	6	5	3	6	3	4	4	4	—39—86

W. H. Thayer of Wollaston and F. W. Lawrence of Woodland match resulted in a win for the Wollaston man by 5 and 4. Thayer was 4 up at the turn which he increased to 5 up at the 10th. Lawrence won the next two holes and the match ended on the 14th green, with the Wollaston golfer the winner.

The tie for the best gross prize for the qualifying round which was played on Wednesday last, F. Ouimet of the Woodland G. C. and V. S. Lawrence his club-mate scoring 78 for their rounds was also played off. Lawrence won the gross prize, beating Ouimet by six strokes, the medal score of Lawrence being 76 to Ouimet's 82.

Lawrence	6	4	4	4	5	4	5	4	5—41
Ouimet	5	6	3	4	5	6	4	4	4—41
Lawrence	3	6	5	3	4	2	4	4	4—35—76
Ouimet	5	5	6	4	5	4	4	5	3—41—82

The following is the summary:

R. R. Freeman, Wollaston, beat J. M. McNamara, Alpine, by 9 and 7.

F. Sargent, Essex, beat B. S. Evans, Belmont, by 1 up, 20 holes.

W. H. Thayer, Wollaston, beat F. W. Lawrence, Woodland, by 8 and 4.

F. W. Whittemore, Country, beat D. H. Goodspeed, Wollaston, by 7 and 6.

Henry P. Kittredge is on a journey through the middle west. He visited the famous Gettysburg battlefield and has sent home to friends many postal cards of the monuments and scenes in that noted place.

BOWLING TOURNAMENT.

A regular meeting of Quincy Lodge, N. E. O. P. was held in Protection Hall Friday evening. A bowling tournament was held, 22 completing. The three highest scorers were Mrs. Margaret Davidson, Herbert Sawin and Mrs. Isaac Holt. A whist party will be held at the May 16 meeting.

Miss Florence Hill of Atlantic, whose marriage to George Shackley of West Roxbury, is to take place in June; was pleasantly surprised Friday evening, April 25th, when she was tendered a luncheon and linen shower by Mrs. John L. Merrill of 280 Fayette street, Wollaston. The hostess' home was most beautifully decorated for the occasion, yellow being the predominating color. The table was artistically spread for ten, with a daffodil at each cover and ice-cups and place-cards of the same bright flower. The centrepiece was a large crepe-paper daffodil containing the many and beautiful articles of linen, which were drawn by yellow ribbons to Miss Hill's place of honor at the appointed time. Miss Marion Newcombe served the dainty yellow luncheon to the following Billiken club girls:—Mrs. John L. Merrill, the Misses Florence Hill, Cora Harding, May Buckley, Mary Farrell, Martha Jenkins, Georgianna Priest, Edna Robinson, Julia Barber and Ethel Robinson, Julia Barber and Ethel Robinson. Original toasts in the form of poetry were read to each young lady present, which caused much merriment. The guests departed at a late hour, declaring the luncheon and shower to have been one of the prettiest of the season.

ODD FELLOWS PAY TRIBUTE

The funeral of Charles H. Hobart, who committed suicide by hanging at his home on Bennington street Wednesday morning was held from his late residence this afternoon. The services were very largely attended by Mt. Wollaston Lodge I. O. O. F., of which he was a Past Noble Grand and Manet Encampment of which he was also affiliated attending in a body.

The services at the house were conducted by Rev. Fannie Austin, pastor of the First Universalist church assisted by Rev. Merrill C. Ward of Norway, Me., a former pastor of the Universalist church. The burial service of the Odd Fellows was held following the religious service. The body was escorted to Mt. Wollaston cemetery by the Lodge and Encampment where the committal service was conducted by Odd Fellows.

NEW ADAMS MARKET.

The public is invited to an informal opening of the new Adams market on Monday evening. No goods will be sold on that date, but the people will have an opportunity to inspect a very attractive store—probably the most up-to-date market in Quincy or vicinity. R. E. Foy & Co., already have a store on Water street, and by good service have built up an extensive business in the city. The new store was demanded by their increasing business. If the people of Quincy want good stores they should manifest it by home trade.

MRS. THOMAS COOPER.

Mrs. Thomas Cooper, a long time Irish resident of Quincy and wife of Thomas Cooper of 207 Copeland street died at the Quincy City Hospital this morning in her 57th year.

She was born in Cork, Ireland and came here in her girlhood. Since living in West Quincy she has been a neighbor to all in trouble and has been a constant attendant of St. Mary's Church. Mrs. Cooper has been in poor health all winter and was admitted to the hospital Monday.

VOCATIONAL GUIDANCE

Work of Mr. Richards Along Those Lines Recognized

SYSTEM A GOOD ONE

Lysander Richards, a retired business man living at Marshfield Hills, ought to come in for a fair share of recognition when credit for the scheme of vocational guidance is being distributed, says the Boston Herald. Mr. Richards was in the field nearly 30 years before these enthusiastic organizers. In a little book which he called "Vocophy, the New Profession," published in '82, he covers in a striking way, much of the very same ground now developed. His system is made "to enable a person to name the calling one is best suited to follow," and he worked it out clearly. Mr. Richards, who was living in Marshfield at the time he wrote the book, gives sketches of the requirements of the different trades and businesses, and even submits plans for the cards to be filled out by the boy or girl not sure of a leaning or qualification, but wishful of aid in finding what he is likely to do best in life.

These cards resemble closely those that have been adopted by schools for study of the children in the way of directing their vocational training.

Mr. Richards formerly lived in Quincy.

SUICIDE EFFORT IS FRUSTRATED

Officers Believe McLaughlin's Rope Play Was Buncombe

TO CREATE SYMPATHY

The vigilance of the house officers at the Quincy Police station frustrated two attempts at suicide made by James McLaughlin Friday evening. He was sent to the station in an intoxicated condition by Officer Dineen. Shortly after he was booked and placed in a cell he was discovered hanging from the upper bars by Officer Halloran who was making his regular inspection of prisoners. He was cut down before any injury was sustained.

The door to the cell room was left open and but a short time elapsed before Sergeant Bishop discovered the second attempt. He was then sitting on the upper bunk, with a belt attached to the upper bars and appeared to be already to jump. He was again cut down and handcuffed to the cell bars.

In court this morning he was fined $15 and was committed to Dedham jail.

The officers who have known McLaughlin for a long time do not believe his attempts were seriously intended but feel that it was his method of bull-dozing the officers so they would release him.

NOTED AUTHOR TO SPEAK.

The Women's Auxiliary to the Y. M. C. A. will hold the last regular meeting of the season Friday, May 9 in Association hall and will be of special interest to mothers. On account of the annual reports and election of officers, the business meeting will be held at 2.45.

An address will be given by Frederick Kenyon Browne (Al Priddy) best known as the author of "Through the Mill," "an autobiography which ranks with "Up from Slavery" and the making of an American." Mr. Browne is a most entertaining speaker and will have a special message for mothers.

Refreshments will be served during the social hour. A cordial invitation is extended to all.

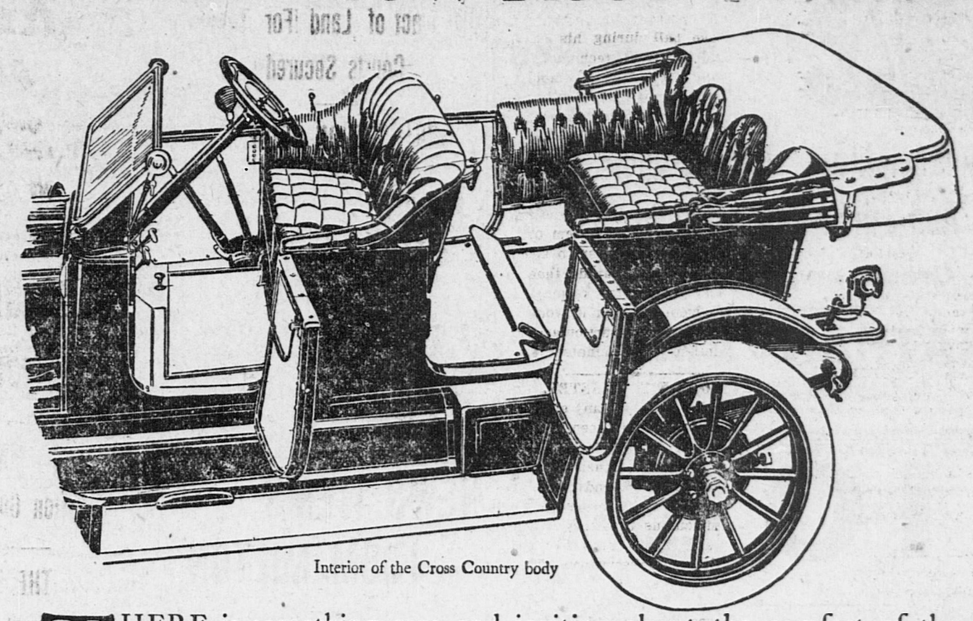
ASK YOUR GROCER

Step into This Car and you will know Real Comfort

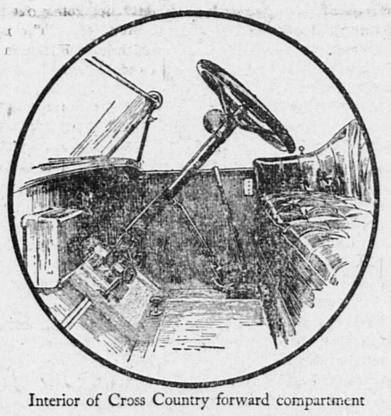


Interior of the Cross Country body

THERE is something rare and inviting about the comfort of the Cross Country that once it is experienced you will never quite forget. You enter through wide doors—20½ inches—that open fully, stepping easily from a running board that is clear.

The broad, carpet-covered foot rest in the tonneau is in just the right position for thorough relaxation. You sink down into the deep upholstery and lean back to find the pitch just right for perfect ease. The steady, deliberate action of the springs gives to one that pleasurable sense of modulated motion undisturbed by any jar. The forward seats are just the right height and the steering pillar may be adjusted at any angle to suit the comfort of the operator.

The hands rest comfortably on the steering wheel and the foot accelerator is so conveniently located and shaped that pressure may be applied with any part of the foot, always avoiding a cramped position.



Interior of Cross Country forward compartment

You must experience the feel of the Cross Country wheel. It's a delight. It turns without a single vibrating jar. Your arms don't tire, your legs don't cramp.

To drive this car is exhilarating. Press the button with your foot. With hardly an audible sound the motor starts. A single movement of the lever—you touch the throttle and it's away.

Drive the car for ten minutes and you will grin in spite of yourself through rare delight.

A beautiful four-color reproduction of the Cross Country, from an oil painting by R. Philip Brainard, is ready for mailing. See the Cross Country by all means, at any Jeffery branch or dealer's display room, but send for the picture anyway.

MORE FIREWORKS ON PONY LICENSES

City Council Expected to Have Warm Session Monday Night

A regular meeting of the City Council will be held Monday evening and it is intimated that there will be another display of fireworks over granting liquor permits. Reports will probably be made by several committees and there are several important matters in the calendar, especially the orders granting the street railway company a location for turnouts on the Houghs Neck line and a relocation of a short piece of track near the Willard school on Copeland street.

PONY EXPRESS LICENSES

The Selectmen of Milton have granted pony express licenses to expressmen to transport liquor, in and through that town, and among the successful candidates were, M. J. Connelly, Joseph Cutler and David Lubarsky of Quincy, who also hold Quincy licenses for the same purpose.

RETLAHNIER SOCIAL CLUB

Attracted Big Crowd at Annual Dancing Party

Friends of the Retlahnier Social Club of West Quincy thronged St. Mary's Hall Friday evening at their annual dancing party.

"Jerry" McCarthy, the Boston Red Sox, mascot made his initial appearance here and was accorded a fine reception. He sang "My Honey Lou" and "Snooky Ookums." Miss Mary Maseda sang "The Ghost of the Violin" and James Donovan rendered "That Old Girl of Mine."

Music was furnished by Hamilton's Orchestra and the new floor in the hall was all right.

Joseph I. Garrity was director, with Michael Saville as his assistant. John Rooney was chief of aids and the aids were John J. DeCoste. Thomas Murphy, Frances Rourke, William Avery, George McDonnell and Nicholas Reinhalter.

MAY MORNING MUSICALES.

Music lovers are looking forward with the greatest pleasure to the three May musicales which are to be given Wednesday mornings May 7, 14 and 28 by the Quincy Women's club at the clubhouse.

The music committee has secured for the first musicale the Greig Trio of Cambridge, Mrs. Marguerite Pearson Moss, violin; Mrs. E. Thompson Hall, cello; and Mrs. Minnie G. del Castillo, piano; with Miss Margaret Louden Shepherd who so charmed the audiences at two of the musicales last year, as contralto soloist.

For May 14, the program will be of particular interest as each artist has been chosen from Quincy talent. Roscoe R. Ricker as a violinist of unusually marked ability is always enthusiastically received. Miss Marion L. Moorhouse, cellist and Miss Ruth Hardy soprano are both general favorites.

May 28 the Grieg Trio, with Mrs. Exangeline Hiltz, soprano will compose the program.

Rev. Merrill C. Ward of Norway, Maine, a former pastor of the Universalist church is in town today to assist at the funeral service of Charles H. Hobart. He will return by boat tonight. Mr. Hobart's elder son Merrill was named for Mr. Ward.

ADVERTISE IN THE LEDGER.

BETHANY CHURCH.

The morning service and communion will be of interest to all interested in the church, a large number of new members will be received into our fellowship.

At the pleasant Sunday evening service the pastor will speak on "The Sunny Side of Life." A message of encouragement and good cheer. All are welcome.

DISTRICT COURT.

John Leary was fined $5, Timothy Foley $10, and James McLaughlin $15, for drunkenness at Quincy.

James W. Baillie was sentenced to one month in the house of correction for drunkenness at Quincy. He was also ordered to pay a $10 fine on a suspended sentence. Not having any money he will go over for a few weeks.

PETITION.

To the Honorable the Judge of the Probate Court, in and for the County of Norfolk:

Respectfully represents William Gelotte of Quincy in said County, and Anna L. Gelotte his wife, that they are of the age of twenty-one years or upwards, and are desirous of adopting Anna L. Lawson of said Quincy a child of Carl J. Lawson, deceased, late of Gysinge, Sweden and Ida Lawson his wife, deceased late of said Gysinge, Sweden, which said child was born in Gysinge, Sweden on the nineteenth day of February, A. D. 1906; that both her parents died in Sweden several years ago, that said Anna L. Gelotte is an aunt of said Anna L. Lawson and the only relative who is able or who has volunteered to support and maintain her, that although said petitioners have three children of their own they brought said Anna L. Lawson, when her parents died from Sweden to this country where she has since resided with said petitioners, that said Anna L. Lawson is without means of support and that said petitioners are able to maintain and support her and are desirous of adopting her.

Wherefore they pray for leave to adopt said child, and that her name may be changed to that of Anna L. Gelotte.

Dated this twenty-second day of March A. D. 1913.

WILLIAM GELOTTE
ANNA L. GELOTTE

The undersigned, being the only relative in the United States of said child, hereby consent to the adoption, as above prayed for.

ANNA L. GELOTTE.

Commonwealth of Massachusetts.
Norfolk, ss. Probate Court.

On the foregoing petition, it is ordered that the petitioners notify the next of kin of said Anna L. Lawson to appear at a Probate Court to be held at Quincy in said County of Norfolk, on the fourteenth day of May A. D. 1913, at nine o'clock, in the forenoon, to show cause, if any they have, why the same should not be granted, by serving them with a copy of said petition and this order seven days before said Court, or if they be not found within this Commonwealth, by publishing the same once in each week, for three successive weeks, in the Quincy Daily Ledger a newspaper published in said Quincy the last publication to be seven days at least before said Court.

Witness, James H. Flint, Esquire, Judge of said Court, this eighth day of April in the year one thousand nine hundred and thirteen.

NEWS ITEMS FROM MILTON

A concert will be given at the First Baptist Church, Wednesday. A fine program has been arranged, the feature being the appearance of the Apollo quartette of Boston consisting of William Whittaker, Lyman Hemenway, Alex Logan and John Shellman.

President Roberts of Colby College spoke to the pupils at the Milton High School Thursday. His topic was "Continued Education." In developing his subject he elaborated on the chances presented through education and spoke of the latent qualities possessed by all. He emphasized the need of trained men and urged all to place their interests in that which appealed to them. He further observed that men with a voracious appetite for reading became educated indirectly in so far as they applied themselves to their book and thought along sane lines. President Colby received close attention from the students and was warmly welcomed after being presented by Principal Curtis.

Cunningham Gym and the Tilton A. C. of Roxbury are on the base ball card today.

The formation of a town base ball league has drawn the attention of those interested in the national game while played by the juveniles. Four teams representing different sections of the town have been organized. Mattapan will be brought into the limelight by the Kidder A. C. The Milton aggregation will be known as the Schands while the McGuires and Heckers will seek to bring East Milton glory. The games will be played Saturdays at the Cunningham field and the Reed grounds.

The East Milton Cubs have commenced a duplication of last season record in base ball. Their first defeat was the South Boston Cottage Reds on April 19. Saturday they play the St. Mary's of Cambridge. James Andrews is captain and George M. Whittemore is manager.

All the pupils of the graduating class of the Milton High School have turned in their graduation thesis and the five best will take a prominent part in the graduation. This annual contest stimulates a keen interest in literary pursuits by the pupils and several high class compositions have resulted in past years. Principal Curtis expects that the work of this year's class will surpass the standard established in previous years since many bright minds are possessed by the 1913 class. He will shortly make known the winners. Preparations for graduation are now being made.

FAREWELL SERMON.

Rev. A. M. Thompson will preach his farewell sermon at the First United Presbyterian church, Sunday evening, at 7 o'clock. Rev. Mr. Thompson plans later to go to New York state where he will take charge of a church.

W. Norton Stetson of Webster street and Miss Maud Read of Squantum street took prominent parts in an entertainment in the Stoneham Baptist church Tuesday evening, given for the benefit of a new pipe organ for the church. Miss Read gave readings and Mr. Stetson several tenor solos and Mr. Stetson, Mr. Albert Briggs of Cambridge, Mrs. Briggs and Miss Read also sang a quartet.

AMUSEMENTS

DOINGS ON THE STAGE IN BOSTON AND VICINITY

CASTLE SQUARE THEATRE.

"The Fourth Estate" is a play that has made a wide-spread reputation. Its title comes from a saying of Edmund Burke that the newspapers were more influential than all other estates of the kingdom put together. "The Fourth Estate" is therefore a modern newspaper play, involving scenes and experiences of the present hour. Its plot centres around the efforts of a high-minded newspaper editor to show up the rascality of a venal judge. He pursues the judge relentlessly, and when the effort is made to silence him by bribery, he will not be moved. The case is complete against the judge, and the paper is just about to go to press with the full story of his misdemeanors. This crucial scene of the play takes place in the composition room of a newspaper, with the linotype machines and other paraphernalia in working order and hard at work.

What happens remains for the play to disclose. It works up to a fine dramatic point, and its story and climax will be told on the Castle Square stage next week. Romance and comedy mingle in the plot, and all in all "The Fourth Estate" will prove to be one of the most vital plays of the hour. The cast will include Miss Mary Keener, Mr. Craig's new leading lady, and the entire strength of the Castle Square company.

B. F. KEITH'S THEATRE.

The most mystifying and sensational aequatic novelty ever staged in vaudeville is announced for B. F. Keith's Theatre next week in "Neptune's Garden of Living Statues," a brilliant and beautiful water spectacle. This unique novelty serves to introduce a company of twenty dancers, divers, models, water nymphs, and pantomimists, headed by the Spanish mimes, Signor Carlo Casetta and Signorina Lilian Lestora, in their wierd and startling "La Danse Dementia." The scene of the remarkable spectacle is laid in a beautiful garden. In the centre of the garden is an enchanted pool of real water. In this beautiful setting is enacted the legend of Neptune's Garden and in the course of the spectacle are introduced the beautiful statues in the garden of the Water God: The mysterious fountain that arises from the bottomless enchanted pool; the drowning of the interloper in the struggle for the Nereids' charm; the awakening of the statues and the lure of the enchanted pool; the Spirit of Amphitrite; and the Nereids arising from the water of the bottomless enchanted pool at the command of Amphitrite. This last feature, by means of which a troupe of twenty beautiful water nymphs are summoned from the depths of the pool at the command of their queen is both startling and mystifying. This wonderful water spectacle will be surrounded by a great bill of all-star vaudeville.

BOSTON THEATRE.

George "Honey Boy" Evans, the paragon of minstrelsy, and his company of sixty notables, with a zestful production absolutely new in its entirety and handsomely ornamented in a costumic and scenic way, will appear at the Boston Theatre during the week commencing, Monday, May 5, with matinees Wednesday and Saturday.

"De Go Lightly Guards Reception" is the nomen of the pretentious afterpiece, the book, lyrics and score of which were written by the "Honey Boy." Its two settings show a street and the armory of "De Guards" in Hamtown, Ala. The diminutive blackface favorite is presented in his favorite characterization of a roustabout darkey of the levee. "Cicero Didimus Jones" is the farcial sobriquet under which he is introduced in the first scene, when he is shown as a fugitive from the law and an alimony-seeking wrench. Later he is induced—partly through hunger, majestic in its proportions, and mainly because of a bribe of two dollars—to pose as "General Woof Woof," a famous African military leader. He is at all times the instigator of the many ludicrous, mirth-procreating situations.

"The Floral Bower" was the name given by the artists to the exquisitely beautiful opening part, which introduces the well-known minstrel favorites seated in the usual semi-circle on a terraced dais. "I Love to Hear an Irish Band Upon St. Patrick's Day" is the big song hit that brings this part to an epic finish.

PLYMOUTH THEATRE.

At the Plymouth Theatre, Boston, Wednesday, May 7, Harrison Grey Fiske will present for the first time, and for a limited engagement, a new play in three acts by Elizabeth Anthorp McFadden, entitled "The Child." According to the custom at the Plymouth, the matinee performances will be given on Thursday and Saturdays. "The Child" is a drama of contemporaneous life in the Middle West, and has for its main theme the regeneration of a man and a woman through their love for a child, not their own, which comes by chance into their keeping. Unlike Miss McFadden's earlier play, "The Product of the Mill," which won the Craig prize last year and was most successfully presented at the Castle Square Theatre, "The Child" is not a play with a purpose except the purpose of entertainment. It is, however, a serious play, dealing with strong human emotions that are common to humanity at large.

Miss McFadden is a graduate of Radcliffe, and a pupil of Professor Baker's. She has been very active in "The 47 Workshop" at Cambridge and is deeply interested in various movements for the betterment of the drama. Mr. Fiske, who presents the play, is accounted the most artistic producing manager in America. His staging of Mrs. Fiske's productions; the gorgeous Oriental drama "Kismet," lately seen in Boston, and many other remarkable plays has made him a notable figure in the theatrical world. The company that will appear in "The Child" is headed by Miss Emily Stevens, who has, during the past two seasons, scored several brilliant successes in Boston.

THE POPS.

With the close of the Symphony season this week Symphony hall will undergo its annual spring transformation in preparation for the Pop Concerts which begin Monday evening, May 5. The false floor of the hall will be taken out and the formal seats re place by tables and chairs. The chorus room at the end of the south corridor will become, as in past years, a pleasant refreshment room for the patrons of the balconies. Formality will disappear until the beginning of July.

The Pops this season will run eight weeks and a half from May 5 to July 3. In other essentials they will be the same as they have been for the past few years. There is one important fact, however, which should be noted. The orchestra will be considerably larger than it has ever been before Instead of 55 men it will have 66. Moreover interest will be increased greatly by the appearance of two new conductors. Otto Urack, assistant conductor of the Symphony orchestra and Clement Lonom, one of the obees of the orchestra. Mr. Maquarre, who has become a great favorite in the last few years, will have the largest share.

Mr. Urack will begin and will be the conductor of the first three weeks. Mr. Urack, as is generally known, came to this country last fall as one of the principal 'cellists of the orchestra and as assistant conductor and during the illness of Dr. Muck during the winter he conducted the Symphony concerts in Boston and many other places with much success. The next three weeks and a half Mr. Maquarre will have charge. This will be his fourth season in this place. His high spirited interpretations, his beautiful programmes have given him a unique place among the various men that have conducted these concerts. Mr. Lenom, who will conduct the last two weeks is one of the most eminent misicians of the orchestra. There will be the usual number of special college nights. Amherst May 14. Brown University May 28. Williams, June 3. Harvard June 19. There will be other nights to be announced.

SERIES OF SERMONS.

Benjamin Fay Mills, whom Dr. Edward Everett Hale held to be "the most wonderful preacher in America" returns to Boston this week to begin a series of sermons and lectures at the Second Universalist church at the corner of Columbus avenue and Clarendon street.

He will make three free addresses on Sunday. At 10.30 a. m. he will preach his keynote sermon on "Have you seen God?"; at 4 p. m. he will speak of "The Prophet Emerson, the Greatest Man of Modern Times;" and at 8 p. m. his subject will be "What the World Never Knew Until Now" which is said to be one of his greatest lectures. The other free lecture of the first week will be delivered at 8:15 Thursday evening, May 8 on "The Happiness Habit, or Good Cheer Medicine and How to Make it." This is especially recommended for driving away the blues. It's merely a coincidence, however, that free reserved seat tickets for the Sunday meetings may be obtained at all Riker-Jaynes drug stores.

It was 12 years ago that the eloquence of Benjamin Fay Mills was crowding the Hollis street theatre and the old Music hall in Boston. He was once recognized as the greatest orthodox evangelist in America; and his presence was demanded in all the large cities. He has been conspicuous for his appeal to the people of the highest culture and was chosen to present the claims of Christianity at the World's Congress of Religions. Though he is in good standing as a Congregational minister and as a Unitarian minister, he has outgrown the old dogmas which he formerly preached.

Mr. Mills is now presenting what he calls the Unity philosophy of life. He puts forth his views in a unique fashion and is applying them scientifically to the solution of all individual social problems. He says of his message: "We have discovered a new term in the synthesis of life. In philosophy we call it the Unity of Life; in ethics, altruism; in politics, democracy; in economics, co-operation; and in religion, universal brotherhood."

ANNUAL CLEANING

Notice is hereby given that commencing May 5th and continuing throughout the month, the Board of Health will remove all rubbish, with the exception of stones and dirt, that may be placed in suitable receptacles from in front of premises in the city of Quincy, on the regular day that the ashes have been removed during the winter.

During the summer months collections of ashes will be made as follows on the regular ash days:—

Week of June 23rd to June 28th inc.
Week of July 28th to Aug. 2nd inc.,
Week of Aug. 25th to Aug. 30th inc.

The weekly collection of ashes will recommence on Oct. 6, 1913.

Should invest 25c or 50c in a pair of

Interwoven Hose

Notice the man in front of you when you come down town tomorrow—see the hole in the heel of his sock—or the bunch of darning not neatly done. Otherwise he is well dressed—but, oh! that hole spoils it all.

Wear Interwoven Hose and have no holes or darning.

They fit the foot as snug as a glove, and are reinforced where the wear comes.

Colonel TODHUNTER of Missouri

By RILEY E. SAUNDERS

Copyright, 1911, by the Bobbs-Merrill Company.

"What do you mean by evening up things with Tom Strickland? You have just testified under oath that Tom Strickland had done you no wrong."

The girl was silent for a moment. Her face flushed a dark red and then went white again.

"Tom Strickland made me eat my heart out for him!" she cried suddenly, shame and a desperate defiance in the passionate eyes that confronted her audience. "He wouldn't see that I loved him better'n anything else in all this world and that I wanted him to love me the same way. And the reason he wouldn't see what I was always a-showin' him was that he was so dead in love with Miss Mary Todhunter. That's what made me tell that lie against him when I knowed that Mrs. Todhunter was a-goin' to ask me to leave the party."

There was a pitiful break in the girl's voice.

"I didn't care the tip of my finger for Jesse Bream!" she cried. "I hated and despised him. But he was willin' to marry me and take me away from Nineveh, and so I kep' my mouth shet and waited for him to come and do it."

"I am going to ask you, Miss Doggett," said Major Gentry Dryden, "when was the first time you saw Jesse Bream after Colonel Todhunter's visit to you that day?"

"I didn't see him till the day before this here trial begun, suh. He had gone away to fix things up for marryin' me and takin' me down somewhere in Oklahoma, and he didn't come back till then."

"What time of the day did you see him?"

"I reckon 'twas 'long about three or fo' o'clock in the day, suh. He didn't come clear to the house 'cause he saw grandfather settin' on the front gallery. But he give a whistle I knew, and I went out and met him."

"Where did you meet him?"

"In a little clump o' woods 'cross the road, not far from the old cabin where Aunt Mirandy Ransom and old Jed Ransom, her husband, two colored people, are livin', suh."

"What had he come to see you about?"

"He come to tell me that ever'thing was ready for us to run away that very night. He was plannin' to drive over into Ralls county, and we'd get married there and then start for Oklahoma. And he'd been drinkin' and was braggin' about how he'd killed Stam Tucker. It was then I knowed for the first time, from his own lips, that it was him that killed Stam, but I'd been certain of it in my mind all the time."

"Did you consent to go away with him?"

"Yes, suh, and we went away together. The first day and night he got to drinkin', and when we stopped at the hotel in Sidon he quarreled with me, keepin' on sayin' that I was in love with Tom Strickland and would blab about who did really murder Stam Tucker if I got half a chance. And somethin' said then about my wishin' I had told the truth at first skeered him. 'Stead o' stayin' in Sidon till he was ready to go straight to Oklahoma, he took me away from there the next day. We went fur, too, and he was always a-watchin' me. At daybreak one mornin' we come to a tumbledown cabin deep in the woods, and he said that's where we'd stay till dark, and then I begun to be skeered myself."

"Of what were you afraid?"

"I begun to feel skeered that he was a-goin' to kill me. We had quarreled and quarreled, and whenever I lost my temper good and proper I told him the truth—that I oughtn't to leave Tom Strickland to be hung when I knowed Tom wasn't guilty and knowed who was. Then—well, all of a sudden we had our biggest quarrel, and what I'd been skeered of come to pass!"

"What do you mean by that, Miss Doggett?"

"I mean that Chickasaw Jesse tried to kill me, suh. He sorter went crazy and jumped for me with his bowie knife in his hand, and I'd ha' been dead the next minute if it hadn't been for Colonel Todhunter, suh."

"For Colonel Todhunter?"

"Yes, suh. Colonel Todhunter busted in the door o' the cabin that very minute, bringin' the sheriff o' Ralls county along with him. Him and the sheriff both had their pistols sighted on Jesse and made him throw his knife down. And then I done what I'd wanted to do all the time. I told them it was Chickasaw Jesse Bream who had killed Stam Tucker."

"And what happened when you did that?"

The girl shivered. "I don't like to think about it. He made me feel like a cowardly hound dog!" she said, a new shame in her reckless eyes. "Jesse Bream just laughed and folded his arms and looked at me and then at Colonel Todhunter and the sheriff and said that I told the truth. 'I killed Stam Tucker because he ruined Lottie-May,' he said, smilin'. 'Am I run away with her to marry her. But she's tellin' the truth now to get shet o' me, and I don't care what comes next. Take me and hang me. I'm done!'"

A moment later the witness was turned over to the state. The cross examination strengthened rather than shook her testimony for the defense.

Briefly under the questioning of the leading counsel for the defense Colonel Todhunter told of his visit to Lottie-May Doggett on the forenoon following the murder of Stamford Tucker.

"Where did you go, Colonel Todhunter," asked Major Dryden, "when you left the Doggetts' house after that visit?"

HAPPY WORKING FOR OTHERS' GOOD

Life of Miss French, One of Joy and Beauty to All Beholders

In the passing into the Great Silence of Sophia Washburn French, the world loses one of those it can ill afford to spare. From youth her life was consecrated to the highest ideals. It can be said of her that she left nothing undone that lay in her power to do. All World's work had her sympathy and she stood ready to take hold and help lift as far as her strength would allow. For many years a teacher, carrying with failing strength the burdens we all carry, she was ever brave and sweet, thoughtful of others, active in church and Sunday school. For long one of the directors of the First Church Alliance, she had it much at heart that the young people should feel their responsibilities and it was through her efforts that a Junior Alliance was formed. She was one of the originators to oof the Katharyn Crane club of little girls, the far-reaching results of which will be the blossoming forth of seed sown by her.

The last two winters, she had felt it a privilege to be permitted to go south to assist in the work for the poor whites at Swansboro, N. C., thus being a worker unto the very end.

Hers was a brave life spent in dispensing cheer to all within her reach and doing joyfully the work nearest to her. She once wrote in a letter "No, I am not very brave, not all the time; but I am able to keep from grumbling or from showing shadows to others and I am one of those described by George Batchelor as the most fortunate men and women, who have worthy work to do and do it because they love it." Gracious and gentle, self-forgetting, loyal, devoted and great-hearted, she has gone forth to the spiritual planes of being well equipped for their richer and fuller life.

The funeral services were held Wednesday afternoon from the home of her sister, Mrs. Robert Josselyn at 783 Hancock street. The services were of a most impressive nature conducted by Rev. E. A. Horton, of the American Unitarian association; Rev. Adelbert L. Hudson pastor of First church and Rev. William S. Key who does missionary work in the South, and was also a former pastor of the Wollaston Unitarian church.

Rev. Mr. Key spoke of the very high esteem in which Miss French was held in Swansboro, telling how the children gathered wild flowers and completely covered the casket. On the day that the body left for the north buisness in general was suspended throughout the town and the casket was borne on the shoulders of the men to the depot.

Dr. Horton spoke of her work in the Unitarian association and Rev. Mr. Hudson spoke of her work in the First church in Quincy.

There were many beautiful floral tributes. The burial was in the family lot at Mt. Wollaston cemetery.

There is more Catarrh in this section of the country than all other diseases put together, and until the last few years was supposed to be incurable. For a great many years doctors pronounced it a local disease and prescribed local remedies, and by constantly failing to cure local treatment pronounced it incurable. Science has proven catarrh to be a constitutional disease and therefore requires constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, Ohio, is the only constitutional cure on the market. It is taken internally in doses from 10 drops to a teaspoonful. It acts directly on the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. They offer one hundred dollars for any case it fails to cure. Send for circulars and testimonials.

HARVEY HINTZE BROKE RECORD

Sets Mark of 367 For the Tournament in Candles

OTHERS AFTER THE HONOR

High marks were passed and one National tournament record was broken in the National Duck and Candlepin Bowling congress, now in progress in Boston at the session Friday.

Harvey Hintze who was recently defeated by Paul Poehler in a special match was the man who smashed the candlepins for the big totals.

Owing to the late hour when play was finished last night, the individual entries of Poehler, Beatty, Archie Walsh, Terry Griffin, "Ducky" Holmes and Sam Page will be bowled Monday afternoon. All those players will try to beat Hintze's new mark of 367.

In the two men match, Poehler and Walsh, scored 603, the former 307 and the latter 296.

In the five team match, Chauncey took three out of four points from the Nashua team and by a total score of 1524 to 1459. Poehler who is anchor of the Chauncey team led his mates, with a total score of 342, 117, 126 and 99.

Hintze has rolled for year after year in the National tournaments, and, like other bowlers, has had his eye on the individual title. He has not won it yet, but he has an excellent grip on it. Friday afternoon he opened with 104, moved to 129 on the second and scrashed through the third for 134, which gave him the record total of 367. The best previous tournament record was 365, by Archie Walsh, made at Lawrence a year ago.

WALTHAM CAME BACK STRONG

Trimmed Milton After Losing Three Straight Games

The Waltham High school base ball team after losing three straight games, came back strong, Friday afternoon and walloped Milton 12 to 3 at Waltham. The home team scored enough in the first inning to put the game on ice.

Rollo Fagan, who pitched the last inning for Waltham, struck out three, men on 10 pitched balls. Ashworth, Johnson and Healey did the feature stickwork for Waltham. The score:

QUINCY TOOK POLE AT START

Scored Four Runs in the First Two Innings

AGAINST THAYER ACADEMY

Quincy High beat Thayer Academy in the first two innings at Merrymount Park Friday afternoon, 4 to 2 "Les" Andrews pitched his first full game, allowed seven hits and struck out 11 men.

A few hits, a sacrifice and Thayers errors netted Quincy her victory. Thayer awakened, scored two runs and put the damper on Quincy's tallying after the second innings:

LITTLE PORKER RESCUED.

Some people think a pig is a nuisance and there are others who think that it is not. That is the condition at Montclair. Some days ago the Board of Health received a letter signed by the secretary of the Montclair Improvement association complaining of a pig that was being kept by Mrs. Seldon H. Nickerson of 21 Ardell street.

Mrs. Nickerson was notified by the Board of Health that she must get rid of her porker, as the same was a nuisance and had been complained of. The sanitary inspector found on investigation that his pigship was kept in an out-of-the-way place in a clump of bushes and it did not look as if he was much of a nuisance.

This morning Mrs. Nickerson forwarded to the Board of Health a petition signed by 49 residents in her immediate neighborhood setting forth that the pig was not a nuisance to them. It is very seldom that a petition of this kind is received and as a result Mrs. Nickerson will probably be allowed to keep her pig.

Woman Surprised How Quick the Fire Department Responded

Was Responsible for the False Alarm This Morning

The alarm from Box 35 at 10.40 this morning was a false alarm and was caused by a woman trying to mail a letter in the fire alarm box. The woman stepped up to the box and placing her letter on top of it, opened the door, and pulled down the hook. She felt very much mortified when she saw the fire apparatus dash up. She disappeared down Elm street before the firemen could get her name.

MAY DAY CELEBRATION

Scandinavian Socialist Club Hold Concert and Dance

A concert and dance in celebration of May day was held in Electa hall, Saturday evening under the auspices of the Scandinavian Socialist club. The attendance was large. Music for dancing was furnished by the Colonial orchestra.

The program opened with the Marsellaise by the orchestra. The welcome was extended by A. Wallin who spoke on the significance of the Socialist movement. Arvid Larson related the history of the May day observance.

The real feature of the evening was the song groups of Mrs. Bertha Carlson Potter. Her repertoire included folk songs, which were familiar to many present. She also rendered high class vocal solos, accompanied by Miss Hjalmar Stenborg gave several declamations and Theodore Gullickson, violin solos. Refreshments were served.

The committee in charge was John Hedin, Jean Allgorin, Hjalmar Stenborg, Sven Hallstrom and Frank Williams.

BANQUET AND SPEECHES

The annual opening of the Wollaston Yacht clubhouse occurred Saturday evening at the clubhouse on the Metropolitan boulevard and was the occasion of a large gathering of members of the Wollaston and other clubs in the immediate vicinity. The evening opened with a banquet which was served in the upper room. Following the supper Commodore E. A. Bean made an address of welcome during which he outlined the season's program. He said that the club was in fine condition and that the coming season promised to be one of the most successful in its history.

Representative William J. Leslie, Commodore Harry S. Crane of the Quincy Yacht club, President John L. Hamilton of the Quincy Board of Trade, Commodore E. F.Drew of the Squantum Yacht club, Commodore Thompson B. Crane of the Town River Yacht club, Com. Raplh Gowdy of the Winthrop Yacht club, Wm. Carleton of the Corrinthian club of Marblehead, Walter Stone of the Annisquam club of Gloucester and John Harland of the South Boston club, president of the Inter-club Yacht racing association, were among the speakers.

Other guests were present from the Savin Hill, Quincy, Cottage Park, Winthrop, Mosquito and South Boston clubs.

KICKED IN STOMACH

James Single Roughly Handled by Wife's Relatives

AFTER COURT CASE

One of the cases in the Quincy court Saturday was that of James Single who was arraigned for non support. Mrs. Single testified that he was her second husband and that she had two daughters by a former husband, that after the first few months he had done nothing for her support. After a hearing the case was placed in the hands of the Probation officer for investigation and continued until May 10.

Saturday afternoon the police ambulance was called to Quincy Neck near the old Wendell quarry, where Single had been found in a serious condition as a result of a kicking which he said had been given him by a relative of his wife. Dr. F. R. Burke had been summoned by telephone before the police ambulance had arrived and he took Capt. McKay with him. An examination of Single showed that he had been severely kicked in the stomach. He was taken to the police station and after receiving treatment was taken to his home in West Quincy.

Capt. McKay is making an investigation of the case and arrests are looked for.

ST. JOHN'S ANNIVERSARY

Is Interesting Many of the Old Parishioners

The triple celebration of three anniversaries of St. John's parish will take place in June, commencing probably on the 22nd. A well attended meeting discussed the coming events in the Parochial hall, Sunday afternoon.

The observances will open with a solemn high mass of thanksgiving, to which will be invited former curates and Quincy born priests. The day following will be devoted to a reception to the visiting clergy and in the evening a meeting will take place at which there will be addresses by the visitors and laymen from parishes which were once part of St. John's.

Among those who attended the meeting was John Mundy of Arnold street who recently celebrated the 50th anniversary of his marriage which was solemnized by Rev. Fr. Aaron Roche of Abington. Mr. Mundy was given an ovation when he entered the hall.

The interest in the affair is great throughout the Boston diocese. At one time St. John's church was part of St. Peter and Paul's of Boston, and since then has been the mother church of nearly all those on the South Shore.

A letter has been received from a sister in the Notre Dame convent who tells of the interest taken in the observance by an aged sister who was baptized in 1845 in the old St. Mary's church, then attended by Quincy people, by Father Careher, the pastor.

Historically, the St. John's parish, is linked with the growth of the territory south of Boston and the parishes of Weymouth, Braintree, even as far as Abington, were at one time in St. John's parish.

MILTON'S NEW FIRE CHIEF

Other Milton News of Personal Interest

A reception by fellow townsmen and friends was tendered Edward A. McCue, who has been appointed chief of the Milton Fire department, at his home, 227 Reedsdale road, East Milton, Sunday. Throughout the day his callers were numerous and no alarms sounded to interrupt the pleasures of his well wishers. Chief McCue was the choice of the Selectmen at their last meeting. He succeeds the late Chief Choate who filled the position for many years.

He is an efficient and skillful fire fighter and has the confidence of the men in the department. He entered the department as a call man in his 20th year and was a member of various companies. His fine work in all capacities ranging from callman ta captain of Hook and ladder company easily secured him the endorsement of the Eelectmen who formally named him chief Saturday. Chief McCue was born in Milton in April 2, 1873. He is a graduate of the Milton High school and was in the contracting business until 10 years ago when he was appointed street commissioner. He is a director in the Milton Firemen's Relief Association and one of its editors. Chief McCue is married and has two children.

YOUNG PEOPLE'S DANCE.

One of the prettiest dancing parties of the season was that given by Mrs. John H. Johnson at Colonial Hall Saturday evening for the young people. The matrons were Mrs. Henry M. Faxon, Mrs. Paul R. Blackmur, and Mrs. Luther W. Glover. The ushers were Edmund Whittemore, Harold Seavey, Ralph Crocker, Jack Doble, Henry M. Faxon, Allan Miller, Franklin Streeter, Samuel Sears, Fred Schenkelberger and John McAnarney. Music was by Poole's orchestra and frappe was served during the evening. Dancing was in order until 11.30.

PETERSON-HILLERSTROM

Wedding of Interest to Swedish Lutheran People

Standing beneath a bell from which was suspended streamers of white, Miss Esther Victoria Hillerstrom and Arthur Frank Peterson, both popular and active members of the Swedish Lutheran church, were married Saturday evening in their new home, 9 Cranch street, by their pastor, Rev. Leander Hokenson.

The bridesmaids were Miss Anna Peterson and Miss Esther Hermanson. The groom's attendants were Timan Anderson and George Kaudell.

The bride was given away by her brother-in-law, Gerna Hermanson and Anton Peterson gave the groom away.

The bride was handsomely gowned in white chiffon with lace, wore a veil caught up with orange blossoms and carried bridal roses. The bridesmaids were dressed in lavender voile, trimmed with lace and carried carnations.

A wedding supper followed the ceremony and a reception was tendered Mr. and Mrs. Peterson. The couple were the recipients of many handsome and costly wedding presents.

During the evening, Mr. and Mrs. Peterson left on a honeymoon trip. They will be at home to their friends after May 10 in their new home.

GRAND ARMY HAVE NEW PLAN FOR MEMORIAL DAY

Decide to Hold Afternoon Services on the Adams Academy Grounds

Object to Desecration About the Soldiers' Monument

Delegates from Paul Revere Post G. A. R., the Woman's Relief corps, the Sons of Veterans, Spanish War Veterans and Women's Auxiliary organizations met at the home of Francis P. Loud Saturday night to arrange for Memorial day. There has been considerable talk of late about omitting the afternoon service at Mt. Wollaston cemetery on account of the trampling of graves near the Soldiers Monument.

At the meeting Saturday night it was definitely decided to omit the exercises at the monument, and instead to hold the exercises usually held at the cemetery on the grounds of the Adams Academy.

During the morning delegations will visit Mt. Wollaston and other cemeteries and decorate the graves of departed comrades, and the usual visit will be made to the cemetery at West Quincy. Returning from West Quincy dinner will be served at Faxon hall. In the vicinity of 2.30 the line will be formed and a march taken to the Adams Academy grounds where the usual exercises will be held and the address will be made by Rev. Adelbert L. Hudson the chaplain of the day.

Exercises will also be held by the Woman's Relief Corps, Sons of Veterans, Spanish War Veterans and Women's Auxiliary. The Grand Army will deposit the usual red, white and blue wreaths, after which they will be taken to the cemetery and placed on the monument.

On the Sunday before Memorial day the Grand Army and kindred organizations will attend services at the First church in the morning, and in the evening will attend service at the Wollaston Congregational church.

The publishers of the Daily Ledger announce a change today in the editorship of the paper. Archie J. Moore retires and will be succeeded by Frank F. Prescott, a former editor for many years, and now a director and large stockholder of the George W. Prescott Publishing Co. Mr. Prescott was the first editor when the Daily Ledger was established in 1889 and knows of the early struggles to put the paper upon its feet. Quincy is his birthplace and he is proud of the city, and can be depended upon in the future as in the past to work for the best interests of Quincy. He hopes to have the co-operation of all citizens.

CLEAN-UP WEEK.

Clean-up week is here. It comes a little late in the season for some, who have already had their annual clean-up, but one sees many evidences of the need of much work. And so much can be accomplished by united effort to improve and beautify this city of ours. Every resident should take an interest, whether he is the owner of an estate or a tenant. And if there is a vacant lot next door see that that is also free from tin cans and rubbish of all kinds.

The Board of Health of the city has advertised to remove free of charge on the regular days for the collection of ashes "all rubbish with the exception of stones and dirt." This is an opportunity which the people should not miss. Since our city has become so thickly settled it has become quite a problem and expense to business men and housekeepers to get rid of paper refuse, tin cans, and rubbish of various kinds.

It is important for the appearance of the city and the health of its people that the backyards as well as the front lawns should be free from rubbish. And the cellar too. Don't stop with the ashes. See that the old papers, old bottles, tin cans, etc., is put out from the city teams. People should be glad of the opportunity to have all these things carted away.

Perhaps after all this has been accomplished, and the improvement noted, there may be an incentive to have a good lawn, to cut the edges of the walk, to close the "short cuts" across the grass, to have a flower garden and a vegetable garden, and a few shrubs.

Remember that this is a united effort on the part of the people of Quincy; an appeal to civic pride. Women can do much to help along this spick-and-span order, and we know they will.

It is to be hoped that the vandals who damaged the granite memorials at the polishing mill of Badger Bros. may be apprehended and punished. It was a mean contemptible act, and our granite manufacturers can ill afford such losses. Then it was a shock to those who expected to erect memorials to relatives before Memorial Day. Undoubtedly liberal reward will be offered by the Granite Manufacturers Association for the arrest and conviction of the offender.

Col. Goethals misses the honor of having his portrait engraved on government bonds while he lives; but considering the monument already carved to his glory, he can afford to wait.

President Wilson, like many a man before him is learning the difference between theorizing about the tariff and trying to pass a bill which will put the theories into practice.

Unless the old-time newspaper spirit is wholly dead, we may expect the account of "Sephus Daniels' submarine adventures" to include a 200 word interview with our ancient friend, McGinty.

With Walter Page as ambassador to England and Thomas Nelson Page "mentioned" for Italy, it should not take long for the literary administration to have a complete book.

The spring season for Sunday drownings is now open.

IMPROVEMENT ASSOCIATIONS

Atlantic and Squantum United to talk Over Matters

Improvement Associations received a big boom at the joint meeting of the Atlantic and Squantum Associations Friday night, in the Patriotic Association rooms under Music hall, Atlantic.

The Atlantic Association voted to reduce their membership fee from two dollars to one.

Vice President Mosses also recommended that the Improvement Association have a float at the 4th of July parade, and help the Patriotic society in any way that it can.

When the Squantum delegation arrived Mr. Mosses of Atlantic acted as chairman of the meeting and called on the active pushers of the Squantum Association to tell how they have done things and made good in their association.

Timothy J. Callahan of Squantum told briefly of their growth from a few members to something over one hundred, and assured the Atlantic Association that it meant hard work and push continually and also co-operation with Mayor, Councilmen and the powers that may exist.

William H. Kenyon gave a talk on the mosquito plague—telling how he appeared before the legislature and had Representative Leslie draw up the petition for that body and had them appropriate $1,000 to try and make an experiment on the Squantum and Atlantic marshes. Mr. Kenyon showed he was well versed in the ways of the mosquito and also that he had a clear remedy how to get rid of the pest in this section. He told it would cost $177.000.00 to the whole state of Connecticut for draining all the marshes and getting rid of the mosquito—that would take its whole seacoast which was large and that he hoped a bill would be passed in Massachusetts to drain every acre of marsh land the state to bear its share every city and property owner to bear their apportionment.

Mr. Kenyon also said that we needed civic associations among the boys to have them watch out for old tin cans and bottles which might be breeding places for the mosquito.

C. E. Carlson was introduced as President of the Squantum Association and the "Mayor" of Squantum and responded by saying that he had not known that Squantum had grown in size so as to have a mayor but he had heard echoes of its possibly growing to be a Ward by itself and that some thought of it as the coming Ward 7 of Quincy, but that he and his associates were not anxious to have it made a Ward at present.

J. A. Hagin told what is possible for Atlantic to do by showing what Squantum has done.

Councilman Beeman said that he would quote a motto which he felt was the sentiment of Associations 'All for one, and each one for all.' This he felt was the reason for the existence of the Associations. Mr. Beeman referred to the work of Rev. Mr. Davison in the community improvement.

Mr. Thomas of the Quincy Board of Health spoke representing the Downs Improvement Association, and Ex-Councilman Parlee of Montclair Association spoke for his association.

Frank Badger spoke for the Fourth of July celebration and asked all to enter into the work of the Patriotic Association.

M. J. Ducher, the new caterer furnished the lunch.

ANNUAL CHARITY BALL.

The annual charity dancing party of the Quincy Catholic Club will be held in Alpha hall Tuesday evening. The affair promises to eclipse the past success of the club. The features of the evening will be "mysteries" which will be disclosed during the evening.

Daniel J. Deasey will be floor director and he will be assisted by the following ushers and aids: Edward J. Murphy, Charles C. Hearn, Joseph A. Dasha, Thomas J. Dunphy, Edward D. Barrett, John H. Walsh, Harry McGrath, J. J. McAnarney, Robert E. Foye, Dr. C. J. Lynch, William J. Walsh, Leo J. Ford, Michael T. Walsh, Dr. George M. Sheehan, John A. McGowan, Dr. James H. Maloney, John J. Deasey, Lawrence W. Lyons, John H. Heaney, William A. Carey, Michael E. Cook, Dr. Joseph Harkins, Byron Brown, J. William Lynch, Frank Avery, Marcus E. Mahon.

NEWSPAPER MAN DEAD

Joseph F. Costello Well Known on South Shore

Joseph F. Costello, formerly of Quincy, and for many years one of the best known newspaper men along the South Shore, died this morning at the residence of Col. A. C. Drinkwater at Braintree, after an illness of several months' duration.

Mr. Costello was born in Quincy, Sept. 25, 1865. He received his early education in the Washington school and at the High school, being a member of the class of 1883. His first regular newspaper work was done on the Quincy Advertiser. Soon afterward he accepted a position on the Boston Advertised and Boston Record as their South Shore correspondent, about the same time accepting a position with the New England Associated Press, covering Quincy, Weymouth and Braintree.

Later he did some special work for the Boston Herald and in 1890 he accepted a position on the Boston Globe He was also at the same time the local correspondent of the Monumental News, a granite trade publication.

Sept. 30, 1899, he went to Havana as a representative of the New York Herald, afterward assuming the directorship of the Associated Press in Cuba, which position he held for some years.

While in Cuba he was apopinted secretary for Bishop Broderick, who was in charge of the adjustment of land disputes between the Catholic church and the Cuban government. After these negotiations were completed he associated himself with a New York brokerage firm where he remained some years.

At one time he was largely interested in real estate in Cuba and for a number of years spent his winters there. A few weeks ago he opened a brokerage office in Boston with his nephew, Joseph F. Costello, 2d, but owing to failing health was obliged to give up business cares.

During his active newspaper work in Quincy he was a member of Quincy Yacht club and was an enthusiastic yachtsman.

He married Miss Elsie Drinkwater, Daughter of Col. Drinkwater, who died about a year ago.

He leaves one sister Mrs. Michael F. Griffin, and three brothers, Edward, William and Joseph Costello.

ADAMS MARKET OPENING

Public Invited for an Inspection This Evening

The City Square store of R. E. Foy & Co., known as the Adams Market, will throw open its doors for business tomorrow morning. The store however will be open for public inspection tonight from 7 to 9 o'clock. The store is located in the Adams building and is one of the most attractive up-to-date markets in the city. Everything about the store is immaculate clean and sweet and it is the intention to keep it so.

All of the goods are fresh goods and up-to-date in every way. On the right as you enter are the cracker and grocery department, while on the left in front is the vegetable department. Adjoining this is the meat department, all of the meats being under glass.

Then comes the large refrigerator with an entrance from the front, while from the rear is another entrance with an overhead track running from the rear door, upon which the meats are carried.

Near by is the office which is connected with all departments by the Lamson carrier system.

The store will be in charge of C. J. Johnson as manager, while the meat department will be in charge of Archie McLeod.

GENTLEMEN'S NIGHT.

The last social event of the season of the Young Women's club was a gentlemen's night which was held at the clubhouse Saturday evening. Owing to the fact that there were several other social events that evening the attendance was not as large as expected. The rooms of the clubhouse were very prettily decorated with flowers and dancing was enjoyed until 11.30. Lemonade and cake was served during the evening.

FAREWELL SERMON REV. A. M. THOMPSON

Ask Young People to Stand by the Church

The Rev. A. M. Thompson, pastor of the First United Presbyterian church of this city preached his farewell sermon to a crowded house Sunday evening. He took for his text 2 Cor. 13: 11."Finally brethren farewell! Be perfect; be of good comfort; be of one mind; Live in peace; and the God of love and peace will be with you."

After dwelling upon certain aspects of truth embodied in the text he said in part:—"It is a little over six years since you called me to be your pastor. My first sermon was from the text "I came unto you without gainsaying as soon as I was sent for," And in the evening of the same day spoke from the words, "I ask therefore for what intent you have sent for me." Acts 10:29.

"As a congregation we have had our ups and downs, our joys and our sorrows like most congregations. If my work has counted for anything worth while during my stay among you it has been largely on account of the hearty co-operation received from the various organizations of the church and your willingness to co-operate with me in whatever pertained to the larger good of the church."

He referred to the work of the officers and teachers in the Sabbath school and what an inspiration had been given to the work of the church by the faithfulness and diligence by which this work had been carried on. He spoke of the encouragement that the young people had given him in their work in the Young People's Society. Also of the willingness of the ladies of the congregation in always doing their share of the church work.

He spoke also of the faithfulness of the board of trustees in the discharge of the arduous duties devolving upon them in their department of work. He referred also to the co-operation of the Session in the oversight of the church and the help received from them.

He referred more particularly to the strenuous efforts of the whole congregation in procuring a fine new pipe organ for greater efficiency in helping out the praise service of the church. This last is a monument of what a weak congregation can do when they work unitedly together for the larger good of the church.

In closing he urged the young to seek to resist the temptation to run about to other churches. As a rule they had stood by their own church very faithfully during his pastorate among them. Now as there was no regular "Under Shepherd" to look after the flock there might be a temptation on the part of some to seek other pastures. Stand by your own church. Your help was never more needed than it will be in the coming days."

At the close of the service the pastor by the authority of Boston Presbytery declared the pulpit vacant.

UNCLAIMED LETTERS.

SOLD AT A LOSS.

The increase of one cent per copy for Boston Sunday papers resulted in a strike of the Haverhill newsboys. At the present cost of raw material and the added expenses for labor, all Sunday papers are sold at a big loss on each copy. There is a strong feeling that there must be an advance in the price of the daily editions if present conditions continue. Every one-cent paper is sold at a loss. With the large metropolitan publications this runs into sums approaching $500,000 annually.—Salem News.

"Chuck" Connors, known as the white Mayor of Chinatown, is one of the most interesting characters of New York's noted east side. He appears in the mammoth picture production, "New York's society life and underworld," which will be at Kincaide Theatre Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday.

This wonderful three-part picture is a true-to-life portrayal of the bright lights and dark shadows of the great city. It is considered so strong an attraction that theatres the country over are wild to get it.

YOU ARE LOOKING OLDER THAN WHEN I SAW YOU LAST

Have You Ever Had This Said of You Because of Grey Hairs

It is most embarassing to have a friend remark that you are "looking older".

Grey hairs are not becoming, people may tell you so, but they are saying to themselves: "What a pity she is not old. And she used to have such beautiful hair."

There is one quick, absolutely sure, easy way of getting rid of grey or faded hair—simply use Hay's Hair Health.

Benefit by the experience of thousands of others, who are using Hay's Hair Health. It brings back the fine, glossy, brilliant color of your hair—restores the grey hairs to their natural color immediately, and keeps the scalp free from dandruff.

People voluntarily recommend Hay's Hair Health. It is not unusual for them to say: "I want to tell others about it. It's perfectly splendid." Try it yourself, today. You'll be surprised how quickly the grey hairs disappear; how beautifully dark and glossy your hair will remain after using it. Druggists sell more Hay's Hair Health than all others combined because their customers prefer it and they know that it can be guaranteed satisfactory.

SUNDAY IN OUR CHURCHES

Topics and Announcements For Coming Week

SUNDAY SCHOOLS

BETHANY CONGREGATIONAL.

Large congregations attended the services at Bethany church on Sunday. It was the May communion, and the number welcomed into the church was nearly as large as at the March communion. There were 23 in all as follows:

On Confession:—Miss Elva A. Leonard, Miss Vernie L. Leonard, Miss Vera M. Leonard, Miss Etta M. Cummings, F. Warren Crane, Myrick Crane Miss Emma Spaulding, Guy W. Shaw, and Miss Catherine Merrill.

By Letter:—William Ross, Edward Southworth, Abbott L. Melcher, Mrs. Mary A. Underwood, Andrew Walker, Mrs. Maggie Walker, William Stephen, Mrs. Bella Stephen, Miss Jennie R. Stephen, Robert C. Wylie, Malcolm McKenzie, Mrs. Annie McKenzie and Miss Catherine McKenzie.

Re-affirmation of Faith:—Arthur B. Innis.

The delegates from this church to the spring meeting of the Norfolk Association of Congregational churches to be held at Cohasset on Tuesday will be Rev. Benjamin A. Willmott, Richard D. Chase, Mrs. Theophilus King, Herbert Pratt and A. L. Melcher.

WOLLASTON UNITARIAN.

The church auditorium was tastefully decorated with ferns and apple-blossoms. It was good to see our organist Mrs. Chandler W. Smith in her accustomed place. She has been travelling in the west, including California, for thepast three months. The pastor preached a helpful sermon upon the "Influence of belief upon life and character," from the text "Godliness is profit, able unto all things, having promise of the life that now is and of that which is to come." I Timothy 4,8. He said: "What a man truly believes and deeply feels cannot help affect his life. Beliefs cannot exist in the mind without products in the life. Study the history of the world and you will find that men's beliefs have been the seeds of the world's practice. A belief in the existence and activity of evil spirits nourished for centuries the horrors of witchcraft. A believer in Christian Science which teaches the unreality of disease, of course has no need of a physician and will decline the aid and help of medical science. A man's manner of life will always depend on the view he takes of the meaning and end of life. Seek out any life that is consistent and persevering, worthy of honor and confidence and you will find it upheld by a strong foundation of definite and decided beliefs. What we all need is not so much to believe many things, but a few things mightily. What we believe in, we shall grow to be like. If we cherish good and worthy beliefs, our conduct and daily life cannot help expressing them. Therefore it is of great importance what we believe.

The Y. P. R. U. held an interesting meeting Sunday evening when five young ladies spoke on "The things young people might do to hasten the kingdom of God on earth."

The Social Service Council of Unitarian Women will meet in the vestry of the Arlington Street Church, Monday, May 12, at 10.30. Reports of the year's work will be given.

The Summer Sunday-School Institute at the Isles of Shoals will be held July 14 to 18 inclusive.

The summer meetings at the Weirs, N. H., will be held August 3 to 10.

Our church has made Mrs. Carl G. Horst a life member of the American Unitarian Association.

HALL PLACE M. E. CHURCH.

Rev. H. G. Butler of Trinity M. E. church, Lynn occupied the pulpit of the Hall Place M. E. church in exchange with the pastor, Rev. T. C. Martin.

At the morning service he preached from the text taken from Leviticus 26-8. "And five of you shall chase an hundred, and an hundred of you shall put ten thousand to flight; and your enemies shall fall before you by the sword."

Sunday school was held at 12 M. and at the close of the session Rev. Mr. Butler addressed the Sunday school.

Mrs. J. M. Francis led the Epworth League devotional service at 6.15 on the subject, "The Sympathy of Jesus."

Rev. Mr. Butler took for the text of his evening service, Gen. 28-16, "And Jacob awaked out of his sleep and he said, Surely the Lord is in this place; and I knew it not."

On Monday evening a meeting of the Financial committee of the church is called in the vestry.

On Tuesday evening the Epworth League will be the guests of the Wollaston Epworth League at Wollaston.

On Wednesday evening a lecture for Italian people will be given in the vestry of the church.

Prayer meeting will be held Friday evening at 7.30.

Next Sunday will be observed as Mother's Day, with special services in the morning and evening.

UNITARIAN MEETINGS

To be Addressed by ex-President Taft and Others

The annual Unitarian May meetings are held in Boston the week beginning May 18. Among the speakers are ex-president Taft, ex-President Charles W. Eliot, the former Paulist Father, the Rev. William Sullivan, Chief Justice Rugg of Massachusetts and many more distinguished men. Dr. Hale's statue on Charles street will be unveiled at noon Thursday, May 22.

STRUCK BY WEST QUINCY TRAIN.

Peter Peterson, an employee at Lawley's shipyard at Neponset, was killed while crossing the tracks near the Neponset station Saturday afternoon. Peterson was 55 years of age and in crossing the tracks north of the depot had his view hidden from the inward track by a freight train. He was struck by a Boston bound Granite branch train and hurled several feet. He was taken to the Neponset station where he died in a few minutes. He leaves a widow and two brothers.

FORE RIVERS DEFEAT QUINCYS

Scored 4 to 0 in Semi-Finals for Soccer Championship

One of the snappiest and most interesting soccer football games ever played in this city was witnessed on the Ward Two playground Saturday afternoon by a crowd of royal rooters who saw Fore Rivers defeat the Quincys in the semi-final in the Williamson cup series, 4 to 0. Harrison displayed his usual form and handled the ball for two goals after the good passing of his team mates. Sharples the goal of the winners, spoiled several of Quincy's opportunities to score.

The summary:—

P. W. Whittemore Wins Wollaston Golf Cup

R. R. Freeman of the Wollaston Golf club and P. W. Whittemore of the Country club, Brookline, met on Saturday in the finals for the Wollaston cup. The latter gave a great exhibition and won by 6 and 5. He led by 5 points on the first round and increased it by 3 on the second round, the totals being 73 and 81.

The card was as follows:

Whittemore	5	4	3	3	5	6	5	4	3—38
	3	5	4	4	4	4	4	4	4—35-73
Freeman	4	6	4	4	6	5	5	5	4—43
	4	5	4	4	5	3	3	4	6—38-81

In the handicap medal play for members G. F. Murphy was the winner with 82. The best net score was made by H. Coleman with a card of 90—24—66. There were four 70's—F. M. Tibbolt, M. J. Mackey, V. M. Smith and C. McLeod in a field of 33.

APPRENTICES SCORE VICTORY

Allow Braintree A. A. to Score Only in One Inning

Joe Larkin's Fore River Apprentice team easily beat the Braintree A. A. at Braintree on Saturday in an eight inning game, 13 to 3. The features of the game was the batting of Williamson, Wilkens and Kennedy, a new man in the centre field. The local secured 21 hits and made but three errors. Kerr allowed only three hits, none of them dangerous.

The Ford River lineup included Fitzgerald second base, Wilkins, first base; Creswell, catcher; Grethe, third base; Laing, right field; Kennedy, centre field; Charles Williamson, left field; Kerr, pitcher and second base; Walter Williamson, pitcher and second base.

The Braintree lineup was Miller, catcher; Currier, first; Mack, pitcher; Johnson, second; J. Mack, short stop; Hunter, left; Wetherill, third; DeYoung centre; and McLellan, right field.

The score by innings:

BOWLING LEAGUE PRIZES

Silver Trophy Presented to the Monatiquot Team

A fitting close to a successful season was the banquet of the Forester Bowling League at Brighams hotel, Boston, Saturday evening. The toastmaster was Peter Barry, and George F. James, grand chief ranger, was the chief guest and speaker.

A silver candlepin, the team trophy, was presented to the Monatiquot team of Weymouth. The individual prize, a gold watch fob given by Dr. John H. Ash, was awarded to C. Connell of Weymouth who had high average of 96.

The teams present were John Ericson, Roger Wolcott, Monatiquot and John Adams. The committee consisted of George Hastings, Algot Ericson and Harry Smith.

DEWEYS DEFEATED.

Reading beat the Deweys of Weymouth Saturday afternoon at Reading in a heavy hitting game. None of the drives however were outside the reach of the fielders. Artis came through with a two base hit and also scored one of the runs. Dam pitched for the losers and again showed his good judgment. The Deweys have been reorganized this year by Joseph Ford and John Higgins of Quincy, and nearly all of Quincy's fastest players are in the lineup. The out of town games are preliminary to a schedule which calls for their regular appearance at Weymouth after May 30. Donovan of the Readings who sustained a broken nose in practice is this morning doing well.

TROT AT WEYMOUTH.

One of the largest crowds of the session was present Saturday at the matinee meet of the Old Colony driving club at Weymouth. The winners in the several events were as follows:

ORIENTS WIN.

With a score of 9 to 5, the Orients defeated the Dreyfus nine of Boston on the Ward Three playground Saturday afternoon and scored their third successive victory. Appearances indicate that they will hold to their amateur championship laurels gained last season after fast base ball.

The score by innings:

Dreyfns	2	0	3	0	0	0	0	0	— 6	2

STATION CLUB WIN.

The Station Outing Club easily beat the Braintree White Sox at Braintree Saturday afternoon, 12 to 4. The West Quincy team have one defeat registered against them this season.

The score by innings:

White Sox	0	2	0	0	0	1	0	0	1— 4

Batteries, Kenn and O'Brien; Warburton, Burrell and Delorey.

OTHER GAMES.

Weymouth High School defeated Brockton High at Brockton, Saturday 5 to 4 in a 10-inning game. The winners did not score until the ninth when a base on balls, an error, and two hits, gave them four runs. An error and a single by Gloster netted the winning run in the tenth.

The Middlesex nine beat Milton Academy at Milton on Saturday, 5 to 3. Remarkable ball playing on the part of the losers resulted in the slight defeat. Sanderson stole the game for Middlesex by twice sneaking home from third.

Milton Academy defeated the Middlesex second team at Concord on Saturday afternoon, 7 to 3. The batteries were Kipp and Nelson; Hobbs and Sherman.

There is more Catarrh in this section of the country than all other diseases put together, and until the last few years was supposed to be incurable. For a great many years doctors pronounced it a local disease and prescribed local remedies, and by constantly failing to cure local treatment pronounced it incurable. Science has proven catarrh to be a constitutional disease and therefore requires constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, Ohio, is the only constitutional cure on the market. It is taken internally in doses from 10 drops to a teaspoonful. It acts directly on the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. They offer one hundred dollars for any case it fails to cure. Send for circulars and testimonials.

But Will Not Break Electric Light Globes Any More

Sunday afternoon word was received by the police that a gang of young fellows were going through Montclair smashing electric light globes. Officer Malone who was on duty in that vicinity was called up and told to look out for the gang. He succeeded in locating them on the Neponset bridge. There were about twenty in the crowd and the officer, who was all alone succeeded in arresting two of them. They gave their names as George F. Foley of 14 Magnolia street and George W. Zuck of 38 East Cottage street, Boston. They went sent to the police station where they were latter admitted to bail. In court they entered a plea of nolo contendre which was accepted by the court and they were fined $10 each which was paid.

There have been many complaints during the past few years of the breaking of electric light globes, especially in districts like Montclair and Squantum, but the police have seldom been able to catch the parties, although the Electric Light Co., have offered rewards. Sunday reports from Milton say that many lights were smashed there, but it is not known that this gang had anything to do with it. Had Officer Malone another officer with him, more of the gang would probably have been arrested. It was a lesson to them.

NO CIRCUS MEMORIAL DAY

Mayor Stone Secures a Change of Date

There will be no circus in Quincy, May 30, Memorial day. When Mayor Stone learned that it was on Memorial day that a circus wanted to come he sent City Clerk Crane on the hunt to find the agent and cancel the permit. This he succeeded in doing and a new permit was issued for May 31. The circus is known as Downey and Wheelers and will exhibit on the River street grounds. In addition to this another tent show is coming to Quincy June 14. This show is called No. 1 Ranch and will exhibit on the Water street grounds.

MRS. THOMAS COOPER.

The funeral of Mrs. Annie F. Cooper, wife of Thomas Cooper, was held this morning from her home, 207 Copeland street. A high mass of requiem was celebrated at St. Mary's church by Rev. Fr. William J. Duffy. Burial was in St. Mary's cemetery. The deceased was a prominent Irish resident of West Quincy ,had many friends and was known for her good works among the needy and the suffering. Her funeral was well attended. The bearers were Timothy Shea, Thomas Connors, Cornelius Collins, and Stephen Connors.

SUPERIOR CIVIL COURT.

The civil sitting of the Norfolk County Superior court came in at Dedham this morning at 10 o'clock. There are 324 cases on the docket and the term will be for eight weeks. Two members of the City Council were drawn as jurors for this term, Stephen B. Little and Herbert G. Beeman. Others from Quincy are: Andrew M. Mischler, William F. Kane, Richard B. Stiff, Daniel G. Butters, Charles W. Hall and William H. Flynn.

WHY NOT SHERIFF CAPEN?

Samuel H. Capen, sheriff of Norfolk county, is mentioned among those who would make a good prison commissioner. If Gov. Foss wants a man with brains, ability, and the necessary experience to fill the office he will name Sheriff Capen.—Dedham Transcript.

DIVORCE LIBEL.

Respectfully shews Anna K. Satama of Quincy County of Norfolk and Commonwealth of Massachusetts, that she was lawfully married to Johan Satama, formerly of Worcester in the county of Worcester said Commonwealth but whose present whereabouts are unknown to your libellant, at St. Petersburg, in the Empire of Russia on or about February 15, A. D. 1886, that they have since lived together as husband and wife in said St. Petersburg, Wiborg, Finland, Fitchburg and Worcester in said County of Worcester; that your libellant has always been faithful to her marriage vows and obligations yet the said Johan Satama being wholly regardless of the same did utterly desert your libellant, which utter desertion has continued for more than three consecutive years next prior to the filing of this libel; that said Johan Satama has contracted gross and confirmed habits of intoxication caused by the voluntary and the excessive use of intoxicating liquor or other drugs; that the libellee being of sufficient ability, has grossly and wantonly and cruelly refused and neglected to provide suitable maintenance to your libellant.

Wherefore your libellant prays that a divorce from the bonds of matrimony may be decreed between your libellant and the said Johan Satama, and for such further orders and decrees in the premises as to law and justice may appertain.

Anna K. Satama.

Commonwealth of Massachusetts
Norfolk, ss. Superior Court.

On the foregoing Libel, it is ordered that the Libellant give notice to the said Johan Satama the Libellee, to appear before the Justices of this Court, to be holden at Dedham, within and for said County, on the first Monday of June next, by causing an attested copy of said Libel, and of this order thereon, to be published once in a week for three successive weeks, in the Quincy Daily Ledger, a newspaper printed at Quincy in the County of Norfolk, the last publication to be fourteen days at least before the said first Monday of June next, and further, by sending through the mail, as soon as may be, by a registered letter addressed to the last known residence of the said Johan Satama an attested copy of said Libel and of this order thereon that the said Johan Satama may then and there show cause why the prayer of said Libel should not be granted..

A BOSTON GIRL'S BUDGET.

Cubist Painters Get Miss Boston Giggling—Quite the Absurdest Ever are these Freaks from Overseas—Mayor "Honey Fitz" Now Moves against Songs That Tempt to Turkey Trot and Gaby Glide—Massachusetts State House Will Take Unto Itself Wings—Other Happenings of the Whirling Hub.

The Massachusetts State House is to take unto itself wings, if the bill now before the House of Representatives is engrossed by that body. The bill appropriates $1,000,000 for the purpose of erecting two wings to accommodate the crowded conditions in the present building. The Bulfinch front will probably not be altered as was feared by many when the project first was introduced, therefore the public will have no strenuous objections.

The 80,000 superfluous women in Massachusetts should take a hike to England, if there is anything in the following advertisement which was published a short time ago in an English journal: "A young bachelor is in need of a lady who will accompany him to a dance. No reasonable offer refused. Particulars to 'Pathos' etc. If young women are in such a demand in that land that a pathetic appeal of the above nature has to be inserted in the newspapers to get a partner for the dance there should be chances a plenty for the several wallflowers in our glorious Commonwealth to say nothing of the overflow from the surrounding New England states.

"47 Workshop" is the name by which Harvard's new theatre is popularly known at the university. That English 47 is the name of the course in which the new playhouse is to be incorporated is the reason therefore. The study of the drama has become an important part of the Harvard curriculum under Professor Baker's efficient guidance, so that now plays will be presented before bona fide audiences in a bona fide playhouse, and the general public will be permitted to attend. The admissions will be used only in defraying the expense of maintaining 47 Workshop. Where heretofore students have been obliged to see their dramatic faults only on paper, they can henceforth have them pointed out in actual performance. The theatre is in Agassiz House at Radcliffe, and will be used by both Radcliffe and Harvard.

That connoisseur and censor of public morals, the Hon. John F. Fitzgerald mayor of Boston, continues his relentless warfare against the social dances which have been much under discussion in the public prints. The latest edict from the mayoral office is to the effect that a ban must be put on song demonstrators' contests as a feature of public dances because many of the popular songs lead dancers to indulge in the dances prescribed by the Mayor. One sees that the doughty Fitz, himself no mean performer in the singing of legitimate and proper ditties such as "Sweet Adeline," may want to join hands with a certain Chicago reformer who is urging a national censorship of songs. The proposition from the viewpoint of applied psychology is not perhaps so utterly ridiculous as it seems to the ordinary liberty loving citizen. There is no doubt that much of the music and dancing of the day immensely cheapens the ideals and conduct of many people and particularly of the young, and that the purveying of pernicious musical literature might be regarded as quite as susceptible of state or national regulation as the making and selling of dynamite or cocaine. So that perhaps Honey Fitz is really only a little ahead of his age in seeking to regulate the songs of a city, whoever makes its laws.

If returning from one of your bats,
Expecting red snakes and pink rats,
You should see on the stair
A lady quite bare —
Now wouldn't that rattle your slats?"

might well have been inspired by the cubist painting entitled "Nude Descending a Stair" which, is exciting grins and puzzled frowns at the Copley Hall exhibition. Certainly the construction of the lady resembles nothing more closely than yellow brown slats, and the "Teuton scramble" might easily be attributed to the condition of mind which would result from one of the above mentioned bats, immortalized by our popular Boston painter, "Billy" Paxton. Other equally batty examples of post impressionism and cubist art are drawing crowds to Copley Hall, where the floor fairly creaks in protest against this desecration of its time honored reputation for sanity and beauty. Even Whistler at his extremes never caused the mental gymnastics that are required to guess at these works of art. Sedate Boston has got the giggles; and doesn't know exactly whether to admit it or to pretend to understand and admire the "soul" in the spooky and blocky paintings. An eminent painter among the group represented explains to the satisfaction of everyone that one is not supposed to see the actual crowd in the bunch of rocky appearing blocks entitled "Procession in Seville," any more than one actually sees the moonlight in Beethoven's Sonata. One is supposed simply to get the feeling of the crowd. It's all quite simple when you understand about and believe what somebody tells you rather than what you actually see.

PETITION.

To the Honorable the Judge of the Probate Court, in and for the County of Norfolk:

Respectfully represents William Gelotte of Quincy in said County, and Anna L. Gelotte his wife, that they are of the age of twenty-one years or upwards, and are desirous of adopting Anna L. Lawson of said Quincy a child of Carl J. Lawson, deceased, late of Gysinge, Sweden and Ida Lawson his wife, deceased late of said Gysinge, Sweden, which said child was born in Gysinge, Sweden on the nineteenth day of February, A. D. 1906; that both her parents died in Sweden several years ago, that said Anna L. Gelotte is an aunt of said Anna L. Lawson and the only relative who is able or who has volunteered to support and maintain her, that although said petitioners have three children of their own they brought said Anna L. Lawson, when her parents died from Sweden to this country where she has since resided with said petitioners, that said Anna L. Lawson is without means of support and that said petitioners are able to maintain and support her and are desirous of adopting her.

Wherefore they pray for leave to adopt said child, and that her name may be changed to that of Anna L. Gelotte.

Dated this twenty-second day of March A. D. 1913.

WILLIAM GELOTTE
ANNA L. GELOTTE

The undersigned, being the only relative in the United States of said child, hereby consent to the adoption, as above prayed for.

ANNA L. GELOTTE.

Commonwealth of Massachusetts.

Norfolk, ss. Probate Court.

On the foregoing petition, it is ordered that the petitioners notify the next of kin of said Anna L. Lawson to appear at a Probate Court to be held at Quincy in said County of Norfolk, on the fourteenth day of May A. D. 1913, at nine o'clock, in the forenoon, to show cause, if any they have, why the same should not be granted, by serving them with a copy of said petition and this order seven days before said Court, or if they be not found within this Commonwealth, by publishing the same once in each week, for three successive weeks, in the Quincy Daily Ledger a newspaper published in said Quincy, the last publication to be seven days at least before said Court.

Witness, James H. Flint, Esquire, Judge of said Court, this eighth day of April in the year one thousand nine hundred and thirteen.

Colonel TODHUNTER of Missouri

By RIPLEY D. SAUNDERS

Copyright, 1911, by the Bobbs-Merrill Company.

I went to a cabin across the road, just a few yards down from the Doggetts' gate, to see Aunt Mirandy Ransom, an old colored woman who lived there."

"What was your reason for wanting to see Miranda Ransom that time, Colonel Todhunter?"

"I wanted to engage her to keep a close watch on the girl, Lottie-May Doggett, suh. I did not believe that Tom Strickland killed Stamford Tucker, nor did I believe that he was guilty of wrongin' Lottie-May. He himself had told me that the girl confessed to him that Stamford Tucker had been makin' love to her secretly. I felt sure in my own mind that Stamford Tucker had been killed for wrongin' Lottie-May Doggett, and this would mean that he was killed by some man who loved Lottie-May and knew that Stamford Tucker had wronged her or that the girl herself had killed him. I wanted somebody to watch that house, and I knew I could depend on Aunt Mirandy Ransom better'n on anybody else."

"Did you see this woman, Miranda Ransom, sir?"

"I did, suh. She promised to keep a close watch on the girl and on the house, and she kept her word. It was through her that I learned the news that sent me away to Ralls county lookin' for Chickasaw Jesse Bream and Lottie-May Doggett, suh."

"Do you mean that she learned of their flight, Colonel Todhunter?"

"Yes, suh. She crep' up close enough to overhear what they was a-sayin' when they met in that clump o' trees between the Doggett house and the Ransoms' cabin, suh. She heard all that went on between 'em, suh. She was waitin' for me when I got home from Colonel Bill Strickland's the night before this trial began, and she told me the whole story."

"What did you do then, Colonel Todhunter?"

"There wasn't but one thing to be done, suh, if Chickasaw Jesse was to be caught and Tom Strickland saved from bein' found guilty of murderin' Stam Tucker. That one thing was to follow Jesse Bream and Lottie-May Doggett without losin' a minute's time and arrest him befo' he got out o' the state, suh."

The witness then confirmed in detail that part of the girl's testimony relating to the capture of Jesse Bream.

"Did this man, Jesse Bream, make a confession of his guilt as being the murderer of Stamford Tucker?"

"Yes, suh. And, furthermore, under oath, he told a mighty strange story of a happenin' that in itself might ha' hung Tom Strickland."

There was a quick stir of heightened dramatic expectancy in the courtroom. Major Gentry Dryden paused until it had subsided.

"What was that strange story, Colonel Todhunter," he asked, "which, as you have just testified, the man Jesse Bream told you and the sheriff of Ralls county under oath?"

"He told me, suh, that Tom Strickland himself appeared on the scene of the murder almost the next moment. 'As I hollered to Stam Tucker, cussin' him and tellin' him that I was a-goin' to kill him for havin' wronged Lottie-May,' said Chickasaw Jesse Bream, 'Stam Tucker drew his gun and fired just the minit I fired. My shot got him, but his didn't tech me. When I saw that he was a-layin' still I ran up to his body, looked down and saw that I had plunked him through the head, right between the eyes, and that he was stone dead. Then I turned and started to run down the road to'ards the town of Nineveh.

"'I hadn't gone any ways hardly when a man came to'ards me on that road. When he saw me he laughed, and the next minit he outs with his gun and fires at me. I was skeered, 'cause I didn't want to be recognized, and I turns and runs straight through the woods, lookin' back once or twice. And that man came to the edge of the woods, and I heard him laugh and then mutter like he was drunk and talkin' to himself, and then he deliberately turned back on the Black Bottoms road and went to'ards town.'"

"Did Jesse Bream tell you and the sheriff of Ralls county, Colonel Todhunter, that he recognized the man whom he thus met after having killed Stamford Tucker?"

"He did, suh."

"What was that man's name?"

"It was Thomas W. Strickland, suh Chickasaw Jesse Bream swears that he saw him plainly, and he takes his oath that it was Tom Strickland."

"Did Jesse Bream tell you what he did after that encounter?"

"Yes, suh. He says that he lay out in the woods for about an hour and that then he went back on the road and came into town and the next day he went to Oklahoma, not gettin' back here to Nineveh until the day before the trial began, suh."

There was a momentary pause.

"Colonel Todhunter," resumed Major Dryden quietly, "Is there any record of this confession?"

"Yes, suh. The confession is written, sworn to and signed by Jesse Bream. It is attested by two competent witnesses. It is in the possession of the sheriff of Ralls county. And the sheriff of Ralls county has just delivered the person of Jesse Bream to the jail authorities here in Nineveh, suh, chargin' him, on his own confession, with the murder of Stamford Tucker."

"May it please the court," said Major Dryden, "the defense will next place in evidence this sworn confession of Jesse Bream and ask that the case against Thomas W. Strickland, charged with the murder of Stamford Tucker, be dismissed."

There was a sudden and tensely dramatic stir through the crowded court-

"What are they a-goin' to do to my girl?"

And twenty minutes later Thomas W. Strickland stood a free man, cleared of the dreadful crime that had been laid to his doing.

But Colonel Todhunter was not among those who first crowded around Tom Strickland with their congratulations. He went instead to where he had seen old Rafe Doggett almost furtively join Lottie-May, sitting apart within the railed inclosure after having given his testimony. Alike upon the faces of the old man and his grand daughter there rested an expression of pathetic dread.

"What air they a-goin' to do to my girl, Colonel Todhunter?" asked old Doggett piteously. "'Tain't all her fault that she done what she done, keepin' her mouth shet about Chickasaw Jesse and then runnin' away with him. She wanted to tell all she knowed, but she was a-skeered for her life, Colonel Todhunter. I ain't excusin her none for her own badness, God knows, but the law ain't got no call to punish her along o' Chickasaw Jesse's sin!"

"The law ain't goin' to punish her, Rafe," replied Colonel Todhunter. "I've already made sure just how Lottie-May stands. She'd ha' been an accomplice o' Chickasaw Jesse's for not comin' here at first and tellin' what she knew if the truth wasn't plain now that she didn't tell because Chickasaw Jesse threatened to kill her if she did. And her wantin' to testify in Tom Strickland's behalf and doin' it like she did proves that she was innocent just the minute she was a free agent. I've laid all these facts before the court, Rafe. The law ain't goin' to punish Lottie-May."

KEEP THE KIDNEYS WELL

Many Quincy people take their lives in their hands by neglecting the kidneys when they know these organs need help. Weak kidneys are responsible for a vast amount of suffering and ill health, but there is no need to suffer nor to remain in danger. Use Doan's Kidney Pills—a remedy that has helped thousands of kidney sufferers.

Richard Smith, S. Central Ave., Wollaston, Mass., says: "I suffered from kidney trouble for a long time. My back was so lame and painful that I could hardly get around in the morning. All through the day I had a dull heavy ache across my loins. The contents of two boxes of Doan's Kidney Pills fixed me up alright. I now have no trouble from my back."

MOVING DAY.

The office of the Quincy Mutual Insurance Co., at Coddington and Washington street will be moved from there to the rear of the Faxon dwelling on the opposite corner, close by the boundary line of the land on which the court house is erected.

The property on which it has set for years was recently purchased by the city for $6300, after considerable agitation. For a long time people made every effort to change the building from the present site because it marred the beauty of the grounds of the Thomas Crane Public Library.

The building will set on land owned by Mr. Faxon and its location will be temporary. It is understood that the company contemplates the erection of a spacious building and will occupy its present structure until that time.

Coddington street will be widened at this point and a dangerous corner eliminated. The pine trees will be cut down and Saturday it was learned that their original purpose was to hide the entrance to a stable and not add to the landscape.

BRIEFS

M. Lizzie Furnald, will give a whist party in Protection hall on Thursday afternoon at 2.

Edward McCall of Granite street is the owner of a fine Boston bull dog and "Ed" says no one can beat it.

An ornamental fence is being built between the new court building and the Coddington school.

The automobile of the Street department has just come from the paint shop and looks as good as new.

The opening games in the Grammar school base ball league are being played this afternoon.

Mayor Stone is still confined to his house with a severe cold, and will probably be unable to attend the meeting of the Council tonight.

Souvenier postals are being received by the many friends of Mrs. W. P. Hill, formerly of Atlantic, who has recently moved to Berlin N. H.

Members of George L. Gill Rebekah lodge will attend the 25th anniversary of Golden Star lodge of Randolph on Friday evening, leaving City Square by special car at 6.15.

Edward J. Murphy and family returned Sunday from a three weeks' trip to Atlantic City. Mr. Murphy gives every indication of having been benefited by the trip.

Maria C. Josselyn, sister of Robert Josselyn, died Sunday evening at her home, 723 Hancock street, in her 79th year. She was well known in Wollaston.

Jane Beveridge, wife of William Beveridge, long time resident of Atlantic, died at her home, 61 Old Colony street, Sunday afternoon in her 71st year. She was well known in Atlantic.

Dorothy Quincy lodge of the Golden Cross will initiate several candidates on Wednesday evening in Electa hall, and will have as special guest, the grand keeper of records, and members from Boston, Cambridge and Dorchester.

Mrs. Matilda Nord died Sunday at her home, 47 Arthur street, aged 56 years. She was born in Sweden and came here a few years ago. She leaves a husband, Peter N. Nord. The funeral will take place Tuesday afternoon. Interment will be in Mt. Wollaston cemetery.

The next society event will be a dramatization in dancing of the "Legend of "Proserpina," to be given June 14 on Mrs. Henry M. Faxon's beautiful lawn. Many Wellesley girls are to take part in the dance, and it is expected it will be a fine reproduction of the Wellesley Free Day dancing.

DISTRICT COURT.

Patrick Danahey was fined $5, William J. Dunn $10, John Gilhooley, $5, John Manning $15, Michael Ahern $5, for drunkenness at Quincy. John Kenney $10, James McCormick $10, and Michael Flannagan $5 for drunkenness at Braintree.

Josiah Emery was sentenced to three months in the house of correction for the larceny of a watch from Cora Dyer at Braintree.

ENTHUSIASTIC AT PANAMA.

A grand reception was accorded the Boston Chamber of Commerce party taking the South American trip and of which Col. Henry L. Kincaide of Quincy is president, when they arrived at Colon, Panama, Saturday morning. Delegations of merchants and progressive townsmen met them at the pier. An inspection of the Canal zone was made and in the afternoon they were tendered a monster reception by the city government. President Porras personally directed a grand reception in the evening, at which Mayor Fitzgerald of Boston was one of the speakers . The party were also the guests of the American legation. The personel of the party included Fred B. Rice, Charles E. Haskins and William B. Nichols of this city.

COMMISSIONER REFUSES TO TELL

Why Gypsy Moth Bill of $1200 Has Been Held Up Since July

City Council Refuses to Suspend Rules on Liquor Permits

The only discordant note at Monday nights meeting of the City Council came during the latter part of the evening when Commissioner Tupper absolutely refused to disclose the name of the official who had advised him to hold up a bill of $1200 for Gypsy Moth work, which he had in his possession since last July.

Councilman Cunningham taking advantage of the provision in the City Charter declared that the importance of the case demanded an immediate answer, and the Council so voted, but still the Commissioner refused to give the name. It was then announced that the question would be put in the question book.

Four applications for permits to transport liquor were received but the Council refused to suspend the rules.

The absent members were Councilmen Boyd and Johnson.

APPOINTMENTS.

Communications were received from the Mayor as follows:—

Appointing John J. Jacobs a constable. Confirmed.

Appointing Joseph Barry a public weigher. Confirmed.

HAWKERS AND PEDDLERS

The Mayor forwarded a communication from the Board of Health asking that the ordinance concerning Hawkers and Peddlers be amended so as to provide that all hawkers and peddlers shall first obtain a license, the fee for a non-resident to be $5 and for a resident $1.

Referred to committee of ordinances.

BILL FOR TUITION.

A communication was received from the City Auditor stating that bills to the amount of $42.26 had been presented for tuition in the evening schools of Boston. Laid on the table until later when Councilman Bailey offered an order transferring that amount from receipts from tuition. Adopted.

EXPRESS PERMITS.

Applications for permits to transport liquor were received from John Callahan, Frederick Evans, Joe Mercurio and Thomas F. Farrell. President Whiton ruled that under the rules they could not be received.

The President ruled that under the rules of the Council they could not be received. The first to be read was that of John Callahan, Councilman Duffy moved to suspend the rules. He said he did not care anything about the matter but in justice to these parties, and in the interest of a square deal, he believed they were as much entitled to a hearing as the three parties granted permits at the special meeting.

RUSSELL DAMON TO BE CADET

Given a Farewell Party By His Young Friends

A number of the young friends of Russell Damon from the Y. P. S. C. E. and Knights of King Arthur gave him a surprise party Saturday evening at his home 23 Edwards street. The party was in the nature of forewell as the young man sailed Monday as a cadet on the U. S. S. Ranger which is being used as a State nautical school. Master Russell is to take the two years' course. The vessel left Boston Monday for a ten days' cruise after which she will leave for a five month's cruise to foreign waters taking in Rome before they return.

There were about twenty of his friends in the party that gave him the farewell party and the evening was passed in an enjoyable manner with games and music. Refreshments were also served during the evening. Before the young people left they presented him with a handsome stick pin.

CIVIC PRIDE BOXES ALSO

Are Used by Some for the Deposit of Mail

The letter carriers report that quite a number of people are taking civic pride boxes placed on poles about City Square and other parts of the city for letter boxes and that when they are cleaned out it is not uncommon to find several letters that have been mailed in them.

What is to be done if people persist in using fire alarm boxes and rubbish boxes for letter boxes?

THREE ALARM BOSTON FIRE

Girls Have Narrow Escape at Wool Sorting Factory

Up to 1 o'clock this noon three alarms of fire had been sounded in Boston for a disastrous fire in the Prescott Wool Sorting building on Congress street near A street, South Boston. The fire started this noon while scores of girls were at their lunch on the upper floor. Many of these girls had narrow escapes in getting to the street and even now it is feared that some of the girls may have been caught and their escape cut off.

Two alarms were immediately sounded followed by a third alarm at 1 o'clock, and from the looks of the fire it is probably that a fourth alarm will be sounded. The building is a large structure stored full of wool and a dense smoke hovers over the whole section. The building is now surrounded by the fire apparatus and tons of water is being poured into the burning building.

NOT WANTED ANYWHERE

Objection to Insurance Building at Proposed Location

Considerable indignation is being expressed that the city is to allow the Insurance Company to move its building across Coddington street to the lot adjoining the Court House. It is claimed that the court building is one of the ornamental buildings of the city and that to move this old building adjoining it will not only obstruct the view but will also detract from the beauty of the neighborhood.

It is understood that a petition will be presented to Mayor Stone protesting against allowing the old building to be moved to the proposed site. The order for the purchase of the land included the building although it is understood that the Insurance company understood that they were to be allowed to retain the building. It is understood that the city has leased the building to the company for a nominal sum for a temporary office erected a new office building, and that until such time as they shall have permission was granted to move the building to the Faxon lot on Coddington street.

SAGAMORE CLUB DANCE.

A well attended dancing party was held in Alpha Hall Monday evening by the Sagamore Club. A large representation from Brockton were the special guests of the evening. The feature was an exhibition society two step by Joe Corella and Miss Ethel Vanderstreet, both of Brockton.

"Jerry" Moynihan, president of the club was floor director, with Walter Godett as the assistant. "Tom" Cotter was chief of aids and the aids were "Tid" Hogan, Paul Franzie, "Shorty" Rose, "Joe" Corella, all of Quincy, and Sidney Williams, "Jim" Lincoln, "Art" Walsh and Percy Burke of Brockton. Music was by Moore's orchestra.

DECREE FAVORED BY A MAJORITY

Final Grade Crossing Hearing Before the Railroad Commissioners

Presidents Hill People Appear in Favor

A large number of interested citizens appeared at the hearing given by the Board of Railroad Commissioners at their office Monday afternoon to thrash out the reasons why the board should or should not approve of the plans submitted by the Special Commission for the abolition of grade crossings at the Quincy and Quincy Adams stations. The hearing was mild in tone and lacked all the excitement attendant to other hearings, although practically the same people appeared.

Chairman McLeod presided and his impartial and eminently fair conduct evidently soothed the feelings of those whose enthusiasm has soared to unknown heights in the past. He admitted all that could be offered in the time the commissioners sat, in the form of arguments, insisted that joint debates, etc., be eliminated, allowed the cross examination of what he termed witness with technical minds, and closed the hearing by stating that written arguments tendered the board would be fully considered.

A vote taken showed that 23 favored the decree of the special commission and that 14 present opposed.

The parties favoring the decree were Herbert T. Whitman, John Q. A. Field, Albert H. Wright, Clarence Burgin, George E. Pfaffmann, Nathan Ames, Henry M. Faxon (who said he also represented Herbert E. Lawton and William R. Bateman,) and Paul R. Blackmur who conducted the case for the railroad and who also said he represented Mrs. Susan G. Lane and Mrs. Dexter Wadsworth.

The opposition was presented by Councilman John R. Richards of the Council committee, John L. Hamilton of the Board of Trade who handed a petition with names reaching 843 for depression and 14 for elevation, Gustave B. Bates, John W. McAnarney, and Prof. Breed of the Massachusetts Institute of Technology, who was employed by the city as an expert.

The proponents of the decree gave elaborate arguments urging the Board to certify to the decree. The opposition also presented strong arguments which, stripped of generalities, were "Whether this plan conserves and protects the public in reference to the essential feature of the case, the closing of Saville street, and whether in extending Upland road through to Granite street a substitute is afforded as valuable as the loss of the street. They further maintained that the building of a subway was a necessity under the plans of the railroad and that while it would be open to the public at all time that would not warrant the public use of it.

HERBERT T. WHITMAN.

The first speaker in favor of the decree was Herbert T. Whitman, representing himself and the Adams Temple and School Fund. Was opposed to depression. He felt the extension of Upland road a public necessity, ample for the station grounds and assured an increase in land values on the westerly side of the track. It will be an unnecssary hardship to go down into a ditch to board trains. Depression will greatly damage the surroundings, change Granite street on which is situated valuable property and buisness interests. The Water street plan is very much better than any one provided.

Gus Bates requested the privilege of asking questions, but Chairman McLeod said the hearing was for a presentation of argument and the board did not feel that witnesses should be subjected to interrogation. We can perhaps take exception because the witness is an expert. Mr. Bates then propounded to Mr. Whitman the following:

Q.—Were interested, directly or indirectly, in the plans submitted by the present commission?

A.—No, sir.

Q.—Are not the business interest of the Adams Trust on the easterly side?

A.—I so stated.

Q.—Have you not disposed of your property, and that of others interested, on Upland road, where you now propose to close the street?

A.—I developed much of the property in that section and afterward disposed of it.

Q.—Within two years?

A.—Within three years.

JOHN Q. A. FIELD.

John Q. A. Field said that he had been in the teaming business for years. He thought the decree plans the best. He said Water and Granite streets can accommodate heavy loads and the proposed grade of School

The Adams Market

Opened for Business This Morning

Its Appearance is inviting -- It's a pleasant and comfortable place to trade. The first duty of the sales-people is to be courteous and obliging, and to assist in every possible way.

It is a Modern Store. We will not travel in a rut, or to tolerate old-fashioned ideas. It takes more attention and energy and hard work to lead than to follow, but keeping in the lead will bring us an enormous volume of business.

The success of our Water street store was built on the satisfaction given our customers, and we know the only way we can make the Adams Market a success is to continue to give good service, complete satisfaction and better goods than anyone else. We refuse to sell any goods about which there is the slightest question or doubt. The Foy quality will be Sterling standard.

Straightforward dealing, high quality, real economy, satisfaction guaranteed—that's the plan and platform of this store. Our business is our pleasure, and our pleasure is to satisfy our customers.

Come in, look our store over, note the high standard of our Groceries, Meats, Canned Goods, Teas, Coffees, Fruits, Vegetables, etc., then you will know you can depend upon this store for high quality.

MEMORIAL DAY EXERCISES.

Under proper conditions Grand Army services on Memorial Day should be held about the Soldiers' Monument erected to those who died at the front in the service of their country during the Civil War. But the location of Quincy's Soldiers' Monument is not an ideal one. It is upon a small lot in a cemetery and there are many private graves in the vicinity which are always trampled upon and desecrated.

Crowds always accompany the veterans to Mt. Wollaston cemetery but only a few hear the order of services. It is remarkable that the interest has continued under these circumstances.

Then it is a long march now for the veterans, and in event of rain, which often comes on Memorial Day, there is no shelter.

In many ways the Adams Academy grounds which are to be used this year for the Memorial Day exercises are well adapted for the purpose. They are centrally located upon our main street, and will accommodate thousands of people. It is an historic spot, the residence of patriots of Revolutionary times. Rev. John Hancock, lived there, and his son John Hancock, the bold signer of the Declaration of Independence, was born there. Year ago, before the Academy was erected it was almost a park or town lot, being used for many public gatherings held out of doors. Perhaps in a few years the Academy building will become a Memorial Hall, and the Soldiers' Monument located on the grounds. Another good site for the monument would be in a triangle which will soon be possible at the junction of Washington and Coddington street.

Late news from Dayton and other Ohio cities which suffered from the flood are very cheering, and many throughout the country are happy that they might be of some assistance to the people. The factories are busy with rush orders, the merchants report business good, and labor is in demand at good wages.

We shall not despair of the country however until the President appears before congress to recite "Curfew shall not ring tonight," or "The face on the Barroom floor."

Perhaps congress intends to enforce the distribution of sweetness and light to consumers, the sugar growers to furnish the sweetness and the standard Oil Company the light.

"We are kept busy," says Worth, the man milliner "creating to meet the demand of the American women." Same here Mr. Worth, same here!

At the rate at which flocks are being killed off by the croakers on account of the free wool bill spring lamb should be cheap this year.

Have they put congress on Benches so schoolmaster Wilson will feel at home?

The trouble with New York's "curfew" law is that it hits too few of its curs.

DRIFT OF OPINION.

The Massachusetts house of representatives has passed to be engrossed a bill that prohibits the sale of ice cream that does not contain at least five per cent of butter fats. Now what is needed is another law compelling a dealer to keep his cans and dishes clean and fining him or his help if they "lap off" the spoon used in dishing up the cream for customers or wash it off in dirty, filthy water.—Dedham Transcript.

MILLIONS HAVE BEEN WASTED

$22,000,000 Loss by New Haven Road on Watered Capital

NEW FACTS ARE BROUGHT OUT

Washington, May 6.—That the New Haven railroad has lost during the decade 1900 to 1910, $24,0000,000 through its issue of security for cash; that, through its methods of floating stock it has lost the use of $17,000,000 worth of capital during the period from 1889-1911; and that the interests and dividend charges upon watered capitalization have already amounted to about $22,000,000, and continue to drain the resources of the company, are some of the conclusions drawn from an examination of the reports of this company on file at the interstate commerce commission's offices in Washington.

A review of these facts, pending closing arguments of the inquiry here on Wednesday, is interesting as showing why it is that the commission has been going ahead on such seemingly secure ground.

In the course of the recent sessions in Boston relative to the financial history of the New Haven, chief emphasis was placed upon the losses that had resulted to this property through exchange of its own securities for those of other properties, which it had absorbed in recent years.

But the phase of the situation dealing with the bonuses to stockholders and underwriting syndicates is no less important, for by various means the system has apparently lost the use of immense amounts of capital upon which interest payments have to be met at the present time from operating revenues.

During the past ten years, for instance, as the analysis of the figures shows, the New Haven has issued new capital stock to the par value of $88,977,325. Of this amount, $32,000,000 in round figures was issued for cash. The market value of these securities was in round numbers $54,000,000, but through granting the privilege to stockholders to subscribe for these issues at par, or through commissions to underwriting syndicates the New Haven, it is reckoned, received only $45,000,000 in cash proceeds. The loss to the company, therefore, was aprpoximately $9,000,000.

During the same period $15,000,000, the calculation shows, was lost through the issue of debentures, or, in other words, an estimated total of $24,000,000 was lost through the issue of securities for cash during the decade 1900-1910.

During the period 1889-1911, it is shown by an examination of the records, capital stock to the par value of $71,000,000 was issued for cash by the New Haven. Had the company received the full market value of these securities, it would only have been necessary to have issued $54,000,000 in order to obtain the cash proceeds which it derived from the issue of $71,000,000; or, in other words, the company through its methods of floating stock apparently lost the use of $17,000,000 worth of capital. On this amount dividends have been paid up to date amounting to more than $14,000,000.

Considering the funded debt and the stock issues of the New Haven together, it is found that the bonuses granted to stockholders or to underwriting syndicates have amounted to about $36,000,000. The interest and dividend charges which have been paid on this watered capitalization have already, according to reckoning, amounted to about $22,000,000.

AN ALLEGED MONOPOLY

Charges Against the New Haven Filed With Interstate Commission

Washington, May 6.—The Colonial Navigation company, which operates a line of steamships between Providence and New York, filed a complaint with the interstate commerce commission in an attempt to break up the alleged monopoly of the New Haven road on water traffic along the New England coast.

The company wants the right to carry passengers on the same basis that the New Haven road has. The suit is the direct outgrowth of disclosures made at the hearing in Boston before Commissioner Prouty, representing the interstate commerce commission, to which the Colonial line appeals for aid and protection.

This is the first assault upon the New Haven's water monopoly made by a marine company and the fight probably will be extended to include freight.

Fall River Mills to Close

Fall River, Mass., May 6.—Notice of a complete shutdown in the big Fall River Iron Works, owned by the M. C. D. Borden estate, has been posted in all seven of the mills. It is feared the 8000 employes of the corporation will be thrown out of work for an indefinite period.

DECREE FAVORED

street will not be as noticeable as far as teaming is concerned and there are heavier grades within a stones throw. A plan I submitted five years ago was practically the same as the decree. The track grade to Braintree is now almost excessive and many trains are stalled. I do not believe in depression. The number of fires from trains convinces me of the ruinous depression proposition. The decree is valuable for all, even the surrounding cities and towns.

ALBERT H. WRIGHT.

Albert H. Wright the architect, said, we have developed a project for several buildings and improvements which are now pending the disposition of grade crossings. We are anxious to get down to business and do the work. No better plans could be submitted. A bridge across Saville street would obstruct the whole proposition.

CLARENCE BURGIN. .....

Clarence Burgin of the Quincy Savings Bank favored the decree and said Dimmock street is a ten per cent grade and School street will be a seven per cent. Upland road extension will be a benefit and the erection of a station on the westerly side of the track will give fine facilities. A 60 foot street at Water street is adequate for public demands. I oppose depression. Personally, it would benefit my property, but I favor the plans of the special commission.

GEORGE E. PFAFFMANN.

George E. Pfaffmann said the plans overcome all the physical difficulties and as owner of a horse and living on Goffe street, the elimination of Saville street would not effect me. The people residing on Goffe street heartily approve the plans.

NATHAN AMES.

Nathan Ames said a raise in Granite street would injure his business interests and others located on the street.

HENRY M. FAXON.

Henry M. Faxon said he represented property values reaching $300,000 that would be immediately affected by the change. He heartily favored the plans recommended by a commission composed of able and distinguished men who after six years of deliberation have submitted the plans. The delay has been a serious burden to people having property affected and I ask for a speedy approval because present development is retarded.

STREET RAILWAY MAN.

Mr. Burdett of the Street Railway interests said the different schemes proposed differed so radically that it took time to properly digest them. One or two were proposed which contained objectionable features to street railways. One of them was the depression plan. The present plan is the outcome of the wisdom of the experience in the case. Every one had a shot at it. We can truly say we represent the travelling public and we feel it would be a great mistake in not approving the plans which are the result of the discussion.

THE OPPOSITION.

The opposition opened with John R. Richards reading the order adopted by the City Council, April 2 in opposition to the decree. After a full explanation of the order he concluded by saying Water street will be worse and School street will be out of reason.

PRESIDENT HAMILTON.

John L. Hamilton presented his 813 names in favor of depression and 14 for elevation to Chairman McLeod. He glanced at the heading of the petition and attentively listened to the story of how the signatures were voluntary on the part of the citizens. He said the board was taking a fair attitude and that he could not too strongly impress on the commissioners that the citizens of Quincy demand that the decree of the special commission does not prevail.

Chairman McLeod asked President Hamilton if he thought the sentiment of the people he represented objected to another five or six years wait until another plan was procured and he answered no.

G. B. BATES.

Gus Bates said Quincy had tolerated conditions for 65 years which were the result of the railroad extension. He said the closing of streets were not necessary to the separations of grades and that depression. While saving the streets we now have, would always leave the opportunity of throwing open another street across the tracks. The contour of the city as it was will be brought about and the eight inches in 100 feet grade of the track is not prohibitive in railroad circles.

CITY SOLICITOR McANARNEY.

John W. McAnarney spoke as city solicitor. He said it was the contention of the city that the adoption of the plans will not be consistent with public interest and bases its report on two features filed. We believe that when crossings are abolished that an adequate substitute should be provided and when it is not so we believe it is not consistent. This report closes Saville street and does not provide a reasonable substitute. The city has earnestly and consistently urged its right to have a thoroughfare laid out along an open way and we now demand a suitable provision. Dimmock street has a prohibitive grade and will not permit of general travel.

Saville street will be closed and 1500 feet of travel will be necessary to reach the spot just across the street. The question is not to be solved by the men who reside on the westerly side of the track. I submit the question should be viewed from the standpoint of the rights of the property itself lying east and in that large growing area, all have a right to have a voice in the proposition and their opinion should be as strong as the opinions of those who live on the west of the track.

The extension of Upland road is not an adequate substitute, and travel will be compelled to pass under a bridge with an overhead of 11 to 12 feet.

The question is not whether the tracks should be depressed or elevated but whether this plan serves and protects the public in reference to the essential features of the case. Saville street is closed. As a point of law the extensions of Upland road cannot be presented.

The subway is nothing more or less than a simple railroad improvement that they would be compelled to build because of the stress of the situation and the commissioners should not throw that in the scales. It will serve for railroad purposes but not for commercial purposes. The mere fact of it being open to the public does not warrant the public use of it.

Another objection is School street disposition. It is one of three outlets of a large area. The grade will be high and general travel will go Water street where there will be a bridge with a 14-foot headway. I regret the weather did not permit of a view of the westerly party of the city when they visited Quincy so they could realize the effect.

He gave a history of the hearings and said if there is not to be a general scheme of depression adopted then I believe the Water street solution is as feasible as can be made when it is so modified as to cure the condition of things at School street.

PROF. BREED.

Prof. Breed gave a technical explanation of various modifications, spoke of a highway across the meadow of Town brook. He said the city's interests could be guarded by a further elevation of the track grade and the running of another street.

In answer to a question from Chairman McLeod he said there was no question but the grade of the decree plan as School street is militant to general travel, at least as far as horse drawn vehicles go.

He said he made five plans, had submitted two to the special commission and said the closing of Saville street was not an adequate substitute for the elimiation of what the people now enjoy. He brought out the fact that the present overhead of the Granite street bridge with no provision for changing it mentioned in the decree, was the lowest in the state. He argued at length against the decree plans.

Chairman McLeod, in order to reach his home Monday night was obliged to adjourn the hearing but said he would accept written arguments and that they would be considered.

The Parents and Teachers association of the Washington school will hold their next meeting Wednesday evening at 8 o'clock. Entertainment, reports of committee on school hall, remarks by members, social, ligh refreshments will be served.

MR. SCHWAB AT SHIPYARD

Making an Inspection of the New Purchase

Charles M. Schwab, president of the Bethlehem Steel Co., the recent purchasers of the Fore River shipyard, is making an official visit to the plant today. President Schwab arrived on the 9.10 train from Boston and was met at the Quincy depot by the Fore River automobile. He spent the greater part of the day in looking over the yard in company with President Bowles. He gave out nothing for publication on his visit simply saying that he was looking over the plant.

BIRTHDAY PARTY.

One of the most enjoyable parties of the season was held Monday evening at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Frank J. Wade, 489 South street, Quincy Point, the occasion being the seventh anniversary of the birth of their daughter Mae Wade. There were assembled about two score of her little friends and acquaintances. Supper, consisting of chicken salad, ice cream, cake and fruit was served to the little ones after which each received a favor in the form of a May basket, filled with chocolates and bon bons. After the children departed refreshments were served to the older guests .Music both vocal and instrumental was enjoyed until a late hour.

Among those present were:

Says American Suffragists Will Not Adopt Militant Methods

NOT WANTED IN AMERICA

Mrs. Catt Opposes Mrs. Belmont's Proposed Militant Methods

London, May 6.—There is little likelihood that the American suffragettes will adopt the militant methods which Mrs. O. H. P. Belmont threatens to introduce on her return to New York. This was the opinion given by Mrs. Carrie C. Catt, president of the International League of Woman Suffragists, at the reception in her honor under the auspices of the Women's Freedom league.

Mrs. Catt said she did not see how the American suffragettes could adopt militancy unless they were prepared to make war on the majority of American men, which was most unlikely.

"Your movement," she added, "resembles a battle; ours a process of evolution. Yours is picturesque and very tragic; ours is commonplace but sure."

RESIGNATIONS OF CABINET ACCEPTED

Nicholas Adheres to His Decision to Give Up Scutari

Cettinje, May 6.—King Nicholas has accepted the resignations of his cabinet, who quit their portfolios because of the king's decision to evacuate Scutari.

When the monarch announced his decision at a formal crown council, that he deemed it expedient for Montenegro to give way to the will of the powers, his ministers opposed his view.

The decision of the king has greatly clarified the war situation in Europe, because it is generally believed parliament will stand behind him.

London, May 6.—King Nicholas of Montenegro cabled the British government that he is prepared to evacuate Scutari and leave the disposal of the captured city to the powers. Premier Asquith announced the receipt of the telegram in the house of commons.

TWO RIOT CALLS SOUNDED

Red Pepper Blinds Police In Fight With Mob In Philadelphia

Philadelphia, May 6.—More than 500 men and women, armed with stones and clubs and brandishing boxes filled with red pepper, gave battle to the police near Reed street wharf, and were not dispersed until two riot calls had been sent in to city hall.

Ten of the disturbers, including six women, were taken into custody. Two policemen were nearly blinded with red pepper, while one of the male rioters was badly beaten up.

The trouble began when pickets attempted to interview two strikebreakers at the Spreckels sugar refinery, where the men went out on strike, demanding more wages and better working conditions.

FOUL PLAY SUSPECTED

Man Supposed to Have Been Choked to Death During Quarrel

Fitchburg, Mass., May 6.—After an autopsy that was held over the body of Tony Nelius, who was found dead on the sidewalk on Shaker road, in Shirley, yesterday, Dr. Lilly, who assisted in the autopsy, said he believed it was a case of foul play.

It is believed Nelius had some trouble with friends while drinking with them and that there was a quarrel and the man was killed by being choked to death.

THIRTY DAYS FOR GOMPERS

Fine of $500 Each Imposed Upon Morrison and Mitchell

FORMER SENTENCE EXCESSIVE

Decision of Court of Appeals In Contempt Case Growing Out of Federation of Labor's Contest With Bucks Company—Defendants Had Won Contention In Supreme Court

Washington, May 6.—Sustaining the contempt charges against American Federation of Labor leaders, the district court of appeals held that President Gompers should serve thirty days in jail, and that Vice President Mitchell and Secretary Morrison should pay $500 fines.

This is the second time that Gompers, Mitchell and Morrison have been adjudged guilty of contempt of Justice Wright of the district supreme court, in the long-standing litigation between the Federation of Labor and the Bucks Stove and Range company. Wright held that the labor leaders had violated his injunction restraining them from printing in the "We Don't Patronize" list in the official organ of the Federation the name of the Bucks company.

The defendants carried their case to the supreme court of the United States, which decided in their favor but held that renewed contempt proceedings might be prosecuted by Wright under certain conditions. The judge shortly afterwards appointed a "committee of prosecutors," who formulated renewed contempt charges and pressed them in court.

The first sentences imposed by Wright were a year, nine months and six months, respectively, on Gompers, Mitchell and Morrison. Justice Van Orsdel of the court of appeals held these sentences unduly excessive. In modifying them, he prescribed jail for only Gompers, ordering the labor leader to be confined for thirty days in jail. Associate Justice Robb concurred in Van Orsdel's opinion, but Chief Justice Shepard dissented, holding that the whole proceedings should be reversed.

"Had the court below imposed penalties not greatly in excess of those which we now deem adequate we would not feel justified in holding that there had been an abuse of discretion," Van Orsdel said in his opinion.

"No one, however, can read this record without being convinced that the respondent, Gompers, has been the chief factor in this contempt, hence a severer punishment is merited in his case than in the case of the other respondents.

"Since the only error in the record relates to the excessive punishment imposed, justice requires, and it is so ordered, that the judgment be reversed and the cause remanded with instructions to the court below to enter orders in proper form adjudging the respondents, Samuel Gompers, John Mitchell and Frank Morrison, guilty of contempt of court."

Chief Justice Shepard held that the criminal contempt charged is "an offence against the United States" and is therefore subject to the bar of the statute of limitations. On his contention he urged reversal of the entire judgment of the lower court.

The majority opinion did not spare words, although it veiled its meaning in legal terms concerning the "undue severity" of Wright's sentences.

"However," the opinion continued, "to permit respondents to escape punishment would be a travesty upon justice. But we think that inasmuch as the extreme punishment such as could be imposed against respondents in a criminal prosecution * * * would be limited to a fine of $500 or imprisonment for three months, or both, the penalty imposed is so unreasonable as to demand modification."

SLAUGHTER IN MEXICO

Fifteen Hundred Killed In Fights During the Past Week

Washington, May 6.—Reports from Mexico City estimate that from 1200 to 1500 lives have been lost in engagements outside of Sonora during the past week.

The reports confirmed the blowing up of a railroad train by Zapatistas at Nepantla, when 150 persons were killed.

tt is said the federal forces have driven Zapata from his stronghold at Chinameca and are pressing him hard.

Matehula, recently under siege, is again isolated and Americans have been advised by their employers to leave, as anti-American feeling runs high.

CITY COUNCIL

Councilman Richards spoke at length against the suspension of the rules. The liquor transportation business was a good one and he did not blame men for seeking a permit but it was time we began to live up to the rules of the Council. If he had been present at the special meeting he would have voted against the men granted permits. We are supposed to carry out the will of the people and the people voted against license. We should consider the women and boys who are the ones to suffer. He knew of expressmen that transported beer to clubs of boys in the city.

President Whiton asked the City Solicitor if the Council could grant permits at this time, Councilmen Cunningham raised the point of order that we were not discussing the legal point at this time.

President Whiton promptly replied that the point was not well taken; that the chair had a right to ask questions for information.

City Solicitor McAnarney then replied that under the law permits could not be granted other than during the month of April.

The suspension of the rules was then refused.

No attempt was made to suspend the rules on the applications of Joe Mercurio and Thomas Farrell, but an attempt was made on the application of Frederick Evans.

Councilman Cunningham argued that in spite of the ruling of the City Solicitor that last year the Council had granted a permit to the Houghs Neck Steamboat Company in July, and that the Mayor had signed the order. These men who have applied tonight are no more guilty of violating the rules of the Council than those granted at the special meeting.

Councilman Richards opposed. The transportation of liquor was a good business. He understood that in addition to the amount received for transportation that expressmen received a commission.

On a rising vote reconsideration was refused by vote of 7 yes and 10 no.

OTHER PETITIONS.

A large number of applications for minor licenses were received and referred to the License committee.

A petition of the Electric Light Co. for a location for poles on West Squantum street was referred to the Committee on Streets.

Councilman Cunningham presented a petition that a part of the appropriation for Billings street be expended on the westerly end of the street. Referred to the Committee on Streets.

Councilman Cunningham presented a petition for the abatement of the nuisance between Sagamore street and Billings road, Referred to the Executive.

The Committee on Public Buildings reported no legislation necessary on the communication from the Mayor relative to the nuisance of Teel pond. Accepted.

WASHINGTON SCHOOL HALL.

The Committee on Public Buildings reported a resolve requesting the Mayor to have the Commissioner of Public Works look into the matter of a hall in the Washington school building and report to the Council as to the feasibility and cost of the same. Adopted.

The Committee on Licenses reported an order for a public hearing, May 19, on the application of H. W. Kolstead to keep and sell gasoline. Adopted.

The Committee on Licenses reported a large number of orders granting common victualler, Sunday fruit, and pool table licenses. Adopted.

MILK ORDINANCE.

The Committee on Ordinance as per request of the Board of Health reported an order revoking the Milk ordinance, as the same conflicts with the state law and rules of the Board of Health. Referred to City Solicitor

CIGAR LICENSES.

The Committee on Ordinances reported an amendment to the ordinance concerning venders so as to include beverages and cigars in the articles not to be sold without a license. Order recommitted that the opinion of the City Solicitor might be had.

HALL PERMITS.

The Committee on Ordinances reported a substitute order for the order establishing an ordinance concerning public halls and buildings. The substitute order cuts out the words "card parties" in the form of entertainments to be held in public halls and buildings. It also cuts out the words "regular or special policeman" and substitutes the word "police officer." It also provides that concerts entertainments, etc., held for religious or charitable purposes, it shall be left to the Chief of Police whether an officer shall be in attendance. Ordered to a second reading.

Councilman Farquharson offered an order for $2700 to lower the water course at South Quincy between Quincy avenue and Ritchie road and to lower the water course at Atlantic between Hancock street and Faxon road. Referred to Committee on Sewers and Drains.

Councilman Corcoran offered an order for $25.50 to pay John Dinnigan, janitor of the Gridley Bryant school for labor performed. In support of his order Councilman Corcoran said that last fall some whitewashing was done at the building. That the Commissioner was to send up a woman to clean up the rooms, but did not, and as the time was getting late the janitor had hired a woman to do the work. Order referred to the Finance Committee.

Councilman Griffin offered an order for $325 for a tar sidewalk on Washington street near Chubbuck street. Referred to Committee on Streets.

SCHOOL TEACHERS.

Councilman Corcoran offered a resolution that the Superintendent of Schools be requested to appoint Quincy girls as school teachers and that they be given six months trial.

Councilman Ross and Ericson opposed and Councilmen Little and Duffy favored. The resultation was lost on a rising vote, 7 year and 12 no.

POLICE AUTOMOBILE.

Councilman Griffin offered an order for $1500 to purchase an automobile for the police department. Referred to the Finance Committee.

GYPSY MOTH BILL.

Councilman Barker offered an order for $1225.11 to pay bill of the Commonwealth for Gypsy Moth material.

In reply to questions the Commissioner said that this amount was in addition to the budget. It was one of last year's bills. He had asked the Council last fall for this amount but he had not been called before the committee. He thought that there were some balances of his appropriations to which it could be charged.

The City Auditor when called before the Council said that there was nothing to which the amount could be charged. In reply to further questions the Commissioner said that the work was done under the direction of the State and the bill was for material and had been presented last July. If the bill had been paid at that time work would have been stopped. The State said go ahead and they would wait. All work was done under the direction of the Gypsy Moth department of the State. He did not care to state who it was that advised him to hold back the bill.

On being pressed for an answer by Councilman Cunningham, the Commissioner said that it was not fair and he refused to answer.

Councilman Bryant, "I insist that the question shall be answered. It is better that it be answered here, as the Commissioner will be compelled to answer."

Councilman Cunningham moved the matter was of such importance that it should be answered tonight.

The President ruled the motion out of order.

An appeal was taken and the ruling of the chair was not sustained. Before the motion on the appeal was taken Councilman Cunningham read from Sec. 37 of the Charter, which provides that City Officials shall answer questions put in the question book. That if the question is of such importance an answer may be demanded at the meeting immediately.

Councilman Cunningham then renewed his motion which was rejected on a rising vote of 7 yes and 10 no.

Councilman Bryant sent down stairs for the question book but the City Clerk was not in his office.

Councilman Bryant then moved that the City Clerk be in his office or in attendance at meetings of the Council. Voted.

STORAGE OF JUNK.

Councilman Griffin offered an amendment to the ordinance relative to storing junk providing that the penalty for violation should be $50. Referred to Committee on Ordinances.

Councilman Cunningham offered an order for three lights on Conant road. Referred to the Executive.

BUILDING ORDINANCE.

Councilman Cunningham at this point read a communication from the Inspector of Buildings requesting that the building ordinance be revised. Referred to the Committee on Ordinances.

Councilman Thompson offered an order for a gas light on Winthrop terrace Houghs Neck. Referred to the Executive.

NEW TURNOUTS.

The order granting the Street Railway Co. a location for two turnouts on the Houghs Neck line took its second reading and was passed.

The order granting the Street Railway company a relocation of tracks on Copeland street took its second reading and was passed.

The order appropriating $750 for the purchase of two lots of land near the City Stables for a public dump took its second reading and was passed.

Adjourned at 9.23 until May 19.

If the order introduced into the Council Monday night to purchase an automobile for the Police Department is passed, it is the intention to use the machine in transporting prisoners to Dedham jail. This will return to the city quite a revenue so that the car would soon pay for itself.

NEW ADAMS MARKET OPEN

Hundreds Inspected it at an Informal Opening

The handsome new store of R. E. Foy & Co. in the Adams building known as the Adams Market opened its doors for an inspection by the public Monday evening and hundreds of ladies and gentlemen took advantage of the opoprtunity to inspect this model store. It was certainly a handsome store, brilliantly lighted with three large arc gas lihts and numerous electric lights. On one of the counters was a large basket of handsome carnations, the gift of the Swift Beef Co., while on other counters were handsome bouquets of sweet peas, roses and carnations. There were also several large vases filled with carnations which were given the ladies who called to inspect the store. Mr. Foy was present in person all of the evening and received many congratulations and wishes of success.

All of the clerks appeared in white jackets and white aprons, all immaculate white, and they were very constant in their attention to the callers and took delight in showing them about the store, not forgetting the basement where everything looked as neat and clean as did the main store.

The front show windows were particularly attractive. One window was devoted entirely to the display of fancy crackers, while in the other window was a display of fruit and vegetables that made one's mouth water as they looked upon them. The fruit and vegetables were displayed in baskets and truly were very inviting.

In the store the counters looked equally at attractive, plainly marked dards giving the price of the various articles shown. The large refrigerator at the end of the store was lighted up and inside one could see great sides of beef, lamb and other meats. Near this refrigerator was a slicing machine which not only sliced bacon as thin as desired but took off the rind at the same time. It would also slice other meats such as dried beef and the like equally as well. Near this machine was a hamberger. That is a machine that choped pieces of meat into hamburg steak at a minute's notice.

Then there were coffee grinding machines and the like all operated by electricity, Computing scales, etc. In fact there seemed to be nothing lacking.

A tempting array of goods was displayed on all of the counters and it is no wonder that everybody was more than pleased with their visit.

So great was the number of visitors that it was nearly 10 o'clock before the doors could be closed.

The store opened for business bright and early this morning and during the morning hours there were many callers, among those who were unable to be present on the opening night. Business is brisk.

The Board of Helath has assigned five days in which they will collect ashes and rubbish , not including gravel and stones from Houghs Neck. The days are May 10 and 24, June 27 and Aug. 29. The days on which ashes and rubbish will be collected in other parts of the city will be found in their advertisement in this issue.

Mr. and Mrs. Carl E. Johnson of Putnam street are receiving congratulations upon the birth of a daughter born Monday.

Mr. and Mrs. Ronald S. MacDonald of Montreal, and the former's mother have been guests of Mr. and Mrs. Charles W. Smith of Nelson street. Mr. MacDonald is a printer and at one time worked at the Daily Ledger office.

There is more Catarrh in this section of the country than all other diseases put together, and until the last few years was supposed to be incurable. For a great many years doctors pronounced it a local disease and prescribed local remedies, and by constantly failing to cure local treatment, pronounced it incurable. Science has proven catarrh to be a constitutional disease and therefore requires constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, Ohio, is the only constitutional cure on the market. It is taken internally in doses from 10 drops to a teaspoonful. It acts directly on the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. They offer one hundred dollars for any case it fails to cure. Send for circulars and testimonials.

TREMENDOUS HANDICAP

Fore River Shipyard at a Disadvantage

The Boston News Bureau says:

The proposed passing control of the Fore River Shipbuilding Co. to the Bethlehem Steel Co. emphasizes a new tremendous handicap under which the Fore River Shipbuilding Company operated. As an independent manufacturing proposition, standing upon its own feet, the Fore River was unable to win financial success.

On the other hand, it should have a distinct value as a clog in the wheel of the Bethlehem system. Many investors will ruthfully recall it was just about nine years ago that the Fore River Ship and Engine Co. succumbed and re-organized at its present company with about $1,250,000 of new capital.

"The old company had outstanding an issue of $1,250,000 bonds which in re-organization was assessed $400 per bond, entitling holder to 10 shares of new preferred and 8 shares of common.

"An alternate plan was to pay no assessment and receive but 3 1-2 shares new preferred and same amount of common. The prospects are that the liquidation of the Fore River will net about $20 on preferred while, of course, the common stock gets nothing. Thus the preferred stockholder, is forced to match his $20 against $40 per share paid on assessment, to say nothing of the loss of income during the intervening period.

"The Fore River Shipbuilding Co. has never paid a dividend. The Fore River Ship and Engine company preferred holders, were assessed 1-3 in re-organization and three shares were given one new preferred share and 1 1-2 common. Common stockholders were assessed $100 per each fifteen shares surrendered, receiving one new preferred and one new common. All told it is understood that the company received about $1,250,000 new money and in liquidation, stockholders will take out around $500,000.

"The peculiar feature of the Fore River situation is the fact that the $4,800,000 capitalization when the present company was formed in 1904, represented cash that has been plowed into the property, while at the re-organization the property brought only $1,000,000 at auction.

"The plant at present embraces about 110 acres and is believed to have an annual output of 60,000 tons of shipping and the material value is about $9,000,000.

"The present development in the Fore River career lends timely interest to the question whether it is possible for the American shipbuilding industry to successfully compete with foreign shipbuilders."

BIG MEET FOR SCHOOL BOYS

Grammar School Athletes Are Getting Ready

The boy athletes from the various grammar schools of the city are commencing to get in shape for their big meet which is to be held at Merrymount Park on the morning of Saturday, May 24th. Jumping pits are being prepared at several of the schools and from all indications the meet will be a grand success.

The following High School track team men have consented to act as coaches during the afternoon recess at the different schools, and the boys of the Massachusetts Field School have already had one session of work.

Wollaston School, Fred Kingsbury.

Massachusetts Field, Leon White and Willard Atkins.

Coddington; Sturgis Hunt and L.F. LaRose.

Cranch, Herbert Driscoll and L. F. LaRose.

Adams, O. Cleveland and L. F. LaRose.

Willard, Bert Williams and L. F. LaRose.

Gridley Bryant, Arthur Newcomb. Washington, Austin Meade.

No men have been assigned to the Atherton Hough, Lincoln, Hancock, Montclair or Atlantic schools and if any of the High School track men are willing to spend a few minutes at these schools several afternoons weekly, Dr. Smith will be glad to hear from them.

Coaches Kingsbury, White and Atkins are going to take their boys to Merrymount on Friday afternoon for some track work; it is probable that the boys of the Montclair and Atlantic schools will be invited to work out with them.

POEHLER TIED RECORD SCORE

Rolled 367 in Candles and 363 in Ducks

Paul Poehler, the German, a resident of Rock Island and the accepted bowling champion in duck and candlepin circles performed with his usual brilliancy in the tournout competition in the National Duck and Candlepin bowling congress Monday afternoon and evening. Interest throughout centered in Poehler who has made the game a most fascinating sport in this city by his regular appearance on the Coliseum alleys.

Declared the greatest small ball man in the world by Robert C. Stone and J. Stokes of Connecticut, both high class men in the ducks, was only one of the complimentary terms applied to the Quincy man.

Mrs. Poehler who was entered in the women's tournament failed to come up to her average, the money going to Gertrude Benoit of Worcester, who has rolled here, with 357.

Poehler tied the record of 367 in candles established by Harvey Hintze Saturday, and hit the ducks for 363. He reached a total of 1415 in 12 duck strings ,and contributed liberally in the two and three men matches. He is the one man in bowling circles that is now receiving no challenges.

RESIGNATIONS ARE IN ORDER

Several Officials to Step Out of Boston Custom House

WILKIE HAS NOT BEEN IDLE

Said to Have Secured Important Testimony From Inspectors In Relation to Smuggling Frauds—Government May Accept Shevlins as Witnesses—Other Important Developments

Boston, May 6.—The Post says Secretary of the Treasury McAdoo is now moving rapidly in the investigation of the smuggling operations at this port. Chief Wilkie of the treasury's secret service agents has had a majority of the Boston inspectors of customs before him. His only advice to them has been: "Tell the truth, no matter who is hurt by it."

The inspectors have secretly given, it is said, information covering alleged frauds mounting into hundreds of thousands of dollars.

The latest and most disturbing rumor reached the custom house yesterday. It was in effect that the government, instead of prosecuting the Shevlins for smuggling frauds, intended to accept them as government witnesses.

No one, it is claimed, has a more complete knowledge of the methods of conducting the affairs of the customs in Boston than Terrence L. Shevlin, now under indictment for customs frauds himself. Shevlin and his wife were released yesterday on bail.

Not only does the custom house officials know that Collector Curtis' resignation has been accepted, but they also claim to know that when Curtis steps out in June both Surveyor Graves and Naval Officer Lyford will step out with him. There are also nearly a dozen of the deputy and other inspectors whose resignations will be accepted at the same time.

The news from the treasury department at Washington is to the effect that McAdoo intends to make a complete reorganization of the customs service in Boston.

It was reported yesterday that former Collector Lyman was booked to arrive in Boston from Europe the latter part of the month. The customs investigation has reached that point that government officials are desirous of talking with the former collector on conditions in the customs service during his term as collector of the port. The inspectors already seen by Wilkie have made many statements that the customs officials intend to submit to the former collector.

Among these statements is the practice of selecting special men to examine trunks of friends in power and also changes in a declaration covering a pearl necklace where the value was raised from $500 to $5000. The actual value, it is claimed, was $60,000.

Curtis' Resignation Accepted

Washington, May 6.—Secretary of the Treasury McAdoo has accepted the resignation of Edwin U. Curtis as collector of the port or Boston.

M'CLAUGHRY RESIGNS

Famous as "Humane Warden" of Leavenworth Federal Prison

Leavenworth, Kan., May 6.—Major Robert W. McClaughry, for fourteen years warden of the federal penitentiary here, has forwarded his resignation to the department of justice. In making known this fact, the warden, who is 74 years old, said he thought he "had been on the job long enoguh."

McClaughry is said to be one of the best informed men in the country upon prison affairs. He was known as the "humane warden." His advice to his subordinates was "treat a prisoner like a man and make a man of him."

Under these methods prisoners were put upon their honor to observe the rules. Authorities who have visited Leavenworth have hailed it as "the perfectly disciplined prison."

NO SIGN MIND IS GONE

Seventy-Seven-Year-Old Love Letter Writer Deceived as to Age

Kansas City, May 6.—When a man 77 years old writes love letters, the fact does not constitute evidence of mental incapacity.

Judge Ellison laid down that ruling in the Kansas City court of appeals. The case was one in which a son sought to break his father's will. In the love letters the writer said he was only 65 years of age.

Judge Ellison held that this misrepresentation had nothing to do with the case. The fact that he was able to deceive, the judge said, argued that he was in possession of all his faculties.

VETOES RAILROAD LEASE

Pothier Believes Control of Property Would Pass From State

Providence, May 6.—Governor Pothier vetoed the bill allowing the lease of the Southern New England railway to the Central Vermont railway for a term of ninety-nine years.

The governor declared in his veto that the terms of the lease were not given, and that he had been advised that the lease would take the property of the Grand Trunk's proposed line out of the control of the state.

NEW TRIAL ORDERED FOR LIFE PRISONER

Murder Confession In Sleep Cannot Be Used Against Him

Denver, May 6.—The state supreme court held that a person may not be convicted of murder by the use of his own admissions made while talking in his sleep.

The case of Jose Martinez, convicted of murdering Miss Fortune Campbell, and sentenced to life imprisonment, was sent back to the district court of Archuleta county with instructions to try the defendant again, without permitting the prosecution to introduce Martinez's somniloquent testimony.

At Martinez's first trial a jail guard testified the defendant in his sleep repeated over and over again, "I killed her." Largely through this testimony, the man was convicted.

THAW DENIES KINSHIP

Declares Wife's Baby Has No Claim Upon Him as His Heir

New York, May 6.—Harry K. Thaw, slayer of Stanford White, has issued a written denial of the claims of Evelyn N. Thaw, his wife, that the 2½-year-old boy, Russell, is a son of his. This statement comes from Matteawan state hospital.

Thaw's wife, who is now on the way to Europe, told the boy's story to the newspapers just before sailing. The boy is with her. Mrs. Thaw declared she will fight for a share of Thaw's fortune for her baby. Thaw denies that the baby is his and issued the following statement:

"Everybody knows that my wife and I have not been on good terms for five years. There is no understanding between us nor have we anything in common. Any pretence that there is a child who has a claim on me is ridiculous."

DROPS DEAD IN STATION

Congressman Martin Long Honored by New Jersey Constituents

Washington, May 6.—Representative Lewis J. Martin of Newton, N. J., dropped dead in the Union station here.

Martin was serving his first term in congress and had in his own state served in both the assembly and the senate, being minority leader in the latter from 1899 to 1902.

Martin was 69 years of age and represented the Sixth New Jersey district. He had just arrived in Washington from New Jersey.

Colonel TODHUNTER of Missouri

By RIPLEY D. SAUNDERS

Copyright, 1911, by the Bobbs-Merrill Company.

"Thank the Lord God Almighty!" he spoke at last. "And me and Lottie-May won't trouble Nineveh's folks after this day. I'm a-goin' away f'um here, Colonel Todhunter. I couldn't live here no more to save my life. And Lottie-May's a-goin' with me—goin' somewhere away f'um here where her mother's shame and hers won't be in ever'body's mouth like now in Nineveh."

"You can go any time you want to, Rafe," said Colonel Todhunter. "Th' ain't no charge against Lottie-May on the docket o' this court. You can go now if you feel like it."

The old man and the young girl moved toward the door.

Colonel Todhunter accompanied them, screening both, as far as lay in his power, from the curious staring of the multitude.

Lottie-May spoke no word during their progress. Her face was still tense with the shadow of that dread but lately lifted from her soul. More than ever did she seem the Hagar of this little Missouri community—a Hagar now going into uttermost exile.

At the door she turned and looked back into the courtroom. Her eyes rested upon Tom Strickland's face. Mary Todhunter stood at Tom's side. A great joy shone in her eyes. Tom's glance lingered with a deep fondness upon this girl whom he loved so dearly.

With a little cry of poignant heartbreak Lottie-May Doggett threw one arm across her grandfather's age stooped shoulders, seeming to draw him and herself beyond the seeing of that which had so moved her to uncontrollable anguish.

The next moment the door had closed upon the two, shutting them out from Nineveh's vision.

CHAPTER XV.

Colonel Todhunter Confronts Defeat.

DURING a lull in the excited jubilation that followed Tom Strickland's acquittal, and having first congratulated Tom himself, Mrs. Todhunter turned to Colonel Strickland, who stood with her husband a few feet away, Colonel Todhunter having by this time joined the group.

"I feel sure you know how rejoiced I am that Tom has been acquitted," she said, her frank eyes testifying to the truth. "I have always loved him as if he was my own son. But I had to do what I did after that dreadful night of the party at the hotel. The accusation made against him by that girl, Lottie-May Doggett, left me no alternative but to forbid him seeing Mary unless he could clear himself of the sin with which the girl herself charged him."

"I know just how you felt, Mrs. Todhunter," replied Colonel Strickland. "It was a terrible situation. Naturally, it hurt us all that Tom was made to appear guilty, but there was the cold fact that Lottie-May Doggett publicly declared him guilty, and it seemed incredible that she would do this if he was innocent. And I know now that you are sincerely glad because the truth has come out. You don't have to tell me anything about it, ma'am."

At this moment Mary herself, a great happiness shining in her face, although her eyes were wet with tears, joined the group. Colonel Strickland turned to her with a smile.

"I delivered that message of yours to Tom, Miss Mary," he said. "The message you gave me when he was in the jail. I just wish you could have seen how proud and happy it made him! He needed it mighty bad that day."

Mary blushed rose red. "Please don't remind Tom of my message, Colonel Strickland!" she cried in a pretty confusion. "I'll be ashamed to look him in the face again if you do!"

"I don't see why you should be," laughed Colonel Strickland. "It just simply proved to Tom at a mighty welcome time that the young lady he loved so dearly loved him in return, so you ought to be proud of it instead of ashamed."

And at this juncture Colonel Todhunter intervened. "Don't you let that Mary Todhunter fool you, Bill Strickland," he chuckled. "She's as proud of that there love sick message to her sweetheart at such a romantic moment as if it was all in a sentimental story and she was the heroine of the story. And when she and Tom have gone and got married—well, between you and me and the gatepost I'll bet poor Tom never hears the last of it."

Mary blushed furiously as the others laughed.

"When she and Tom are married!" repeated Colonel Strickland, his eyes resting fondly on Mary's face. "Doesn't that sound good, though?"

Then he turned pointblank to Mrs Todhunter. "When shall it be, Mrs Todhunter?" he asked. "You and Miss Mary have got to be good now and name an early day. When shall it be?"

But at this alarming question Mary herself gave a little cry of maidenly protest, frantically clutched her mother's arm and fairly dragged Mrs. Todhunter out of range, yet not with entire success, for the latter turned a laughing face back to Colonel Strickland as she was thus convoyed away.

"Never you mind, Colonel Strickland," she made fleeing answer. "I'm going to work hard for Tom. I ought to do it, and I will."

That same evening Colonel Todhunter went to confer with the Hon. William J. Strickland at his home concerning the latter's campaign prospects. The outlook was not encouraging.

"Bill," said Colonel Todhunter, "there's just one chance for us. Tom's acquittal may bring about a reaction of public sentiment in your favor if two days is time enough for the news to sink in and create the natural effect. They'll all know of it. The St. Louis and Kansas City papers are full of the excitin' story of his sudden acquittal, and every other newspaper in the state will have a lot about it. That's where it may prove a boomerang for the Yancey gang. They worked up public interest in the case, thinkin' it would ruin you body and soul."

Colonel Strickland shook his head. "It's too late, Thurs," he replied. "I reckon I'll have to stay beat. But I ain't worrying about that. I want to hear now that my campaign fund has been raised, so as to put you out of danger of any loss."

The light of battle was in Colonel Todhunter's eyes.

"I'm thinkin' about your gettin' that there nomination, Bill Strickland!" he exclaimed. "Not about the money. Now that we got 'em beat in Tom's case, I'd like to whip 'em straight down the line, suh."

The other laughed, but shook his head. "They've got too big a bulge on us. Everything's fixed now to steal the St. Louis and Kansas City vote for old Steve Yancey, and that'll settle it. The judges and clerks of election are all Yancey crooks, appointed before Bob Peyton, the Yancey chairman of the board of election commissioners in St. Louis, took sick and died and Randolph Carter was named to fill the vacancy, and the St. Louis and Kansas City vote is what's going to beat me."

Colonel Todhunter snorted indignantly. "A fight ain't over till one side or the other's licked, suh!" he announced. "And I ain't licked till I holler 'Nuff,' suh! Th' ain't time now to do no more on the stump, but I'm a-goin' to send out a mighty big batch o' telegrams to our best workers all over the state and see if we can't make things count the way they ought to count. When I quit fightin' you'll either see the worst whipped man you ever saw in all your born days—or you'll be the Democratic nominee for governor of Mizzoorah, Bill Strickland!"

"I-gad, Thurs," he said, "I never thought I'd begrudge another man his pluck, but I'm doing that with you now, my friend. I'm too tired to fight any longer, old fellow. That's the truth of it. The campaign's over as far as I'm concerned. I don't want to hear anything more but the final results, and I'm going to write my friends in St. Louis not to bother sending me anything but that. The truth is, Thurs, this trouble of Tom's has taken something out of my spirit that don't seem to come back."

"It'll come back, Bill," said Colonel Todhunter stoutly. "And you've been standing the gaff like a gamecock, suh. You've done all a man in your position could ha' done, and your friends will do whatever fightin' remains to be done. You just take it easy, suh."

Tom Strickland entered the room. He looked pale and worn, but happy, and there was a steadier manliness in his face.

"Mother's asking for you and Colonel Todhunter, father," he said. "She wants me to tell you that this isn't any time to be talking politics."

Colonel Todhunter laughed. "Ain't that just like a woman, Bill?" he asked. "And Mrs. Strickland, for all she knows, on the very edge of becomin' the first lady of Mizoorah, suh! I'll be hamjigged! Well, suh, I reckon the good Lord who made 'em understands 'em, but it's a blamed sight more'n I do. Not even Mrs. Todhunter, suh!"

He chuckled. Then he added, "Least of all Mrs. Todhunter, suh!"

* * * * * * *

Dick Cantrill, editor of the Nineveh Blade, Colonel Strickland's home organ, enterprisingly arranged for a bulletin service of election returns on the night of the primary vote, and Colonel Todhunter and the Hon. William J. Strickland were among the first to arrive at the Blade office that evening.

Dick himself, with Lycurgus Quivey as his assistant, was to handle the bulletins, the poet schoolmaster's most arduous assignment being that of keeping the Blade' "devil" in swift action between the newspaper plant and the telegraph office across the street. There was a quite considerable gathering of Nineveh's voters to hear what news might come, and much speculation as to the result was being voiced.

"What do you think about it now, Bill?" asked Colonel Todhunter as the candidate appeared on the scene.

POTATO SOUPS.

POTATO soup is easily made, and the materials for making it are available the year round. It is economical and if not served too often in the same form will be relished by the family. Milk dumplings added to potato soup are very nice and make of it quite a substantial dish.

Two Simple Soups.

Plain Potato Soup.—Boil six large potatoes until soft, season with salt, pepper and butter, press through a colander. Then add one and one-half pints of milk, the juice of large onion and a little celery salt. Stir all to a cream, then beat for ten minutes. Before serving add a half pint of milk and some finely chopped parsley.

Cream of Potato Soup.—Take one and one-half cupfuls of mashed potatoes, two cupfuls of boiling milk, one tablespoonful each of butter, flour and chopped parsley, one teaspoonful of grated onion, one teaspoonful of salt, one-fourth teaspoonful of white pepper.

Put the potatoes into the top of double boiler, add the hot milk and onion. As soon as it boils add two cupfuls of boiling water, the salt, pepper, butter and flour, which have been rubbed together. Stir until creamy. Add the parsley and dust with a little paprika.

These Are Nourishing.

Puree of Potatoes.—Take sufficient potatoes to yield two pounds when peeled. Peel and wash, then cut into thin slices and dry on a cloth. Place two ounces of butter in a clean enameled saucepan. As soon as it melts add the potatoes, together with a large onion peeled and thinly sliced and a small teaspoonful of minced parsley. Fry slowly for a quarter of an hour, stirring continuously in order to avoid burning. Then add three pints of stock. Draw the pan to the side of the fire and simmer slowly until the vegetables are thoroughly cooked and quite soft. Then rub through a hair sieve into a clean vessel and return to another saucepan. Thicken with one ounce of flour and one ounce of butter kneaded together. Add a cupful of hot milk and pepper and salt to taste. Make very hot, pour into a heated soup tureen and serve with fried crusts handed separately.

A Milk Soup.

Potato Soup With Milk.—Take two large potatoes, one onion, one ounce of butter, one quart of water, one ounce and a half of crushed tapioca, half a pint of milk, salt and pepper. Peel the potatoes and cut them in pieces. Put them, with the sliced onions and butter, into the boiling water. Cook till tender, pass through a sieve, return to the pan and when boiling sprinkle in the tapioca. Boil fifteen minutes, stirring occasionally. Add the milk, let boil up once. Season to taste.

TODAY'S COURT.

John Gaynor of Randolph attended a town meeting at Randolph Monday night and wanted to speak on every question that came up. The moderator repeatedly called him to order and told him to sit down, but to no purpose for he still persisted. Then the moderator ordered his arrest and he was locked up for drunkenness. In the Quincy court he was fined $15 for drunkenness and not having the necessary amount was taken to Dedham jail.

Frank Cullen also of Randolph was fined $10 for drunkenness and had his sentence suspended until Oct. 24.

HAT DAY AT HIGH SCHOOL

Some of the Freaks were Pretty Roughly Handled

Today was hat day at the Quincy High school and sad to say the celebration was confined strictly to members of the male sex, because most of the girls have discarded head coverings since fair weather gave promise of continuing.

The boys, all striving for mention, which will be awarded Wednesday by acclamation, were wearing the sickliest appearing hat they were able to dig out of their cast offs. The styles ranged from the obsolete tile to the kahki summerer with crocheted edges. The smaller styles were hidden in one of the many pockets boys are privileged to have, while the larger makes decorated the hooks in the coat room. Some were disasterously treated by the boys who affect a dislike for everything that is passe, and more than one high kicker developed during the recess period. Of course this part of the celebration was also confined to the male students who could give free play to limbs which were not hobbled or skirted.

And when one cute looking boy, with curling locks, was informed that he should not be cutting up such capers because a skirt should properly be worn by him, and he had none on, he replied, between bites of a turnover, "Well, I've seen a city with-out-skirts."

MAY MUSICALE.

The first in the series of May morning musicales will be given tomorrow at 10.45 at the Women's clubhouse. Any who desire to attend these musicales who have not already secured tickets may purchase them at the clubhouse. Tickets are one dollar and include the entire three dates, May 7, 14 and 28.

PROBABLY NO DANCE HALLS

Mayor Stone Will Not Grant Licenses at Houghs Neck

The scores of young people from Dorchester as well as from various sections of the city will not like the idea of not having any public dance halls at Houghs Neck this year. Last season there were several of these halls in full operation every night and there were many complaints as to the crowds that frequented them. They were especially a nuisance to patrons of the cars as not unfrequently the crowds made a nuisance of themselves after arriving in City Square and the police had to be called in.

This season several of these halls applied to the Mayor for a dance hall license, but up to the present time His honor has issued no licenses. This noon Mayor Stone said that he had about made up his mind not to grant any dance hall licenses at Houghs Neck.

The Mayor said that he had received a petition signed by 300 people in favor of granting dance hall licenses. On the other hand he has received petitions from what he calls the better class of residents of Houghs Neck protesting against the dance halls. They claim that these halls attract an undesirable class of people and that the Neck has received a black eye on that account. They also claim that if not allowed a better class of people would visit the beach and that business would be much better.

Edward P. Histon of Dysart street, formerly right of way man for the Quincy unit of the New England Telephone & Telegraph Co., has been transformed to the office of the superintendent of rights of way. The position or right of way man for the Quincy unit is now held by A. C. Trefrey, formerly of the contract department.

SPLENDID SHOW AT KINCAIDE'S.

There is certainly no let-up on the expensive programs provided for the patrons of Quincy's palatial playhouse And the public appreciate that fact for last night's attendance was by far the largest of any Monday since the house opened. Nearly every seat was filled, and all voted the show "the best yet."

Hughes Brothers musical act is good. They play several instruments with exceptional ability and get great applause. Wyer and Sheldon have a new line of patter that pleased immensely, and their singing is so good that they had to respond to an encore.

It's seldom you see cats trained to do stunts on the stage, but Burke has them. And dogs and pigeons also They all join in the final stunt, playing "Way down upon the Swanee river" with bells.

There are many other attractions, including western flood pictures.

DIVORCE WANTED.

Grace A. Billings of Taunton filed a divorce libel in the office of the clerk of courts at Dedham on Monday. She asks for a separation from her husband, Rufus W. Billings of Quincy. She alleges cruel and abusive treatment and intoxication and asks for alimony. They were married at Randolph, Dec. 23, 1903, and lived in Braintree and Quincy.

QUESTION BOOK ALMOST UNKNOWN

Provides a Way of Getting Information From City Officials

Who Advised Commissioner to Hold Up Bill?

The fact that there is such a thing in City Hall as a "question book" was a surprise to many of the younger councilmen and doubtless many of the older members had forgotten it, until it was brought up Monday night by Councilmen Cunningham and Bryant.

Although the book has been in existence since Quincy became a city there has never, all told, been more than a dozen questions put in the book as in most cases the members of the Council have been able to get what informaiton they desired without resorting to its use.

It is also called to mind that Monday night was probably only the second time when a city official absolutely refused to answer a question put to him and obliged the councilman asking the question to resort to the question book in order to get the answer.

The best recollection of many is that the last time such a condition arose was during the time that Charles H. Johnson was the principal assessor. He was asked questions, either in open Council or in the Finance Committee which he refused to answer, with the result that the question was put in the book which brought an answer.

Whether Commissioner Tupper will answer the question or not remains to be seen. Under the City Charter he is obliged to answer the question, but there is no penalty should he refuse. The City Council can not impeach him as he is an appointee of the Mayor to whom he is alone responsible.

The section of the City Charter which covers this point reads in part as follows. After providing that seats shall be provided inside the railing for department officials the section reads:

"They shall give such information as may be required by members of the Council, and shall answer such questions as may be asked by the members in relation to any matter, act or thing connected with their respective offices or the discharge of the duties thereof; provided, however, that any such officer may refuse to answer such a question if notice thereof has not been given at least three days before the time of the meeting in a notice book to be provided for the purpose by the City Clerk and kept in his office, unless the Council shall vote that the question is of such urgency and of such nature that it should be answered without notice."

A motion was made that the question was of such a nature and urgency and that it should be answered immediately, but failed to pass. The only resource left then was to put the question in the book and Councilman Bryant gave notice that he intended to do so.

It now remains to be seen if Commissioner Tupper will still continue to refuse to answer. The question is who was the official that advised him to hold up the Gypsy Moth bill until fall.

ORIENTS DANCE.

The Orient A. A., an organization which is represented by one of the fastest amateur base ball teams in Eastern Massachusetts held a social dancing party in Union hall, Tuesday evening which was attended by 25 couples. Refreshments were served. The affair was one of the series the club contemplates running throughout the season. The committee con-Frederick Dolan, Jerome Malcolm and John Donahue.

MIDNIGHT FIRE HANCOCK HOUSE

Firemen Fin it Necessary to Use Hydrant Stream

The central station apparatus was called on a still alarm at 11.15 last night for a fire in the rubbish vault in the rear of the Hancock House. This is a large brick rubbish box and was built so that the occupants of the block might throw their old papers and rubbish into it. The box was full of old papers and it is thought that someone threw a lighted match into it.

The fire was discovered by Capt. McKay and Inspector Goodhue of the Police department who tried to extinguish it with a lawn hose stream. Finding that they were unsuccessful the department was summoned. It was necessary to put a hydrant stream onto the fire which blazed high, to extinguish it. After the fire the firemen were supplied with coffee and sandwiches by A. J. Thompson, the restaurant man.

The fire made quite a scare among the occupants of some of the rooms in the Hancock House for the flames were shooting high into the air and it was thought that the building would go. Some of the more timid hastily packed their belongings together preparatory to making a hasty move but this was hardly necessary. Quite a few of the roomers at the Hancock House were not aware of the fire, however, until this morning.

So fierce was the blaze that the chemical stream had no effect upon it and it was necessary to run a line of hose from a hydrant and drown it out.

WHIST PARTY AND DANCE

Miss Annie Burns Wins the General Trophy

The annual whist and dancing party of the Ladies Sodality of St. Mary's church was held in St. Joseph hall Tuesday evening and was well attended. The guests of the evening were Rev. Fr. Henry T. Grady and Rev. Fr. William J. Duffy.

The lower floor of the hall was occupied by the whist players, 50 tables being in play. The winners were Mrs. M. A. McLaughlin, Miss B. Crowley, Miss Annie Thompson, Patrick Caine, J. P. Walsh and Oswald Shea. The general trophy, a $2.50 gold piece was awarded to Miss Annie Burns.

In the upper hall dancing was enjoyed, and refreshments were served. Those in charge of the different committees were Miss Annie Galvin, Miss Mary Galvin, Mrs. Mary Little, Mrs. Annie White, Mrs. William Callahan.

MUST SWEAR TO PAY ROLL

New Law Relative to Paymert of City Employees

Under the new law which went into effect May 1, it will now be necessary for department officials to swear to all pay rolls of men employed in their department. It will also be necessary for the Mayor to swear to the pay rolls for the salaries of city officials. This will make some additional work, but the departments are having rubber stamps made which will do away with some of the writing. Bills for supplies will not have to be sworn to, but will be paid on the voucher of the department ordering the supplies, although all such bills are now approved by the Mayor also.

PANTOMIME PRESENTED

Pilgrim Union of Epworth League at Wollaston

In observance of the twenty-first anniversary of the Pilgrim Union, the Epworth League of the Wollaston Methodist church invited the four other leagues, who with itself were the organizers of the union to a meeting and social in the vestry Tuesday evening.

Delegations were present from Neponset, Atlantic, Dorchester and West Quincy. Addresses were delivered by Rev. George M. Bailey, pastor of the Wollaston church, Miss Rena M. Chamberlain, founder and R. E. Childs, president of the Pilgrim Union.

Readings by Miss Ruby Walters, vocal solos by Miss Marguerite Louise Holbrook and selections by an orchestra composed of Miss May Critchley and Messrs. Noyes, Lee, Critchley and Lewis were enjoyed.

A pantomime "Wanted a wife" was cleverly presented with a reading by Miss Mary Cleveland. In the cast were: Miss Alfreda Dewsnap, Miss Myrtle Starbird, Franklin Dunham and Raymond Cassidy. Games and refreshments followed.

Preceding the meeting the annual meeting of the Wollaston League was held at which the following officers were elected:

President—Clarence Cassidy.
First Vice,—Miss Rena Chamberlain.
Second Vice,— Franklin Dunham.
Third Vice—Marion Clifford.
Fourth Vice—Alfreda Dewsnap.
Secretary—Raymond Cassidy.
Treasurer—Arthur Dewsnap.

CHINESE PLAY PRESENTED

Annual Meeting of Missionary Workers at Wollaston

The twenty-fifth annual meeting of the Wollaston Auxiliary of the Women's Board of Missions, was fittingly observed with a fine program, Tuesday evening, in the vestry of the Wollaston Congregational church.

Mrs. Annis Lincoln, who that evening completed her twenty-fifth year as president of the society was presented with a handsome bouquet of carnations, as a token of love and appreciation from the members.

Miss Elizabeth Pettee, who is the daughter of a missionary and was born and brought up in Japan spoke on the social customs of the Japanese. Dressed in native costume her lecture was all the more effective.

American Missionary—Mrs. Charles L. Seavey.
Chinese Lady—Mrs. E. R. Johnson.
Her Daughter—Miss Alden.

Mrs. Annis Lincoln read a brief history of the 25 years. The annual report of the secretary, Mrs. George H. Murray, showed $185 contributed to missions in addition to the anniversary gift.

The following officers were elected:
President—Mrs. Annis Lincoln.
Vice President—Mrs. Nathan G. Nickerson.
Secretary—Mrs. George H. Murray.
Treasurer—Mrs. Walter F. Jones.
Directors—Msr. Isaiah W. Sneath. Mrs. Joseph F. Marshall and Mrs. E. S. Tenney.

Refreshments and a social hour followed.

FOURTH OF JULY COMMITTEE.

The executive committee of the Fou rth of July Association announce a banquet for next Wednesday evening, when everybody interested in the annual celebration is invited. It will be held at Thompson's cafe and tickets are 75 cents. It will be necessary to give advance notice to Arthur W. Stetson the secretary if you expect to attend.

COUNTY BOARDS OF TRADE

Felt Well Repaid For Their Long Journey

The spring meeting of the Norfolk county association of Board of Trades was held Tuesday evening with the Board of Trade at Norwood, and was attended by nearly three hundred, representing all of the Boards of Trade in the county. The Quincy Board of Trade was represented by President John L. Hamilton and A. L. Whitman, while the Wollaston Citizens association was represented by its President J. W. Robinson and Dr. J. A. Zwicker. The latter took their wives along, but they proved to be the only ladies present. This however did not prevent them having a pleasant evening.

President G. H. Smith of the Norfolk County association presided, and welcomed the delegates and others. President Hamilton was one of the first speakers. He told what the Quincy Board of Trade were doing and said that the board was hustling to get a membership of 500. He also said that the Quincy Board was fully alive to local issues and were doing a good work.

A. W. Donovan of Abington spoke of the need of co-operation of the different Boards of Trades and what might be accomplished by such co-operation.

Mr. Willett, a philanthropist from Norwood spoke along the lines of the necessity of medical attendance. He believed that more attention should be paid to have the poorer classes receive better medical attention and he was trying to form an association among the men of Norwood so that it would be possible for poor people to receive medical attendance and medicine at a reasonbale cost. Mention was also made of the hospital which he was about to build where poor people could receive medical attendance free of cost.

Secretary Gay of the State Board of Trade spoke of the needs of co-operation and of the benefits that would result from all local boards becoming affiliated with the state board. This would give the state board such as a standing that it could appear before the legislature and demand the enactment of certain laws that were considered necessary.

Owing to the fact that the Quincy members desired to get home that night they had to leave at 10 o'clock. They however were more than repaid for their visit.

SOCIAL AND DANCE.

Abigail Adams circle C. F. of A., held a social and dancing party Tuesday evening in Clan McGregor hall, which was well attended by members and friends. An impromptu entertainment was rendered durinng the evening. Music was furnished by Provost's orchestra.

The committee in charge consisted of Mrs. Mary Pritchard, Miss Julia O'Brien, Mrs. Agnes Smith, Mrs. Mary Ford, Mrs. Margaret Kelly, Mrs. Alice Nichols, Mrs. Ella Morrison, Miss Alice McNaughton.

INSPECTING WITHOUT ESCORT

President Schwab Giving Another Day to Shipyard

President Charles M. Schwab, of the Bethlehem Steel Co. is at the Fore River shipyard again today. Tuesday he visited the plant and made an inspection in company with President Bowles. Today however, he is making a tour of the different departments of the yard alone.

He arrived at the plant early this morning and announced that he would make an inspection alone. He immediately started out and went from one department to another. In some cases he was recognized, but in others he was not. As far as could be learned. He made no comments but there was nothing that escaped his eye. Nothing was given out. He will probably be heard from later.

CAMPAIGN FOR NEW MEMBERS

Board of Trade Has Set 350 As the Mark

A meeting of the membership committee of the Board of Trade was held Tuesday evening at which plans were made for an active campaign for new members. It is hoped that the membership of the Board may be swelled to at least 350 by the June meeting. In order to do this it will be necessary to secure at least sixty more members.

A plan of campaign was laid but and each member of the committee was given a list of names which he was to see personally and secure them for membership. It was announced that ten or more names would be proposed for membership at the regular meeting of the Board tonight.

The Adams Market

Is the Kind of a Market Women Appreciate

It is neat, sweet and clean. It is inviting. The goods are known the country over as goods of highest quality,— goods that you can depend upon—goods that will not disappoint you.

It is a different kind of a store—a better store than Quincy ever had before. It is chock-a-block full of good things to eat. Fact is, we deal in nothing but good things.

Our assortment is large,—quality the best. We have more than a mere sprinkling of this and that —we have just what you want when you want it.

Come and see this store. We believe you'll find us measuring 100% to the good. We attribute no small part of our Water St. Store success to the fact that we never misrepresented or made inacurate statement regarding our goods.

We are running a business here, which we intend shall be unapproachable by any other store in Norfolk County. Merit alone will keep us in the lead, and every dollar left here will receive full 100 cents in value.

HOME TRADE.

If the new Adams market can accomplish one thing, it will do much for Quincy. There is nothing that the city needs more than home trade. It would give us more stores, larger stores and better stocked stores, and cause Quincy money to circulate in Quincy. Everyone would be more prosperous. There would be more of a demand for labor at higher wages more of a demand for store bulidings; more of a demand for real estate and a reduction in taxation would follow.

Quincy people who do all their trading in Boston do not seem to realize the injury they are doing to their home town, and it is a question whether they save any money thereby. If those who trade in Boston for cash would give the Quincy stores their cash trade they would secure better prices right at home.

Such stores as the new Adams market, the Johnson Bros. market, the gents furnishing house of George W. Jones, the hardware house of Nathan Ames, the Remick clothing house, Henry L. Kincaide & Co., W. G. Shaw, D. E. Wadsworth & Co., and others advertised in the Daily Ledger are all well equipped stores which should be well patronized by Quincy people.

Home trade means everything to Quincy. If you would be a booster, trade at home. If you want to see Quincy prosper, trade at home.

When Rev. B. A. Willmott of Bethany Congregational church announced last Sunday, that he would preach the following Sunday in Washington, D. C., his people were pleased that he had the opportunity, but then the thought came to them that possibly this Washington church might extend him a call. It would be an honor to Quincy and Bethany church if Mr. Willmott was called to Washington, but just now he is wanted very much right here in Quincy where he is meeting with such great success. It has become a treat to many to attend Sunday services at Bethany especially the pleasant Sunday evening talks, and the congregations increase almost every week. Mr. Willmott has told his people on more than one occassion that many of their troubles were imaginary ones, and therefore it is not best to borrow trouble just yet over the loss of their pastor. Perhaps he would not go if a call was extended.

Considering that New England produces practically no raw materials, it is fair to conclude that as this part of the country does not derive any advantage over competitive buyers of the same commodities in like markets the relatively lower cost of raw materials to her manufacturers is almost wholly attribute to the economical transportation of the same.

SHEVLIN STORY DENIED

No Plans For Defendants to Become Witnesses For Government

Boston, May 7.—Assistant United States District Attorney Garland was greatly disturbed over the story relative to the smuggling case. He was prompted to make the following statement:

"No arrangement had been made whereby Mr. and Mrs. Shevlin were to become witnesses for the government in the prosecution of any indictments now pending or which may hereafter be returned by the grand jury relating to smuggling at the port of Boston.

"The government prosecutors have had no conference with Mr. and Mrs. Shevlin or with either of their counsel looking to such arrangement. So far as I am aware, there has been no admission of guilt by either Mr. or Mrs. Shevlin, who have not yet entered pleas to the indictments lately returned against them, nor has there been any indication since their arrest that they had any intention of acknowledging their guilt of the offenses with which they are charged."

KEEP CLOSE WATCH UPON ANARCHISTS

French Police Worried Over Visit of King Alfonso

Paris, May 7.—King Alfonso of Spain and Premier Count Alvaro de Romanones, with a large suite, are on their way from Spain for a two days' visit to the French capital.

Rumors of anarchist designs against the life of Alfonso during his visit have caused considerable anxiety to the police authorities of Paris and to the French government. Comprehensive precautions have been taken to prevent the committal of any outrage.

Two Spanish anarchists were arrested at Bordeaux on suspicion of being concerned in a plot against the life of the king.

The French senate and chamber of deputies voted an appropriation of $38,500 for the entertainment of Alfonso during his visit.

FIREMEN HAVE BUSY DAY

Kept on the Jump by Three Three-Alarm Blazes In Boston

Boston, May 7.—Three three-alarm fires in Boston yesterday kept practically the entire fire-fighting force of the city in action for hours and caused a property damage totalling $105,000.

From noon, when the warehouse of Prescott & Co., 324 Congress street, burst into flames, until the all out sounded for the third fire, started by an incendiary in the Boston and Maine freight yards on Rutherford avenue late last night, the apparatus rushed through the streets in answer to the alarms sent in in procession.

The second fire was in lumber yards in the Charlestown district.

CHOSEN IN FORTY MINUTES

Jury Prepared to Hear Testimony In the Wells Poisoning Case

St. Albans, Vt., May 7.—Julius Wells of Swanton was put on trial here on the charge, of which he is accused jointly with his wife, of murdering their children, Marie, 4 years, and Louis, 6, by arsenical poisening. He pleaded not guilty and watched with close attention while the jury was drawn.

Husband and wife are to be tried separately. The jury was drawn in forty minutes. Nine peremptory challenges were exercised.

"SYSTEM" GETS SEVERE BLOW

Jury Convicts Four of New York's Police Inspectors

CONSPIRED TO DEFEAT LAW

Thompson, Hussey, Murtha and Sweeney Plotted to Keep Prospective Witness From Making Damaging Disclosures—Resort Keeper Had Been Bribed to Keep In Hiding

New York, May 7.—James F. Thompson, James E. Hussey, John J. Murtha and Dennis Sweeney, the four demoted inspectors charged with conspiracy to obstruct justice, were convicted by a jury in the supreme court last night.

Only thirty-eight minutes was taken by the jurors in which to reach their verdict that the defendants were guilty of a misdemeanor in plotting to keep a prospective witness against the "system" from making great disclosures before the grand jury.

The accused officials stood outwardly unmoved as they heard the verdict. The crowd in the courtroom, however, created a disturbance, shuffling chairs and feet until attendants checked the disorder.

The prisoners gave their pedigrees and after being remanded for sentence Friday they were returned to their cells. Their counsel announced that a certificate of reasonable doubt will be sought. If it is granted the prisoners will be admitted to bail pending efforts to secure a new trial.

The penalty for obstruction of justice is one year in jail or a fine of $500 or both. It was reported that the jury required only one ballot to reach its decision.

The men were on trial seven court days. District Attorney Whitman and his assistants brought evidence to show that the four plotted to buy the silence of George A. Sipp, a resort-keeper, through bribing him to flee the state last December.

At that time the prosecutor was attacking the police "system" through graft disclosures made by Sipp and other witnesses before the aldermanic committee that was investigating the police department.

For a period of years Sipp made monthly payments to the police for protection for his resort, he had told the committee. Before Whitman had a chance to get Sipp to repeat this testimony before the grand jury the hotel man took flight.

Upon being returned to the court's jurisdiction it developed that he had been bribed with $2000 to leave. Sipp so stated, and the prosecutor's inquiry into his story resulted in the joint indictment of the defendants, then inspectors.

DIVORCEE HAS CHARGE OF PECK

Noted Scholar Suffers Complete Mental Breakdown

HAS HAD FITS OF VOLENCE

Former Wife Comforts Him When Doctors and Nurses Fail—Caring For Professor With Consent of Second Wife—Expects to Restore Reason of Hopeless Invalid

Ithaca, N. Y., May 7.—In the pitiable circumstances of an utter and hopeless mental breakdown afflicting Professor Harry T. Peck, who for more than a quarter of a century held the chair of ancient languages at Columbia university, his first wife, Mrs. Cornelia D. Peck, has assumed complete charge of the hopeless invalid. This with the consent of the second wife, whose financial resources are meagre. The first wife started with him Monday night on a journey that ended yesterday at Saint Beach, Conn.

Putting aside all past difference which caused her to divorce him in September, 1908, the first Mrs. Peck has cheerfully assumed the task of nursing the former scholar in his declining days.

No hope is held out by the specialists in mental diseases who have examined Peck while he has been at the City hospital that he can ever recover. His first wife is of Christian Science faith and is firmly convinced that under her ministrations her former husband's reason can be restored.

There is no doubt that even in his dazed condition of mind he has taken great comfort in her presence. Where nurses and doctors have proved unable to control him—and he has at times had fits of violence—the presence of the first Mrs. Peck has invariably had a calming effect.

The year following the divorce decree granted Mrs. Peck against the Columbia professor he married Miss Elizabeth H. Dubois, a public school teacher of New York city.

The present Mrs. Peck bears no resentment against the first Mrs. Peck because she has stepped in to care for the afflicted scholar. There has been a perfectly amicable arrangement between the two women. Indeed, since Peck's arrival at the City hospital the first Mrs. Peck has borne the brunt of the expense.

The means of the professor's present wife are very limited. He had no private fortune and when he lost his post at Columbia had to depend almost entirely on his earnings as a magazine writer. While at one time these had been considerable, in his condition of waning health they dwindled to nothing at all.

On the other hand, his former wife received a financial settlement from Peck at the time of the divorce, and afterward he made divers contributions to her and on behalf of their daughter Constance. In addition his first wife had property of her own.

The former wife has full belief in her ability to cure her husband despite the verdict of the doctors, which is that he has "softening of the brain."

Peck ended his long career at Columbia university following a suit for breach of promise against him by Miss Esther Quinn of Boston. She asked $50,000 damages. This suit was dismissed, but she brought another suit for the same sum and that suit is still pending.

The scholar contested the action of the Columbia trustees bitterly, and directed his resentment chiefly against President Butler, whom he sued for $50,000 damages for slander, a suit which, however, has never been tried.

BETTER CLASS IS DIVIDED

Some Want Summer Dance Halls and Some Do Not

Some of the residents of Houghs Neck take exception to statement that it is the better class of residents only who desire that no license should be issued to dance halls this season. The statement seems rather broad, for Mayor Stone said this morning that in his statement Tuesday he did not intend to convey the impression that it was the better class of residents only who objected to the dance halls. According to the Mayor the petition in favor of the dance halls was signed by many of the better class of residents, who claim that if dance halls are not permitted that it will hurt their business.

Mayor Stone said, that the idea he wished to convey was that it was what perhaps might be called, the more conservative residents. That it was those who desired more quietness nights, and by those who believed that morally the conditions would be better without dance halls. Mayor Stone said that many of the three hundred signers to the petition favoring dance halls were the better class of residents, who however admitted that morally perhaps the conditions would be better without them. They claim that it would materially hurt their business.

There seems to be a general desire in most places to do away with the summer dance halls . At Squantum the residents are very much opposed to any attempt to open a dancing hall there, and they have also sent a largely signed petition to the Mayor requesting that no dance halls be allowed at Squantum.

Up to the present time there has been no applications from Squantum for a dance hall license, but the residents are very much afraid that someone will try it, and they have petitioned the Mayor that if such an application is made that they be given a hearing before any license is granted.

WOMEN'S CLUBS

WHAT THEY ARE DOING AND SEASONS' PLANS

Club women should not fail to secure next Wednesday's Ledger with a full report of the year's work of the Quincy Women's club. The club holds its annual meeting on Tuesday for the giving of reports by the officers and committees. There will also be music and a social tea.

* * *

Mrs. Henry M. Faxon of Adams street entertains the Friday club this week for the annual business meeting.

* * *

The annual meeting of the Woman's Auxiliary to the Y. M. C. A., which will also be the last meeting of the season will be held Friday afternoon in Association hall. There will be reports and election.

* * *

The New England Wheaton club is to have a May breakfast at Hotel Vendome, Boston May 10th. This year the club completes 25 years of existence. Following the breakfast there will be brief and interesting toasts on "All the World's a Stage," embodied in character sketches and there will be music by the college girls.

* * *

There was not a large attendance Saturday night at the gentlemen's night of the Young Women's club but it was a comfortable number for dancing at the clubhouse and the evening proved enjoyable in every way. The affair closed the club season.

* * *

Mrs. May Alden Ward gave her last current event talk Monday afternoon before the New England Women's club at their rooms in Copley square, Boston. Next Monday Mrs. Helen Weil is to read, "The Terrible Meek," by special consent of the author, Charles Rann Kennedy. The season closes May 20 with the annual breakfast.

* * *

Abigail Phillips, Quincy Chapter D. A. R. brings its season of meetings to a close on Monday afternoon, when Mrs. William E. Hingston of 38 Davis street will be the hostess. It will be the annual meeting and for entertainment there will be a paper on a "Nantucket Tea Party."

* * *

Mrs. James H. Stedman of 179 Cedar street, Braintree is to open her house Monday afternoon for a reading in the course being given under the auspices of the literature committee of the Philergians. Mrs. Gurney's subject will be "Anthony Trollope."

* * *

At the annual meeting Monday afternoon at the Copley Square hotel, Boston of the Massachusetts D. A. R. Founders' club, Mrs. Mabel Jones of Wollaston was elected corresponding secretary. The club is to hold an outing at Winthrop on June 16.

* * *

Junior Friday club closed its season of meetings Monday afternoon, meeting with Mrs. Albert Wright of Saville avenue. Officers for the coming year were elected. Miss Georgiana C. Lane, being the president.

* * *

Members of the Quincy Women's club and the Young Women's club, as well as society people are interested in the dramatic dance to be given June 7th on the lawn at the home of Mrs. Henry Faxon, Adams street. It is hoped to raise a goodly sum by the affair to add to that so successfully started by the Russian afternoon a few weeks ago at the home of Mrs. George E. Pfaffmann.

QUINCY WOMEN'S CLUB.

There is to be music and a social at the annual meeting of the Quincy Women's club on Tuesday afternoon. Heretofore that afternoon has been devoted to the reading of reports and the transaction of business, but this year things are to be livlier.

All the afternoon's work will be interspersed with music and at the close there will be opportunity for an exchange of greetings between members who have the club's interest at heart. Every member should be enough interested in the business of the club to attend and listen to what the outgoing officers and chairmen have to say. The long afternoons will make it possible to linger awhile over the teacups and learn more about club members whom each one wishes to know better.

Pratt's Vienna Bread

There is no guesswork in the bakery where Pratt's Bread is made. All work is done by rule.

ALL GROCERS

Music for the afternoon is to be furnished by Miss Ethel Raymond of Quincy and Miss Hazel Clark of Hingham. Miss Raymond is a pianist of reputation. She has been organist in one of the Weymouth churches for some years and often plays at concerts and club entertainments. She is to be assisted by Miss Hazel Clark of Hingham who is well-known all along the South Shore for her work on the violin. There will be solo and duet work from these two musicians, and their program promises a delight to music-loving club members.

WOLLASTON CLUB.

The last meeting for the season of the Wollaston Women's club was held Tuesday afternoon, in the vestry of the Wollaston Unitarian church.

Dr. John G. Cornwell of New Jersey was the speaker taking for his subject "Hitting the funny one." The lecture was of a humorous nature and filled with funny stories and anecdotes. Dr. Cornwell was introduced by Mrs. Charles R. Safford chairman of the program committee.

At the business meeting, Mrs. Arthur D. Ropes, Mrs. Percy L. Davidson, Miss Harriett L. Turner and Mrs. David H. Goodspeed were appointed delegates to the meeting of the Massachusetts State Federation of Women's clubs. The treasurer's report showed a balance of $690 in the bank.

Eugene F. DeNormandie spoke of the new Sachem club which had been started, and the clubhouse it was planned to build. To date $6,000 has been signed for, while $15,000 is the amount needed. He urged the cooperation of the Womans club.

Vocal solos by Mrs. Royal L. Turner, accompanied by Miss Florence G. Olney were enjoyed. During the social hour frappe was served.

The next meeting will be held on Tuesday afternoon, October 7.

Y. M. C. A. AUXILIARY.

The Womens' Auxiliary to the Y. M. C. A. will hold the last regular meeting of the season, Friday afternoon in Association hall, and will be of special interest to mothers. On account of the annual reports and election of officers, the business meeting will be held at 2.45.

An address will be given by Frederick Kenyon Browne (Al Priddy), best known as the author of "Through the Mill," "an autobiography which ranks with "Up from Slavery," and "The Making of an American," Mr. Browne is a most entertaining speaker and will have a special message for mothers.

Mrs. Frank J. Moore will sing. Refreshments will be served during the social hour.

A cordial invitation is extended to Quincy women to attend.

OLD COLONY CLUB.

D. A. R. CONFERENCE.

Friday, May 16, has been chosen for the spring State conference of the Massachusetts State society, Daughters of the American Revolution, to be held at the headquarters at 9 Ashburton place, Boston. The new State Regent Mrs. George O. Jenkins, of Whitman, will preside. Reports of the officers and of chairmen of committees will be given, and a recording secretary, treasurer, historian and registrar will be elected. The State regent will announce her appointments of corresponding secretary, chaplain and parliamentarian, also the chairman of committees for the coming year, as is the privilege of the State's highest officer of the D. A. R.

ADAMS CHAPTER, D. R.

Adams Chapter Daughters of the Revolution held one of the most enjoyable meetings of the season Monday afternoon at Randolph where they were guests of two of their members, Mrs. Frank Granger and Mrs. William Porter. The meeting was held at the women's clubhouse.

In the absence of the regent, the vice regent, Mrs. Frank F. Prescott, presided during the business session, after which Mrs. Porter chairman of the afternoon's entertainment announced the program which opened with a group of songs by Miss White of Randolph, who also sang another group at the close, every number being received with appreciative applasue.

A very entertaining paper was read by Mrs. Henry Belcher of Randolph, telling of an auto trip through Holland. Before the meeting beautiful postal cards of picturesque bits of that plucky little country were passed around adding much to the travel talk as narrated by Mrs. Belcher giving color to the word pictures so interestingly told by her. The personal experiences of Mr. and Mrs. Belcher made the paper more interesting to the listeners than would be possible otherwise. Following the program there was a social tea, Mrs. Belcher presiding at the tea urn and Mrs. Porter as hostess assisted by chapter members.

There was an unusually large attendance and it was one of the best meetings of the season which closes in June.

BAPTIST WOMEN.

The annual meeting of the Ladies Social and Benevolent society was held, Tuesday afternoon, in the chapel of the Wollaston Baptist church and the following officers were elected:

President—Mrs. Ernest B. Neal.

Vice President—Mrs. Joseph Walther.

Secretary—Mrs. Moses Brown.

Treasurer—Mrs. Wellington Record

Mrs. J. Arthur Jewell, the retiring president, presided at the meeting at which the annual reports were read and other business transacted. A social hour with refreshments followed.

DEPT. OF PUBLIC HEALTH

The subject of public health is more and more engaging the attention of people all over the country, one of the potent factors in arousing this fresh interest in the subject being the General Federation of Women's Clubs, through its department of Public Health.

The chairman of this department, Mrs. S. S. Crockett of Tennessee, was born in that State, as were her parents. Her father served in the Confederate army and died shortly after the war. Her mother conducted a private school for girls near Nashville, where the daughter received her schooling, the two afterward traveling together in Europe. Mrs. Crockett's husband is a physician, and also professor of mental and nervous diseases in the Vanderbilt University. Mrs. Crockett's interest in health subjects dates back many years, she having served as chairman of the health committees both of her own club and of the Tennessee Federation. In 1910 she became head of the Health Department of the General Federation to which she has given her constant attention ever since.

The work is conducted in four divisions, as follows: Child Hygiene, under Mrs. Lafon Ryker of Kentucky; Food Sanitation, under Mrs. Victor Kriegshaber of Georgia; Social Hygiene, under Dr. Rachelle Yarros of Chicago and Tuberculosis, under Dr. Fannie D. Quain of North Dakota. At present special emphasis is being placed on the subject of Eugenics, and this brings into prominence Dr. Yarros, whose address at the San Francisco Biennial on "The Larger Significance of the Social Hygiene Movement," was one of the masterpieces of that great convention. Believing that by modifying our educational system a finer and stronger type of man and woman may be produced, more able to resist temptation because of higher ideals and wider knowledge, this department is seeking the co-operation of the clergy, the press, boards of education and health boards in a campaign of education, and club women are taking hold of the matter in increasing numbers.

Mrs. Crockett is most industrious in the distribution of posters and leaflets. Medical inspection, ventilation, the common drinking cup, food inspection and the house fly are some of the subjects treated in these leaflets, which have been sent into every state in the Union. Every State Federation, with one exception, has its own health committee, with which Mrs. Crockett's committee works in harmony and by means of which she is able to secure more direct and immediate results than would otherwise be possible.

Upon the invitation of the executive committee organizing the fourth international Congress on School Hygiene, the General Federation of Women's Clubs, under the presidency of Mrs. Percy V. Pennybacker, is making plans to take part in the most elaborate effort that has yet been made in this country getting school hygiene before the world. The forthcoming congress, the first to be held in this country, will meet in Buffalo the last week in August. Letters are now being sent to the various club presidents and State chairmen by Mrs. S. S. Crockett, national chairman of the public health department, requesting the active of co-operation of the seven thousand individual clubs of America in an energetic campaign, which has for its purpose the sending of delegates to the Buffalo congress from all the leading cities, towns, and villages of this country. In her letter Mrs. Crockett makes an urgent request that each individual club send a delegate to the congress, and in addition secure the appointment of delegates from all of the following agencies:

Local clubs, the mayor, school boards, boards of health, superintendents of schools, School Improvement Association, Mothers' Congress, Parent Teachers' Association, Charity organization Society, Tuberculosis League, Visiting Nurses' Association, health of sanitary committee of the Board of Trade, homes, orphanages, etc. In addition, individual clubs are urged to use their influence with the governors of their States with a view to calling public attention to the serious importance of the forthcoming congress.

The congress will be held under the patronage of President Wilson and under the presidency of Dr. Charles W. Eliot of Harvard University. The secretary general is Thomas A. Storey, College of the City of New York.

WHAT WOMEN ACHIEVE.

In order to save a tract of aboout 50 acres of woodland, which had been sold to lumber men, the Greenfield Women's club of this State in less than a week raised $8000 and bought the property, which is to be used for park purposes. After the tract had been sold to the lumber men, town meetings were held to see what could be done to secure the property and to save the trees from being cut down, the town felt it could not afford to buy it. The Women's club took the matter up. They persuaded the owner to stop cutting for one week and to reduce the price, if the women bought it, from $12,000 to $8000. At the end of the week the women has secured the money and bought the property. Since then the club has had the trees properly cared for under the advice of a trained forester. When the story of their achievement was told at a recent federation meeting it was greeted with enthusiastic cheers.

HAS COMMENCED SUIT.

It is reported that Miss Elaine Francis of Washington through her attorney has commenced suit for $50,000 against Lieut. Commander Jose Gorrachatequi of the Argentine navy for breach of promise. She is also reported as saying that she may sue another Argentine naval officer at Quincy alleging conversion of property, and may also make formal complaint against both officers with the Argentine minister at Washington.

BRIEFS

The special committee of the City Council who were appointed to act with the Mayor and City Solicitor relative to placing telephone and electric wires underground will meet next Monday evening. President Whiton is chairman of the committee. The other two members are Councilmen Bryant and Little.

Mr. and Mrs. H. Roby of Lewiston, Me., are moving into the Plumer house 1621 Hancock street. Mr. Roby is a draftsmen at the offices of the Fore River Co. Measure Thrown Out of House of Commons by Vote of 266 to 219

London, May 7.—The fate of the woman's suffrage bill was sealed last night by the vote of more than fifty Irish Nationalists, who voted against it. The bill, whereby it was sought to enfranchise 6,000,000 women, was rejected by a majority of 47; the vote stood 266 to 219.

As the members of the house gathered for the afternoon session, news came of the latest outrage laid to the militants. This was the burning of St. Catherine's church, one of the finest in the suburb of Hatchem. The fire started mysteriously at noon and in an hour the edifice was in ruins.

Balloting on the measure came only after the most stirring and vigorous of speeches in opposition and support of the measure, during which Premier Asquith, arguing for the defeat of the bill, declared he would resign if his colleagues in the cabinet ever suggested that they did not feel justified in following a government the head of which was opposed to them.

Whether there is any chance that the present parliament will pass a bill of more limited character may be doubted.

$14,500 A YEAR FOR GOFF

West Virginia Senator to Draw Two Salaries From Government

Washington, May 7.—Senator Goff of West Virginia will receive, aside from his senatorial salary of $7500, an additional $7000 as the full pay of a retired federal circuit judge, making his compensation during his term in the senate equal to the salary of an associate justice of the supreme court.

Comptroller of the Treasury Tracewell granted the senator's application for salary as a retired judge under the law authorizing full pay to any federal judge who, having reached the age of 70, resigns after ten years of service on the bench.

The comptroller held that a retired judge performed no judicial duty and consequently did not nold a "position" within the meaning of the statute prohibiting a government employe from drawing salary from two government positions.

ASSASSIN OF KING TAKES HIS OWN LIFE

Schinas Jumps From Window of Salonica Police Station

Athens, May 7.—Aleko Schinas, who assassinated King George of Greece on March 18 at Salonica, committed suicide by flinging himself out of a window of the police station in that city.

Schinas, who was a native of Thessaly, killed the king by firing point blank into his back while he was walking along the streets of Salonica accompanied by an aide de camp. He gave as an explanation of the crime that in 1911 he had applied for assistance at the king's palace and had been driven away by an aide de camp.

A few days ago doctors examined Schinas and announced that he was suffering from tuberculosis.

TELEPHONE PROBE DROPPED

But Testimony Taken on Pacific Coast May Be Utilized Later

Seattle, May 7.—The federal grand jury which began early this year an investigation of telephone mergers on the Pacific coast adjourned last evening without mentioning the telephone cases in its report.

The investigation was discontinued when the national administration changed, but it is understood that United States District Attorney Riddell received instructions from Washington to preserve the testimony taken for use if the government decides to reopen the inquiry.

DIED FROM EXHAUSTION

Passing Away of Scott and Others at South Pole Was Peaceful

Winnipeg, Man., May 7.—Exhaustion and not starvation was the cause of the death of Captain Scott and the men who died with him on their way back from the South Pole, according to Lieutenant Gran, a member of the supporting party which found the bodies. Gran stopped off in this city for a few hours on his way to London.

"The end of the party apparently was peaceful," declared Gran.

PUSHCARTS BARRED

Ten Thousand Will Disappear From Streets of New York

New York, May 7.—The board of aldermen passed unanimously an ordinance taking from the streets of New York its 10,000 pushcarts.

The measure provides for giving peddlers special stand privileges at the approaches to East river bridges and in certain city squares. Its passage was bitterly opposed by the peddlers.

BRIEFS

The funeral of Joseph F. Costello formerly of Quincy, will be held tomorrow morning at St. Francis church, South Braintree at 9.30.

The week day meetings at St. Pauls Swedish M. E. church are now held on Wednesday evenings instead of Thursday during the illness of the pastor. Tonight the meeting will be conducted by Frank E. Broman of Boston the district superintendent.

Again illness prevents Mr. Winthrop Packard of Boston from giving his bird lecture at Coddington school hall on Saturday afternoon. Scarlet fever in the family makes it impossible for him to come to Quincy as planned. As it was his only open date this season the lecture has been given up until next year.

SOCIALIST CLUB.

A meeting of the Quincy Socialist Club was held at the Johnsons' Building, Tuesday evening. The reports of the auditing and literature committees were accepted. This course of lectures was a moral and financial success. Ten new members have joined the club and several old members were reinstated. It was a very enthusiastic meeting.

All members have pledged themselves to do good work and help the Socialist movement.

The following officers were elected: Recording secretary,—David Baden; financial secretary,—James R. Rettie; auditors,—Charles J. Axburg and Max Goldstein; organizer,—Joseph Tomulgass; literature agent,— A. Weinhouse.

Arrangements were made for the next meeting which will be held Tuesday, May 27.

QUINCY HIGH DOWNS MILTON

But it was a Close Score Four to Three

Quincy High again won a game in the first three innings when they defeated Milton High at Milton on Tuesday afternoon, 4 to 3. Captain Stanley was hit hard in the early stages, but grew stronger as the game progressed. During the last two innings he struck out each batsman.

Quincy played a good fielding game and were somewhat of a surprise with the willow. Captain "Bull Moose" Brown secured three hits, and Crocker who pitched made two. Earl Bates and Sam Prout are also credited with a hit. Crocker allowed but eight hits.

Eight juicy errors were chalked up against Milton, Morrissey of short stop claiming three, while George Margeson loosened up for two. Cross and Poole of Milton did the bulk of the hitting for their team, getting two apiece.

GRAMMAR SCHOOL LEAGUE

Victories for the Willards and Massachusetts Fields

The Grammar school base ball league opened Tuesday with two games, the victors being Massachusetts Fields and Willard.

CODDINGTON LOSE.

The Massachusetts Field school defeated the Coddington school at Merrymount Park, 7 to 2. A large gallery of rooters followed the game. The strong infield work of the winners was practically responsible for their victory. The losing battery however performed in splendid manner, Stack securing eight strikeouts and allowing but few hits. Both teams played intelligent ball. The score by innings:

Batteries, Whetmore and Brown; Stack and McDonnell.

WILLARDS WIN.

The Gridley Bryant and Willard base ball teams opened the Grammar School league on Water Street grounds Tuesday by playing an unusually exciting game, the latter winning 4 to 3.

In the second inning, Willard scored two runs when Wallace knocked out a clean single, stole second, third and home, and Minihan, after being hit by a pitched ball, stole second and third and came home on a throw to second.

The Gridley Bryant boys opened the fourth with two splendid hits by McDonald and Bennett, followed by two scratch hits by Harden and Crowley; these together with an error by Marini netting them three runs.

Nothing but goose eggs followed until Willard came to the bat for the last time. Hinchon the first man up, made a pretty single to centre, only to be forced at second on Wallace's grounder to short, but Franzie put new life into the game by sending a hot liner in the direction of left field, putting a man on first and third; Minihan settled the question with a Texas-leaguer in the direction of the brook, bringing Wallace and Franzi home.

The features of the game were the base running of Willards, two double steals and a steal home, and the batting of J. Bennett for the Gridley Bryant.

There is more Catarrh in this section of the country than all other diseases put together, and until the last few years was supposed to be incurable. For a great many years doctors pronounced it a local disease and prescribed local remedies, and by constantly failing to cure local treatment pronounced it incurable. Science has proven catarrh to be a constitutional disease and therefore requires constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, Ohio, is the only constitutional cure on the market. It is taken internally in doses from 10 drops to a teaspoonful. It acts directly on the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. They offer one hundred dollars for any case it fails to cure. Send for circulars and testimonials.

FIRST GAME A VICTORY

Quincy Police Score 11 to Everett's 3

The base ball team of the Quincy Police defeated the Everett officers at Everett Tuesday afternoon 11 to 3. The local blue coats secured 15 hits, made a hit with a large crowd by their intelligent base running and exhibited a knowledge of the game which surprised all. Their victories of last season were in no way equal to Tuesday's showing.

George Fallon did the box work, allowed three hits and passed two men. He struck out 11 and kept the Everetts well in hand at all times.

Errors did not play a conspicuous part and the only incident that marred the afternoon was the injury to Officer Thorne's right knee which compelled him to withdraw. Frank Canavan substituted.

The local team is not only out for the championship of the police league but they want to represent the state in the national championships which will be played in the early fall on the Pacific coast. The banner will be exhibited here next week.

Tuesday afternoon they will play the strong Revere Police team on the ward three playground.

Martin of Gear Works Beats Shipyard Record

The standing broad jump contest Tuesday noon at the Boston Gear Works was won by "Pete" Martin with a jump of 8 ft, 6 1-2 in.; J. Carlson was second with 8 ft. 6 in.; and H. Martin was third with 8ft 3in. as his mark. Martin's jump is 2 inches better than that made by C. Moyle of the Fore River Co., last week.

With 15 entered in the noon athletic events at the Fore River yard today competition was keen and interesting to a large number of onlookers. A hop, skip and a jump was the card. J. Clapp won first place, with 24ft.6in. second, C. Blanchard, 23 ft., 7 in. and C. Moyle, 23 ft.

McDONALD LOST.

Quincy's "fondest" did not get into the limelight at the elimination bouts in the National boxing championship at Mechanics Hall, Boston, Tuesday evening. J. McDonald of the North Quincy A. A. (125) lost to Al Davey of Roxbury (123 1-2). who in turn lost to W. Hitchen of Toronto in the second round.

Another session of the special committee of the City Council which is investigating the Fire Department will be held tonight. Just who have been summoned to appear is not known other than they are some of the call firemen.

MINISTER GETS DIVORCE

Court Also Grants Him Custody of His Young Son

Hartford, May 7.—Besides an absolute divorce Judge Holcomb of the superior court awarded to Rev. Cranston Brenton, professor of English literature at Trinity college, the custody of his 7-year-old boy, who is now with his grandmother, Mrs. Benjamin Brenton, at Jamaica, L. I.

Though Mrs. Brenton brought the original action, she refused to press her suit when the trial was begun and the decree was granted on Brenton's cross complaint, in which he named Frederick Holman of Rockland, Me., as corespondent.

SUSPECTS A MOVE FOR APPOINTMENTS

Burton Strongly Opposes Civil Service Investigation

Washington, May 7.—Senator Burton is planning to fight the adoption of a resolution introduced by his colleague, Senator Pomerene, calling for a thorough investigation into the civil service.

Burton takes the point of view that the real purpose of the inquiry is merely to allow the Democrats to oust government employes in order to replace them with supporters of President Wilson.

Pomerene, many believe, is sincere in his desire to take politics out of the service by removing those who owe their tenure to political influence and then refilling the service strictly according to the rules.

The senate committee on civil service and reform met yesterday in closed session to consider the Pomerene resolution.

ORDER IS RESTORED

Strikers and Employers Agree to Arbitration After Riots at Syracuse

Syracuse. N. Y., May 7.—Determined efforts are being made here to settle the strike of building laborers which yesterday developed a series of riots in which twenty-five persons, nine of them policemen, were wounded.

The strikers appointed a committee of eight to wait on the employers and ask that the wage dispute be adjusted by arbitration. The contractors have signified their willingness to arbitrate.

Order was restored with the first negotiations for a settlement, and the three local companies of state militia, called out when the riot situation assumed a serious aspect, had nothing to do.

SHOOTS NEGRO IN JAIL

Lawyer Had No Chance to Pepper Two Men He Was After

Montgomery, Ala., May 7.—A negro prisoner, Bernard Tolliver, was shot down in his cell in the county jail here by W. J. Fuller, an attorney. It is believed Fuller intended to shoot Morris and "Bud" Hanson, negroes, charged with killing Davis Thurman, Fuller's brother-in-law.

Fuller had been denied admittance to the jail, but slipped in when an insane prisoner was being taken out. He shot Tolliver in the leg once, but was overpowered before he had a chance to get to the men it is believed he would have harmed.

"Joke" Costs Saloon Man $3000

Detroit, May 7.—For being "stood on her head" on a table in a saloon, Rose Donnelly, a Salvation Army lass, has settled her suit against the saloon proprietor for $3000.

Pity the Unpainted House?

Would you go out in the pouring rain wearing your best clothes if you had no protection such as an umbrella or raincoat? Not if you could help it, you say.

Yet some people expose expensive material to the elements without adequate protection. The building material in your house is expensive and should be protected. Otherwise it will be ruined as surely as the fine clothes you wouldn't wish to wear out in the rain.

Dampness causes decay in wood-work. If you keep out the dampness you keep away decay. Paint made with

FOR MURDERING TWO PATROLMEN

Fugitive Gunman Is Hunted by Ten Thousand Police

HAS LONG CAREER OF CRIME

Known in All the Dives and Evil Places in New York, Though but Twenty-One Years Old—Believed to Be Doomed, For He Will Be Shot If Sighted by Bluecoats

New York, May 7.—The most easily identified degenerate in New York is today the hardest-hunted man in the world. His name is Oreste Shillitoni and the police, discarding all other theories, have fixed upon him as the gangster-gunman who shot to death a fellow-craftsman of his underworld Saturday night, and then, to avoid arrest, killed with the same revolver two members of the force, whom duty called to the scene of his initial slaughter.

Shillitoni is known at headquarters, where his picture, his thumb-prints and his bertillon measurements are on file; he is known in all the dives and resorts of ill-repute between Union square and the Battery and he is known by sight to almost as many patrolmen as there have been assignments to duty on the lower East Side since the stalking of gangsters became a vogue with the passing of Rosenthal.

He is 21 years old and has been at odds with the law ever since he was old enough to "pinch" a banana. One-fourth of his life he has spent in custody, matriculating as a house of refuge incorrigible before he was out of knickerbockers and recently finishing part of a term in Sing Sing. He has been driven hard by institutional taskmasters, but it did not tame him.

The man is pockmarked, but without the traces of the disease on his face he should easily be singled out in any crowd. That he has escaped detection is due perhaps to the fact that he is closeted away somewhere by gangster friends. If he shows his face he is doomed; and it is believed he is doomed anyway, for the police know his friends and will keep all gangdom under surveillance until their quarry is forced into the open.

The police are aroused. Shillitoni is the first of a probable type. He will not be permitted to be a forerunner—if all the machinery in Mulberry street can prevent.

Heretofore gunmen have preyed upon gunmen, or upon citizens so near the edge of the underworld that it didn't matter much whether they killed each other off or not. But it's different when they turn their weapons upon the conservators of law and order in an effort to terrorize the very men to whom society has committed the protection of life and property.

Headquarters is awake to the situation, and thus it follows that the Italian-American youth whom society forgave and presented with a parole half a year ago is today the hardest-hunted man in the world.

Ten thousand policemen are on the alert, each realizing that if it falls to his happy lot to capture the fugitive, honors will crowd him thick and fast, and promotion be only a matter of time.

If sighted, it is scarcely probable that he will be taken alive. This is especially true if he should be sighted by a member of the force who knows him from previous personal contact, instead of from the photographs that have been scattered broadcast. It would be foolhardy to take a chance. The slayer of two policemen would hardly hesitate to add another or a dozen others to his list of victims.

Colonel TODHUNTER of Missouri

By RIPLEY D. SAUNDERS

Copyright, 1911, by the Bobbs-Merrill Company.

"Just the same, as I've been saying right along here lately," replied Colonel Strickland quietly. "I'll go into Kansas City and St. Louis considerably ahead of Yancey, and I'd carry St. Louis on an honest count. Kansas City, being Steve Yancey's home, will roll up a big majority for him, even if they've got to give the penitentiary a close shave in doing it. Still, I'd stand a fighting chance if the St. Louis crooks didn't have a free hand—but they've got it, and that's what's going to cook my goose."

"Well, then, givin' 'em St. Louis and Kansas City both, what do you figure your plurality in the state'll have to be to overcome that?"

"I reckon they won't dare to count more'n 10,000 plurality for Yancey in St. Louis—it would be too plain a showing of crooked work if they did—and on that basis I'd need something like 25,000 plurality in the state. Where am I going to get it?"

Colonel Todhunter looked dubious. "That certainly is saddlin' a mighty big contract on Mizzoorah, to offset the crooked count in St. Louis. But I'll just be double whipsawed if we won't fight 'em to the last ditch, suh. No man's licked till he says so himself. Why, right on that point, suh, I knew an old fellow over yonder in Callaway that never got licked in his whole life; he died fightin' to his last breath, like a reg'lar old Davy Crockett, suh!"

The Hon. William J. Strickland smiled. "I'm not throwing up the sponge either," he responded, "but the wisest way is to look facts straight in the face. If you don't you simply build a fool's paradise that'll make you feel all the worse if things don't turn out right."

Colonel Todhunter chuckled. "All the same," he commented, "I'm agoin' to use my bricks right down to the last one buildin' a house that suits me, not one that suits the other fellow. 'Hope on, hope ever,' that's my motto, and the devil take the hindmost."

"'Incomplete returns from fifty counties, including Kansas City and St. Joe, give Yancey 38,750, Strickland 18,248, Judson 17,416 and Sanford 10,385.'"

The others laughed.

"What are you hoorayin' about, Thurs?" drawled Colonel Strickland, amused. "Trying to keep your courage up?"

"No, suh; not by a blamed sight," retorted Colonel Todhunter. "First news, bad news, that's what I'm hoorayin' about. It's always meant good luck, and it means good luck now as sure as shootin'."

"Here we are again!" announced Dick Cantrill. "'Jackson, Yancey's home county, gives him 5,000 votes, according to early returns, with less than a hundred for his opponents.'"

"That isn't so bad," commented Colonel Strickland, "if the later returns don't increase it."

"'Greene, Buchanan and Vernon counties,' " Dick Cantrill, "go for Yancey; also Andrew, Cass, Cole, Daviss, Dunklin, Henry, Johnson, Livingston, Platte, Sullivan and Wright.'"

"Shucks!" scoffed Colonel Todhunter "They've been conceded all along. The figgers—the figgers is what we'd like to get."

Cantrill waved a new bulletin jubilantly.

"'Strickland's heavy lead.'" he read. "'is in Jasper, Callaway, Pike, Marion, Audrain and Laclede counties. The following counties also go for Strickland: Berry, Barton, Bates, Butler, Camden, Clark, Franklin, Lewis, Lincoln, Macon, Moniteau, Phelps, Pulaski, Polk, Ripley, St. Francis, Ste. Genevieve, Saline, Shelby, Stoddart, Wayne and Webster.'"

"Figgers is still what's needed, Sim," said Colonel Todhunter. "We've knowed them was our counties all the time—but by how much? That's the question."

"'Later returns,'" read Dick Cantrill, "'show Yancey leading in Kansas City, St. Joseph and in thirty-three counties by 18,307.'"

"Now we're gettin' down to it," spoke Colonel Strickland grimly. "Let's see—thirty-three counties—um-hum—and St Joe—say, Thurs, according to these figures they're countin' up an all fired heavy Yancey vote in Kansas City!"

"'St. Louis,'" read Editor Cantrill "'Many disturbances reported at the polls. Reliable return on vote will be late. Police have made numerous arrests.'"

Colonel Strickland looked worried "Todhunter," he said, "the St. Louis gang's getting in its work for Yancey all right."

But Colonel Todhunter disdained this view. "I ain't so almighty sure. Who knows but what that's a good sign for us?"

"The police can't reach crooked work done by judges and clerks of election," pointed out Colonel Strickland.

"Well," replied Colonel Todhunter, "they can prevent intimidation at the polls, anyway."

But even he had to join in the laugh that followed.

"'Partial returns from thirty-six rural counties,'" read Dick Cantrill, "'give Yancey plurality of 4,000.'"

Then the bulletins began to come in swift succession. The Blade's editor read them breathlessly.

"'Kansas City gives Yancey a plurality of 12,093.'"

Dead silence followed the announcement.

Colonel Bill Strickland laid down the pencil with which he had been figuring. "That settles it, gentlemen," he said. "We're done for."

"We ain't heard from St. Louis yet, Bill," suggested Colonel Todhunter.

"We don't need to wait for St. Louis," replied Colonel Strickland. "If they've counted up a 12,000 plurality against me in Kansas City they'll play the game to the limit in St. Louis too They're only holding St. Louis back to see what's needed. If necessary they'll plug me with a 10,000 plurality there. I'm probably beaten by 18,000 the way things look now."

Again Dick Cantrill's voice sounded. "'It is now estimated that Yancey will carry the state by 19,000. His managers claim that he is nominated as the returns now stand.'"

Far down the street arose the sound of music and cheering.

Soon the strains of "There'll Be a Hot Time In the Old Town Tonight" were plainly distinguishable, brought nearer and nearer by a large marching body.

It was the Nineveh bugle and drum corps, heading the Stephen K. Yancey campaign club, starting out on a triumphal parade to celebrate the victory of the Hon. Stephen K. Yancey over the Hon. William J. Strickland for the Democratic nomination for governor of Missouri.

Colonel Bill Strickland smiled grimly. "Look pleasant, Thurston," he said "Put on your sweetest expression. They'll be marching by here in a minute."

"I'll just be eternally condemned if I do!" retorted Colonel Todhunter. "I can take my medicine just as gracefully as the next man when I know it's comin' to me, but I'll be jimswiggled if it's comin' to me yet. The cards has all got to be laid down on the table before I let any man take the pot, suh!"

The next moment the vanguard of the approaching column came in sight. In another instant the Nineveh bugle and drum corps and the Stephen K. Yancey campaign club, followed by a crowd of cheering Yanceyites, were swinging proudly past the Blade office.

"Hooray for Yancey!" the paraders shouted.

Colonel Todhunter, stiff as a grenadier, stood at the open door. His jaws were set hard as he confronted the triumphant foe. Suddenly a mocking voice sounded.

"We're sorry for poor old Bill Strickland," it cried, "but he never ought to ha' bucked up against Steve Yancey!"

Colonel Todhunter's fighting blood leaped in his veins. "Who are you that's so sorry for Bill Strickland?" he asked. There was an ill omen in his level tone.

"Oh, it's you, is it, Jeff Harris?" he said. "You, that didn't know at first whether you was for Colonel Strickland or old Steve Yancey. Couldn't make up your mind till you saw which way it was most profitable for you to jump. Well, Jeff, your man ain't nominated yet. And in the meanwhile I wouldn't like nothin' better, you white livered skunk, than to help trample the ground with you"—

But at this critical moment Colonel Bill Strickland, laughing, pulled Colonel Todhunter back into the Blade office, and Jeff Harris passed on with the Yancey parade.

"You old firebrand, you!" the candidate sputtered, shaking with laughter. "What the blue blazes and Sam Hill do you want to let a thing like that ruffle you up for? I thought you had more sense."

PETITION CIRCULATING.

As stated in Tuesday's Ledger there is considerable opposition to having the Quincy Mutual Fire Insurance building moved to the lot adjoining the Court House. This morning a petition was put in circulation protesting against having the building moved. The petition is being largely signed and will be presented to the Mayor. The petition sets forth that as it is now the Court House is an ornament to the city, but if an old building is placed on the adjoining lot it will greatly detract from the appearance of the public buildings in the immediate neighborhood.

AUTOMOBILE ACCIDENT

Skidded on Adams Street and Ran into Wall

A limousine carrying three passengers skidded into a wall at Common and Adams street this morning while trying to avoid a swiftly approaching auto holding to the centre of the street on Newcomb's hill.

The limousine was driven by James Meaney, chauffeur for Frank McCann of the Back Bay, the owner, and had Dr. Daniel Fiske Jones of 195 Beacon street and a nurse as passengers.

The accident occurred at the bottom of the hill, while the limousine was rounding a gradual curve. The chauffeur allowed the oncoming machine the right of way and his machine did not hold the grade because of a generous supply of tarvia which had just been applied to the street.

The limousine headed for a large elm tree. The chauffeur however, realizing that the impact with the tree would probably result in serious injuries to himself and passengers turned into the wall. The passengers were slightly shaken up, none receiving any injuries.

The accident occurred within full sight of the occupants of the machine which caused the accident, but they continued on their way without stopping to inquire the details of the damage. A passing machine carried Dr. Jones and the nurse to their Hingham destination.

The limousine steering gear was broken, the headlights cracked, the springs smashed, the fenders bent, and the right off wheel wrenched from the axle. A repair car from Boston removed the machine to a garage. The accident was witnessed by a large number of city employees at work on the street.

CATHOLIC CLUB CHARITY PARTY

Novelties and Mysteries in the Order of Dances

The annual charity dancin party of the Quincy Catholic Club at Alpha hall was a success socially and financially. Among the invited guests present were Rev. Fr. John J. Coan and Rev. Fr. P. J. Scannell, both of St. John's church. A varied order of dances, replete with novelties and mysteries greatly aided in the evening's enjoyment. Refreshments were served and music was furnished by Wilson's orchestra.

Daniel J. Deasey was floor director and was assisted by the following ushers and aids: Edward J. Murphy, Charles C. Hearn, Joseph A. Dasha, Thomas J. Dunphy, Edward D. Barrett, John H. Walsh, Harry McGrath, J. J. McAnarney, Robert E. Foye, Dr. C. J. Lynch, William J. Walsh, Leo J. Ford, Michael T. Walsh, Dr. George M. Sheehan, John A. McGowan, Dr. James H. Maloney, John J. Deasey, Lawrence W. Lyons, John H. Heaney, William A. Carey, Michael E. Cook, Dr. Joseph Harkins, Byron Brown, J. William Lynch, Frank Avery, Marcus E. Mahon.

A DOUBLE FINE.

Officer Malone had quite a tussle Tuesday morning on the Neponset bridge with John H. Feeney, a steam fitter, who he attempted to arrest for drunkenness. Feeney put up quite a fight and started to makeameal out of the officer's leg. It became necessary for the officer to call upon citizens for assistance before he could get him to the box. In court Feeney was fined $15 and a suspended sentence was revoked, and he was ordered to pay a $10 fine on that. Not having the necessary $25 he will probably go to Dedham.

MANY CLAIM DAMAGES

As Result of Head On Collision on Granite Branch

One lawyer has fifty-two claims that have been filed with his asking for damages for injuries caused by the accident at Braintree last week when two trains met head on on the Granite branch.

DAUGHTERS OF VIKING.

The initiation of 16 candidates, the presence of many visitors, dancing and refreshments furnished a delightful program for the Daughters of Viking Circle, C. F. of A., in Electa and Protection halls on Tuesday evening.

The visitors were District Deputy Mrs. Bertha Carlson Potter, and Chief Companion, Miss Annie Clitch of Lavonia circle of Weymouth.

The initiation was conducted under the direction of Chief Companion, Mrs. Emma Johnson. Music for the dancing that followed was furnished by Miss Ester Hallquist.

Refreshments were served. The committee in charge consisted of Mrs. Matilda Johnson, Mrs. Maria Thompson, Mrs. Annie Leaf and Mrs. Maria Ericson.

GEAR WORKS DEFEATED.

Proposed New Tariff Bill Cuts Granite Duty Just One Half

Would Allow Foreign Manufacturers to Undersell

An important meeting of the executive committee of the Granite Manufacturers Association was held Wednesday evening at which it was voted to enter a protest with Congress against the proposed reduction of 25 per cent in the duty on dressed granite as proposed by the new tariff bill, and to request the Board of Trade and Granite Cutters Union to co-operate with them.

The present duty on dressed granite is 50 per cent and if this is reduced to 25 per cent it practically puts the granite business in this section out of business for it will be possible for a manufacturer to ship rough stock to Scotland and have it cut and finished and shipped back to Quincy for less than the stock can be cut here.

The reason for this is that the average wage in Scotland is $1.50 a day while the wage here is $3.50 a day.

Even if the duty was reduced to 30 per cent it would be possible to ship granite to Scotland and have it cut cheaper than it can be done here. Under the present duty the cost is about the same here as abroad.

It is understood that the association which is working for the reduction is known as the National Association of Wholesale Granite Dealers, but a better name would be granite jobbers. At the present time dealers deal direct with the manufacturer in ignoring these jobbers who have lost their trade. But with the tariff reduced it would mean that these jobbers would be the ones to profit.

As stated above to reduce the duty 25 per cent would put Quincy out of business and throw thousands of workmen out of employment.

The Board of Trade immediately acted on the request of the Manufacturers association and appointed a committee to act with them. The joint committees will meet Friday evening at which a letter of protest will be drawn up.

LANDSCAPE ARTIST

To Lay Out the Public Library Grounds

At a meeting of the Trustees of the Thomas Crane Public Library Wednesday evening it was voted to employ Mr. Olmstead of Boston, a landscape artist to lay out the library grounds.

The matter of trampling on the lawns and stealing flowers from the grounds was brought up. There have been numerous complaints about the stealing of flowers from the lawns and the Trustees intend to put a stop to it.

The Trustees call attention to section 21 of Ordinance No. 14. This ordinance provides that "No person shall walk, stand or lounge upon any portion of any street or public grounds in the city especially prepared and devoted by the officers in charge thereof to the growing of grass or flowers, nor in way dig up injure or deface the same."

The penalty imposed by the ordinance for violation is a fine not exceeding $20 for each offence.

The grounds of the library are among the most attractive in the heart of the city and when the improvement to Coddington street is made they will be much more so, and the trustees hope that this warning will have the desired effect, for it is their intention to prosecute any persons stealing flowers or otherwise injuring the property.

HIT BY CAR.

An electric car struck a cow owned by B. F. Hodgkinson at Coddington and Newcomb streets Wednesday evening. The cow sustained severe injuries and was afterwards killed. The cow was one of three that had been purchased at Brighton on Wednesday. The accident occured about 10.30 P. M.

NOTABLE MEN ATTEND

Funeral of Joseph F. Costello at Braintree

The funeral of Joseph F. Costello, long a newspaper man and former Quincy resident, was held this morning from the home of Col. A. C. Drinkwater of Braintree. A high mass of requiem was celebrated at the Church of St. Francis by Rev. Fr. Mat. thew McDonnell, a life long friend. Seated within the chancel were Rev. Fr. John P. Cuffe of Atlantic and Rev. Fr. John Holland of Weymouth. The musical portion of the mass was the Gregorian chant by an augmented choir.

The burial was in the Pond Street cemetery, Braintree The committment service of the Catholic church was pronounced at the grave by Rt. Rev. John F. Broderick of New York, with whom the deceased was affiliated as secretary during the adjustment of the land difficulties between the Catholic church and the Cuban government following the Spanish American War.

Friends from all walks of life attended the services, and Rt. Rev. John F. Broderick was one of the mourners. Among those present was George Fred Williams of Boston, and Rev. Daniel Roy Freeman, pastor of All Souls' church of Braintree, and Representative Michael T. Sullivan of Quincy.

The bearers were Dr. George M. Sheahan ,John T. Cavanagh, William C. Harrison, Horace R. Drinkwater, George Costello and Thomas Costello.

Joseph F. Costello formerly covered Quincy for the Boston Globe, was the Havana correspondent of the New York Herald and later had charge of the Associated Press of Cuba. In late years he has been in the brokerage business, with a Boston office.

MAPLE LODGE.

Maple lodge, Knights and Ladies of Honor, was presented with a handsome centre piece by Deputy Miss Bertha McCue of Somerville at a meeting in Protection hall Wednesday evening. Miss M. Lizzie Furnald presented her with a cut glass dish. Grand Chaplain, Mrs. L. A. Harding of Somerville was present. A conundrum contest was won by Miss Maude Tibbetts, with Miss M. Lizzie Furnald, second. A bowling match was taken by Miss Nellie M. Cate, the consolation going to Mrs. E. E. Filed. Refreshments were served and there was a good attendance.

MAY MORNING MUSICALE

Given Under the Auspi of Quincy Women's Club

The first of the three May morning musicales was given at the Quincy Women's clubhouse Wednesday morning, the program being rendered by the Grieg Trio of Cambridge and Miss Margaret L. Shepherd contralto, with Mrs. Jennie Hocking Hunt as accompanist.

The playing of the trio was excellent in every way, holding the audience spell bound from the first note. Mrs. Minnie G. del Castillo at the piano proved a very efficient and artistic accompanist. Mrs. del Castillo has received her training from Mr. Carl Fallten and Madame Helen Hopekirk, and has had a wide and successful career as a concert pianist as well as accompanist.

Mrs. Marguerite Pearson Moss graceful playing of the violin shows great brillance of tone her phrasing being very clear, and her expression wonderful. In her solo number she was enthusiastically applauded and as an encore played the beautiful Spring Song by Grieg.

Mrs . Thompson Hall contributed much to the ensemble playing of the trio, handling her 'cello in a rich, mellow manner and greatly pleasing her hearers.

Those who had heard Miss Shepherd at the musicales last May fully expected the rare treat that was in store for them. And those who had not heard her previously were most pleasantly inspired. Miss Shepherds voice possesses a most wonderful range and flexibility of tone. She sang with much charm and grace of style and gave much pleasure by the exquisite spirit of her personality. All who heard her, look forward with eager anticipation to hearing her again.

The accompanist Mrs. Hunt showed as ever that an accompanist is born not made. When she is at the piano one feels a comforting sense of perfect rythm and expression. Her variety of tone color adds almost an orchestral effect to a solo, and this together with her skillful following of the soloist adds greatly to any program upon which she appears.

QUINCY MAN ON COMMISSION.

Judge Everett C. Bumpus of Quincy is one of a commission of three named Wednesday by Governor Foss to apportion the finances and expenses of Suffolk country among the cities and towns. William P. Hayes of Springfield and James H. P. Dyer are his associates.

REPORT ON ELECTRIC SIGN

Quincy Granite Industry Threatened by Tariff

There was a good attendance Wednesday evening at the regular May meeting of the Board of Trade. President Hamilton presided, and the records of the last regular and special meetings were read and approved.

In the absence of J. W. Pratt of the committee on new industries, it was reported that the committee had been in communication with the Utica Syrup Co., which was seeking a location, but that the company had gone to Somerville where they had found a factory building all built. It was not entirely satisfactory however andthey might yet come to Quincy.

The following new members were elected: R. C. Drinker, Fred S. Boydon, Michael G. Coughlin, W. J. McLeod & Co., W. P. Taylor, John A. L. Ross, Lundberg & Co., Millidge LeCain and Edgar G. Cleaves. The secretary was instructed to cast one vote for these candidates.

The President spoke of the campaign that was on to increase the membership to 339 before the June meeting. Joseph A. Sedgwick, chairman of the membership committee, who came in later said that the slogan of the committee was 350 members at the June meeting, and he urged all members to join the boosters club. The President also urged all members to take hold, as he declared the required number of members must be secured.

President Hamilton reported having attended the hearing before the Railroad Commissioners last Monday. The chairman of the committee he classed as one of the fairest he ever saw. That he had gone carefully into all matters and seemed determined to get facts. His opinion was that the decree plan would be turned down.

ELECTRIC SIGN.

T. L. Williams for the special committee on an electric sign to advertise Quincy reported that he had been in communication with the American Electric Sign Co. The sign proposed is a large one reading—"Quincy——Watch us Grow."

The word "Quincy" would be in three foot letters and the remainder of the words in two foot letters, and that 203 lamps would be required to light it. The cost would be $114. If thirty and twenty inch letters were used the price would be $95. These prices were special for the Board. As to the cost of current he had seen Mr. Faxon of the Electric Light Co., who had agreed to make a special price for the current which would be satisfactory to the Board.

Mr. Leighton a member of the Board had agreed to do the work of connecting up the sign at cost. The Whatever may be said about the decree for the abolition of the Quincy grade crossings, the extension of Upland road to Granite street will be a great improvement. It will open up a thoroughfare on the west side of the railroad from Granite street to Wollaston and beyond.

A bridge over the railroad at Saville street would not be popular with railroad passengers who live east of the tracks. When the improvements are completed and the Plymouth division becomes a four-track railroad through Quincy, passengers from Boston will be landed west of the tracks. They will not be allowed to cross the tracks at grade at fences will be erected. Being landed nearer Granite street than at present, many will find the Upland road extention via Granite street a more direct route to business or home than a bridge over Saville street.

However, if there it to be no bridge at Saville street there should be two subways,—one north of the depot near Saville street, and one south of the depot near Depot street or the cemetery. One subway would be congested after the arrival of some Boston trains, when passengers hurry to catch electric cars. Perhaps at the same time there would be people going from the east side to the west side to take south bound trains.

Many would like to see the railroad bridge at Granite street raised more than two feet. If it was raised six feet the hole in the street at this point could be filled some. More headway is needed under this bridge.

Then Dimmock street should be widened out and regraded and made a good avenue for travel between Hancock street and Presidents Hill. Carriages in waiting on the west side of the tracks could then use either Granite or Dimmock streets, and find one or the other fully as convenient as present arrangements.

READY TO FILE PETITION

Eastern Railroads to Ask Five Percent Advance In Freight Rates

New York, May 8.—Daniel Willard, president of the Baltimore and Ohio, announced that the eastern railroads would file their brief asking for a 5 percent advance in freight rates with the interstate commerce commission Monday. That such a move was under way was made known by Willard in behalf of the railroads.

The brief will formally ask for the reopening of what is known as case No. 3400, which was before the commission in 1910 when advances in freight rates were refused.

NOTED FENCERS IN DUEL

Man Seriously Wounded Has Another "Affair of Honor" to Settle

Paris, May 8.—A severe sword duel arising out of a quarrel three years ago was fought between H. C. Berger and George Breittmayer, both noted fencers, about seven miles south of Paris, and resulted in Berger receiving a serious wound on the right breast.

As under the French law no duel may be fought in secret, the combat was witnessed by fifty Parisians and a large body of reporters. Breittmayer afterward visited his wounded opponent at his home and a reconciliation was effected.

The duel had been delayed owing to the marriage of Berger. A short time since he quarrelled with another man and challenged him to fight, but according to the French code of honor the duel could not be fought until he had first crossed swords with Breittmayer. The second duel probably will take place as soon as Berger has recovered.

SUFFRAGETTE ASKS CARNEGIE QUESTION

Wants to Know Why Scot Poses as American Citizen

London, May 8.—Miss Mae Scott-Troy, the San Francisco suffragette, cabled to Andrew Carnegie;

"What right have you to pose as an American citizen when you are registered as a voter in the parish of Dornoch, in the county of Sutherland, Scot.? You are voter No. 11 on the official list received by me today from the sheriff of the county. Why did King Edward offer you a dukedom?"

BOMB IN ST. PAUL'S

Suffragettes Thought to Have Tried to Wreck World Famous Structure

London, May 8.—A bomb with a clockwork mechanism was found near the high altar of St. Paul's cathedral, one of the most historic buildings in Britain.

The police assert the bomb was placed in the structure by militant suffragettes in an attempt to wreck the edifice because of their anger at the defeat of the woman suffrage bill in parliament.

The discovery of the bomb has caused a sensation and already parts of the cathedral usually open to the public and visited by thousands of tourists have been closed.

NO RECORDS OF SLAVERY

Indirect Evidence, However, That It Has Existed In Philippines

Washington, May 8.—Indirect evidence that slavery has existed in the Philippine islands under the American regime was sent to the senate by Secretary Garrison. At the same time he stated there were no records in the war department showing directly or indirectly whether slavery existed there now.

The secretary made his communication in response to a resolution offerred by Senator Borah, who had produced a letter from Secretary Worcester of the Philippine government, charging that slavery did exist in the islands.

ELECTRIC SIGN REPORT

The report of the committee was accepted as partial and the committee will now see the business men to see what they will do toward standing the expense of maintenance.

A vote of thanks was extended to the Granite Manufacturers association for the use of rooms for the April 17 meeting.

A letter was read from the William McKinley memorial hospital inclosing 200 seals the cost of which was $2. It was voted to send a check for the $2 for the seals.

A letter was read from Chester I. Campbell thanking the Board for the interest it had taken in the coming New England Industrial and Education exhibition that was to be held in Boston next fall and suggesting that a committee be appointed to meet a representative of Mr. Campbell to talk over the matter of an exhibit from Quincy. It was voted to appoint such a committee.

PARKWAY EXTENSION.

A letter was read from the Metropolitan Park Commission in response to a letter from the Board asking when work was to be commenced on the Quincy boulevard. The letter stated that the commission was giving the matter its consideration and that it would act with all possible dispatch.

Letters were received from Senators Lodge and Weeks relative to a communication sent regarding the Sundry Civil Service bill which provided that the government could not spend any money in the prosecution of labor unions for violation of the Sherman act. The letters stated that it was not possible to do anything as the President had signified his willingness to sign the bill if passed.

A letter was received from Mayor Stone stating that he would take up the matter of waste paper in streets with the Commissioner and would do what was possible.

The matter of Sunday closing of stores was left until the next meeting for action.

INCOME TAX.

Harry A. Stevens brought up the matter of the income tax on insurance companies as proposed by the tariff bill now in congress. This bill he said did not exclude mutual and stock life insurance companies who would be taxed on income. This meant that the policy holders would have to pay more.

President Hamilton also spoke along the same line.

Mr. Stevens then moved that the secretary be instructed to write our representatives at Washington to oppose the clause which taxed life insurance companies on their income.

Ex-Representative W. R. Thomas thought it foolish to pass such a vote with so little information. The country is crying to have the tax tariff lowered on commodities that the poor people can get the necessities of life cheaper. The government has got to have an income from some place and if it is taken off of the insurance companies it must be placed on some of the necessities. As he remembered it the insurance companies did not show up very well in an investigation that was held. He moved, as an amendment, that the secretary be instructed to get copies of so much of the bill as related to this matter, that the Board might have fuller information.

Several others said that they had received letters from their insurance companies in regard to the same matter.

William E. Hingston said that it was small business for the Board of Trade going against the government. The amount of premium lost would not amount to three cents for each person. He had several policies and none of his companies had sent out notices.

The amendment of Mr. Thomas prevailed and the motion as amended carried.

MOSQUITOES.

W. E. Robinson said that it was time something was done to clean up the dirty pools and get rid of the mosquitoes. He moved that a committee be appointed to confer with the City Government and other associations in regard to the matter. Voted.

10 P. M. TRAIN.

W. H. Teasdale of the transportation committee said that he had received a letter from the N. Y. N. H. & H. R. R., stating that they desired to discontinue the 9.59 outward train at night. He did not care to take the responsibility.

It was voted that the train be retained and as many more trains as possible obtained.

BOSTON ELEVATED.

A. G. Reynolds, chief clerk for President Bancroft of the Boston Elevated was then introduced. Mr. Reynolds said in opening that it was like coming home, for he had been superintendent in Quincy for thirty days at one time during the absence of the superintendent.

He spoke particularly of the street railway system in Boston and its growth from the time of the first horse car in 1856 up to the present time. How it was now possible for men to live miles away from their employment and readily get to their work. The Boston Elevated was now carrying a million and a quarter passengers a day in an area of 125 square miles. That the road carried 200,000,000 of paying passengers a year and 210,000,000 of free transfers. That it operated 3000 cars which placed in a single line would reach 26 miles. He also stated that nine thousand persons were employed by the company.

He then spoke of the first company in Boston and its growth by consolidating with other companies, first the West End, and then by special act of the legislature the Elevated. He told how the milage of the company had increased and also of the building of the subway under Tremont street, the elevated from Sullivan Square to Dudley street, the Washington street tube and East Boston tunnel. Also the subway and elevated to Cambridge and other extensions that were now being built. He also spoke at length on the type of the cars used and how the type had changed to meet the requirements until today the modern car was called the prepayment car.

The first cars seated twenty people now the largest cars used seated 52 and it was possible for many more to ride by using the straps and standing up. He also spoke of the early fares charged which was 33 cents for a ride from Watertown to Ashmont and that the last car left at 8.45. Now it was possible to ride 20 miles for five cents.

He gave credit to Henry M. Whitney for the introduction of the trolley car and spoke of that gentleman's efforts to improve the service.

He also dealth on the cost of the various elevated structures and subways saying that under Washington street was the most expensive mile ever built in the world.

He spoke of the various power stations of the company and how they were equipped and how the men were trained for their work as motormen and conductors. That a large per cent of those seeking employment were rejected for physical and other reasons. That once a man was given employment he was there for life and when he became too old he was retired on a pension.

He also spoke of the matter of providing seats and said that it was impossible during the rush hours, as everybody wanted to ride at the same time.

There was a constant demand for improvements but that the company must be given time as it was impossible to do all at once.

When asked about what was possible for the improvement of the service in Quincy he said that with the completion of the elevated to Codman Square, Dorchester, it would mean a saving of twelve minutes reaching the shopping district.

In response to a question if the Quincy people would not be better served if the Quincy cars stopped at Neponset, he said that he thought they would, for the cars ran very frequent from Neponset and that it was impossible to keep the Quincy cars from being late during the rush hours in Boston.

At the conclusion of his talk he was given a rising vote of thanks.

TARIFF ON GRANITE.

At this point Alfred O. Diack, president of the Granite Manufacturers association, came in and spoke of the meeting of a committee of his association that had taken action on the proposed reduction of the tariff on granite. If the tariff was reduced as proposed it would allow manufactured granite to be imported at a lower price than it could be cut here.

Andrew Milne said that if the tariff on granite was reduced as proposed it would hurt Quincy's granite industry to a great extent.

Joseph Walker stated that at the present time the cost of finished product on the other side plus fifty per cent duty was about the same as in Quincy. Take that off and Quincy will be blotted off the map. It was a serious problem and one of vital interest to the granite business of Quincy.

Mr. Diack said that it was proposed to ask the Granite Cutters Union to co-operate with them and he asked that a committee of the Board of Trade be appointed to act with these committees to draft a letter to send to the representatives in congress.

It was voted that such a committee be appointed and the President appointed ex-Representative Walter E. Piper and W. E. Robinson.

NEW INDUSTRIES.

J. W. Pratt of the committee on new industries, who had been attending a meeting in Boston of the Boston Chamber of Commerce, arrived and stated that the meeting had been called to interest all of the associations of the state to take some concerted action toward the fostering of new industries in this state and retaining what we already have. It was necessary that all of the Boards of trade should take an interest in this movement, and we will have to take action and he asked for suggestions.

President Hamilton reported briefly on his visit to Norwood on Tuesday evening and the meeting adjourned at 11 o'clock.

NO DISSATISFACTION OVER SCHOOL HOURS

Parent and Teachers Association at Quincy Point So Votes

Need of a Larger Building and Assembly Hall

"Resolved—That the Parents and Teachers Association of the Washington School give their hearty approval to the action of the School Committee in lengthening the school hours.

The above was passed at an overflow meeting in the corridors of the Washington school Wednesday evening, after the matter was discussed and the alleged disatisfaction of the teachers because of the increase of school hours was shown to have no foundation as far as the corps of teachers at Quincy Point are concerned.

Of several topics discussed, the principal one was the needs of an enlarged building with an assembly hall. The speakers were School committee men Dr. J. H. Bushnell, Joseph L. McPherson and Arthur W. Newcomb, principal Thomas B. Pollard, Henry Marr, Joseph Thomas and E. P. Barrows.

The program opened with Miss Amy Fallon giving Liszt's "Rhapsodie." Miss Fallon, a graduate of the school and well known to many of the members, received an ovation for her fine interpretation of this classic composition, and her work mentioned by several of the speakers.

Letters of regret were received from Councilman Griffin and Duffy who could not attend.

Arthur W. Newcomb reviewed the struggle of education in the Point district, speaking of the school of yesterday and today, and related several incidents which brought forth laughter. Henry Marr and E. P. Barrows spoke of the needs of a hall, the effort now being made and the possibilities of the anticipations of the Point being realized.

Joseph Thomas dealt mainly with the recent acquisitions to the Thomas Crane Public Library, and Joseph L. McPherson not only added his endorsement to the movement for a school hall, but said that the eyes of West Quincy people were cast longingly in the same direction.

Mr. Pollard discussed promotions and the crowded condition of the buildings. He brought out the fact that one teacher had 52 in her class. He explained the time allotted to domestic science, manual and physical training, now a part of the curriculum and said he was glad of the longer hours insofar as these additions require 35 minutes more actual school time. He reviewed the athletic record of the school, particularly mentioning the three years champion soccer football team of the school.

President Joseph L. Fitton presided. Refreshments were served.

SCHOOL NOTES.

During the present week and next the Superintendent of Schools will be busy each afternoon explaining to the pupils of the eighth grades and to such of their parents as may care to be present, the different courses that the High School, Woodward Institute and the Independent Industrial School have to offer. The method of selecting courses and elective subjects and such other information as may be of value to pupils who are about to leave the grammar schools and enter a new school environment.

The number to enter the High School in September will be larger in all probability than the last entering class. The number to enter Woodward Institute will be smaller because of the change of courses there, while the number to enter the Industrial School is already sufficient to limit applications in some trades. The trades with which this school correlates will include the machinists, joiners, telephone construction, sheetmetal, ship plumbing, pipefitting and ornamental iron work.

GRADUATIONS.

The Superintendent and grammar masters are arranging for the grammar school graduation to be held in four sections on the afternoon of Friday, June 27, at 3 o'clock. The Wollaston and Massachusetts Fields schools will use the Wollaston hall; the Quincy, Montclair, and Gridley Bryant schools will use the Quincy Hall; the Coddington, Atherton Hough and Washington schools will use the Coddington Hall, while the Adams, Cranch, John Hancock, Lincoln and Willard schools will graduate from the High School Hall. The admission will be by ticket and the tickets will be distributed among the graduates pro rata. The entire program will be furnished by the schools with no address, and this year for the first time the pupils will be seated so that the music may be rendered effectively by parts.

SCHOOL SESSION.

The added hours of school session each week brings Quincy on a par with the other cities of the Metropolitan district. For sometime Quincy has tried to do its school work with a shorter school day than any of its neighbors, and there has been no lengthening of session for many years in spite of the fact that provision now has to be made for manual training, physical training, sewing, hygiene and so on. The added half hour each day enables the schools of this city to devote the same amount of time to their work as do the schools of other cities and will be welcomed by all who are genuinely interested in getting the utmost possible school efficiency.

WILLARD SCHOOL.

The girls of the Willard school prevocational class are taught many practical things in English. In oral and written themes they are required to give descriptions of work done in sewing, cooking and design, together with accounts of places visited,—historical, industrial and commercial. Recently, while they were studying the different cuts of meat, in order to make the lesson real, they visited one of the largest stores in Quincy, being received with great courtesy, and every effort was made to impart just the information desired.

Recently a trip was taken to Boston Michael T. Sullivan, representative from Quincy, escorted the party through the State House, showing them all the points of interest. They had the honor of meeting and shaking hands with Governor Foss. A walk through the Common and the Public Garden, amid the blooming flowers, a visit to Faneuil Hall and Quincy Market followed, after which they returned home with material enough for language work for some time to come.

Dr. J. Gardiner Smith, director of physical education, gave a graphonola concert at the Willard school, recently which was greatly enjoyed by both pupils and teachers. Dr. Smith has an exceptionally sweet sounding instrument, and his selections cover the field of opera, oratorio, symphonic and other orchestral music. instrumental solos and the famous songs. The whistling solo, "The Song of the Wood-Bird" rendered by Gaialdini, "The Song of a Nightingale," the song of a real captive nightingale, and the growling of the bears in "The Teddy Bears' Picnic" played by Arthur Pryor's Band proved especially amusing to the children, while the boys were delighted with "Roamin' in the Gloamin'" sung by Harry Lauder. "The Swiss Echo Song," given in a most exquisite way by Tetrazzini, was much appreciated by the teachers.

The Willard school base ball team has played the following practice games: Willard 5; Hancock 0. Willard 1; Montclair 6. Willard 7; Gridley Bryant 0. Willard 2; Montclair 1 (one extra inning.)

QUINCY ADAMS SAWYER COMING.

Quincy Adams Sawyer is coming to Kincaide's Theatre, Tuesday, May 13, for one night only. In the stage production, "the essential feature of Charles Felton Pidgin's famous New England novel of the same name have been followed. It is a distinctly enjoyable piece, both in itself and in the ingeniusly natural work of the people presenting it. There is a laugh almost everywhere despite the tender seriousness pertaining to Alice Pettengill's pathetic figure as the much loved blind girl and to her value as the central feature of the love story. It is a most entertaining picture of rural life.

PUBLIC LIBRARY NOTES.

In connection with the recent intrest about paying tolls on the Panama canal, the Thomas Crane Public library has posted in the main hall a bulletin with pictures and a list of books on Panama and the canal. Besides books on these subjects the list includes periodical articles on the fortification of the canal. Material about tolls may be found in Reader's guide to periodical literature for 1912, near the registration desk.

The bulletin has a photograph of Col. G. W. Goethals, chief engineer of one of Uncle Sam's greatest undertakings, with a picture of his residence in Panama, and also a photograph of Col. W. C. Gorgas, chief sanitary officer who made it possible to build the canal by exterminating the malaria bearing mosquitoes.

There is a map of the Isthmus of Panama and a relief map of the canal with a chart showing the comparative distances that the canal will cut off. There are also interesting pictures of the great Culebra cut, the upper locks at Miraflores, the great gates to hold the water in the locks, and a lighthouse which will stand on the edge of Gatun lake when Gatun dam is closed.

CARD OF THANKS.

To the many societies, relatives and friends, for their kind assistance and words of sympathy in our sad affliction and the expression in flowers, of love for our departed dear one, at the funeral, we return our sincere thanks and appreciation.

Two Teams Shut Out in Grammar League

The Washington and Montclair schools teams won in the Grammar league on Wednesday.

WASHINGTON VICTORY.

Washington beat Quincy in the grammar school league at Merrymount Park Wednesday afternoon, 4 to 0. McDonald, the first baseman and J. Gilcoine, the second baseman scored two runs apiece. A large number of pupils were at the game. The score:

Batteries, Gurney & Thayer; Cullen & White.

MONTCLAIR WINS.

Montclair, through the fine showing of pitcher Cox who fanned 13, beat Wollaston in a grammar school league game Wednesday afternoon, 4 to 0. Merrill the losing pitcher, struck out three. Cox's mark establishes the record for the city, and since the games run but six innings there is every possibility of it standing this season. The score:

Batteries, Cox & Falsberry; Merrill & Luster.

There is more Catarrh in this section of the country than all other diseases put together, and until the last few years was supposed to be incurable. For a great many years doctors pronounced it a local disease and prescribed local remedies, and by constantly failing to cure local treatment, pronounced it incurable. Science has proven catarrh to be a constitutional disease and therefore requires constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, Ohio, is the only constitutional cure on the market. It is taken internally in doses from 10 drops to a teaspoonful. It acts directly on the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. They offer one hundred dollars for any case it fails to cure. Send for circulars and testimonials.

POEHLER WINS TROPHY

Had Big Lead Over Hintze and Atkins

The individual candlepin amateur and professional trophy championship was won by Poehler in the closing session of the National Duck and Candlepin Congress, Wednesday, in Boston. The scores of the three men interested were:

Poehler, 107 113 102 111 96—529
Atkins, 88 89 96 103 105—481

Paul Poehler and Harvey Hintze with 367 each in the candles were tied for first and second place. The local light was also a member of the five man team which secured third place with 1524. John Christopher took the 30 ball, single candlepin event by 25 pins.

Poehler took first in the individual duck pins with 363, was a member of the three-man team which took second place with 980 against 982 for the winning crew.

The Boylston team with Christopher rolling took first in the five-man event with 1594 while the Chauncey slipped into third place, with Poehler bowling, with 1543.

HAS TAKEN UP GOLF.

Charles C. Hearn, one of the well known City Square business men is the latest convert to that popular and fascinating game, or sport, called golf. He has not as yet mastered the fine points of the sport but hopes to soon, in spite of the claim that it takes three years to learn to play a good game. Nothing daunted Mr. Hearn armed with all implements of warfare, or golf, and gowned in a fetching golf suit he started early this noon for the Montclair links, to take his first lesson. He carried a supply of liniment with him as he expected to have his shins barked somewhat. The position of cady has not been definitely settled as yet but he has offered the position to his bosom friend Mark L. Read, Jr., and rumor has it that he will accept.

TODAY'S COURT.

George B. French was sentenced to two months in the house of correction for drunkenness at Weymouth. Sentence suspended until Dec. 19.

Daniel J. Doran was fined $10 for drunkenness at Quincy.

John H. Dee was arraigned for attempt to break and enter at Randolph. After hearing the evidence the case was dismissed.

ROWDYISM ON BALL FIELD

Free-For-All Scrap Between Cleveland Naps and Boston Red Sox

Cleveland, May 8.—Bad blood between the two teams, clearly evident throughout the game between the Boston Red Sox and the Cleveland Naps here yesterday, culminated in a free-for-all fight between the rivals directly after the game.

As a result Infielder Olson of Cleveland is minus several front teeth. The force which dislodged his molars is said to have been the power behind the husky fist of Leslie Nunamaker, the Red Sox catcher.

MOVIES TO DFPICT LIFE OF SOLDIER

Advocated as a Substitute For Recruiting Agencies

Washington, May 8.—Use of the motion pictures of army life as the medium through which the 30,000 men necessary every year for the military establishment might be recruited is advocated by Major Croxton, U. S. A. The officer believes that through the stimulation of interest by the reproduction of actual scenes in camp and field better recruits could be secured, fewer recruiting agencies would be necessary and a great saving to the war department would result.

Croxton's plan would include the display of army films in the picture theatres throughout the country. Each set of films would be accompanied by a persuasive army man well grounded in his subject and capable of putting the advantages of military life in a convincing manner.

The expense of such a plan, according to Croxton, would result in a saving of over the present recruiting method of approximately $300,000 a year.

Home Rule Bill Up Again

London, May 8.—The home rule for Ireland bill was reintroduced in the house of commons by Premier Asquith, and read a first time under the standing order of the house which debars debate. It will come up for second reading on June 2.

Chicago, May 8.—Evanston society girls have organized a baseball team, but they shied at bloomers. Tennis skirts will be worn in action before the public.

C. S. BIRD AT BRAINTREE

Addresses Enthusiastic Rally of Progressive Party

A rousing rally, well attended and highly enthusiastic, was held under the auspices of the campaign committee of the Progressive party of Braintree in Long's hall, Wednesday evening.

The chairman of the committee, William W. Gallagher introduced the speakers. Vocal music was rendered during the evening by the Pilgrim male quartet of Boston and their selections were so tuneful and pleasing that the audience demanded several encores. Jones's orchestra of Boston was also on hand and rendered stirring melodies.

The first speaker was Leonard Martin, of Boston, director of publicity for the party, who spoke of the stirring rally held in Springfield the night before and refuted the statements that the Progressive party was apathetic or disintegrating. Mr. Martin illustrated his remarks with apt and witty stories and displayed unbounded enthusiasm for the cause.

Mrs. Grace A. Johnson of Cambridge spoke concerning the workings of the referendum and the recall in the state of California. Her remarks on child labor in Massachusetts were concise and to the point, showing the urgent need of legislation in this regard. Mrs. Johnson was accorded great applause and was presented with a beautiful bouquet which she gracefully acknowledged.

The entrance of Charles S. Bird of East Walpole, the standard bearer of the party in the last campaign and referred to in the rally as "our next governor," was the signal for an ovation which ended with three deafening cheers and a "tiger."

George R. Dobson of East Braintree sang a song of his own composition entitled "Climbing up the State House stair," and the audience joined in the chorus. Mr. Dobson was applauded so vigorously that he responded with a few more verses.

Miss Hazel Lothrop who presided so acceptably at the piano was presented with a bouquet.

Mr. Bird was then introduced and proceeded to give one of his characteristic speeches in regard to the aims and policies of the Progressive party.

His remarks were clear and convincing and he was applauded to the echo.

Many pledge cards which had been distributed through the audience were filled out for sums, varying from $25.00 to 50 cents and a silver collection was also taken for campaign expenses.

The rally was in charge of the campaign committee which consists of the following gentlemen: William W. Gallagher, George R. Dobson, George D. MacDonald, H. Sands Burgess, Dr. Walter S. Davis and Frederick R. Smith.

There were present a large number of ladies, all of whom seemed to take a keen interest in the proceedings.

The ushers were: Arthur L. Hale, William F. Rogers, Carl P. Lothrop, Arthur W. Drollett, H. Sands Burgess, Arthur Haynes, Dr. Clayton R. Marstin and William B. Summers.

The Quincy circle No. 26, L. O. O. M. will have a social hour after the meeting Thursday evening.

"Throw Out the Life Line"—
Weak kidneys need help.
They're often overworked—don't get the poison filtered out of the blood.
Will you help them?
Read this case:

Mrs. George F. Flanagan, 36 Sixth St. So. Boston, Mass., says: "All I said about Doan's Kidney Pills when I publicly endorsed them two years ago still holds good. They cured a member of my family of backache and this person has recommended them at every opportunity since. The party of whom I am speaking suffered intensely from pains in his back and was finally told that his trouble was caused by disordered kidneys. Doan's Kidney Pills were then used and the contents of one box brought entire relief."

Straw Hats Ready—Wear Them on Saturday

Saturday will open the season for Summer headgear for men. The "Store just around the Corner" is ready with the new ones. They are ultra-smart and splendidly serviceable and will make a hit with men.

They are "cushioned for comfort" with a resilient band and are built to conform to the shape of the head.

Finally, the width of the brim, the height of the crown and the depth of the ribbon is correct.

Men's Mercerized Cotton Shirts, 50c

Plain Negligee Shirts, in a number of variety of striped designs. How many men know that mercerizing a fabric, strengthens it? These shirts are mercerized--therefore strong.

Colonel TODHUNTER of Missouri

By RILEY E. SAUNDERS

Copyright, 1913, by the Bobbs-Merrill Company.

"I've got time enough, Bill," said Colonel Todhunter. "But all my life I've been ready to clinch with any man that tried to mock me or my friend, thinkin' he was down and out, and I'll just be shot full o' holes if I ain't still ready."

Then he read: "'Returns from St Louis just beginning to come in. It is now claimed that Strickland has carried that city. Yancey's managers are charging Randolph Carter, the newly appointed chairman of the board of election commissioners, with unlawfully using his authority in Strickland's behalf. Last night Carter removed many judges and clerks of election, claiming to have proof that they had been appointed to insure Yancey's victory by fraud and appointed others in their places. The chief of police is supporting him by giving the new appointees ample police protection at the polls. Many disturbances at polling places have resulted.'"

"Anybody that feels like hooraying for Strickland now has got my full permission."

"What did I tell you about Randolph Carter and old Chief Stacey, Bill?" he cried. "Didn't I say that I made old Itan feel ashamed of himself and that Chief Stacey was white clear through and would use his policemen in favor of an honest vote if he got half a chance? Yes, suh! I was a-castin' my bread on the waters when I had that there talk with them in St. Louis, and it's comin' back to us after these many days, you mark my words."

There was a joyous cheer from his hearers.

"But Colonel Todhunter himself held up a warning hand. "Don't be too previous, boys. Leave that sort of foolishness to the Yancey crowd that just went prancin' by here if anything of that sort's got to be done. Wait for the figgers before you do any hollerin'."

But Dick Cantrill gave another whoop, notwithstanding. "Here's another bulletin!" he cried. "'It is now said that Strickland has a heavy plurality in St. Louis as a result of the honest count of votes cast. Yancey's managers are claiming fraud.'"

And then the "figgers" began to roll in. The returns from St. Louis by precincts and wards, until now delayed, were at last well in hand. Dick Cantrill read bulletin after bulletin in unbroken succession. Colonel Strickland, with lips compressed, tabulated the vote by wards. Once or twice he nodded significantly to Colonel Todhunter. At last there came a break in the steady stream of returns. Lycurgus Quivey grasped a bulletin from the hands of the Blade's "devil" as the latter rushed in breathless. He handed it to Cantrill.

"'It is now conceded by Yancey's managers,'" he read, "'that Strickland has carried St. Louis by at least 11,000 plurality. With the returns now in from the state, this gives Strickland a total plurality of at least 3,000, with several Strickland counties still to hear from. A conservative estimate indicates that Strickland will be nominated by over 5,000 plurality.'"

"That's reliable," he said. "We've got 'em beat, boys. Anybody that feels like hooraying for Strickland now has got my full permission. It's perfectly safe."

At this moment the little "printer's devil" of the Blade delivered a personal telegram to Colonel Strickland. As the latter read it an expression of the deepest relief and satisfaction sprang into his face.

"Thank God!" he muttered. "I wanted that special piece of news more than anything else in all this world. Here, Thurs, just you read this, my friend!"

Colonel Todhunter took the bit of paper from Colonel Strickland's hand. The message was signed by Governor Leslie. It read:

Due to enthusiasm caused by Tom's acquittal and the public's realization of cowardly fight made on you through him, a popular movement to raise fund covering total deficit in Strickland campaign fund was begun today and successfully completed at our headquarters tonight. Every dollar needed has been subscribed and paid. Reliable election returns now all in show that you are nominated by nearly 5,000 plurality. Congratulations.

Colonel Strickland laughed as gleefully as a boy when Colonel Todhunter glanced up at him from the reading of the telegram.

"That settles it, Thurs!" he cried. "And by the Lord Harry, I'm gladder to know you're safe on the money end of this fight than to know I've been nominated. It's given me more than one sleepless night of worrying, I can tell you!"

"It hasn't made me lose a wink o' sleep," replied Colonel Todhunter calmly. "I know I ain't as religious a man as I ought to be, Bill Strickland, but I got an abidin' faith in the Good Marster up above, all the same. I ain't never doubted he'd see me safe through on that there proposition. He knows the tricks o' that machine gang we're fightin' better'n we do, and he ain't agoin' to let 'em prevail over us!"

Saying which, Colonel Todhunter read aloud that sentence of the telegram authoritatively announcing Colonel Strickland's nomination.

Dick Cantrill's loyal voice led the mighty cheer with which this announcement was greeted. Sim Birdsong's was second only to his. Colonel Todhunter, gulping just once after having read the proclamation of victory, did not join in the cheering. But when Lycurgus Quivey came to him with outstretched hands, he took them in a close grip of his own, his dauntless old eyes showing just a hint of dampness.

"Colonel Todhunter," spoke Lycurgus, "I'm going to write a poem describing this great triumph after seeming defeat—it's the finest thing I ever saw in all my life!"

"Bully for you, Lycurgus!" replied Colonel Todhunter. "And I bet it'll be a rip snortin' good poem, too—that one you wrote at the openin' of the campaign hit the target plumb center, suh!"

THE END.

RANDALL IS CONFIRMED

Minnesota Man Becomes Head of Prisons In Massachusetts

Boston, May 8.—The executive council confirmed the appointment of Frank L. Randall, former superintendent of the Minensota state reformatory, as chairman of the Massachusetts prison commission.

The appointment was sent in three weeks ago by Governor Foss, and a fight against confirmation has been led by Councillor McGregor.

McGregor and Councillor Collins cast the only votes against Randall on the final ballot. Randall will succeed Fred O. Pettigrove.

RELIABLE CLOTHING

The variety of clothing displayed in the windows of Remick's clothing store in Music hall block and the extensive line which occupies the greater portion of his floor, is not only inviting but is convincing that the "House of Kuppenheimer" manufactures neat styles in good material that equal and more often surpass the work of the custom tailor. Patterned in the latest cuts, made so that they adjust to all requirements of the physical man, at a price within the reach, they offer the Quincy residents the opportunity of securing the necessities of life within the limits of their city with a guarantee that the recommendation of the firm is behind the service of gentlemanly salesmen.

Spring suits, particularly grays and blue serges, built so perfectly that they assure full satisfaction form but one part of the clothing display. The demand of the season for Norfolk suits can be met here.

In the shoe department the superior quality of the Queen Quality shoe for Women and the Packard shoe is daily acknowledged by patrons who regularly return for new goods, and an inspection of the furnishings, all late and up-to-date, gives the feeling that home trade is as economical as any proposition confronting the people living in the present.

STILL ALARM.

The auto chemical of the Central station and Chief Litchfield responded on a still alarm at 12.30 Wednesday evening for a fire in a lot of tree stumps on Goffe street. It appears that men had been at work near the place Wednesday burning up rubbish and that the tree stumps took fire. One of the neighbors saw the fire and became alarmed and telephoned the department.

FRED E. HUNT.

The body of Fred E. Hunt, arrived in town this morning. He died at the Jordan hospital, Plymouth, where he was admitted April 24 in an unconscious condition. He was the son of the late Captain Charles N. Hunt. He leaves two brothers John F. Hunt of Atlantic and Howard D. Hunt of Boston. Burial will be in the Mt. Wollaston cemetery.

NOTHING TO CONCEAL

Chief Litchfield Tells Committee Station is Theirs

The special committee of the City Council which is investigating the Fire department dropped in unexpectedly Wednesday evening at the Central station. The men at the station had been out for a drill and had just returned to the station when the committee appeared.

The committee said that it desired to question some of the permanent men, and thought it best to visit the station rather than call the men from duty. Chief Litchfield was present and told the committee to go as far as it liked that the station was theirs. Several of the permanent men were examined.

POOL ROOM FIRE.

The alarm from box 137 at 4.45 this morning was for a lively blaze in the pool room, fruit store and barber shop of G. Grarrusso, at 9 Brooks avenue. The fire evidently started from a saw dust spittoon box in the pool room It is thought that some one threw a lighted cigar or cigarette into the box late at night and that the fire smouldered until morning when it broke out. The pool room, fruit store and barber shop are all located in one room and the place was filled with a black smoke when the department arrived. The fire burned through the side and floor and was going through the roof. It was extinguished however with a loss that will not exceed $100.

GRAND COMMANDER PRESENT.

Two members were initiated and six applications received at the meeting of Dorothy Quincy chapter, United Order of the Golden Cross in Electa hall, Wednesday evening. Grand Commander Walter Powers of Cambridge; Grand Keeper of Records, Walter Crouther of Dorchester and Deputy Grand Commander, H. L. Berry of Quincy were present. Refreshments were served.

HEN CASE IN COURT

Randolph Man Saw Intruder and Fired His Gun

James H. Dee of Randolph was arrested Wednesday by Officer Payne for attempting to break and enter the hen house of Richard Stetson last Sunday night. Mr. Stetson said that he saw a man coming from his hen house and run across the street, that he rushed into the house and loaded his gun and fired into the air to frighten the man. He afterward recognized the man as Dee.

Dee said in court that he and Patrick McDonnell had been together all the evening, that they left McDonnell's home about 9 o'clock and were walking up Belcher street when they heard a shot and bullets whistled by his head into the bushes. He said that he was on the opposite side of the street from the Stetson house and had not been there.

After hearing the evidence the court said that the warrant was faulty and he would dismiss the complaint, but if further evidence was obtained a new warrant might be issued.

KNIFE FORFEITED.

Officer Jerry Hinchon, who patrols the day beat at West Quincy, has determined to put a stop to bicycle riding on the sidewalks and Wednesday afternoon he arrested a young man giving the name of Abel Mier. When searched at the police station a long wicked looking dirk knife was found in his pocket. In court the man was fined $10 for riding the bicycle on the sidewalk, and the knife was ordered forfeited.

The Sacred Heart parish at Atlantic will hold its annual reunion and coffee party tonight at Alpha hall, owing to the fact that there are no large halls in Atlantic. Rev. John P. Cuffe, the pastor and his curate Rev. James F. McNiff have been hard at work on the details for some weeks and a social and financial success is assured. The program includes a fine concert and dancing.

SQUANTUM WOMEN'S CLUB

Whist Parties Planned to Aid Clubhouse

The Squantum Women's Club held its regular meeting Wednesday afternoon at the home of Mrs. Frank Anderson, East Squantum street.

Mrs. Morse chairman of the finance and building committee reported progress in selling bonds. On account of delay caused in securing figures from contarctors figuring on the club house or community house, it was decided to extend the time limit on bonds.

A series of whist parties to be run under the auspices of the Squantum Womens' club the next few weeks ought to add a goodly sum to the club house fund. The first of the series will be held at the home of Mrs. James Foster, Park avenue Wednesday evening, May 14 at 8:00. Tickets may be obtained from the club members.

Mrs.Hiram Morse has offered to open her home forthe second affair to be held on Saturday evening May 24.

Plans are being made to hold a drama in the near future. The entertainment committee are busy deciding on a play. Considering the excellent talent that Squantum has this ought to be a great success.

The next meeting will be at the home of Mrs. William Reed, Bellevue road.

The members present spent a social hour after the meeting and Mrs. Anderson served a dainty lunch assisted by Mrs. William Reed.

BRIEFS

The engagement of Miss Alice E. Nightingale of Granite street and Mr. Malcolm A. McDougall of Water street is announced.

Tariff Measure May Have Hard Sledding In Senate

MODIFICATIONS ARE LIKELY

Free Sugar and Free Wool Provisions Expected to Prevail as Agreed In House—Delay on Wool Schedule Is Sought by Wool Manufacturers—Currency Legislation Sidetracked

Washington, May 8.—It will be June 1 and perhaps later before the senate committee on finance is through with the tariff bill and able to report it back to the senate. This information was conveyed to the president by some of the senate leaders.

Hoke Smith, prominent on the finance committee, was a caller on the president yesterday afternoon. Smith estimates that it will take the committee at least three weeks to get the bill shaped up and reported back to the senate. This means in all probability that it will be Aug. 1 before the tariff bill becomes a law. It may even be later than that.

Many senators think it will take fully two months for the debate in the senate and that the bill will not be through that body before Aug. 1. After it passes the senate, the question of how much time will be taken in conference depends on the importance of the changes made in the senate.

The opinion is growing that there will be many changes in detail in the bill in the senate and that a few important modifications are likely. Free cattle and free wheat have strong backing and stand a good show of being put into the bill in the upper house. Free lemons may prevail in the senate. Sentiment for such a provision is strong, the house having reduced the duty but not putting them on the free list. It is believed free sugar in three years and free wool will prevail in the senate as well as in the house.

With the summer thus used up on the tariff bill, the chances of currency legislation at this session would at least be minimized.

Philip Frankel of Cleveland, attorney for the National Cloak Manufacturers' association, has arrived in Washington to make a fight for an amendment to the tariff bill by which it will be provided that schedule K, the woolen schedule, shall not take effect until six months after the passage of the Underwood measure.

The association he represents urges that manufacturers should have at least that length of time to adjust themselves to the effect of the radical cut in the wool tariffs. Senator Pomerene will try to secure a White House audience for Frankel.

Mann Blocks Bill's Passage

Washington, May 8.—Amid clamor that at times drowned voices of champions and opponents, the tariff revision bill, the first Democratic tariff measure in twenty years, was rushed toward passage in the house at a late hour last night.

Just before 11 o'clock, however, Republican Leader Mann blocked the plan for the immediate passage of the measure on a technicality, delaying action until today and the house adjourned at 11:05 p. m.

MITCHEL TO SUCCEED LOEB

President of New York Board of Aldermen Gets Collectorship

Washington, May 8.—John P. Mitchel, independent Democrat and president of the board of aldermen of New York city, was nominated by President Wilson to be collector of the port of New York to succeed William Loeb, Jr.

This selection brought what the White House termed "a happy solution" to a contest in which New York state leaders of every wing of the party had taken a lively part for the last two months.

Some of his friends say Mitchel has by no means eliminated himself and that the administration will not object if he resigns eventually to become a candidate for mayor of New York.

Blease's Offer of Reward

Columbia, S. C., May 8.—Richard Austin, a negro who recently killed two white men, is so badly wanted that Governor Blease will pay $500 for "enough of the body to be recognized."

SUPPER AT WOLLASTON

Followed by a Very Pleasing Entertainment

A supper and entertainment was given in the parish rooms of St. Chrysostoms church Thursday evening by the Woman's Guild. The supper was fully up to the usual high standard of excellence and in point of service the best ever served. It was a happy thought that limited the sale of tickets to the seating capacity of the rooms. The chairman, Mrs. Herbert H. Albee and her committee were determined to make everyone who bought a ticket feel that he had his full money's worth and that they certainly succeeded, is putting it mildly.

The tables were decorated with red geraniums which after the supper were sold. The menu was creamed chicken in chafing dishes. Virginia cold sliced ham, baked beans, vegetable salad with mayonnaise, rolls, grape and apple jelly, mustard pickles, home made cake, ice cream and coffee.

The committee included: Miss Elizabeth Cook, Mrs. Albert N. Murray, Mrs. Edward F. Parlee, Mrs. Arthur Stanley, Mrs. Alice J. Bainbridge, Mrs. George J. Poch, Mrs. Edwin Coleman, Mrs. Harris and Mrs. Daniel C. Miller.

Mrs. William D. Sanford was in charge of the waitresses:—Mrs. Albert Lowe, Mrs. Frederick S. Waite, Mrs. George P. Parker, Mrs. Frederick L. Bent, Mrs. John E. Walter, Miss Ruth W. Parker, Miss Gladys E. Parlee, Miss Alice Hennigar and Miss Beatrice Buzzell.

The entertainment consisted of vocal solo "Until" by Sanderson, Mrs. Frederick S. Waite; piano solo, "Poet and Peasant" by Suppe, Miss Gertrude E. Allen; vocal solo, "Forgotten" by Cowles, Miss Muriel Wheelen; violin solo, "The Lost Chord" by Strube, Miss Gladys E. Parlee; "Queen of the Earth" by Pinsute, Mrs. Frederick S. SACRED HEART REUNION

But Little Formality---Just An Enjoyable Time

The tenth annual reunion of Sacred Heart parish in Alpha hall on Thursday evening was attended by one of the largest crowds ever seen in the hall. Extra cars carried the numerous guests back and forth from Atlantic and Wollaston throughout the evening. Other parishes in Quincy were well represented.

Rev. John P. Cuffe, pastor of the church, and one of Quincy's most beloved clergyman, had a reunion of his own. Near and dear friends joined in extending the glad hand of congratulation to Father Cuffe.

The affair was under the personal direction of Father McNiff, the curate of the parish. At the persent time Sacred Heart parish embraces a large part of Wollaston and all of Norfolk Downs and Atlantic. Its Catholic population is slightly over 2000.

The guests of the evening were Rev. Fr. Henry T. Grady and Rev. Fr. William J. Duffy of St. Mary's church, Rev. Fr. P. J. Scannell of St. John's church and ex-Mayor William T. Shea and Miss Catherine Shea.

No speeches were delivered, no reception corners provided, neither was there too much formality. All joined in the genuine reunion spirit, enjoyed themselves by dancing, in meeting old friends, or in partaking of the generous supply of refreshments in Union hall.

A concert by the pupils of the Sunday School was rendered during the early part of the evening. Miss May Stevens played several piano selections and Miss Beatrice Costello gave violin selections. Miss Grace McDonald danced the Highland dance and there was a baritone solo by J. W. Bigoness, accompanied by Leon Bigoness. Continual applause greeted the youngsters on the completion of the part of the program.

Dancing was enjoyed, music being by Cuffes orchestra.

The matrons were Mrs. J. C. Bevis, Mrs. Martin F. Burns, Mrs. John Hol-

JUNK YARDS INSPECTED

New Industry Discovered but of Doubtful Value

The Committee on Licenses of the City Council learned much Thursday afternoon as to the manner in which the junk collecting business is being conducted in Quincy, and likewise found a new industry which it is doubtful if even the Board of Trade is aware.

The committee have several applications for junk collectors licenses before them for action, and before they made any report upon them they desired to see for themselves just what the conditions were, in view of the fact that a largely signed petition had been received against granting any licenses outside of a certain district.

The committee made its trip of observation in the police patrol wagon accompanied by Chief Burrell. President Whiton accompanied the party in his own automobile. Aside from these there were several newspaper men who went along to see what was doing.

The party first headed for Main street and thence visited the numerous junk places on South Walnut, Sumner and Cyril streets. They saw many things that were far from being clean, in fact some of the conditions were such that they felt called upon to report what they had found to the Board of Health.

Some of the junk yards, especially those where licenses had not as yet been granted, were found to be immaculate clean, as the visit was evidently anticipated. In other places they found great piles of old iron, newspapers and junk of all kinds scattered about in great confusion. They also learned where many of the cast off automobiles went, for in one place on North street they found a yard where there were dozens of remains of what were once fine automobiles. In this same yard they found stored many tons of old iron, contrary to an ordinance, for which at present there is no penalty for violation, but probably will be soon.

In one Hebrew establishment at Winthrop park they found a pig in the cellar under a stable in a place that was filthy and from which there arose an odor that was anything but perfume. This pig, it was claimed, did not belong to the Hebrew family but to a neighbor.

The appearance of the police automobile and touring car was a nine-days wonder to the district and it was not long before the streets were filled with a large crowd of men, women and children the latter chasing the committee about on foot and on bicycles.

On Sumner street they found a rug factory in full blast. This factory was located in a small barn and the upper and lower floors were many feet deep with pieces of felt with which the beautiful rugs seen in many of the department stores of Boston were made. There was absolutely no ventilation to either of the rooms and the only light came from a window in either end of each floor. Here there were nearly twenty-five men at work, some of whom it was said only landed in this country the first of the week. The conditions were far from being healthy and if an epidemic of disease does not break out in this quarter of the city it will be a wonder.

Cyril street is a particularly unattractive and filthy looking street, and it was remarked several times should a fire ever start in this section and get a good headway it would wipe out the entire district and be a second Chelsea.

From Ward Two the party went to South Quincy, first stopping at the junk shop of Grossman & Son on Jackson street. The conditions here they found to be good as there was some system and order being maintained, and the yard was hidden by a high fence. Many tons of old iron and junk were stored here, waiting for the market to turn before it was shipped.

The party then went along Water street making a stop near the passage way leading over the brook to the John Hancock school yard. The appearance of the police auto was the signal for a large gathering. Hardly had the cars come to a stop when the street seemed to be alive with children and grown people including women with babies in arms running to where the cars had stopped. They evidently thought that a raid or something of that nature was in progress, and the jabbering of the crowd, which was evidently asking questions was deafening for a minute. The crowd remained until the party left.

It was now after six o'clock, and having seen all that they desired, the trip was called off and the committee adjourned to Thompsons restaurant for supper. A meeting of the committee was held in the evening.

ON TERMS OF FRIENDSHIP

Officials Attend Anniversary of Street Railway Men

The 11th anniversary of the Quincy Branch of Street Railway Employees was observed in New Colonial hall, Thursday evening. The affair took the form of an open night, the guests being the officials of the Bay State Street Railway Co.

President John Faircloth presided, and gave a short sketch on the growth of the organization, the unusually fair attitude of the company to the men, and related the change of conditions brought about through conferences with the officials. He brought out the fact generally known to many employees that the Bay State Street Railway officials and the men in their employ are on intimate terms of friendship.

The speakers and guests were President Patrick Sullivan; W. A. Rice, chief claim agent; John T. Conway, superintendent of the Quincy division; W. B. Hall, superintendent of Braintree; John Kelly, Quincy claim agent; Thomas H. Gammons, superintendent at Quincy; Timothy Donovan, Superintendent at Weymouth; J. Gallagher of the schedule department.

It was the second time in history of state railway organization that the members and officials fraternized. Speeches were delivered by the guests on railway management, accidents and useful information was disturbed in various ways. A great portion of the talk was illustrated by stereopticon.

Nearly 275 attended, many members of out of town locals being present. A social hour followed and refreshments were served.

INTERESTING TALK ON BIRDS

By Mrs. Pfaffmann at Cranch School Meeting

The fifth meeting of the Cranch School Parents' and Teachers' Association was held Thursday night. Mrs. George E. Pfaffmann, a bird enthusiast, Arthur Newcomb member of the school committee, Dr. J. G. Smith, Miss Gertrude Allen and Mrs. Henry Tourtelout all helped to make a program of unusual interest.

Mr. Burgin, the president, announced that the next meeting would be the annual meeting, at which time there would be the election of officers. The following nominating committee was appointed, Albert Schenkelberger, Mrs. Andrew Deane, and Andrew Stewart.

The musical program consisted of solos by Miss Gertrude Allen, accompanied by her sister, Mrs. Henry Tourtelout. Her sweet and pleasant voice, so pleased the audience that they called for many encores.

The speaker of the evening, Mrs. Pfaffmann, gave an interesting and instructive talk about birds, assuring all that much joy and pleasure came from the knowledge of birds; their workings, habits, and songs. Mrs. Praffmann read some of the bills passed and pending in the legislature for the protection of migratory and resident birds. These showed the pecuniary and economic value of our winged friends. The speaker showed the need of protecting the birds for their great work of destroying insects.

Then the speaker told of the pleasure coming from the appreciation of the birds. "When you realize that one enthusiast knows as many as one hundred and twenty different species that were seen in this vicinity, you may rightly think you are travelling with your eyes and ears closed." It is wrong to think that it is necessary to go to the deep woods to see the birds, the best places are on the edges of woods and on the roadsides.

Mrs. Pfaffmann told of the plans of other countries, especially Germany, had made for the protection of birds. Interesting the school children in this work has proved very effective. Feeding birds during the blizzards and providing bird houses in the early spring, well repay the bird enthusiast.

Mrs. Pfaffmann then named the birds in her own list, giving their descriptions and interesting habits, with some good anecdotes about the occasion of seeing them. The books help-

TARIFF ON GRANITE.

Our granite manufacturers who are protesting against the proposed reduction of the protective tariff on manufactured granite should not imagine for a moment that their case is an exceptional one. It is only one of many.

While Quincy suffers in its granite industry, Brockton and Lynn will suffer because of free shoes, and Lowell Lawrence, Fall River and New Bedford because textile goods can be brought in at lower rate.

The Textile club say there is alarm all over New England over the drastic provisions of the Wilson-Underwood bill, which will bring nothing but calamity for a large number of New England industries. Here is a section of resolutions which the club adopted at Manchester this week:

"We are asked by the party in power to open wide our gates to cheap labor, wherever it may be, and to encourage the foreign manufacturers to pour their commodities into this country for the sake of a competition which is not needed, as it is already strained to the limit, and which will eventually destroy our American industries and prosperity."

The workings of a lower tariff on granite were clearly seen some years ago, when it was possible to ship rough Quincy granite as ballast to Scotland, have it manufactured there, and shipped back to this country to sell at a lower price than Quincy manufacturers would sell it. This was possible because labor abroad was paid much less than here. Since the increase in the tariff on granite, wages here have been increased. Shall they be reduced to compete with foreign labor under the proposed bill? Not only will wages be less but there will be less work.

The prospects of any amendment to the granite schedule in the proposed bill are not good, but nevertheless a strong protest should be sent from Quincy. Not alone by the Granite Manufacturers Association and the National Granite Cutters Union, but the Board of Trade, the Citizens Associations, the Mayor and the City Council.

It was the late John Shaw who more than anyone else secured the increase on granite in the McKinley bill and his efforts were appreciated. Who will rise now to help the granite industry secure fair play. It is very necessary that cities and towns shall have successful industries. More important we believe than low prices on commodities.

It is impossible to satisfy all the people all the time. Now the purveyors of food and clothing are complaining bitterly of the approaching "low cost of living."

Does the higher education pay? Well, just consider the large and growing number of university graduates who have succeeded in connecting with the major leagues.

Newest skirts for women have pockets in them just like a man's. Well, anyway they will never contain plugs of chewing tobacco.

Even if the "day of judgment" be a mistake as Prof. Paul Haupt says it is there is no doubt that rent day comes around the first of the month.

Sir Cecil Arthur Spring—Rice is not a "ouida" hero, as his name indicates, but the new British ambassador to the United States.

Still, if the literary reformers do away with hyphens, what will become of Ernest Thompson; Seton, of Wyndyghoul-by-the-sea?

Scientists are now claiming that the magnetic poles have shifted. If this be true, there's a chance for old Doc. Cook yet.

SCHWAB THE STEEL MAKER

Adams Writes That He is For Expansion

The Boston News Bureau quotes the following comments on great men in a New York letter by Adams, which are of local interest:

"Charles M. Schwab is living this winter in his big house on Riverside Drive. The previous two winters he has spent putting Bethlehem Steel Works in order for expansion. He pays the highest prices for steel men in the United States. It is said that his average wages are nearly $1000 per man, or more than is paid to workers in any other steel plant in the world, but he makes the best steel in the world and he is capturing the structural steel business.

"His purchase of Fore River Shipbuilding Co. shows that he is still in the line of expansion. In fact he prefers to expand rather than pay dividends on Bethlehem Steel stock.

"If he had the ambitions of Carnegie he might make as much money, but Schwab, I understand, has no desire for more money. He just wants to do his level best and help everybody along without weakening them. He is very sensitive to newspaper attacks and because of publicity has had to curtail many of his charities.

"Schwab never protests against anything that is in the public interest. He even pays taxes of more than $40,000 a year upon his residence on Riverside Drive without a protest or request for a reduced assessment. His house and grounds cover 31 city lots; an entire square. The land cost him $1,000,000 originally and is probably worth two or three times that now. His ambition in this respect is some time to sell the land for as much as the land and house cost; not that he cares for the money, but he would like to have his judgment on Riverside Drive real estate justified."

In an interview with a Boston paper President Schwab was quoted as follows relative to the future policy of the Fore River shipyard at Quincy.

"I don't know just what policy will be actually entered upon yet; at least my mind is not wholly made up as to the immediate situation. I shall evolve a plan that will certainly be in keeping with my past policy of going ahead. I will be back in Boston next week with something 'up my sleeve,' for by that time I will have outlined some forward plan involving both the Bethlehem works and the Fore River property. We never stand still in our business, you know!"

FINED FOR ASSAULT.

A case similar to the Rounds case at Cambridge a few days ago, where a brother of a young lady stabbed another young man, whose attentions to his sister he resented, took place in Atlantic last Tuesday, when it is alleged that John McPherson assaulted Willis Perham of Neponset. Perham, according to the story told in court, was talking to McPherson's sister on the evening in question, when McPherson came along, and after some words is alleged to have struck Perham and knocked him down. McPherson told the court that Perham made a pass at him and that he only struck in self defense. The girl said that she had known Perham about a week. The court found McPherson guilty and imposed a fine of $10 and continued the case on probation until July 24.

"This Is Our Store"
We hope to hear the people saying this more and more, for surely it is the people's store. No person having business with us shall be discontented after we know the reason why and do our best to undo the discontent.

SQUANTUM NOTES.

Among those who have opened their summer homes for the season are Mr. and Mrs. George Hersey, Mr. and Mrs. Andrew Wallace, Mr. and Mrs. William Reed, Mr. and Mrs. Edward Eagar, Mr. and Mrs. Chappele and Mr. and Mrs. Sturgis Wood.

Mrs. Louise Osborne Holt is spending two weeks with friends in New York.

The Squantum Improvement Association are holding weekly rehearsals in preparation for a minstrel show to be given in June. The proceeds are to be donated to the Squantum Women's Club.

The many friends of Mr. Edward Eagar are pleased to see him out once more after an illness of three weeks.

Miss Phyllis Bostwick has as her house guest, Miss Genevive Cliff of Denver, Col.

Theatre goers will be familiar with Miss Cliff's name as she has appeared in Boston in a number of successful plays. Miss Cliff has just closed a brilliant season with James K. Hackett and leaves for Denver June 1, to play leading roles in a stock company.

THREE TO TWO SCORE

Eleven Innings Necessary But Quincy Defeated Weymouth

Quincy, through the usual base ball ability of its pitcher, "Les" Andrews, won an 11 inning game from Weymouth High at Merrymount Park Thursday afternoon, 3 to 2.

"Les" gave Quincy the lead in the second innings by sending the ball to deep right for a homer whic scored "Bull Moose Brown from second and in the 11th innings, with two strikes, three balls, and two out, he smashed the ball to left for another homer. Both went to Hancock street and were the two longest drives ever made at the field.

In addition to that, Andrews secured 10 strikeouts, passed only four men, allowed but five hits, made two assists and acted throughout with the confidence of a veteran.

Quincy played a faultless game, backing up the game spirit of their pitcher in a manner never before equaled by a local high school team, and Captain Brown, in centre, pulled down two drives which would have spoiled Quincy's victory. One was for the third out in the 10th innings with a man on second and third. Paul Larkin came across with two pretty assists in the latter part of the game and "Les" struck three out in the two extra innings.

Condrick made a pretty catch in right after a long run which retired Quincy in the 10th. Bates also scooped one in the 11th that spoiled prospects for the minute.

Weymouth played good ball and both runs were earned. Gorman and Gloster secured two hits apiece, the other going to the credit of pitcher Monroe.

The large crowd of rooters went frantic when "Les" crossed with the winning tally and swarmed about him in an excited manner. The modesty of the best all round athlete in Quincy High overcame their enthusiastic demonstration.

The game was one feature of high school days which will be remembered by all who were in the lineup.

There is more Catarrh in this section of the country than all other diseases put together, and until the last few years was supposed to be incurable. For a great many years doctors pronounced it a local disease and prescribed local remedies, and by constantly failing to cure local treatment pronounced it incurable. Science has proven catarrh to be a constitutional disease and therefore requires constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, Ohio, is the only constitutional cure on the market. It is taken internally in doses from 10 drops to a teaspoonful. It acts directly on the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. They offer one hundred dollars for any case it fails to cure. Send for circulars and testimonials.

GRAMMAR SCHOOL LEAGUE

Victory for Lincoln, Granch and Willards

The Willard School base ball team easily defeated the Massachusetts Fields nine, Thursday at Merrymount Park. The boys from the quarry district out-batted, out-fielded, and proved themselves better base runners than their opponents. Egan, the West Quincy southpaw, had the Fields aggregation at his mercy, thirteen of the twenty-two men who faced him fanning the cool air from the Neponset river. Two hits were made off of his delivery, and he allowed only two to draw passes. He was ably supported by Rheinhalter who caught in superb style, besides making the only three base hit of the game. Marini, Wallace and Callahan also did some heavy hitting. Egan received perfect support.

SPANISH WAR VETERANS' BILL

Needs But One More Vote to Pass Over Veto

Representative Leslie's bill to give Spanish War veterans a five per cent preference in civil service examinations may pass the House today. Thursday the vote was 141 to 71 on passing the bill over veto of Gov Foss lacking just one vote of the necessary two-thirds. Announcement was made that a motion to reconsider would be moved.

By a vote of 129 to 89 the House engrossed the bill which raises the age from 14 to 15 years, at which children may leave school to go to work.

Gov. Foss sent a veto Thursday on the bill to increase the wages of laborers employed by Metropolitan boards. He would leave it discretionary with the board.

The Senate received a report referring electrification of railroads to the next Legislature.

The new draft of the "Red Flag" bill has been agreed upon. It provides that no red or black banner, ensign or sign, having upon it any inscription opposed to organized government, or which is sacrilegious or which may be derogatory to public morals, shall be carried in any parade in this Commonwealth.

IN FAVOR OF DEPRESSION

The executive committee of the Wollaston Citizens Association voted Thursday evening in favor of the depression of tracks in connection with the grade crossing abolition proposition, and to ask that the roadbed at the Atlantic station either be oiled or covered with fair sized crushed stone.

Arrangements were also completed for a ladies night at Brasees hall on May 30. An entertainment by professional talent and dancing will be the program. The committee is Theodore C. Du Plessis, J. A. Severance, George B. Curran, Chester W. Carlisle. The meeting was held at the home of President William G. Sanford on Belmont street.

FIRE DEPARTMENT DRILLS.

Chief Engineer Litchfield has adopted a plan of putting the several fire companies of the city through a drilling exercise. The first drill was held Wednesday evening when the Central station men were out. Thursday night the chief visited the station at Quincy Point and the men there were drilled. The chief said this morning that later he hoped to have a contest between the different companies and still later a contest between the permanent and call men of the department.

STILL ALARM.

The Central station auto chemical and Chief Litchfield responded on a telephone call at 9.35 Thursday night for a fire in a small building on the premises on Spear street occupied by Dr. Clarence Underwood. The building was one that had been made of packing boxes and was evidently intended for a play house, but was now being used as a kind of catch all, for it was full of old papers, etc. Just how the fire started is not known but it was burning briskly when the department arrived and was completely destroyed. The loss was small.

MISS JOSSELYN.

Funeral services for Miss Maria C. Josselyn were held Thursday afternoon at her brother's Robert Josselyn where she had made her home since last fall. The services which were conducted by Rev. A. L. Hudson were simple and brief in accordance with wishes often expressed by Miss Josselyn. The body was taken to Forest Hill crematory. The beautiful floral tributes were silent tokens of love and esteem.

Miss Josselyn with her two sisters, Misses Melissa and Helen who died a few years ago, had made their home in Wollaston for 25 years, at 117 Standish avenue. Any reference to the charm and worth of their characters must be couched in singularly modest phrases to be in sympathy with the simplicity of their lives, but their warm hearted loyalty made them beloved by all who knew them.

COMPLIMENTARY BANQUET.

Rev. Fr. John J. Coan tendered the cast of the "Suffragettes" a banquet in the Parochial hall Thursday evening in recognition of their work in their amateur production which netted a large sum of money. Solos were rendered by Miss Catherine Brown and Miss Helen Welsh, and dancing was enjoyed, music being furnished by John Mahon. A short speech was made by Father Coan after Miss Jennie Griffin had formally presented him with the proceeds.

THEIR PLACES FILLED.

The places of the few I. W. W. machine riveters at the Fore River who walked out because two of their union men were discharged, have been filled. The men leaving work in no way interferred with the progress of work at the plant, and no attention was paid to the men leaving by the company.

FIREMEN ON VACATIONS.

The vacation season of the permanent men of the Fire department has commenced and two men are now enjoying their two weeks vacation. They are William Leahy of the Central station and A. L. Mead of the Quincy Point station. During the vacation season Chief Litchfield has appointed under the civil service rules, the following men for temporary permanent men, Edward F. Lane, Clarence Metcalf and Chester W. Foster.

BRIEFS

William M. Marden, court officer at the Quincy district court is having a few days vacation this week.

Joshua Q. Litchfield, formerly a master of the Wollaston school, is head master of the Agassiz school at Jamaica Plain where the children went on a strike this week.

Commissioner Tupper has commenced work in earnest oiling the streets and about all of the streets mentioned in the schedule passed by the City Council have received their first treatment.

The lawn tennis building which has been located at the foot of Whitney road is on its way to its new location on Adams street. Thursday night it had reached a point near the corner of Greenleaf and Hancock streets.

Mrs. Willam H. Kellogg died of Thursday at the residence of her daughter, Mrs. Clara E. Tetrell of 52 Prospect street, Atlantic. She formerly resided at Wilbraham where the body will be taken on Saturday for burial.

BRIEFS

Lieut. Commander C. A. Abele of the navy has been ordered to report at the naval torpedo station at Newport, R. I., May 15.

The piece of tarvia road on Hancock street infront of City Hall which was recently built was given its finishing coat of top dressing this morning.

Granite Conclave, Independent Order Heptasophs, acted on four applications Thursday evening. At the next meeting three initiations will be conducted by Archon Edward Brown. A social hour followed.

Quincy Ladies circle, No. 26, L. O. O. M., held a well attended meeting in Electa hall, Thursday evening. Four were initiated and five applications for membership were received. Plans for a gentlemen's night were discussed during the evening. A luncheon was served.

H. G. Beeman of Botolph street was called to Ellecottesville, N. Y., Tuesday by the death of his mother.

Frank E. Badger has been confined to his home on Clive street by illness.

Patrick Bryon, son of Mr. and Mrs. John Byron of Payne street, expects to be able to enter his classes at the Parochial School on Monday. He sustained a broken hand while catching in a class game in the school yard Monday and is the second boy in the city to meet with an accident in a game this season.

Among the local artists that appeared at a social in the Pearl street hall, South Braintree, Thursday evening, was the Granite City quartette, composed of Matt Fay, Philip Savard, George Davey and Adolph Restelli. Miss Frances Donahue sang and there were violin solos by Miss Alice Barry. Coughlin Bros. presented their Irish dancing sketch and William Shea an original monologue.

A night with the sculptors, a novelty act in which three women pose in well known art groups is the feature act at Kincaides Theatre this week. Groups, well known to many because of the many photos that have appeared, are presented in a setting of marked beauty. Thursday evening the appreciation of the audience was very evident.

BIG DAMAGES CLAIMED.

George H. Lowe, Jr., of Braintree has entered a suit against the New Haven railroad for $40,000 for injuries which he claims to have received to his leg while a passenger on the company's car, which was derailed. The suit is entered in the superior court.

Vol. 28 No. 110 — QUINCY MASS., SATURDAY EVENING, MAY 10, 1913 — PRICE TWO CENTS

NEW BRIDGE AT GRANITE AVENUE

Bill Will Be Favorably Reported in Legislature For $70,000

Will Cost the City of Quincy Upwards of $7,000

(Special to the Ledger.)

State House, May 9, 1913. The Committee on Roads and Bridges voted in executive session today to report favorably on the Quincy Board of Trade bill providing for a new bridge at Granite Avenue connecting that thoroughfare with Dorchester, the petition for which was filed by Representative William J. Leslie last March. The bill has the backing of the entire Dorchester delegation in the House and Senate as well the two Quincy representatives and the Board of Trade of Quincy.

Representative John Dwyer, of Weymouth, has charge of the bill he being the only Norfolk county man on the committee. He will present a new draft of the bill which will provide as follows:

The new bridge will be built at an estimated cost of $70,000. The cost is to be borne by the counties of Norfolk and Suffolk, the city of Quincy and the town of Milton. The counties are to pay 40 percent each, while the municipalities are to bear 10 per cent each. It is provided that in the event of a street car company laying tracks across the bridge, the company will be assessed 25 per cent of the total cost and this will be rebated to the original payers apportioned as follows, County of Norfolk, 10 per cent and the county of Suffolk, City of Quincy and town of Milton each 5 per cent. It will therefore be to the advantage of the tax payers to get the street car company to connect the tracks on either end of the bridge.

Another new clause will make the Mayor of Boston, the Mayor of Quincy, the chairman of the Norfolk County Commissioners and the chairman of the board of Selectmen of Milton as the commision which will have charge of the construction of the new bridge. Further it is stated that the commission will be an unpaid one.

Representative Dwyer will report the early part of next week in the House, and but little opposition is anticipated.

WELCOMED AT SHIPYARD

Chamber of Commerce Men Inspect the Plant

The "Under Forty Division" of the Boston Chamber of Commerce have an ideal day for their visit to the Fore River Ship yard. The trip is the first warm weather outdoor expedition of the season. The party will come from Boston on the ferryboat Newton and will be served a luncheon on board the boat. The visit is on an invitation of President Bowles who will be on hand to welcome the party.

The committee in charge of the excursion are: William Minot, president A. E. Dodd, vice president, and the governing board, W. B. Binnian, John H. Devine, Ralph S. Fickett, Stephen S. Fitzgerald, Clarence G. McDavitt, Arthur W. Rayner, William J. E. Sander, John R. Simpson and Morton C. Tuttle.

K. OF C. CONVENTION.

The State convention of the Knights of Columbus will convene at Springfield on Monday. Grand Knight, Bernard M. O'Neil and Past Grand Knight Charles J. McGillvray will represent Ave Maria Council, and Grand Knight, Michael T. Walsh and Past Grand Knight, Edward D. Barrett will be the delegates of Quincy council. Monday evening a fourth degree ball will be given the delegates.

THE WOMEN'S AUXILIARY

Receive Letter of Appreciation From the Y. M. C. A.

The Women's Auxiliary to the Y. M. C. A. held its regular monthly meeting in Association Hall, yesterday. Mrs. Benjamin A. Willmott led the devotional exercises, Mrs. Frank Moore sang very sweetly "Jesus Lover of My Soul," Mrs. Walter Emery at the piano.

Officers for the coming year were elected as follows:

President,—Mrs. Edwin I. Beale.

Vice Presidents,— Mrs. William F. Cummings. Mrs. Eben W. Sheppard, Mrs. Robert J. Cranshaw, Mrs. Gilbert Miller and Mrs. William S. Sayward.

Secretary.—Mrs. William F. Hodgkinson.

Corresponding Secretary — Mrs. David H. Goodspeed.

Treasurer—Mrs. Louis La Rose.

Two letters were read, one from the board of directors and one from the senior members of the Y. M. C. A. both expressing their appreciation of work done by the auxiliary.

Frederick Kenyon Brown (Al Friddy), author of "Through the Mill," spoke on "How a boy thinks on religious and social things." Telling very interestingly of his own life as a boy in a mill town with no advantages, not even the common school education. It would be well to have Mr. Brown come to Quincy at some future date and address our "employed boys."

PROTEST ON GRANITE TARIFF

Manufacturers, Cutters and Business Men Alarmed Over Situation

Letters and Data Will Be Sent to Washington

In response to an invitation from the Granite Manufacturers' Association ,the special committee of the Board of Trade and a committee from the Granite Cutters Union met Friday evening in the rooms of the Manufacturers' Association to discuss the proposed duty on dressed granite as provided in the new tariff bill which has now passed the National House of Representatives and is now before the Senate.

It was thought at first that the three associations should combine and send a letter of protest setting forth that the reduction in the tariff on granite as proposed would open the ports of foreign countries to competition with New England, that New England would be in no condition to meet that competition and as a result the effect would be disastrous on this industry.

The gentlemen present talked the subject over in an informal way and it was finally decided that each association should individually send a protest. It was deemed advisable to send these letters as soon as possible but it seemed necessary to get some statistics before they were sent that the matter might be presented in as favorable a manner as possible. It will therefore not be possible to forward these letters today, but it is hoped that they may be forwarded early in the week.

As now planned letters will be sent to Senators Lodge and Weeks and also to the Ways and Means committee of the United States Senate.

It was generally agreed by the gentlemen present that a reduction in the tariff as proposed would mean ruination of the granite business as far as New England and Quincy in particular was concerned.

It was pointed out that at the time of the last revision of the tariff that it was tried out and learned for a positive fact that even with a duty as low as 30 per cent that it would be possible to ship granite from Quincy to foreign countries, have it cut and shipped back to Quincy at a less expense than it would be possible to

ADVERTISING QUINCY.

The only location we have heard mentioned for the proposed electric sign to advertise Quincy is at Atlantic near the Neponset bridge. But why at Atlantic? People travelling by train to Boston will not see it until they have almost got out of town. Not until they have passed the five Quincy stations. Then they will think that Neponset is Quincy.

If people are coming from Boston and are awakened by the glare of the sign—"Quincy—Watch Us Grow"—they will have time to doze off for another map before they really reach Quincy, the city of Presidents, granite and shipyards.

The proposed sign should be erected as near City Square as possible so that it may be seen by passengers on the street cars as well as passengers on the steam railroads. The Daily Ledger could suggest that it be located in front of the Coliseum so that it may be read from Depot street, Hancock street, the grounds of the First church and even Washington street and Coddington street, or when Saville street is closed it could be located near the present crossing just west of the railroad. If the Faxon property near the residence of Dr. Garey is to remain open the sign could be located in the rear of the houses on Upland road at this point.

If located east of the railroad it should also be east of Hancock street to be read from both street cars and the steam railroad. Perhaps J. S. Swingle "the extra dark man" would like it on the front or top of his house or it could be located near the First church opposite Depot street, facing a little to the north.

If the sign was designed more to attract the attention of street car passengers than railroad travellers it would not be so difficult to select a location, and it need not be so large and expensive.

No one seems to be taking very seriously the investigation of the Fire department, for there have been no charges of mismanagement or inefficiency. The department may be handicapped by a small force of men and a small appropriation for general expenses, but that is not the fault of the chief or his assistants or the firemen. The absence of large fires in Quincy attests to the efficiency of our fire department.

When hundreds and thousands of young men and young women are expending large sums to obtain an education at colleges and other schools, it ill becomes children or their parents to remonstrate against the opportunity to obtain a half hour's extra instruction per day, now afforded by the Quincy schools. The actual number of hours in our public schools in a year is very small.

British women are not very successful as yet with their dynamite bombs, but perhaps they will exercise their womanly patience and remember that practice makes perfect.

Bryant an Clark have buried the hatchet, but they had better be searched for stilettos and brass knuckles.

The great German gun kings, the Krupps have made commercialized warfare a more important consideration than dollar diplomacy.

Civil service is a great protection, but the American farmer points with pride to the length of time Hon. James Wilson managed to hold on without it.

Senator Vardman clings to the idea that the Constitution of the United States consists of the fifteenth amendment.

"Writing novels does not pay very well nowadays," says a writer. Is that so? Well, neither does reading 'em.

Today's failure may mean tomorrow's success.

PROTEST

have the granite dressed here in Quincy.

In New England the wages of the granite cutters have been constantly increasing so that at the present time the wage is more than twice as large as the wages paid in Scotland where the usual rate is $1.35 a day and has been for some time, for increases in wages there are very few and far between. Then again it was pointed out that the cost of all necessities there were much less than in the United States where the tendancy of the times is not only to raise the wages of the employees but the price of all commodities at a corresponding rate.

Many thousand hands are employed at the present time in the granite industry, receiving what is known as a living wage and if it becomes possible to have work done on the other side cheaper than in Quincy it can not mean other than to force many thousands of these men to seek employment in other lines.

The natural result will be that this industry will receive a black eye and be practically put out of business.

Granite men can not understand why it is that congress, or at least osme of the congressmen seem desirous of legislating against New England, but it seems to be the plan to ruin New Englands industries in order to build up the industries of the west.

The manufacturers regret that they were not able to make their protest to the National House of Representatives before the bill was passed by that body, but it was not possible. It is hoped however that they may be able to do something with the Senate, and they are assured that Senators Lodge and Weeks will do all that is possible to keep the tariff on dressed granite at 50 per cent instead of reducing it to 25 per cent as now proposed.

At the meeting Friday evening all of these points were fully discussed in an informal manner, and the letters that are to be forwarded were outlined and will be put into shape just as soon as it is possible to get at the data desired.

The only people that would derive a benefit from the reduction in the tariff would be the wholesale men who would be able to find another market from which to obtain their product and would be able to undersell Quincy in every instance.

Granite monuments are in a nature of a luxury, and while there are some who will demand a certain kind of granite, the great majority of purchasers have no preference and one granite is as good as another to them, even at the time when the price is comparitively the same. Just as soon however as it becomes possible to buy a foreign monument for less than half what it is possible to buy one of Quincy granite, it can readily be seen that Quincy granite will be a drug on the market as far as monuments are concerned.

MARTHA SOCIETY.

The first annual meeting of the Martha Society of the Finnish Congregational church was held at the church Thursday evening. Mrs. W. S. Pyyne was chosen president.

The object of the society is to assist Finlanders in all ways. A pleasing report told of the erection of a small cottage for a Hingham Finlander who has been inhabiting a very small building since his home and furnishings were entirely destroyed by fire.

Rev. Mr. Lillback addressed the society and complimented them on their work. He thanked them for their assistance in church circles and pledged his co-operation.

Sunday will be observed as "Mothers day" at the Hall Place M. E. church. In the morning there will be appropriate services and a special program in the evening. Miss Helen Martin will lead the Epworth League devotional meeting at 6.15.

GIFT TO THE LIBRARY

Quincy Women's Club Fresent a Reflectoscope

The Thomas Crane Public Library has received a very substantial and most acceptable gift from the Quincy Women's club through its Literature and Library Extension committee.

The promised reflectoscope came last week and is known as the opaque Balopticon, a device for opaque projection upon a screen eight feet square at a distance of about twenty feet with most satisfactory results. The machine with accompanying screen was sent to the West Quincy reading room and the necessary electrical connections made in season for a demonstration Friday evening before the members of the Committee and Library officials.

The educational advantages of this instrument, its scope and possibilities were quite a revelation. For not only postcard projection, but illustrations printed matter, in book form, periodical literature, and newspaper clippings were clearly shown upon the screen.

DISTRICT COURT.

Etefka Jakstier was arraigned for assault on Amelia Adukonis at North Weymouth. She was fined $5.

Irwin W. Kresser was fined $25 for exceeding the automobile speed limi at Milton. Appealed.

Richard Stetson was arraigned for assault with a dangerous weapon or James M. Dee and Patrick McDonnell at Randolph. He was found guilty on each complaint and fined $10 on each

The continued case of James Single for non support was called and he was fined $25, said amount to be turned over to his wife.

The liquors seized from Lea Wardhauer at Holbrook were forfeitted.

FINED FOR NON SUPPORT.

The case of James Single, who was in court last week for non support came up this morning. The day following his arraignment in court Single was found in a barn near the old Wendell quarry at Quincy Neck in a serious condition as a result, as he claimed, of having been given a kicking by relatives of his wife. The services of a physician were required, who found that he had been severely kicked in the stomach. After receiving treatment he was taken to his home in West Quincy.

No arrests have as yet been made in the alleged assault case. This morning in court he was found guilty of non support and was fined $25, which the court ordered turned over to his wife toward her support.

The Makaria baseball team went to Everett today to play the Marshall class of the Congregational church.

Frank E. Rogers formerly of Quincy, and now of Marshfield, was taken to the Jordan hospital in Plymouth on Sunday for an operation and is resting comfortably.

ACCIDENT ASSOCIATION

Fore River Workmen and Officials on Board

The election of officers of the Accident Association of the Fore River Ship Building Co., was held Friday. The company, through the pay of a weekly premium, has furnished protection for many injured workmen. On the board of directors there are six workmen, three foremen and three officials. The officers are:

President—Henry A. Marr of shipwright department.

Secretary-treasurer — Joseph A. Sedgwick, treasurer of Fore River Co.

The board of directors and their departments are as follows: Edward S. Welsh, of the ironworkers, Frank J. Duffy of the time keepers, John W. Grady of the joiners, Henry A. Marr, of the shipwrights, William A. Godfrey of the shipwrights, John B. Russell of the riggers, Frank Backman of the painters, William H. Lennon of the ironworkers, John L. Clinton of the electricians, John J. Crane of the executive staff, Joseph A. Sedgwick the treasurer and John B. Hart, time keepers.

NEW STREET RULES.

Monday evening will be an off night for the City Council, but it is probable that the meetings from now on will be busy ones as under the new rules of the Council all street matters must be reported this month. That is matters calling for an appropriation of money for street work. Under these same rules all orders for street rebuilding or construction introduced after the present time must be referred to the next City Council.

BILL OF EXCEPTIONS.

Chester A. Boynton who lost his $25,000 suit against Rev. William B. Ayres for alleged alienation of his wife's affections has filed a bill of exceptions with the Superior Court, asking that they review the case and order a new trial. The first trial lasted several days. Mr. Boynton contends that excluded testimony will have a tendency to change the finding.

NORFOLK TO BOSTON.

Capt. Bryon Miller of Appleton street, Atlantic left Norfolk, Va., on Sunday to bring the cruising motor boat Amalcho to Neponset. With him are Charles Braumback, Charles H. Ramsdell, Richard Tomforde and Charles J. Martell. They reached New York safely on Wednesday, coming by the inland route, first to the mouth of Patuxent river. Chesapeake bay, Elk river, canal to Delaware City on the Delaware river, passing Philadelphia, and Burlington to the Raritan canal across New Jersey to Perth Amboy and thence to New York.

Capt. Miller writes: "Wednesday dawned bright and clear with a slight invigorating chill. The Raritan canal took us by successive elevating locks into the hills of New Jersey where during our passage over the celebrated water highway from the Delaware River to the coast we had an inspiring view of the beautiful valleys and streams of New Jersey. Typical canal scenes, canalboats and tugs, and country villages vied with the landscape in holding our attention. Spring flowers and banks of warm red clay lined the canal.

We arrived at Perth Amboy at 3 p. m. and finished our run to New York City by a beautiful sail through Staten Island Sound to the upper bay at New York where we were greeted by the familiar and imposing presence of the Statue of Liberty. After the scenes somewhat strange to Massachusetts yachtmen witnessed in our passage from southern Virginia to New York it would be trite to describe our course through Long Island Sound and around the cape to Boston Harbor.

Let it suffice to say that no eastern yachtsman can in my opinion claim to have experienced the acme of the delight of cruising even along our beautiful Maine Coast, until he has taken the inside trip from Norfolk to Boston."

BRIEFS

Farewell services for Capt. S. Johnson at the Salvation Army hall on Sunday at 4 and 8 P. M.

Rev. A. G. Sporrang who will preach at the Swedish Congregational church on Sunday is going on a visit to his native land Sweden this summer. On his return will take up the pastorate of the Quincy church.

Rev. Asher Anderson, D. D., who supplied the pulpit of Bethany church previous to the pastorate of Rev. B. A. Willmott, will preach at both services on Sunday while the pastor is in Washington. Many will be pleased to hear him again.

The Quincy team in the Mystic Valley Tennis league plays Newton at Newton today. In the lineup will be H. L. Davenport, J. S. Pfaffmann, D. S. Niles, A. W. Hall, Hobart Lawton, A. B. Hillman and J. Harry Slade.

The regular monthly business meeting of the Woman's Guild of St. Chrysostom's church will be held Wednesday afternoon in the parish rooms. The last meeting of the season will be on May 28.

SUNDAY SERVICES.

The notices of the Sunday services in the Daily Ledger are always new and therefore newsy. None are received to be printed week after week. Subjects are usually announced and also the preachers. Not a week passes but an out of town clergyman occupies one of the Quincy pulpits. Get the habit of glancing over the Daily Ledger Sunday services.

BASE BALL STAR.

Russell Mannex of Rogers street, West Quincy, said to be the most promising player in the city, is covering third sack for the Stone school and continuing his good work of last season. In the game against Browne & Nichols Friday "Rus" made two hits and secured 10 putouts. Two runs are also credited to him. He also filled the catcher's berth for a few innings. Mannex played on the West Quincy team in the City league last season.

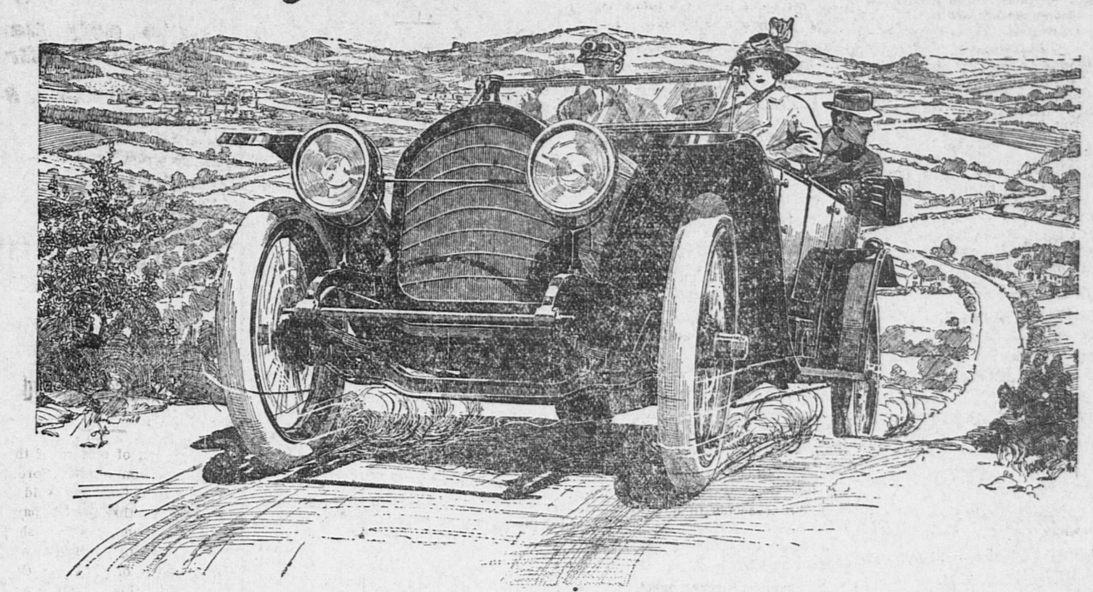
A Car of Character-Beauty that is Rare

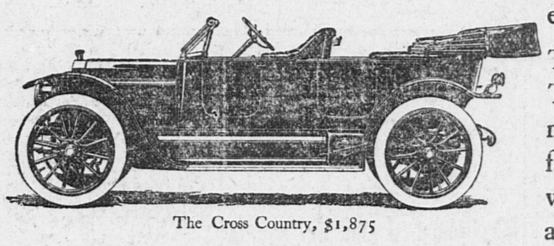


IN the Cross Country the public finds an expression of your own good taste. There is in this car a certain something which gives it character beyond outward grace.

To the eye it presents a pleasing picture of straight flowing lines and graceful curves. Rarely does it pass without remark. Long, low and balanced perfectly, its silent dignity of movement, so much admired on the boulevard, may be attributed to those same qualities which make possible its sturdy performance on the road.

Like a fine horse, it inspires the owner's pride and gives him rank in his neighborhood as a man whose taste is to be admired.

The radiator is high and distinctive in design. The large electric front and flush electric dash lamps make it a car easily distinguished among many. Trimmed in nickel, with body, fenders and fillers of black enamel, its appearance is striking.



The Cross Country, $1,875

The fenders are broad, strong and sturdy. The doors are wide and the compartments large enough to accommodate the family. Long and low hung, you can whip this car around the corner in a jiffy and the rear wheels hug the road.

It's a car to delight a woman's eye. To her rare good taste will appeal its perfect proportions and its superb finish. To this we may attribute the greatest pleasure in its ownership.

A beautiful four-color reproduction of the Cross Country, from an oil painting by R. Philip Brainard, is ready for mailing. See the Cross Country by all means, at any Jeffery branch or dealer's display room, but send for the picture anyway.

DAY'S OUTING IN BOSTON

For Large Party of High School Boys and Girls

Nearly 100 pupils of the Quincy High school, who are stenography students, left for Boston early this morning for a day of pleasure. The program is a varied one. First they will attend Chandlers annual short hand convention at Franklin hall where Ernest L. Collins the headmaster of Quincy High will be the principal speaker. After lunch at noon the party will attend the matinee at Castle Square theatre.

GRAMMAR SCHOOL LEAGUE

A Week of Good Schoolboy Baseball

Three games in the grammar school league yesterday resulted in wins for Wollaston, Coddington and Washington, the latter two shutting out their opponents, John Hancock and Adams school respectively. The Friday afternoon games closed a week of good school boy base ball.

ONLY ONE RUN.

Adams beat Coddington in a well played game Friday afternoon, 1 to 0. The features were the fielding of Adams players, the pitching of Stack. The score:

Coddington	0	0	1	0	0	0	1	5	2

Batteries: Stack and Fostello; Jenkins and Beaton.

MORE WHITEWASH.

The Washingtons beat the John Hancock Friday afternoon, 8 to 0. The stick work of the winners was the feature. The score:

	1	2	3	4	5	6	R

Batteries: Gurney and Thayer; O'Brien and Immery.

WOLLASTON WINS.

Wollaston beat Quincy Friday afternoon. The game was tie until the third inning when Wollaston scored three. Keay, short stop of the losing team was struck on the arm muscle by a bounding ball which interferred with his usual style of play. The score:

	1	2	3	4	5	6	R

Batteries: Merrill and Luster; Cullen and Young.

THAYER WINS.

Thayer Academy ball team found Whitman High an easy victim yesterday, the score being 17 to 3. Thayer scored 17 to 3. Thayer scored 10 runs in the first three innings.

URBAN PLEASURE CLUB DANCE.

The 19th annual May Party of the Urbane Pleasure Club was held in Music hall, Friday evening with a good attendance. Guests were present from Boston, Somerville and Cambridge. The Urbane Pleasure Club is a Neponset organization and its members are well known here. Music was furnished for dancing by Roche's orchestra.

John T. McCarthy was floor director. The assistants were John Sullivan, James Hogan, Daniel McCarthy, Gus Moberg and Fred Glynn.

DEBATE PROPOSED.

The recent legislation enacted by the State of California will be discussed May 23, when the debating teams of Ave Maria and Quincy Councils, Knights of Columbus, meet in St. Joseph's hall, West Quincy.

The topic will be Resolved—"That the State of California is justified in regulating the legal standing of aliens regarding land holdings.

Quincy Council will take the negative and Ave Maria the affirmative. Councilman Frank J. Duffy and Thos. Griffin will represent Quincy council. The West Quincy men have not been chosen.

SENIOR DRAMATICS.

Tickets are now on sale for this year's Q. H. S. senior dramatics. Last year the show drew a record crowd and it has been decided to run the show two nights, instead of one, as formerly was the case. The play is under the direction of Miss Brown, and is called "Our Wives." There are eleven in the cast.

PENNANTS EVERYWHERE

May Dance of the G. W. G. Club at Alpha Hall

The C. W. G. club, composed of well known Makaria young men, held a May dancing party in Alpha hall, Friday evening which eclipsed their former successes. The guests present resided here, but few out of town couples being on the invitation list.

The hall was decorated with potted palms, plants and greenery, while countless college pennants were suspended from the wires strung across the hall. Arthur L. Thomas and Albert G. Coffin, who hung the pennants, said that they had secured one for each representative school in the country. They were seeking variety and had satisfied their desires.

The chairman was Harry E. Glover and Albert G. Coffin, secretary. The ushers acted as assistant floor directors.

SWEDENBORG'S SEARCH.

Swedenborg, the most remarkable man in history, is recognized by ministers, statesmen, poets, scholars, scientists, and intelligent men in many walks in life, as the first one who has given a clear, rational, and at the same time Scriptural conception of the Life After Death. Rev. John Whitehead of Cambridge will give a most interesting lecture on Swedenborg's Search for and finding of the soul, at Hancock hall, Quincy Square, Sunday, at 3.30 P. M. Seats free, public cordially invited.

AMUSEMENTS

DOINGS ON THE STAGE IN

KINCAIDE THEATRE, QUINCY.

There is one act alone in the great show now playing at Kincaide's playhouse that is well worth going miles to see. It is "A Night With the Sculptors," one of the most artistic posing acts in vaudeville and the models are "all alive." Music lovers will enjoy Visocchi Brothers, two talented music makers from Europe. And Mabel Rettaw sings so sweetly she gets great applause. "In and Out of Vaudeville" is a funny farce presented by two old vaudeville favorites, Deane and Sibley. The Sunlight pictures are splendid. Beginning next Monday will be the Three Xylos, dancing musicians; Taber and Walters, classy singing and talking funmakers; Gertrude Warren, the peerless prima-donna; Lora, The Girl in the Parrot, which is a mystifying act that has packed theatres wherever played. There will be five new pictures and lots of new music also. Matinee every day 2.30 P. M. Tuesday evening, May 13, the regular program will be omitted and in its place will be that great rural play in four acts "Quincy Adams Sawyer." Press reports highly praise the company presenting this delightful drama which for years has been so popular with playgoers of New England. The company carries special scenery and gives a first-class production. Prices will be from ten cents to thirty-five cents and seats are now on sale. Regular Kincaide vaudeville between the acts.

MAJESTIC THEATRE,

The Majestic Theatre will inaugurate a summer season of musical comedy with carefully selected cast in an elaborate production of the biggest musical comedy hit of the past season, "Louisiana Lou," next week, opening Monday, May 12th. It had a run of 357 performances, or nearly one solid year, at the La Salle Opera House in Chicago, and caught theatregoers with its brightness of book, the easy rhythm of its music, the cleverness of its cast, and a general attractiveness of ensemble that is irresistible. Its exuberant vitality, and fun are contagious. It is calculated to banish dull care with sprightly limbs, flying feet, joyous young voices, and altogether beautiful girls. The book and lyrics are by Messrs. Addison Burkhardt and Fred Donaghey, and the music by Ben. M. Jerome. Its background is an elusive love story of the famous New Orleans Mardi-Gras.

Heading the cast is Harry First, who has never done anything better than his David Warfield-like Jacob Lidoffski, and the company includes: Burrell Barbaretto, Neil McNeil, Kathryn Miley, Eleanor Henry, Alfred Deery, Anna McNabb Walter Wills, Lucie Carter, Abbot Adams, and Bessie Skeer. The company numbers 60 people and there will be an augmented orchestra.

"Louisiana Lou" is a distinctively lively affair, filled with popular song hits, and theatre-goers of Boston already have confidence in the enjoyment it will afford. There will be a special sale of summer prices with matinees Monday, Wednesday and Saturday.

CASTLE SQUARE THEATRE.

Shakespeare is a humorist. This is proved by "The Comedy of Errors" which will be given at the Castle Square next week. It is a play of extraordinary merriment, its main plot involving the experiences of two brothers who are identically alike and who are the servants of two other twins. It was taken by Shakespeare from a famous Latin comedy, and to it he added much of his own wit and humor, and not a little of his structural ingenuity as a poet and dramatist. The scenes of "The Comedy of Errors" are laid in Ephesus many centuries ago, and its characters are the people of that ancient city, and also of the equally ancient city of Syracuse. The scenic and costume display will therefore be strikingly novel, and in order that it may be everything that should be desired, Mr. Craig has engaged the services of Mr. Linvingstone Platt, who is well known as an expert in the effective stage presentation of plays. He will design both the scenery and the costumes. The two Dronios, the chief humorous characters in the play, will be acted by Donald Meek and A. Roberts, and their twin masters by Mr. Craig and William P. Caleton. Miss Mary Keener will appear as Adriana and the remaining characters will command the entire resources of Mr. Craig's company.

AT B. F. KEITH'S.

It has been years since any attraction in vaudeville has created such a sensation as the beautiful and sensational acquatic spectacle, "Neptune's Garden of Living Statues" at B. F. Keith's Theatre. This remarkable mythological pantomime, which will enter upon its second week next Monday afternoon, has become the talk of Boston. The disappearance of the beautiful living marble statues in the enchanted pool, the troupe of Nereids that arise from the water at the command of Amphitrite, the sensational "La Danse Domenta;" and the many other novel features of this beautiful water spectacle have attracted wide attention. Many theories have been offered as to just how the water nymphs are able to dive into the big tank and disappear from sight, to remain an interminable length of time, but thus far no one has been able to solve the mystery of the enchanted pool. A really great vaudeville bill will surround this brilliant feature. Owen McGivney, the great Irish protean actor, will appear in his latest nevelty, "Bill Sykes," based on Dickens' "Oliver Twist," in which Mr. Givney plays five different characters. Alexander and Scott make their appearance after a long absence, and other features will be Leo Carrillo with his Chinese stories and impersonations; Nestor and Bergman; the Beau Brummell Trio; Frank Parish; Edison's Talking Motion Pictures; and several other features yet unannounced.

THE POPS.

The first week of the season of Pops at Symphony hall Boston which is just ending give indication that the concerts would be more successful this year than ever before. The audience were uniformly large and uniformly enthusiastic, Mr. Crack, the new conductor, making a very favorable impression on all those who heard the orchestra under him. The larged orchestra added much to the pleasure of the eivening. Mr. Urack has arranged some especially interesting programmes for the second week beginning Monday, May 12th. Monday night will be the first Wagner Night of the season, always an important function at the Pop concerts and Mr. Urack has made a very brilliant programme. His Wagner selections comprise the Haldigungs March, the Prelude to "Lohengrin," a selection from "Die Meistersinger," the beautiful song of the Rhine Daughters from "Gotterdammerung," the Ride of the Valkyries and the "Rienzi" Overture.

Wednesday evening will bring the first of the "college nights," Amherst, always one of the best of the spring for the Amherst crowd isfamous for its good singing and its music is stiring. There will be a very big crowd on this evening. Friday night Mr. Urack will play an operatta programme. Mr. Urack has but one more week to conduct when his place will be taken by Andre Maquarre.

There is more Catarrh in this section of the country than all other diseases put together, and until the last few years was supposed to be incurable. For a great many years doctors pronounced it a local disease and prescribed local remedies, and by constantly failing to cure local treatment, pronounced it incurable. Science has proven catarrh to be a constitutional disease and therefore requires constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, Ohio, is the only constitutional cure on the market. It is taken internally in doses from 10 drops to a teaspoonful. It acts directly on the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. They offer one hundred dollars for any case it fails to cure. Send for circulars and testimonials.

BOSTON THEATRE

The greatest of all American successes, guaranteed from coast to coast by press, public and manager for 26 years, returns to the home of its infancy, the Boston Theatre, on May 12th. It was in April, 1885, the 'Grand Old Man of New England's" Idyl, had its initial performance at this famous playhouse and made the most telling success ever scored by a new production in Boston. Year after year since then, from one end of the country to the other, it has repeated that success, and it has ever improved with age.

A quarter of a century is a long time, as time goes on the stage. Few players and plays have bridged the gulf from the early 80's to 1913. It may be that "The Old Homestead" brings with it a timely lesson in sound values. At any rate, it sets one to wondering about the "powerful" and "gripping" dramas of today—the best of them. Will they weather the years like "The Old Homestead"? It's worth thinking over.

With that touch of nature that will live as long as there is an American stage, the grand old masterpiece returns to the Boston Theatre with practically the original cast, and with Mr. Edward L. Snader, Denman Thompson's chosen successor in the role of dear old "Joshua Whitcomb."

The production would no doubt be a revelation to the by-gone friends of a quarter century ago. The art of stagecraft has made rapid strides since then. Such familiar scenes as the old farmyard in the New Hampshire hills, and the equally familiar Grace Church scene, are two of the most striking pictures of stage realism.

Two of the distinct features are the famous double male quartette and the grand choir in the Grace Church scene, that for the engagement here will be augmented with twenty trained voices.

Mr. Frank Thompson, Denman Thompson's son, keeps the tradition of the play well in hand. His attention for many seasons accounts in no small way for the merited success of this famous masterpiece.

Summer prices will prevail during its engagement in Boston. Entire orchestra $1.00, first balcony 75c, second balcony 50c and third balcony 25c.

Libel for Divorce.

Respectfully represents James W. Connell of Quincy in our County of Norfolk, that he was lawfully married to said Alice Connell formerly of said Quincy but now of parts unknown in said Quincy on the fourth day of September A. D. 1892, that they always continued to live in said Quincy until on or about the nineteenth day of February A. D. 1909; that your libellant has always been faithful to his marriage vows and obligations but the said Alice Connell being wholly regardless of the same did on or about the nineteenth day of February A. D. 1909 utterly desert your libellant said utter desertion continuing for more than three years next prior to the filing of this libel.

Wherefore your libellant prays that a divorce from the bonds of matrimony may be decreed between your libellant and the said Alice Connell.

Dated this twenty-fourth day of August A. D. 1912.

JAMES W. CONNELL.

Commonwealth of Massachusetts.

Norfolk, ss. Superior Court.

On the foregoing Libel, it is ordered that the Libellant give notice to the said Alice Connell the Libellee, to appear before the Justices of this Court, to be holden at Dedham, within and for said County, on the first Monday of June next, by causing an attested copy of said Libel, and of this order thereon, to be published once in a week for three successive weeks, in the Quincy Daily Ledgeer, a newspaper printed at Quincy in the County of Norfolk, the last publication to be fourteen days at least before the said first Monday of June next, and further, by sending through the mail, as soon as may be, by a registered letter addressed to the last known residence of the said Alice Connell an attested copy of said Libel and of this order thereon, that the said Alice Connell may then and there show cause why the prayer of said Libel should not be granted.

By the Court.
LOUIS A. COOK, Clerk.

May 8, A. D. 1913.

A true copy of said Libel, and of Order thereon. Attest.

R. B. WORTHINGTON,
Assistant Clerk.

SILK FLAG PRESENTED

Anonymous Friend Surprises Daughters of Veterans

Rebecca Wiswell tent, Daughters of Veterans, received a pleasant surprise Friday evening when their president, Mrs. Emma Ela announced that the tent had been anonymously presented with a handsome silk flag, to be used in connection with all work of a patriotic nature. The opening of a large package delivered by an express company to Mrs. Ela disclosed the flag. The meeting was well attended and the Memorial Day plans were discussed. The tent, but recently organized, will for the first time exemplify one of its purposes, that of patriotic remembrance of departed veterans.

HORACE EATON PASSES AWAY

Horace Eaton, a former Quincy resident and large real estate owner, died suddenly this morning in a Boston hotel in his 81st year. Mr. Eaton was a member of the leather firm of Billings & Eaton of Boston, and resided on Adams street, this city. About 15 years ago he retired.

He married Rebecca Baxter, daughter of the late George L. Baxter, who died while touring Europe some years ago. He leaves two children, Eleanor of Boston, and Horace of Syracuse, N. Y. He was an uncle of Mrs. Theophilus King of Adams street.

The funeral will be held at the First Parish Church, Monday afternoon at 3. Burial will be in Mt. Wollaston cemetery.

NEPONSET BRIDGE BILL

Depends on Action of Metropolitan Park Commission

(Special to the Ledger)

State House, May 9. A change in the attitude of the Committee on Roads and bridges towards the Neponset bridge bill occasioned a change in their report on the bill which was filed in the Senate today. Originally the committee voted "Leave to withdraw" on the bill, but just before the report was filed, it was changed to read "Referred to the next General Court."

While this kills the bill for this year, as well as the former report still it leaves a loop hole for the bill to come to life next year. The explanation of this change in reports is that the Metropolitan Park Commission has said that within a year it will decide what course it will take in the matter of a boulevard bridge across the Neponset.

The importance of the matter as far as Quincy is concerned, is that should the Park Commissioners decide to build a brand new bridge to the north of the present railroad bridge to connect the Quincy Shore Reservation with the new Old Colony boulevard at Neponset, the cost will be a great deal less than would a new bridge across the river where the present Hancock street bridge stands.

If the Metropolitan Park Commission builds the bridge the cost will be apportioned among all the cities and towns in the Metropolitan district while if the new Hancock street bridge bill is carried through Norfolk county, Boston and Quincy will have to bear a large share of the expense.

Another phase of the situation is that the Park Commission may agree to combine a commercial bridge with its boulevard bridge and have it located where the present Neponset bridge is.

PRESBYTERIANS TO UNITE

Quincy Man One of Delegates to Atlanta, Georgia

Mr. and Mrs. Forbes Craig of Independence avenue will leave on Monday to attend the general assembly of Presbyterians at Atlanta, Georgia.

Four Greater Boston Presbyterian ministers have been delegated by the Presbyterian Church North to represent this section in company with several delegates from northern Massachusetts. The gathering starts Thursday, May 15, and continues for a week.

The pastors are the Rev. William M. Tufts of the First Presbyterian church, Columbus avenue; the Rev. William Wallace Iliffe of Brookline, Elder Samuel J. McNeilly of Brookline and Elder Forbes Craig of Quincy. Mrs. Tufts and Mrs. Craig will be included in the party.

Previous to attending the assembly the party will stop at Richmond for a day or two, reaching Atlanta Wednesday. At the adjournment of the assembly the Bostonians will remain South several days visiting the Bull Run and Antietam battlefields and Lookout mountain.

At the invitation of the Presbyterian Church South, the northern assembly and the United Presbyterian church will unite at the southern city in the biggest gathering of that denomination ever held. It is expected that the differences between the northern and southern assemblies regarding the slavery question will be set aside at this conference and union restored. Previous to the civil war the church was one body, but the slavery question caused a division.

It is expected that more than 2000 will attend the assembly, 300 of whom will be women delegates to the meeting to be held simultaneously of the Women's Home Mission Association.

FINNISH CONFERENCE

Questions of National Importance Discussed

The 12th annual conference of the Finnish Congregational Ministery closed Friday after a three-day session at the Finnish Congregational church, Buckley street. Thirteen congregations were represented. The visiting clergy were the guests of Rev. John Lillback, pastor of the local church.

Rev. A. A. Harju, of Worcester, secretary of the association opened the conference. Rev. Andrew Groop of Fitchburg presided.

Among the speakers were Rev. Andrew Ogala of Portland, Oregon, who gave an interesting resume of the accomplishments of the church in the west under adverse conditions.

It was announced that the proposed Theological Seminary in Chicago would open in September. Rev. K. F. Hendrickson, formerly the Quincy pastor, will be one of the faculty. Until the opening he will make a western survey of the Finnish Congregational churches. The ministry will have the co-operation of the Congregational Missionary Society.

Rev. J. Lillback, field superintendent of Massachusetts, reported that he had assigned Rev. A. I. Haeinonen to missionary work in Canada, at the request of the congregations there.

Topics of immediate importance were discussed and a resolution was adopted declaring a further continuation of interest in the labor and temperance movements.

Special services were held in the church Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday evenings, at which there were short addresses by the visitors.

The Adams Market

Is Quincy's Most Modern Food Store

It is built on one solid basis for business. It must rest on the uncrumbling foundation of confidence in one another. Absolute integrity with each other. Thoroughly true merchandise. Unfailing satisfaction when the transaction closes and when the purchases has given us the royal seal of appreciation. Our working staff will improve every day and none of us will ever be done growing.

You have a right to judge men and stores by the service rendered. You have a right to judge us by what we have done throughout more than twelve years serving the public at our Water street store. If the Water street store has served you best in the past, it is logical to assume that the Adams Market will serve you best today.

Disobligingness and dissimulation will never be heard in this store, for it will be where the rewards and honors are all voted to the courteous and upright. It has much to do with the popularity of the store. Manners do make the man, but it is equally true that man makes the manners.

Because our Water Street Store was once a little business itself, we have a good feeling for all the small stores scattered throughout the city, and we strongly urge the people to give preference to Quincy stores whenever they can. This one-time little business outgrew the Water street store and the Adams Market was established to take care of our growing business in the heart of Quincy.

We never did and never will under-value other men's honest endeavors. We simply went forward with a sense of a call that seems an honorable trust from the people to do something more than chase a dollar for the sake of the dollar. Men and stores may always add to themselves if they have the right principles and steadily work on, holding fast to their principles.

This Store has its own individuality that makes it different from all others in many ways. It has no competition in completeness of its stocks. It enjoys exclusiveness in many classes of goods especially contracted for to be sold only here. The articles it sells are genuinely labelled. It will not suffer itself in any sense by untrue labels or advertisements to become an unreliable guide post. THEREFORE:—

Because there is so much to be seen and sold here not found elsewhere; and

Because we believe in living and letting others live, we hope for the patronage of the public after they have done their best to give the little stores some of their business that should never go out of Quincy.

Satisfied That Quincy Has One of New England's Largest Industries

Greatly Interested in Shipbuilding at Fore River

The "Under Forty" division of the Boston Chamber of Commerce were the guests on Saturday of the Fore River Ship Building company at their plant. The idea of this visit of inspection was instigated by H. Everett Crane of this city and proved most successful. It was called the first "Warm weather" excursion of the season, but unfortunately the weather was anything but warm. There was a frigid wind all day which drove the two hundred or more, in the party from the decks of the ferry boat Brewster which, Col. Melvin O. Adams had loaned for the occasion, to places inside the inclosure where they could feel the warmth from the boilers. A few of the more thoughtful of the party carried overcoats along and they were not sorry. It was expected that the party would arrive at the Fore River at 2.30 but they were nearly an hour earlier, and it was a case of hustle on the part of the Fore River officials to get down to the wharf when word was received that the party was coming.

Residents along the Quincy and Weymouth shores rubbed their eyes and looked again when they saw a full size ferryboat paddle her way up Fore river. For, though that water has known many a nondescript craft, the spectacle of a ferryboat pushing her way through Hull Gut and farther was a thing until then unknown in the experience of even the oldest dweller

CARD PLAYERS ARRESTED

Very Successful Sunday Raid on Cyril Street

One of the most successful gaming raids made by the police in a long time was pulled off Sunday evening after a party of officers had been watching a place on Cyril street from 4 o'clock Sunday morning. It was at that hour when Inspector Goodhue, Sergt. Larkin and Officer Farrell entered a small building on Cyril street to watch a Syrian boarding house on the opposite side of the street. It was a long tiresome wait, but the wait bore good fruit. All day long Sunday the officers remained in hiding, not daring to show themselves for fear that the aid they were planning to make would be unsuccessful.

During the afternoon when the sun came out warm, another gang of Syrians gathered in the street and indulged in a game of craps. The officers in the meantime were watching them and taking their names. It lacked but a few minutes past 8 o'clock when the tried sleuths crept from their hiding place and going across the street entered a Sriyan boarding house Inspector Goodhue led the van, which had then been augumented by Capt. McKay, Officers Whalen and Dhooge. Entering the house Inspector Goodhue drew his gun and told the men to stay where they were.

On the table at that time was a large jack pot which proved to contain $42 in money. The hands had been dealt and cards drawn and it only remained for a show down to see who had won the pot. "Wait a minute" said one of the men, "until we see who has won the pot." One of the party had three of a kind and another a full house.

The man with a full house took the pot and taking the money from the table handed it over to Inspector Goodhue. Several of the party were placed under arrest and others were summoned to appear in court.

Later the men who had been seen playing crap in the street were also summoned into court.

When Judge Avery opened court the room was packed full, for in addition to a large number of Syrians, there were many other cases of various kinds. While the men were waiting for their cases to be heard Inspector Goodhue served four summons on men who had come to see what was going on.

The Syrians who were arraigned were as follows:

Michael Frahat, playing craps and being present in a house where gaming was in progress.

Tonny Ferris, playing craps.

John Maccilnii, playing cards on Lords Day.

Edward Rehen, being present.

Charles A. Acres, being present.

Joseph Addullah, taking part in a game on the Lords Day.

Charles Joseph, playing craps.

John Amie, playing craps.

Said Habdul, being present on the Lords day and playing craps.

Ferris John, the proprietor of the building, was also arraigned for keeping a gaming house.

WOLLASTON ALARM.

The alarm from Box 56 at 7.06 Saturday night was for a slight fire on the roof of the Brasee building on Newport avenue. There was to be a party in the hall that evening and a wood fire had been built in the furnaces. Sparks from this fire set fire to the roof. The Wollaston apparatus responded on a still alarm and had the fire out when some one rang in an alarm. This called apparatus from the Central and Atlantic stations. The loss was confined to a few shingles.

Hon. George L. Barnes of Weymouth recently senator from the Quincy district is prominently mentioned for executive secretary of the Republican State Committee.

GRAND ARMY CAMP FIRE

Proposed by Commander Marstin for Anniversary

There is a good time in store for the members of Paul Revere Post 88, G. A. R. next month on the occasion of the 44th anniversary of the Post, for on that occasion they will be the guests of Dr. C. R. Marstin, commander of the post, at his home 343 Washington street, Braintree. On this occasion Commander Marstin is planning to hold a campfire for the post. Every veteran of the Grand Army knows what a campfire is, and that it means a grand good time. The date falls on June 7 and it is planned to hold the campfire in the evening. The grounds will be illuminated and there will be entertainments of various kinds .

IN RESPONDING TO A FIRE

Driver of Hook and Ladder Seriously Injured

Caleb I. Dimmock of 321 Washington street, Braintree, driver of Hook and Ladder 2 was seriously injured Sunday afternoon while responding to the alarm from box 34 in Braintree.

Mr. Dimmock was riding horse bareback to the engine house on Hollis avenue preparatory to hitching his horses to the apparatus, but for some reason rode past the avenue and when about opposite the residence of Dr. Henry L. Dearing fell under his horse and narrowly escaped being trampled upon.

Eye witnesses of the accident differ, some saying that the man was thrown off and others that he jumped. He was picked up in an unconscious condition and carried to the lawn of the Dearing estate where Dr. F. H. Gile who was summoned made an examination of his injuries, finding them so serious that he ordered him removed to the Quincy hospital,

The driver of a passing automobile offered the use of his machine, and Mr. Dimmock was conveyed to the hospital where it was said that his condition was very serious owing to probable internal injuries.

The alarm in question was for a brush fire on Cochato road, and the one from box 134 a little later was for another fire of the same character in the Sunnyside Park district.

ENTRIES FOR THE INTER-CLASS MEET

High School Boys Will Probably Break Several Records Tomorrow

Opening of the New Track at Merrymount Park

There will be a High school interclass meet tomorrow at the new field on Hancock street next to the car house. Records are in danger of being broken, on account of the new level track. The material for the track team is very promising. Captain Kingsbury says "it should develope into the best the High school has had for years." There is a weakness in the jumping events but all the others are strong.

BRIDGE ASSESSMENT.

The State House correspondent of the Daily Ledger terms the Granite avenue bridge bill as the Quincy Board of Trade bill. Here is an achievement of the Board of Trade, but what do the taxpayers of Quincy think of an assessment of $7,000 or $10,000 or more? The bridge will be built between the city of Boston and the town of Milton. When coming from Boston one travels over a mile in Milton before reaching the Quincy line at Willard street, yet it is proposed to make Quincy's assessment as large as that on Milton. Wonder if Milton would be willing to pay as large an assessment as Quincy when the Hancock street bridge over the Neponset river is rebuilt. Yet there is every reason why it should, for the Milton line is as near the Hancock street bridge, as the Quincy line to the Granite avenue bridge and Milton has as much wealth as Quincy.

Possibly the improvement of travel over the Granite avenue may not be the best thing for Quincy. If a new bridge means a new street railway route to Boston, it will divert East Milton trade to Boston rather than to Quincy. Probably West Quincy people would have to pay three fares to Boston via East Milton.—one in Quincy, one in Milton and one in Boston.

Gov. Foss is right in vetoing bills providing additional water supply for Newton and Brookline from driven wells near the Charles river. Both Newton and Brookline should have been in the Metropolitan water district from the start and helped to pay the first cost of that expensive system. Apparently these municipalities need such a supply, and the district needs them. The supply of Metropolitan water is ample. With Brookline and Newton included the assessments upon Quincy and other cities would be less.

Will Mr. Olmstead, the landscape artist employed to lay out anew the grounds of the Thomas Crane Public library, be asked to pass upon the new location for the office of the Quincy Mutual Fire Insurance Company?

The village post-master may be so busy keeping up his efficiency record under the new Postmaster General that he will have to hand out some of those post cards without stopping to read them or admire the pictures.

The spirit of '76 still lives.

CITY HALL PHOTOGRAPHED.

The steps leading into City hall were decorated this morning with two large palms, one placed on each side of the entrance. On one corner stood Officer James W. Murray, the brass buttons on his uniform shining unusually bright, while in front of the entrance was the Inspector of Buildings and several others. Across the street stood a photographer with his head hidden behind the black cloth focusing his apparatus. Suddenly he raised his hand and the men in front of the hall stood rigid for a minute. Then it was all over and the party dispersed. The photographer came over and carried off the palms and disappeared down Hancock street.

Ellwood Wilson Andrews, U. S. N., chief machinist of the North Dakota, and Mrs. Andrews, are spending a few days here with Mr. and Mrs. James H. McDonough, 104 Merrymount road. The visit is the first lap on a honeymoon trip. Although he has never lived here permanently, he is a member of Quincy lodge, B. P. O. E., and is known to the members as "Bill" Andrews. Mr. and Mrs. Andrews will leave tonight for the second lap of their trip.

NEW LOCATION WANTED

Agitation Revived to Relocate the Soldiers' Monument

Editor Daily Ledger:

It seems to the writer that now is the opportune time forthe various military organizations to get together and bring about t very great improvement namely: the moving of the Soldiers' Monument from the cemetery.

Now that the corner of Coddington Street is under reconstruction, it seems to be an ideal spot for a triangle to be made and the monument set in it. This would add greatly to the appearance of the corner and also put the monument where it may be seen.

I should like to have others express their view of the idea through your paper.

Thanking you for the space to express my own view, I am, respectfully yours.

DILLON'S HOUSE STONED

Revenge of Suffragettes Because He Said He Opposed Them

Dublin, May 12.—John Dillon, member of parliament for East Mayo, surrounded by a band of suffragettes opposite the Mansion house on Saturday, told them that he would vote against them every time. Early Sunday morning Dillon's residence was bombarded with stones. Many windows were smashed.

Three women were arrested on the charge of breaking the fanlights of the premises of the United Irish league about the same time.

Trolley Car Tips Over

Salem, Mass., May 12.—An electric car, running from Salem to Danvers square, overturned on Gardners hill. Twelve passengers on board were thrown violently against each other, but escaped serious injury. The conductor had a leg broken.

COHASSET AUTO ACCIDENT.

Paul B. Moulton, one of those injured in the auto accident at Cohasset Sunday evening formerly lived here. He married Penelope Willard, daughter of Sidney Willard, who conducted a pharmacy at School and Franklin streets.

Mr. Moulton lives at 86 Westbourne terrace, Brookline, and received multiple scalp wounds and a fracture of the jaw. He was operating one of the cars which is familiar here because of its regular trips through the city. The car is speedy and is the same which took with Vanderbilt Cup in New York with Harry Grant at the wheel.

Mrs. Moulton was in the car with Beulah R. Smith whose skull was fractured.

PLEADED GUILTY.

Officer Avery went to Boston on Saturday and arrested Charles Sullivan of South Boston on a warrant charging him with the larceny of overcoats from the house of John Loberg on Grant street last November. At that time two other South Boston men were arrested but Sullivan who it was alleged was in the party could not be found. Friday he was arrested in Springfield for the Boston officers and brought to Boston. Then it was found that he was not the Sullivan wanted by them but was the man wanted in Quincy and he was turned over to Officer Avery. He pleaded guilty in court and paid a fine of $25.

BRIEFS

A regular business meeting of the Quincy Womens Riverside club will be held Wednesday afternoon at 2 at the clubhouse, Edison park.

Mrs. George H. Brown and daughter Miss Brown of 154 Elm street, have issued cards for an at home for Saturday May the 24th from three until six o'clock.

Mrs. Ralph Stanwood Foss left Saturday for her home in Wyoming, New Jersey after being with her parents Mr. and Mrs. Robert Josselyn of Hancock street, Wollaston for two weeks coming on for the funeral of her aunt, Miss Sophia W. French and demaining for the funeral of her aunt Miss Maria C. Josselyn.

Frank C. Packard of Chestnut street has erected a handsome new residence at Merrymount. This house is located on high ground on the Sea street side, close to the water and commands a fine view. The house is surrounded on all sides by broad piazzas and is an ideal summer location. It is understood that it has been leased for the season but will be occupied by Mr. Packard's family in the fall.

CHAMBER OF COMMERCE

along that waterway's pleasant littoral.

The start was made at 12.25 from Rowe's Wharf. The Brewster was rushed into the slip between the regular ferryboats and the getaway was so speedy that several men, including two who work for the daily newspapers, were carried down the harbor.

Immediately Alvin E. Dodd, vice president of the Under 40 (Degrees Fahrenheit) Division of the chamber; W. J. E. Sander, John H. Devine, Walter B. Binnian, chairman of the committee of one in charge of the arrangements, and J. W. Plaisted, secretary of the 40 Below Section, got busy (to keep warm) passing out luncheon boxes.

There was plenty of beer (nothing harder except the ice), but for every bottle that was handed out there were at least two inquiries for hot coffee.

Some one wanted more eggs, hearing which, Commodore Adams accommodatingly offered to have the ship lay to. Those aboard, however, would not brook delay. "Well, then," said the colonel, "if chickens will do, I'll get them from the hatchway."

After the luncheon the members began to move about. Some went up on the top deck where they discovered Col. Adams, Ex-Fire Commissioner Francis M. Carroll, J. R. Morse and C. E. Phipps snugly seated in the rear wheelhouse.

Aided by a fair wind and tide the Brewster drew up at 1.30 alongside the torpedo boat destroyer Duncan at the Fore River yards, where the excursionists limped ashore. The visitors were met by a delegation of the company's officials, headed by Admiral Francis T. Bowles, retired, and S. T. McQuarrie. The party divided into small groups and these were shown all over the 108-acre establishment.

Especially interesting to the visitors were the rudimentary skeleton of the U. S. S. Nevada, the nearly completed torpedo boat destroyer Duncan and two submarine boats in the making. The thousands of workmen swarming over the uncompleted ships and in the shops, the groups of workers swinging high in the air on great plates that were being conveyed to their places by gigantic and fast running derricks, and the hurrying and scurrying of the busy little locomotives seemingly everywhere, all impressed upon the visitors the wonderful activity of the place.

The visitors saw 35-ton lumps of steel which are used to make steamer shafts, saw 35-ton shafts being turned around in huge lathes, saw holes being punched in steel plaes an inch thick as if the plates were made of paper. They saw hydraulic hammers which seemed more than human in the way they gently or viciously pounded the hot steel. They saw huge pieces of steel plate being welded together by a sandblast that made the visitors' eyes ache, it was so bright. They saw the hull of the battleship Nevada, which is one-third completed. They were allowed to have a glimpse at the two submarines. They are odd-looking craft, shaped something like a horse mackerel.

The party that followed Admiral Bowles was the largest and he was asked many questions, but he had an answer on the tip of his tongue every time.

The great battleship Rivadavia was viewed merely from the wharf, as the Argentine officers stationed at Fore River—about 75 in number—feared there might be a spy among the visitors. The Rivadavia will be completed by the first of November. Admiral Bowles said when she is handed over to the South American Republic she will be complete, even to the napkins, table-cloths and china, that being the contract with Argentine.

On the wharf beside the battleship was a huge crane which could lift 75 tons at one time. The 12 large guns of the battleship weigh 60 tons apiece. Admiral Bowles pointed out that the foremast of the Rivadavia is only 15 feet less than Bunker Hill monument in height, and that the topmast would have to be lowered if the vessel went under Brooklyn Bridge.

There were no formalities and after a general shrilling of whistles at leave taking, the return trip to Boston was made. The Brewster never had such a job before as that return trip in the teeth of the rising northwest wind, and her forward deck was thoroughly soaked by spray thrown high as the stubb-nosed ferryboat buffeted the white-capped waves. The homeward voyage was made without untoward incident, however, and the troupe of minstrels employed for the occasion furnished ample entertainment.

MAYOR STONE INTERVIEWED

On Bill for New Granite Avenue Bridge

The bill for a new bridge over Neponset river on Granite avenue which has been reported in the Legislature had its inspiration in the Quincy Board of Trade.

The matter started way back in May of 1912 when the Board of Trade at the request of the West Quincy Improvement society took up with the street railway a plan to extend its tracks from their present terminus in East Milton to Adams street, Neponset, to connect with the tracks of the Boston Elevated at that point.

The street railway company made an investigation of the subject and reported to the Board of Trade that the physical conditions were such that the project could not be considered.

Things then went along until the December meeting of the Board of Trade when the matter was again brought up by Peter T. Fallon and the board voted to instruct the secretary to confer with Mayor Stone and the County Commissioners relative to preparing and introducing a bill in the legislature of 1913.

This was done and the bill was introduced and the committee has decided to report favorably on the matter.

When seen this morning Mayor Stone said that the matter was gone into thoroughly by the committee, and he believed that if the bridge was built it would be possible for the railway company to extend its tracks to the Adams street line of the Boston Elevated.

When asked if he did not think it would have a tendency to injure trade in Quincy if the line was built, His Honor said that he did not. He believed that it would furnish a new outlet for West Quincy people to Boston and would have a tendancy to help build up this section of the city. As the matter now stood, West Quincy people desiring to go to Boston by electric cars had to come to Quincy and change in City Square, where they often had to wait several minutes for a Boston car, all of which consumed valuable time. If there was a connecting link through East Milton, West Quincy people employed in Boston would find a direct and quick line to their work, and it would encourage people seeking homes in the country to come here and build.

The Mayor said that he did not see how such a line would in any way effect trade in Quincy Square as people who now traded here would come just the same.

W. R. C. ANNIVERSARY.

Paul J. Revere Woman's Relief Corps will observe tomorrow their 25th anniversary. The regular business meeting will be held at 2 P. M. but at 6.30 there will be a supper to which members of Paul Revere post, G. A. R. and others have been invited. In the evening there will be an entertainment and social hour.

MOTHERS' DAY IN THE CHURCHES

"Her Children Rise Up and Call Her Blessed" One of Themes

Pastors Draw Many Touching Word Pictures

WOLLASTON UNITARIAN.

Mothers' Day was observed at the Wollaston Unitarian church Sunday. The entire service from beginning to end was a most beautiful and touching one, and brought tears to many eyes. The scripture reading was peculiarly appropriate, being selections from Ecclesiasticus and the Book of Proverbs. On the communion table stood a beautiful brass jardiniere holding six dozen exquisite pinks, given by Mr. and Mrs. Frederick H. Bishop in memory of Mrs. Frances A. Dalrymple (Mrs. Bishop's mother) who passed into higher life just a year ago.

Rev. Carl G. Horst's sermon was entitled "Mother," from the text "Her children rise up and call her blessed" Proverbs 31-28. He said "The home is the most important institution in the nation. It has been and always must be the foundation of a nation. There can be no republic without homes. Our national life reflects our home life. As we recall the home of our childhood do we not somehow think of mother as the very heart and soul of that home. Is it not she that really makes the home.

"The father must be up and doing goes away in the morning and does not return till night. But the mother remains at home, busy from morning till night, looking after the household, guiding, directing, teaching her children, that she may send into the world men and women that will be an honor to her home and a blessing to the world.

"Not only does a good mother look after the welfare of the body, but also of the soul. The Christian mother never forgets that the body enshrines a living soul, that must be trained for the service of God and an immortal life. Happy indeed are they whose morning of life was blessed by the sweet influennce of a Christian mother and when infirmity at last creeps upon her, and the color in the cheeks fades and the sparkling eye becomes dim, what true-hearted son, what loving daughter, does not delight to comfort and cheer her heart in her declining years.

"Such a one would not think for one moment of having strangers look after mother's needs or sending her to some Old Ladies' Home. He remembers only too well how much mother did for him when he was helpless and is only too glad to provide for her comfort and smooth the declining path by every possible attention within his power. The time may come when we ourselves shall become entirely dependent on our children. As we should wish then to be treated, so should we treat them who are dependent on us. Agood mother—her value is far above rubies. Strength and honor are her clothing. In her tongue is the law of kindness. She looketh well to the ways of her household. Her children rise up and call her blessed.

"The noblest thoughts my soul can claim,
The holiest words my tongue can frame,
Unworthy are to praise the name
More sacred than all other.
An infant, when her love first came;
A man, I find it just the same;
Reverently I breathe her name
The blessed name of mother."

The annual Unitarian May meetings will be held next week in Boston. Ex-President Taft will preside at the Unitarian Festival in Tremont Temple, Wednesday, May 21 at 6 p. m. and will also speak at the unveiling of the Edward Everett Hale statue on the Charles Street side of the Public Gardens Thursday, May 22 at 12 o'clock.

All who desire their children to receive the rite of baptism will please confer with the minister.

An additional supply of Anniversary week programs will be found in the church vestibule next Sunday morning.

WOLLASTON CONGREGATIONAL.

The order of services for Sunday followed the generally observed plan of Mothers' day and in honor of the day many in the large audience which filled the house had provided themselves with pinks in token of remembrance. One of the ushers commented on this and also on the number of mothers present with grown up sons and daughters three generations being represented in quite a number of cases

The scripture read by Dr. Sneath was compiled from different parts of the bible all bearing on the general subject of Honor thy Father and thy Mother.

By request Mr. Everett sang "Kipling's "Mother of Mine" as arranged by Tours and it was one of the best things he has rendered for us.

Dr. Sneath preached on reverence for mothers, taking for his text the last part of that verse in Exodus 20-12-Honor thy father and thy mother and for half an hour held the close attention of his audience. History, story and comment followed in rapid succession in the pastor's happiest way More than once handkerchiefs were seen as a particularly tender word picture was drawn. A few extracts:

"There is not a mother in fiction worthy of the name. The Atlantic monthly questioned this statement and made a study of it, and reached the same conclusion.

"In the north we wear pinks and in the south they wear roses. The great men of history with few exceptions paid high honor to their mothers. Alexander the Great was wont to call attention of strangers to his garments which were always made by his mother.

"Next to religion the mother is the most powerful factor for good in the world today.

"General Grant speaking to his mothers pastor said, 'make no reference to me on the honors that have been mine: they made no difference to her. All I have been was because of her.'

"I always pay high honor to the man who wears the little bronze button of the Grand Army, but I reverence the mother who gave so much for the country."

In closing Dr. Sneath read the following poem sent by George N. Sneath his son to his mother, subject "The Incarnation:"

Well, what is God, I wonder?
I know what philosophers say;
A Universal Mind: The Absolute:
The Everlasting Yea.

The Ocean of which I'm a wave,
The Unknowable and Unknown,
A Tyrant and Fate-dealing Force,
Couched on a far-off throne.

Some others say He is Nature
To be seen in the Druid's Tree
The rose, the violet, the sunrise,
And all the stars over me.

Somehow I feel it is different,
I believe that God's none other
Than just the great big heart of love
The heart of my own Mother.

Announcement was made by Dr. Sneath that a joint meeting of the prudential and executive committees had under advisement changes in church accommodation and that two committee had been appointed one on plans and the other on finances.

On Wednesday the annual meeting of the Ladies Benevolent will be held.

Thursday at 7 the pastor will meet the young people of the round tabie and at 7.45 comes the mid-week service.

BETHANY CHURCH.

Rev. Asher Anderson was cordially greeted on Sunday at Bethany church, where he supplied the pulpit in 1912. As usual he was outspoken in dealing with the problem of the day, touching on the Japanese question, the race problem, civic administration and social life. He said christianity does not fail, but that the failure is with men. He admitted that the organized church had made many mistakes.

SWEDISH CONGREGATIONAL.

Rev. A. G. Sporrang who is to succeed Rev. George A. Palmgren as pastor of the Swedish Congregational church stopped over in Quincy Sunday on his way to Sweden from his former parish nn Sioux City, Ia. and preached at both services. After each of the services he held an informal reception and received a warm welcome. He is to sail for Sweden next Saturday for a visit, and will take up his pastorate in Quincy next October.

HALL PLACE M. E.

Sunday was observed as "Mothers' Day" at the Hall Place M. E. church. At the morning service the choir rendered special music appropriate to "Mothers' Day."

The pastor, Rev. T. C. Martin preached on the subject of honoring Mother, taking for his text Mark 3-35 "For whosoever shall do the will of God, the same is my brother, and my sister, and mother."

Mr. Martin said that doubtless many would be disappointed in his choosing of such a text for a discourse of this kind, but he was embarrassed at finding so many texts for such a subject.

Mr. Martin spoke of the various times recorded in the Gospels where we meet Jesus with His mother of His attitude toward His mother even down to the last hours He spent on the cross when in that time of sharpest agony and deepest suffering, He looks with tenderness upon His mother and places her in the care of the beloved disciple, John. He also mentioned the fact that we do not find any mention of Jesus being with His mother after His Resurrection, although she was present in the upper room on the day of Penticost. The service closed with the benediction and the Mothers' Day Doxology.

Miss Helen Martin lead the Epworth League devotional service at 6.15 on the subject "The Christlike God" or "What Jesus taught as to His own Nature."

At the evening service a special program in honor of Mothers day was given by the young people including songs, recitation by Leslie McCormack, readings by Hilda Frances, Florence Manhire, Ernest Briggs, Dora Ward, Jennie Manhire, Edward Newcomb and Ethel Newcomb, and solos by J. Lawrence Martin.

The Sunday School board meeting called for Tuesday evening in the vestry has been postponed one week and will be held Tuesday evening, May 20, at the home of the superintendent Alex Stewart.

On Wednesday evening a meeting for Italians will be held in the vestry. The preacher who has charge of our Italian Work in Boston will conduct the service. All are cordially invited.

On Thursday evening a meeting of the Ladies Aid Society is called in the small vestry.

Prayer meeting Friday evening at 7.30.

Next Sunday the pastor will present the cause of Home Missions.

Sunday May 25 will be observed as "Epworth League Anniversary Day."

FIRST PRESBYTERIAN.

Large congregations attended the Mothers' Day" services at the First Presbyterian church Sunday. J. A. Matheson officiated at the morning and evening services. Appropriate sermons for Mothers' day were delivered. All wore carnations and seated in the front seat was a class of 18 bosy and girls.

HERBERT DOANE.

Mrs. T. C. Martin of Hall place has the sympathy of her many friends in the death of her brother's son, Herbert Doane, who passed away suddenly Saturday night. The father, Charles L. Doane, may be remembered by some Quincy people as for several years they have summered at Houghs Neck; the last time they were there being two years ago. Mr. Doane buried one son, George, five years ago and his wife died two years ago. The death of Herbert comes as a great sohck. Death was due to heart failure.

PROOFS OF LIFE AFTER DEATH

Subject of Lecture By Rev. John Whitehead

Rev. John Whithead A. M., Th.B. of Cambridge, who is giving a course of lectures on the life after death at Hancock Hall, said on Sunday that psychical research has proved many facts of a psychical nature. That which scientists formerly regarded as the result of superstition is now regarded as a field for scientific research. Although the Society for Psychical Research has proved to be factsuch phenomena as visions, voices heard, and telepathy, yet it has not agreed on a rational explanation of these things.

Mr. Whitehead inhis lecture, gave an account of that most remarkable man Swedenborg, and expounded his explanations of psychical phenomena that have a bearing on the nature of the life after death. Swedenborg, he said, was one of the most eminent scientists and philosophers the world has ever seen. Contrary to the popular notion, Swedenborg strictly followed the scientific method in all his work.

He was a painstaking gatherer and observer of facts. All his reasoning and deductions were founded on great accumulations of facts. He was one of the very first scientists that developed the sciences of geology, cosmology, chemistry, magnetism and psychology. His discoveries in the realm of physiology and the knowledge of the brain are little less than marvellous.

Bue Swednborg is best known for his having revolutionized the conception of the life after death. In his day the only Christian doctrine that was known was that man remained in the grave until the general resurrection, and then the dead body rose from the grave and lived again.

Swedenborg swept all this aside by showing clearly, rationally, scripturally, and conclusively that man rises immediately on the death of the material body. He came to this position in an extraordinary way. He claimed that he had been granted a full opening of his spiritual senses, that he might see and experience the realities of the spiritual world. This was not in a trance as a medium is; nor was it in a state of sleep or dream and vision; but with all his rational and analytical faculties in full wakefulness. He could thus explore, examine, and study both worlds at the same time.

He showed that man has a dual organism, he has two bodies, a spiritual and a natural. All psychical phenomena, of which he describes many, were experienced by the opening of the senses of the spiritual body to see and experience the things of the other world. Thus through visions and auditions we get glimpses and experiences of the plane of life above the natural.

Swedenborg thereby proved from experience that all the psychical phenomena so much talked of at the present day are real facts of human experience, and they are the very foundations on which the belief in the life after reath is based.

In his next lecture Mr. Whitehead will show that the psychical phenomena mentioned in the Bible are supported in a most demarkable way by Cwedenbory, and by the facts proved by modern psychical research.

WOODWARD INSTITUTE.

There is considerable opposition among the pupils and teachers at the Woodward Institute over the plan to do away with cooking and sewing lessons at the school. It appears that the school now has more pupils than can be accommodated for the reason that there are a number of pupils that are only taking part of the courses. The idea seems to be that if these two branches are cut out that it will give more room. A petition largely signed by pupils of the school has been presented to Rev. A. L. Hudson, chairman of the board of directors, praying that the lessons in cooking and sewing be retained. The petition will be presented to the directors at their next meeting.

FRANK M. COUPAL DEAD.

Frank M. Coupal, a popular employee of the Tubular Rivet and Stud Works, died Sunday at this home, 178 Highland avenue, after a long illness. His death occurred on the first anniversary of the death of his father. The funeral will take place Tuesday morning. A High mass of requiem will be celebrated at the Church of the Sacred Heart. Burial will be in Mt. Wollaston cemetery.

It Pays To Buy Good Things
Glenwood Gas Ranges are built for service, and to give the utmost satisfaction to the user. In the first place, they weigh more and are put together more securely than most gas ranges. The castings are smooth, and easy to keep clean. Owing to their sturdy construction and fine workmanship, they will stand the intense heat and last much longer than the ordinary kind.
The Baking Oven is big enough to bake for the the largest family, and every square inch is heated exactly uniform.
The Linings of the Oven are made of white alumaloyd sheets, a new rust-resisting metal which does not scale, but keeps neat and smooth and lasts with the rest of the range. The bottom and side linings of both broiling and baking ovens are a bar-locking, removable type, securely fastened, but very easy to take out.
The Glenwood Patent Oven Heat Indicator is dependable, and what gas range users have long been looking for.
"Glenwood Range" is to-day a household word the country over and the standard for cooking and baking wherever sold.

SWEDISH PROGRESSIVES.

The formal organization of the Swedish Progressive Club will take place Tuesday evening in Union hall, and a request has been sent to all the Swedish speaking people in the city to attend.

The main business of the meeting will be the report of the organization committee. Since the first meeting some time ago they have been devoting themselves to an increase in the party ranks and it is understood that a large number of members have been secured.

Although the meeting will be practically an open one, only those who are registered within the party folds will be eligible to vote. Opportunity will be given those who care to become members to enroll at the meeting.

A district council of I. W. W. organizations was organized at Boston Sunday. Permanent headquarters will be in Boston. Caleb F. Howard, of Trafford street is secretary-treasurer, and a member of the joint executive board The council will frame recommendations for further activities.

COLONIALS DEFEATED.

A triple play was the feature of the game at Ward Four playgroud Saturday when the University A. A. of Cambridge defeated the Colonials, runner up for the amateur championship of the city last season, 7 to 3.

The play snapped the local boys chances. With none out and man on first and second, McDonald tapped a pop fly behind second. The stiff breeze carried it inside the territory of Waydeck, the second base man, who caught it and snapped to second for a double play. Anderson shot to first and completed the triple.

John Joyce of Boston College who was doing the twirling for the Colonials threw this arm out in the sixth, with the score 3 to 2. He was sent into centre field and Shea performed the remaining innings. The game was well played throughout and a large number attended. University A. A. Made 11 hits and 0 errors while the Colonials had 9 hits and 3 errors.

The score:

Colonial	0 2 0 0 0 0 0 1 0—3

Batteries—Condon and Foster; Joyce, Shea and McDonald.

There is more Catarrh in this section of the country than all other diseases put together, and until the last few years was supposed to be incurable. For a great many years doctors pronounced it a local disease and prescribed local remedies, and by constantly failing to cure local treatment, pronounced it incurable. Science has proven catarrh to be a constitutional disease and therefore requires constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, Ohio, is the only constitutional cure on the market. It is taken internally in doses from 10 drops to a teaspoonful. It acts directly on the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. They offer one hundred dollars for any case it fails to cure. Send for circulars and testimonials.

SPORTS AT HIGH SCHOOL

More Should Attend Games and Cheer Players

The showing of the basket ball team of the Quincy High School, which met and defeated some of the fastest aggregations in the state, has resulted in the acceptance of an invitation of the directors of the Interscholastic Basket Ball League to join that organization. The entrance has the hearty approval of the student body.

The team which recently closed its schedule maintained a steady stride after opening its season. Many of the men were unacquainted with even the rudimentary principles, and teacher coach Frank Mansur was obliged to devote much extra time in giving them a polish so they would appear to advantage.

Pressure of school duties however forced him to relinquish the post and Louis LaRose of the Y. M. C. A. was secured. He developed the lines of Mr. Mansur and succeeded in producing a team as snappy and as fast as any in tre state when the season closed.

Although Quincy has had several good teams, they have never been recognized in Interscholastic circles before this year. The local teams however met and often defeated schools in the organization, gaining much credit thereby.

The great advance in athletics at Quincy High has apparently had no effect on the scholarship of those participating, and seldom have any of the players been debarred from contests because they were down in their studies.

The spirit of victory is persistently flaunted in the faces of the opposing teams, and the good sportmanship of the Quincy boys, winning or losing, has been one of the most acceptable and encouraging features of this athletic growth.

The one regrettable incident, and it is more than incidental, is the poor attendance by the student body. In the good old days, they marched en masse onto the field, sent their round after round of cheers ringing through the woodland about the park and through the hallways of the High school, but today, sad to say, too few attend the games. There are no rounds of cheers, nothing but the frantic shouting of an excited girl whose interest in the sport is probably lessened through an absence of a full understanding of the principles.

It has been suggested that the student body organize, elect a cheer leader, and do all they can to make the base ball season which has started so auspiciously and the coming foot ball and basket ball seasons of intense interest.

POST VICTORY.

The Saturday Evening Post team of this city won their third straight game Saturday defeating the Quakers, 18 runs to 10, at King's field. The Quakers were never in it after the second inning, the Post boys hitting pitcher Venna at will. Isaacson pitched a steady game for the Post nine and had gilt edge support after the third inning. Norris made one of the longest hits ever seen at King's field.

The score by innings:

Quakers	2 0 1 4 0 1 0 2 0—10

Runs by Anderson 5, J. Barry 2, Slanto 2, Norris 2, Galvin 2, Hibbett 2, Isaacson 2, Mahoney, Desenso, Asklund, McNeil, Griffin, Mattson and Arbuckle. Two-base hit, Desenso, Arbuckle, R. Sanderson, Hibbett, Norris, Isaacson, Anderson. Stolen bases, Norris, Anderson 2, Griffin, Desenso. Double play, Mahoney to Norris, Norris to Barry. Base on balls—off Isaacson 8, off Venna 5. Struck out by Isaacson 8, by Venna 6. Time 2 hours, 10 minutes. Umpires Byron and Hulteen.

ELEMENTS VICTORIOUS.

After facing disagreeable weather conditions at Merrymount Park for six innings, Saturday, the Marshall Class of Everett and the Makarias suspended play with the score 5 to 4, the visitors leading. Real base ball could not be played with the odds in favor of the elements. The few spectators who were on hand retired after a few innings play. The game will be played again when circumstances are more kindly. The score:

Batteries — Marshall, Allenbrook Lowe; Makarias, Page, Swenson.

POLICE GAME.

The first local base ball game of the Police league will be played at the Old Colony grounds Tuesday afternoon when Quincy meets Revere. The visitors have one of the strongest teams in the league. Fallon, who performed so creditably at Everett last Tuesday will do the mound work for the Quincy officers. Stiff practice has been indulged in the past week in preparation for a fast game.

OTHER GAMES.

Hanson, pitcher for Thayer Academy had the Whitman High team at his mercy at Braintree Saturday afternoon and his work, combined with the timely hitting of Thayer defeated them 17 to 3.

Cunningham Gym lost to the Mt. Vernon Club at East Milton, Saturday, 9 to 4.

Milton High School beat the High School of Commerce at Milton Saturday, 5 to 4.

The Redmen beat the recently organized Gear Works team at Ward Three Saturday afternoon, 7 to 5. Kenn and Veale performed for the winners and Smith and Buckle for the losers.

Two short games were played on the Ward Three playground Saturday afternoon. Both managers had the field and compromised. The Station Outing Club beat the Quincy Independants, 2 to 1. The batteries were DiBona and O'Brine, Knight and Pettipit. The game was fast throughout.

The first game in the Foresters league lasted seven innings because the John Adams Court and Monatiquots were tied at nine in the fifth. Smith, the visiting catcher received an injury to his left eye which may be serious. He was succeeded by Quinn. DiYoung pitched for Monatiquot and the Adams battery was Albonetti and Ferguson.

When the Orients reported at the headquarters of the Pirates at South Boston Saturday afternoon, their manager announced that he had been unable to secure a field. The game will be played here later in the season.

Milton Academy defeated on Saturday the team from the Boston Museum of Fine Arts 3 to 2.

YACHTING NOTES.

D. W. G. Curtis of Wollaston has recently purchased the double headsail 25 foot sloop Irolita. She has been put overboard at Marblehead and will make her summer headquarters at Wollaston.

The steam-yacht Elizabeth, formerly the June is fitting out at Bakers, for Vice Commodore Roger Upton of the Boston Yacht club. She is soon to leave for a trip to Nova Scotia.

Among the yachts making ready at Baker's Yacht basin for the coming season are: the steam yacht Wacondon, Charles Hayden; schooners, Gerfalcon, E. Howard Reed; Undercliff, Frederick S. Jones, and Mariette, J. Fred Brown; sloops, Melusina, Herbert W. Munn, and Mohican, John A. Burnham; power cruisers, Actus, George W. C. Drexel, and Talofa, George Gorham Peters.

The last meeting of the season of the Quincy Women's club and also the annual for reports of the year's work, will be held tomorrow afternoon at the clubhouse and promises to be an enjoyable meeting for besides the business session there will be music and a social tea.

QUINCY MANSION GAME.

The annual base ball game between the students of the Quincy Mansion school and the Quincy men resulted in a 27 to 26 win for the men, Saturday afternoon on the school grounds. The affair was in charge of Delcevare King. On his team was "Tack" Hardwick, Thomas Hardwick, Winslow, Samuel and Percy Sears, Paul Blackmur, Theodore Marceau and Kenneth Edwards. The regular code of rules were not in effect.

TROT AT WEYMOUTH.

JUNE 17th OPENING DATE.

The parishioners of St. John's church met Sunday afternoon in Parochial hall and decided to hold the triple celebration in June, commencing on the 17th and continuing throughout the week.

The occasion will open with a solemn high mass at which it is expected that all priests born here and former curates will attend. On June 17, there will be held an old fashioned reunion and arrangements are being made to secure Lt. Gov. David I. Walsh as the principal speaker. June 19 the graduation exercises of the Parochial school will take place and June 31 will be children's day. A large list of committees have been appointed.

In Board of Metropolitan Park Commissioners, May 7, 1913.

VOTED that Rule 1 of the rules and regulations governing the use of automobiles and vehicles propelled by other than animal power be and hereby is amended to read as follows:—

No automobile or vehicle propelled by other than animal power shall be allowed within any reservation except upon town or county roads therein and upon Hillside Street in Blue Hills Reservation, Turtle Pond Road and Bold Knob Road in Stony Brook Reservation, Charles River Road in Watertown in Charles River Reservation, the border road in Middlesex Fells Reservation extending from Highland Avenue to Summer Street in Malden, the border road in Middlesex Fells Reservation extending from Wyoming avenue in Melrose to the Lynn Fells Parkway, the driveway in Quincy Shore Reservation, the driveway of Lynn Shore Reservation, the driveway of Winthrop Shore Reservation, the driveway to Revere Beach Reseration from Lynnway to Revere Beach Parkway, Quinobequin Road in Charles River Reservation from Boylston Street to Washington Street in Newton, Norumbega Road in Charles River Reservation from South Avenue to River Street in Weston, Everett Street in Charles River Reservation from Western Avenue to Soldiers Field Road in the city of Boston, and Soldiers Field Road in Charles River Reservation from Western Avenue to North Harvard Street in the city of Boston; provided, however, that no automobile or vehicle propelled by other than animal power shall be allowed upon this driveway of Revere Beach Reservation from Revere Street to the intersection of said driveway with Revere Beach Parkway during the hours from 2 o'clock P. M. to 11 o'clock P. M., inclusive, on the 17th day of June or during said hours on any Saturday, Sunday or legal holiday occurring during the period extending from and including June 17 to and including Labor Day in each year. 12-3t

HOUGHS NECK IN SUSPENSE

Divided Against Itself Over Dance Hall Licenses

According to all accounts Houghs Neck is divided against itself over dance halls. Some want them and some no not. Those who go to Houghs Neck to reside for the summer season rather like to have it quiet and object to being disturbed by a crowd of young people who come down during the evening to attend the dances. There were numerous complaints made about some of these dance halls last year, and on one occasion they were the subject of special investigation of the police department.

Some days ago Mayor Stone received a petition signed by over 300 people from Houghs Neck in favor of granting dance hall licenses. And it is reported this morning that His Honor has received an equally large petition from people who do not want the dance halls.

According to these people, the only people who want dance halls are the proprietors themselves, and the people who run stores and booths where refreshments of various kinds are sold.

In the meantime Houghs Neck is being kept in suspense to learn exactly what the Mayor intends to do.

Last year at this season there were several dance halls in full blast, but so far this year, since the first of May there has been nothing doing.

NEWS ITEMS FROM MILTON

The Junior Milton Woman's club will present their amateur theatricals at the Town hall, May 16. The casts are now rehearsing "The Red Chignon," and "A Love of a Bonnet." Dancing will follow the productions.

Dr. Ernest Bernboum of Harvard University will speak at an open meeting in the Town Hall, May ,13 under the auspices of the Milton Branch of the Massachusetts Association opposed to the further extension of Women Suffrage. His topic will be "What the Nation Needs from men and what from women." Tickets are free and can be secured from Mrs. John Balch, Adams street; Mrs. Ellerton P. Whitney, Blue Hill avenue; Mrs. Benjamin L. Gardner, Viola street; Mrs. Fred H. Hird, Cheever street and Mrs. William H. Hooper., Grafton avenue.

At the meeting of the Thursday Evening club, May 22, the members will be treated to a debate "Labor and what it has done for the working man." The affirmative will be taken by John Shields and the negative by Sam Wood. The winners will be picked by acclamation.

Mrs. Jeremiah McCarthy, Grafton avenue, is being treated at the Massachusetts Homoeopathetic Hospital where she is resting comfortably.

Benjamin Kingman, Thistle avenue, has purchased a new touring car.

"Woven about the Pine Tree Shilling," a cherished possession of Joseph Hall of Milton Hill, is a story of more than passing interest because it deals with the days of the Colonists when the ravages of small pox depleted the ranks of America's early settlers. In a corner of the old Milton cemetery the victims were interred and it has ever since been known as "the small pox corner." In 1862, while Michael Donnelly was leveling the bottom of a grave in this corner he found what he supposed to be a button. He placed it in his pocket and that evening called at the store of Durrill & Hall, located on the site of the present Chocolate mills and exhibited his find. Not realizing the historic value he sold it to the late Joseph Hall. Since then it has been cherished as a relic of by gone days by his heirs. The theory advanced is that a victim had been deposited in a grave, clothes and all, that the shilling was in his pocket, and that when all that was mortal had become dust, and the clothing had separated and decayed, the shilling alone withstood the test until discovered by Donnelly, who thought it a button. It is perhaps the most conspicuous of a fine collection of coins and highly cherished by its possessor.

A BOSTON GIRL'S BUDGET.

A Suburban Library That Teaches Eugenics, Sociology and Such Things—Suffragists Who Resent the Charge that their Paraders Were Immodestly Dressed—Borrowing on One's Character is Possible under the Bay State Law Permitting the Formation of Credit Unions—Success of One of These Pioneer Thrift Associations—Hindu Pundit Assails Fortune Telling Swamis of His Own Nation—Such Exposures Received with Incredulity in Maddest Boston.

A New York newspaper, famous for its funning at the Hub's expense, now asks why it is that Boston girls always close their eyes when kissed. The real answer, of course, is that they don't. At least the typical self possessed and self respecting Hub-bite girl, when things get to the pass at which she allows a man to kiss her, does so with her eyes wide open. Miss Boston is not so easily fooled as the wise guys of Gotham try to make out.

Many people who walk daily along Huntington avenue look more curiously than ever at the tall commanding figure of a Hindu prophet and soothsayer who in the past few years has become an institution of the Back Bay. They look curiously because the Yogi and Mazdaznans and such religionists have of late been scathingly attacked by one of their fellow countrymen, Rustom Rustomjee, formerly editor of the Oriental Review, Bombay. Dr. Rustomjee has hard things to say about the swamis and about the women who listen to their fairy tales. His charges, one suspects, will be received incredulously in the section of the Hub which Gillett Burgess once dubbed "maddest Boston," the district in which a new religion is born every day.

Borrowing on one's character is possible for the poor man in Massachusetts alone among American states, despite the wonderful success of people's co-operative banks abroad. And even in the Bay State, although the law permitting the formation of credit unions is now several years old, the actual number of these co-operative banking associations is still small. Many people indeed have inquired whether anything is doing in this promising direction. One is glad to learn that at least one of these thrift organizations, the Industrial Credit Union, which was started in 1910 at the Women's Educational and Industrial Union, Boston, is doing very well. It has an increasing membership and is able to make loans out of its deposits at a comparatively low rate of interest. Compared with the showing made by the pioneer Canadian bank at Levis and with the many "Co-operatives" abroad this Massachusetts association is small, but its growth will bear watching.

"If I had only had the price of a ticket to New York," sighed one ardent suffragist. "Oh, you ought to have pawned something and been in the parade," said another enthusiastically. "It was grand. We marched under the banner, 'Let the people rule,' and we enjoyed every minute. It wasn't true either, as one of the antis charges, that we were dressed up to attract men. It was a parade of earnest, brilliant women interested in a great cause." Every other account heard of the big New York suffrage parade agrees in bearing witness to the impressiveness of the long line of delegations from many states. The Massachusetts paraders were strong enough to make a good sized section in the procession, and their enthusiasm was like that of a crowd of Boston base ball fans.

What a social centre the library may be in a small community is beautifully shown in the suburban town of Milton where at present an important picture exhibition is going on in the tasteful little art gallery at the top of a delightfully appointed building. Milton is rather exceptional even among Massachusetts towns in the interests which find their focus at the local library, it preeminence being due partly to the high quality of citizenship and partly to the initiative of the librarian, Miss Gertrude Forrest, who has taken the lead in various movements that have interested educators throughout the country. Classes in eugenics and sociology are innovations in library work which have been started during the past winter at this progressive institution. In helping to cultivate a taste for the fine arts the Milton library has for some time been a leader. One remembers a well arranged exhibition of the works of William Morris Hunt who was a former resident of the town. Various print exhibitions have been shown as well as general exhibitions of paintings. Just now the showing is of the works of C. Scott White, landscape painter, and one understands that other features are in prospect for another season. Such a library is far removed from the dry as dust repository of other days. The sight of school children and young people flocking into it on a fine May afternoon is an encouraging example of the kind of competition which here and there is waged against the "movies" and dance halls and other cheap attractions. One's only regret is that there are not more libraries like the one at Milton. So many of them are still presided over by sleepy custodians whose chief object in life is to prevent small boys from making a noise in the reading room.

COMFORTING WORDS

Many a Quincy Household Will Find Them So.

To have the pains and aches of a bad back removed—to be entirely free from annoying, dangerous urinary disorders, is enough to make any kidney sufferer grateful. The following advice of one who has suffered will prove comforting words to hundreds of Ledger readers.

John Callahan, 55 Prospect street, Brockton, Mass., says: "I am pleased to recommend Doan's Kidney Pills, as I have been greatly benefited by them. I was annoyed by lame and aching back and my kidneys did not act regularly. I finally used Doan's Kidney Pills and they gave me entire relief. I am glad to confirm the statement given by a member of my family in 1908 in their praise."

For sale by all dealers. Price 50 cents. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, New York, sole agents for the United States.

Remember the name—Doan's—and take no other.

STETSON FINED FOR ASSAULT

Was Complainant Friday in Randolph Hen Case

A second chapter in the Randolph shooting case, which was heard in the Quincy court, Wednesday came up on Saturday. The case on Wednesday charged James M. Dee with attempt to break and enter and attempt to commit larceny on the premises of Richard Stetson. In that case it was testified that Stetson saw two men at his hen house whom he later recognized as Dee and that he had fired a shot at them. Dee's story at that time was that he and Patrick McDonnell were walking up the street when they heard a shot fired and the bullets flew past them and lodged in the trees. After hearing the case the court dismissed the complaint because it was faulty.

Friday both Dee and McDonnell wore out warrants against Stetson for assault with a dangerous weapon. The testimony this morning differed but little from that on Wednesday. Dee and McDonnell testified that they were walking up the street when the report of a gun was heard coming from the direction of Stetson's place and that the bullets flew past them into the bushes.

At that McDonnell shouted "Hello, what are you doing?" and followed it up with the inquiry "Is that you Rich, who are you firing at?"

To this it was testified that Stetson replied "I am shooting at anyone I can hit. Is that you, Dee, I'll get you yet." He then shouted "keep away from my hen house, I thought I saw somebody."

Stetson testified that he had been having trouble by someone stealing his eggs and hens. That on Sunday evening he heard his dog bark and running out saw some one running from his hen house,which he later recognized as Dee. That he went into the house and loaded his gun and fired to scare them.

In support of their claim the plaintiffs produced a branch of a tree showing where the shot had been imbedded.

Both sides were represented by counsel. After hearing the arguments the court found Stetson guilty on both complaints and imposed a fine of $10 on each. He appealed and was held in $100 on each complaint for the grand jury.

James W. Connell, Libellant,

Alice Connell, Libellee

Libel for Divorce.

Respectfully represents James W. Connell of Quincy in our County of Norfolk, that he was lawfully married to said Alice Connell formerly of said Quincy but now of parts unknown in said Quincy on the fourth day of September A. D. 1892, that they always continued to live in said Quincy until on or about the nineteenth day of February A. D. 1909; that your libellant has always been faithful to his marriage vows and obligations but the said Alice Connell being wholly regardless of the same did on or about the nineteenth day of February A. D. 1909 utterly desert your libellant said utter desertion continuing for more than three years next prior to the filing of this libel.

Wherefore your libellant prays that a divorce from the bonds of matrimony may be decreed between your libellant and the said Alice Connell.

Dated this twenty-fourth day of August A. D. 1912.

JAMES W. CONNELL.

Commonwealth of Massachusetts.

Norfolk, ss. Superior Court.

On the foregoing Libel, it is ordered that the Libellant give notice to the said Alice Connell the Libellee, to appear before the Justices of this Court, to be holden at Dedham, within and for said County, on the first Monday of June next, by causing an attested copy of said Libel, and of this order thereon, to be published once in a week for three successive weeks, in the Quincy Daily Ledgeer, a newspaper printed at Quincy in the County of Norfolk, the last publication to be fourteen days at least before the said first Monday of June next, and further, by sending through the mail, as soon as may be, by a registered letter addressed to the last known residence of the said Alice Connell an attested copy of said Libel and of this order thereon. that the said Alice Connell may then and there show cause why the prayer of said Libel should not be granted.

By the Court,

LOUIS A. COOK, Clerk.

May 8, A. D. 1913.

A true copy of said Libel, and of Order thereon. Attest,

TIN WEDDING AT BRAINTREE

Mr. and Mrs. Patrick M. Gannon Observe Anniversary

A large number of relatives and friends gathered at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Patrick M. Gannon, 30 Sherman road, South Braintree, Saturday evening to assist them in celebrating the tenth anniversary of their marriage.

George Abel presided at the piano and pleased all by his selections while the cornet solos of Fred Goodnow were equally well received. Some fine musical numbers both vocal and instrumental were rendered by the Misses Mary, Victoria and Louise Finnegan all of whom are talented young ladies.

Mr. and Mrs. Gannon received a number of gifts among them being several articles of tinware to carry out the significance of the tenth anniversary or tin wedding. Generous refreshments of sandwiches, ice cream, cake and punch were served and an informal social evening kept everybody happy until a late hour. Guests were present from Fall River, East Weymouth and the Braintrees.

Mr. Gannon is the son of Mrs. Bridget Gannon of Hancock street. South Braintree, and is a well known and respected citizen. He is a member of the Massachusetts Catholic Order of Foresters and is employed as engineer at the shoe factory of the Rice & Hutchins corporation. Mrs. Gannon was formerly Miss Mary J. Downs, daughter of Mrs. John Downs of East Braintree and was a well known and popular young lady of that section.

Mr. and Mrs. Gannon are pleasantly located on Sherman road and their home is gladdened by four beautiful children. Their friends unite in wishing them many more years of happy wedded life.

Miss Jean I. Gorham of Standish avenue returned to her home Saturday from a week's visit with the Joseph Tituses of New Braintree.

FRED E. DUGGAN.

A contributary cause to the death of Fred E. Duggan of Bryant avenue, which occurred Saturday, was tonsilitis, and an investigation will be made by the Board of Health to ascertain the possibilities of the Canton epidemic spreading to Quincy.

The deceased was one of the popular residents of West Quincy and a brother to William Duggan, the well-known basket and base ball player. He also exhibited promise of athletic prowess and was an active member in the St. Mary's C. T. A. & M. R. Society.

The funeral, which was held this morning was well attended by the younger men of the city, including a delegation from the St. Mary's Society Floral tributes of all kinds covered the casket.

A high mass of requiem was celebrated at St. Mary's church by Rev. Fr. William J. Duffy. The Gregorian chant was rendered by the regular choir, under the direction of Miss Frances Cronin, organist. Burial was in St. Mary's cemetery.

TODAYS COURT.

Charles Sullivan was fined $25 for larceny of an overcoat from John Loberg at Quincy.

Charles Barry was fined $10, Andrew McIntosh $10. B. Miller, $10, Michael McLaughlin $10 for drunkenness at Quincy.

James H. Corakie was fined $30 on two complaints for drunkenness at Braintree.

Frederick E. Darnum. J. J. Gallagher and Gordon Mortemen were brought in from Milton for smashing electric light globes and put in charge of the probation officer until Tuesday.

Michael Russo was brought in on complaint of the probation officer for violation of his terms of probation for non support. He was fined $50 the same to be turned over to his family.

Assad Katur was fined $50 for playing cards on the Lord's day at Quincy.

BRIEFS

The Ladies' Aid society of the Washington street Congregational church hold their May festival Wednesday evening with a supper and entertainment. "The Mishaps of Minerva" is to be given.

Miss Maud E. Read of Squantum street was the soloist at the Middlesex County Jail, Cambridge at the service on Sunday morning. She also gave an Italian reading entitled "Rosa," which appealed to the large audience.

Miss Jordine E. Davison of Billings street, entertained the Bachelor Girls' club at her home on Saturday evening. The evening was enjoyed in playing games and music. Refreshments were served.

The steamer was taken to Butlers brook Saturday and given a try out at drafting. This is the first time that the steamer has ever been tried out at doing its own drafting. She worked all right.

A special meeting of the field day committee of the St. Mary's C. T. A. & M. R. Society will consider final arrangements at St. Mary's Hall this evening. The date has been set as May 30 and the meet will be sanctioned.

Charitable Ten's Circle King's Daughters will meet Friday afternoon at 2.30 o'clock at the home of Mrs. Frederick H. Smith, Washington street Quincy Point to spend a social afternoon with a delightful hostess.

The outer Neponset rail of the street railway was blocked for a time this noon when a large block of granite from a passing team fell into the street and landed directly on the outer rail in front of the Adams Academy. For a time cars were oblighed to use the inward rail between Dimmock street and the car barn.

JEWELS STOLEN.

At 2.10 Sunday morning W. W. Cummings of Elm avenue, telephoned the police station that jewels and cash amounting to $56 had been taken during the absence of the family. The theft was discovered shortly after their return. Entrance was probably effected through a window which showed signs of having been forced. The department is making an investigation.

Arrangement Well in Hand For Convention of Monument Dealers

Delegates Expected From All Parts of the Country

Great preparations are being made for the annual convention of the National Retail Monument Dealers' Association which is to be held in Boston, August 19, 20, and 21. Experience has proved that any organization that holds its convention in Boston is sure of being rewarded by the presence of an unusually large number of delegates. A large number of delegates makes an enthusiastic meeting, which in turn signifies the accomplishment of a great deal of real vital work with many new and progressive ideas.

The New England Memorial Convention Bureau, which committee have charge of the arrangements for the coming convention, held a meeting recently in its rooms 161 Summer street, at which John L. Miller, James Joss and Alfred O. Diack, president of the Quincy Manufacturers association, were among those present.

PASSED OVER THE VETO

Spanish War Veterans Will Be Favored

The Spanish War Veterans Preferential bill which was vetoed by Gov. Foss, and which once failed in attempt to pass over the veto, was successful today when the bill was passed over the veto by a vote of 151 to 68, which was more than the two-thirds vote required. One of the staunchest supporters of the bill was Representative Leslie who is himself a veteran of the Spanish war.

The bill in brief provides that Spanish war veterans in taking the civil service examination shall have five per cent added their percentage for having served during the Spanish war.

Those favoring the bill claimed that it was in the interest of fair play and that those who served in the Spanish war were entitled to consideration as were the members veterans of the Grand Army and those who served in the navy in the Civil war.

NOT A CANTON CASE.

The death of Frederick Duggan, a popular West Quincy young man, on Saturday, following a sickness of 2 weeks duration, in which tonsilitis was a contributary, was in no way connected with the Canton epidemic according to an investigation of the case by Willaim H. Teasdale of the Quincy Board of Health.

The deceased was employed in a South Braintree factory and fell ill suddenly. He was treated by Dr. George M. Sheahan and a culture was sent to Dr. Locke of Boston for a diphtheretic examination The doctors return was negative. The investigation showed that the deceased had no Canton connections whereby he could have contracted the disease.

BROKEN LEG AND INJURIES

Auto Horn Causes Runaway Accident on Glendale Road

An accident occurred on Glendale road Monday afternoon which resulted in a broken leg for Neil Johnson and bruises and a bad shake up for Mrs. Gustave Lundgren and baby of Glendale road who were on their way to the cemetery in an open express wagon driven by Mr. Johnson. In the wagon was a lawn mower and boxes of potted plants.

As they proceeded down the road, just west of Dimmock street, an automobile owned and driven by Hobart Lawton of Presidents hill in passing blew its horn loudly frightening the horse, which galloped madly down the road. The road at this point is dangerous under ordinary circumstance, as it is not only down grade but curves so that one cannot see far ahead. Add to this a frightened horse and the street blocked at the junction of Goffe by the clubhouse of the Quincy Tennis club which is being moved from its old location to the new courts off Glendale road, and the only wonder is that the accident was not worse than it was.

As the horse rushed toward the house, Mr. Johnson was unable to get him under control, and the efforts of the men at work nearby only added to the animals fright and he swerved sharply to the left throwing the wagon seat and its occupants over an embankment into the field.

Many willing hands did what they could to assist and a doctor was sent for. When Mrs. Lundgren was cared for and revived, it was seen that she had escaped with a bad shake up and bruises and also the baby but Mr. Johnson was suffering badly and it was found that his leg was broken.

The police ambulance was called and he was taken to the Quincy Hospital where he is resting comfortably. Mrs. Lundgren and baby were taken home by Mr. Lawton in his automobile.

In this case it was the auto horn rather than the auto which caused the trouble, but the residents of the street feel that there is altogether too much speeding on Glendale road, and are in constant fear of accidents. The Lawton car is a racing car, but Monday was not going at its usual high speed, although earlier in the afternoon the chauffeur had been remonstrated with by Peter J. Williams who is in charge of moving the tennis clubhouse.

BACK TO GETTYSBURG.

Quite a party of the Grand Army boys are planning to attend the grand reunion of the battlefield at Gettysburg in July. The government pays the car fare of all veterans who took part in that memorable battle of the Civil war which means an exceptionally large attendance of veterans. There are many members of Paul Revere post who took an active part in that battle and they are glad of the opportunity to again visit the famous battlefield.

ON ROAD TO RECOVERY

Richard Barry of West Quincy, who has been seriously ill with pneumonia following an operation for appendicitis at the Carney Hospital for the last 13 weeks, has returned to his home on Willard street. While he is far from being fully recovered, it was thought that his convalescence would be more rapid at home. Dick is still under the doctor's care and it is expected that it will be at least another month before he is able to get around to his familiar haunts, and that he will not be able to resume his duties in Boston until October. His many friends, however, will be glad to know that he has so far recovered as to be allowed to return home, and it is hoped that his restoration to health will be complete in a much shorter time than is expected.

PLAYGROUND COMMITTEE.

The Quincy Playground committee of one hundred will hold its annual meeting on Thursday evening at the Y. M. C. A. Officers will be elected and plans made for the summer season. All interested in the work are invited.

RIVAL CITIES OF THE SAME NAME

Quincy, Illinois, a Wide-Awake Centre, But She Must Look to Her Laurels to Keep Ahead of Quincy, Massachusetts

QUINCY MASSACHUSETTS POPULATION FIGURES.		Watch us Grow.	QUINCY ILLINOIS POPULATION FIGURES.

Census 1910,	32,642		Census 1910,	36,587

There are Quincys and Quincys, but only two perhaps that are prominent in the country at large. For years Quincy, Illinois, has had the largest population, but Quincy, Massachusetts has long vied with her in prominence and fame, and now in population also.

Quincy, Illinois, had a population of 27,268 in 1880 when Quincy, Massachusetts, had but 10,570, but the figures above show that the Illinois city gained less than 10,000 in thirty years, while the Massachusetts city gained over 22,000.

Quincy, Massachusetts, has National importance because the Fore River shipbuilding plant is located here; because Quincy granite memorials are quarried and manufactured here; because two Presidents of the United States were born here, lived here and are buried here; because John Hancock the bold signer of the Declaration was born here; etc. etc.

There is a Quincy in Ohio and another in New Hampshire, and probably other Quincys in different states. But our readers will doubtless be interested in the following write-up from the Christian Science Monitor of our rival city.

QUINCY ILLINOIS.

Quincy, Illinois, is one of those rather exceptional places that can justify the claim of being an especially advantageous manufacturing point and unusually attractive for residence.

Primarily a manufacturing center, Quincy's industrial importance and advantages are amply attested by its hundreds of prosperous establishments and by the widely recognized excellence of their products. The industries include about a dozen foundries, which are said to make more coal and wood burning stoves than those of any city in the world; one of the largest mills in the United States making prepared cereal foods; one of the largest steam governor works in the world, and one of the largest egg case factories in the United States. Quincy claims to lead in the manufacture of showcases and store fixtures, lime incubators, brooders, steam pumps, hay presses, carriages and omnibuses, elevators, wagons, machinery and other products.

Situated on one of the best harbors on the upper Mississippi river, and having two large railway systems, comprising seven different chartered lines of railroad, connecting on their own rails Quincy with Buffalo, Toledo, Detroit, Chicago, St. Paul, Minneapolis, Billings, Denver, Lincoln, Omaha, St. Joseph, Kansas City, DesMoines and St. Louis, Quincy's transportation facilities are excellent. Its freight rates are unusually favorable.

The daily through freight car service is considered regular, rapid and reliable. The average freight time from Quincy to 24 important jobbing centers is reported as less than 30 hours, which makes the city an excellent distributing point. Quincy is rated as the largest manufacturing center and freight tonnage producer between Chicago and Kansas City and St. Louis and St. Paul. The population, including immediate suburbs, is about 42,000. This distance to Chicago is 263 miles, to Indianapolis 379, to St. Paul 444, to Kansas City 226, to St. Louis 140.

Cheap coal is obtainable from three states, Illinois, Missouri and Iowa, and the hydro-electric power from the great Cooper dam will still further

NO MEAN CITY.

It is visits like that of the Chamber of Commerce men on Saturday to the Fore River shipyard that advertise Quincy. The visitors would have been equally pleased with a tour of the Quincy granite quarries, the granite manufacturing yards and the granite polishing works. It is Quincy built battleships which navigate the world, and monuments of Quincy granite which are to be seen in all the large cemeteries of the country that give Quincy a national distinction. A New York gentleman , who was in Quincy last week, told us he had the impression that Quincy was larger than Cambridge; yet Cambridge has three times the population, and is the seat of Harvard University and well known historically.

People of Quincy are apt to underrate their city. They hear of progress in other cities, usually twice as large, and imagine that they are progressing more rapidly. But Quincy will stand most any test with cities of 30,000 to 40,000 population, and $30,000,000 to $40,000,000 valuation. In population we are making rapid strides not only in comparison with other municipalities of Massachusetts but in New England and the country at large.

It is a remarkable fact that Quincy is moving up in rank among the cities of the United States. By the census of 1900 Quincy was No. 171, but by the census of 1910 we were No. 167. We read about western cities growing in a night, but they also disappear in a night.

Anyone who says Quincy is dead, don't know what he is talking about. There is a chance for improvement in Quincy, but we are getting the improvements very rapidly . Few larger cities have better school houses, more efficient fire departments, more active police departments, more parks and playgrounds, as good a public library building, or as many volumes in their library; and the comparison might well be continued.

Quincy has been well advertised and has a brilliant future, and residents of the city should be the last to speak disparagingly of it.

Taking the various guesses at Mr. Morgan's any two reasonable men would probably be willing to split the difference.

An expert announces that the nation's smoke loss is $17.00 per capita a year. How those five cent perfectors do count up.

To maintain the average of decency the rest of 1913 should be a season of unbroken calm and universal harmony.

Imagine James Russell Lowell or Benjamin Franklin spending $100,000 a year as an ambassador.

Bread cast upon the waters is seldom buttered.

THE EVIL OF DIVORCE.

It is the home that contains the vital principles of human happiness that is the nation's strength, and it is the foundation of private as well as public well being. The state is only the sum of the families that compose it. Relaxation of the marriage tie endangers the integrity of the family and therefore imperils the foundation of the state. Alarming evidence of the influence upon our rising generation of the social curse of divorce, which strikes at home life, is everywhere at hand and shows the great injury done to society, to the husband and wife themselves and to the children. Every child has a right to a mother's heart, to a mother's arms and to a father's love. Every child has a right to a home with its father and mother. Divorce and dissolution of family deprive and rob the child of that to which every child is entitled, and it works an irreparable injury to the child. Every right thinking man should raise his voice against the growing evil.—Cardinal Farley.

STERILIZED LINEN.

When There's a Contagious Disease In the House Look Out For Bedclothes.

When there has been serious illness in the home and while there is serious illness one of the most important things to do is to thoroughly sterilize the linen—not only the bed linen, but all handkerchiefs, towels and everything with which the patient has come or is constantly coming in contact with.

The moment that linen is removed from a sickbed it should be put in cold water and kept there until time for washing. In water it becomes quite harmless, and absolutely all danger from it is eliminated.

One great trouble is that doctors who advise soaking the linen in various germ killing solutions or promptly boiling the linen do not realize that all stains in the linen will under such conditions be made practically indelible. Of course every housewife prides herself upon her spotless linen, and to stain a great quantity of it is, in her mind, a catastrophe.

When the doctor says, "Soak your linen in this or that preparation," or "Boil all the linen at once, long and thoroughly," he does not realize that this will prevent any stains on the linen from ever coming out.

Practically all trained nurses today in private families know this is not necessary. They know that such linen put in water and kept in water will remain quite harmless. After the linen has thoroughly soaked the laundress may easily wash out the stains before putting such linen into the hot water for boiling or before soaking in some germ destroying preparation. As a matter of fact, no germicide is needed. A long and thorough boiling of this linen will serve that purpose and kill every germ that lurks in the folds or meshes of the cloth.

WHAT TO DO WITH EGGS.

Recipes Particularly Good For Tea Room Service.

Eggs opera are especially good for tea room service, and now that so many of these places of refreshment are run by women all over the country the recipe may be of interest. Butter an individual shirring dish; break two egg into it; set the dish into a moderate oven to remain until the egg white is slightly coagulated throughout. Set the dish on a breakfast plate; on one side of the eggs in the dish dispose half a dozen cooked stalks of asparagus, a teaspoonful of Hollandaise sauce above, and on the other side of the eggs group cubes of calf's liver broiled on one or two skewers and serve at once. To cook the liver pour boiling water over a slice of liver, cut a scant three-fourths of an inch thick, then cut in cubes. Butter one or two skewers and run them through the cubes. Broil over a moderate fire about four minutes, turning each ten seconds. Push from the skewer to the side of the egg.

EGGS OPERA AND EGGS A LA DAUPHINE.

Set two small slices of toasted bread, well buttered, on a serving dish. Above dispose about eighteen hot, cooked asparagus tips. Above the tips set two poached eggs. Pour over the whole a scant cup of Madeira sauce, in which six or eight peeled mushroom caps (sliced or not) have been simmered about ten minutes.

How One Woman Manages.

Owing to the fact that the maid is usually away on Sunday evening the duty of preparing this informal meal falls on the house mother. In a certain household the little daughters are permitted to take turns at preparing supper, with the understanding that it must be limited to sandwiches or an equivalent, cake, fruit, tea or chocolate.

"They are not allowed," she explained, "to serve anything heavier, not only because it is undesirable, but because they might attempt to outdo each other in elaborate dishes and thus turn what they now call 'sport' into a burden that would dampen their youthful ardor. They enjoy making sandwiches, and cookbooks are explored for new ways of making them which, by the way, are endless. Of course I am taken into their confidence but the rest of the family are not allowed to know what awaits them for supper. And I keep up their interest by letting them have freedom of choice in the purchase and preparation of food materials, for I recall how I hated this work when a girl because I was told what to prepare by my mother."

Care of Aluminium Ware.

There are two kinds of aluminium ware, the "spun" and the "cast." The spun is much lighter and should be chosen for light weight utensils and not for frying pans or serviceable kettles. Never use any alkali in water in which aluminium is washed. It will cause the outer surface to become dark. Polish nice ware weekly with a good whiting or silver cream, and the ware retains its luster longer.

AWAITING WORD FROM JOHNSON

No Move at Washington on Alien Land Owning Bill

TEXT OF JAPANESE PROTEST

Not Deemed Expedient to Acquaint Even Governor of California With Details of the Communication—No Immediate Need of Haste In Answering Veto Request of Bryan

Washington, May 13.—The administration is awaiting a reply either by message or by action from Governor Johnson to Secretary Bryan's telegram requesting that he veto the alien land owning bill passed by the California legislature and give the state department an opportunity to deal diplomatically with the problems involved.

In some quarters it had been expected that the text of the Japanese protest would be given publicity, but apparently the officials concluded that full publicity at this stage would only embarrass the negotiations. Therefore the state department declined to make any statement as to the precise nature of the Japanese communication, and the secretary, in answer to inquiry on that point, simply pointed to his own message in which he referred to the Japanese communication as "a very earnest protest."

Whether the protest went outside of the treaty and claimed a violation of the principles of international law in discrimination against the Japanese, or was an allegation that the spirit, if not the letter of the treaty, had been infringed by the California legislation, the secretary would not say. In fact he had not deemed it expedient to acquaint even Johnson with the details of the communication.

Secretary Bryan let it be known that if legislation in California is postponed the state department will undertake to deal diplomatically with the Japanese government regarding the whole subject of alien land ownership as affecting Japanese in America.

Johnson Delays Reply

Sacramento, Cal., May 13.—Governor Johnson has not yet replied to the message of President Wilson and Secretary of State Bryan, asking that he veto the Webb anti-alien land bill.

The governor has until June 16 to sign the measure, and therefore there is no immediate need of haste in answering the president except to acknowledge the receipt of his telegram.

It was understood at the capital that the chief executive was so busy with details incidental to the adjournment of the legislature that he had decided to postpone taking up the new angle of the anti-alien issue.

QUITS THE FLYING GAME

Beachey Will Not Enter Airship Even "at Point of a Revolver"

San Francisco, May 13.—Lincoln Beachey, aviator, will never fly again, according to his statement at the Olympic club.

"You could not make me enter an aeroplane at the point of a revolver," he solemnly asserted. "I'm done."

"They call me the master birdman, but there was just one thing which drew crowds to my exhibitions—a morbid desire to see something happen. They all predicted I would be killed and none wanted to miss getting in on it. They paid to see me die. The odds were always against my life."

Beachey read a roster of twenty-four aviators who have been killed when flying and said he had been blamed for the death of two of his pupils.

PURE MILK LAW UPHELD

Health Department Has Right to Require Certificates From Dealers

Washington, May 13.—The right of the health department of the city of Milwaukee to require certificates from all milk dealers shipping milk into the city showing that the cows had been given the tuberculosis test, has been upheld by the supreme court of the United States in a decision in the case of J. Q. Adams against the city.

Adams lived in Brookfield and shipped the milk to the city dealers.

RIVAL CITIES

reduce the price of power. The cost of manufacturing, also the cost of living, is less than in most cities of similar size. Quincy claims to have fewer labor troubles than any other city of its size in the country. It is essentially a city of home owners.

Located almost in the heart of the central West, Quincy expects to share directly and largely in the manufacturing and commercial benefits from the Panama canal, the improvement of the upper Mississippi river being made by the federal government—the Cooper dam, the projected canal from Duluth-Superior to the Mississippi river and from other advantages and events contributing to the remarkable manufacturing progress of this territory.

Quincy is almost in the centre of that great empire, the agricultural advantages of which are commonly known, at least in a general way. The chief agricultural products of the three fertile states comprising Quincy's immediate jobbing territory—Illinois, Missouri and Iowa—are wheat corn and oats. More than 11,000,000 intelligent, progressive and prosperous people live in these three states.

Quincy's financial strength is proverbial. There are seven banks, the aggregate resources of which approximate $16,000,000. The bank clearings at Quincy show an increase of from 20 to 25 per cent annually, which is far above the ordinary record in cities of the same class. Taxes in the city are moderate and in the outlying factory districts are nominal. Quincy's public utilities are regarded as excellent and adequate. The postoffice receipts are increasing more than 12 per cent per annum.

Colleges, academies and public and private schools and the free public library and reading room there are first-class. There are 13 public schools and one of the largest business colleges in the world. The city has a $115,000 Y. M. C. A. building, a $100,000 Masonic temple, various active philanthropic institutions and two-score churches.

The city site is on the lofty limestone bluffs. The rainfall is so uniform as to exempt the place from drought. An average elevation of 160 feet above highwater mark of the Mississippi river insures Quincy immunity from water damage. The natural beauty of the city is due largely to its picturesque and undulating topography, including rarely attractive river views from the Indian mounds. To these attractions have been added the park and boulevard system, tasteful residences and spacious lawns and impressive public and semi-public buildings. Quincy's park system, comprising about 300 acres, is widely known. There are 14 public parks, admirably landscaped.

Just north of the city is the state soldiers and sailors home, sheltering about 2000 veterans and their wives. The grounds comprise 225 acres and there are about 60 buildings.

Historical points of interest in Quincy include the Quincy Historical building, erected by former Governor John Wood as his residence in 1835, which is now owned by the Quincy Hisorical Society. Upon its walls the names of pioneers appear in gold upon white marble. What is now Jefferson public school was a private academy in pioneer days. A statue of Gen. George Rogers Clark adorns Riverview park, and one of Governor Wood stands in Washington park. In Indian Mounds park, on the noble bluffs in the south of the city, are seven prehistoric mounds.

Among the men of national reputation who have resided in Quincy are Orville H. Browning, Lincoln's secretary of the interior; Stephen A. Douglas, who had a law office at Quincy; Congressman W. J. Singleton, Gen. George E. Pickett, Henry Clay Works, the author of "Marching Through Georgia"; David Nelson, the abolitionist; Gen. James D. Morgan, Gen. B. M. Prentiss and Admiral Charles deKraft.

The Assessors are now at work in Ward Four and expect to be in Ward One next week and that the field work will have been completed inside of two weeks. Ward One and Houghs Neck are always left for the last places to assess, and the Assessors will finish up their work with Houghs Neck.

The assistant assessors, whose duties are to assess polls, horses, cows, automobiles, etc., have about completed their work. In fact, all have completed their work with the exception of the assistant assessor in Ward Four.

GRADUATION IN EVENING

Wollaston Association Prefer it to Afternoon

The last meeting for the season of the Wollaston Parents and Teachers Association was held Monday evening in the school hall with a large number present.

David H. Goodspeed reporting for the committee on playground said that there would be a supervised playground in back of the Wollaston school during the coming summer. He further stated that the city, would be petitioned to finish grading the school lot.

Solos by Herbert Y. Follett were much enjoyed and loudly encored. He sang the "Bedoiun love song" by Buck, "Stone Cracker John" by Coats and "Sword of Tarara" by Bullard. He was accompanied by Mrs. Follett.

Chester I. Campbell for the library committee, reported that a library for use of school pupils would be put in operation, on school days from 3.30 until 5 o'clock, in an ante room. At his request Miss Clara E. G. Thayer and David H. Goodspeed were added to the committee.

Willard E. Keyes brought in the report of the nominating committee and Albert N. Murray was elected president and Mrs. Walter S. Pinkham secretary and treasurer.

The question of school graduation was brought up, parents from both the Wollaston and Massachusetts schools speaking.

It was finally voted to hold the final graduation at 7.30 on Friday evening June 20th in the hall of the Wollaston school. Sidney J. Smith and George A. Vibert attended as delegates from the Massachusetts Fields school.

Mrs. Walter S. Pinkham reported for the Wollaston Free Kindergarten saying that it was the 7th year of its existence and the first under the public schools.

The report of Miss Clara E. G. Thayer for the benevolent committee was read and Mrs. Robert E. Park spoke for a pardon for a young lad in Georgia.

Superintendent Barbour made a very timely and interesting address on "Public education and the public expenditure."

Explaining the social changes that brought an evolution in school administration, he ventured the prophecy that school expenses would continually increase because more would be demanded of them.

The final solution would come when the basil question of taxation is answered. A social hour and refreshments followed.

WEDDING ANNIVERSARY

Mr. and Mrs. Isaac Damon Fifty Years Married

With a large reception, Monday evening, at their home on Kemper street, Wollaston, Mr. and Mrs. Isaac Damon celebrated their golden wedding. The couple have made hosts of friends since coming to Wollaston four years ago, where they now reside with their only child George B. Damon.

Nearly 200 attended, many coming from Bridgewater their former home; others from Providence, Winthrop, Brookline, Cambridge, Boston, Wollaston and surrounding towns.

A reception was held from eight until ten, and in the receiving line were Mr. and Mrs. Isaac Damon and Mr. and Mrs. George B. Damon.

The ushers were: Roderick D. Hall and Phillips Rodgers of Wollaston, Harry W. Bragdon of Bridgewater and Joseph A. Elwell of Winthrop.

Edward R. Hall of Brookline was master of ceremonies and was assisted by a group of young men. Music by Ferguson's orchestra of Bridgewater, was enjoyed and the catering was by Seiler of Boston.

The decorations were of pink and green augmented by masses of cut flowers and other plants.

Congratulations poured in upon the couple from far and near, including a cablegram from London, England, sent by Reginald Ward, a friend of long standing.

Mr. and Mrs. Damon received many presents of gold and other articles. The couple are fortunate in enjoying the best of health and many congratulations were tendered on this score.

Mr. Damon was born in 1838 and his good wife in 1842. They were married at Bridgewater May 12, 1863, at the home of the bride's father, Capt. E. W. Barstow, now deceased.

Mr. Damon is the son of Isaac N. Damon of Hingham. He came to Bridgewater at an early age where he entered the store of Hobart and Perkins.

Later he was employed by the Bridgewater Iron Co., and remained there until its failure. He is at present in the employ of W. H. McElwain Company of Boston, shoe manufacturers.

Mrs. Damon, while in Bridgewater was actively connected with the Unitarian church and many of its social circles. While there she engaged in much philanthropic work.

Mr. and Mrs. Damon came to Wollaston four years ago and since taking up there residence here have endeared themselves to a large circle of friends.

Coulter and LaCain, the well known western Vaudeville Artists will present the Irish Comedy, "Casey's Daughter Maggie" at the Orpheum Theatre, Quincy Adams tonight.

A Choice Between Two Roads

By F. A. MITCHEL

Having occasion to journey through a portion of Tennessee, the region of the Cumberland plateau, I was obliged on one occasion to travel by wagon. A countryman with some supplies was going over the route I proposed to take, and when I offered him good pay to take me with him he accepted the proposition.

We hadn't got far on our route when we came to a house standing beside the road, and a girl carrying a carpetbag—it was an old timer, really made of carpet—came out of the house, evidently to meet the wagon. She was "dressed up"—that is, she had on her best clothes instead of the calico dress and sunbonnet of the typical southern country girl.

"Josh," she said, "I reckon I'll go with yo'."

"All right, Sairy. Climb up yere."

There was room for three on the seat, but since my driver—Saunders was his name—and the girl seemed inclined to be spoony I removed myself to a soft bale of some kind of goods in the wagon behind them, saying that I would have a smoke.

Josh and Sairy, as they called each other, were evidently enjoying the trip together. Neither gave me any information as to their relationship or how the girl knew that he would pass the house where she joined us at that day and hour.

Having nothing to do, I amused myself trying to work out the relationship between them. While they said nothing directly to indicate it, they said a great deal indirectly. At one time the girl would chat about a certain farm, mentioning all sorts of devices for making the house on it attractive. She would put up some curtains she had that would fit very nearly and paper several of the rooms herself—she had done papering before—and line the porch with flowers, and make a lot of improvements besides. Josh assented to all this every time she stopped long enough to give him an opportunity, saying: "Just so. That would look mighty fine—beautiful." But it seemed to me that he was listening to a story rather than facts. If she were picturing a future home in which he was to participate he gave me the idea that he considered the girl to be a rainbow chaser.

Striking a crossroad, we found a man sitting on a fence whittling a stick. He took no notice of us till we came opposite; then he said:

"Howdy, Josh? Howdy, Sairy?"

"Howdy, Mart?" said Josh, pulling up.

"Whar yo' goin'?" asked Mart.

"We're goin' to Jasper."

"What yo' goin' to do thar—get married?"

Josh looked at the girl, but since she did not seem inclined to make a reply he did so himself. "We allowed we might get married if we can find a parson to marry us."

"I reckoned so. That's the reason I jist thought I'd wait fo' yo' yere."

I changed my position so that I could see the girl's face. All the light heartedness had gone out of her. I inferred that the man sitting on the fence was a claimant for her himself, but he was a red headed, freckled, loose jointed, disagreeable looking fellow, and I didn't see how he could have any chance with Josh, who was quite good looking and otherwise attractive. Neither Josh nor Sairy made any comment on Mart's last statement, and presently he drawled:

"See here, Sairy, this has been goin' on long enough. Yo' see the signboards pointin' the way? The road you're goin' leads to Jasper, t'other one to Chattanoogy. Air yo' goin' to Jasper with Josh or air yo' goin' to Chattanoogy with me?"

There being no immediate reply to this, there was a dead silence. It was evident that the two men were waiting for the girl to decide between them. Presently Mart added:

"This ends the foolin'. Yo' go to Jasper or to Chattanoogy, and whichever way yo' go you stay. There's no go back."

Half a minute elapsed before the decision came and then not in words. Josh must have seen it in the girl's face, for I saw him reach down under the seat, take out Sairy's carpetbag and hand it to her. At the same time Mart approached and handed her down on to the road. Then Josh drove on. Looking back, I saw Mart and Sairy trudging along on the road to Chattanooga.

Taking the seat I had vacated in favor of the girl, I handed Josh a cigar.

"Smoke?"

"Reckon I will."

"What does all this mean?" I asked when he had lighted up.

"Waal, there's some wimmen hes a powerful influence over some men and some men over some wimmen. That gal hes been wantin' to marry me fo' a long spell, but that feller wouldn't let her. Did yo' hear her talkin' about the house we was to live in arter we was married? I'd heerd all that afore. I knowed it didn't mean nothin'. I knowed Mart was a-watchin' her and had his spies out on her and she wouldn't get far afore he'd stop her."

"Does she fear him?"

"No. If he'd 'a' tried to force her I'd put a bullet inter him."

I asked Josh if Mart noticed the girl, explained to him what hypnotizing meant, but all he had to say to this was:

"I dunno."

LAND-OWNING LEGISLATION

President Makes Effort to Have It Delayed In California

SENDS WORD TO GOVERNOR

Urges Him to Withhold Signature to Bill Because of Earnest Protest Against It by Japanese Ambassador—Test In Courts Almost Certain If Bill Becomes Effective

Washington, May 12.—The federal government's final effort to delay alien land-owning legislation in California was made last night, when Secretary Bryan, in the name of President Wilson, telegraphed Governor Johnson notifying him that the Japanese ambassador had earnestly protested against the bill passed by the California assembly and urging that he postpone action by withholding his signature.

Bryan's telegram, which was framed after a conference with the president Saturday, was dispatched last night and made public at the White House a few minutes later. It says the president has already officially expressed his views on the subject and it is unnecessary to reiterate them. Continuing it says:

"The president is fully alive to the importance of removing any root of discord which may create antagonism between American citizens and the subjects of oriental nations residing here; but he is impelled by a sense of duty to express the hope that you will see fit to allow time for diplomatic effort. The nations affected by the proposed law are friendly nations—nations that have shown themselves willing to co-operate in the establishment of harmonious relations between their people and ours.

"If a postponement commends itself to your judgment, the president will be pleased to co-operate in a systematic effort to discover and correct any evils that may exist in connection with land ownership by aliens."

The decision of the administration to urge Johnson to use his power to veto or postpone any land legislation was reached after a series of conferences between the president, Secretray Bryan and John B. Moore, counsellor of the state department, and frequent calls at the department by Ambassador Chinda.

It was realized that any further attempts to have the bill enacted by the California legislature amended would be fruitless, since Bryan's trip to Sacramento was unavailing and the legislature is to adjourn next Tuesday.

Until Jonson's reply is received, the government probably will make no reply to the protest of Japan, further than to acquaint the ambassador of the fact that every possible effort has been made to have action in California delayed pending a settlement of the problems involved by diplomacy.

Whether or not the governor complies with the administration's request, there probably will be important diplomatic negotiations between the United States and Japan immediately. If the land bill is vetoed, the president and Bryan will have to undertake to carry out their promise to accomplish through diplomacy the ends sought by the Californians.

There has been no intimation of what may be expected in the event the governor gives the bill his signature. However, a test in the courts is regarded as a certainty if the law becomes effective, and in spite of the silence at the White House and state department, there still is talk outside of the posibility of employing the referendum as a means for delaying the effectiveness of the proposed law for at least two years.

SENSATIONAL CHARGES

State Attorney Accuses Chicago Police of Protecting Criminals

Chicago, May 12.—Charges that pickpockets and safe blowers have operated extensively in Chicago under police protection were made by State Attorney Hoyne, who named a saloon keeper and politician as head of a "safe blowers' trust." He asserted that with clairvoyants and wire tappers, the safe blowers were induced to centre their operations in Chicago under promise of police protection.

"I will drive every pickpocket out the city in three days," said Hoyne, "if the police do not do it. I intend to find out why bands of pickpockets have been allowed to ply their trade unmolested. The police who are responsible will be called to the mayor's office to explain their delinquency."

Rug Company Claim Health Conditions Are Good

The proprietors of the rug company on Sumner street, which was discovered by the City Council committee on licenses last week, take exceptions to the adverse comments on health conditions, etc. They inform the Daily Ledger that the factory is a fairly large sized building with plenty of light and ventilation. That it is wired for electric lighting.

The rooms of the factory have three windows and also large doors through which the light and air come in. The largest force ever employed, the proprietors say, is twelve men, and they are not newly landed. Some have been in this country for years, and all of them since Jan. 1. The proprietors claim that the premises are healthful, as there is plenty of light and air, and scout the idea that there is any danger of an epidemic, nothing but new material being used.

QUINCY GRANITE MEN

Ways and means were discussed at length and the best methods of raising funds for defraying the necessary expenses were taken under consideration. It was finally agreed upon that the best method was to sell space in the exhibition hall, and John L. Miller of Quincy was delegated as the agent to sell space as well as to solicit advertisements for the program.

The following committees were appointed: Publicity,—George H. Collyer, P. G. Lampson and Francis E. Bowker, Jr. Souvenir badges,—John L. Miller, James Joss and Robert D. Smith. Entertainment, — John L. Miller, Seward Jones, Alfred O. Diack and F. H. Holden. Headquarters will be secured at the Brunswick and at the Arena for exhibition purposes.

Special low rates have been secured on the railroads, practically one fare and three-fifths for the round trip ticket from practically all railroads, which means that the attendance will be large.

It will be seen by the above that Quincy men are prominent in the affair and the convention should be of inestimable value to Quincy. Being within a few minutes' ride of Boston it is figured out that there will be many excursions to the City of Presidents during the days of the convention, and the local manufacturers will not be found wanting in the way of entertainment.

Whether Quincy manufacturers will be largely represented at the exhibition hall has not as yet been fully decided, but the fact that being so near the scene of action it is generally believed by many that it would be more advantageous for them to have delegates visit the yards and quarries and see monuments in the process of manufacture. It will also afford an opportunity for the visitors to inspect Quincy's quarries which would be a lasting advertisement of the city.

Here is something that the Board of Trade might well take up, for it will give Quincy more advertising than she has had for some time.

LETTER CARRIERS BALL.

The annual reunion of Letters Carriers of the Boston post district will take place Wednesday evening in Mechanics building, Boston. Among those who will attend from Quincy will be Mayor Stone, Representative Michael T. Sullivan and Superintendent C. L. Hammond of the Quincy Office. Congressman Gilmore is also expected.

The carriers of Quincy who are members of the committee include Cornelius J. Connors, W. L. Jacobs, J. J. Cunniff and John T. Caine.

The large number wearing this dress will give the affair a pretty tone. Althought in past years Quincy residents have been among the attendants, this year promises to see a much larger delegation of local people present.

WEDNESDAY HALF HOLIDAYS

Early orders for Wednesday dinners suppers and Thursday breakfasts will be the rule for housekeepers to follow, commencing tonight, since practically all of the merchants in and about Quincy Square will give their clerks Wednesday afternoons this summer. The custom has been in vogue several years.

ARMOR BOXING LATEST SPORT

Schoolboys Can Engage In Bout Without Fear of Injury.

WAS TRIED OUT RECENTLY.

The latest thing in the boxing line is armor protection. This novel appliance is the invention of Guy Otis Brewster, physical director of the Dover (N. J.) high school, and is intended to protect boys and girls from injury or disfiguration when engaged in a boxing contest.

In New York recently a number of schoolboys from the Dover and Wharton high schools gave a demonstration of armor boxing at the monthly entertainment of the physical education department at Thompson's gymnasium, Teachers' college of Columbia university, which was witnessed by a number of men and women connected with the department.

Parents of children have been strong in their opposition to boxing. Many young men have received serious and several fatal injuries when engaged in the sport. It was to remove this objection and demonstrate that under his method of conducting boxing contests Mr. Brewster could entirely eliminate all possibility of accidents and restore the confidence of parents in the exercise.

In order to afford a practical illustration of the efficiency of his protector six schoolboys were introduced to the spectators fully equipped for the competition which was arranged on the round robin plan, each boy boxing one minute with the other boys.

The youthful boxers presented an amusing appearance equipped with the protector, but as the entertainment progressed the utility of the apparatus was evident and the strange effect disappeared. The protector is in two parts, hinged just below the chin. It s of woven steel wire about like the mesh of a catcher's mask. The upper part covers the face, sides of the head and neck, while the lower portion protects the heart, liver and stomach, ending at the waist line. Felt pads are used where the protector comes in contact with the head or body in order to absorb the shock of the blow. The protector is fastened with a strap and specially made clasps in order to prevent any part of it being torn away or loosened from blows. It is set close to the body in order to afford perfect freedom of action for the shoulders and arms. Straps of webbing cross the top of the head, and in order to give greater security a wide band of webbing is brought under the chin, which helps to keep the headpiece firm and not interfere with the head movements. The straps of webbing hold the lower section of the protector close to the body.

The mask removes the sense of fighting and brutality and teaches the youngsters the co-ordination of striking hard blows and fearless defense. The rules governing boxing with the new protector follows:

There shall be five men on a team, and each man shall box twice with every other man on the opposing team. Each round shall consist of one minute, and each man's rest period shall consist of the time between rounds, averaging about four minutes.

There shall be no cessation of the game from the opening bell to the closing one. As one couple leaves the ring another pair enters, and the boxing is continuous. The contestants shall be scored on the six cardinal points of boxing—viz, (1) footwork; (2) correct leads; (3) correct parrying and blocking; (4) correct ducking; (5) correct sequence of leads; (6) self control and trategical work.

There shall be a referee to judge the points and a scorer to record them.

The contestant winning the most points in each round scores one point for his team (a draw may be given), and the team scoring the most points in the two halves wins the game.

Cincinnati, May 13.—The suspension of the car strike, which has paralyzed transportation in this city since Saturday, was postponed last night when officers of the union street car men refused to entertain a proposition by the traction officials to arbitrate their difficulties.

The union officials say they will give out a definite statement today and in the interim propose to continue the present tie-up.

Princeton Wins Boat Race

Boston, May 13.—Princeton's varsity eight played a waiting game in the triangular race with Harvard and Pennsylvania on the Cadries river yesterday afternoon, and it won the contest for the Tigers. Princeton's time for the mile and seven-eighths course was 10m. 18s. Harvard finished in 10m. 22s and Pennsylvania 10m. 32s, which is slow and behind river records.

HOUGHS NECK DANCE HALLS.

Mayor Stone said this morning that he would settle the vexed question of dance halls at Houghs Neck on Wednesday. During the past week he has been besieged by people who want licenses granted and by those who desire that Houghs Neck shall be free from these places of amusement this year. Not only have many called in person to say a word one way or the other but he has received quantities of letters and his telephone line has been kept hot every evening.

As the Mayor said this morning it is a perplexing question and one that he is finding difficulty in deciding. Whichever way he decides someone is sure to be disappointed. One thing is certain, however, and that is should he decide to grant dance hall privileges, he will insist that they be run differently from what they were last year.

RIVERSIDE CLUB.

The Quincy Women's Riverside Club held another of the enjoyable socials in Alpha Hall Monday evening, with a large attendance. Dancing was the program until midnight music being furnished by Wilson's orchestra. Refreshments were served. The committee in charge was Mrs. George Spooner, Mrs. George E. Sprague, Mrs. Emma Marnock, Mrs. F. E. Betts, Mrs. Otis MacDonald and Mrs. C. T. Jones.

CONVENTION IS TO BE CALLED

Decision Reached by Republicans at Chicago Conference

FORMAL STATEMENT IS ISSUED

Action Planned to Reunite the Party and Give Assurance That It Will Be Constructive and Progressive—Convention Open to All Who Desire to Participate In Proceedings

Chicago, May 13.—Demand for a Republican national convention this fall was made by the "Band of Hope" senators of the United States upon the Republican national committee. A proclamation to this effect was the net result of the two days' conference held in the Congress hotel. Chicago is said to be the city preferred for the convention.

The plan of the senators, headed by Mr. Cummins of Iowa, is to change the rules of the Republican organization machinery in such a manner as to answer the charges of a "stolen convention"—the cry that went up in the Chicago national Republican meeting of a year ago.

Factional trouble is reported ahead over the convention idea. The issue will be squarely met May 24, when the executive committee of the Republican national organization is to meet in Washington. Some party chieftains are said to hold that the national organization has the power to change the rules of the party to meet public sentiment without the calling of a convention at this time.

"Does the suggestion to reunite the party mean that those who joined the Progressive party are to be asked to come back?" Cummins was asked.

"It means just as I have said before, that the convention would be a sort of Lord's Supper and all those who believed might partake," replied Cummins.

After the conference the following statement was given out:

"At an informal conference of Republicans from eleven states, held at Chicago, May 12, 1913, it was voted that it be submitted to the national Republican committee as the opinion of those present that a national convention of the party should be held this year at as early a date as may be practicable for the purpose of considering the expediency of changing the basis of representation in future conventions so that the delegates shall proportionately represent Republican voters and not general population, to the end that the will of the members of the party may be more accurately determined; also for the purpose of changing the rules relating to delegates and members of the national committee, so that the primary election laws of the various states shall be recognized and shall have full force and also for the purpose of making such other changes in the methods of conducting national conventions and campaigns as shall conduce to giving the utmost possible effect to the principles and policies of the party.

"It was further the opinion that such a convention might properly and usefully take any other action desirable to reunite the party and to give assurance that it stands for constructive and progressive activities in the affairs of government to the end that the common welfare may be advanced.

"It was the unanimous belief of those present that the changes suggested should be made forthwith and that the national committee be urged to take such steps to such an end."

A committee composed of Robert Luce, former lieutenant governor of Massachusetts; Senator Borah, Senator Kenyon, State Senator James of Michigan, and State Senator Troutman of Kansas, had been appointed to draw up a statement expressing the sentiment of the conference This committee drew up the foregoing and it was adopted. That concluded the conference.

Much interest centered about the significance of including in the statement the phrase about "reuniting the party." Cummins explained that it "meant just what it said" but that no long talk was indulged in about "inviting" members of the Progressive party to return to the Republican ranks.

LODGE IS SIXTY-THREE

Burdens of the "Scholar In Politics" Have Been Greatly Lightened

Washington, May 13. — Henry Cabot Lodge, senator from Massachusetts, shook many hands yesterday. It was the senator's birthday. All the reference books mark him down for 63. Everybody said that he doesn't look it.

As a matter of fact the "scholar in politics" is looking better than at any time for the past five or six years. He is no longer bearing more than one man's share of the worries of the "administration."

STILWELL HELD IN $5000

Senator Indicted In Bribe Case After Exoneration by Colleagues

New York, May 13.—State Senator Stephen J. Stilwell, indicted by the grand jury for bribery on charges preferred by George A. Kendall, president of the New York Bank Note company, on which charges he was exonerated by the state senate, surrendered to District Attorney Whitman late yesterday afternoon.

Attorney Wilson, temporarily retained by Stilwell, requested and was granted an adjournment in pleading. Bail in the sum of $5000 was furnished by Stilwell.

Whitman indicated that Stilwell would be placed on trial within the next week or ten days.

ADMITS ATTEMPT TO BURN BUILDING

Manager of Dancing Academy Wanted Insurance Money

Salem, Mass., May 13.—Harry Barber, who conducts a dancing academy on the third floor of the $100,000 Naumkeag building on Essex street, was placed under arrest after a two-hour grilling by City Marshal Lehan and State Officer Wells, and confession to an attempt to fire the building. Barber said he wanted to get the $2000 insurance on his property.

A cleverly devised scheme to set the fire was discovered just before midnight Saturday and just before a lighted candle had burned down to the flimsy material piled around it in a room used by Barber as a storeroom. He was captured when he entered that room yesterday afternoon by officers who had laid in wait all night and day. He insisted when arrested that he knew nothing of the attempt at arson.

GUILTY AND NOT GUILTY

Jury's Mistake Causes Undertaker and His Wife to Collapse

Columbus, O., May 13.—As a result of a mistake on the part of the jury, Oscar H. Osman, an undertaker, accused of stealing money from the body of a flood victim, was found both guilty and not guilty, in the criminal court where he was on trial, charged with larceny.

Both Osman and his wife, who was in the courtroom, collapsed when the first report was made by the jury, and it was with difficulty that Mrs. Osman was convinced later when told that her husband had been acquitted.

$10,800 NEVER ACCOUNTED FOR

Part of Fund Raised For Families of Lawrence Strikers

SLOCUM REPORTS TO COURT

Committee Deposited $16,375 Less Than Total Funds Received by Them During Strike—Neither Haywood Nor Ettor Found to Have Personally Received Any of the Money

Boston, May 13.—Charges that Joseph Bedard, secretary of the I. W. W. committee to soucit funds during the big Lawrence textile strike, has failed to account for $10,800 of the total fund, were made in a report submitted to Judge Braley of the state supreme court by Winfield S. Slocum, who as master investigated the expenditures of the strike fund.

In his report, Slocum declared the fund was raised for the avowed purpose of aiding the families of the strikers, but that in reality sums had been paid for the board of Joseph J. Ettor and Arturo M. Giovannitti, the strike leaders, for office expenses, for the transportation of the strikers' children to New York, and for other purposes summarized by the committee under the title of "Agitation-Law."

According to the master's report, Bedard deposited under is own name $10,800 in the Lawrence Trust company, and later drew this out in three checks, one for $2800 payable to Vincent St. John, international secretary of the I. W. W.; a second, for $3000, payable to Thomas Powers, a Providence textile worker, and a third, for $5000 to Desire Steur of Lawrence.

It was claimed that the entire sum was later returned and used as a part of the fund, but the report of Slocum asserts this money was not returned to the fund.

Slocum stated that Bedard had not satisfactorily explained the use of the $10,800. The total fund was $68,946.81, according to the committee's books, but this was declared to have been $8,261.40 too much by E. S. Morse, expert accountant employed by Slocum. The excess was ascribed to mistakes and repetitions on the part of the committee to itemize the contributions.

The master's report shows that the committee deposited in the Lawrence Trust company $46,188.72, which is said to be $16,375.68 less than the total funds received by the committee during the strike.

The report states that neither Ettor nor William D. Haywood received any part of the funds.

The proceedings against Bedard and the others on the I. W. W. committee soliciting the funds were brought by Rev. Herbert S. Johnson, pastor of the Warren Avenue Baptist church; James M. Prendergast, cotton broker, and Robert A. Woods, settlement worker.

The complainants charged that portions of the total fund had been improperly used for private and personal uses by the defendants and their assistants; that some of them had drawn on the fund in paying their own salaries, that substantial amounts had been contributed for tue board and private expenses of Ettor while he was in jail, and that large sums had been paid to the I. W. W. organization.

WILL RACE ANY OLD WAY

Lipton Does Not Appear to Be Worrying Concerning Conditions

London, May 13.—The Royal Ulster Yacht club cabled to the New York Yacht club on May 9, saying that the challenge sent by Sir Thomas Lipton for a series of races for the America's cup was intended to convey that the contest should be governed in all respects by the same conditions as prevailed in the last races.

If the New York Yacht club, however, preferred, Lipton had no objection to race under its present rules of measurement, time allowance and racing rules.

The reply from the New York Yacht club has just been received, stating the matter would be considered at an early date.

BIG FUNNEL IS FORMED

Mountain Trembles as Part of Vesuvius Crater Caves In

Naples, May 13.—The activity of Mount Vesuvius, which has been apparent for several days, reached a climax when a part of the crater collapsed with a deep roar.

The trembling of the mountain could be distinctly felt, and observations showed that a funnel 250 feet deep had been formed. From this dense sulphurous clouds and white smoke ascended.

SULTAN MUST GIVE HIS BOND

No Better Than Subject In Courts In the United States

New York, May 13.—The Sultan of Turkey, through his legal representative, was notified that in an American law court his position is the same as that of his humblest subject.

The question of the sultan's rights as a litigant arose at Justice Davis' special term of the supreme court, which has before it the Turkish ruler's suit to get possession of $10,000 insurance money on the life of H. S. Tavshanjian, a wealthy Armenian merchant, who was assassinated here in 1907.

The defendants in the suit asked that the sultan give the customary security for the payment of costs. The Turkish consul general here requested that in view of the plaintiff's distinguished rank he be released from this obligation.

In denying the sultan's request, Justice Davis said that it did not matter whether a plaintiff was a potentate or one of his subjects, and that kings, sultans and emperors should not import their domestic affairs into our courts.

A SENSATIONAL MOVE

Officials Make an Unexpected Descent on Revere Assessors' Office

Boston, May 13.—State, county and town officials have joined in an investigation of the charges made by Tax Collector Prendergast of Revere, to the effect that the books of the assessors of that town have been falsified and that a discrepancy of $900 is shown by the books as they stand.

Acting on the information given him by Prendergast, District Attorney Pelletier set in motion the machinery for an investigation.

Accompanied by representatives of the state tax commissioner's office, the state police, the attorney general's office and the town police, the district attorney yesterday took possession of the assessors' office for three hours and made a critical examination of the records filed there. A photographer and a handwriting expert assisted him.

Thirty pages of the assessors' books for 1911 and 1912 were carefully photographed. Copies were made of the pages in which, it is alleged, are certain entries not clearly understood.

TO ASK CONGRESS FOR GREATEST SHIP

Navy Board Wants One to Cost Twenty Million Dollars

Washington, May 13.—Congress will be asked next year to appropriate for one battleship—a mammoth dreadnought displacing 40,000 tons—the sum of $20,000,000, according to tentative plans plans of the navy general board.

This year the navy department asked for three battleships and got one; last year two were asked for and congress appropriated for none.

During the debate on the naval bill this year, members of congress particularly interested in the navy became satisfied that while there were two extreme factions, one advocating appropriations for two or three first-class battleships a year, and the other with "no battleships" as a slogan, an overwhelming majority in both houses could be counted upon to vote for a single dreadnought.

FIRE IN SCHOOLHOUSE

Breaks Out After Children Had Been Dismissed For the Day

Boston, May 13.—Trapped in the Everett grammar school building, Northampton street, by a wall of fire late yesterday afternoon, Miss Eliza M. Everts, assistant principal, was severely burned as she dashed through the flames from the third floor to the street.

Miss Charlotte Ontank, a teacher, whose room is on the first floor, and Janitor Beverstock were also in the building at the time, but both got out before the fire, which had progressed rapidly before discovery, had menaced them.

The fire, starting in a weight shaft once used to shield the hand bell ropes, had run up the side of the building to the fourth floor, mushroomed out with a loud explosion and filled the top of the structure with flames before any one within noticed their danger.

The KITCHEN CUPBOARD

LETTUCE SALADS.

LETTUCE is one of the best spring salads. To shred lettuce use only the coarser leaves, reserving the cup shaped for the edge of the salad. Roll these large leaves tightly, then slice from one end with a sharp knife and shake up loosely. It is an economical and appetizing way to use the outer leaves, which are fresh and green and yet not as delicate as the heart leaves.

Nice With Cold Meat.

Lettuce and Endive Salad.—Take equal parts of endive, lettuce, heart of celery, sliced boiled beets and watercress. Wash and dry them all thoroughly, place in a clean salad bowl, dust with pepper and salt, add a little minced onion and oil and vinegar in the proportion of a spoonful of vinegar to two of oil. Mix very lightly and serve. This is a very nice salad for serving with any kind of cold roast or boiled meat or poultry.

Mixed Salad.—Take equal parts of lettuce, endive, sliced cold beets, watercress and the white part of celery cut in short lengths. Place in a clean, cold salad bowl and season with pepper and salt to taste. Pour the following sauce over the salad: Place the yolks of two hard boiled eggs in a bowl, add to them half a teaspoonful of salt, a teaspoonful of made mustard and a little pepper. Work all together with the back of a wooden spoon. Then add by degrees a large tablespoonful of double cream and, drop by drop, half a gill of salad oil. Finally add two spoonfuls of vinegar. Mix again and use as before directed.

Useful Salads.

English Salad.—Take two large lettuces, wash and dry them thoroughly and tear each leaf into two or three or more pieces. Place in a clean salad bowl and dust with salt and pepper to taste. Add a few leaves of fresh mint, a little very finely minced spring onion, a dessertspoonful of moist sugar and oil and vinegar in the proportion of two spoonfuls of oil to one of vinegar. Mix and serve. This salad is especially nice with cold roast lamb. If liked a few slices of cold boiled new potatoes may be added to it with advantage.

French Salad.—Take one or two lettuces, shred and wash them thoroughly and when dry place them in a cold salad bowl, add a little coarsely chopped tarragon, chives and chervil (about a teaspoonful of each) and pepper and salt to taste. Mix and then add half a gill of salad oil and a tablespoonful of tarragon vinegar. Mix and serve.

Anna Thompson.

There is more catarrh in this section of the country than all other diseases put together, and until the last few years was supposed to be incurable. For a great many years doctors pronounced it a local disease and prescribed local remedies, and by constantly failing to cure local treatment pronounced it incurable. Science has proven catarrh to be a constitutional disease and therefore requires constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, Ohio, is the only constitutional cure on the market. It is taken internally in doses from 10 drops to a teaspoonful. It acts directly on the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. They offer one hundred dollars for any case it fails to cure. Send for circulars and testimonials.

The deceased was a former Quincy resident residing on Adams street and a retired leather dealer. The services were well attended.

BOWLING SEASON ENDED.

The City bowling league has practically closed its season with the Cranch team in the lead and the Junior Moose snuggly resting in second place. Hanson of the Cranch is high average man, reaching a fraction less than 93. The Granites who are in third place were forced out of second position by the Junior Moose who passed them a 4 to 0 defeat.

NEW TURNOUTS.

The street railway are planning to commence work at the earliest possible minute building the new turnouts on the Houghs Neck line. One of these turnouts will be located on Coddington street near the junction of Canal and Valley streets and the second on Sea street, near what is known as the Willows, or more properly speaking opposite the old Peterson place.

On the West Quincy line it is planned to take up the old Trail on Copeland street and put down a heavy grooved girder rail that is ninety pounds to the yard. It is also planned to straighten the curve in the track somewhat near the fire station on Copeland street.

ANNUAL REPORTS OF THE COMMITTEES OF QUINCY WOMEN'S CLUB WILL BE PRINTED IN WEDNESDAY'S QUINCY DAILY LEDGER. IT HAS BEEN A YEAR OF ACTIVITY AND GOOD WORK.

WATER STREET RUNAWAY.

A horse shoe is lucky but there is no safety in numbers if the experience of Louis Biller, 303 Water street, is the standard. Monday afternoon Biller's horse took the bit and started down Water street. In trying to round the Quincy avenue curve a load of horseshoes shifted and upset the wagon. Biller was thrown to the street and received severe bruises and cuts about the hands and face.

Dr. J. T. Reynolds was coming up Quincy avenue, and in order to avoid the onrushing steed drew closely to the inside of the sidewalk. Nearly opposite his machine the wagon tipped and Biller was hurled to the street. He was immediately treated by Dr. Reynolds and taken to his home.

The horse became frightened when a broken trace flapped against his body. The wagon was a covered one and carried a large bag of horse shoes. It was slightly damaged.

LODGE RING PRESENTED.

Charles Williamson, retiring dictator of the Junior Order of Moose, was presented with a lodge ring, the gift of the members, at a meeting in Protection hall Monday evening. JUVENILE DAY.

Today was juvenile day at district court and a large number of juveniles were present They were in court for breaking street lights at Milton and other minor offenses. Their cases were disposed of in a special session.

The Ruling Passion.

It is an evident fact that the body when it has long been a slave to evil passion finds it next to impossible to break its chains. The mind may passionately desire righteous living, but the abused nervous system, fallen into iron habits, refuses the soul's behest.

Canon Gore wrote that he was once present at the deathbed of a pickpocket, a man who professed himself to be sincerely penitent and who believed in the forgiveness of sins.

He had said goodby to this world, and the clergyman sat by his side waiting for his last moment to come. Suddenly the sinking man exclaimed in a hoarse and painful whisper:

"Look out for your watch."

They were his last words. He had died in their utterance, and the clergyman's watch was found in his lifeless hand. He had not been able to resist the nearness of an article that could be stolen. His enfeebled will could not prevent the muscles from falling into their old habits, but his mind (his soul, shall we say?) protested to the last.—London Standard.

FRANK M. COUPAL.

The funeral of Frank M. Coupal, was held this morning from his home, 178 Highland avenue, Wollaston. A high mass of requiem was celebrated at the Church of the Sacred Heart, by Rev. Fr. J. P. Cuffe, pastor. Music for the mass was the Gregorian chant by the regular choir. Miss Catherine Dolan sang the Pie Jesu at the offertory and Miss Clara Duggan the libera. Miss Louise Costello was organist.

Many relatives and friends attended the services. Many beautiful floral tributes were placed on the grave among which was a standing wreath from the Tubular Rivet and Stud Co., where the deceased was employed for three years as a machinist; a spray of carnations from the office of S. A. McDonnell of Boston. Burial was in Mt. Wollaston cemetery. The bearers were Joseph Mullen, Charles Jacobson, Hugh McKinnon and Bernard L. Wing.

Mr. Coupal was a popular Wollaston resident and leaves four brothers Joseph Jr., Leon, Charles and Louis, and three sisters, Jesephine, Rose and Mrs. Eva Hobart, all of Quincy. The funeral was directed by Edward L. Bean.

NEW ADAMS SCHOOL.

The new Adams school building on Mt. Pleasant, from which site can be seen practically every school and church in the city, is being rushed to completion. The brick work of two stories, towers above the high surroundings and busy workmen are skillfully setting the interior.

The wall, skirting the grounds on the Franklin street side, presents a formidable appearance. Gracefully rounded so that it will hold the bank which will be made on the westerly side of the building, it will add much to the picturesqueness of the site.

The cornice work will be laid as soon as possible and the iron structure supporting floors and roof is being rapidly installed. A glimpse of its skeleton framework impresses one with the size of Ward Three's needed addition.

RETURN MATCH.

The bowling team of the Board of Trade is to try conclusions Thursday evening with a team from the Everett Board of Trade at Everett. The Quincy bowlers will leave the rooms of the Board at 7 o'clock in four seven-passenger automobiles. The local bowlers have been doing considerable practicing of late and feel able to take the Everett bowlers into camp.

NEW BUILDING SOON.

That it is not intended that the building of the Quincy Mutual Fire Insurance company is to occupy the location near the Court house permanently is shown by the fact that the cellar is being made of planking. It is understood that the Insurance company are having plans made for a handsome new building to be erected in the near future.

ANNUAL REPORTS OF QUINCY WOMEN'S CLUB

Much Accomplished in Many Lines of Activity---Balance in Treasury

Largest Expenditure Was for Visiting Nurse

One of the best meetings of the club season was that of Tuesday afternoon when the annual meeting of the Quincy Women's club was held at the clubhouse. The president Mrs. Eben W. Sheppard presided and among the announcements the most important was the spring meeting of the State Federation May 28 and 29 in the South Congregational church, Boston, when the hosters club would be the New England Women's club. Mrs. Frank J. Moore, Mrs. Charles R. Safford, Mrs. Victor E. Miller and Mrs. Chandler W. Smith were elected to represent the Quincy club at the meeting.

The president announced that the club was now an incorporated body. Paul R. Blackmur attorney was given a vote of thanks by the club for his services and assistance in the matter of incorporating.

Mrs. Sheppard told of the biennial conference of the General Federation at Washington in April and was pleased that six members of the Quincy club attended. One thought among many present was the need of raising the full amount of $100,000 for an endowment fund, that the General Federation may not be hampered in its work. As expressed by one club woman "An endowment would give a strong, steady, regular income and if you want your Federation to do strong, steady work, you must give it something to do with, something sure.

Would you let your daughter go to her bridgeroom with nothing at all in her bridal chest, if you could help it?

Would you let your son struggle and work to earn his way through college, if you could save his time and strength for study, by paying enough to enable him to get the whole benefit of that education?

Would you even grudge oil and grease and rubber tubes to your automobile, thus causing it to suffer from a series of squeaks, hot bearings and flat tires in its effort to do all you expected of it?

Indeed not! Let us hasten then to raise our share of this endowment fund that we may have the best work from the departments and committees of our General Federation.

Mrs. Sheppard hoped all members who had not contributed to the fund would do so and have the satisfaction of knowing they had done their part. Mrs. John B. Worster who also attended the Washington conference gave a brief report of the doings and also spoke a word for the endowment fund.

The afternoon was not given up entirely to business for there was an enjoyable musical program by Miss Ethel Raymond of Quincy and Miss

THE W. R. C. ANNIVERSARY

Grand Ovation for Twelve of the Charter Members

The 25th anniversary of Paul Revere Corps, No. 103 was fittingly observed in Grand Army hall Tuesday evening by members and their husbands and Grand Army Veterans and their wives.

In the afternoon a business meeting considered routine affairs, at 6.30 a supper was served, and in the evening there was an entertainment program and speaking.

The event of the evening came when charter members were escorted to the hall midst thundering applause. The veterans were also escorted to the hall and were accorded a sincere welcome.

The delegation of charter members included Mrs. Eliza J. Penniman, Mrs. Laura Holt, Mrs. Ann Wright, Mrs. Annie F. F. Cross. Mrs. Angie D. Loud, Mrs. Electa E. Field, Mrs. C. Alice Litchfield, Mrs. Nettie Osborne, Mrs. Isabel A Souther, Mrs. Mary A. Fox, Mrs. Mary J. Gardner and Mrs. Isabel R. Holmes.

Included in the program was the Lord's Prayer and flag salute, by the corps members and the festivities closed with the singing of the "Star Spangled Banner."

Mrs. Cylinda Richardson gave a short address of welcome and the first year of the corps was presented by Mrs. Laura Holt. The address of the evening was delivered by Dr. C. R. Marstin, commander of Paul Revere Post, to which the corps is the auxiliary.

The feature of the evening was the piano and violin duet of Past Commander Francis and Mrs. Loud. Readings were given by Mrs. Kate Blaisdell, Past Commander George L. Phillips, Edward O. Pierson of Braintree, and others. Piano solos were given by Bertha McCurdy.

The supper committee was under the direction of Mrs. Mary A. Fox and consisted of Mrs. Lavinia Dorley, Mrs. Agnes G. Fletcher, Miss Fannie Grignon, Mrs. Annie Grignon, Mrs. Cora Carman.

The entertainment was in charge of Past President Mrs. Mary E. Powers, and the ushers were Mrs. Cora Carman and Miss Fannie Grignon.

The address of Dr. Marstin follows:

How well most of the comrades of The Grand Army of the Republic remember that day in 1883, at Denver, Colorado, when fifty-two American women met and organized the Woman's Relief Corps, and were formally accepted as the only auxiliary to the Grand Army of the Republic.

Surrounded by the lofty, snow-clad peaks of the Rockies, and in full view of that lonely sentinel of the continent, Pike's Peak, what wonder that this noble body of American mothers, daughters, wives and loyal women, the Woman's Relief Corps, has come to be the greatest woman's organization in the world. Born in such rugged and grand surroundings, it has grown in strength and activity until it numbers nearly 170,000 members, expending since its organization, in charity, and memorial works,—$4,022,283. During the past year it has expended $143,278.85.

It was a happy day for the Grand Army of the Republic when it and the Woman's Relief Corps were joined in bonds of matrimony, and may we, with true liberality, never divorce it. In these later days of our existence it has been a comfort and a blessing to all of us. The history of the Republic will not be written in truth and in fullness, unless it shall tell of the devotion of the mothers, wives, daughters and sisters of those men who left their homes and went out to battle for the suppression of the Rebellion; our wives and a few of our mothers.

Thank God there are many of us who have the wives and sweethearts of the Army days still with us. Long may you be with us, even unto the end.

All honor to the ladies of Paul Revere Woman's Relief Corps, who with each passing year place beautiful and fragrant flowers on the little mounds that mark the last resting place of departed veterans and water them with tears.

If historian, poet, painter and sculptor have failed to do justice to the Union Soldiers, no less have they failed to do justice to the ladies of the Woman's Relief Corps, whose majesty, whose greatness, whose goodness, whose devotion, the beauty and glory of whose character can never be expressed in cold, historical facts; can never be portrayed upon canvas; can never be chiseled into cold marble slab.

DANCE HALLS RESTRICTED

Mayor Stone Decides to Grant Two Licenses

The much moted question of dance halls at Houghs Neck was settled this morning by Mayor Stone when he decided to grant two licenses at Houghs Neck. The Mayor gave out the following interview.

"After consulting with many people in Quincy I have decided to license two dance halls at Houghs Neck, providing the following restrictions are strictly adhered to:—

"First—That no dancing is to be permitted after eleven o'clock at night.

"Second—That adequate toilet facilities are to be provided for in the building for both sexes.

"Third,—That a regular officer of the police force of the City of Quincy is to be present in the hall at all times when it is open for dancing and the expense of this officer to be paid by the licensee.

"It seems to me only fair to the public that proper toilet facilities should be maintained. This has not been the case in the past, and has been the cause for a great deal of criticism.

"After investigating the matter of dance halls last year, I became of the opinion that a good deal of the trouble that has been caused by dance halls has been after the halls were closed, and therefore I believe that with an eleven o'clock closing and the proper police protection that the two dance halls at Houghs Neck may be run without causing inconvenience to those who do not care to patronize them."

Electric Light Company May Increase Capital $50,000

(Special to the Ledger)

State House, May 13, 1913.—The Board of Gas and Electric Light Commissioners has approved the application of the Quincy Electric Light and Power Company for an issue of $50,000 worth of additional capital stock at par value ($100.) The amount so raised is to be used toward the payment of the floating debt of the company.

In its report the commission says, "On February 1, 1913, the Quincy Electric Light and Power Company had cutstanding promissory notes to the amount of $94, 588.86, of which a little over $70,000 appears to represent expenditures for additions to plant, not otherwise provided for, made since the last approval of stock in 1910.

TWO RECORDS WERE BROKEN

Established by Capt. Kingsbury in Half Mile and 440 Yards

Seniors Win the High School Inter-class Meet

The annual inter-class meet of the Quincy High School was held on the new Merrymount oval, Hancock street Tuesday afternoon and resulted in Captain Fred Kingsbury christening the track by the establishment of two new records.

The Senior class won the meet with 41 points. The Juniors came second with 10 points, the Sophomores third with 9 points, the Freshmen fourth with 8 points and W. Atkins of the post-graduates was fifth with four points.

Captain Kingsbury's new records cut under the marks of Franz Marceau of the 1910 class now a conspicuous Dartmouth athlete. In the half mile he made 2m, 7 3-5s, clipping 4-5s, and in the 440 yard he sprinted in 55 3-5s, cutting 2-5s off the previous record.

The high jump resulted in a tie between James Jenkins, '13 and J. Roach, '15, both topping 4 ft., 8 in. Each man was awarded four points.

Leon White, '13 also performed in a brilliant manner, winning the 100 yard dash inside of a 15 yard sprint and taking the 220 yard dash within a few feet of the tape. He also won the running broad jump and the 12 pound shot put.

W. Atkins, '12, started in the half mile but developed a severe pain during the first lap and withdrew.

Ralph Prout, '13 made a beautiful start in the short dash, secured a five foot lead when half the distance was covered and suddenly slowed when his muscles tightened up.

A pleasing extra was afforded by the offer of the Alumni athletes to run a High school relay team in a 220 yard event. The Alumni won in a pretty race.

The judges were picked from the faculty and were B. G. Parkinson, R. E. Fenner and J. Roache. The measurer was L. F. La Rose of the Y. M. C. A. J. Smith was timer and Theodore Rice was "chief digger."

The surprise of the day was Bedwells defeat of Sturgis Hunt in the mile. The field also consisted of E. Newcomb, A. Anderson and Wesley Williams. The contestants got away in the order named. Hunt dropped into fourth place on the first turn and gradually worked into second place. Bedwell's lead was sufficient to give him a comfortable distance which he held. Anderson jogged along in the rear and sprinted into fourth place with the spirit of a short dash man, passing Williams on the last turn with unexpected speed. He demonstrated the peculiar trait of storing energy and not using it.

GOOD ADVERTISING.

For a week past the columns of the Daily Ledger have been over crowded with the announcements of local merchants, and it has been difficult to accommodate all. Good live advertisements make almost as good reading as local news, for the people are anxious to learn what our stores are offering.

It was good advertising that sold all the seats at Kincaide's Theatre 24 hours in advance of the production "Quincy Adams Sawyer." It was good advertising that gave the new Adams market such a favorable start. It was good advertising that caused a big increase in business at Remick's clothing house. It was big advertising by the Wollaston Centre garage that has sold so many Rambler automobiles the past few weeks. It is big advertising that built up the extensive furniture business of Henry L. Kincaide & Co., and W. G. Shaw. Other regular advertisers of the Daily Ledger are among the most successful merchants of the city. The list includes George W. Jones, Granite Shoe Co., Johnson Bros, Currier's market, the Boston market, D. E. Wadsworth & Co., Miss S. E. Dunphy, C. Patch & Son, J. F. Sheppard & Sons, Nathan Ames, the Granite Trust Co., the Citizens Gas Co. and others.

The Daily Ledger has always been a staunch advocate of home trade and good government and is continually working or the best interest of Quincy—in business life, and in social affairs. It will strive to merit the support of all local merchants as advertisers, and all residents of the city as daily readers. A clean local paper is one of the institutions of a city which should receive hearty encouragement and support.

More people will be permited this year to attend the grammar school graduations, because it is not proposed that all shall be graduated at one place at one time. It is unfortunate that there are not more school halls, but the School Committee is making the best of those the city has, and it is neccssary for some of the schools to unite in a building where there is a hall. Fond parents always want to attend graduation exercises of their children, and more will have an opportunity this year under the new arrangements. Perhaps in the near future Quincy will have more school halls.

Talk favorably of Quincy! It is the duty of every citizen. Quincy was never more prosperous than at the present time. New people are taking up their residence here almost every day, because the city has many advantages. Its natural attractions, its improvements, its train service to Boston, its schools, its churches, its Y. M. C. A., its Public Library, its seashore, its women's clubs, its Board of Trade, its fraternal orders, its large stores, etc, etc. Talk favorably of Quincy and encourage home trade. Then watch us grow!

Many were glad to read the data concerning Quincy, Illinois, in the Daily Ledger of Tuesday. It will be a pretty race for the two Quincys until the next National census in 1920. Our prediction is that both cities will have a population of over 40,000, and that Quincy, Massachusetts, will be the larger. Watch us grow!

If the tariff on foreign granites is reduced it will become necessary to advertise more extensively the good points in Quincy granite. One thing is certain that it cannot be sold much lower than at present, if wages are to be maintained.

After all wedding anniversaries are more common in Quincy than divorces, and it must continue so. It is pleasure to report gold and silver weddings and there are many of them in this city.

Wellesley girls will not marry for three years after graduating. Not soon will they be in a position to support a husband.

SQAUNTUM IMPROVEMENT

Board of Trade Men Among the Speakers

Squantum residents were given an excellent account of what the Quincy Board of Trade hopes to do for the city as a whole and its value to all parts of the city in stirring addresses before the Squantum Improvement Association Tuesday evening by President Hamilton, ex-Mayor Hall and Park Commissioner Williams. They were the special guests of the evening at the regular meeting of the association at the bungalow of Hiram A. Morse on Bellevue road. There was a good attendance and much enthusiasm was shown. As a result of the visit of the Quincy Board of Trade members a half dozen applications for members to the trade organization were handed to the visitors and as many more signified their intentions of joining the Board of Trade.

The guests were introduced at the opening of the meeting by President C. E. Carlson. He spoke of the valuable work of the Quincy Board of Trade and of the value it would be to Squantum residents.

Ex-Mayor Hall was the first speaker. He said in part: "There is no more beautiful section that the sun shines on than Squantum. I am glad to tell you that during my administration more money was spent in Ward Six, of which you are a part, than at any time before. I believe in this section of the city of Quincy. There is one thing that I have believed in for many years and that is the unification of the different sections of the city. We had six different villages and have been obliged to grow from each. If West Quincy had anything from the city government than every other section wanted the same or an equivalent.

"But we are not a West Quincy a Quincy Point, a Squantum any more We are a unit of a great city that is an important factor of this Commonwealth. Quincy is known all over this country. There is scarcely a day that I do not get a letter of inquiry from some section of the country asking what we are doing and how we do it.

"It is through the Quincy Board of Trade that we wish to maintain this unification of the city. We must impress on all that each section is but a part of the whole. An improvement association can aid its immediate section, but it is for the Board of Trade to bring these sections together as a whole.

Mr. Williams said he was pleased to learn of the large membership of the Squantum Improvement association. He said that with its 100 members the organization was in a position to do some very valuable work for the community as well as for Quincy. He asked for the support of the organization in its campaign for the betterment of Quincy.

President Hamilton proved a very impressive and enthusiastic speaker. He showed by his earnestness that he thoroughly believed in the future of the organization which he represents.

He said in part: "The youth of your association is an excellent thing. Youth can be taught but old age is rather inclined to believe it knows it all. We are older and would be pleased to be known as the older brother of the Squantum Improvement association. We can see in Squantum virgin ground and urge you to come and join our organization for your good and for our good. We can back you in your efforts for improvement and we want your support in our efforts for advancement.

"I ask you in all fairness—Can your association do the work that it could if it had the backing of the Quincy Board of Trade? Will your work have the effectiveness that it would if you had our backing? The Hough's Neck Association has tried it and its members are now coming into the Board of Trade. From your membership of 100 we should at least have 10 or 20 members. We now have but two. If you send us a delegation of 10 members you will have just as much right upon the floor as any section of Quincy. You can present your claims and if they are just you will find that they will have the united support of the board, and this means that every section of Quincy is behind you. If your cause is just you will have the power of a battering ram behind you instead of the tapping of a screwdriver."

CAR SERVICE.

Routine business of the association was then taken up. Chairman W. N. Kenyon of the street railway committee reported that the summer schedule of half hourly service would go into effect on May 29. He said that the management did not agree to put on a midnight car every night in the week but that if traffic warranted that this might be done at a later date. The regular 11.35 car to Squantum on Wednesday and Saturday nights will be maintained as usual.

He also said that it looked as if a satisfactory solution of the turnout at Atlantic had been reached and that the matter was now before the engineers of the road.

STREET REPORT.

Chairman James Hagan of the street committee reported that the matter of acceptance of Huckins avenue and Bellevue road was now before the street committee of the City Council. He said that an order would be introduced for the acceptance of the streets as soon as the matter of grades and costs had been furnished by Commissioner Tupper.

MAIL SERVICE.

Chairman Fifield of the postal committee reported his dealings with Postmaster Mansfield and a letter from the superintendent of postal service was read stating that regular delivery would start June 2 and continued to Oct. 13.

POLICE PROTECTION.

Chairman Marden of the police protection committe was instructed to have an interview with the Chief of Police at an early date regarding police protection in Squantum this summer.

STREET LIGHTS.

On the matter of the street lights, Chairman Kenyon reported that a part of the fifteen new lights ordered by Mayor Stone had already been placed in position and that the others would be installed within a short time.

NEW MEMBERS.

Herbert A. Smith, chairman of the membership committee reported 10 new members who were voted into the association as follows: E. L. Parlee, T. W. Davison, Henry F. Moses, Arthur Thompson, Lester W. Wallace, H. G. Beaman, Frank B. Lawler, Herbert Richardson, Charles Bostwick, Ernest Richardson.

SPRAYING MACHINE.

On motion of Mr. Smith, $10 was appropriated for the buying of a spraying machine and a barrel of oil to spray pools of stagnant water which were believed to be breeding places for mesquitoes. The following committee was appointed to take up this matter: C. N. Keynon, James H. Foster and Warren Fifield. Treasurer T. F. Callahan volunteered the service of his horse and wagon at any time to assist the committee in this work.

NOON RECESS.

The matter of the Squantum children coming home to dinner at noon was taken up on motion of John Marden, secretary. After some discussion a motion was passed that Superintendent Gammon of the Bay State Street railway be asked to provide an extra car to reach the school at Atlantic at about 12.10 at noon to take Squantum children to Squantum which would allow then 40 minutes for the noon meal. They would take the regular 1 o'clock car back to school. It was the unanimous opinion of the members that Squantum children should be allowed the privilege of coming home to dinner if they wished. The matter of an extra car would be for but two weeks as the regular half hour service goes into effect in two weeks.

The matter of co-operating with the Atlantic Improvement association was endorsed by the association and the secretary was instructed to correspond with the Atlantic association to this end.

A motion was passed asking the Commission of Public works to spray trees in Squantum which are infested with gypsy moths.

The meeting adjourned at 11 o'clock.

PLED GUILTY.

John Maccilini, one of the two men caught playing cards in the raid last Sunday, who did not appear in court Monday owing to illness, came into court this morning and entered a plea of guilty and paid a fine of $50.

Comparative Digestibility of Food

Made with different Baking Powders

From a Series of Elaborate Chemical Tests:

An equal quantity of bread (biscuit) was made with each of three different kinds of baking powder—cream of tartar, phosphate, and alum—and submitted separately to the action of the digestive fluid, each for the same length of time.

100 Per Cent. Digested

Bread made with phosphate powder:
68¼ Per Cent. Digested

Bread made with alum powder:
67¾ Per Cent. Digested

These tests, which are absolutely reliable and unprejudiced, make plain a fact of great importance to everyone: Food raised with Royal, a cream of tartar Baking Powder, is shown to be entirely digestible, while the alum and phosphate powders are found to largely retard the digestion of the food made from them.

Undigested food is not only wasted food, but it is the source of very many bodily ailments.

WOMEN'S CLUBS

WHAT THEY ARE DOING AND SEASONS' PLANS

The Milton Woman's club closes its season on Monday afternoon with a meeting in charge of the Arts and Crafts committee, when Mrs. Miriam B. Pearce will lecture on "What the Museum of Fine Arts can do for the Craftsman."

That was good advice that Mrs. Clara Rogers Bleakley gave at the convention in Philadelphia of the Daughters of the Revolution. She urged the members to let their ancestors remain underground and devote themselves to the problems of the present.

* * *

The regular meeting of Whatsoever Circle of Kings Daughters will be held with Mrs. U. S. Whittam, 342 Belmont street, Monday, May 19.

* * *

The monthly meeting of Abigail Adams Chapter S. & D. R. was held at the home of Miss Helen Moulton, Safford street, Wollaston, Friday evening, May ninth. The meeting was called to order by the president. The secretary's and treasurer's reports were read and accepted. It was decided to have the June meeting take the form of an outing to Marblehead. The patriotic program consisted of sketches and poems on the flag, after which refreshments were served and games enjoyed.

WANT CLUBHOUSE.

Milton club women are interested in the project for a clubhouse and so much enthusiasm has been aroused by the committee appointed to consider the possibilities of building that a special meeting is to be called to vote on the matter. A woman's clubhouse is almost a community house in its scope for good and far reaching work.

D. A. R. ANNUAL.

The annual meeting of Abigail Phillips Quincy Chapter, D. A. R. of Wollaston was held May 12, with Mrs. Ralph Hingston, the regent, Mrs. E. E. Jameson, presiding. The early part of the session was given up to monthly reports and business. One item was the sending of a contribution to the International college at Springfield. Mrs. Frank E. Perkins was appointed delegate to the state conference to be held May 16 and Mrs. Walter E. Simmons was appointed delegate to the convention of the Mothers and Parent Teachers' Association. An all-day outing is to be held in Abington with Mrs. Frank Perkins, June 10, when the State Regent, Mrs. George O. Jenkins will be the guest of the chapter. Before the annual reports Mrs Charles M. Chase read "The First Tea Party in Nantucket," a most enjoyable sketch rendered in a charming manner.

The annual reports showed a successful year for the chapter. The papers on subjects of local historical interest have been good. The course of lectures on Shakespere by Mrs Gurney, were not only a treat intellectually but also a financial success The membership has increased slightly. The finances are in good shape and capitally managed by the treasurer, Mrs. Benj. Sargent. The report of the regent, Mrs. E. E. Jameson of her experiences while delegate to the National Convention in Washington, D. C. was reserved for the last. Her account was most amusing and interesting.

Refreshments were served by the hostess, Master Hingston assisting.

QUINCY WOMEN'S CLUB

Following the annual reports of the clerk, treasurer and corresponding secretary there were piano solos, after which the chairmen of committees gave their reports, which were brief and interesting, mostly in prose but one member resorted to poetry. The reports were varied as was the work of each committee showing wide scope and far reaching influence. As each committee ended its work many expressions of good will and advice as well as gifts were bequeathed the new committees and club generally. The gift of a mahogany chair and table for the use of the president and two silver cake plates from the Woman's Exchange was received with much appreciation and a rising vote of thanks given the committee. A rising vote of thanks was also given the retiring officers.

Mrs. Sheppard in concluding her report asked the members to rise and greet the new president Mrs. Chandler W. Smith, and asked that the club give Mrs. Smith the same loyal support accorded her; saying "As she takes up the work you as members of this club can help her as no one else can. We feel sure that her presence here the next two years will stimulate fresh zeal among you."

In accepting the gavel Mrs. Smith said, "I am here to serve our club, your club, and my club, although it will be difficult to keep pace with my predecessors," continuing on a humorous vein Mrs. Smith said,

"During my recent trip to the west you have gone on record for woman suffrage but I cannot lead a militant band up Beacon hill, break windows, fire buildings, or place bombs. A New York pastor suggests that women turn their zeal to reform in dress. The Los Angeles Federation has started a compaign for simplicity in dress and suppression of the slit skirt. This club stands well in the community, adjoining clubs and state because of co-operation and wise government so my prayer is that wisdom be given the new board and that we receive the co-operation of the 400 members that we may stand near the top of the list of the few best clubs in the state." Mrs. Smith announced the new chairmen of committees as follows:

Art, Arts and Crafts—Mrs. Charles L. Seavey.
Civics—Mrs. Henry H. Kitson.
Custodian—Mrs. Charles R. Safford.
Education—Mrs. Jethro R. Mellen.
Home Economics—Mrs. Maurice P. Spillaine.
Reception—Mrs. Walter E. Burke.
House—Mrs. George A. Sidelinger
Legislative—Mrs. Albert E. Avery.
Literature—Mrs. Zenas S. Arnold.
Music—Mrs. Walter P. Emery.
Philanthrophy—Mrs. Wilson Marsh.
Press—Mrs. Ida Waterhouse.
Printing—Mrs. William F. Cummings.
Program—Miss Edith Randall.
Visiting Nurse—Mrs. N. S. Hunting.
Woman's Exchange.—Mrs. William L. Russell.
Year Book—Mrs. Chandler W. Smith, Mrs. W. F. Cummings, Mrs. Edward S. Tenney, Miss Edith Randall, Miss Annie L. Prescott.

In behalf of the Executive Board the outgoing president, Mrs. Sheppard, and the incoming president Mrs. Smith were presented with large bouquets of beautiful pink roses, the presentation being made by Mrs. Wilson Marsh, first vice president, assisted by Mrs. Walter S. Pinkham second vice president. Mrs. Marsh said that flowers fitly expressed feeling and quoted two verses of Longfellow's poem, "To the Flowers."

While throughout the meeting there was cordial good will and enjoyment there was an undercurrent of strong feeling that brought a mist to the eye as the time came to sever the bonds that had united the various groups in many lines of work the past two years. Most of the officers continue with the club but not in the same close relationship, while one faithful member Mrs. Percy Holman has gone from the city to live at Kingston. Mrs. Sheppard the outgoing president has shown great executive ability in conducting the meetings, which combined with a gracious personality has made her term in office a great success. She retires with the good will, loyalty and appreciation of all club members. She has had the club welfare much at heart and as she goes out of office it may be with a sense of a duty undertaken and well performed knowing that all her efforts have been appreciated.

Members of the Executive Board in appreciation of the pleasant relationship and cordial feeling toward their presiding officer for the past two years, gave a luncheon in her honor this noon at Hotel Thorndike, Boston, when Mrs. Smith of the Philanthrophy committee, the new president acted as toast mistress.

It was one of the shortest annual meetings ever held owing to the brief reports. During the social hour the Hospitality committee served tea and cake, the pourers being Mrs. E. E. Jameson and Mrs. E. E. Davis. The tables were decorated with white lilacs and Japanese quince. The pretty new white gold banded china cups and saucers were used for the first time and much admired.

The following reports for the year were given by the club officers and committees:

CLERK'S REPORT.

The clerk has given a detailed report of the year's work before the Brackett Charitable Trust and now at the annual meeting she will speak briefly of the few matters not reviewed by the chairmen. It will be an inspiration to listen to the reports of the various departments this afternoon and through them, learn of the progress of the club, its splendid humanitarian work and social activities.

The Quincy Women's club has held fourteen regular meetings and seventeen meetings of the executive board, all of which have been well attended. It is worthy of mention that our president has presided at all of the club and board meetings of the year.

In October, under the auspices of the executive committee, the club gave a Cafe Chantant at Alpha hall, which was a successful social affair. Our varied program, including art, literature, music and live questions of the day, has provided something of interest for everyone.

Reciprocity day we had the pleasure of entertaining several presidents of other clubs and Mrs. Mulligan, President of the State Federation, each of whom gave a condensed account of the work of her organization. At this time Mrs. Wilson Marsh gave a comprehensive resume of the club's activities during the eight years of its existence.

This year the by-laws have been revised and several important changes made. The election of officers now takes place in March instead of in May as formerly and the membership has been increased from 350 to 500. Since this change several meetings have been held in Alpha Hall and as usual the annual Musicale and the Dramatic afternoon were in Music Hall.

The Club has recently been incorporated as a charitable body under the State Board of Charities. The advantage of this step lies in the fact that it unites the members into a body corporate that can hold real estate, and transact all legal business just as an individual. The club has taken action on important matters and resolutions relative to the public life of our city and state. It has kept in touch with Federation work by being represented at conferences of the various departments, the biennial at San Francisco and the Federation meeting in Washington where we had the largest representation of any Massachusetts club.

The past records of the work of the club show most convincingly how it is broadening its influence in the community, taking advantage of the larger opportunities which present themselves, thus making it a power for right living and right thinking.

Mabel S. Badger.

CORRESPONDING SECRETARY.

The past year has been a busy one for your corresponding secretary, unusual work having developed which has taken time and thought. In the early fall with the advice and consent of the Executive Board the treasurer and corresponding secretary determined to make a change in the club registry for the year book.

This meant work, but by dint of much telephoning, note writing and personal interviews the deed was done and the year book appeared with each members own name as well as her husband's. Great credit is due our treasurer for all she did in the matter.

I feel as if the work was her's with mine.

We both greatly regret the mistakes which were made, but that a good beginning was made, and that another year will see all mistakes corrected.

Club members can help greatly if they will at once notify the Corresponding secretary of changes of residence.

In December the club voted to increase its membership. That, also meant work for the secretary.

When I tell you that since that vote was carried 237 women have been notified, and that in the process of notification each name has to be written 5 times you can realize the work takes time. In the future as the club extends its labors I think a paid clerk to attend to the written work of the treasurer, corresponding secretary and club clerk will become a necessity.

During the year new constitutions have been sent each member, also many extra postals for Executive Board and club meetings, together with numerous letters relating to matters of club interest, so that your secretary has posted double the amount of mail matter, more than 2000 pieces, against 1000 last year. In spite of all, the work has been very pleasant, and I have thoroughly enjoyed it. My sincere thanks are due the officers and members for the great kindness shown me during the two years it has been my privilege to serve you.

While at this time circumstances make it necessary for me to resign my membership, be sure I shall take with me to my new home in the old Pilgrim town of Kingston most pleasant memories of the Quincy Women's Club.

May good fortune attend you all!

May the club continue its splendid work with increased vigor, remembering that 500 women working together can do great things for the uplift of humanity.

Harriet G. Holman.

ART COMMITTEE.

The Art Committee of the past two years has conducted a loan exhibition each Spring. Last year the exhibition consisted of a fine collection of representative works of Boston artists with a few pieces of sculpture and a collection of rare foreign medals with it was shown an unusually fine exhibit of hand crafts both modern and antique in the form of laces, embroideries, textiles and baskets also specimens of glass and silver.

This year the exhibition was limited to paintings, and showed many of the finest works of prominent artists. The date of the exhibition being fortunate in so fitting between several of the leading exhibitions in various parts of the country, that we were able to show many works which were prepared for them. Quincy may feel gratified in considering that these exhibitions have been, in the quality of the works shown, the equal of any given in this country. The Art committee has presented to the club a die, and electro plate of the Club Seal.

Theo Ruggles Kitson, Chairman.

ARTS AND CRAFTS.

In presenting the report of the Arts and Crafts committee we take pleasure in announcing the increased interest in the classes connected with that department, having had more this year than in any previous year of the club's organization.

This is largely due to the fact that all the classes have been of a social nature, meeting at the homes of the ladies, and due in part to a smaller number in each class, thereby insuring more individual attention: this has been at the request of the ladies joining the classes.

To Wollaston and Atlantic the credit should be given of having had all the classes, and the committee feel that in this section of the city the money earned, should be given—twelve classes alone having been formed in Atlantic, so to the beautiful new hall just completed in the Quincy School in Atlantic we present two pictures the "Castle of Chillon" and the "Aurora" with a plate bearing the inscription "Presented by the Arts and Crafts department Quincy Women's club." These pictures were carefully selected by a committee with the help and advice of Mr. Sampson, the principa who is delighted with the gift.

To the Wollaston school the same with the approval of Mr. Goodspeed the pictures not being selected a yet, and from him grateful appreciation. To the members of the Quincy Women's club four season tickets with a docent in attendance to the Museum of Fine Arts to be used by any member of the club free of a expense—it is hoped each member of the club will avail herself of this opportunity the request for them being accompanied by a stamped envelope to Mrs. Charles Seavey, Highland Ave., Wollaston, chairman Art Committee, the only stipulation is, that the borrower return the tickets immediately after using them no limit being put upon the number of times one person may apply for, and use them.

In closing we would like to speak once more of the success of the classes and the benefit it has been to those joining them. It is hoped the interest another season will extend to other sections of the city.

I wish to thank the ladies having had charge of the exchange and also the others of my committee who have at all times so cheerfully given the advice and assistance.

Frances E. Jelinek, Chairman

CIVIC COMMITTEE.

The report of the work of this committee must of necessity be somewhat incomplete because of the resignation in the spring of the active and very efficient chairman, Mrs. Blaisdell.

Nov. 29, the annual assembly was held. This was very successful from both a financial and social standpoint. Thanks are due to Mrs. E. E. Jameson and Mrs. N. S. Hunting for their efforts to make the party a success.

March 11, a debate was held under the auspices of our committee, subject "That women be given the right of suffrage." The affirmative side was upheld by Miss Edith Randall and Miss Harriet Turner; negative Mrs. Willard E. Dow and Mrs. Thomas Fenno. Each was given ten minutes to present arguments for or against, and five minutes for rebuttal, after which club members spoke from the floor. A vote by the club on granting suffrage to women was 109 for, and 78 against. The committee feels very grateful to all the ladies who took part in the debate, especially Mrs. Arnold, who had entire charge.

On recommendation of this committee the city replaced the dead trees on Coddington street and placed an electric light at the rear entrance to the clubhouse grounds. Membership in the Massachusetts Civic League has been renewed, and ten dollars has been expended for the care of the grounds around the Atlantic railroad station. A letter was sent to the superintendent of the Street Railway, calling his attention to the roadbed on Newport avenue. In a reply to a request from the Civic Dept. of the State Federation we have sent an outline of the work of our committee.

We have made an appropriation of $58.90, toward the salary of an assistant supervisor for the summer playgrounds to help along this splendid work, which was first started by the Civic committee. We are more interested in the playground movement than ever before and realize the value of trained supervisors. The playgrounds can never accomplish the good expected of them, unless there is some one to lead and restrain, and in order to have trained instructors we must expend money. I wish the city officials could be convinced of the influence for good the playgrounds have been in the community and now that we have started the work, it would be a great relief if it could be carried on by the city. In some cities this work is in charge of the local park board.

The report of the School Savings Bank, which the Civic committee was instrumental in establishing shows a steady gain in the number of depositors. The amounts deposited from Oct. 1, 1908 to July 1, 1912 has been $29,905.87. It is hoped that the incoming chairman of this committee will decide to continue the line of work called "clean up days." The school children might be interested, and it is hoped the city will cooperate by furnishing teams for the collection of all refuse during the last two weeks in May.

In closing this report, the chairman urges the use of school houses as social centres and advises every club woman to attend the moving picture theatres in her community and ask the help of her friends to do what they can to make the picture show, which is one of the strongest influences in child life, and the most generally patronized amusement, an agency for the promotion of education.

The chairman has found the civic work, the past six months, a pleasure, and a privilege, and bespeaks the same cordial co-operation for her successor that has been accorded herself.

The financial report of the Civic Committee is as follows:

EDUCATION COMMITTEE.

The work of the Education Committee of the Quincy Women's club has been a continuance of the Vacation Classes for girls and of the Home Gardens as started by the Home Science Association. The funds for carrying out these plans are raised at the Children's Festival held annually in Music hall on the last Saturday in April. May baskets, ice cream and candy are sold and an entertainment and hurdy gurdy for dancing are provided. As the financial statement is included in that of the club treasurer, no more need be said about money.

The number of seeds ordered and gardens started has so greatly increased that a sub-committee, Mrs. H. H. Kitson, chairman, has charge of and will report for this department. The Girls' Vacation classes, it was my privilege to care for. These classes were for girls from 10 to 15 years of age, were held in the clubhouse on Tuesday and Friday mornings from July 9 to Aug. 16. 266 girls were registered, coming from all sections of the city. The average attendance was about 200. From 9 to 11 there were gymnastics, plain sewing and embroidery in 40 minute periods. At 11 o'clock they gathered in the assembly room and listened to an interesting and instructive talk for 20 minutes. These talks were on nature-study, social service work for children, personal and public hygiene, vocational training and included two series of folk-lore stories.

Aug. 16, a reception was given to the parents and friends, the sewing and embroidery were exhibited and also the gymnastics. This reception was very largely attended and the mothers expressed great interest and satisfaction. No prizes were given, the work being done for the work's sake.

Your chairman desires at this time to publicly thank the members of club and committee who unselfishly gave of their time and strength to continue this helpful service to the young girls—the women of tomorrow in our city.

Alice D. Sanborn, Chairman

GARDEN COMMITTEE

The sub-committee on children's gardens has been a branch of the Educational committee and the work the past two years has shown great growth and various changes. The seeds are distributed chiefly through the schools and ladies from the various parts of the city have acted as volunteer inspectors of the gardens, making at least two visits to each, and at the end of the season a special committee visits the best gardens in each district and awards prizes. This method has proved most successful as is shown by the increase in number and quality of gardens, and their products.

An exhibition of vegetables and flowers is held in Quincy toward the last of the season and ribbons and prizes are awarded by expert judges. These exhibits are then sent to the Horticultural show in Boston where last year thirteen dollars in prizes were won by the Quincy children.

The Garden work this year has been made a department of the Civic committee and a new method of distribution of seeds with a larger choice of varieties has been adopted. While the work of ordering has not yet been completed, already over ten thousand packages of seeds have been distributed and much greater interest is shown in the work than ever before. The Civic committee expects to greatly extend the work and benefits of this department during the next two years.

Theo Ruggles Kitson.

HOME ECONOMICS.

The Home Economics committee united with the Education committee for the program meeting of Nov. 12 when Miss Frances Nevin gave a delightful reading of "The Piper." In October the committee worked zealously for the success of the Cafe Chantant, soliciting, contributing and serving refreshments. During the year several interesting meetings have been held at which general subjects relating to home economics were discussed and plans made for work.

Our special study was the condition of our local food stores, our city laws in regard to pure foods and milk and market inspection. To assist in this undertaking each member of the committee agreed to earn one dollar; when these contributions were given to our treasurer and each one told of her effort we discovered a great diversity of talent in our midst. We have endeavored to do our marketing in person and with open eyes to see good points as well as much we hope to see improved.

The Quincy Board of Health is keeping a breast of the times in regard to pure food laws, market sanitation and inspection. Under the auspices of this board the city employs a market inspector but the salary that goes with this office is very low, the inspector gives one afternoon a week to this work and some evening work. More was done the past year in this line than ever before, the city inspector made 470 inspections of groceries, markets, bakeries, fruit stands and meat carts, also issued licenses to vegetable pedlers. You may be interested to know that shops making side walk or open window displays of perishable foods are doing so against the law.

We were able to interest the chairman of the market inspection committee of the Women's Municipal League of Boston in our work and through her were most fortunate in securing the services of their best woman inspector, Miss Theresa Norton, to go through our food stores. Miss Norton visited stores in Atlantic, Norfolk Downs, Wollaston, Quincy Centre, Quincy Point, South and West Quincy.

We regret not having her with us in person to tell of her experiences but her report is most satisfactory, being as follows:

Of 30 stores inspected only one man declined to permit an inspection. In the remaining 29, the Inspector was received with courtesy and in many cases, even cordially. The 29 stores on the list show a very high average and if they were chosen as fair specimens of stores representing conditions in the neighborhoods in which they are located, there is very good material at hand for the buyers of Quincy to work with. In interviewing the proprietors, it was easy to see that their standards of sanitary handling and sale of food were higher than the average in large cities. They are unusually anxious to please and it is safe to say that any legitimate criticisms made in the proper spirit, by a customer would be courteously received and acted upon.

In general aspect, the stores are of roomy proportions,—well ventilated and well arranged and equipped so that they present a tidy appearance even during their busiest hours. In the majority of cases, the toilet was located in a place remote from the store itself or rooms where food is kept. This of course, is a desirable feature in a market. The ice chests, in every inspection made, were in satisfactory condition, and in many instances, a large proportion of the food was kept in the refrigerator rather than being unnecessarily exposed in the store where it might be subject to handling by careless customers.

The prepared foods were in nearly every instance kept under glass and fully protected from dust, flies and promiscuous handling by customers. The increasing custom among bakers, of wrapping each loaf of bread at the bakery gives the consumer assurance that the loaf has not been contaminated in the course of its journey to the table where it finally arrives. Many disgusting stories have been told of the experiences of an unwrapped loaf of bread. The average storekeeper reports the ratio of unwrapped loafs sold as compared with the wrapped, as one to ten. The appreciation of the wrapped loaf should be expressed to the baker in the form of an increasing demand for it on the part of the consumer. When a man reports no difference in the number of demands for wrapped and unwrapped loaves on the part of his customers, they surely need education on the subject.

It has been demonstrated repeatedly that an imperfectly screened store or house is in itself a fly trap. A door which opens inward, makes it possible for each person who enters to brush all the flies on the outside of the door into the room within.

In an ideal store or market, no vegetable boxes should rest directly on the floor. Many store-keepers say that they cannot offend customers by refusing to let them bring pet dogs into a store. As this is the case, the only adequate way in which to surely prevent contamination of food, and at the same time, not offend the customer is to raise all food at least eighteen inches above the floor level.

To summarize:—It seems perfectly reasonable and just for a buyer to ask for the following conditions in stores where she places her patronage:—

1. Clean and wholesome general conditions surrounding the sale and exposure of food as suggested by the schedule above.

2. Abolition of sidewalk displays of food which is to be eaten without further preparation.

3. Covering of all prepared foods so that they may be protected from dust, flies and other contaminating influences, e. g., handling by customers, etc.

4. Placing of all food (including vegetables) not less than eighteen inches above the level of the floor.

5. Selling milk in sealed bottles only.

During the inspection of stores in Quincy, the absence of sidewalk displays of food was striking. Much approbation is due the City Health Department for this progressive step. It is a hopeful sign and is a good example for larger cities to follow.

Our committee arranged for a class in textiles to be led by Mrs. E. C. Wixum of Winchester but it was necessary to cancel her engagement. The balance in our treasury we pass on to the incoming home. Economics committee with the suggestion they take up the study of textiles early next year as it is a subject strongly recommended by the State Federation.

HOSPITALITY.

During the past season refreshments have been served at eight meetings. The usual custom has been followed, that of soliciting cake or money. Two or three members of the committee had charge of each tea. They in turn asked ten ladies to contribute towards refreshments. The largest tea was on Reciprocity day when about 500 were served. The members were particularly gracious and willing to assist.

The generosity of members has made it possible for the committee to provide 20 dozen cups and saucers of a more attractive pattern than those which have been in use and 17 dozen of the old cups and saucers have been sold and the amount added to the fund for the new china. The receipts and expenditures were as follows:

From Club	$24.27
Sale of China	9.00
Members of Club	28.25
	$61.52
Expenditures	24.01
Bal. to Treasurer	$37.51

Theresa Barker, Chairman.

RECEPTION COMMITTEE.

During the past year the activities of the Reception committee have been confined chiefly to three occasions,—the reception to new members in October, the Teachers' reception in January and Reciprocity day in March.

On the first of these occasions our attention was directed particularly to the new members. Each one was given a red pink that she might be known and she was presented to the officers of the club and as many of the old members as possible. The committee tried to make everyone feel happy, either because they were back in their club home again or because they had found a new club home.

The Teachers' reception was the only large affair which we have attempted. To this we invited all the teachers in the city, both of the public and the private schools, also the school committee and the librarians. The weather man gave us a delightful winter evening. The clubhouse was well filled but not too crowded for comfort. Frederick W. Bancroft, the entertainer of the evening, gave one of his delightful programs called "Echoes of the Past," which was much appreciated by all and afterwards the officers of the club held a reception.

On Reciprocity day our attention was chiefly directed to our guests from out of town. We assisted them with their wraps, presented them with daffodils, gave them reserved seats and introduced them to as many of the club members as the time would allow.

Our expenses for these three occasions amounted to our total receipts which were $55, $5 being given to us for general expenses and $50 for the Teachers' reception. We divided it a little differently and spent $3.25 on general expenses and $51.75 on the Teachers' reception.

At other meetings during the year the Reception committee has been occupied with a number of small offices for the club which are hardly worth rehearsing and yet would have been missed if they had been omitted. We have endeavored to look after the comfort of our club members in regard to seating and to promote the sociability of the club by making members acquainted with each other.

In closing I would recommend to the in-coming Reception committee that they provide better facilities for taking care of wraps than now provided in the clubhouse. This is something which is very much needed and had it not been that a possible change in our place of meeting was so much under discussion I should have suggested it to the Reception committee this past year.

Isabelle Foote Pinkham, Chairman.

HOUSE COMMITTEE.

The work of the House committee is much like that of any housekeeper, with eternal vigilance for the watch word. The growth of the club and club work has kept the house in constant use which means much supervision and many little repairs. The usual painting and cleaning in the summer put the House in good order for the winter, and all minor matters have been attended to such as purchasing the necessary supplies for the care and maintenance of the House. The care of the grounds needed quite a little supervision.

The continued interest in the club has been shown through the generosity of Mrs. Kitson and the Arts committee, by the gift of a beautiful club seal, and by the Woman's Exchange committee in the gift of a table and chair for the president's use.

Through the two years the efficient caretaker has been ever helpful and faithful and I desire to express my appreciation of her devotion to her duties.

Millie E. Nichols, Chairman.

LEGISLATIVE.

The Legislative committee did some work on the Ellis Milk bill, and followed with interest many of the bills before the Education and Social Welfare committees, especially the one providing for continuation schools, the child labor measures proposed, the proposal to form a commission to make a study of our immigration problems, in Massachusetts and the bills to give some form of State aid to mothers of dependent children. Having followed the latter more closely we feel prepared to give the latest bulletin on the subject. A bill made up of all the bills on state aid to mothers but more especially embodying H. 1366 has been favorably reported by the Social Welfare committee, and the Ways and Means committee, and will doubtless become a law, making Massachusetts the tenth State to give some form of state aid to mothers.

The bill includes aid to all mothers whether widowed, deserted, wives of convicts, or with sick or insane husbands, the only stipulation being that the mother is a fit person to bring up her children, and that an effort has first been made to secure aid from relatives or those legally responsible, which means for one thing, restoring all deserting fathers or securing their support whenever possible. The aid is given through the overseers of the poor, but the mothers and children so receiving aid shall not be deemed paupers, and the State reimburses the overseers for one-third where there is a settlement, and for the entire subsidy when there is no settlement. The State Board of Charity shall have fifty thousand dollars for the expenses of the first year of this act.

The report of our treasurer, showed on hand from last year $20.83, receipts for year, $45.25, total $66.08. Expenses for speaker, $20 Parliamentary Law classes $27, Mrs. Anderson $5 legislature bulletin, $2. Total, $55.00. Balance on hand, $12.08.

Clara Cahill Park, Chairman.

LITERATURE AND LIBRARY EX.

The work for the past year was practically the same as the year before. The Hallowe'en dance was given Nov. 1, to raise the balance required for the reflectoscope.

Ten lectures were given on modern literature, Mrs. Herbert J. Gurney, instructor,—the subjects: Modern Literature in its relation to the problems of life; The Provencal Revival; Rostand, with readings from Chanticler; Romain Rolland's wonderful creative work "Jean Christophe;" Gilbert Chesterton, Critic, Journalist and Poet; Olive Schreiner; Strindberg's Plays; George Meredith; Ellen Key and The Vagabondia School of Poetry with delightful readings from Bliss Carmen, Richard Hovey and others of the school. The lectures were held as last year at the homes of members of the class.

The Committee secured Mrs. Leila C. Pennock for six lectures on Current Events and the class although not large was a very enthusiastic one. For our club date we enjoyed an unusual literary treat, Mrs. Christobel Kidder read Browning's "Blot on the 'Scutcheon."

As to Library Extension work. We have purchased and presented to the trustees of the Thomas Crane Public Library a reflectoscope and screen, to be used in the main library and branches as they are established. The machine has been set up at the West Quincy Branch, that seeming to be the place where it could be most useful at the present time. We are all interested to note the increase in circulation of 4416 volumes, an increase of 23 1-3 per cent over the preceding year. We are glad that Atlantic has also achieved a branch, and look forward to the day when the City Council will find a surplus in the treasury for which no better use can be found than Branch Library Extension. Until such time let us not let our interest flag.

The total receipts of this committee for two years were $681.73, $677.49 of which were expended for classes and reflectoscope leaving a balance of $4.24 for the incoming committee.

Bessie Morton Short, Chairman.

MUSIC COMMITTEE.

Another year has passed away
The Annual Meeting's here
When we report all the good work
We've done throughout the year.

We have tried to do our part
Worked for the Club's success
And now for a vacation
T'will seem good I confess.

The Club's Music Committee
Have been so faithful all
I've only words to praise for them
So ready at my call.

We hope we've been successful
We've surely worked with zest
Our aim has been to give you
Of music, but the best.

Each meeting has been opened
With music rich and rare
It puts us all in Harmony
And drives away all Care.

With higher and uplifted thought
We could more good receive
The speakers could impress us more
I firmly do believe.

Oftentimes our lives are where
If music we could hear,
T'would brighten all our pathway
And fill our hearts with cheer.

For music heals the broken heart,
And brings the weary rest,
And we who hear rich music
Are really truly blest.

One afternoon at Somerville
Was a music meeting held
By the Federation of our State,
Which could not be excelled.

Although the rain in torrents
Poured down upon the earth,
Three hundred women met there
And talked of music's worth.

This department in good time
With earnest thought and care
Will educate all to delight
In music sweet and rare.
Our Musicale was a success,
I'm sure I heard all say
We hope it pleased you one and all
And helped you on life's way.

Our morning Musicales last May,
They brought enjoyment too
And this year they'll be just as good
If we're sustained by you.

And now we're done, for favors all
Our thanks we give to you,
We wish your next Committee
Best wishes kind and true.

Jennie B. Worster,
Chairman.

PHILANTHROPIC COMMITTEE.

From October to May the meetings of the Philanthropic committee are held regularly and vary in character, according to circumstances. The faithful few always attend the meetings which are also open to the public.

At the October meeting we had to report a most successful May breakfast held in Wollaston under the management of our able committee member, Mrs. N. G. Nickerson. $60.25 was realized from this, enabling us to contribute $25 for the work of the Visiting Nurse, $25 to Associated Charities and $5 for dental work for a woman who could not afford to pay for it. We also voted to buy a dozen bath towels for the Anti-Tuberculosis Camp, but these were presented to us by one of our Wollaston merchants, so we did not have to take the money from the treasury. The most pretentious undertaking of the committee was at our January meeting. When we secured the City Council Chamber for an illustrated talk by Ralph E. Hawley of the Boston School Board. His subject was The Opportunity Clubs of East Boston and he gave an enthusiastic account of this work done among employed boys and girls causing us to feel that Quincy might well do likewise. Both Mr. Hawley and his assistant gave their services, lantern and slides and paid their carfares to come out and give us this talk. Later on several members of our club visited these clubs in East Boston and inspected their working with much satisfaction.

At other meetings we have had Mr. de Bruyn of Milton to tell of his work with boys, Miss Farmer from the Mass. General Hospital to speak upon tuberculosis work and Miss Ethel Hobart, local secretary of the Mass. Association of Women workers to tell of her clubs of working women and girls.

Mr. Blanchard of the Quincy Y. M. C. A. and Miss Elwell of the Playgrounds attended a meeting and told of existing conditions in Quincy and Miss Purchase, our good Secretary of Associated Charities has lent valuable aid. She has told us from time to time interesting details of her work and has been arduous in securing speakers for our meetings.

The April meeting took the form of a reception to Miss Purchase on the first anniversary of her coming to Quincy and at that reception we had the great happiness to announce the gift of one hundred dollars from the club to the Associated Charities.

Visits to the City Home which have always been made by this committee have been continued through the winter—one at Thanksgiving time by Miss Turner, Mrs. Nickerson and others and one near February twenty-second with Mrs. Davidson in charge when Mrs. Charles Spear was one of the party and charmed the old ladies by her appearance in her beautiful white silk costume and by her interesting readings. The young people who furnished music deserve much credit also.

Our annual Christmas visit to the Home had to be deferred owing to illness in the Home.

Our interest in the Young Women's club has not waned and we have visited their meetings, assisting and encouraging them in every way possible. A very good friend to the cause has been Mrs. George E. Pfaffmann who gave the Young Women's club a talk upon Birds and took with her a singer. She also opened her house for a Russian tea realizing the sum of $120 which has been placed in charge of the Philanthropic committee, for use in establishing a Recreation room for the young women of Quincy when a sufficient sum has been raised. This was done in memory of Mrs. John Shaw, Mrs. Pfaffmann's mother and a former member of this club.

Mrs. Pfaffmann is using her influence to further this movement and another entertainment is already promised to help increase this fund. We have lost one member of our committee by death, during the past year, Mrs. Fred E. Drake, an earnest interested worker.

Much credit and many thanks your chairman gives to her secretary and her co-workers who have stood ready to assist in all plans, and especially to Mrs. Wilson Marsh who acted as chairman during her recent absence. Mrs. Marsh's interest and enthusiasm gained from much experience have rendered her an inspiring co-worker without whose aid and that of Miss Purchase the work would be indeed difficult.

Alma Faunce Smith,
Chairman.

PRESS COMMITTEE.

This report covers the period since the resignations of Mrs. Frederick H. Bishop, whom the writer succeeded as chairman of the Press committee. The work of this committee has consisted largely in preparing and sending club news to the Daily Ledger, Telegram and Boston Transcript. Special articles on particular lines of club work have also been written. Miss Annie L. Prescott had charge of the Ledger articles, and Mrs. Percy H. Holman of the Telegram reports, while your chairman looked after the Transcript matter. Members of the committee substituted for each other whenever circumstances required.

It is not for the Press committee to sit in judgment on its own work, but we feel justified in saying that we worked hard to serve the best interests of the club. For the benefit of our successors we take the liberty of pointing out that the proper discharge of duties requires painstaking exactness, careful discretion and absolute impartiality. The moment personal ambition or the furthering of individual plans is allowed to be the object of a press report, the report fails to fulfill its proper function. It must be borne in mind the important place the Quincy Women's club occupies in public estimation and the interest with which anything concerning it is read. Your chairman recommends that hereafter club news be given to the press through only one person, duly authorized. Such a rule, if observed by the members, would increase the sense of responsibility of the press representative and tend to insure good judgment and discrimination in deciding what should be made public and what should not. Whatever good the club may do can be greatly extended through proper press reports.

It would be unfair to end this report without a word of appreciation for the generosity of the Ledger and the Telegram with their space and the friendly interest shown by Messrs. Cobb and Collins, the Quincy representatives of the Herald and Globe. The club is also indebted to Mrs. Bowles, club editor of the Transcript, who took much more than perfunctory interest in the reports sent her for publication.

Martha C. Mackay.

PROGRAM COMMITTEE.

To borrow the wording of the Probate Court this is the second and final account of the present Program chairman. It is a story soon told, one you all know, but I suppose today is the time to take out each feature and shake it up like "Grandpa Smallweed."

There was a definite plan to this year's work, in order that the program dates might be as varied as possible. The result was a musical, a literary, and a dramatic afternoon. John Orth gave us a Liszt recital long to be remembered. It was a happy combination of reminiscence, music, and originality. The literary afternoon in the hands of Mrs. Helen Weil, fell upon an unfortunate date. It was the day the nominating committee reported, and the club tension was so great that every other matter lacked interest. Mrs. Weil is a reader of rare ability, caring more for the literary value of her presentation than the dramatic setting. Upon the dramatic afternoon it was planned to present a play, but it suffered a sea-change. The problem of striking a happy medium among those who wanted an Oscar Wilde play, a Shakespearean drama, and a light and airy comedy, was too much for the committee. As a substitute Leland Powers, one of our foremost dramatic readers, was offered. His presentation of "Lord Chumley" met with such genuine and hearty approval that it is a satisfaction to recall it.

Outside of the regular program, the Committee had two special afternoons. The Opera Talk by W. L. Hubbard was received with enthusiasm. We hope the incoming administration will engage Mr. Hubbard for a course of lectures which he is anxious to give before our club. The last and best feature of all was the Children's Party. About 125 children were present, and such beautiful children it was a delight simply to look at them. The entertainer really entertained them, the dancing space was so crowded that it seemed like a "really truly" dance, and they all ate so much cake that the chairman went home feeling she had been criminally negligent.

We must not close our account without mentioning the fact that at two of the meetings we provided the music, also gave to the club the Club Hymn leaflets.

To the members of this committee the chairman wishes to tender her sincere appreciation of their kind service. Whatever measure of success belongs to the department has come through their suggestion and support.

An epitaph is the final word, and the lines from Robert Louis Stevenson's epitaph express the chairman's attitude today:

"Glad did I live and gladly die,
And I laid me down with a will."

Iva N. Marsh,
Chairman.

VISITING NURSE COMMITTEE

Eight years ago, the Work of Visiting Nursing in Quincy was started by this club. For the first six years after its inception one nurse was sufficient to cover the entire district and meet the demands of the people. Two years ago your committee undertook to make the people of Quincy more familiar with our object, with the gratifying result that this year two nurses, with an assistant for two months, have been necessary to keep up with the increasing demand. This work wherever it has been started, has proved to be the best and most practical of all modern charities, and it has become recognized as important to the welfare of this city.

A comparative statement of the work for the first year with the year just past shows a development that should be pleasing to all members of the club. In 1905 the total number of visits made by the nurse was 682, while the total number made in 1911-1912 (2416) was a gain of nearly four hundred per cent. The increase in the number of calls made this year over the sixth year, (1263 visits 1910-1911 and in 1912-1913 3326) shows the good results obtained from the effort made for a broader scope of publicity. Considerable literature has been distributed during the past year, and the plan of striving for a larger number of contributors rather than to have the work supported by a few and larger donations has been another source of publicity that cannot be overvalued.

With one nurse for six years the expense of the work was about $525 a year. To help meet this amount the club gave $200. The expense of the work today (with two nurses and an assistant when necessary) is about $1700 a year. The club is giving $200 which meets the needs of the work for about six weeks of the year and this is the only activity in the club that has a daily expense.

A detailed statement of the work for the year just passed is as follows:

Average number of doctors calling the nurse each month 17.

Number of visits by nurses 3326, representing 470 patients, of which number 200 were free patients.

The expenses of the work have been $1578.82.

The receipts of the work have been $1529.34.

The Metropolitan Life Insurance company have paid $341.00 for the care of sick policy holders.

While we realize of necessity the work can never be self-supporting yet the nature of this charitable endeavor is such that it has a claim on the generosity of all our people who are placed above actual want and it has been on this basis that your committee has been working.

Our nurses work directly under the physicians from whom they daily received their orders, and to whom they are responsible. They have done faithful and efficient work. Every day during the year two and sometimes three nurses have been in the homes of the sick poor in every section of our city teaching the best methods of caring for the sick and helping the less fortunate to higher and better standards of living. While their immediate duty is with the patient, the problems of the family are considered as a whole. The patients look up to our nurses with reverence and trust. They are called into the homes not only of the poor, but those in better circumstances, who need a trained nurse for only a short time each day. Our physicians, who give so much of their time to help the sick poor feel that they are greatly aided. One nurse, Miss H. C. McEwan, who had been connected with the work for one year, was given a month's vacation with salary. A substitute nurse was engaged during her absence.

In October preparatory work, and the first call in obstetrical cases was begun. These cases have increased each month, which shows how essential this branch of the work is. The supplies from the loan closet are in great demand, for these patients. Sheets and pillow cases are loaned, and when a baby is found without clothes, one or more sets is given. The Guild of St. Chrysostoms church and the Alliance of the Unitarian church in Wollaston, have helped us to provide clothing for these babies by sewing during Lent. For this assistance we are very grateful. We wish also to thank the different individuals and societies who have helped to keep our loan closet supplied with sheets and pillow cases, old linen, infants clothing, alcohol, malted milk, jellies and armalade, papers and magazines Mention should also be made of the gift of $1000 from the estate of the late Mrs. Lydia Morton.

Much has been done in the care of patients with tuberculosis, including chronic as well as incipient cases, Patients receive not only nursing care, but instruction is given in the prevention and spread of the disease. Visits have been made to Camp Mount Pleasant and during the past two months two patients at the camp have had almost daily care. Our nurses are trained to correctly instruct these patients under the direction of the physician in charge of the case and we hope that some time another nurse may be provided for this work. The acute diseases, medical and surgical cases cared for compose the larger number of our patients. There are chronic and bed-ridden patients where day after day beds are made and baths given, as well as general nursing care.

In closing this report, we express our sincere obligation to all who have shown an interest in the work entrusted to our care, and bespeak your hearty co-operation in the continuance of this most important department of our club's many activities.

Florence Chesley Murray, Chairman

PRESIDENT'S MESSAGE.

The months seem to pass very quickly from one annual meeting to another, and as we turn our faces today toward the new year and take the forward look together may we pause for a moment and reflect upon the work of the past year, that its disappointments and failures may teach us their lessons, and its successes give to us inspiration and courage to press on.

It has been a year of pleasure and of work; helpful work for ourselves and for others. We feel that the club means more to us than ever today, for we are learning to know each other better and work wonderfully well together. If at this time we were to ask the question, "What is the greatest source of happiness in human life?" different answers would probably be given by different members of the club, but your president is inclined to accept that which she has seen exemplified by these officers and chairmen of departments, the happiness that comes from work well done.

One source of satisfaction must come to these members in feeling that they have been a part of the onward movement of the world, and is it not true, fellow members, that we do not really find ourselves until we feel the lift and force of the current of the age? To have helped somewhere; to have contributed something to the uplifting of those about us, even if it were but by holding fast the courage to go on with faith and cheer.

So your president would bring to you today a message of encouragement. The work has gone steadily on and by these excellent reports to which we have just listened, we find that each branch of the work is alive and active, and ready to increase its work in the year to come.

We have welcomed many new members into our club during the past year, and we know they mean to be helpful members. They have come in with that view in mind, and as we see the unfolding of new plans by our various enthusiastic workers, may the principle thought in all our work be, "How can we help each other?"

More and more it is impressed upon us what we gain by our club and federations. Mrs. Decker who was beloved by every club woman the world over put it concisely when she said: "To the conservative woman, federation brings the gradual breadth of mind; to the radical woman it brings the knowledge of the individual point of view, the best lesson ever learned; to the lonely woman it brings friends and fellowship; to the unhappy woman, useful work and forgetfulness of self; to the rich woman it has brought knowledge of the obligations entailed by her possessions; to the poor it has brought genuine help and uplift in multitudes of cases."

Each year with increasing interest our club has realized its obligation to the State and General Federation. We have sent delegates to all meetings. Members of the club have also attended several of the conferences of committees of the State Federation. Your president would urge, at this time, that the Quincy Women's Club in the near future act as hostess for a neighborhood meeting of some department of the State Federation; thereby in a way expressing loyalty to this splendid organization.

We have reason to be proud of our club and of the work which we are doing here, for we know that our influence is felt in many parts of the city, and in the years to come may we continue to work along civic and educational lines, never forgetting or losing sight of our first social service work, that of the Visiting Nurse. There is perhaps no investment of our club funds which will give a better or larger return to the club than the money spent for the maintenance of the Visiting Nurse.

A subject of great importance, and one that has been uppermost in the minds of our club members during the past year, is the evening recreation for the young people of our city, especially for the young girls. We are grateful to one member of our club who has this work so much at heart and who through persistent effort giving of her time and strength, has been able to accomplish encouraging results. The gratifying result of such work in many large cities is proving to school boards and municipal authorities that more extensive work should be carried on in the school house than can possibly be accomplished between the hours of nine and three. May we continue this work of character building in our city and continue to urge that our school building be open evenings, and be the means of social centers.

We cannot touch upon all that has been accomplished and the different subjects that have been brought to our attention, but we would thank each and all today who, during the past year, have contributed of their time and talent and who have in any way rendered service to this club. In the past year, as in other years, we have found the press very ready to aid in giving publicity to our work, the reports requiring each week valuable space in our daily paper. We appreciate all such courtesies.

To your president there is a sense of thankfulness that in the two years she has been able to do all that she has been asked to do, both in the social as well as the active work of the club; thankfulness also that she has been forced naturally to a broader interest in many lines of thought and work.

In my report of last year no statistics of the president's work were given. Again this year it does not seem necessary. My only ambition has been to do the work well, and as Ruskin said: "If possible feel rewarded by the thought of having done it well."

Once more your president wishes to express heartfelt thanks to all, officers, chairmen of departments and members of the club. You have indeed been most kind and at all times have given the encouraging word. As we look forward to greater progress in the future of our club, may the beautiful friendships we have made continue. A few lines from Whittier seem fittingly to close my report.

And present gratitude
Insures the future's good,
And for the things I see
I trust the things to be.

Others shall sing the song
Others shall rght the wrong,
Finish what I begin
And all I fail of win.

The love of God and neighbor
An equal handed labor,
The richer life where beauty
Walks hand in hand with duty.

HOME TRADE — REMICK'S.

There is more Catarrh in this section of the country than all other diseases put together, and until the last few years was supposed to be incurable. For a great many years doctors pronounced it a local disease and prescribed local remedies, and by constantly failing to cure local treatment, pronounced it incurable. Science has proven catarrh to be a constitutional disease and therefore requires constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, Ohio, is the only constitutional cure on the market. It is taken internally in doses from 10 drops to a teaspoonful. It acts directly on the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. They offer one hundred dollars for any case it fails to cure. Send for circulars and testimonials.

WILLARD WINS FROM ADAMS

Other Games in the Grammar School League

Ragged fielding and inability to hit the ball when hits meant runs allowed the Willard nine to defeat the Adams boys Tuesday 7 to 6. The lads from the quarry district registered their third straight victory by superior base running and by bunching their hits at critical times in spite of the fact that their opponents found Egan for eight hits with a total of a dozen Jenkins making a two base hit and DellaLucca a home run. The feature of the game was the base running of Wallace.

GRIDLEY BRYANT—CODDINGTON

Gridley Bryant beat the Coddington in an extra inning contest Tuesday afternoon, 2 to 1. The winners scored in the third and seventh innings, the losers in the second. No heavy hitting marred the playing, the pitchers having the situation well in hand at all times. The support given both box artists was admirable.

Dr. John H. Anderson has returned to his home, convalescing after several weeks illness at the Homoeopathic Hospital, Boston.

Mrs. Abbie Vinton, of River road, 88 years of age attended her first moving picture show recently by going to the Kincaide theatre.

A special meeting of Wollaston Masonic lodge will be held next Tuesday evening for the purpose of discussing the question of new quarters.

The Central station auto chemical was called on a still alarm at 10.30 this morning for a rubbish fire between the Telephone building and the block of stores on Hancock street.

Poehler, the crack bowler will be one of the Board of Trade bowling team who will meet the Everett Board of Trade Thursday evening in the return match.

Rev. James A. Matheson and John D. Mackay of this city attended the reception in Boston on Tuesday evening to Rev. John Calder, the new pastor of the Scotch Presbyterian church Warrenton street and were among the speakers.

That Quincy people appreciate the drama was shown by the large audience at Kincaide's theatre Tuesday evening when Quincy Adams Sawyer was given. The audience was a very appreciative one and accorded the artists much applause.

LONE RUN FOR QUINCY HIGH

Defeated by Lynn Classical Fourteen to One

Quincy High was defeated by the Lynn Classical High school at Ocean Park, Lynn, Tuesday, 14 to 1. Sam Prout scored the lone tally for Quincy.

Andrews, the hero of the Weymouth 11 inning game was hit for 11 safeties. He passed five and secured nine strikeouts. "Dutch" Leonard, Lynn's freshman pitcher, provided real features. He secured 15 strikeouts, hit safely each time he faced Andrews, making two singles, a double and triple, scoring four runs and being credited with a stolen base.

Three drives which would have jumped the Quincy score were killed by Landregan at second. He also got two doubles. The heavy hitting of the Classicals resulted in the Quincy defeat. Three sacrifice hits were instrumental in placing the winners around and they later scored.

GOOD TIME AT ELKS CLUB

Supper Followed by a Varied Musical Entertainment

The Elks clubhouse on Foster street was the scene of a large gathering of Elks on Tuesday evening. The regular meeting of the lodge was held as usual at 7.45, but little more was done than to open and close the meeting. An adjournment was then made to the clubhouse where a delightful entertainment had been provided. The entertainment had been announced in the call with the result that there was an unusual large attendance. A special electric car brought half a hundred members from Hingham and Nantasket while regular means of transportation brought members from all parts of Quincy.

The first number on the program was refreshments, which were served under the direction of an efficient committee composed of M. Cohen, Joe Neagle and Eddie Desmond. The menu included lobster and chicken salads, rolls and coffee, and was pronounced fine.

While the refreshments were being served the committee in charge of the entertainment were getting busy. This committee included C. P. Gould and Fred H. Miller. The program included vocal solos by Daniel J. Sullivan, Ralph Laurie, George Stetson, E. E. Bullock, and Robert A. Kelly, duets by Ralph Laurie and George Stetson and choruses by the Elks quartette. Interspersing these solos were clog dancing by the Goldie Bros. Frank Binney presided at the piano and he made that instrument almost talk.

While the concert was at its zenith, Charlie Gould made his appearance on the scene with two of the artists who are appearing at one of the local theatres. They gave solos and a duet. They were most heartily encored and the Elks would have liked more but they were obliged to leave in order to catch the train for Boston.

As the hands on the clock in the reading room approached the hour of 11, all was hushed and all stood in silence with clapsed hands while the Elk's toast was read, and the ode "Our Absent Brother" sang by the quartette. This closed the evening which had been most enjoyable in every way.

INDEPENDENCE OF NORWAY.

The Norwegian society will celebrate the 9th anniversary of the independence of Norway on Saturday evening in Protection hall. The event is of national importance and will be observed throughout all sections where Norwegians reside. An orchestra has been engaged, a program will be rendered and speaking will be followed by dancing and refreshments. A committee in charge is L. A. Jacobson, Nils Lodengard, Andrew Olsen, Thorwald Johnson.

DANCING PARTY.

In accordance with the principle of charity, one of the fundamentals of the Young Men's Hebrew Association, the relief and entertainment committees of the Quincy branch held a dancing party in Electa hall Tuesday evening for the benefit of a member. Music was furnished by Thompson's orchestra and refreshments were served.

The committee in charge consisted of Joseph Szathmary, William Wolf, Joseph Grossman, Edward Berman, Sam Kadets, Samuel Grabowski, Sidney Litchman, Max Cutler, J. Smith, William Asnes and Sidney Crossman.

A large attendance is expected tonight at the first of a series of whist parties for the benefit of the Squantum Woman's club. The party this evening will be at the home of Mr. and Mrs. James Foster.

Occident Flour

Distinguished by High-Quality

Be particular about the flour you use in making pies, cakes or any form of pastry—if you would guard your reputation as a good housewife.

Occident Special Patent Flour is so finely and evenly ground that other pastry ingredients mix with it thoroughly. Dough from Occident Flour raises evenly—browns evenly and readily. Oven heat penetrates every part in the same degree and the result is the finest of pastry—the kind that makes a cook's reputation.

Ordinary flour, however, can never be depended upon. It may be good today and unsatisfactory tomorrow. The price of Occident Flour is only a few cents higher but those extra pennies are enough to enable us to make it the finest, most nutritious flour, always the same, always up to its own standard—the highest in the world.

The extra pennies which Occident Flour costs you comes back more than doubled in more loaves—even cooking—no batch ever spoiled—nothing to throw away. It is the most economical home flour ever milled and your grocer will give you back your money if you are not satisfied.

WEST QUINCY WANTS BRIDGE

Believes Granite Avenue Route Would Build Up Ward Four

The dormant spirit for the betterment of West Quincy is awakened by the objections advanced toward the construction of a new bridge on Granite avenue, Milton. The sentiment in general seems to favor the bridge, regardless of assessment.

William T. Shea, ex-Mayor and a progressive resident of the ward ernestly expresses his hopes for the construction. He points out that West Quincy has not been developing in step with other sections of the city, due principally to the poor facilities of going in and out of the ward. He emphatically declares in favor of the bridge.

Rev. Fr. Henry T. Grady, pastor of St. Mary's church and a sincere and aggressive worker for the betterment of the community, states that the people as he knows them want opportunities to build up the ward. With the building of the bridge, the matter of a railway over Granite avenue to Boston will soon follow and the large area now unoccupied will gradually become a home settlement, meaning additional taxable property and population.

SCANDINAVIAN PROGRESSIVES.

The Scandinavian Progressive Club formally organized at Union hall on Tuesday evening. A good attendance marked the second meeting of the year. The organization committee reported enrollment of 66 new members bringing the total membership close 100. A new enrollment committee to continue action along the lines of growth was appointed. A constitution was referred to a committee consisting of Nils Lodengard, Oscar Anderson, Carl Johnson, Oscar Friske, and Swan Cedarstrom. The officers chosen are:

President—John L. Bergvall.
Vice President—Nils Lodengard.
Secretary—Oscar Frisk.
Financial Secretary—Swan Cedarstrom.
Treasurer—Andrew Anderson.
Enrollment committee, Ward One—Swan Cedarstrom, Alexander Larson and John F. Johnson; Ward Two—Oscar Anderson; Ward Three—Nils Anderson, Gustaf Lundberg; Ward Four—John Peterson, Carl Johnson.

FORE RIVER SPORTS.

The broad jump at the Fore River shipyard this noon brought out a good crowd of competitors. C. Clapp was the best man of the bunch having the very good jump of 27 ft. 2 in. to his credit. C. Moyle was second, 25 feet. Third place went to C. Blanchard, 24 ft. 6 inches. Among the younger boys Oscar Djerf proved to be the best jumper, making a record of 22 ft. 11 in.

The annual Grand Lodge meetings of the K. & L. of H., are being held today in Odd Fellows' building, Boston. Maple lodge of this city is represented by M. Lizzie Furnald as representative, Agnes G. Fletcher as guardian, and several other members of the lodge, including Mrs. Rose A. Reed, Mrs. Mary A. Fox, and Mrs. E. E. Field.

LOST CHILD SIGNAL GIVEN

For Boy Who Made Trip to Boston with Expressman

Everett Kingdom, the 8-year old son of Mr. and Mrs. John Kingdom of 222 Granite street, had a fine time Tuesday, but he caused his parents no end of worry, and was the cause of the lost child call being sounded from Box 41 at 4.45 o'clock. Everett had been missing since 10 o'clock Tuesday morning when his mother sent him to the store on an errand. On the way to the store he met an expressman who lives near his home and being anxious for a ride prevailed upon the expressman to take him to Boston. When the boy did not come home to dinner his mother became alarmed, and when inquiry at the Cranch school brought the reply that he had not reported for school his mother became more alarmed, and immediately imagined that he must have fallen into some quarry hole and been drowned.

She teleponed the police and Sergt. Larkin who was in charge of the desk caused the lost child call to be sounded. Searching parties were immediately organized and were about to search the quarries when the little fellow appeared on the scene with his face wreathed in smiles for he had been to Boston and had a fine time. When he learned that he had been the cause of a lot of trouble he cooled down somewhat and promised in the future to make no more trips unless his mother was first consulted.

The preferential bill of the Spanish War Veterans may be held up in Senate.

CELEBRATION FOR FOURTH OF JULY

Mayor Stone Favors an Appropriation of $1,000 by City Council

Fourth of July Association Holds a Meeting

The July Fourth celebration association have decided that there shall be celebration of the National holiday in Quincy this year along the same lines as for the past few years. This was decided Wednesday night at the banquet held by the association at Thompson's restaurant.

The banquet was served at 6.30 and was pronounced most excellent in every way. The menu included soup, asparagus on toast, roast beef, banana fritters, coffee, rolls, ice cream, cake and cigars.

After the dinner to which the twenty eight present did full justice, Mayor Stone president of the association called the company to order and spoke briefly on the question of a celebration this year. He said that it was one of the best things for Quincy to have a celebration as it kept people at home, prevented accidents and fires, and saved the citizens much more than what it cost the city for the celebration.

He said that at the meeting of the City Council next Monday evening he intended to have an order introduced appropriating $1,000 for the celebration, and he urged the gentlemen present to see the different councilmen and urge them to vote for the order. It would only require twelve votes to pass the order and if the gentlemen present only did a little missionary work it would be easy to get the required number of votes.

President Joseph L. Whiton of the City Council spoke briefly stating that he believed it to be a good thing to have a celebration in Quincy. Ex-Mayor William T. Shea, Councilman John R. Richards and President John L. Hamilton of the Board of Trade spoke along the same lines.

It was the general sentiment of all the speakers that Quincy should have a celebration as during the past years and the only thing was to get the funds necessary to carry out the plans

There was some question if it would not be posisble to raise the amount necessary without an appropriation from the city, but from the experience of other years it was deemed impossible.

While the diners were at the table an invitation was received from Manager Wardwell of Kincaide's theatre to attend the performance at the theatre and the dinner was brought to a close and the diners adjourned to the theatre.

There will be a great hustle during the remainder of the week to round up enough councilmen to pass the order for $1,000, for as stated by the Mayor twelve affirmative votes will do the trick.

DELIGHTFUL MAY MUSICALE

Program by Quincy Talent at Women's Clubhouse

The second morning musicale was given Wednesday at the Women's Club house by the following local talent: Mr. Roscoe R. Ricker, Violin; Miss Marion L. Moorhouse, Violin-Cello; Miss Ruth Hardy, Soprano; and Mrs. Jennie Hocking Hunt, Accompanist.

These May musicales are so enjoyable hatt they should come every year when the trees are in blossom. The club is doubly fortunate in having a musical enthusiast like Mrs. Worster who initiated these delightful concerts and, also, in having such soloists as those who played Wednesday, all of whom live in this city. We all should feel proud of these young musicians, within our borders, who are just entering professional life, and who deserve all possible encouragement.

Mr. Ricker's violin playing showed a virile command of technique only attained by hard study.

Miss Hardy's voice was not only sweet, but her clear enunciation of the words added much to the pleasure of her singing.

Miss Moorhouse played extremely well, especially the difficult "Le Desir" and in "The Swan," the full rich tones of the 'cello were brought out to great advantage. Every artist responded to encores. Mrs. Jennie Hocking Hunt, accompanied Mr. Ricker and Miss Hardy and Mrs. S. P. Moorhouse accompanied her daughter.

WILL REDUCE THE MORTGAGE

Atlantic Church Ladies Have Big Plans Ahead

The Ladies Benevolent Society of Memorial Church, Atlantic, at their annual business meeting Tuesday afternoon elected Mrs. Sarah Butler as president and Mrs. Harry Read as vice president, Mrs. William F. Cummings, secretary and Mrs. Ben. F. Thomas, treasurer.

Mrs. Eugene Hayford was elected collector and special committee on new members.

Mrs. Butler selected as her executive committee: Mrs. T. W. Davison, Mrs. C. T. Letteney, Mrs. G. H. Hight, Jr., Mrs. W. T. Davy, Mrs. Isabel Smith Mrs. Alba Beede, Mrs. William Hersey, Mrs. Albert H. Hall, Mrs. Elizah Hall, Mrs. L. T. Gurney, Mrs. M. F. Baker, Mrs. David Hamilton, Mrs. Spencer Apollonio, Mrs. John Lature, Mrs. J. H. Welsh, Mrs. Fred Osgood.

Mrs. Albert Hall was chosen chairman of the Christmas fair, and appointed chairmen for the tables.

Mrs. Isabel Smith was appointed chairman for a strawberry festival when the season arrives.

The ladies are optimistic in regard to reducing the mortgage two thousand dollars before January first next, and have planned their work to that end. They have also undertaken more missionary activities than any other year in the history of the society.

LESS WATER PER CAPITA

Due to New Meters and Stoppage of Leaks

The report of the Metropolitan Water Board for the month of April shows the consumption of water in the City of Quincy that month was 73 gallons per capita as against 86 gallons per capita for the corresponding month last year.

Commissioner Tupper considers this a remarkably good showing, when it is considered that during the past year the system has been increased by the addition of seven miles of new mains and that 422 new services have been connected during the past year.

The decrease in the consumption of water Commissioner Tupper says is due to the installation of meters and the stoppae of leaks.

SEWER ASSESSMENTS.

Persons desiring their assessment apportioend should make application for the same before June 5, which is the last date for applying for apportionments. The bills for sewer construction were sent out later than usual this year as there was a bill before the legislature changing the amount of assessment and it was thought this might affect the assessment this year. An opinion was rendered however that even if the act became a law it would not affect sewers built last year.

GRANITE PROTEST SENT TO WASHINGTON

Says Quincy Manufacturers Could Not Compete with Foreign Manufacturers

Reduction of Tariff Would Hurt the Granite Cutters

The letter of protest of the Granite Manufacturers association over the proposed reduction in the tariff on dressed granite was forwarded to the Senators from Massachusetts in Washington on Wednesday. The letter sets forth that the proposed reduction of 25 per cent in duty on dressed granite would impose a great hardship on Quincy manufacturers, and that it would mean, if passed, that Quincy would be unable to compete with foreign countries, especially such places as Scotland. The letter states that the wages of the workmen there are not over $1.50 per day while the wages paid in Quincy is $3.50 per day and with a prospect of being even higher.

It states if the tariff is reduced as proposed it will be possible for foreign dressed granite to be shipped into this country and sold at a much less cost, even than it would be possible to finish a monument of Quincy granite.

That it would also be possible for a Quincy manufacturer to ship rough stock to Scotland and have it dressed, and shipped back to Quincy for less than it could be finished here. This would work a great hardship on the laboring man as it would mean a great curtailment of business. In other words it would practically put Quincy out of business.

In addition to these facts the letter also set forth a number of facts relative to the so called garnite jobber. It was, however, thought advisable that these facts should not be made public, as it was not desired that these same jobbers, should become acquainted with the text of the letter as they would use it to their own advantage to the detriment of Quincy.

For this same reason the manufacturers committee deemed it inadvisable at the present time to make their letter public.

The tariff bill is now in the Senate, having passed the House, and from reports received the bill as drawn seems to be meeting with considerable

Living Up to Our Reputation

Market Facts That Should Interest Every Wife

There has always been doubt and distrust of every new thing at the start. But the reasoning thinking people have come to know that the name of Foy being connected with the ADAMS MARKET, means that this is a new kind of store, based on mutual benefits, that it keeps its promises, and carries out what it undertakes

We put our customers interests always first, seeing that they get what they want, rather than forcing them to take what we would rather sell. Straightforward dealing, high quality, real economy, satisfaction guaranteed and giving a full dollars' value for every dollar received is the foundation upon which this store is built.

We are eternally "on the job,"—always on the lookout for better goods and better values, irrespective of immediate profits

The policy of serving our customers with only the best naturally leads us to feature goods of a national reputation. Simon Pure Leaf Lard, Occident Flour, LaTouraine Coffee, Golden Dome Teas and many other things that are known from the Atlantic to the Pacific are here in all their freshness and sterling quality. We buy and sell only what we know is right, and we know that this is the only way to give our customers complete and lasting satisfaction.

People will come to know the Adams Market because of its neatness—because it is an inviting place to trade, because it is "chuck-a-block" full of good things to eat.

The lambs we sell at this time of year are the best milk fed lambs that can be bought. The beef is corn-fed Western beef of the highest quality. The hams, tongues, and bacon are specially cured for the scientific wholesaler who supplies us.

Everything about this store—from the choosing of our meats to the way our delivery wagons are kept—are as near perfection as modern science and method can make it.

Probably very few men have read the annual reports of the Quincy Women's Club published in full in the Daily Ledger of Wednesday, yet it would do anyone good because they are so cheerful. There is inspiration in every line as the club's record is one of great achievement which all the officers and committees share.

The finances of the club are in excellent condition. The treasurer's report showed receipts of $4,890.14 for the year ending May 1, and a balance of $662.42. In addition to this balance from last year, dues to the amount of $1,148.00 have been paid in for the new year, and the club has a building fund and a contingent fund. The total cash on hand is $2,283.10. This sum alone is enough to make most of the men's clubs jealous.

Over one-third of the expenditures for the past year were for the maintenance of visiting nurses, but this work has been so well handled that it has become almost self supporting. In the words of the chairman: "This work wherever it has been started has proved to be the best and most practical of all modern charities, and it has become recognized as important to the welfare of this city." During the year just closed 3,326 calls were made by the visiting nurses, representing 470 patients of which number 200 were free patients. The report of the chairman should be read in full.

The club has fifteen to twenty committees and the chairman of each made an annual report, as well as the president, clerk and other officers. The address of Mrs. Eben W. Sheppard, the retiring president, in particular, should be read. Mrs. Sheppard made an admirable president, combining executive ability and gracious personality. She has every reason to be proud of her term as president.

The reports show that each of the committee accomplished much; some in reforms and improvements, others in sociability and entertainment. Just read the reports of the committees on Home Economics, Civics, Philanthropy Gardens, Education, Literature, Legislative, Arts and Crafts and others, to see what has been attempted and accomplished; or the reports of the committee on Music, Reception, Hospitality, to see what was done to entertain and interest the members.

The Quincy Women's Club unites the women of the city as no organization is doing, and for that reason it is of great benefit to the city at large.

Fair play for the Spanish war veterans won the day for them in the Legislature on Tuesday. Men who are willing to respond to their country's call in time of war should have the preference every time. It was but little they were asking.

The publisher has been discovered as the representative of American scholarship who may have accumulated enough money to permit him to accept an ambassadorship.

With Walter Page Ambassador and "Sephus Daniels in the navy, both of North Carolina, the Raleigh News and Observer's force has dwindled down to the office cat ond the devil.

Mayor Gaynor believes that 1 o'clock in the morning is late enough for any man to get drunk. And 1 o'clock the next day is long enough for any man to stay drunk.

Another way to appreciate the advance in public sentiment is to reflect that only seventeen years ago Senator Tillman was regarded as a radical.

The secret of a lost treasure mine is not half so important as the whereabouts of a dime that has slipped through a hole in the trousers pocket.

By close attention to business the late Jay Gould amassed sufficient hauteur to enable Frank and Anna to leave America in disgust.

CHRISTIAN CHINAMAN

Addresses May Meeting of Bethany Brotherhood

All business was suspended Wednesday evening at the May meeting of Bethany Brotherhood with the exception of the appointment of a nominating committee, that the whole evening might be given to Mr. Y. S. Tsao of Harvard University. President Willmott appointed as the committee —A. L. Melcher, Edward A. Damon and George Forsythe, who will report a list of officers for the ensuing year.

By special invitation a large number of ladies were in attendance.

The speaker of the evening was introduced by the president as the leading Christian Chinaman of America, being secretary of the Chinese Students Association of America. He was graduated at Yale, where he took the prize in oratory, and is now a student at Harvard.

Mr. Tsao depicted the present conditions and past history of China. There had been many ups and downs in the 4000 years, but not until 1896 did the great awaking come. In that year China was defeated in war with Japan. Previous to that Japan had been regarded as a "little brother," so that the defeat came as a surprise, and they marvelled at it. The people demanded a change immediately and it was underway within two weeks. The young Christian men who had been prominent in Y. M. C. A. work came to the front. They were recognized as leaders, and the new education and new religion got a start.

The Boxer trouble and revolutions had followed. For over a year there were no taxes and the treasury became depleted. The problems of the new regime had been in arranging for a loan, recognition of the new government, and election of a president. But the Christian leaders of today are earnest men and self-sacrificing, and are accomplishing much. They now appeal to the God of love, the God of justice and the God of righteousness and have faith that He will help, and not only save China but accomplish the salvation of the world.

At the close several questions were asked and answered and those present were enlightened relative to suppression of opium, voting qualification, education, relations to Japan Buddhism, students in America, the Y. M. C. A., etc.

Mr. Tsao was saluted at the close by a rising vote of thanks. It was a pleasure to many to talk with him during the social hour. Refreshments were served.

OPPOSITION FROM COUNTY

Boston Men Said to Favor Granite Avenue Bridge

(Special to the Ledger)

State House, May 14, The redraft of the Granite Avenue bridge bill was filed with the clerk of the House this morning and reads exactly as the advance outline given in last Saturday's Ledger.

Representative Dwyer filed the bill it was given the customary first reading and then referred to the committee on Counties for their approval. Considerable opposition to the bill seems to have arisen among the representatives from Norfolk county towns which will have to bear a proportional share of the expense but will not be benefited by the new bridge. Brookline, Dedham, Canton, Franklin and Wellesley men say they will oppose the bill unless the apportionment is changed in their favor. The Boston delegation, however, seems to be lined up as a unit in favor of the bill and they will outnumber the opposition two to one if they vote as they say they will.

When the bill gets into the Senate, it may meet the opposition of Lombard Williams, the only senator from Norfolk County since Senator McDevitt was refused his seat. Senator Williams comes from Dedham and if he opposes it strongly, the bill will have little chance of getting to Governor Foss. There is little doubt but what the Committee on Counties will approve the measure.

There has been a good advance sale of tickets for High school dramatics tomorrow evening.

MINISTERS DINE TOGETHER

And Discuss Express Licenses and Other Topics

At the meeting of the Quincy Ministers' Association in the Y. M. C. A. this week there was an open discussion in regard to the granting of pony express licenses, and figures were given of the regular session of the City Council when eleven licenses were granted and the special meeting when three more licenses were authorized.

A committee was appointed to look into the advisability of some special movement to bring many of the young couples into church life, especially the new comers.

Rev. Dr. Hudson gave a talk on Mormonism which was scholarly convincing and sane. Mr. Hudson had lived in Salt Lake City for several years, and in that time he had to revise all of his preconceived ideas of Mormonism. He was very fair and showed where some of the supernaturalism of that religion misled the people, even when there was an honest purpose in life. Mr. Hudson does not believe that polygamy is practiced by the Mormon church of today, but as it had been practiced by it in the past, it was one of the black spots in its history. He showed that polygamy was so much against the natural instincts that it was easy for Mormons to give it up; especially when the Gentile influence was felt and it was made criminal by the state.

At 12.15 the association had dinner together which was a farewell testimony to Rev. A. M. Thompson who is going to leave Quincy in the near future. Many expressions of appreciation were given in regard to the character and work of Mr. Thompson in the city, and the Ministers' Association wished him prosperity in his future fields of labor.

FINED FOR ASSAULT.

Gustin Gourley was arraigned in court this morning for assaulting James E. Flanning April 13. Flanagan claimed that Gourley came to him seeking work and he gave him a job at which he worked a few days. The following Sunday Gourley came to his house and demanded the $4 which he claimed was due him. An argument followed during which he put Gourley out of the yard using a hayfork. Three times Gourley returned and three times he was put out of the yard. The fourth time Gourley came back he struck Flanagan over the head and threatened to burn his barn if he was not paid. Flannagan said that he was not afraid of him but feared that he would be burnt out. The court imposed a fine of $10 and suspended the sentence until Oct. 24.

DANCING PARTY.

A private dancing party was given by the I. D. I. girls, a popular organition of young South Quincy ladies in the New Colonial hall, Wednesday evening. The matrons were Mrs. N. E. Garey, Mrs. M. Joss and Mrs. T. Johnson.

The affair was in charge of Misses Mabel Houston, Maude Johnston, Catherine Clarkin, Mary Joss, Mary Garey, Louise Moyle, Emily McDonald Clara Solander, Lillian Pettipit and Hannah Moynihan. Music was furnished by Wilson's orchestra and frappe was served.

WALSH DRUG CO.

WILL NOT VETO ALIEN LAND BILL

Johnson Cannot Agree With the President's Request

DENIES ANY DISCRIMINATION

Says Japanese Problem In California Is Very Little Understood In East—No Offense Can Be Taken by Any Nation to Proposed Law—Duty to State Compels Executive to Sign

Sacramento, May 15.—Expressing his determination to sign the alien land bill, recently passed by the legislature, Governor Johnson telegraphed to Secretary of State Bryan a long explanation of the action taken by the legislature. The message was in answer to the request telegraphed to the governor by Bryan, at the direction of President Wilson, that the bill be vetoed.

"Your very courteous telegram relating to the alien land bill reached me late Sunday night. I take it from our conversations and your request made to me to withhold executive action until opportunity was afforded for the presentations from the federal government that your message embodies what it was your wish and the wish of the president, to say to us before final action.

"For many years a very grave problem, little understood in the east, has confronted California; a problem the seriousness of which has been recognized by statesmen in our nation and has been viewed with apprehension by the people of this state.

"Of late years our problem has become acute and the agitation has been continuous in the last decade in reference to our agricultural lands until finally affirmative action in an attemped solution became imperative This attempted solution is found in the act of our legislature in the passage of the alien land bill. In the phraseology of this bill, in those whom it affects, in its scope and in its purposes we believe we are within our legal and our moral rights and that we are doing only what is imperatively demanded for the protection and preservation of our state.

"We assume that the right of Japanese to own real property for the purposes described in the treaty of 1911 is absolute in our state and we seek to deal only with our agricultural lands.

"We embody the treaty in our law and we add to it permission to lease our agricultural lands for a period of three years.

"By the law adopted we offer no offense; we make no discrimination.

"At least three states in the union have in the past enacted laws similar to the contemplated law in California and the enactments of those other states have been without objection or protest. That the protest is now made in respect to California emphasizes the acuteness of the problem confronting California and demonstrates that California is differently viewed than other states of the union and that if discrimination exists it is discrimination against California.

"We insist that justly no offense can be taken by any nation to this law and more particularly does this seem to be clear in the instance of a nation like Japan, that by its own law prevents acquisition of land by aliens.

"And so, with all respect and courtesy, the state of California feels it its bounden duty to citizens to do that which the interests of its people demand; that which the conscience of its people approves; that which presents no discrimination and that which can give no just cause for offense.

"You have suggested to me delay, but this question was very earnestly and fully presented by you to our legislature and the legislature determined to proceed. My province is to approve or disapprove the law as presented. Our people as represented in the legislature have overwhelmingly expressed their desire for the present alien land bill.

"The vote in the senate was 35 to 2, and in the assembly, 72 to 3. With such unanimity of opinion, even did I hold other views, I would feel it my plain duty to sign the bill unless some absolutely controlling necessity demanded contrary action. Apparently no such controlling necessity exists.

"It is with the highest respect for yourself and the president that I feel my duty to my state compels me to approve the action of the legislature."

With the sending of the telegram the controversy over the alien land bill is at an end, so far as the California administration is concerned. Johnson has until June 16 in which to sign the act, and in the normal course of events it will become a law at the expiration of ninety days from the closing of the legislature, or on Aug. 10 next.

GYPSY MOTH BILL.

The question book is still minus the question which it was announced at the last meeting of the City Council would be propounded to Commissioner Tupper in order to learn who the official was who advised that the bills be held up. Commissioner Tupper said this morning that it would not have been fair in the absence of the party to have disclosed his name, but that if the party had been present he would not have hesitated. It is a very easy matter to get misquoted in such matters said Commissioner Tupper, and it would not be fair to have disclosed to have the name at that time. Commissioner Tupper intimated that the party would be present at the meeting of the City Council next Monday evening, and would be ready to tell the whole story about the gypsy moths and the bills under consideration.

NOT WHOLLY SATISFACTORY

The rust on the granite on the new Court House , which it was thought the recent application of a powerful acid would remove, seems to be coming out again ,especially on the front of the building over the entrance. In fact the building seems to be assuming a greenish tint. City Hall which was also cleaned by this same process is also assuming a greenish tint in places.

High School — Public Schools
Woodward Institute — Parochial School

SCHOOL NOTES.

Headmaster Ernest L. Collins of the High School has just received word from the New England college certificate board that the privilege to certificates to colleges affiliated with the board had been renewed for a term of three years from the present year. An unusually large number of the present senior class will enter college in September.

Since the adoption of the Palmer Method of Writing in the schools, a large number of the teachers have been working to secure Palmer diplomas. Miss Mary G. Murray of the Washington school took in her first papers for inspection April 16 and last evening received her diploma which is an unusually quick record.

The Parent-Teachers Associations are holding their final meeting of the year during the present month with the annual election of officers. The attendance at these associations during the year has been largely increased, over that of last year with a corresponding increase of interest. They have been strong factors in assisting the school authorities in securing added school efficiency.

The art committee of the Wollaston school has received the past week a check of twenty-five dollars from the Arts and Crafts committee of the Quincy Women's club; also a picture from Mrs. Horace M. Willard of the Quincy Mansion school; "The Return in the Storm," "The Wake of the Moon," "At Low Tide."

Pupils and parents at the Quincy school are anxiously awaiting the furnishing of the school hall there in order that the Parents-Teachers Association may hold at least one meeting there before the close of the school year and the graduating exercises may be held there. Plans are going forward rapidly for these exercises in all the schools.

The Superintendent of Schools has been busy every afternoon of the present week explaining the Freshman course of study to pupils in the 8th grades who expect next year to enter High School or Woodward Institute.

A large class is expected for Woodward Institute not withstanding the change in the course of study.

A parent has presented the following ten books to the Wollaston school library: Legends, Myths, Fairy Tales, Famous Stories Heroes and Essays by Hamilton Mabie; Hymns and Operas by Delores Bacon; Wild Flowers by Frederick Stack, Wild animals and Trees by Julia E. Rogers.

PUBLIC LIBRARY NOTES.

At a meeting of the Suffolk South Association of Congregational Ministers held in the Memorial church, Atlantic, on Wednesday afternoon, Dr. William Gallagher of Thayer Academy gave a review of Prof. Rauschenbusch's book on "Christianizing the social order."

This work of Prof. Rauschenbusch's follows a previous book written by him entitled, "Christianity and the social crisis" and is in a way an answer to the challenge raised by that book.

Both of these books may be borrowed from the Thomas Crane Public Library the call numbers being 532.59 Christianity and the social crisis and 532.105 Christianizing the social order.

In recommendation of the latter book which was published in November 1912 the following article is quoted from the Book review digest:—

"Having advocated in it (Christianity and the social crisis) a regeneration of the moral order he had to meet the demand, How is it to be done? In this book (Christianizing the social order) he attempts the answer. Part 1 describes the social awakening of religious organizations, part 2 seeks to show the the Christianizing of the social order was the original aim of Christianity; part 3 is an analysis of what is and what is not Christian in our social order; part 4 shows up the invasion of God's country by the forces of vice and greed; parts 5 and 6 look to the future by discussing the direction of progress and the methods of advance."

GROCERS' CONVENTION.

Henry W. Mansfield of South Braintree, secretary of the Massachusetts Retail Grocers' and Provision Dealers' Association, accompanied by Mrs. Mansfield left last night to attend the National convention of grocers at St. Louis. The party of New England delegates are travelling in a special car in charge of Marters, via Montreal, Toronto, Niagara Falls and Chicago. They will return via Cincinnati, Washington and New York.

TREE ON FIRE.

A willow tree on the banks of the Town river, in the rear of the Kincaide theatre, took fire from sparks from a bon fire Wednesday afternoon and it took nearly one and one half hours to extinguish it. The fire nested in the core and burned downward. The tree was virtually hacked to pieces by the department who responded on a still alarm. A disagreeable odor from the decayed wood permeated the atmosphere in the immediate vicinity and remained until early evening.

MRS. JAMES E. MEYERS.

Mrs. Louisa B., wife of Mr. James E. Meyers, died at her home 36 Cleveland avenue, Braintree, early this morning after a brief illness in her 49th year. Mrs. Meyers was a daughter of the late Thomas Carter of Quincy Point, and a sister of Mrs. Leon H. Austin, wife of a former pastor of the Washington Street Congregational church. She leaves a husband and two sons, Harold C. and James E. Jr.

APRIL FIRE RECORD.

The following report on the work of the fire department for the month of April has been submitted by Chief Litchfield.

Nine alarms.
Responded to 16 telephone calls.

Property at risk	$26,200.
Insurance,	$11,200.
Loss,	$3,955.50

Working time at fires, 13 hours, 20 minutes.

The Wollastonite Bull Moosers will organize tonight at Brasee hall after a talk from Joseph Walker and Leonard Martin of the State Progressive committee. The committee in charge consists of Rodney P. Gallagher and George F. Parker.

SIGNED BY GOVERNOR

Bill Relative to the Use of Compressed Air Tanks

(Special to the Ledger.)

State House, May 14, 1913. The bill putting the inspection of compressed air tanks under the supervision of the State Police, which is of considerable interest to granite men, was signed by the Governor today and becomes a law. Representative Leslie who introduced the bill was given the pen with which the chief executive signed his name to the document.

As the act now stands it is substantially as it left the ways and means committee.

The bill in full follows:

Section 1. No person shall install or use, or cause to be installed or used, any tank or other receptacle exceeding eighteen inches in diameter, for the keeping or storage of compressed air at any pressure exceeding fifty pounds per square inch, for use in operating pneumatic machinery, unless the owner or user thereof shall hold a certificate of inspection issued by the boiler inspection department of the district police, certifying that the said tank or other receptacle has been duly inspected within two years, or unless the owner or user shall hold a policy of insurance upon the said tank or other receptacle issued by an insurance company operating under the laws of this Commonwealth, together with a certificate of inspection from an insurance inspector.

Section 2. The board of boiler rules shall prescribe regulations for the size, shape, construction, operation, maximum pressure, gauges, safety device and other appurtenances necessary for the safe operation of all tanks or other receptacles used for the storage of compressed air, excepting those exempted in section seven of this act.

Section 3. The boiler inspection department of the district police shall inspect all of the said tanks or other receptacles exceeding eighteen inches in diameter and in excess of fifty pounds pressure per square inch at least once every two years: provided however, that the said department shall not be required to inspect such tanks or other receptacles as may be covered by a policy of insurance and inspected by insurance inspectors.

Section 4. All owners of any of the said tanks or other receptacles exceeding eighteen inches in diameter and in excess of fifty pounds pressure per square inch shall notify the chief of the district police of the location of all such tanks or other receptacles in their possession.

Section 5. Every insurance company authorized to insure air tanks within this commonwealth shall forward to the Chief of the district police within fourteen days after each internal and external inspection of air tank or air tanks herein required to be inspected, reports of all air tanks so inspected by it. Such reports shall be made on blanks furnished by the chief of the district police and shall contain all orders made by the company regarding the air tanks so inspected.

Section 6. The inspection shall consist of a hammer test, also a hydrostatic test, the pressure of which shall be one and one half times the pressure allowed on said air tank The air tank or tanks shall be prepared for the inspection by the owner or user of said air tank.

Section 7. The provisions of this act shall not apply to tanks or other receptacles used for the keeping or storage of compressed air when attached to locomotives, street or railway cars, vessels or motor vehicles.

Section 8. The sum of three dollars shall be paid to the boiler inspection department of the district police by the owner or user of the said tank or other receptacle for each and every inspectiont hereof by the said department as herein.

Section 9. Whoever violates any provisions of this act, or any regulations made under authority hereof, shall be punished by a fine not exceeding fifty dollars, or by imprisonment of not more than thirty days, or by both such fine and imprisonment.

Section 10. This act shall take effest ninety days from its passage.

DINNER TO MRS. SHEPPARD

Her Work as President of Women's Club Appreciated

A complimentary luncheon was given to Mrs. Eben W. Sheppard retiring president of the Quincy Women's club, Wednesday at Hotel Thorndike, Boston, by members of the executive board. The table spread in one of the handsome private dining rooms, was twelve sided and arranged in the shape of a cross, bringing the women near each other. Covers were laid for thirty-two club members and guests. The decorations were white lilacs. Shades were drawn and the soft lights from the numerous candles gave a festive appearance to the surroundings.

After the dainty, and yet unusually carefully selected luncheon, came the fun. Mrs. Edward B. Marsh acted as toast mistress. She was most happy in her introductions. There were flashes of wit and snatches of original poems and a quantity of fresh and truly funny stories.

Mrs. Eben W. Sheppard was first called upon and she responded in a humorous strain to Mrs. Marsh's remarks which dealt in personal jokes about club affairs.

Mrs. Z. S. Arnold responded with an original poem, which was very clever. This poem was received with rounds of well deserved applause. A tribute was paid to the faithful and hard-working treasurer.

Mrs. Herbert W. Pinkham, who in replying told of the $2,400 raised by the club outside of its own expenses. She also alluded to the $1,500 spent for the visiting nurse and other good causes.

Mrs. Frederick H. Bishop, responded to the toast "Woman, she speaks for herself," with a text "The Happy Woman." This was a speech full of thought and suggestions as to woman's obligations to her family and friends to be always found happy and at her best.

Mrs. Percy H. Holman, corresponding secretary invited the present company to her camp in Kingston on June 24 and to visit Plymouth.

Miss Edith Randall followed with a poem upon "The Suffragette." This was a witty skit upon famous women of ancient history and our new women. with a generous sprinkling of club hits.

Mrs. Chandler W. Smith responded to the toast "The new President." When asked by Mrs. Marsh about the planks in her platform, she agreed to one called "happiness with high ideals and no ordeals."

After the toasts and speeches the assembled company sang the club hymn. Mrs. Jennie B. Worster followed with an original song entitled "Stand by the Women's Club at Quincy Down the Bay." Mrs. W. H. McGauflin sang "Drink to me Only With Thine Eyes" and Mrs. Albert E. Avery and Mrs. Worster sang the solo part of familiar songs while all joined in the chorus.

As the company parted each member felt the strength and depth of friendships formed, while working together for the good of the community in which they live and the joy of service.

GRANITE PROTEST

opposition in the Senate which gives the manufacturers hope that their appeal will have some effect.

Letters of a similar character have also been forwarded by the special committee of the Board of Trade and by the committee representing the Granite Cutters union. All three of these letters were of the same character.

William T. Spargo, one of the pioneers in the cutting business is a man thoroughly familiar with granite work as carried on in Scotland. He says that there are many skilled workmen in Scotland, and while their method is a little different from Quincy they can readily adapt themselves to the Quincy method. As a rule the cutters are strong rugged men, and capable of doing a full day's work. The wages there are a minimum when compared to what is paid in Quincy. If the proposed reduction of 25 per cent should become a law, said Mr. Spargo, it would mean a great curtailment in the granite business in Quincy and would work a greater hardship on the cutters than on the manufacturers for instead of wages being increased, he does not see why there would not have to be a reduction in wages.

Continuing, Mr. Spargo said, the cutters have given notice that the minimum wage in 1915 shall be $4 a day, but if the reduction as proposed is made he does not see how any manufacturer is going to pay that wage.

Joseph Walker of the Aberdeen Granite Works says that if the reduction in tariff prevails it will put Quincy out of business, for it will be impossible for Quincy to compete in open market with foreign manufacturers.

Monuments are in the nature of a luxury, and while there are of course many with plenty of means that would insist on having Quincy granite at any cost, there are thousands who do not care what the granite may be as long as it is granite. It is this class of customers with whom the so called jobber will work, and their trade which is now kept at home will be done abroad. While this class of customers from preference would select Quincy granite for their memorial, when it is put up to them by the jobber that a monument of Scotch granite, which they will claim will look as well and stand as long, can be purchased for half the cost of a Quincy job it is easily seen what will happen.

Of course said Mr. Walker the workmen will be the ones hardest hit for it will be out of all question to keep the prices for labor where they now are.

JUNK LICENSES.

Collectors of junk who have not as yet been granted a license to conduct business this year by the City Council have been camping on the Mayors footsteps during the past few days to get him to intercede in their behalf with the Committee on Licenses. At the present time there are four applications on which the committee has not acted. All of these parties held licenses last year and for several years but the desirability of confining this class of business to one section has been the cause of the parties being held up. The matter will probably be settled at the next meeting of the City Council.

Mr. and Mrs. Harleigh Schultz and their son Franz have joined the Squantum summer colony. Mr. Schultz is an editor on the Boston American staff.

A. J. Thompson will furnish the lunch at the opening smoker of the Quincy Yacht club this evening. A special car will leave City Square for the beach at 7.40 and will return after the smoker. The vaudeville program will commence at 8 o'clock and will be followed by the lunch.

SCHOOL BOY MEET.

Judging from the way that the boys at the various schools are practicing in the different events for the big meet on May 24 at Merrymount Park, there is no doubt that some very good records will be made. The Coddington, Cranch and Adams schools all have had trials in the running broad jump and up to date the Cranch School has a better mark than the other boys. At the Coddington, Joe Ryan has a mark of 13 ft. 9 in; the Adams school came to life this week with two men who could jump around 14 ft, J. McAdams, L. Beaton and George Prout, clearing that distance; at the Cranch School, Bill Isaacson sprung a big surprise on the rest of the bunch by making a leap of 15 ft. 2 in. The Wollaston and Massachusetts Field schools have been practicing for the past two weeks under the direction of Leon White and Fred Kingsbury but no word has been received as to their records made. The coaches are doubtless holding back so as to make the surprise so much the greater at the meet.

GRAMMAR SCHOOL LEAGUE

Ties for First Place in Both of the Divisions

Two league games were played in the grammar school schedule Wednesday afternoon. Montclair and Lincoln blanked Atherton Hough and Massachusetts Fields. The Cranch and Quincy game has been postponed for a few days.

The standing to date is as follows:

AMERICANS.

	Won.	Lost.	P.C.
Cranch	3	0	1000
Washington	3	0	1000
Montclair	2	1	667
Hancock	1	2	333
Wollaston	1	2	333
Atherton Hough	0	3	000
Quincy	0	2	000

NATIONALS.

	Won.	Lost.	P.C.
Willard	3	0	1000
Lincoln	3	0	1000
Gridley Bryant	1	2	333
Mass. Fields	1	2	333
Coddington	1	3	250
Adams	0	2	000

MONTCLAIR VICTORY.

Frederick Cox, one of the graduating class of the Montclair school established a 17 strikeout record in six innings Wednesday afternoon, blanking the Atherton Hough school. His team came through with two runs in the last two innings. Lemon, the losing pitcher performed in a splendid manner also, securing 11 strikeouts. The game was a pitcher's battle throughout. The Cox record is one that will probably stand for years to come in grammar school circles, and seldom has the performance been duplicated by any pitcher. Cox is a lefty, has the courage necessary to a good pitcher, uses fine judgment and has plenty of strength.

Montclair	0	0	0	0	1	1	—	2

LINCOLN WINS.

The Lincoln beat the Massachusetts Fields 3 to 0 Wednesday afternoon. Anderson, the winning pitcher struck out seven and passed four. Powell of the losers secured two strikeouts and passed seven. The Lincoln made seven hits against one for the Massachusetts Fields team. The score:

Lincoln	0	1	0	2	0	x	—	3

Batteries—Anderson and Zazzatoni; Powell and Drew.

ON THE DIAMOND.

The Quincy High school baseball team will play the West Roxbury High at Merrymount Park Friday afternoon. The team has recovered from its 14 to 1 defeat by Lynn Classical High school Tuesday and is ready to commence their winning streak.

Frank Hoyt of Atlantic is making a good showing with the Brockton Newland League team. Wednesday against Worcester, he was at the bat five times, made one hit and one assist scored a run and got 11 putouts at first.

Manager Duffy of the Portland New England league team, of which "Wes" Ganzel of this city is a member, donated 60 per cent of the receipts of the Portland-Lynn game at Portland on Wednesday to the families of four longshoremen drowned in Casco Bay last week. The amount was $137. The home team won 8 to 3.

PARTY DESIGNATION.

The time for changing party designation for the State caucuses is near at hand, and there is much speculation as to what per cent of the voters will forsake the two old parties and become affiliated with the Progressive party. According to City Clerk Crane up to the present time not more than thirteen have changed to the new party. It is said however, that there are quite a few in Wollaston who will change over this year and arrangements are being made to have the City Clerk hold a session in Wollaston to accommodate these people. City Clerk Crane has informed the party leaders in Wollaston that he will accommodate them by going to Wollaston provided that they will stand the expense of securing a room and that the meeting is not held in the headquarters of either party. The City Clerk is not obliged to do this, but Mr. Crane has always been very accommodating and has signified his willingness to go on the conditions named above.

☞Don't forget that tonight is Vaudeville night at the Orpheum Theatre, Phipps in a Comedy Musical act and Sammy Wragg an English Change Artist furnish the fun in connection with 5 reels of pictures and Illustrated songs, all for 10 cts.

FOSS NAMES WHITE SLAVE COMMISSION

Woman to Aid In Investigation In Massachusetts

Boston, May 15.—Governor Foss submitted to the executive council his nominations to the commission of five to investigate the so-called white slave traffic in Massachusetts. Of the five names offered by the governor one is that of Miss Lucia L. Jaquith of Worcester, being the fourth member of the board.

Dr. Walter N. Fernald of Waverley is named as chairman of the commission. Fernald is a student of social problems and has appeared before several legislative committees in support of various social welfare measures.

The other members of the commission are Roscoe Pound of Belmont, Charles W. Birtwell of Boston and Edwin Mulready of Boston.

CONVICT SHOT TO DEATH

First Execution Under New Nevada Capital Punishment Law

Reno, Nev., May 15.—The first legal shooting in the history of this state took place in Nevada state prison when Andrew Mircovich was shot to death.

The new capital punishment law of Nevada provides the alternative of hanging or shooting, at the option of the condemned.

Three guards, selected by lot from a hat, fired rifles, one being blank. Mircovich was a physical and mental wreck. The warden was swamped with requests for admission to witness the shooting.

QUINLAN IS CONVICTED

Jury Finds I. W. W. Leader Guilty of Inciting Riot at Paterson

Paterson, N. J., May 15.—Patrick Quinlan, Industrial Worker of the World leader, indicted with others in connection with recent silk mill strike riots, was convicted at his second trial. The jury in the first trial failed to reach a verdict. The second jury found Quinlan guilty of inciting the riot.

Quinlan was not present when the verdict was announced. As he is still under $7500 bond, Judge Klenert said he would not issue a bench warrant for his arrest.

Schooner Siezed as Poacher

Vancouver, B. C., May 15.—Siezed for poaching in Canadian waters, the American halibut schooner Valiant, Captain Courage, of Seattle, was towed into Vancouver harbor by a government patrol boat.

Guthrie's Appointment Approved

Washington, May 15.—The appointment of George W. Guthrie of Pittsburg to be ambassador to Japan was approved by the senate committee on foreign relations.

WHEN JOE JACKSON GOT EVEN WITH A FAN.

This story is passing the rounds concerning Joe Jackson, the Cleveland star outfielder, and his action and remarks in a kidding bee with a fan. Joe was at the bat with two men on bases in a game against the New York Yankees at New York last summer and one of the "wise guys," who chanced to know some of Jackson's weak points, started "kidding."

"Spell 'cat,' Joe," yelled the "wise guy." Joe looked up and marked the spot—took a vicious swing at the next ball and knocked it out to right field for a triple.

As Joe came puffing around to third base he spotted the "wise guy" and yelled, "Spell 'triple,' you bonehead; spell 'triple!'"

Joe had his revenge.

EVERS BANKING ON CHENEY.

Cubs' Manager Says Larry Is Just as Dependable as Any Great Pitcher.

Manager Evers of the Chicago Cubs is very sweet on Larry Cheney. Said Johnny recently: "Larry Cheney is the best man on our club. It is unusual for a leader to discriminate that way, but the players and the fans, as well as myself, know he is a wonder. He helped our club wonderfully last season and did not get much credit for it, but if my plans are successful he is going to get all that is due him this season. He ought to be in the limelight as much as Walsh, Johnson, Wood, Mathewson or Brown. He possesses every requisite, is easy to handle, a steady worker and dependable. I am going to make him as great a pitcher as Walsh or any one in the game. That may sound absurd, but you watch him this summer.

"I am going to do this by giving him a lot of work. Would Walsh, Brown, Mathewson, Johnson and Wood be so famous if it were not for the fact that they are working three and four times a week?

"They have been taking their regular turn, besides assisting other men, and have won nearly all the time. Their frequent appearance on the slab is what makes them stand out above the others.

"I think Cheney is as brilliant a pitcher as any one I mentioned, and I believe by the end of the season he will prove it. He will surely have the opportunity to gain renown, as I expect to pitch him in his regular turn as well as to call on him when one of the other men is forced to leave the box.

"Larry showed how strong he is when he beat Pittsburgh on a Sunday recently and came back two days later in the closing innings and held the same team hitless. That is no simple task against a squad of heavy batters like the Pirates. Cheney has a spitball that is a bird, and he should be more effective with it this year because he has more experience and knows the batters better."

ALLEN TO PLAY DE ORO.

Kansas City Boy Will Try to Win Pocket Billiard Honors.

Benjamin Allen of Kansas City will be the next opponent of Alfredo de Oro for the pocket billiard championship.

At Kansas City in February Allen defeated De Oro in an exhibition game of 1,000 balls, played in the room of which Kling and Allen are the proprietors. De Oro then offered to make a match for $500 a side. Allen's father retorted by proposing to back his son for $2,500. De Oro replied that he would not play in Kansas City for more than $500, but would play in New York for $2,500. It is more than likely the pair will meet in Kansas City.

KNIGHTS TEMPLAR.

The sir knights of Quincy commandery, K. T., with ladies are to meet in Masonic hall Monday evening to listen to an illustrated talk on Denver and the west. The convention of the Knights Templar is to be held the coming summer in Denver and quite a few sir knights of Quincy commandery are planning to participate in the trip. This lecture will in a way prepare them for what they may expect to see on the trip.

There is more Catarrh in this section of the country than all other diseases put together, and until the last few years was supposed to be incurable. For a great many years doctors pronounced it a local disease and prescribed local remedies, and by constantly failing to cure local treatment, pronounced it incurable. Science has proven catarrh to be a constitutional disease and therefore requires constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, Ohio, is the only constitutional cure on the market. It is taken internally in doses from 10 drops to a teaspoonful. It acts directly on the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. They offer one hundred dollars for any case it fails to cure. Send for circulars and testimonials.

NAVY TRAITOR WILL BE FOUND

Daniels Orders That He Must Be Located Without Fail

THEFT OF BATTLESHIP PLANS

Government Secrets of Navy In Possession of Whoever Has Them, as the Pennsylvania Was Planned to Be Last Word In Naval Construction—Officials Greatly Disturbed

Washington, May 15.—Despite the best efforts of picked secret service operatives, not a single trace has been found of the thief who, on March 4, stole the plans of the new battleship Pennsylvania from the navy department. The government officials are far more troubled than they care to admit over this fact. Because of the nature of the thefts it is feared they are the work of an insider. The result is an uncomfortable feeling of suspicion among persons within the department who might have access to the plans.

Secretary of the Navy Daniels has ordered that the thief is to be located without fail. No trouble or expense is to be spared. The fact that the innermost secrets of the navy may be at the mercy of a traitor has exercised the officials as they have not been in many years. Detectives are at work inside and outside of the great building, and there is a confident feeling that the thief or thieves will eventually be discovered.

The theory most popular with the detectives is that the plans were stolen by someone who believed he might be able to sell them later. Reasoning along these lines; the operatives say the thief probably still has the plans and they will be able to recover them.

They are watching certain persons in this and other cities who have a reputation for trafficking in military and naval plans, and there is a possibility that this espionage will bring results.

Despite the fact that the navy department claims the plans stolen would be of no benefit to anyone, persons familiar with the case say this is an exaggeration. They point to the fact that it is admitted the electric wiring was indicated and say that this probably means that the secret of the fire control system is in the possession of whoever has the plans.

Extraordinary precautions have been taken by the officials not alone of the navy, but of the army, since the discovery that there are thieves in the big building. Only persons who belong there are permitted in the various offices, and there has been instituted an elaborate system of checking, whereby every person handling plans of any kind, or material documents, has to account for them on a permanent record.

The very fact that the plans stolen are of the greatest warship planned by the government, the one intended to be the last word in naval construction, is admittedly a real cause for alarm, and there will be no relief until they are recovered.

LODGE ACTS FOR PETERS

Lays Reciprocity Message and Legislative Resolution Before Congress

Washington, May 15.—Representative Peters of Boston declined to present to the house the resolution of the Massachusetts legislature transmitting the tariff and reciprocity message of Governor Foss criticising the Democratic policy and declaring that the majority vote of the state in the last election was for protection rather than tariff for revenue, and demanding free raw materials for manufacturers.

Peters takes the ground that no Democratic member is under obligation to offer the resolution for record, as it was opposed by the Democrats of the legislature.

Senator Lodge cheerfully presented the resolution in the upper house.

WELLS JURY OUT

Judge Says Verdict Must Be First Degree Murder or Acquittal

St. Albans, Vt., May 15.—The jury in the case of Julius Wells of Swanton, charged with the murder of his 6-year-old son, retired for deliberation at 4:30 yesterday afternoon, with a charge from Judge W. W. Miles that the verdict must be either one of guilty in the first degree or not guilty.

Warren R. Austin, counsel for the defense, in his closing argument declared that the testimony of Wells' wife was part of a conspiracy.

THREE CARS RUNNING

They Carry No Passengers and Are Heavily Guarded by Police

Cincinnati, May 15.—With only three cars operating over their entire route, the strike of the street car employes of the Cincinnati Traction company given every evidence of settling into a long drawn out siege.

No efforts were made by the strikers or sympathizers to interfere with the three cars, which were hemmed in on all sides by mounted patrolmen and followed by automobiles filled with police officers. The cars carried no passengers.

TORNADO IN NEBRASKA

Twelve Killed, Fifty Injured, and Town Almost Wiped Out

Omaha, May 15.—Officials of the Nebraska Telephone company in this city were notified that a tornado at Seward had resulted in twelve deaths and fifty persons being injured, several of them fatally.

The town is said to have been almost completely destroyed. Many surrounding towns are known to have been struck by the storm, but the amount of damage done is not reported.

A storm of great fury struck the southern part of Omaha last evening, uncofing numerous houses and doing other damage.

SEIZURE OF TOWN BOOKS IS ORDERED

Grand Jury to Probe Charges Against Revere Assessors

Boston, May 15.—Judge Brown, in the superior criminal court, ordered the seizure of the assessors' books of the town of Revere.

The order was issued following the refusal of Town Assessors Segee and Bates to deliver the books to Assistant District Attorney Lavelle, who went to Revere town hall and formally demanded them.

A Boston police inspector will take the order and go to Revere today to seize the books. If Segee and Bates refuse to give them to him they can be brought before the court for contempt.

District Attorney Pelletier will call a special session of the grand jury to consider the charges that the books of the Revere assessors have been tampered with and that false entries have been made.

DEATH OF JUDGE FOX

Served Forty-Eight Years as District Justice In the Bay State

Taunton, Mass., May 15.—Judge William H. Fox, for forty-eight years justice of the first district court of Bristol county, died at his home here, after an illness of several weeks, in his 75th year.

Judge Fox had the distinction of being the oldest justice in point of service in the commonwealth. He has presided over the deliberations of the first district court ever since it was formed, having been appointed by Governor Andrews. He leaves one daughter and two sons.

RESPONSIBILITY DIVIDED

Mine Foreman and Mining Laws Are Blamed For Ninety-Six Deaths

Monongahela, Pa., May 15.—The coroner's jury, investigating the cause of the explosion in the Cincinnati mine, in which ninety-six men lost their lives April 23, returned a verdict placing responsibility for the disaster on the mine foreman and the moral responsibility on the mining laws.

The jury recommended enactment of more stringent state laws covering mines.

COLLISION IN MID-AIR

Aviator Is Instantly Killed and Two Others Are Injured

Johannisthal, Ger., May 15.—A biplane piloted by Captain Zucker and carrying a pupil named Dietrich as a passenger came into collision here with a monoplane at an altitude of sixty feet.

Zucker was instantly killed, Dietrich was badly injured and the two men in the monoplane were slightly injured.

Dummy Fools Firemen

Philadelphia, May 15.—Firemen risked their lives and two were overcome by smoke in rescuing a woman who, when carried to the street, proved to be a dummy model.

MELISSA WOULD NEVER MARRY A MINISTER.

"Mr. Narropath called this afternoon, Melissa," announced Mrs. Merriwid's maternal maiden aunt Jane. "He said that he might drop in again this evening if you were likely to be at home."

"You told him that I had left town and didn't expect to be back for fourteen years, didn't you, dearie?" asked Mrs. Merriwid, as she removed her hat.

"Of course I didn't," replied Aunt Jane, indignantly.

"Well, I intend to," said Mrs. Merriwid. "I'll just pack a suitcase and you can send my trunks on as soon as I find out where I am."

"Melissa, I'm ashamed of you," said Aunt Jane. "To talk that way about a clergyman! I don't care if he is young; it isn't seemly."

Mrs. Merriwid rolled her gloves into a ball, and throwing it at her relative, knocked a Bohemian flower vase off a table two feet to the right of her. "Now see what you've been and gone and did!" she said reproachfully. "If you say I'm not seemly again I'll throw the next thing at the electrolier and as likely as not you'll get hurt. Now tell me why you think I ought to stay at home this evening to entertain Mr. Narropath."

"You've been doing it right along for weeks," replied Aunt Jane.

"That's an evasion," said Mrs. Merriwid, severely. "Do you suppose he wants to talk to me about the benighted heathen of Nigeria?"

"I suppose him to be a very excellent and worthy man," answered Aunt Jane, desperately, "and I've been hoping that you would make up your mind to marry him. He as much as said that he meant to ask you."

"Oh rapture, bliss and joy!" exclaimed Mrs. Merriwid, clasping her hands and languishing at the ceiling.

RUN TO MEET HIM WITH A GLAD SMILE.

"Oh ecstacy! Oh fudge! Dearie, some of the slates in your matchmaking little mansard must have worked loose. Do you honestly think that I would marry a minister?"

"I think it might do you good," said Aunt Jane.

"That's where you make a fatal error, dear aunt," declared Mrs. Merriwid. "You may recollect a proverb about shoemakers' wives—yes? Well, that goes double with clergymen's. I don't say I wouldn't get my fair share of sermons, but whether that would do me any good is quite another thing. On general principles, I should say that the constant contemplation of virtue would be depressing; it would be like Sunday all the week—supposing that the Reverend didn't slump in the family circle, which is contrary to human man's nature. If he did slump, it would destroy my ideals and make me lose a good deal of my respect for religion. I want to continue to look up to Mr. Narropath, which I can easily do while I am in my pew and he is in the pulpit; but it would be different on the dead level of the breakfast table, where he would probably let out a sacerdotal roar about the toast being burned."

"You are a frivolous thing," said Aunt Jane.

"I'm afraid I am," admitted Mrs. Merriwid. "I think the Dorcas society and the guild would find it out, too. Another thing, I can't get interested in the Nigerian heathen. There are so many American heathen that need looking after—and they aren't all in the slums either. If you threw a dragnet over the parquet the first night of a musical comedy, you'd gather in more than you'd get in a year's hook-and-line fishing in Darkest Africa. Spreading the gospel is all very well, but where there is so much territory to go over it's apt to be spread mighty thin."

"If you are going to talk that way, I shall leave the room," said Aunt Jane.

"Then I won't talk that way," said Mrs. Merriwid. "But you won't mind if I mention the disadvantage of having a man around the house all day, will you? Poor Henry used to start down-town at 7:30 sharp every morning, and I wouldn't see anything more of him until half past five; consequently I didn't make any work for the commission on insanity. There isn't a man living that can stay at home all day without taking more or less interest in matters that aren't any of his business. He begins to find out how easy housekeeping would be to a woman who applied common sense and system to the little problems that confront her. He notices the tactless way in which we manage the servants and our neglect and scorn of the little economies which properly observed would cut down the bills about two-thirds, and that is apt to be annoying. I think it's much nicer to sit in the window and watch for the return of the breadwinner and then run to meet him at the door with a glad smile and lead him to his slippers and a hot dinner."

"It would depend upon the kind of man, I should imagine," said Aunt Jane.

"It would," agreed Mrs. Merriwid. "If he's a man with large, wistful brown eyes, an expression of gentle melancholy, a low, musical voice and a warm, mushy hand-clasp, it depends considerably. When he has dark wavy hair drooping over a high marble forehead it adds to the complication because there's a large class of female idiots that can't let that sort of a preacher alone. They begin to get concerned about the state of their souls and want a lot of expert advice on the subject from the dear man, which it's the dear man's business to give. Give me the dry-salt and ship chandlery business for a married man. But of course we can't all be dry-salters and ship chandlers."

"I should hope not," said Aunt Jane.

"But you see how it would be, don't you, dearie?" Mrs. Merriwid resumed. "It would be the next thing to marrying a heaven-gifted pianist with a magnetic personality, or a matinee idol. Mr. Narropath may be a very good man, but he knows all about his liquid brown eyes and his brow-caressing cow-lick and his mellifluous murmur, and while he may love me truly it isn't with the passionate devotion that he has for himself, and that's one reason why he's going out of this house this evening with lacerated feelings and a poor opinion of my taste. You see, dearie, he has a well defined idea of the qualities that a really great preacher ought to have, and he knows who's got them, but the one thing that has been holding him back has been the distraction and care of bringing two extremities to a point of contact, as they say in Boston. He wants to be freed from sordid considerations of money so that his spirituality can soar untrammeled, and the only way you can be free from the said sordid considerations is to have money. Such, my dear relative, is the situation."

"I am sure you are wrong if you attribute unworthy motives to Mr. Narropath," said Aunt Jane.

"I don't, dearie," replied Mrs. Merriwid. "I merely implied that he was what Mr. Stoxan would call 'out for the stuff.'"

STOLE REMNANTS OF MEAL

Kansas Man Had to Spend Twenty-Three Years In Prison

Topeka, Kan., May 15.—Upon information that he had spent twenty-three of his thirty years of life in prison for no other crime than the theft of a meal and a watch worth $3, Arthur Patten was paroled from the state penitentiary by Governor Hodges.

The governor announced it as his belief that "society had committed a crime against Patten." He sent the paroled man to a farm "to become a citizen."

Patten was the victim of environment, and except for two weeks has been in custody since he was 7 years old, when he was sent to the state reformatory as an incorrigible youth, after stealing a cheap watch.

After four years in the reformatory he was paroled. He could find no work. One night, hungry, he entered a farmhouse while the family was away and ate the remains of a supper he found in the pantry. For this his parole was revoked and he was returned to the reformatory. When his term was up he was tried and sentenced to prison for burglary in the second degree for eating the farmer's supper.

AFTER SEVENTEEN YEARS

Bank Director Begins Serving a Two-Year Term In Prison

Asheville, N. C., May 15.—Joseph E. Dickerson, director of the defunct First National bank of this city, who, with W. E. Breese, the president, was found guilty of conspiracy in connection with the failure of the bank seventeen years ago and sentenced to two years in the penitentiary, was formally sentenced and taken to Atlanta yesterday afternoon.

Breese, who also had been ordered to report for sentence, was not in court. His bond was forfeited and a capias issued for him.

The case of these men has been in the courts for sixteen years and the supreme court, to which it was finally carried, confirmed the judgment of the lower courts.

BRIDEGROOM FIGHTS WITH FATHER-IN-LAW

Latter Is Killed When They Shoot at One Another

Revere, Mass., May 15.—While 9-year-old Grasia Orlandella looked on, her father, Michael Orlandella, and her brother-in-law, Samuel Comiza, engaged in a revolver duel, which cost the life of the girl's father and the possibly fatal injury of Comiza. The latter was married two weeks ago.

The shooting occurred in the upper tenement of a two-family house at 9 Mountain avenue.

The cause of the fracas is not known. The stories told by Comiza and other members of the family are so conflicting in their nature that the police are holding Comiza, his wife and other members of the family pending a further investigation.

ADMIT KILLING FATHER

Sons of Ranchman Say He Abused Them and Their Mother

Douglas, Ariz., May 15.—Otto and Fred Watson, 19 and 21 years old, respectively, charged with the murder of their father, William Watson, a ranchman, confessed to the district attorney that they had committed the crime.

They told a story of cruel treatment at the hands of their father, in which their mather was also a victim. On the day of the murder they said, he had threatened to kill the family. The boys shot him just as he was about to shoot them, according to their story.

ACTED WITHIN HIS RIGHTS

Guard Who Shot and Killed Striker Is Vindicated by Court

Milford, Mass., May 15.—Edgar A. Sherman, the special police officer who shot and killed Emilio Baccacchiocchi on April 24, was acting within his rights, according to Judge Cook.

The shooting occurred during a clash between police and strikers of the Draper mills. As a result of the judge's finding it is feared there will be further trouble here.

The strikers claimed the man was shot down while endeavoring to escape during a clash between a squad of police and strikers.

Held on Smuggling Charge

Boston, May 15.—Facchini Luigi was held by Commissioner Hayes in $300 for a hearing on May 16 on the complaint of smuggling jewelry worth $500 from the steamer Cretic, on which he is second steward.

Breeding Reservation For Birds

Washington, May 15.—President Wilson, by executive order, has set apart a large tract of land in Arkansas for use by the department of agriculture as a resort and a breeding ground for native birds.

The KITCHEN CUPBOARD

CORNED BEEF.

CORNED beef is a useful food to have in stock. Like ham, it is handy to have in the house in a crisis, such as a rainy day, when it is inconvenient to send to the shops for supplies.

Beef may be pickled at home in comparatively small quantities if you prefer.

Home Pickling.

To prepare homemade corned beef make a brine of three quarts of water, one cupful of coarse salt, one-half cupful of brown sugar and saltpeter the size of a hazelnut. Boil all together and let cool. Select the piece of meat you prefer, put it into a crock and turn the brine over it. Let stand about six days with a weight on to keep under the brine, when it is ready for use.

It is a good plan to take out your corned beef the day before you wish to use it, cover it with cold water and let it stand until the morning.

Homely Boiled Dinners.

Corned Beef and Vegetables.—Brisket of corned beef is best for this. Take a good sized piece, according to the requirements of your family. Cut a cabbage into quarters and turnips into slices about an inch thick. Then take six carrots, parsnips and potatoes and cut them into slices. Put the corned beef on the fire in a large pot and boil for five hours. Add the vegetables an hour before serving and cook until tender. Serve the meat on a large platter surrounded by the vegetables.

Corned Beef With Dumplings.—Boil the corned beef as usual. In the meanwhile prepare the dumplings as follows: Take two cupfuls of sifted flour, a half cupful of minced suet, a half cupful of cold water, one egg and mix all into a stiff dough. Drop the dumplings into the vessel containing the corned beef and boil from four to six minutes. When done they must be taken out of the vessel. Small carrots and turnips may be boiled in the liquor with the beef and served on the platter with the dumplings. Serve with horseradish sauce.

Savory Hashes.

Corned Beef Hash.—Take cold corned beef and cold potatoes in equal quantities. Baked potatoes are the best for this purpose, and the beef should be nicely minced. Mix well and put into a hot frying pan which has been greased. When heated add half a cupful of milk for each quart of the hash and stir lightly. Then put into the oven and bake for twenty minutes. It will have a light crust on both sides.

IF WOMEN ONLY KNEW

What a Heap of Happiness it Would Bring to Quincy Homes.

Hard to do housework with an aching back.

Brings you hours of misery at leisure or at work.

If women only knew the cause—that

Backache pains often come from weak kidneys,

'Twould save much needless woe.

Doan's Kidney Pills are for weak kidneys,

Read what a Quincy citizen says:

Mrs. E. H. Prouty, 85 North street, Quincy, Mass., says: "Doan's Kidney Pills completely and permanently cured me of kidney trouble and I am only too pleased to recommend them to anyone in need of a kidney medicine. I was subject to backaches and headaches and the secretions from my kidneys also bothered me. It required the contents of only two boxes of Doan's Kidney Pills to effect a complete cure. Another member of my family who was afflicted with kidney trouble used Doan's Kidney Pills with good results."

For sale by all dealers. Price 50 cents. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, New York, sole agents for the United States.

Remember the name—Doan's—and take no other.

ACTIVE IN BOTH HOUSES

Representative Leslie Daily Visitor to the Senate

Ever since the suspension of Senator John J. McDevitt of Quincy from the upper branch, many of the towns in the first Norfolk senatorial district have not received much representation in that body. But this can not be said regarding the city of Quincy, says the Boston Traveler. Representative William J. Leslie of Quincy makes at least two trips daily to the Senate chamber and watches all legislation affecting his city in the upper branch with a scrutinizing eye. The Granite city legislator also keeps in touch with President Greenwood and the citizens of Quincy need have no fear that the absence of Senator McDevitt will permit anything detrimental to their interests to "get by." To leave his duties in the House and attend to the Senate proceedings, even temporarily, is not compulsory on Representative Leslie, but it certainly shows a good spirit on his part.

SECRETARY TO BISHOP

Former Rector of St. Chrysostoms Accepts New Position

News comes from North Dakota that Rev. A. E. Clattenburg, recently rector of St. Chrysostom's church at Wollaston has accepted a responsible position in Pennsylvania. The Daily News of Devils Lake, North Dakota, said May 7:

"Rev. Albert Edwin Clattenberg, who has served well as the rector of the Church of the Advent in this city, resigned from the position at a meeting of the vestry of the Episcopal Church held last evening.

"The resignation will take effect not later than July 1. Rev. Mr. Clattenburg will go to Philadelphia where he will accept a position as secretary to Bishop Rhinelander, and the ability with which he is endowed will particularly fit him for the new field of work. During his stay here Mr. Clattenburg has done wonders for the church and has proved a real live wire for the community. His most notable achievement is the erection of the Guild house. His efforts coupled with the help of the citizens who had faith in him being responsible for the handsome new structure which has just been completed. Mr. Clattenburg was recognized as a leader of the Episcopal Church in North Dakota and he will be greatly missed in the state as well as the community. His successor has not yet been selected."

WOMEN'S BOARD OF MISSIONS

Many Foreign Missionaries to Speak at Bethany Church

The semi annual meeting of the Woman's Board of Missions will be held in the Bethany Congregational church, Quincy, Wednesday May 21. There will be two sessions at 10 a. m. and 2 p. m.

The meeting will be charge of Mrs. Charles H. Daniels, president and the general topic of the morning session will be "The joy of the task."

Rev. I. W. Sneath of the Wollaston Congregational church will read the scriptures and make the opening prayer and the address of welcome will be by Mrs. H. Everett Crane. Addresses will be made by Miss Kyle, editorial secretary; Mrs. Frank G. Cook, Mrs. William L. Adam, Miss Susan R. Howland of Uduvil, Ceylon, Miss Calder, Home Secretary; Mrs. Samuel C. Bartlett, Otaru, Japan and Mrs. Archibald McCord, President of the Norfolk and Pilgrim branch.

A basket lunch will be served at noon and the afternoon session will open at 2 o'clock. Addresses will be made at this session by Miss Preston, secretary of young people's work; Miss Lamson, foreign secretary; Dr. Cordelia I. MacNaughton, Madura, India; Miss Carolyn T. Sewall Tientsin, China; Mrs. Charles E. Ewing, Tientsin, China; and Rev. J. K. Browne, Harpot, Turkey. The closing words will be by Mrs. Daniels.

During the sessions there will be hymn singing and solos by Mrs. Frank J. Moore.

LETTER CARRIERS' BALL.

Quincy was well represented in the 8,000 that attended the annual reunion of the Letter Carriers' Mutual Benefit Association in Mechanics Building, Boston, Wednesday evening. Mayor Stone and Miss M. C. Cleary of Boston participated in the grand march. The success of the affair was due to an energetic committee among whom were carriers of the Quincy office as follows; Cornelius J. Connors, W. L. Jacobs, John J. Cunniff and John T. Cain.

DUTCH SUPPER.

The Dorothy Q. Sewing circle and Dorothy Q. Lodge No. 55 U. O. of Q. O. L. were very pleasingly entertained by Mrs. Lydia Collett, Mrs. Dora Ferguson and Miss Eva Parkhurst on Monday evening by a Dutch supper at Mrs. Collett's home 43 Freeman street. The lodge also surprised the Secertary, Miss Clara E. Bennett by a dinner set.

DECLARES WAR IS NECESSARY

Abbott Says History Would Be Poorer Without It

ARGUMENT BACKED BY BIBLE

International Peace Will Not Prevail Until International Conscience Is Awakened—Brand New Expression Impresses Delegates to Lake Mohonk Conference

Mohonk Lake, N. Y., May 15.—"International conscience" as the only agency that can bring about world peace was the keynote of a speech delivered by Dr. Lyman Abbott, editor-in-chief of the Outlook, at the opening of the nineteenth annual Lake Mohonk conference on international arbitration.

"There are times when war is necessary," Abbott said at the outset of his address, and there was a buzz of subdued comment among the 300 delegates, who recalled that Theodore Roosevelt is associated with Abbott.

The comment was a continuation of that which started with the announcement that Abbott, who recently was removed as vice president of the American Peace society at St. Louis, would preside at the first day's session of the Lake Mohonk meeting.

Plunging into the heart of his subject after a brief preamble, Abbott said:

"Combativeness and destructiveness are not vicious elements in human nature. They are not to be destroyed; they are to be guided by reason and directed by beneficent hands.

"There are times when war is necessary. The history of the world would be poorer than it is if there were no record of war on its pages: if there had been no heroes who dared to fight for justice and liberty.

"Christianity does not emasculate men. Christians have not stood and ought not to stand for peace at any price. They always have recognized that there are worse things than war, bad as war is."

Drawing freely from the Bible for illustrations of that phase of his argument, Abbott then launched into his main theme—that international peace is secondary to international justice, and that international justice depends on an international conscience. This expression was brand new to the delegates, and it was predicted that it would become a world slogan. Abbott continued:

"The greatest peril today to the peace movement, which seeks to substitute an appeal to reason for the appeal to force, is not the limitations on our general arbitration treaties, but our failure to carry them out when international controversies arise.

"Until we have an international conscience which calls for an international tribunal, statesmanship which succeeds in constituting such a tribunal and an international conscience which forces the submission to such a tribunal of international controversies when they arise, any disarmament, unless made by nations in co-operation with one another, is far more likely to promote war than to promote peace.

"There are two ways of promoting peace; one by making our nation so weak that it cannot fight, the other by making it so strong that it need not fight. America is one of the richest countries on the globe. Make it also one of the weakest and it would invite assault. It is the first duty of a government to protect its people. If it fails it has no right to exist.

"America, therefore, must have an army sufficient to protect its coasts and its commerce, and to take its share in the fulfilment of those world obligations which belong to all the civilized nations of the earth.

"We can establish peace only by establishing justice. To do this we must, by voice and pen, develop in the nation a public conscience which will demand the fulfilment of arbitration treaties already made before undertaking to make other treaties still more general."

BRIEFS

Several applications were acted upon at a meeting of the Quincy lodge of Moose in Faxon hall Wednesday evening. The lodge will hold a class initiation in Faxon hall Sunday afternoon.

Lt. Col. O. Nilson of New York will conduct a meeting tonight at the Salvation Army hall, 150 Granite street. The Colonel is a good speaker and solo singer. Everybody invited to attend. The meeting will commence at 8 o'clock.

C. E. Brown of Upland road, Quincy, formerly of South Braintree, a conductor on the N. Y. N. H. & H. R. R. has bought an estate on Chicatawbut street, Neponset and will occupy the same soon.

Boys set the backstop on the Ward Four playground on fire Wednesday evening. The flames spread rapidly to their intense enjoyment. Michael Shea, foreman of streets, saw the backstop being gradually destroyed as he was passing. He succeeded in extinguishing the fire. Slight repairs will have to be made.

A successful operation for blood poisoning was performed on J. Edward Reinhalter Wednesday afternoon at his home on Copeland street. He is doing well. A few days ago Mr. Reinhalter cut his left wrist. The wound became infected and the poison lodged in the muscle of the left arm. Mr. Reinhalter is a well known West Quincy young man and is a prominent member of Ave Maria council, Knights of Columbus.

"Fay" Phelan of School street will be a member of the relay team of the North Dorchester A. A. which is entered at the track events at Oldtown, Maine, May 30. "Fay" has been showing good form and his condition promises a duplication of his best past performances.

Mrs. Annie L. Harmon of Edison street, whose name was not included in the committee in charge of the Quincy Women's Riverside Club at Alpha Hall, Monday evening was one of the active workers at that affair.

The funeral of Rev. Fr. Daniel Gleason, pastor of St. Mary's church of Randolph, took place Wednesday morning. Among the clergymen in attendance were Rev. Fr. John J. Coan of St. John's church, Rev. Fr. John P. Cuffe of Sacred Heart church and Rev. Fr. Howland Harkins of Amesbury, who is at the home of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. John Harkins, Adams street, where he is recuperating from a recent illness.

NEW WIN-WARD BREEZE AT CLUBHOUSE

Annual Smoker Opens the Season of the Quincy Yacht Club

Professional Vaudeville Artists Assist

The Quincy Yacht Club auspiciously opened their season at the club house at Houghs Neck on Wednesday by holding the annual smoker. The upper hall was taxed by members and their friends, all anxious to help in the launching of the summer plans.

A vaudeville show which was greatly appreciated was given by profession al talent and after the exhaustion following hearty laughter the lower floor was thrown open and a light luncheon was served by A. J. Thompson.

The evening was in charge of the special entertainment committee consisting of George N. Newcomb. Harry E. Winslow and Edward W. Emery. The little question of the evening was "Who submitted the sailing orders and put the "New" in Newcomb, the "Win" in Winslow and the "Ward" in Edward, catching a "New Winward" breeze.

Commodore Harry S. Crane called the pleasure seekers to order and introduced Harry Winslow as the skipper of the evening. He said he had something good and proceeded to "make good."

He waited until Wesley Lockhart, a piano fiend rounded out a medley of popular choruses and then introduced Charles Ewart who sang "Mine" so effectively that he responded with "In Old Madrid." And, in keeping with the Spanish music the committee distributed smokes known to the smoker as La Rosa De Juncos.

During the applause that followed Ewart opened up with the chorus of "In my Harem." In different sections of the house the company took up the air and just about the time they were fighting to be heard Winslow came forward and introduced the War Monologist, Will Corby, who warred about "war and pieces" in a facetious German voice. After he had declared war and signed "pieces" in a thunderstorm of applause Harry pronounced with bated breath, the name of Dora Romeo.

Dora came on and went off only after she had torn yard after yard of rag time from the inards of a viblin while the house swayed in the rythm with her arrangements. Encouraged by the reception she left the platform and soon returned, dressed as a Spanish girl, with blood red stockings, very thin in texture and gave different movements of a well arranged score.

Dora was good was whispered about the hall and Ewart commenced another popular rag chorus and soon all had joined. When Harry Winslow stood for the next entertainer the audience had reached so jovial mood that they wanted to encore themselves so Dr. J. Frank O'Donnell was presented. "Doc" unloosened a bunch of stories on the audience after he told the delightful trickling down the path of a Faxon cocktail and concluded his chapter in an outburst of handclapping.

Then Agnes Champney came in response to her name, and after everyone "Knocked Wood" when she sang the chorus and they sang with her, she sang about "Her Personality." She left the platform and located Eddie Newcomb in the crowd and sang sweet nothing in Ed's ear which seemed to take the crowd for they all wanted some. She concluded with "I Love You" and was so liberally applauded that she was encored and did the last part all over again.

The "Stein Song" floated from the piano and Lockhart was only commencing his second strain when he found he was directing a choral society.

Joseph W. Hudson, a live representative of Providence, R. I. captured the house with several good points made in song and in voice and was pronounced a pretty smooth character comedian.

Signor Birgniti was announced and took a dignified stand before the audience, rolling up his sleeves and opening his coat, showing them he had nothing concealed about his person, but told them they needed their eyes examined. He followed out a new line of black art and rivaled Isaac Walton, the father of angling, by catching gold fish in mid air, not many feet above the heads of those occupying the front row. He also cut cards and shuffled them, and with the assistance of a boy from the house did various sleight of hand tricks. In order to do the next trick in Legerdemain he must have needed a Ledger reporter for he located one in the hall, passed him fifty cents, made him drink water after the money has dissolved in it, took the coin from the centre of an orange and pumped all the water out of the Ledger man.

He concluded his performance with abusing Ed Newcomb's hat taking out all kinds of articles from women's long heeled gloves to canned goods and drinking glasses, finishing with a mile of paper which he wanted Ed to take, but Ed didn't, so the Signor found a American flag in the middle and waved his thanks of the thunderous applause.

The entertainment completed all adjourned to the lower floor.

JUNK DISTRICT IS PROPOSED

Some Would Limit the Territory by Ordinance

Several of the applicants for licenses to collect junk, whose applications have not as yet been acted upon by the Committee on Licenses of the City Council, appeared before the Committee on Thursday evening to urge that their license be granted. One o the applicants apeared with counsel

There has been much complain from Quincy Point ward as to the way the junk collectors are spreading out and the committee have been urged to prevent their spreading any further, and that they be confined to a certain district. There is no ordinance at the present time defining what might be called a junk district, but it is probable that the outcome of the present agitation may result in the City Council establishing a district, within which junkies shall be located. That is so far as the Quincy Point district goes.

In South Quincy it is a different proposition. A larger part of the junk collectors in South Quincy are located on Water street between Quincy street and Brewer's corner. There are however two or three junk men located outside of this district in the vicinity of Intervale street. As far as known there has been no complaint from this district although most residents would be satisfied to see this class of business confined to one locality.

SQUANTUM YACHT CLUB

Dinner and Entertainment on the Opening Night

The opening night of the Squantum Yacht club was royally observed Thursday evening with a banquet, speeches and entertainment at its clubhouse off the Quincy Shore boulevard.

At 6.30 the officers, guests and members sat down to an excellent full course menu. Knives and forks were busily engaged for over an hour. Then cigars were lighted and speeches were enjoyed.

Among the guests of the evening who spoke were: Representative William J. Leslie; William Carlton, chairman regatta committee of the Corinthian Yacht club; Commodore W. L. Barnard of the Hingham Yacht club; Commodore Thompson Crane of the Town River Yacht club; Commodore Edward A. Bean of the Wollaston Yacht club; Secretary Charles G. Bird of the Winthrop Yacht club; President John J. Harland of the Interclub Yacht Racing Association; Vice President L. S. Coffin of the Interclub; Secretary T. H. Campbell of the Interclub; Treasurer Howard Gannett of the Interclub; Secretary John Marden of the Squantum Improvement Association.

Commodore E. F. Drew presided and following the speech-making a high class entertainment was put on by Ford & Co. Quigley's orchestra furnished music during the banquet.

PLEASING CONCERT.

A large and receptive audience completely filled the Park and Downs church, Thursday evening at the inaugural concert of the new pipe organ. The artists were E. Leslie Mehaffey, organist; Maurice Mathews of Boston, violinist; Mrs. Edith Cary Page of Quincy, soprano; and Arthur Francis Capen of Wollaston tenor. All the performers were most pleasing and were loudly encored on rendering each number.

A REWARD LONG DELAYED

Mayor Stone Seeking Authority to Pay in Restelli Case

(Special to the Ledger.)

State House, May 15.—Legislative authority for the city of Quincy to pay a reward to the finders of the body of Restelli, who suicided after committing murder in Quincy in 1910, was asked in a petition of Mayor Stone today. The petition was filed by Representative Michael T. Sullivan and was immediately refered to the committee on rules, which has to pass on the admittance of all petitions received after March 15.

The petition reads as follows:

Section 1. The city of Quincy is hereby authorized to pay the sum of $500 to James R. Qualey of Braintree, and Patrick A. Milford, of Quincy, in reward of their services in finding the body of Louis G. Restelli, in 1910, for whose apprehension said city of Quincy offered a reward in the sum named. Said sum is to be divided equally between said Qualey and Milford.

The committee on rules will give a hearing on the matter at an early date and there is no doubt but what it will be admitted for legislation.

Thursday afternoon the House committee on rules gave a hearing to Representative Sullivan and City Solicitor John W. McAnarney solicitor, and voted to allow the bill to come in. Today it will go before the Senate committee on rules. It is expected that they will concur and when presented to the House that it will have easy passage.

No one in Quincy really objects to a new bridge between Milton and Boston, on Granite avenue, but Quincy has not shown much diplomacy in taking the initiative, for it means a larger assessment. When the Street Railway Company wants double tracks on any street it does not petition the City Council to have the street widened, but waits for some one else to do that. In that way they escape a large payment on account of the cost. The Granite avenue bridge is clearly a Milton improvement and Milton and Boston should stand the whole cost. The bill proposes that Milton shall pay no more than Quincy, and that Norfolk county shall pay forty per cent. Quincy must also pay a large share of the county assessment.

Why should not the seat of Senator McDevitt be declared vacant? Perhaps the Senate is waiting for some move on the part of the voters of the First Norfolk district. If so, the movement should be made in Quincy where Mr. McDevitt resides. Perhaps the City Council should take the initiative and adopt resolutions, forwarding the same to the Senate. The Senate and the First Norfolk district have waited long enough for Mr. McDevitt to apologize, and the time limit has expired. There are many important questions yet before the Legislature and Quincy should be represented.

The Commissioner of Public Works does not tell us whether it was the installation of meter or the stoppage of leaks which caused less consumption of water in April. He says it was both. Were the leaks in house services, street mains or reservoirs? They must have been large one to reduce the consumption of water 13 gallons per capita per day. Perhaps the city sold less water to the shipyard and other large users. It is the Metropolitan assessments which affect the taxpayers and they are larger rather than smaller.

It seems a little now to attempt to secure a Fourth of July appropriation from the city. Even if it should be successful it would come late in May and possibly June, and there would not be time to make arrangements to good advantage. The most popular feature of the celebration is the fireworks, and if that was all that was attempted this year it is probable the money could be raised by subscription.

Owners of boats of the various kinds are busy getting ready for the season, many starting the season with a fresh coat of paint.

MAY BASKETS AT AUCTION

Mayor and Mrs. Stone at a Wollaston Party

A very successful May basket party and entertainment was held in Odd Fellows hall, Wollaston, Thursday evening by the American Benefit Society. The bidding on the baskets was spirited, Mayor Stone who was present with his wife and daughter, entering in and making the affair interesting. Samuel Hanson was auctioneer and after the baskets were sold all sat down to eat, the baskets contents being augumented by coffee, ice cream and other refreshments.

Speeches followed at which the local president W. G. Young, presided. The speakers were Mayor Stone, Supreme President William W. Towle of Brookline and Dr. M. Morey Pearson of Jamaica Plain, supreme medical director.

A pleasing program followed consisting of vocal solos by Miss Marguerite Louise Holbrook, piano solos by Miss Eldine Young, xylophone solos by Clifton Young and a piano duet by Misses Helen Croucher and Gertrude Lavery.

NOW SUB DEACON.

Thomas Wenceslaus Buckley of Bates avenue was advanced to a subdeacon at the ordination services held in St. John's Ecclesiastical Seminary on Thursday. Mr. Buckley is preparing for the priesthood. He was born in West Quincy and graduated from the Adams Academy, in 1905. He completed four years at Boston College and afterwards entered St. John's seminary. He is well known in this city.

TEAM DRIVERS' COUNCIL.

Quincy and Malden Teamsters' Unions are to affiliate with the Boston Joint Council of Team Drivers Unions the plan being to perfect the organization as a Greater Boston one for more efficient work and help. International Vice President Lawrence P. Grace of Providence will address the next meeting of the Boston Council. All the business agents were elected a special organizing committee to complete the absolute investigation of every line of the business in the district.

LETITIA BEEMAN.

Mrs. Letitia Beeman who died of plural pneumonia at the home of her daughter, Mrs. J. H. McClellan of Ellicottville, N. Y., spent several years of her life on Appleton street. Funeral services were held in Ellicottville, and burial was at Mt. Wollaston cemetery. She leaves two daughters, Mrs. John Appleby of St. John, N. B., and Mrs. J. H. McClellan of Ellicottville, N. Y., and one son, Herbert G. Beeman of Atlantic.

NOT CRIMINALLY NEGLIGENT.

Richard Williams chauffeur of Chief Litchfield's auto which struck Willard E. Nightingale on President's avenue, on March 27, while responding to a fire, has been cleared of all blame in connection with his death according to a report made by Judge Albert E. Avery who conducted an inquest.

The accident was witnessed by a large number who testified at the inquest. Chauffeur Williams was automatically relieved from duty in accordance with the regulations of the Highway Commission, pending their investigation. He was reinstated within a few days.

The finding of Judge Avery was that Chauffeur Williams was not criminally negligent and did in no way contribute to the death of Willard E. Nightingale.

According to Chief Litchfield who was in the car, and witnesses, they were coasting, preparatory to taking a sharp corner and that suddenly Nightingale appeared in the pathway of the machine. It was stopped within a distance of ten feet. Nightingale was taken to the hospital where he died.

ANNIVERSARY SALE.

The firm of Brown & Crowell are celebrating their tenth anniversary by presenting a complete line of groceries, provisions and dress goods, at popular prices, in their spacious store at Franklin and Water streets. The general stock which taxes the capacities of shelves and floor space invites the attention of home lovers who believe that the secret of happiness depends on the sustanence derived from high quality meats, fresh canned goods, stylish dress materials in the latest patterns and the necessities of life, marked within the reach of the wage earner.

GETTYSBURG REUNION.

At the regular meeting of Paul Revere Post 88 G. A. R. Thursday evening the visit to the reunion at Gettysburg in July was discussed at length. There are perhaps half a dozen members of post who are entitled to free transportation by the government but fully as many more who are planning to go.

At a recent meeting the legislative committee was instructed to interview the Mayor in regard to allowing the veterans who are employed by the city to go to the reunion without loss of pay. Owing to a new law however, which has just gone into effect, things are somewhat complicated and the Mayor can not readily grant vacations, or leaves of absence, to the men employed in the different departments without loss of pay.

As previously stated in the Daily Ledger under the new law all pay rolls of the city have to be sworn to by the department head in whose department the men are employed. That is if the Commissioner of Public Works puts in a pay roll this week for the men employed during the past week he must appear before the City Clerk and swear that the men named in the pay roll were actually employed as stated in the pay roll. This being the case it can readily be seen that if men in this department were granted a leave of absence for a week to attend the reunion the Commissioner could not very well swear that they were actually employed that week.

Mayor Stone informed the committee of the situation and told them that as far as he could see the only remedy lay with the City Council and that he would bring the matter to their attention.

SURPRISE PARTY.

A successful surprise party was tendered Harold Warmington, a well known South Quincy young man, in Union hall Thursday evening. Theodore Turner presented him with a signet ring. The attendance was very large, the majority being intimate friends of Mr. Warmington. Several selections were rendered by the Seneca quartette, consisting of Allen Doe Ernest Ciardi, William Crammond and Harold Warmington. Solos were also given by Roy Crammond. Dancing was enjoyed until midnight, music being furnished by Provost's orchestra. The committee in charge consisted of Theodore Turner, Walter Main, Ernest Ciardi, Miss Eva Archibald and Miss Esther McDonnell.

BASKET PARTY.

Scandia Lodge, Order of Vasa held a basket party following the regular meeting in Electa and Protection halls Thursday evening. Carl Barstin who acted as auctioneer was presented with a lodge emblem, given by Mrs Hilma O'Brien for membership increase. The presentation was made by Sven Halstrom. Dancing was enjoyed, music being furnished by Miss Dagma Nelson and Carl Barstin. Refreshments were served. The committee in charge consisted of Mrs. Hilma O'Brien, Miss Elfrida Carlson, Miss Hilma Johnson, Oscar Johnson, Carl Bonavier and Wolfred Anderson.

THAYER ACADEMY NOTES.

The speaker for Founder's day, June 7, will be Prof. Harry W. Tyler of the Massachusetts Institute of Technology, and for Seniors' day, June 21, Willard Reed of the Browne and Nichols School of Cambridge.

Through the courtesy of Rev. Joseph Kyte, and his son-in-law Editor George Willis Stose of Washington, D. C. the academy has received an "Index to the Strabigraphy of North America" with a large geologie map of North America, which will be mounted, and hung in one of the laboratories.

WOLLASTON VOTERS.

The City Clerk of Quincy will be at the real estate office of Arthur F. Raymond, Newport avenue, Wollaston, Saturday evening, May 17, at 8 o'clock, to receive changes of enrollment.

PROGRESSIVES ORGANIZE

Queen Quality

Graceful and Stylish.

The first thing you notice about a Queen Quality Shoe is its grace and style. You are apt to think it is a smaller size than it really is. That shows superiority of design.

You try it on and it has an unusual glove-like feeling—no stiffness, no rigidity.

That shows superiority of construction.

You wear the pair out of the store and you notice they feel as easy and flexible as the old shoes.

No breaking-in is required. That is due to the flexible soles.

All told, these things are indications of quality—indications which you can easily detect for yourself without being an expert.

Chicago Firm Wants to Learn of Quincy License Fees

After Quincy has voted no-license for 37 years, and established what the residents supposed to be a widely known record, a statistical firm in Chicago recently mailed letters to Quincy which stated that they had information covering the Quincy situation which placed the City of Presidents in the "wet" column. Furthermore they requested that data be forwarded containing among other things the amount of the license fee.

It is known that the person who received the letter lost no time in answering and Quincy will not appear in the "wet" column of a national report.

BRIEFS

Mr. and Mrs. Howard Cole of Roxbury are moving this week into the new house at 14 Marion street built by N. G. Nickerson. Mr. Cole makes foreign trips for Rice & Huntchins of Boston.

It was proposed at a meeting of John Adams Aerie, Fraternal Order of Eagles, held Wednesday evening to have the aerie enter a float in the parade preceding their June 9th field day at Boston. A committee, headed by Harry Marr, has the matter under consideration.

MINSTREL SHOW ARTISTS

Entertained at K. of C. Reception and Dance

A graceful act of courtesy greatly appreciated by the recipients and a fine time for all concerned was the reception and dance tendered by Braintree Council, No. 1462 Knights of Columbus, South Braintree to the participants in their recent minstrel show The affair was in the nature of an inl formal reception together with an entertainment and dance and was held in K. of C. hall, Thursday evening. There were about 65 present all of whom enjoyed themselves to the utmost.

There were vocal solos by Miss Lillian Devine, Miss Catherine Gogan, Miss Minnie Starr, Henry Barnes, Edward P. Cuffe and Frank Kelliher. These numbers were all finely rendered and were accorded enthusiastic applause. George Abel presided at the piano for the dancing and as accompanist and Mrs. C. A. Sullivan also acted in a like capacity during a portion of the evening. A rousing feature was the opening chorus of the minstrel show by the entire company. A most excellent buffet lunch of salads, ices, rolls, coffee, etc., and was served by Burleigh and Martin of Boston.

The various numbers on the program were interspersed with general dancing and the result was a good old fashioned social time. The monologue by Martin King was a "corker" and good enough for the professional stage. Piano solos by Mrs. C. A. Sullivan rounded out an exceptionally pleasing program.

The affair was in charge of the regular minstrel show committee, consisting of the following gentlemen: Edward P. Cuffe, Joseph T. Shay, James J. O'Keefe, Thomas F. Croke, Walter Fouchee, Edward V. Heffernan Joseph F. Mohan, Jonh W. Mulcahy, W. F. Bourbeau, J. Frank Megley, W. P. Casey, John Fay, O. A. Cote, James J. Meara, John M. O'Connell and John H. Sullivan.

Norfolk, ss. Probate Court.

To the heirs-at-law, next-of-kin, creditors and all other persons interested in the estate of Frank M. Coupal late of Quincy in said County, deceased, intestate:

Whereas, a petition has been presented to said Court to grant a letter of administration on the estate of said deceased, to Josephine L. Coupal of said Quincy without giving a surety on her bond. You are hereby cited to appear at a Probate Court to be held at Brookline in said County of Norfolk, on the twenty-eighth day of May A. D. 1913, at ten o'clock in the forenoon, to show cause, if any you have, why the same should not be granted. And the petitioner is hereby directed to give public notice thereof by publishing this citation once in each week, for three successive weeks, in the Quincy Daily Ledger a newspaper published in said Quincy the last publication to be one day at least before said Court.

Witness, James H. Flint, Esquire, Judge of said Court, this fifteenth day of May A. D. 1913

FOUR STRAIGHT FOR WILLARD

Adams Wins First Game and Wollaston Moves Up

Four straight for the Willard. The plucky Coddington lads, however, made a desperate effort on Thursday to win, carrying the game to three extra innings. Baizil Stack, who is ranked among the best pitchers in either league, struck out fourteen of his opponents, and did not allow a single base on balls, but, as in previous games, his team mates were unable to connect with the sphere, while the West Quincy boys made seven hits with a total of nine.

To Walter Egan, the peerless slab artist of quarrytown, belongs the credit for Coddington's defeat for his work would put the record of Johnson or "Smokey Joe" in the shade, only two of the thirty-three men who faced him being able to get even a weak single off his delivery, besides he batted the heaviest of any one on either team, scoring two of the three runs.

The fielding of Rheinhalter, Franzie, Callahan, and Fostello was especially good, and Egan, Koegler and Wallace carried off the batting honors. If Willard wins from Lincoln next Tuesday, they will be the champions of the "National League" and will have to play the "world series" with the winners of the "American League."

DEGREE CONFERRED.

The degree of doctor of pharmacy was conferred on Thomas Willard Burke of Willard street, Wednesday, at the commencement exercises of the Massachusetts College of Pharmacy in Horticultural hall, Boston. Mr. Burke is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas F. Burke and the nephew of Tobias H. Burke of the Quincy post office. He is a graduate of Quincy High school, class of 1906 and was a state inspector in the extermination of moths for three years. He is an active member in the Copeland club.

There is more Catarrh in this section of the country than all other diseases put together, and until the last few years was supposed to be incurable. For a great many years doctors pronounced it a local disease and prescribed local remedies, and by constantly failing to cure local treatment, pronounced it incurable. Science has proven catarrh to be a constitutional disease and therefore requires constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, Ohio, is the only constitutional cure on the market. It is taken internally in doses from 10 drops to a teaspoonful. It acts directly on the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. They offer one hundred dollars for any case it fails to cure. Send for circulars and testimonials.

PLAYGROUND COMMITTEE

Will Maintain Supervised Playground at Coddington

The annual meeting of the Playground Committee of One Hundred was held Thursday evening at the rooms of the Quincy Y. M. C. A. The attendance was considerably smaller than anticipated and but little more was done other than to organize by the election of Delcevare King as chairman and A. F. LaRose as secretary.

It was decided to continue this year the playground in the Coddington school yard, as for the past year, from about the first of July until September. Arrangements were made to secure the necessary permission from the School Committee to use the school yard, as in other years.

BRIEFS

A good rain today and it was needed.

It is a little queer, Supt. Shea says, that every time he oils the streets it rains. Thursday he had the oiling machine at work all day oiling and today it is raining.

Peter J. Williams the contractor is moving the Quincy Mutual Fire Insurance building from the corner of Washington and Coddington streets to its new location near the Court House.

SKIDOO WAS WITH THEM

Quincy Board of Trade Team Defeated at Everett

A party of 23, said by some to be a skidoo number, were in the party of the Quincy Board of Trade which paid a visit to Everett on Thursday evening for a return game of bowling. The Quincy boys were confident of winning for they had put in some hard practice but the skiddoo number proved a hoodoo and they were vanquished by the Everett boys, the total score being 1429 for Everett and 1391 for Quincy.

The Quincy boys left the rooms of the board a few minutes after seven in four seven-passenger automobiles. The run to Everett was made without incident and soon after their arrival the team was stripped down for business while the remainder of the party stood hard by to root.

In the Quincy team were Richards, Poehler, Whiting, Olan and Hartwell, while the rooters included President Hamilton, A. L. Whitman the live wire of the Board, ex-Representative Walter E. Piper and others. They were all in the best of voice and did some good coaching but all to no avail. The hoodoo was on and that settled it.

After the game an adjournment was made to the rooms of the Everett Board of Trade where the party sat down to a banquet that did their hearts good.

The banquet over and the ginger ale bottles emptied speaking was in order. President Hamilton spoke for the Quincy Board of Trade. He outlined what the board was trying to do for the city and spoke of the campaign which is now on for members.

Mr. Poehler also spoke for the bowling team. He promised that he would not be satisfied with the game that had just been bowled, but that he would put his team through a course of sprouts, and that when Everett again came to Quincy they would show them something in the way of bowling that would make their eyes stick out.

Remarks were also made by the President o fthe Everett Board of Trade, the Chief of Police and Capt. O'Brien of the bowling team. Mr. O'Brien said that the statement of Capt. Poehler of the Quincy bowlers did not scare him one bit and that he felt confident that when the two teams met again he could repeat the trick.

It was after midnight when the automobiles were started for home and the trip was made without any punctures or blowouts, the party arriving in City Square as the clock on the First church struck the hour of 1.

Hundreds of Quincy Women Are Getting Less Food Value for Their Money Than They Have a Right To.

Perhaps it's worth more than you realize to have such a market as this where all chance of poor quality is eliminated—where you get every cents worth that you pay for, knowing that whatever you receive you get full value for every penny it costs. That's the kind of a store this is, and the kind of a store it always will be.

Every dollar you spend here brings you much bigger returns for your money than you can get anywhere else, we honestly believe. You are sure of getting absolute satisfaction in every particular. No better groceries, meats, fruits or vegetables can be bought in any other store at any price. And no other store in Quincy offers such a wide scope of choice as does the Adams Market.

What Barnum said was wrong—that saying of his that the public loved to be humbugged was circus talk in old day when the circuses sometimes folded their tents and left the town of a dark night. Even Barnum's Cardiff giant was as good as many of today's special sales. But Barnum had brains enough not even to keep that before the public very long.

For this store and its trustful patrons no goods can be too honestly good, or too correctly labeled, or too fairly priced. The people who are bent on trading here are assured that they shall have the worth of their money and the best and largest assortment to select from.

NEW BRIDGE NEEDED.

The proposed Granite avenue bridge between Milton and Boston has several supporters:

John Q. A. Field, a former road commissioner and a person well acquainted with the needs of all districts this side of Boston, stated this morning that a new bridge was needed in place of the rickety structure which has been in use for some time. According to Mr. Field the uses to which the bridge is put are varied.

When asked what he thought about possible railway extension, connecting East Milton with Boston through a territory sparsely inhabited and its effect on the large vacant areage in West Quincy he said: "Build the bridge first, and then we can come to that later."

LIFE AFTER DEATH.

Rev. John Whitehead, M. A. Th. B. of Cambridge will give his third lecture on Proofs of Life After Death Sunday afternoon, Hancock hall, City Square, at 3.30 o'clock. Mr. Whitehead will take up the question of the nature of the psychical phenomena as recorded in the Bible. He will draw the parallel between the different kinds of phenomena as recorded in the Bible, and will compare them with corresponding phenomena investigated by psychical research. He will show that there is a most wonderful agreement; and that the facts thereby established are basic proofs of immortality. He will also give Swedenborg's rational explanations of these phenomena. In these lectures Mr. Whitehead is proving rationally that the belief in the life after death rests on a most solid scientific basis. The lectures are free. The public is cordially invited.

Waddel Fracis Francis was arraigned for taking part in a game on the Lord's Day at Quincy. Case continued until next Monday.

Alex Meyer was arraigned for assaul on Reuben Grossman. Case placed on file on payment of $10 costs.

The case of Francis John for violation of the Lord's Day act at Quincy was called and he was defaulted.

Pietro Buisutto was arraigned for the larceny of a bicycle at Milton. Case placed on file on payment of $10 costs.

The continued case of Angelo Carnoni for assault with intent to murder Agostino Leone at Weymouth was heard. After hearing a large number of witnesses the complaint was changed to assault with a dangerous weapon and Carnoni was held in $1,000 for the grand jury.

☞The easy fitting patent self-adjusting Ivy sweat band, doing away with that uncomfortable stiff feeling of former years is a new idea found in this season's straw hat of Lamson & Hubbard make. All first quality straw hats bear this trade mark, are on sale at local dealers, where one receives the same careful attention and satisfaction that would accrue from a personal call at Boston stores. The finest in straw obtainable, the fit, the bright lustre, finish, shape and workmanship all tend to make the Lamson & Hubbard straws supreme in every way. The heat of summer has less terror for the man who is equipped with a well selected straw hat. Not only is such a hat most comfortable to the wearer, but it gives an appearance of coolness and neatness. It is that effect as well as the fine wearing qualities that makes the Lamson & Hubbard hats so desirable for fine head wear."

BARRE ESTABLISHES DOCK FOR SHIPPING

Quincy Granite Manufacturer Says Quincy's Eyes Are Closed to Opportunity

Demand for Public Dock and Belt Line Railroad

Some of our granite manufacturers were shocked this week to read that Barre, Vt., had established a dock and were shipping granite by water. The following is from the May issue of "Stone:"

According to a Barre paper "Two ships' cargoes of paving blocks have been recently shipped over the Central Vermont lines from Barre to New London, Conn., to supply a market which has been created for the product in New Jersey. Figures furnished at the Central Vermont freight offices indicate that the paving block business is taking on a new lease of life in the Barre granite belt. There are other signs, too, which point to increased activity in the production of granite paving stone for purchasers out of the state. With two cargoes already unloaded at the Central Vermont docks in New London and another cargo partially loaded and routed for the Connecticut seaport, there are many who are predicting that the present season will see the largest output of paving blocks since the granite quarries were developed.

"Each cargo contains over 1,000,000 pounds of granite. Freight cars loaded with the blocks are lined up on a siding until enough have been secured to insure a shipload. Then the cars are made up into a train and despatched to New London. There, freight steamers controlled by the Grand system transport the blocks to New Jersey. Thus far a large part of the output has been sold to Jersey City contractors. There are from fourteen to eighteen carloads for every ship's cargo."

QUINCY SHOULD AWAKE.

A granite manufacturer of Quincy comments as follows on the situation:

As set forth in this article, manufacturers are freighting these paving blocks from Barre some 300 miles by rail to New London, Conn., where they are transferred to vessels, thence by water to destination.

Right here in Quincy where we have the water front at our disposal, we show the utmost indifference and neglect and allow matters to drift along in the same old way, remaining absolutely at the mercy of the railroad company for our transportation.

How long do you suppose Barre would remain inactive, if she had these possibilities of water transportation at her command? She would have taken advantage of them years ago and appropriated every natural advantage which she could command and would have been enjoying the fruits of her enterprise.

Consider what possibilities would be open for Quincy granite if we had this water outlet, which a public dock would give us.

Not alone would we be materially benefited in rates on present business, but new lines of activity connected with our granite industry could be developed and fostered.

The paving blocks could be delivered at greatly reduced rates if we had water freight, and would enable us to meet competition, which is now impossible.

All around us at the present time are large enterprises calling for great quantities of waste granite or grout, such as the Cape Cod canal, Hyannis breakwater, and developments contemplated by the Port Directors of Boston, and these matters will keep coming up with more or less frequency as time goes on.

Then again take the addition to the Boston Custom House which is now being cut in Quincy, and all this large amount of cut stone will have to be carted to Boston over the road by team, or put on the cars, entailing heavy expense and freight charges.

With our public dock and belt line railroad connecting the quarries and manufacturing plants, we would be in position to get after much of this outside business of paving and grout, as well as to receive much reduced rates on the finished work and rough stock which is now shipped out of town.

This simply goes to point out the fact that our public dock question should be pressed to a conclusion and consummation at as early a date as possible, for opportunities are slipping by one after another because of our unpreparedness.

While it is very desirable to attract new business to our city, would it not be the part of wisdom and foresight to make some provision for the development and expansion of industries already established within our borders? Thus would we be showing some positive, definite argument for new comers to locate here.

LADIES' NIGHT.

An open house and ladies night, complimentary to those who took part in the minstrel show of April 18 was tendered by St. Mary's C. T. A. & M. R. Society in their hall last evening. Over 100 attended and enjoyed bowling, pool, billiards, dancing and refreshments.

During the evening Miss Annie Sullivan introduced "Last night was the end of the world" and William McDonnell "Be sure he's Irish." James Donovan sang that "Old girl of Mine" and "A little bunch of Shamrocks," and Miss Annie Morrisette rendered "Mine." Miss Yvonne Bouchard sang "On the trail of the lonesome pine."

The jollification continued until midnight, music for dancing being by Joyce's orchestra.

HIGH SCHOOL DRAMATICS

Presentation of "Our Wives" Makes a Great Hit

The High school seniors had a full house last evening for their annual dramatics and scored a great success. "Our Wives" was the title of the comedy presented and it was replete with amusing incidents and good acting.

In the cast were:

Roswell Chandler, a retired merchant — Leon Randall
Walter Blair, his son-in-law — Edwin Brown
Oscar Siebel, a composer — Millard Sumner
Lloyd Deveaux, a chronic invalid — Richard Larkin
John Stanton, a detective — Ralph Prout
Mallory, a reporter — William Thompson
Ford, an expressman — Hayden Crocker
Gilda Deveaux, wife of Deveaux — Mabel Coughlan
Mrs. Chandler, wife of Roswell — Julia Holteen
Beattie Blair, wife of Walter — Millicent Chapman
Julia, a French maid — Dorothy Lowe

The make-up of those in the cast was excellent, and provoked laughter upon first appearance. Messrs. Chandler and Blair thought they would put an opera composed by Siebel on the stage and Gilda Deveaux was engaged as the prima donna against the wishes of her husband. Their wives were to be kept in ignorance of the plans until successful, but success did not come. and they were almost ruined financially, and contemplated suicide. Mrs. Chandler and Mrs. Blair in the meantime had a detective watch their husbands, and they followed to Atlantic City and New York. Upon report of suicide they went into mourning. Stanton, a detective figured prominently in the play; he sold the opera to Mr. Deveaux just in time to save Chandler and Blair from suicide. and reconciliation followed between husbands and wives.

Two large trunks played an important part in the production. Act one opened with Julia engaged packing the trunks for Mrs. Deveaux. Later they were the hiding place of Messrs. Chandler and Blair. Just then the expressmen came and after strapping the trunks tipped them bottom up and amid roars of laughter took them away. In act two the trunks arrived in New York, the men faint and bruised. Later Julia and the composer hid in the trunk and still later the husbands. There were a great many amusing incidents which the audience thoroughly enjoyed.

The music of the evening was by the High school orchestra under the direction of Mrs. S. Maud Amsden, and made the program complete. It included violins, cornet, drums and piano the artists being Miss Beatrice Costello, Miss Edith Abbott, William Roche, Harry Safford, Lawrence Ferguson and Elton Chase.

The comedy was presented under the direction of Miss Mary G. Brown, one of the teachers. The chairman of the committee of arrangements was Miss Hortense Andrews; business manager, Raymond C. Cassidy; stage manager, Alvah D. Innis; assistant stage manager, Elton F. Chase; property mistress, Priscilla Robinson; chief usher, Hortense Andrews; costumes and wigs, Vesta Newcomb.

Delicious home-made candy was sold previous to the play by Misses Mary Broughton, Margaret Magee, Gladys Du Plessis and Dorothy Stevens and netted about $20.

The ushers were: Misses Hortense Andrews, Priscilla Robinson, Vesta Newcomb, Alice Hennigar, Thelma Holt, Elsie Burrell, Mary Morrison, Alice Coughlan, Vivian Cowling, Mildred Sayward, Edna Sanborn, Molly Avery, Marie Bruton and May Kennedy.

GRAND ORGAN RECITAL

Rich Musical Treat at First Presbyterian Church

One of the most delightful organ recitals heard in a long time was given last evening at the First Presbyterian church on Water street where a fine new Estey organ has recently been installed through the efforts of the members of the parish and Andrew Carnegie.

The artists to contribute were Claude E. Saunier, organist of the First Universalist church at Cambridge and recital organist of the Estey Organ Company. Miss Mary Ogilvie of Boston, soprano and W. L. Cockburn, baritone.

Mr. Saunier is certainly a master of the organ and the beautiful instrument was never heard to better advantage than at this recital. Mr. Saunier was down for four numbers, but as every number was freely encored he gave twice that number. His opening number was Wagner's march from Tannhauser and for an encore he played a plaintiff melody in a minor key which brought out some of the finer tones of the instrument.

Miss Ogilvie, who has a beautiful soprano voice, for her opening number ave "With verdue clad" from Haydens Creation and for an encore gave a Scotch air. Miss Ogilvie's voice is one of wide range her high notes being clear, pure and very sweet. She has frequently been heard in Quincy under the auspices of Scottish organizations. and she was accorded a warm welcome. Her other numbers were two Scotch songs "Within a mile o'Edinboro Toun" and "Ye banks and braes o'Bonnie Doon" and for her encores she also sang Scotch airs.

Mr. Cockburn posses a wonderfully strong baritone voice, which more than filled the large edifice. He is recently from London. England and is said to e the greatest Scottish baritone singer in America today. His opening number was "The Holy City" singing a plaintiff Scotch air for an encore. It was not until his second number however that his powerful voice was heard to the best advantage. In this number he gave Handel's recitative and air "Arm, Arm, ye Brave" while for his encore he gave "Where can my bonnie lassie be."

Mr. Cockburn and Miss Ogilvie also appeared in a duet rendering Hayden's "Graceful consort" from the Creation.

The other numbers of Mr. Saunier aside from those noted above were an Andantino, an Intermezzo, Spring Song Humoreske and closing with an allegro vivace from the overture of "William Tell."

Almost in every case however for his encores he played some familiar Scotch air.

It was a recital well worth hearing and was thoroughly enjoyed by the appreciative and sympathetic audience.

WHIST AT SQUANTUM.

Mr. and Mrs. James Foster of Park avenue opened their house Wednesday evening to the Squantum Women's club for a whist party which was held to raise money for the clubhouse fund. Pretty souveniers were awarded to those having high scores. Miss Genevive Cliff won first ladies' and Mrs. George Hersey second. Of the men William A. Reed carried away the first and Herbert Smith, second.

Mr. and Mrs. Foster proved themselves delightful host and hostess. They were assisted by their daughter, Miss Lillian Foster.

Among those present were: Mr. and Mrs. J. R. Nelson, Mr. and Mrs. Hiram Morse, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Anderson, Miss Phyllis Bostwick, Miss Genevive Cliff, Perley Bostwick, Mrs. Edward Eagar, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Bostwick Mrs. Mark Redmond, Mrs. F. A. Morton, Miss Margerite Allen, James Longhan, Miss Mildred Hersey, Edward Carlson, Mr. and Mrs. William Reed, Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Smith, Mrs. S. H. Adams, Mrs. George Hersey, Miss Ann Allen, Mrs. J, F. Hogan.

COMPANY TO CORPORATION

Change of Name at Shipyard Upon Reorganization

A certificate of incorporation was issued yesterday from the office of the Massachusetts commissioner of corporations to the reorganized Fore River Shipbuilding Company which has been purchased by the Bethlehem Steel Company and will hereafter be known as the "Fore River Shipbuilding Corporation."

At a meeting held Thursday the new corporation was organized with a capitalization of $1,000,000 consisting of 10,000 shares of stock at $100. The directors are: President, Francis T. Bowles; vice-president, John F. Hanly; treasurer, Norman J. MacGaffin; clerk and secretary, Charles E. Hathaway; assistant secretaries, Lawrence A. Rankin. George R. Williams and Frederick A. Foresman.

It will be noticed that there is almost a complete change in the board of directors and that men who have been with the company for some time are on the new board. The stock will be owned by the Bethlehem Steel Co.

In order to provide working capital the new corporation will issue $750,000 twenty year five per cent mortgage bonds.

CHILD KILLED SOUTH QUINCY

Tsidoro Costo of Liberty Street the Victim

Tsidoro Costo, the five year old son of Mr. and Mrs. Liberato Costo of 150 Liberty street died this noon in the arms of his father at his home 15 minutes after he had been injured by the grain team of F. H. Crane & Sons driven by Frederick Vanner.

An element of mystery surrounds the accident. no witnesses being located. Up to the time of going to press Vanner had not returned to the Crane barn since noon time and was not at his home.

The boy was playing on the street opposite the house. The first known of the accident was when the little daughter of Mrs. Marie Bertini of 151 Liberty street told her little "Dorino" had been hurt. Mrs. Bertini ran to the street, saw him leaning on her fence picked him up and carried him home.

With the coming of Spring the insect pests are again in evidence. There are the old stand-bys such as the gypsy and brown-tail moths, elm beetles and also bugs galore, but this season the tent caterpillars seem to have multiplied amazingly and though numerous enough in other years they are with us now in millions and the woods and underbrush are white with their nests so that the task of exterminating them is almost hopeless. The common method of cutting down the bushes and burning them seems to have little effect beyond that of tiring out those engaged in the work and about the only way to fight them successfully is by the use of the sprayer. This means will keep the immediate premises clear and give the fruit trees and shrubs a chance.

When the Daily Ledger is crowded with advertisements as it was yesterday and is today it is impossible to present the news as the editor wishes. It is neccessary to abridge and even omit news that is in type. Please be kind in criticism therefore and read the "Ads." They will be found of interest and may save you a dollar in trading. If the present demand for space continues the Daily Ledger will become an eight-page paper, and twelve or sixteen if necesssary.

Congratulations to the Quincy men at the Fore River shipyard who are now on the board of directors of the new "Fore River Shipbuilding Corporation." May the reorganized company be successful, and continue to give employment to a large force of men. With a backing like the Bethlehem Steel Company its future should be assured and Quincy will be the gainer.

The Massachusetts House shows remarkable unanimity on the Washburn public service commission bill which was passed 217 to 13. The bill increases the board of railroad commissioners from three to five, changes their name to public service commission and enlarges their powers. May it solve some of the transportation problems.

The Revere tax scandal is something new in the fraud line, and more sensational disclosures are expected. At best taxpayers are heavily assessed to maintain city state and nation, but these extras because of graft and fraud are the last straws.

The National Senate shows the same determination to rush the tariff bill through as did the House. It is unusual to pass such important legislation without a hearing but the Senate decided 41 to 36 against hearings.

QUARRYMAN INJURED

Thrown into the Blue Hill Quarry by Tag Rope

Evert Holmi, aged 21 years, of 11 Prospect Hill street, a quarryman employed at the Blue Hill quarry, was seriously if not fatally injured this morning when his feet became entangled in what is known as the tag rope, and he was drawn over the embankment and fell fully 25 feet to the bottom of the quarry.

A large block of granite was being hoisted from the quarry, and attached to it was the tag rope, with which Holmi was guiding the block. The rope became entangled in his feet, and before he could recover himself, he was pulled over the edge of the quarry and fell a distance of fully 25 feet landing on the ragged rocks below.

Willing hands were soon at his side and he was brought out o the quarry and was attended by Dr. John T. Reynolds, who found that he had sustained a facture of several ribs, and in addition was probably injured internally. The police ambulance was called and he was removed to the City Hospital.

MRS. JAMES E. MYERS.

The many friends of Mrs. James E. Myers of Cleveland avenue were shocked when notified of death which occured Thursday morning about one o'clock. She went to Boston Tuesday returning in the afternoon and was taken sick at supper time. Dr. Sargent of Quincy was called but in spite of his skill she passed away after an illness of thirty-one hours. Acute kidney trouble was the immediate cause of her death. Mr. and Mrs. Myers and two sons Harold C. and James E. Myers, Jr., who lived on Franklin street, Penns hill, Quincy nearly twenty years, came to Braintree four years ago, having bought of Nathan L. Wood, a ten acre farm on Cleveland avenue. They located in a good neighborhood and made good neighbors. Mrs. Myers was devoted to her family, her home and the church. In Quincy she was active in Bethany church and in Braintree attended the First Congregational church. She was a daughter of the late Thomas Carter of Quincy Point and a sister of Mrs. Leon H. Austin, wife of a former pastor of the Washington Street Congregational church. Mr. Myers is manager of the wholesale paper house Hallett Brothers Co., 60 India street, Boston.

FAREWELL PARTY.

The Scottish and English residents of Quincy Point united in tendering Mrs. Bessie May a farewell party in Electa Hall Friday evening. She is preparing to leave for Scotland for the benefit of her health.

A mesh bag, a remembrance of her friends, was presented by Peter Hynes. Mrs. May was somewhat embarrassed when accepting the token of friendship but managed to voice her sentiments.

A chicken supper, with all the fixin's was served and tonics and ice creams was generously distributed. During the evening songs were rendered by Mrs. Hugh Anderson Miss May McKimmock, Adams Portes and Duncan McKimmock. Music was furnished by Donald McLaughlin and James Murray.

The committee in charge of the party was Mrs. Nellie Nugent, Mrs. Jennie Kellie, Mrs. Alexander Greer, Mrs. Bridget McNamee and Mrs. Robert Carruthers.

WHARTON—MITCHELL.

A quiet home wedding was solemnized at Milton this noon when Francis E. Wharton, paying teller at the Granite Trust Co., was united in marriage to Mary Louise Mitchell, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. Frank Neill of Milton. The wedding was a quiet affair and was witnessed only by a few intimate friends and relatives of the bride and groom.

Mr. Arthur Williams Neill, a brother of the bride, was the best man, and Miss Edith Margaret Neill, a sister of the bride, was the maid of honor, while Miss Eleanor Barbara Mitchell was the flower girl.

The ceremony was performed by Rev A. M. Thompson of Quincy and the bride was given in marriage by her father.

An informal reception followed the ceremony after which Mr. and Mrs. Wharton left for a wedding trip which will include Niagara Falls and points in Michigan. Upon their return they will reside at 115 Merrymount road, where they will be at home after June 15.

Birds are arriving from the South, as the following were seen on Presidents hill this morning: Rose breasted grosbeak, Baltimore oriole, myrtle warbler, purple finch, black throated blue warbler, black and white warbler, humming bird, cuckoo and scarlet Tanager the first one ever seen on the hill.

MILTON

The Men's Club of East Milton will hold its final meeting of the season Wednesday evening in the vestry of the East Congregational church. Rev. Herbert W. Stebbins, chaplain of the Charlestown State Prison, will address the club on Prison Reform. Refreshments will be served. The club has made a substantial gain in membership and is in a prosperous condition.

The Parker's Round Table Club held a ladies night Wednesday evening at the home of Austin W. Greene, 32 Belcher circle. The club consists of principals of Quincy grammar schools. It was the first time since its organization that each master was accompanied by his wife, since on former occasions severals of the members were unmarried. An entertainment was given consisting of piano selections by Miss Rena Bizzozero, solos by Albert L. Hayden, and readings by Miss Lois Hardy, accompanied on the piano by Mrs. Charles Sampson.

The annual May festival of the Neighborhood Club of the East Congregational church was held in the church and vestry. The attendance was large. The vestry was decorated with streamers of bunting and flags and fancy tables were set around the sides.

Red Riding Hood was given by the following cast: Marjorie Hollidge as Red Riding Hood; Frances Gosselin as her mother; Fred Turner as her father; Sherman Ellsworth as the wolf and the following fairies: Catherine Ellsworth, Rosamond Babcock, Dorothy Knox, Catherine Ingersol, Delores Smith, Frances McGuire, Marion Swift, Edith Olsen, Pearl Hathaway and Olive Robertson.

The play was under the supervision of Miss Elizabeth Hill and Mrs. C. A. Rowe. During the performance Louis Gosselin and Marion Hathaway gave several piano solos.

The tables were in charge of the following: Cake—Mrs. Edwin Smith; bread—Mrs. W. D. Parsons; candy—Mrs. George N. Robertson; apron—Mrs. McVicar; decorations—Mrs. S. W. Kirkland.

Mr. and Mrs. Albert Hoxie, Granite place, are receiving the congratulations of their friends on the birth of a daughter on Thursday. Mother and child are doing well.

Jesse B. Baxter was the delegate of the East Congregational church to the ordination ceremonies of their pastor, Rev. Edward W. Boynton at Brooklyn, N. Y., Wednesday. The services were held in the church presided over by his father, Rev. Nemiah Boynton and his brother, Rev. Morrison R. Boynton was also ordained.

Miss Hester Cunningham, East Milton, is giving information relative to the scholarships offered by the Milton Woman's Club to young women going to college.

The Social Realm

A great deal of interest is being shown in the fete to be given on the lawn at the home of Mrs. Henry M. Faxon, on June seventh. The legend of Proserpina is to be presented in dancing, and nearly fifty Quincy girls will take part. Proserpina, according to the myth, while out gathering flowers with her maidens, wanders too far and is siezed and carried off by Pluto, the king of the underworld. Ceres, the mother of Proserpina, sorrowing for her lost child, searches far and wide but is unable to find her. At last, learning through the goddess of the fountain that Proserpina has been seen wandering in Tartarus, Ceres prays the gods to send Proserpina back. In answer to her prayer the gods agree to allow Proserpina to spend half of each year with her mother, and Mercury is sent to conduct her back to earth. At Proserpina's return, Spring once more appears and there is great rejoicing on the earth. The proceeds of the fete are to be added to the fund already started for the support of recreation rooms for Quincy girls.

AN APPEAL.

Just at this time of the year there are many children at the Day Nursery their mothers leaving them there while they go out to work. The Nursery is poorly equipped with things to amuse the children. There is a sandbox but no sand. Will some kind friend donate a barrel or so of sand? There is nothing that gives more real enjoyment or keeps children busier and happier than a sand pile and a few large spoons, little shovels and tin pails. If you doubt it send in a contribution to the Nursery and then go up and see how the experiment works out.

MOTHERS, PARENTS, TEACHERS.

The seventeenth annual meeting of the National Congress of Mothers and Parent-Teachers Associations opened at the Copley Plaza, Boston, Thursday evening and will continue through Wednesday, May 21.

Forty Years Building a Great Factory

Rambler Motor Cars

IN a little one-room shop on South Water Street, Chicago, before the big Chicago fire of 1871, Thomas B. Jeffery, with two helpers, a man and a boy, laid the foundation for the great organization behind the Cross Country car.

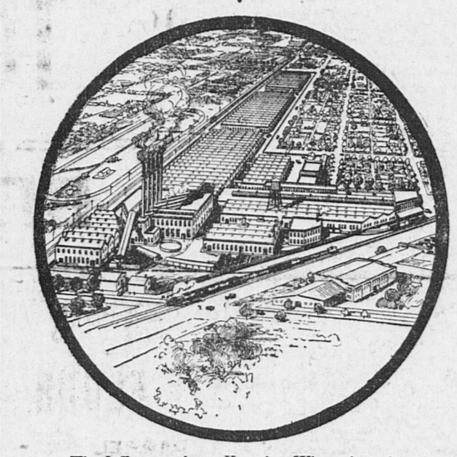
In forty years from this modest beginning, twenty-one of which were devoted to building up the bicycle industry, this organization has grown, until today five million dollars are invested in the Jeffery factory equipment alone, and every dollar's worth of it is paid for.

EVERY intelligent man and woman in America surely recalls the fact that the Rambler bicycle was the most popular bicycle of its type during the days of bicycle progress.

Fifteen employes of this company have been in the organization for twenty years and over; fifteen from fifteen to twenty years; twenty-one from ten to fifteen years, and three hundred and thirty-three from one to five years.

THE factory ground area today is one hundred and four acres and the floor area twenty-five acres.

Ask your banker what the name of Jeffery stands for in the motor car industry and consider well before you choose a car the standing and experience of the maker.



The Jeffery works at Kenosha, Wisconsin, where 96 per cent of all Cross Country parts are made.

A beautiful four-color reproduction of the Cross Country, from an oil painting by R. Philip Brainard, is ready for mailing. See the Cross Country by all means, at any Jeffery branch or dealer's display room, but send for the picture anyway.

SERIOUS FALL.

John J. Shaughnessey, 100 Revere road, is at the Haymarket Square Relief Hospital, Boston, in an unconscious condition following a 15 foot fall down a flight of stairs at 128 Merrimac street, Boston, Friday afternoon. He is thought to have sustained internal head injuries. He regained consciousness for a short time only. He is employed as a bookkeeper for the Brine Transportation Co., and was superintending a moving job when the accident occured. Witnesses say that when mounting the stairs he appeared to be unsteady and when he reached the landing toppled backward.

Mrs. Shaughnessey was attending the matinee at the Kincaide Theatre when a telephone message informed her of the plight of her husband. She left immediately for the hospital. Shaughnessey is well known in Quincy, having lived here for some time.

ST. MARGARET'S DANCE.

The members of St. Margarets Guild of Christ church held a dancing party Friday evening in the new Colonial hall which was attended by a number sufficient to make the affair most successful. Dancing was enjoyed until midnight, music being by Wilson's orchestra. Potted plants and ferns decorated the hall and refreshments were served.

The matrons were Mrs. Richard E. Armstrong, Mrs. Walter E. Burke, Mrs. Laura Pattee and Mrs. Theodore Hardwick.

The committee included the Misses Florence B. Pratt, Cora Barnicoat, Jennie Boutilier, Marion Bolster, Olive Barnicoat, Isabelle Walker and Miss Ethel Schools.

The feature of the evening was the distribution of basket and pansy favors by Rev. and Mrs. R. E. Armstrong.

FORE RIVER VS. UNITED SHOE

The deciding game in the Williamson cup series will be played on the Locust street grounds next Saturday between the Fore Rivers and the United Shoe of Beverly. The series have been one of the most interesting soccer workouts ever run in Massachusetts. Quincy was doubly represented, the Fore Rivers tieing for first place after some sensational showings and the Quincy team dropping only at the last moment in the elimination game. Locust street grounds were picked because they are neutral, centrally located and commodious enough for the crowd that will throng the grounds.

POOL ROOM CASE.

A case of interest to proprietors of pool rooms was heard in the Quincy court this morning. Under the State law minors can not be allowed in pool rooms without written permission from their parents or guardian. In the case in question a minor presented a permit to the keeper of the pool room, which purported to have been signed by his mother. In order to protect himself the keeper of the pool room sent a postal to the boy's mother stating that such a permit had been received, and requesting that if it was not all right that he be notified. The mother read the postal and then threw it away after her son had told her he had written the permit.

No word was sent to the pool room proprietor that the permit was not genuine, although the mother later informed the porprietor if her son did not behave himself to put him out.

Notwithstanding this Officer Fitzgerald swore out a warrant against Beach, the proprietor of the pool room for allowing minors in his premises.

The court stated, after hearing the evidence, which was as related above, that although the woman had paid no attention to the postal card that he was evidently guilty of violation of the law and that a fine of $10 would be imposed. Beach said that he would appeal and the case was continiued until Monday to allow him to secure bonds.

POLITICAL DESIGNATIONS.

About 40 voters have changed their political designations to date. The change favors the progressive party, 38 Republicans withdrawing from the G. O. P. and joining the Bull Moose procession. One Republican changed to the Democrats. No Democrats have declared themselves Progressives. A large change will probably occur tonight when City Clerk Emery L. Crane will meet the voters in the office of A. E. Walker, Newport and Beale street, Wollaston.

RIGHT CONCEPTION.

The address of Mayor Stone at the Suffolk South Association of Ministers in Memorial church Atlantic Wednesday was highly appreciated by the 28 ministers present. He showed that questions coming up in the administration of a city like Quincy had to be looked upon in the broadest way in order to consider the rights of all parties concerned and what the moral effect would be to attempt suppression even if it was possible. When he told of his attitude in regard to demanding police at the Houghs Neck dance halls the ministers applauded, their only suggestion being they hoped he would in time demand the presence of matron police. The mayor showed clearly his enthusiasm for Quincy as a no-license city. The city council was trying to keep objectionable men from getting pony licenses. After the address the ministers enjoyed an auto ride to Squantum, Houghs Neck and Quincy Center returning to the church for supper which was served by the ladies of the church.

QUINCY POST OFFICE.

Letters unclaimed for week ending, May 17: Mrs. Bell, S. A. Boston, Enrico DiAngela, Mrs. Hattie Drandger, Thomas Flynn, Lester W. Fraser, H. Hallstream, Trpokom Mamykc, Miss Rachel McEwan, Ethel Murphy, D. W. Royce, Mrs. C. A. Strong.

J. WILLIAM KEMP.

J. William Kemp died this morning at his home 31 Newcomb street, after a long illness. He was in his 52nd year and was an electrician by trade. For many years he was employed by the Old Colony Street Railway Co. He leaves his wife, Nellie, three girls, Margaret, Annie and Alice and four boys, William, Jr., John H., Harry and Walter.

The 9.45 train from Boston became stalled at Neponset this morning and caused a long delay.

The Quincy Dramatic Club, the Social society of Quincy Chapter, O. E. S. will hold a dancing party in Alpha hall May 23. Elaborate preparations are on foot, under the direction of Mrs. Clara Catarius, head of the committee.

CHILD KILLED

The father was sent for at the granite yard of W. T. Spargo. He hurried home. Dr. George M. Sheahan was summoned but did not arrive in time.

The child told his mother he had been hurt. He did not say how. Dr. Sheahan said he would not determine the cause of the death. Medical Examiner John E. Frazier was summoned and will perform an autopsy.

Chief of Police Burrill is conducting an investigation. Up to 1.30 he had received no official communication from anyone regarding the death. The reporters brought it to the attention of the department.

The only visible injuries was a severe bruise on the right face, just under the eye. It is probable the jaw was fractured and that intercranial hemorrhages occurred.

Vanner has a son, Albert, at his home on Water street with a fractured nose and leg and his condition is serious. Mrs. Vanner is bordering on nervous prostration.

H. Everett Crane was on the spot shortly after noon. He is also conducting an investigation.

ASSAULT CASE.

The continued cases of Alex. Meyer for assault on Louis and Reuben Grossman at Quincy was heard in court on Friday. The alleged assault took place last Saturday and is the outcome of an unpleasantness between the Grossmans and Meyer.

Grossman claimed as he was coming from the Synagogue last Saturday that they met Meyer and that there were some words, and that Meyer threatened to assault Louis when the son interfered and was assaulted and knocked down by Meyer.

Meyer claimed that they had called him bad names and had accused him of being a pig eater. Louis Grossman while on the stand testified that he was not hit during the mixup and the court discharged Meyer on this complaint. On the complaint for assaulting Reuben, the court placed the case on file on payment of $10 costs.

NEW CURATE.

Rev. William D. Keenan of Lowell, who was recently ordained to the priesthood has been temporarily assigned to St. Mary's parish. West Quincy, as a curate to Rev. Fr. Henry T. Grady who is now assisted by Rev. Fr. William J. Duffy. Father Keenan has assumed his duties and will publicly celebrate mass tomorrow. He is a graduate of Holy Cross College.

TWINS HAVE BIRTHDAY PARTY.

Karin and Nels Nelson, children of Andrew Nelson, celebrated their tenth birthday on Friday afternoon at the home of their parents at 211 Whitwell street. Many friends gathered at four o'clock and enjoyed games and refreshments until eight o'clock. Nels and Karin received many gifts. Mrs. Nelson was assisted on the refreshments by Mrs. J. Bergvall and Mrs. Leander Hokenson. Misses Leona Byrne and Helen Peterson and Master Eric Nelson managed the games.

THE POPS.

The third week of Pop concerts in Symphony hall, Boston, Monday, May 19, will bring to an end the conductorship of Otto Urack, assistant conductor of the Symphony Orchestra. Mr. Urack has made many friends during the past fortnight. His programmes while in a way a little more serious than has been the custom at the Pops the last four years have given much pleasure and the orchestra has played magnificently under his skilled leadership.

The great night of the third week will be May 20, "Harvard Night." This is in point of attendance usually the biggest night of the year and the present season promises to be no exception to the rule. A considerable amount of Harvard music will be played, selections from the current Hasty Pudding and Pi Eta plays and the Glee Club will be present to sing during the intermissions.

Wednesday night Mr. Urack calls "Italian Night" and the programme will be devoted principally to Italian music. This is always a popular night with the public. For his final night Saturday, he has arranged a programme which comprises nearly all the old favorites.

Straw hat day has arrived, but it was anticipated by George W. Jones, who has the correct styles.

LOYAL TO CAUSE.

Editor Daily Ledger:—

Will you kindly allow me to correct a mistake in the account of the luncheon proferred to Mrs. E. W. Sheppard, at Hotel Thorndike, Boston last Wednesday?

In the report of my after-dinner remarks, the impression was conveyed (unintentionally, I am quite sure) that I rather made sport of the "old" and "new" woman. Such an idea was far from my thoughts.

My modest part in the brilliant postprandial exercises, would be of no consequence, if it were not for the fact that a very large number of the members of the Quincy Women's club, have put themselves on record as in favor of Political Equality for Women. I should regret giving them cause to think that I on a public occasion, seemed to desert a cause which is so vital to all women including myself. I would rather range myself with the party, one of whose able exponent is Rev. Paul Revere Frothingham of Arlington Street Church, Boston than with the one which is championed by John L. Sullivan, the ex-prize-fighter.

Quincy lodge, No. 13, Junior Order of Moose, held its first anniversary dance and May party in Alpha hall last evening and one of thelarge st number that ever responded to the call of the Moose attended. The organization is composed of young men, from the ages 16 to 21, and all are well-known and popular in this city.

The guests of the evening were Dictator James A. Daley of Quincy lodge, No. 413, L. O. O. M., Albert J. Williams governor of the Junior lodge and Mrs. Albert J. Williams, president of the Quincy Ladies' Moose circle.

The hall was prettily decorated and dancing continued until midnight. Music was furnished by Hamilton's orchestra. The feature dance of the evening was the Junior Moose special in which all the members took a prominent part in making it pleasant for the guests and friends.

The floor was in charge of James P. Manning. Martin E. Anderson was floor director and Frank Tully was chief of aids. The aids were William Holt, Roy Horsman, Fred O'Brien, John H. Kemp. Charles Williamson and Benjamin Johnson.

CITY COUNCIL.

Present indications are that Monday nights meeting of the City Council will be an important one. Several important matters are to be reported by different committees, and this with the usual amount of new business, will keep the Council busy. There is one public hearing assigned for the meeting and that is to change the grade of Elm avenue, and move the tracks from the side to the centre of the street.

There is more Catarrh in this section of the country than all other diseases put together, and until the last few years was supposed to be incurable. For a great many years doctors pronounced it a local disease and prescribed local remedies, and by constantly failing to cure local treatment pronounced it incurable. Science has proven catarrh to be a constitutional disease and therefore requires constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, Ohio, is the only constitutional cure on the market. It is taken internally in doses from 10 drops to a teaspoonful. It acts directly on the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. They offer one hundred dollars for any case it fails to cure. Send for circulars and testimonials.

DISTRICT COURT.

Jacob Johnson and David Mak were fined $10 each for drunkenness at Quincy.

Frank K. Raymond was fined $5 and $2.40 costs for violation of th liquor law at Weymouth.

C. Luther Beach was fined $10 fo allowing a minor in his pool room a Weymouth. Case continued unt Monday to allow his to secure sure ties to protect his appeal.

Harrison G. Kennard of Wollaston was arraigned on two complaints o a State milk inspector for violation o the milk laws. One complain charged him with watering milk an the second with removing the crean from the milk before he sold it. He entered a plea of nolo contendre an was fined $50 on each complaint.

MYSTERY AUCTION.

A mystery auction followed the regular meeting of the Epworth League in the vestry of the Swedish St. Paul's M. E. church Thursday evening. Bernard Rosing acted as auctioneer an many pleasant surprises accompanied the opening of the purchases. Refreshments were served. The affair was in charge of Mrs. John Hjellander, Berger Ellison and Miss Editl Olson. In the absence of the pastor Rev. Axel Eman Hillman who is recuperating from an operation for appendicitis performed a few weeks ago at the Quincy City Hospital, John Hjellander officiated at the meeting.

SURPRISE AND PRESENTATION.

Two surprises, one ill timed, occured last evening; the first when a talled auto delayed Mr. and Mrs. Charles Foss' return to their home which had been invaded during her absence by friends and neighbors; and the second when they arrived home.

Mr. and Mrs. Foss have lived on Glendale road for some months and are on intimate terms of friendship with nearly all of the residents. They are planning to move to another section of the city and the surprise was for the purpose of presenting a farewell token.

Harry Sutton, who drove the machine that balked in East Milton while friends anxiously waited on Glendale road, presented Mr. and Mrs. Foss with a punch bowl. The recipients were given an intense surprise.

A social hour followed, during which piano solos were rendered by Miss Amy Fallon, Mrs. Robert Barry, Charles Foss, and vocal solos by Mrs. S. McKim and Patrick O'Brien. Whistling solos were given by Thomas Fallon and Mrs. Frank Hibbitt entertained with buck and wing dancing. Refreshments were served.

BETHANY CONGREGATIONAL.

On account of the absence of the pastor, "Mother's Day" was not observed at Bethany church last Sunday. Many feel with the pastor, that such an observance should not be neglected so tomorrow at the pleasant Sunday evening services the pastor will speak on "A boy's best friend." The subject "Personal rights and Wrongs," which was to be the theme for the evening will be used in the morning service, this subject was suggested by some questions asked by young men.

UNNECESSARY ALARM.

When the department reached box 223, sounded at 8.30 last evening, the vicinity about the box was quiet and the indications were that the box was false. A tree on the grounds of the City Hospital took fire from an electric wire but died down within a few minutes and it was learned that the box was pulled by three boys who saw the tree on fire.

BRIEFS

As Memorial day this year falls on Friday, there is a movement on foot to have City Hall close all day the Saturday following.

Rev. Axel Eman Hillman, who was stricken with appendicitis two days after he had ossumed the pastorate of the Swedish St. Paul's M. E. Church is recuperating at the home of Mr. and Mrs. John Hjellander, Middle street Braintree, following a successful operation at the Quincy City Hospital.

A salad supper is to be given Friday evening by St. Chrysostom's branch of the Girls Friendly society with Miss A. Maud Briggs and Miss Lydia Hennigar as chairmen of the committee.—Mrs. Morgan J. Walker and Miss Mary Lavinia Brown are in charge of the entertainment which is to follow the supper. Mrs. Walrath Y. Sherman of North Central Avenue has proved herself well fitted to be in charge of the branch and the girls have taken much interest and enjoyment in basketry which she introduced.

The executive committee of the Parents and Teachers Association of the Massachusetts Fields school will hold their annual meeting next Thursday evening at 7.45 o'clock in the school corridor. Officers for the coming year will be elected. The nominating committee are: H. L. Polk, Mrs. S. J. Ripley and Mrs. Daniel Miller. The soloists for the meeting will be Miss Jessie Fowler and Miss Ernine Baker M. F. S. 1912, Miss Clara Bennett will be elocutionist, Ernest Pletsch, the cornetist and Miss Henrietta Gram with Carl Fowler as accompanist.

At the morning service at First church, Rev. Adelbert L. Hudson will preach upon "The New Era of Constructive Unitarianism." During the week commencing May 19th., Unitarians throughout the country will hold their regular Anniversary Meetings in Boston and Mr. Hudson's sermon on Sunday will touch upon the work before the denomination in the future. All interested in the liberal religion of today are cordially invited to attend.

ANOTHER ARREST.

Waddel Francis came into court on Friday to hear how a case in which he was interested came out. While he was in court he was recognized by Inspector Goodhue as being one of the men who were playing cards when the police raided the Syrian house on Cyril street last Sunday. The Inspector did not know the man's name but immediately swore out a John Doe warrant and placed the man under arrest. He pleaded not guilty when arraigned and was held in $100 bonds until next Monday. The complaint charged him with taking part in a game on the Lord's day.

MAN FOUND DEAD.

Joseph Jarvis, a barber aged about 47 years of age was found dead this noon in his barber shop at 1268 Sea Street, Houghs Neck.

He had not been seen about the premises this morning and W. J. Hudson after notifying the police department and getting their advice burst the door and found him lying dead on the floor. It is thought that heart trouble was the cause of his death. He is a married man but his family does not live at Houghs Neck. It is also said that he has four children.

The Congenial Club made an auto trip to Boston last night, dined at the Copley Plaza, attended Keith's theatre and returned home after midnight. The affair was the final celebration of the social season of the club.

BRAINTREE

Mrs. Mary E. Hawes of Middle street is visiting relatives in Castine, Maine.

The boys of the Hollis school base ball team have received their new suits.

Eleanor Butterworth and Edith Tilden of Mt. Vernon avenue, are ill with the measles.

Mr. and Mrs. Henry E. Reynolds returned Sunday from their trip to Arkansas.

Mrs. Lester Bates of Washington street. who has been ill with diphtheria is reported as improving.

SARGENT EXHIBITION.

The girls of the Quincy High school who are interested in gymnastics will attend the Sargent exhibition at the Boston Arena tonight. The party is under the direction of Dr. J. Gardner Smith, physical instructor in the schools. The chaperons will be Miss Lucy Atwood, Miss Bertha Kermeyer, and Miss Margaret Lennon, all of the Quincy High school. It is expected that the party will consist of 23.

☞The date of the third and last May Morning musicale by the Quincy Women's club has been changed from May 28 to Wednesday, May 21, so as not to conflict with the State Federation meetings in Boston May 28 and 29. Will all who have subscribed to the musicales please note this change. The Grieg Trio with Mabelle Dadmun Everett, soprano will be the artists for this musicale.

MEN'S CLASS.

The Men's class of the Washington Street Congregational church will have their closing meeting of the season Sunday night at 6.00 o'clock. There will be a social hour from 6.00 to 6.43. The meeting will be addressed by several speakers, the principal speaker bein g Rev. Isaiah Sneath of Wollaston. The ladies are invited. A cordial invitation is extended to everyone to attend.

Queen Quality

Graceful and Stylish.

The first thing you notice about a Queen Quality Shoe is its grace and style. You are apt to think it is a smaller size than it really is. That shows superiority of design.

You try it on and it has an unusual glove-like feeling—no stiffness, no rigidity.

That shows superiority of construction.

You wear the pair out of the store and you notice they feel as easy and flexible as the old shoes.

No breaking-in is required. That is due to the flexible soles.

All told, these things are indications of quality—indications which you can easily detect for yourself without being an expert.

Prices $3.50 to $5.00. Let us fit you this week.

NEW SYSTEM AT CITY HALL

Orders for Supplies Must be Made in Triplicate

Mayor Stone put in operation a new system in all of the departments of the city, this morning in relation to the ordering of supplies. Under this new system all orders for supplies are made in triplicate. One of the orders is sent to the party from whom the supplies are to be purchased, the second to the City Auditor, and the third is to be kept by the deparment ordering the supplies.

This system is practically the same system as that recommended by the special committee on financial investigation last year and embodied by them in an order which was passed by the City Council, and later vetoed by the Mayor.

The system is one that is similar to that now used by nearly all large business houses in the state, and furnishes a check, as well as informing the Auditor what is doing. Under the order passed last year and vetoed, it was provided that these order slips should be first submitted to the Auditor for certification, if there were funds enough to credit of the department to meet the expense of the articles ordered.

BLAZE NEAR SHIPYARD.

The alarm from Box 715 at 1.45 this noon was for a slight fire in a small building opposite the Fore River office on Howard street, formerly occupied by a Syrian as a pool room. The fire did but little damage.

EIGHTY-FIVE ENROLLED

But Progressives Need 100 to Nominate

In order to accommodate, what appeared to be a general demand of many to change their party designation, in order that they might sign nomination papers for the coming caucuses, the City Clerk visited Wollaston on Saturday evening when 46 voters appeared before him and changed their party designation. Saturday was the last date in which parties who desired to sign nomination papers could change their party enrollment ,and up to that time 87 have taken advantage of this provision of the law.

To sum up the situation it might be stated that one Republican changed to a Democrat, one Democrat to a Progressive, one Socialist to a Progressive and 84 Republicans to Progressives.

The changes by wards were as follows: Ward One, 7; Ward Two, 4; Ward Three, 6; Ward Four, 5; Ward Six, 4, Ward Five, 61.

Under the law one voter for every one hundred cast for Governor at the last state election is required to place a name in nomination for the coming State caucus. This means that if the Progressives desire to nominate a Representative from Quincy for instance one hundred names must be secured to the paper.

There are now in Quincy 86 enrolled Progressives and it will be hard work to get the required number of signatures, although voters who are not enrolled under any party head may sign the papers. At best however it means a hustle to get enough signatures to have the name go on the ballot at the caucus.

WOODWARD STUDIES

Radical Changes Which Are Not in Favor

Editor Daily Ledger:—

I am surprised that more publicity has not been given to the changes proposed in the studies at the Woodward Institute but presume the teachers dare not say much if they wish to keep their positions and those making changes naturally are not seeking publicity. Tonight a meeting is to be held that may decide the matter and if the contemplated changes go through will to my mind be entirely contrary to Dr. Woodward's ideas. From reading, and hearsay of Dr. Woodward one cannot fail to get the impression that he was against frills and stood for the practical, firmly believing in domestic science, sewing, dressmaking and the like, in fact anything that would make a girl more womanly and fit her to earn her way in the world.

By his will Dr. Woodward made the ministers of the city the board of management not realizing that the ministers of his day and the present are quite different propositions. In his day a minister was practically a life long resident with the interests of the city at heart, now the ministers may be considered as among our most transient population. Under the circumstances it can hardly be expected they will know or care much about Dr. Woodward's ideas, for they are here today and off to another parish tomorrow. Realizing their shortcomings a few years ago they shifted their responsibilities and secured a superintendent which was not a bad idea except in choice, the selection of the superintendent of our public schools making the Woodward practically a second high school.

If the Woodward is made supplementary to the High—that is more of a technical school, it would serve some purpose and more nearly carry out Dr. Woodward's plans, but there iis no need of practically two high schools.

Owing to the contemplated changes some of the best teachers are leaving the Woodward next month, one of whom the teacher of domestc science goes to Schenectady to receive a much larger salary at a new technical high school to open there next fall.

It would seem as though the time had come for the citizens to get together and solve the Woodward school problem, as to how it shall be managed to use the money wisely and for the good of Quincy born girls and also to carry out the unmistakable wishes of Dr. Woodward so that the money remains in Quincy instead of reverting to Dartmouth college if the terms of the will are not complied with.

CITY COUNCIL ORDERS.

Mayor Stone said this morning that an order would be introduced in the City Council at tonight's meeting authorizing the Mayor to grant veterans of the Grand Army, who desire to attend the anniversary of the battle of Gettysburg, leave of absence without loss of pay. Under the law as it now is, this conn ot be done without a special order of the City Council.

Also that an order would be introduced calling for an appropriation for the July Fourth celebration. An order for $1,000 for a celebration was regected earlier in the year but the amount tonight will be for a different sum.

KINCAIDE AT LIMA, PERU

Royal Reception for the Chamber of Commerce Men

A dispatch from Lima Peru, states that the Boston Chamber of Commerce party of which Col. Henry L. Kincaide of Quincy is a member, arrived at that port Saturday. The party was extended a notable hospitality while there, culminating in a banquet by the local chamber. Addresses were made expressing cordial friendship which were responded to for the Boston party by Col. Kincaide. The visitors were taken over the famous Croy Branch of the Central railway which is the highest in the world and enjoyed luncheon and speeches two miles above Lima. The party left that noon for Arequipa and Lapaz.

Does Not Know How Little Costo Boy Was Hurt

The funeral of Esidio Costo, the victim of the Liberty street accident on Saturday, took place this afternoon. Burial was in Mt. Wollaston cemetery.

Medical Examiner Fraser performed an autopsy at the hall undertaking rooms Sunday and found that he had died from a ruptured liver.

Frederick Vanner, the driver of the team supposed to have injured the boy, called at the Police station when he learned of the death. He said that he stopped at a house on Liberty street to deliver grain. When he came out he did not see the boy, but when he started up the horse the boy screamed. Where the boy was he does not know, but somewhere on the opposite side of the wagon. He assisted the boy into the house; and did not suppose that he was seriously injured as he walked. He then drove to the granite yard of W. T. Spargo and told the father that the boy had probably been hurt. He then finished delivering his load. Mr. Vanner was very depressed while giving the police his version. Evidently he was not to blame for the accident.

Walter Nightingale died this morning at his home 42 Bennington street, in his 55th year. He has been a long time resident of South Quincy and was employed by the New York, New Haven and Hartford railroad.

PAINTER DIES MYSTERIOUSLY

Body Found in Shed Some Time After Accident

George Corliss, 43 years, was found dead in a shed in the rear of his home, 12 Commercial street, East Braintree, about 4.30 Sunday morning. The body was pitched forward against a partition. A pool of blood was on the floor and an upper row of false teeth were a few feet away. The head showed injuries about the right side of the face, bordering on the eye.

The shed in which the body was found was visible from the street. A door had been locked from the outside, and the circumstances showing possible foul play led the police to believe murder had been committed.

It was later learned that he had been injured at the Baker Yacht Basin at Quincy Point on Saturday by falling nine feet to a concrete floor and while it is known these injuries caused his death the police are still trying to determine who snapped the lock. He was a painter by trade.

An autopsy performed by Medical Examiner Frasier on Sunday night showed that Corliss had died as a result of injuries received by the fall. A clot of blood formed on the brain a few hours after the accident.

Mrs. Corliss, sensing trouble, worried a good part of the night about the absence of her husband. She left her home Saturday night to meet the electric car which arrives at Weymouth Landing about 10 o'clock.

When she discovered the body her screams were heard by others in the neighborhood. She ran up the steps leading to the sleeping apartments of Isadore Berger who lives over his shop in front of the shed where the body was found.

Berger notified John Walsh of the Weymouth police department and after he viewed the scene he acquainted Chief Horace Hunt of the Braintree police with the facts. Although the shed is in East Braintree, but a very short distance from the boundary line, Chief Hunt invited Officer Walsh to assist him in unravelling the mystery.

Inquiry developed that Corliss had not been seen in the vicinity and a call at the Baker Yacht Basin where he was employed gave the department the first inkling of his injuries.

Hooker McDonough, the foreman of painters said that Corliss was one of five men thrown to the ground Saturday when a plank broke. He fell nine feet onto a concrete floor landing on his head and shoulder. He remained unconscious for a few minutes and after his recovery said he felt all right and did not need medical assistance. He left the basin for his home alone.

The time of his arrival is unknown, although Dr. H. James Cook, who was called right after the discovery said the man had been dead about six when he viewed the body. suggested that the department get busy.

The officers made a complete investigation of every point in the affair, but have not been able to determine who snappedw the lock. They are of the opinion that children playing in the vicinity did so.

Mrs. Corliss and her husband but recently moved into their present home. They formerly lived at 546 Broad street, Weymouth. About 11 o'clock she left Braintree for the home of her father, James Knott, at North Scituate. She was in an extremely nervous condition, but has not suffered a collapse.

Medical Examiner Frazier was assisted in performing the autopsy by Drs. Bullock and Cook. They found a triangular fracture under the right eye and a blood clot on the brain.

Inquiry about Quincy Point showed that Corliss had not sought medical attention in that vicinity. His luncheon was found near the body, also a morning paper, but where it was purchased could not be determined.

The committee in charge of the Sunday school picnic of the Memorial church decided to have the picnic held at Highland Park on June seventeenth The picnic was held there two years ago.

NOW DEAF CAN HEAR SERMON

Harper Oriphones Very Satisfactory at Bethany Church

For the first time in years, deaf members of Bethany Congregational church were enabled on Sunday to hear the sermons, as oriphones have been installed which are marvels. A transmitter is mounted on the desk in front of the preacher, but is so small that many will not observe it. Any number of receivers can be connected, which are located in different pews being connected by wires.

In Bethany church there are four receiving stations at present, all well back in the auditorium, one being in the last row of pews. The range is so wide, however and the tone so rich and clear that they work remarkably well. A whisper near the transmitter can be heard plainly by the receiver in the rear pew, and also the ticking of a watch.

Bethany Brotherhood has taken a prominent part in having the Harper Oriphones installeda nd Bethany Union and the Christian Endeavor Society have each paid the cost of a receiver. The transmitters cost $100 and the receivers $25. When possible deaf persons should own a receiver which can be detached and used in any church where the Harper system has been installed. Charles Scammell is the possessor of a receiver and on Sunday was able to hear clearly, especially in the morning when Rev. Mr. Willmott stood directly in front of the desk. Another man heard better in the evening. The receivers can be adjusted to individual cases.

The Wollaston Congregational church has installed a Globe system, and the Wollaston Unitarian church a Couch system, but the Harper system is regarded as the best, and is in use in Trinity church, Boston; the church of the New Jerusalem, Boston; the Elliott church, Newton; the Channing church, Newton; the Orthodox church, Melrose; and many other churches of the country.

WEST QUINCY FIRE.

The fire department extinguished a roof fire at the Mannex stone shed, Wilalrd street, this noon after the employees had tried in vain to check a fire under the shingles. Crude oil is used for fuel for a hoister and sparks set the shingles. Box 45 was sounded at noon and the all out at 12.20. The damage is estimated at about $10.

Because Barre has forwarded two shiploads of granite by water from a port in Connecticut should not alarm Quincy manufacturers. Both of these cargoes were paving stone which could easily be loaded on a ship. Quincy could make similar shipment from Fall River, or New Bedford, or other Massachusetts ports, on the same line of railroad as this city. But, nevertheless, Quincy granite manufacturers should be able to make water shipments from Quincy. To do this they need a wharf with loading facilities, and also street railway connections from quarries and sheds to the water front. If the city is not ready to establish a municipal dock, the granite manufacturers should form a corporation and buy, lease or build a wharf, and then petition the Bay State street railway to extend its trolley freight not only to the wharf but into each of the granite yards and quarries .

Now that the granite industry is threatened by the reduction of the tariff on foreign granite, it is important that shipping facilities should be improved that Quincy may continue in the granite business.

President Wilson puts the tariff question in a new light when he writes: "The new doctrine of the Protectionist is that the tariff should represent the difference between the cost of production in America, and the cost of production in other countries, PLUS a reasonable profit to those who are engaged in industry."

Wherever an attempt is made to add a profit, the tariff should be reduced. Wherever the tariff is so high that it excludes entirely foreign goods it should be reduced. Perhaps there is some point between 25 and 50 per cent where the duty on foreign granite should be placed. But Quincy granite manufacturers know it was oto small some years ago and that compete successfully with Quincy work. To restore the tariff at 25 per cent as proposed in the new tariff bill would therefore appear to be an injustice to Quincy granite manufacturers. If any reduction is made it should be small, say from 50 to 40 per cent. There is no monopoly of granite in the United States, but a competition that is almost ruinous.

What has become of the so-called Progressive party? The time has expired for changes in party enrollment, yet only 84 in Quincy have signified a desire to be enrolled as Progressives. This is a mere handful when one considers that this city has nearly 7,000 voters. Certainly the so-called Progressives who are out for clean politics, should not be enrolled as Republicans if they intend to vote as Progressives. In other Massachusetts cities the proportion of Progressives is also very small—only 708 in Boston, 112 in Newton, 240 in Somerville and so on.

Perhaps the Progressives on sober reflection are not very well pleased with their work last fall. They elected Wilson as president, and Foss as Governor. They also elected Gilmore as representative to Congress, and McDevitt as senator. Has there been any improvement?

We like Mr. Bryan better than ever since he undertook that unpleasant task in California and did his duty to the best of his ability without losing his temper.

Coal prices have dropped , and it would be a mighty good time to lay in your next winter's supply if you didn't need the money for something else just now which you do.

The suffragist parade in New York is described as a riot of color. The suffragette parade in London are the other kind of riots.

Some of the critics of Senator Works of California are inclined to fear that he overworks.

When a woman can arrive at satisfactory conclusions without expressing them, that is wisdom.

QUINCY MUTUAL BUILDING

New Location May Be Considered by City Council

Rumor has it that the removal of the Quincy Mutual Fire Insurance building is to come up in the City Council at its meeting tonight. There seems to be considerable opposition to the removal of the building to the lot across Coddington street.

When the city voted to purchase the lot the order called for the purchase of the land and buildings. The Insurance company however, it is said, did not understand that the sale included the buildings. The Insurance Company, it is understood, have plans made for a handsome new building which it proposes to erect somewhere near City Square, and until that building is completed the company desires to occupy the old building.

It is reported that some of the directors of the company favor moving the offices of the company to Boston, while others favor having them remain in Quincy. Those in favor of remaining in Quincy carried the day and a building will be erected. This will require fully two years and the company desire to use the old building for a nominal sum until such time as the new building is completed.

BIRTHDAY PARTY.

A very pleasant party was held Saturday afternoon at the home of Miss Dorothy Nichols, Gay street, in honor of her birthday. The rooms were exquisitely decorated with red, white and blue streamers, running from corner to corner and from which hung many very pretty baskets, loaded to the brim with luring delicious delicatessens. A bountiful repast of fruit, cake of various kinds and ice cream was indulged in. The greatest attraction being a large cake located in the center of the table, upon which was written, in pure white brittle frosting, the name of Miss Dorothy Nichols. Games were enjoyed out doors until late in the afternoon. Before departing for home, each one was presented with one of those enticing baskets. During the afternoon Miss Nichols was the recipient of many presents.

Those present were: Misses Ella Leavitt, Myrtle Walker, Mildred Julius, Lillian Julius, Mildred Finch. Margaret Finch, Dorothy Prouty, Elsie Parmenter, Grace Parmenter. Marie Faircloth, Dorothy Nichols and Masters Charles Leavitt, William Stephen Walker, James Ford, John Hartrey. James Fitzpatrick, Walter Finch, Herbert Finch, Arthur Finch, William Tarbox, and Westley Nichols, Bradford Nichols, Sherman Nichols of Somerville.

BURIAL AT FITCHBURG.

The body of Joseph Jarvis, found dead Saturday noon in his barber shop at Houghs Neck, was taken to Fitchburg this morning for burial. Dr. John C. Frazier, who is acting as Medical examiner for Quincy during the absence of Medical Examiner Jones viewed the body Saturday afternoon and gave the cause of death as heart trouble. Before coming to Quincy, Jarvis is reported to have worked in Lawrence and his wife is now employed in that city. She was notified of his death and came to Quincy Saturday night and arranged to have the body taken to Fitchburg.

A large delegation of members of Quincy council, Knights of Columbus, will attend a meeting of Vera Cruz council, Randolph, Thursday evening. The trip will be made by auto. The council will also place a memorial window in St. John's church which is now undergoing improvements.

GOOD WORK BY SECRETARY

A Word About Our Associated Charities

Editor Daily Ledger:

A year having elapsed since our Associated Charities were in working order, with a secretary duly engaged, it seems to me wise that the public at large should have some just conception of what has been accomplished.

The numerous families whose welfare has been considered and whose wants have been supplied, the families that were not justly entitled to receive public aid, and the instances where work previously had been duplicated by several charitable bodies, that all having received proper discrimination, it has seemed to the writer that a few words of commendation of this work was justly in order, and would lead the generous and benevolent to find pleasure in coming to the aid of this body and helping on his work.

It is always easy to turn over work of this kind to someone else to do, saying for it perhaps a kind word, but trusting somehow that it will go on its way, doing its appointed work, and that the results will be all that we could expect and care for.

The fund necessary for the maintenance of a secretary is not very large and in the writer's opinion it is money as well spent as money given for any good work within our borders. To so distribute aid that the best results shall be found requires very much tact, good sense and sympathetic feeling.

It is positively a mission that the secretary undertakes; a mission almost unequalled in the value of its just accomplishment. Those of us who have funds enough to give us food, clothing and shelter, with but little thought of the outlay involved, many times through ignorance of the lives of others become indifferent to what is involved for those others; to give help without breaking down independence of thought and purpose, without wearing an air of patronage toward the less fortunate, to encourage the best purpose and impulses of the weaker, as I said requires very careful, delicate manipulation and discrimination.

Language seems almost inadequate to properly describe the necessity, in many instances, of giving with our monied assistance the just delicacy of thought and conduct to make our gifts acceptable.

On the part of the secretary, the invasion of these homes, dominated sometimes by men and women of coarse natures, and in squalid surroundings, requires on the part of the secretary a high purpose and a steadfast resolve to do all that can be done to better the condition.

If opportunity offers, and your good paper is willing, the writer will be able to present some other aspects of this subject, that may prove of some interest.

In conclusion, we would invite our friends, the public, to call upon the secretary at 148 Goffe street, and learn more concerning the details of the work of the past year. R. F. C.

ON ROAD TO RECOVERY.

The many friends of Thomas G. Smith, who underwent a surgical operation on his leg at the City Hospital two weeks ago will be pleased to learn that he is recovering nicely and while as yet unable to use his leg is able to get about with the aid of crutches. It is expected however that in another two weeks he will be able to get about without the aid of crutches.

Horace Jenkins of Hartford, Conn., spent the week end with his father, Frank Jenkins of Billings street.

May 5 3t- 5, 12, 19

Commonwealth of Massachusetts.
Norfolk, ss. Superior Court.
James W. Connell, Libellant,
vs.
Alice Connell, Libellee
Libel for Divorce.

Respectfully represents James W. Connell of Quincy in our County of Norfolk, that he was lawfully married to said Alice Connell formerly of said Quincy but now of parts unknown in said Quincy on the fourth day of September A. D. 1892, that they always continued to live in said Quincy until on or about the nineteenth day of February A. D. 1909; that your libellant has always been faithful to his marriage vows and obligations but the said Alice Connell being wholly regardless of the same did on or about the nineteenth day of February A. D. 1909 utterly desert your libellant said utter desertion continuing for more than three years next prior to the filing of this libel.

Wherefore your libellant prays that a divorce from the bonds of matrimony may be decreed between your libellant and the said Alice Connell.

Dated this twenty-fourth day of August A. D. 1912.

JAMES W. CONNELL.

Commonwealth of Massachusetts.
Norfolk, ss. Superior Court.
On the foregoing Libel, it is ordered that the Libellant give notice to the said Alice Connell the Libellee, to appear before the Justices of this Court, to be holden at Dedham, within and for said County, on the first Monday of June next, by causing an attested copy of said Libel, and of this order thereon, to be published once in a week for three successive weeks, in the Quincy Daily Ledgeer, a newspaper printed at Quincy in the County of Norfolk, the last publication to be fourteen days at least before the said first Monday of June next, and further, by sending through the mail, as soon as may be, by a registered letter addressed to the last known residence of the said Alice Connell an attested copy of said Libel and of this order thereon. that the said Alice Connell may then and there show cause why the prayer of said Libel should not be granted.

By the Court,
LOUIS A. COOK, Clerk.
May 8, A. D. 1913.
A true copy of said Libel, and of Order thereon. Attest.

SUNDAY IN CHURCHES

Interesting Themes the Subject of Sermons

WOLLASTON UNITARIAN.

Sunday morning's service of worship at the Wollaston Unitarian church was greatly enjoyed by all who were privileged to attend. The floral decorations, which always add so much pleasure to our worship, were in charge of Mr. Frederick H. Bishop and that is always a guarantee that they are beautiful and in harmony. A fine musical program was rendered by the girls' choir and the soloist, Mrs. Royal L. Turner.

The pastor's sermon was particularly helpful showing "The Value of Insignificance." He said: "The great majority of people live what the world pleases to call ordinary lives. Only a few people are distinguished enough to be remembered after a few centuries. In every field of effort and thought there are a few leaders, whose names are on all lips, and a great multitude whose names are seldom, if ever heard outside of their own neighborhood. There are diversities of gifts. And therefore we should learn to be contented each in his own place and to practise mutual respect. True worth is in being, not in doing some particular kind of work. The common folks, of which the Lord made so many, are the backbone of the nation."

Just before the sermon Rev. Mr. Horst read Nixon Waterman's poem entitled "Just common folks," which is a pretty good sermon in itself. The Scripture lesson was taken from Ecclesiasticus, chapter 38, was most appropriate and sounded perhaps unfamiliar to those unacquainted with Apocryphal Books.

The Junior Lend-a-Hand Club will hold its last meeting of the season Tuesday, May 20. The members will meet at the home of Mrs. E. J. Cummings and then adjourn to Greenough's woods.

The Laurinburg N. C., Normal and Industrial Institute for the training of colored young men and women solicits donations of second hand clothing and books. Anyone willing to help this institution can forward their gifts to Mrs. Thomas Lacey, 145 Grand View avenue.

The summer meeting of the Norfolk Conference of Unitarian churches will be held with the Eliot Unitarian church in South Natick, Wednesday, June 4 at 10 A. M.

Our church will send large delegations to the annual Unitarian May meetings which are held in Boston this week. The official delegates to the American Unitarian Association are the Rev. Carl G. Horst, Mrs. Charles T. Baker and Mrs. Chandler W. Smith; to the Unitarian Sunday School Society Mrs. Charles S. Adams Mrs. E. N. Barstow, Mrs. C. G. Horst, to the National Young People's Religious Union, Miss Almira Simmons, Leon Brown, Rev. Carl G. Horst, to the National Alliance of Unitarian and Other Liberal Christian Women, Mrs. Aylmer Hatch, Mrs. Benjamin Sargent Mrs. W. Southworth.

Our church will also be represented by a large number of life members of the American Unitarian Association and Unitarian Sunday School Society sessions.

The Rev. James Huxtable, pastor of the Hawes Unitarian Congregational church in South Boston since 1890, will occupy our pulpit in exchange with the minister next Sunday morning.

Rev. Carl G. Horst will be in attendance upon the May meetings all the week. Next week he expects to move into his new home at 39 Grand View avenue.

Two great needs of our church are a parsonage and a parish house.

WOLLASTON CONGREGATIONAL.

The sermon preached Sunday morning by Dr. Sneath was very helpful as well as interesting. His subject was "Superstition" and text taken from 1 Tim. 4:7, and 2 Peter 1:16 He began by saying that remarkable as it may seem, this is an age of superstition. We expect it in Africa or in the pre-Christian age, yet it is here; in business circles, in the social world and in the religious world.

Superstition is a result of ignorance and fear, and we should learn the fact that there is no such thing as fate in the universe. Back of the universe is a rational Being and we should use our intelligence and not be led about by these irrational things. God will not condemn us because we start on a journey on Friday the thirteenth.

On Thursday evening at 7 o'clock in the vestry, the pastor's round table for young people, will meet with Dr. Sneath, and at 7.45 the regular midweek service of prayer and praise will be conducted by Dr. Sneath. Topic: "The welfare of the Child."

HALL PLACE M. E.

Rev. T. C. Martin preached Sunday morning on the eighth commandment, "Remember the Sabbath Day to keep it holy." Mr. Martin spoke sympathetically on the subject taking into consideration then eeds of working people for rest and recreation but not at the cost of holiness of the Sabbath Day."

Harold Norris led the Epworth League meeting at 6.15. In view of the necessity of postponing the celebration of the 24th anniversary of the Epworth League until May 25, it was decided to substitute the topic for May 25 for that of May 18.

Mr. Martin spoke on the subject of "Mary and Martha" at the evening service taking three texts.

On Monday evening the business meeting of the League will be held in the vestry.

On Tuesday evening a meeting of the Sunday school board will be held at the home of Mr. Stewart.

BETHANY CONGREGATIONAL.

The installation of Rev. Benjamin A. Willmott as pastor of the Bethany Congregational church will take place with appropriate services on May 28. Rev. Mr. Willmott has been in the pulpit for about a year and in that time the congregations have increased steadily. He has given addresses on topics of the day which have been intensely interesting since they were devoted in a manner entirely free from prejudice.

Sunday Mr. Willmott preached on "Personal rights and wrongs," and "A boy's best friend." During the evening prayer all the lights went out, but the services proceeded after one gas jet had been lighted. A little later a new fuse was put in and the electricity was turned on.

The pastor is chairman for the meeting of the State association at Fall River this week, May 20-22.

THE PSYCHICAL PHENOMENA.

Rev. John Whitehead, in his lecture Sunday afternoon at Hancock hall, said that the Bible is a most remarkable record of psychical experiences and phenomena. The modern theologian is chary of discussing such things as miracles, visions and auditory phenomena. These are by many supposed to be the product of superstition, fraud and over zealous partianship. Now we have a test of their reliability in the modern investigation of such phenomina. If the ancient records of the Bible are paralleled by modern instances which have received the test of thorough scientific investigation, we can then conclude that the ancient records are the narrative of actual facts.

What does psychical research give us as a test of the reliability of the Bible records of psychical phenomena? We find that psychical research has proved that such things as visions, supernatural voices, thought transference, and other forms of psychical experience have been proved to be facts of human experience. The very conditions under which the experience takes place are paralleled.

HOME FROM EUROPE.

An enjoyable family reunion took place at the home of Mr. and Mrs. George Deans of 20 Madison street, Atlantic on Sunday, the occasion being held in honor of the return from abroad of their son, Herbert A. Deans, who has been touring through the British Isles and France. Those present were Mr. and Mrs George Deans, Miss Violet Deans, Mr. Horatio Deans, Mr. and Mrs. George A. Deans and family, Mr. and Mrs. William Cox and family, Mr. and Mrs. Charles F. Wilmore and family, Mr. and Mrs. H. C. Isaac and family, and Mr. Herbert Deans.

TONSILITIS CASES.

Slight cases of tonsilitis are prevalent in West Quincy among children. In some families all of the children are affected. The cases are the ordinary kind, and as far as is known are related in no way to the Canton epidemic. There is no alarm among the parents of children since the number of cases each spring is usually large. The spread has not affected the school attendance to any degree.

ANHUT CRUSHED BY CONVICTION

Offered $20,000 to Doctor to Declare Harry Thaw Sane

WAS ABOUT TO BE MARRIED

Expected to See Fiancee Sunday After Acquittal, but Faces Ten Years' Imprisonment and Fine of $5000, the Maximum Penalty—Jury Quickly Reaches Verdict

New York, May 19.—Completely stunned and dismayed by the verdict that found him guilty of the attempted bribery of Dr. John W. Russell, at one time medical superintendent of the Matteawan state hospital for the criminal insane, John N. Anhut broke down in his cell in the Tombs. What has unnerved him the most, his lawyer, Arthur Palmer, says, is the realization that his contemplated marriage in July to a young woman from Philadelphia must be deferred if he is sentenced to Sing Sing. The maximum penalty is ten years' imprisonment and $5000 fine.

Until Tuesday, when he will be called for sentence, the young lawyer, who was the youngest senator ever elected to the Michigan legislature, will have to speculate on what penalty Justice Seabury will impose.

It has become known that Anhut was buoyed up throughout the trial by the confidence placed in him by his fiancee. She had come here from Philadelphia and would have remained, but was induced to go to Atlantic City to await the result of the trial. Anhut was so confident he would be acquitted that he had made arrangements to spend yesterday with her at the city by the sea.

Anhut has been on trial in connection with an attempt to free Harry K. Thaw from Matteawan by alleged illegal means.

The jury deliberated less than two hours and a half. They found Anhut offered Russell $20,000 for the release of Stanford White's slayer, as Russell has testified. Thaw had given Anhut $25,000 in stocks and cash, to be spent to get him free.

Anhut's defense was that the money was a contingent fee only, to be returned in full if Thaw did not have his liberty by July 1 next, and was to be used for legal measures to obtain his client's release through having him declared sane by alienists who had not figured in Thaw's recurrent efforts to leave Matteawan.

GOVERNMENT MUST PAY

Steamship Lines Not Responsible For Doctors' Services For Aliens

New York, May 19.—A decision handed down by Judge Mayer in the United States district court will cost the United States government about $1,000,000 a year from now on. It holds that the government must pay for medical treatment to aliens brought to this country and found, after their arrival at Ellis island, to be suffering from some temporary contagious disease.

The government sought to collect from the Holland-America Steamship company $2167 for such treatment, but the court, in finding for the defendants, declared that the immigration laws make no provision for the steamship company to pay for medical treatment for ailing aliens.

Unless overruled by the higher courts the decision will apply to all steamship lines.

MURDER IS SUSPECTED

Pittsfield Man's Body Found In Vacant Lot With Neck Slashed

Pittsfield, Mass., May 19.—Murder is suspected in the death of John Goerlach, also known as Gaylord, 68, whose body was found in a vacant lot near the Boston and Albany railroad tracks on the outskirts of this city. A long gash extending from the victim's neck across the right cheek, evidently inflicted with a razor, caused death. No motive is known for the deed.

A bundle of new clothes which the man carried was found near his body. The victim is survived by a widow and six children.

NORWAY'S INDEPENDENCE,

The 99th anniversary of the independence of Norway was observed Saturday by Norwegians in all parts of the world. Saturday evening the Norwegian Society of Quincy held a celebration in Protection hall. Speeches were made by Nils Lodengaard and L. A. Jacobsen. Songs were sung by a quartette consisting of Oscar Andersen, Charles Hallicksen, Axel Wolld and John Hansen. Dancing was enjoyed, folk songs were indulged in and the national anthems were sung by those present. Music was furnished by Arthur Robertson.

QUINCY POINT BOOM.

The merchants of Quincy Point will form an association Wednesday evening at the first boom meeting ever called in Ward Two. They will meet in the pharmacy of Arthur L. McGilvray. The main topic of discussion will be "Co-operative Advertising." Officers will be elected and plans made whereby business efficiency can be maintained and sales increased.

Makaria Fraternity Wins from Braintree A. A.

After the Makarias had given Brittingham the kind of support which saved them from a severe defeat at Braintree Saturday "Jimmy" Michael relieved him in the ninth innings, and won from Braintree in the 12th through fine headwork and pitching. With three men on bases and none out in the 12th, he fanned two men and threw a man out at first, closing the game. The game was also featured by the hitting of Allen and Nicolls. Brittingham was hit hard and often, but not beyond reach of the Makarias. They will play the strong Somerville-Medford team Saturday at Merrymount Park.

RAID ON COCK FIGHTERS

Birds, Autos and Other Equipment Seized by Squad of Police

Hudson, Mass., May 19.—Two automoble loads of police and agents of the Massachusetts Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals swept down on a band of 150 men yesterday engaged in a cock fight here and seized their entire outfit, taking the names of two score participants.

The officers caught the party at the big main unawares, and with revolvers drawn the raiders spread out, herding as many of the men present as possible, while scores made a hasty escape into the woods, abandoning all the paraphernalia in their haste to reach the welcome shadows of the brush.

Thirty-four live birds, seven dead ones and three injured were captured, together with ten teams, two automobiles, coats, hats, sweaters, scales, shears and all the equipment of a first class main.

SPIRIT MESSAGES TO FIND HIS BRAIN

Friends of Fletcher Try to Communicate With Him

Boston, May 19.—All the pastors of the spiritualist temples and churches here Sunday by previous arrangement made persistent efforts during the services to get in communication with the spirit of John W. Fletcher, the palmist, to learn what became of his brain on April 22.

Policemen went to Fletcher's lavishly appointed apartments to arrest him on a serious charge and he fell to the floor unconscious and died within a few hours. The police charged that he took a poison tablet.

It was the spiritualists who first made the discovery that Fletcher's brain had been stolen from his head after his death. Mediums announced that in communications received from Fletcher he said his brain was taken and is now concealed in a bottle back on a dark shelf in a dark office in a congested district of the city. An investigation proved the truth of a part of the statement.

DEATH OF INVENTOR FIELD

"Father of Trolley Car" Had Numerous Important Patents

Stockbridge, Mass., May 19.—Stephen Dudley Field, some times called the "father of the trolley car," and known as an inventor of international prominence, died at his home here at the age of 68 years.

Among the inventions patented by Field are the quadruple telegraph, electric elevator, the amplifier for doubling the speed of ocean cables, the stock ticker, the hotel annunciator and the police patrol telegraph.

Altogether Field had more than 200 patents, mostly electrical devices, in his name.

ACCUSED OF STRIKE PLOT

Trial of Head of American Woolen Company Begins at Boston

Boston, May 19.—William M. Wood, president of the American Woolen company, the greatest woolen company in the world, was placed on trial this morning before Judge Crosby and a jury in the second session of the criminal court, charged with complicity in the alleged planting of dynamite for the purpose of discrediting the textile operatives of Lawrence in the great strike of January, 1912.

Under indictment with him are Frederick E. Atteaux, a dealer in dyes and chemicals and other mill supplies, and Dennis J. Collins, a Cambridge dog fancier.

Already the finding of the explosive has resulted in the fining of John J. Breen $500 for unlawfully having dynamite in his possession, and is believed to have been responsible for the suicide of Ernest W. Pitman, one of the richest men in Lawrence, who shot himself through the head the day he was summoned as a witness in the case by District Attorney Pelletier.

Wood was arrested Aug. 31, last year, and has been at liberty under $5000 bail, which he furnished at the time of his arrest by handing five $1000 bills over to the bail commissioner.

FOR DISSECTING PET CAT

Woman's Will Cuts Out Gift of $100,000 to Wesleyan University

Middletown, Conn., May 19.—The will of Miss Margaret Van Deursen, who died at an advanced age here a few days ago, just filed, reveals an interesting story of how Wesleyan university lost a fortune because a Wesleyan student stole Miss Van Deursen's pet cat and used the animal for experimental purposes in the biological laboratory.

Miss Van Deursen had owned the cat for many years and she was heartbroken at the time it was stolen. Finally definite knowledge came to her of what had become of it. It was then that she changed her will, cutting off the university, which was to have received most of her estate.

Many persons thought Miss Van Deursen might relent before her death, but the will shows otherwise, as the entire estate goes to other charities.

Miss Van Deursen was the last of her family. Her estate is estimated at from $100,000 to $150,000.

ACTOR-MINISTER IN HIS FIRST PULPIT

Says He Cares Little For Orthodoxy or Convention

Boston, May 19.—"The actor and the minister are working for the same great ends," said Rev. Frederick A. Wilmont, formerly an actor, who yesterday began his pastorate of the West Somerville Universalist church.

"I have always tried to be a free soul," he said, "not a radical, but free in the sense that Emerson, Thoreau, Whitman, Mills and Palmer have been free.

"I care little for orthodoxy or convention, because they have stood in their own light. I have been criticized even by my dearest friends for what they call inconsistency, but that is because they do not know that development in the individual and in society necessitates avoiding ruts and blazing new trails."

OFF FOR HONOLULU

Coast Artillerymen From Fort Slocum Start on Long Journey

New York, May 19.—Fully equipped, 250 coast artillerymen from Fort Slocum started from Jersey City yesterday afternoon in a train, fully provisioned, for San Francisco. The train is due in the latter city next Friday and the men will then embark for Honolulu.

The train is made up of one baggage car, sixteen tourist sleeping cars and one diner. The government has provisioned the train, leaving nothing for the railroad to do but run the train to the Pacific coast.

POLICE ESCORT REQUIRED

Suffragettes Not Well Received by Sunday Crowds In England

London, May 19.—While the scenes of rowdyism in Hyde Park were not so marked yesterday as on recent Sundays when the suffragettes attempted to hold meetings, the orators who espoused the cause of the women were unable to make themselves heard on account of interruptions by the crowd, and finally had to obtain the services of the police in obtaining safe escort from the park.

Meetings also were held at Hampstead and other suburbs, and the orators received similar treatment.

WARNS AGAINST PRESS WAR TALK

Bryan Deprecates Speculation Regarding Alien Land Bill

JAPANESE DECRY AGITATION

Business Men and Educators Give Jingoes Scant Satisfaction—Japan May Ask to Have Her People In This Country Placed on Equal Footing With Negroes

Washington, May 19.—The Japanese negotiations over the California alien land bill have not advanced the slightest. Governor Johnson has not yet signed the land bill and that appears to be the necessasry condition precedent to the resumption of the negotiations.

The officials are doing everything they can to discourage sensational stories of strained relations between the two countries and Secretary Bryan again admonished his newspaper callers against yielding to the temptation to speculate as to the government's policies.

Alarmists and jingoes were taken back considerably when the state department received the reports of the mass meeting held by the business and educational interests in Tokio, in which all talk of war and irresponsible agitation were denounced.

In diplomatic circles there has been no apprehension that this country would be brought face to face with a crisis as a result of the California anti-Japanese legislation. None in a position to know has for one moment thought Japan or any of its responsible heads has contemplated engaging in a conflict with this country.

The reports of the meetings in Tokio indicate, though, that Japan will seek an amendment to the United States constitution that will place the Japanese in this country on an equal footing with the negro, and this, it has been anticipated, would be one of the results of the unfriendly position of California and other western states toward the yellow men.

Resolutions are on the way to Washington which demand that the Japanese be placed on equal terms with the whites in the matter of franchise and property ownership.

Although the administration expresses itself well pleased with the situation, advices from Berlin say there is ground for apprehension. The dispatches from a news agency, however, show that Japan is in no position to retaliate, as foreigners are barred from owning land in that country.

PAYS DEATH PENALTY

Mulraney Executed For Murder of New York Saloon Keeper

Ossining, N. Y., May 19.—"Happy Jack" Mulraney died in the electric chair at Sing Sing prison at dawn today for the murder of Patrick McBreen, a saloon keeper, in New York. On March 17 last, the day before he was to have been electrocuted, Mulraney was granted a respite by Governor Sulzer. The condemned man contended that another had slain McBreen, and that he had accepted the conviction following the "crooks' code of honor."

After an examination at the prison here and extended hearings on the case in New York city, Mulraney admitted he had told untruths regarding his alibi, and Justice Rosalsky, who conducted the hearings, decided he was not entitled to a new trial.

IS LEFT HALF A MILLION

But Heiress Does Not Neglect Her Job as a Washerwoman

Youngstown, O., May 19.—Mrs. Blanche McVey, who had an engagement to wash for a family Monday, heard from an attorney at Mufort, Cal., that an uncle ad died and left her heir to $500,000. She said that if she could not find anyone to take her place Monday she would do the washing herself rather than disappoint the family.

"Then I am going to California and take possession of the fortune left me," she said.

Mrs. McVey has three children. When her husband was killed on the railroad she was compelled to earn the living for herself and children. Her family was well to do, but she scorned to ask aid from any member.

Physicians have ordered Mews placed in the Taunton insane asylum for ten days for observation.

THE PATERSON STRIKE

Quinlan Addressing Great Crowd After His Trial

Photos by American Press Association.

The personal magnetism of Patrick Quinlan, one of the labor leaders in the Paterson (N. J.) strike, is shown in the enormous crowds that greet him whenever he speaks in public. The above group is a part of the throng he addressed after he had been convicted of "inciting to riot." He was out on bail awaiting sentence when the protographer snapped him.

QUINLAN'S THREAT

Says I. W. W. Will Win Paterson Strike or Obliterate the City

New York, May 19.—The silk strike in Paterson is going to be won even if the Industrial Workers of the World have to wipe that city off the map, according to Patrick Quinlan, the I. W. W. leader, who was found guilty last week in Paterson on a charge of inciting to riot. Quinlan made his threat at a meeting of protest held in Union square.

When Quinlan appeared he was greeted with enthusiasm. He assailed the judge before whom he was tried, and said that he had "about as much knowledge of law as an ordinary pig in Barnum and Bailey's circus had about electiricity."

SIXTEEN MEN DIE IN MINE EXPLOSION

Fifteen Trapped In First Blast and Rescuer Is Overcome

Belle Valley, O., May 19.—Sixteen men are dead as the result of two explosions Sunday in the Imperial mine of the Ogara Coal company. Of these, fifteen were caught by the first explosion, and the sixteenth victim of the blast was a member of the first rescuing party. Four miners were recovered alive, but are believed to be mortally injured.

The bodies were found by the third rescuing party which attempted to enter the mine since the first explosion. They were discovered a mile and a half from the mine's mouth and behind huge piles of debris and wreckage.

MAY BE STAR WITNESS

Woman Going Before Grand Jury In the Revere Tax Tangle

Boston, May 19.—Mrs. Ida W. McLeod, present possessor of $17,000 of Revere real estate, is expected to prove the star witness in the investigation by the Suffolk grand jury of the charges of falsifying made against the Revere board of assessors.

Mrs. McLeod occupies the old Segee home, where Assessor Segee has apartments. Two Revere hospitals, a house and several other parcels of real estate stand to her name on the assessors' books, and she has been requested by the district attorney to produce the books of her hospital and to show how her property accumulated so rapidly.

"FRAUD" AND "MAKESHIFT"

Sulzer Thus Characterizes Primary Measure and Declines Approval

Albany, May 19.—Governor Sulzer vetoed the revised Blauvelt primary and election bill favored by the Democratic leaders. In his veto of the measure as it first reached him the governor characterized the bill as a "fraud" and "makeshift." Later the legislature made some minor amendments and passed the bill.

The governor says the second bill is disapproved for the same reasons given in his first message.

Maniac Kills Two and Self

Oakland, Cal., May 19.—Ernest Oreste, a maniac, shot and killed Miss Sophie Tompkins and Mrs. Manuel King, pedestrians, and seriously wounded Dan Donovan, who ran to their assistance. Then he killed himself.

A BOSTON GIRL'S BUDGET.

Hub's Unique Lilac Display Bursts into Bloom—the Arnold Arboretum More Glorious Than Ever Before—Freedom of Speech is to be Restricted on Boston Common—Only Native Cranks May Henceforth Address Sunday Crowds from Soap Boxes—Freak Pictures at Copley Hall Draw a Smaller Attendance Than at Chicago—Still, It is an Interesting Exhibition and Worth Visiting.

More fragrantly lovely than ever before is the world's largest collection of lilacs, that at the Arnold Arboretum in the Forest Hills district of Boston. The spring has been favorable to the development of the luscious blooms and there are, futhermore, many new varieties which are just coming into flower for the first time. For there is nothing stationary about this wonderful lilac plantation. The ransacking of China that has been going on in the interest of the Arboretum has resulted in the idscovery of lilacs and privets not previously known to exist.

There is now in blossom, for instance, a strange mauve colored syringa which up to recently was known only through the description of a French missionary who had penetrated into the Chinese interior. It was unfamiliar to any of the wealthy connoisseurs' gardens about Peking. It is now one of the valued treasures of the great tree museum. Many other unusual lilacs from China, Japan, Siberia and Thibet blossom along the pathways and gladden the souls of those who have leisure to stroll therein. The floral display begins about the first of May and continues almost to the beginning of July. While it lasts it is one of Boston's great scenic attractions.

O tempora, O mores! The spirit of '76 passes. Now it is freedom of speech that is to be denied on Boston Common. An edict has gone forth from the park board to the effect that henceforth only residents of Boston who have been investigated as to their character and attainments may have the privilege of talking nonsense from a Sunday soap box on the Mall. This action curtails one of the most ancient American opportunities to blow off steam. From Revolutionary days upward every crank in creation has known that in Boston he could get an audience without money and without price. All he has needed to do was to apply for a permit and be reasonably careful not to utter any obscenity. For the rest the wide world of talk has been open to him. He might advocate giving votes to women or taking votes from men. He might propose allowing all inmates of insane asylums to go free while consigning all citizens at large to the paretic wards. He might favor free silver, free beer, free love or even free thought without causing comment or lifting the billies of the police. It mattered not who he was or where he lived or what jail he last saw the inside of; he could always jaw at the same old stand on Boston Common.

The size of the crowd that would listen was problematical. It was more likely to consist of a gamin and a pup than of a sea of upturned faces. Still, those who have had anything to say have usually found hearers. The Sunday sermons on the Mall, ranging from religion to ribaldry, have been among the Hub's most picturesque institutions. Many have been amused by them and at least a few benefited. And now it is proposed not indeed to abolish them but to limit them to a privileged class of speakers. Overcrowding of the available space is the alleged reason. Some, however, say that the exclusion of outside cranks is due to the multiplication of cranks within the city. Others allege the ever present fear of the I. W. W.

As the exhibition of the much discussed Cubist pictures at Copley hall comes to its close May 19, it becomes evident that they have created no such furore in Boston as in New York and Chicago. The attendance has been good but not greater than at the Sorolla exhibition of 1910. Most people interested in art have gone at least once but one hears of few who have gone repeatedly, as was the case with many in the other cities.

Just why this queerly made art should have been viewed by nearly 200,000 people in Chicago while perhaps 30,000 will have seen it in Boston would be hard to say. In either city the newspapers have given it the benefit of much publicity, including many killingly funny articles and at least a little of the critical abuse that usually makes people want to go. A cynic says the trouble is that Boston has not found it nasty enough. Those who went first expected to find it scandalously indecent and were shocked to discover that it is mostly odd rather than suggestive. This view probably belies the attitude of the New England public.

A prevalent criticism of the exhibition is that after one has had one's laugh the pictures become depressing. Few of them are spontaneous or joyful in color. They are amusing as puzzles but disappointing as decorations. They are well worth seeing out of curiosity, but one does not long to return to them each day while they are here. When it comes to art one may see more of it, and better, any fine morning at the Museum of Fine Arts and in the dealers' galleries along Boylston street. Hence Bostonians have made rather less fuss over the "fauves" than was expected. Some N'Yoarkers perhaps would deny the expectation and would allege the tightness of the grip with which the average Hubbite holds onto his half dollars.

Ethel Angier.

Boston, May 16, 1913.

DON'T EXPERIMENT

You Will Make No Mistake if You Follow This Quincy Citizen's Advice

Never neglect your kidneys.

If you have pain in the back, urinary disorders, dizziness and nervousness, it's time to act and no time to experiment. These are frequently symptoms of kidney trouble, and a remedy which is recommended for the kidneys should be taken in time.

Doan's Kidney Pills is a good remedy to use. No need to experiment. It has acted effectively in many cases in Quincy. Follow the advice of a Quincy citizen:

P. J. Garrity, 298 Granite street, Quincy, Mass., says: "Some time ago I suffered so severely from kidney disease that I could hardly get about. I was restless at night and could not find any position that was comfortable. The kidney secretions were too frequent in passage and contained a heavy sediment. I was rapidly growing worse and was at a loss to know what to do as the many remedies I tried failed to help me. Finally Doan's Kidney Pills were recommended to me and I procured a supply at the Cox Drug Store. After I had taken the contents of four boxes I was in good health. I highly recommend Doan's Kidney Pills to other kidney sufferers."

For sale by all dealers. Price 50 cents. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, New York, sole agents for the United States.

Remember the name—Doan's—and take no other.

AMUSEMENTS

PARK THEATRE.

All New England is talking about the tremendous success of "The Blindness of Virtue" which will start upon the fourth week of its engagement at the Park Theatre, Boston, this evening. This year has been one of conspicuous triumphs at the Park, for the earlier part of the year was devoted to the long engagements of "Maggie Pepper" with Rose Stahl as star, "The Woman" and "Officer 666." Now comes an English masterpiece to contrast with these American plays, proving that it is always the policy of the Park to give its patrons the best in the dramatic field no matter from what country it might come. No play that has crossed the Atlantic in years has pleased Bostonians so greatly as "The Blindness of Virtue" and people have gone to see it again and again, so thoroughly have they been pleased by this fascinating picture of country life in Great Britain as drawn by Cosmo Hamilton, the brilliant novelist and dramatist of London. He has taken a vital problem of the day, one that is of as great importance in America as it is in England, and has treated it in a manner that fascinates young and old, rich and poor. It is a play that appeals to the boys and girls in the gallery as well as to the people in the orchestra stalls, and the best demonstration of the strong hold that it has maintained upon the universal public is the spontaneous applause, especially after the great crucial scene in the third act, where the actors are recalled again and again. To give America the best possible presentation of this powerful play William Morris imported the whole company from London, and the players have been made to feel as perfectly at home.

CASTLE SQUARE THEATRE.

"Get-Rich-Quick Wallingford" is one of the most amusing plays of the epoch. With George Cohan, the famous laugh-producer, actor, stage director and manager, as its author and adapter, it cannot help be mirth-provoking. Mr. Craig will present it at the Castle Square this week, and it promises to repeat the success it has made elsewhere. The title hero is an inventor, a promoter and a schemer and he has made a plan for making his fortune. He invents a cloth-covered carpet tack, and his exploitation of is is one of the most ingenious and most comic features of the entire play.

Both novel and play, the novel by George Randolph Chester, and from which Mr. Cohan made the play, are of world-wide reputation, and it has succeeded wherever acted. It will be given an especially notable presentation at the Castle Square next week, the cast being selected especially to bring out all its original humor. The title role of the ingenious promoter will be played by William P. Carleton, and others in the cast will be Mr. Meek, Mr. Roberts, Mr. Ormonde, Miss Browne, Miss Shirley and Miss Mary Keener.

B. F. KEITH'S.

It is extremely doubtful if Boston has ever before seen such a remarkable series of water illusions as those in "Neptune's Garden of Living Statues" at B. F. Keith's Theatre. This sensational aquatic pantomime and water spectacle, which enters upon its third week of record-breaking business today, has created a veritable sensation throughout New England. As presented by Carlo Casetta, Lilian Lestora, Clara Sexton, and a company of twenty models, dancers, divers, water nymphs and pantomimists, this beautiful mythological water spectacle has become the talk of the town. Perhaps the most unique and novel feature of the production is the enchanted pool, into which ten living marble statues plunge and never re-appear to view. Other sensational features of the piece are the drowning of the robber in the mysterious pool, and the arising of the Nereids from the water at the command of Amphitrite. This great spectacle with its startling and baffling water illusions will lead a splendid bill, one of the novelties of the week being Toots Paka and her troupe of Hawaiians singers and instrumentalists. Miss Paka will appear in her sensational "Hula Hula Dance," a terpsichorean creation of the tropics, which has been in turn the sensation of New York and London. Other big features will be Billy McDermott, the tramp merrymaker; Du For Boys in a novel act; Julia Nash and her company of players in "Her First Case"; Three Stanleys, another trio of newcomers; Lew Brice and Lilian Ganne, just a couple of kids from school! Mlle. Martha and her Sisters in "While the boys are away;" and the Thomas A. Edison Talking Motion Pictures with all new subjects.

The KITCHEN CUPBOARD

SOME BEEF ECONOMIES.

THE cheaper cuts of beef may, if one knows how, be served in many tempting ways. The beef is quite as nourishing as the high priced cuts and affords one an easy way of curtailing the butcher's bill.

With a Tomato Relish.

Boiled Beef With Sauce.—Cut cold boiled beef in thin slices and arrange it on a gratin dish and cover it with a nice tomato sauce. Put the dish into the oven and let it simmer from eight to ten minutes and serve.

Hungarian Goulash. — Take two pounds lean chuck, two ounces salt pork, two cupfuls tomatoes, one stalk celery, one onion, two bay leaves, six whole cloves, six peppercorns, one blade mace. Cut beef in two inch pieces and sprinkle with flour. Fry salt pork until light brown. Add beef and cook slowly for about thirty-five minutes, stirring occasionally. Cover with water and simmer for about two hours. Form vegetables and spice into sauce. Cook in sufficient water to cover and rub through a sieve. Add some stock from meat and thicken. Add noodles to the meat broth in pot with meat. Serve meat on platter with sauce and noodles.

Served In Bread Cups.

Spiced Beef Liver.—Take one pound of liver, three slices of bacon, three tablespoonfuls of stewed tomatoes, quarter of a teaspoonful of cloves, quarter of a teaspoonful of nutmeg and salt and pepper to taste. Cut the liver into dice, wash and dry. Put the bacon into a frying pan and add the liver. Cook for about five minutes, then turn the liver into a stewpan and add a cupful of boiling water and the other ingredients. Cook slowly for about half an hour. Thicken with flour or cornstarch and serve in toasted bread cups.

With Sauce and Hominy.

Chopped Beet and Hominy.—For this put one and one-half pounds top of round steak through the meat chopper with a small piece of beef suet. Add one tablespoonful onion juice, one teaspoonful salt and one-eighth teaspoonful pepper. Mix lightly and shape like porterhouse steak. Put into shallow pan which has been brushed with drippings, place in hot oven ten minutes. Remove carefully on to hot platter and place in warm oven. Serve with a hominy and brown sauce border, garnish with sprigs of parsley or chopped parsley.

Anna Thompson.

There is more Catarrh in this section of the country than all other diseases put together, and until the last few years was supposed to be incurable. For a great many years doctors pronounced it a local disease and prescribed local remedies, and by constantly failing to cure local treatment pronounced it incurable. Science has proven catarrh to be a constitutional disease and therefore requires constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, Ohio, is the only constitutional cure on the market. It is taken internally in doses from 10 drops to a teaspoonful. It acts directly on the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. They offer one hundred dollars for any case it fails to cure. Send for circulars and testimonials.

WIND-UP OF THE SEASON

Congenial Club Enjoy Theatre Party and Dinner

Seldom is a happier or more lively crowd seen than that of Friday night when the Congenial club and honorary members wound up the season with a theatre party and dinner. Three autos conveyed the party to Boston. The night was fine and every one enjoyed the ride going and coming even if some of the party did come home on a flat tire.

After a few hours at Keith's theatre the party went to the Copley-Plaza for dinner, a pleasing feature of which was the presentation just before dinner was served of a diamond stick pin to Charles P. Gould, the presentation being made on behalf of the assembled party by Miss M. Lizzie Furnald. "Charlie" was more than surprised but after recovering from the shock managed to convey his thanks and appreciation in a few well spoken words.

Each member of the party was adorned with a red rose, the gift of one of the honorary members, and one and all pronounced the evening's celebration one of the most enjoyable ever held by the club.

ORIENTS VICTORY.

In keeping with their custom, the Orients continued their winning streak Saturday by defeating the West Roxburys on the latter's grounds, 11 to 6. Bradley allowed 11 hits while the Orients tapped two pitchers for 15 hits.

W. Roxbury	1	0	0	1	0	0	1	1	2	—6

Batteries—Bradley and J. Mattson; Marble, Selig and Bills.

OTHER GAMES.

The West Quincy beat the Colby Club of Dorchester Saturday 12 to 1. Knight, secured 18 strikeouts and allowed three hits. The feature of the game was the playing of Mulvey, a former New England league third base man, who exhibited considerable old time style in fielding. He secured one hit and fanned twice. "Dode" Galvin made a sensational catch in left field and Theodore Galvin also pulled down some dangerous drives in centre.

Captain Stanley pitched the Milton High school to a 3 to 2 victory over the Milton Academy in their annual game Saturday. High school scored two in the first and one in the second inning while the Academy made two in the eighth.

Thayer Academy won from Plymouth, 7 to 4, Saturday, in a fast game. M. Blackmur of Quincy, Thayer's third base man made three hits.

The Braintree White Sox beat the Brown Class at Braintree Saturday in the last inning, 6 to 4. Honey Moralis struck out 12 men and allowed five hits.

The United Shoe of Beverly beat the Deweys at Beverly Saturday, 4 to 3. "Arbie" Dam pitched for the Deweys and secured five strike outs. Sibert, second base man for Deweys made two hits.

The Tilton A. C. who play here every season beat the strong Moraine A. C. at Jamaica Plain Saturday, 12 to 5.

HOW RUSS FORD SILENCED A HOWLING FAN.

"Say, Ford," yelled a Newark fan as the New York American's star pitcher was receiving his bumps in a recent exhibition game, "the graveyard is two blocks away from here!" "Then it will be easy for you to go there and lie down," replied Sir Russell with a savage grin.

SPICY SPORT CHAT.

By TOMMY CLARK.

Though the baseball season is but a few weeks old, Ed Walsh has already appeared in more games than any other pitcher. He is taking his regular turn in the box and is being used as a pinch pitcher.

At the rate Walsh is being used he is on a fair way to establish another record for amount of work he will do in a single season, though the chances are that he would prove more effective if given the amount of rest between games that a pitcher is entitled to.

He has done more work during the past eight or nine seasons than any other pitcher in the game, but it is a question how long he will be able to stand the strain which is forced on him in the hope of keeping the White Sox in the race.

That the St. Louis Browns added another mighty clever pitcher to their string when they secured Wellman, the giant left hander, is being proved by the splendid work the youngster is doing. Wellman has twirled fine ball since the start of the campaign, and the chances are that he will show a lot of improvement as he goes along. He is a monster in size, being six feet five and a half inches in height and weighing around 200 pounds.

Every now and then a pitcher of ability is allowed to slip into the minor league only to be recalled by some major league club and make good. Tom Hughes of the Washingtons had this experience, and now Fred Falkenberg of the Clevelands seems destined to do the same thing. His pitching this season shows him to be much too valuable a man to have spent any time in the minors. Falkenberg has always been a winner, yet there was a prejudice against him because he had been dropped by a major league club. There is no doubt that in many instances a pitcher with experience in the majors is of more value to a big league club than some of the green youngsters who are brought into fast company.

Do the bugs know that there are two kinds of athletes actively participating in baseball? Yep; "ball players" and "pitchers." No ball tosser counts the pitcher as a "ball player." He is considered in the light of a specialist or of a man embarked in a wholly different line of trade. Now and then when mention is made of some hurler who can bat and field as well as pitch a chorus will rise from the circle, "Oh, yes—well, that fellow is a ball player!" The star pitcher of today, as a rule, is such a weak and helpless thing outside of his own business that he doesn't figure as a "ball player" at any time. "In a few more years," says Tom Clarke, the Cincinnati Reds' catcher, "it will be quite possible for clerks, bookkeepers, eyeglassed teachers, to develop pitching wisdom, go on the field, pitch good ball, solemnly strike out every time at bat, leave all the fielding to the other players and go home at night without even knowing whether the umpire should bat or where the shortstop ought to be located. Pitchers used to be ball players long ago, but not any more."

POISON GNAWS AT HIS VITALS

Banker Warned He Must Die, Though Feeling Well

HE PREPARES FOR THE END

Invites Friends to Farewell Reception and Draws Up His Will Before Uremic Poisoning Sets In and He Becomes Unconscious—Physicians Are Powerless to Render Aid

Macon, Ga., May 19.—B. S. Walker, prominent banker and real estate agent of this city, who took poison by mistake last Wednesday night, is unconscious and believed to be dying.

Shortly after he took the poison by mistake, Walker was told by his doctors that he could not live more than a few days. He resigned himself to his fate.

Mrs. Walker collapsed at first, but bore up bravely on Friday, and Friday night Walker left his bed, dressed and held a reception to his friends. He told them the end was near. Saturday he drew up his will. In the afternoon uremic poisoning set in.

Walker returned from the summer home of his father-in-law, W. C. Stevens, a wealthy pottery manufacturer, twenty miles from Macon, last Tuesday evening. His wife and child remained there. He passed the night at the family residence, but was disturbed at 3 o'clock in the morning by a severe headache. He went to a medicine shelf to get an aspirin tablet and by mistake took a tablet from a box of bichloride of mercury. This box had on it the lid of the aspirin box.

Walker did not discover his mistake for three hours. Intense pain caused him to summon a physician. The patient thought he was having an attack of appendicitis. The physician realized that a critical stage had already been reached and soon found the poison.

A consultation of physicians followed in the hope of saving the patient's life and advice was sought by telegraph from many hospitals.

Walker's kidneys have been paralyzed by the dose of poison and the physicians have been unable to give him relief. Walker has made such business plans as were necessary in view of approaching death and is surrounded by members of his family.

The rising of the tide is no more certain, physicians say, than the death of Walker within the next twenty-four hours. Until Saturday he was conscious at all times, free from pain and apparently in the same excellent health he has enjoyed for many years. Outside of a slight pallor on his cheeks no one would know that inside his system the fatal poison was carrying him nearer the grave at every tick of his big grandfather's clock in his fine home.

The gnawing of the poison for the first few hours made him realize his mistake. Physicians were summoned, but admitted their helplessness in counteracting the work of that particular poison, which sometimes kills in a day and often in two weeks. The poison clogs the kidneys and attacks other functions of the body, but causes no pain after the first few hours.

DROWNING ACCIDENTS

Four Cornell Students Believed to Have Lost Their Lives

Ithaca, N. Y., May 19.—Four Cornell students, two men and two women, all members of the sophomore class, lost their lives in Cayuga lake, according to all the evidence, when a canoe upset somewhere between Willow point and the Renwick pier.

The students were Miss Mary Cornelia Mallett of Middletown, N. Y.; Miss Martha McCormick of Troy, N. Y.; Brainard Bailey of Troy, N. Y., and Reinhart C. Zimmer of Rochester.

North Easton, Mass., May 19.—August Johnson and Peter Cordensky, after fishing all night at Long pond in a leaky boat, were drowned when Johnson accidentally overturned their boat in bailing it out in ten feet of water but thirty feet from the shore.

CHARGED WITH BITING SON

Alleged Assault by Mother Because Little Fellow Disobeyed

Lynn, Mass., May 19.—Charged with biting her 4-year-old son, William, on the ear, shoulder and arm, Mrs. Ellen Rasas was arrested on complaint of neighbors.

It was said that the boy was playing in the yard and his mother told him to come in. He paid no heed to her demands, and, it is alleged, that the woman rushed into the yard and bit him.

At the police station the woman and her husband pleaded so hard with Chief of Police Burckes that he allowed her to go on promise to appear in court today.

Brooklyn Barbers Win Strike

New York, May 19.—Seven thousand Brooklyn barbers, whose strike a week ago subsequently spread to Manhattan, have gone back to their chairs, their demands having been granted.

LIKE CURES LIKE

By ELIZABETH WEED

Dr. Vermatille, the renowned Paris stomach specialist, being overworked, broke down and was obliged to give up the practice of his profession, at least temporarily. Before starting for the Riviera, where he proposed to recuperate, he turned over his patients to Dr. Hartwell, a young American who had studied medicine in Paris and after graduation had accepted a position with Dr. Vermatille preparatory to setting up for a specialist in America.

The two were sitting together in Dr. Vermatille's office, going over an alphabetical list of patients and a brief statement of the symptoms of each. Under the letter "L" came the name of Lasant, Louise.

"Mlle. Lasant," said Dr. Vermatille, "you will find a difficult case to diagnose. At least I have not yet made up my mind as to the nature of her disease. She is languid, takes no interest in anything, has no appetite and is inclined to melancholy. I have recommended a diet of the most digestible food and given her charcoal and other stomach remedies. She has responded to none of them. Possibly you may stumble on the weak spot that is causing the trouble, and if you do, as you well know, the battle is half won."

"Lasant?" said Dr. Hartwell, striving to recall the person to whom the name belonged. "Is not she a young lady about twenty years old, very beautiful, with chestnut hair and soft brown eyes? I think I visited such a patient one day—no; it was her mother—when you were out of town."

"Perhaps so," replied Dr. Vermatille and proceeded to give a statement of the case of the next patient on the list.

A few days after Dr. Vermatille's departure Dr. Hartwell while making his round of visits called upon Mlle. Lasant. He found her dressed in negligee costume lying on a lounge in her boudoir reading a novel. On seeing the doctor a slight flush came into her cheeks.

"A little fever this morning, eh?" said the doctor cheerily, at the same time gently pushing a gold bracelet up on to her arm that he might feel her pulse. The moment he touched her wrist he felt a quickened throbbing. "Feverish, not fever," he continued. "There is a difference, I assure you."

Then the doctor asked her if she felt loss of breath in going upstairs, whether she suffered distress after eating, if she slept well. To all of these questions she gave satisfactory replies. Hartwell, being no wiser as to her case than before, resorted to the usual device of physicians, took out his prescription blanks, and, filling one out with some hieroglyphics which any properly educated druggist would know meant pure water with an agreeable flavoring, he took his leave, promising to call again in a few days.

"At what hour?" asked the young lady.

"About the same as today," replied the young man.

On his next visit he found his patient in a ravishing morning costume, some cut flowers in a vase standing on a table and a silk blanket of colors becoming to the young lady's complexion thrown over her.

"Ah," he exclaimed, "I see that you are much better!"

"Better? I assure you I am much worse. I thought you said you were coming again in a few days?"

"This is Friday. I was here on Monday."

"But I expected you on Wednesday."

"Pardon my neglect. Since Dr. Vermatille's departure I have been very busy."

When this morning the doctor took the round wrist between his thumb and the tips of his fingers he felt not only a quick throbbing in his patient, but a tingling of his own, which, coursing through his arm, thrilled him.

"I think," he said, "that your trouble is in the heart."

The patient lowered her eyes.

"You need fresh air. There is nothing like pure oxygen to build up the system. Instead of giving you drugs I will take you out to the Bois de Boulogue. The buds are swelling and the birds are singing. My carriage stands at the door. What do you say?"

Throwing off her silken blanket, she sprang from her couch, ran into another room to change her costume and presently returned charmingly dressed for a drive.

Paris in the spring has always been a delightful city, and the spring season is admirably adapted for making love. The young doctor, having discovered the kind of medicine his patient required, gave it in sugar coated doses. He drove her out every day that he could possibly snatch from his duties, and when not able to see her in the daytime he made up for the loss by a long visit in the evening. Indeed, most of his time during his chief's absence was given to one patient, the only one of the lot who did not need his professional attention.

When Dr. Vermatille returned he sat down with his assistant to listen to a report of the condition of his patients.

"Lasant, Louise," he said, reading from the list.

"Recovered. I found that from the date of my visit to Mme. Lasant some time before your departure her daughter suffered from cardiac trouble."

"What treatment did you apply?"

"I acted on the homeopathic principle of 'like cures like.'"

"H'm! The next is Lavigne, Henri."

BRIEFS

Mrs. John Cummings and son of Attleboro are spending a few days with Mrs. Albert Hall of Faxon road.

Friends of George Jenkins of Spear street, will be sorry to learn that he has been removed to the City Hospital ill with pneumonia.

Maple lodge, K. of L. of H., is to have a bean bag contest at the close of its regular meeting on Wednesday evening with souvenirs for all that enter.

E. E. Miller and family of Bigelow street, spent the week end at Scituate beach where Mrs. Litchfield has a cottage for the summer.

Miss Annie R. Birnie, the second grade teacher at the Cranch school, has been awarded a certificate of proficiency in the Palmer method of writing. Miss Birnie commenced her studies eight weeks ago and made fine progress. The course ordinarily requires about six months for adults and one or more years for children.

The final meeting of the Cranch Parents'-Teachers' Association will be held in the school Tuesday evening The speaker of the evening will be Albert L. Barbour, superintendent of schools, who will talk on "Public education and public expenditure." Mr. Barbour has delivered this talk to other associations in the city.

George Fallon, a well known base ball player is on his annual vacation and will spend it playing base ball with the Frederickton team of the New Brunswick-Maine league. He substituted at Lowell with the New England team the latter part of the week and performed well. His idea of a vacation is base ball unrestrained and for once he plans to realize his desires.

In order that those intending to take in the conclave of the Knights Templars of the United States at Denver, Col., in July, may have an opportunity to learn about the trip, a lecture illustrated by the stereopticon will be held in Masonic hall tonight under the auspices of Quincy Commandery. Ladies will be present at the lecture and refreshments will be served.

Electric signs are becoming very fashionable in Quincy. Three new signs of this character are being erected today by the Electric sign company of which James E. Neary of this city is a member. One of the largest of these signs is to be placed in front of the coal office of Cyrus Patch & Son. Several other large signs are contemplated.

Mrs. A. Hubert, a prominent dressmaker of South Quincy, and her daughter Eva, left this city today for Attleboro, where they are to make their future home. Mrs. Hubert has been engaged in the dressmaker's art in South Quincy for over twenty-five years and although her patrons regret her going away they extend their best wishes to them both in their new surroundings.

EXPLANATION WANTED OF ASSESSORS

Why Valuation List Was Not Printed As Ordered by City Council

Additional $100,000 Wanted for Temporary Loans

There was little or no excitement at Monday night's meeting of the City Council. Business was put through with dispatch and an adjournment was reached at 9.35. There was quite a lot of new business but outside of the Committee on Licenses there were no committee reports. The absent members were Councilmen Boyd and Cunningham.

PETITIONS.

A communication was received from Mrs. Adelaide Sutherland asking for permission for children to appear on the stage at the Wollaston Congregational church at a musicale. Laid on the table until later when Councilman Gilliatt offered an order granting the permit which was adopted.

A large number of applications for minor licenses were received and referred to the License committee.

A. G. Olney and Michael T. Sullivan made applications for auctioneer's licenses. Laid on the table until later when they were granted.

The Electric Light Co. was granted a relocation for poles on Safford street. An application for a location for poles on Bradford street was referred to the Street committee.

A petition in favor of Hyman Katz being granted a license to collect junk was referred to the License committee.

A petition that Jackson street be extended through to Quincy street was received and under the rules referred to the next Council. On motion of Councilman Ross the reference was withdrawn and the petition admitted under suspension of the rules and referred to the Committee on Streets.

A petition against granting a double track location on Elm avenue was received and referred to the Committee on Streets.

MILK ORDINANCE.

A communication was received from the City Solicitor giving his opinion on the order revoking the Milk ordinance. His opinion was that the ordinance conflicted with the rules of the Board of Health and with the law on the question. The order revoking the ordinance was then adopted.

While the Milk ordinance was under discussion, Councilman Griffin asked a number of question. As near as he could learn the Inspector of Milk had been asleep. In other years he had informed people that once a license was obtained it lasted for ever. He believed there should be some supervision of the milk business.

Mayor Stone said that previous to this year the situation as stated by the Councilman was true. But the Inspector this year had taken hold of the matter and insisted dealers get a license every year.

ELM AVENUE TRACKS.

At 8 o'clock a public hearing was held on changing the tracks of the street railway on Elm avenue from the side to the centre of the street and granting the company a location for a single or double track.

W. P. Woodward, John L. Hamilton and J. K. Barbour appeared in favor of changing the location but opposed a double track location. They also favored a grass border. Hearing closed and order recommitted.

A public hearing was held at 8.30 on the petition of H. W. Kolstead to keep and sell gasoline. Mr. Kolstead appeared in favor and none against. Hearing closed and order recommitted.

Councilman Griffin presented a largely signed petition from residents Ward Two protesting against the establishment of a so called junk zone, and asking for a hearing. Referred to the License Committee.

REPORTS ON LICENSES.

The Committee on Licenses reported orders granting sixty Sunday fruit licenses, twenty common victualler licenses and a few licenses for job wagons and innholders. Orders adopted.

The Committee on Licenses reported ought to pass on the order granting Sam Silverman a license to collect junk. Order laid on the table.

The Committee on Licenses reported leave to withdraw on the applications of Mary Silver and Josephine Romeri for Sunday fruit licenses, Josephine

Everybody Wants Butter That is Fresh Churned

There's a wholsesome, fresh-churned sweetness about Northern butter that you can't find in other butter. Most tub butter has lost its purity and flavor by the time it reaches your table.

Randolph Creamery Butter

is made from Pasteurized cream and has that delicious richness that reminds you of the Spring days when the cows are browsing in the green grass and giving the best cream of the year. The natural color pleases you and it lacks the greasy appearance of butter that has been in storage.

Randolph Creamery Butter is made by country people in the cleanest and most sanitary dairy in the world. It is a butter that cannot be equalled by any other store in Quincy, yet it costs no more than Western butter.

Give it a good test by trying it on hot biscuit or short cake, and see what the best butter is like. You will never go back to ordinary butter.

For a few Days, Randolph Creamery Butter lb. 32c

Foy's Quality Coffee, a delightful blended coffee, is ground to your order. Nothing better else we would have it, lb. 33c.

Store will close tomorrow (Wednesday) at 1 o'clock.

GLEE CLUB BANQUET

Successful and Enjoyable Season Brought to Close

The annual meeting and banquet of the Wollaston Glee club in the Unitarian vestry Monday evening brought to a close the twelfth successful year of this society. A large number sat down to the feast prepared, the tables being beautifully decorated with cut flowers.

Herbert J. Gurney, president of the club acted as toast master for the after dinner exercises that followed. Mr. Gurney spoke of the success with which the efforts of the club had been accorded, and of the added responsibilities of the future.

F. K. Linscott the secretary, and Dr. E. R. Johnson, the treasurer, read reports brimming over with wit and humor. This year, according to the reports, closed the best year, both financially and artistically that the club has experienced.

The club director, John A. Crowley, who has presided in this capacity for ten years, was called upon and responded with a well turned speech.

Frank C. Blake and W. F. Kimball were among the associate members responding.

A fine musical program consisting of cello solos by Miss Marion Moorhouse, vocal solos by J. Barraja-Frauenfelder and selections by the Glee club were much enjoyed.

The evening closed with "Soldiers Farewell" by the club, and the singing of "Auld Lang Syne" by all present.

Among the members and guests attending were:

Mr. and Mrs. Richard Bishop.
Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Broughton.
Miss Grace I. Bishop.

The general orders will soon be issued.

GEORGE W. JENKINS.

George W. Jenkins of 59 Spear street died this morning in his 68th year, after a short illness. For many years he was the distributing agent for various launderies, being connected the last few years with Taylor Brothers. He was born in Boston and came to Quincy in his early days. His father was proprietor of the old Squantum Hotel. He was a regular attendant of services at Bethany church. The funeral will be held at the home Wednesday afternoon.

CLASS OF 1912 REUNION.

For the purpose of renewing friendships and again joining in the happy whirl of pleasure the Class of 1912 of the Quincy High school is planning a reception at Alpha hall, May 31. Although but a short year has elapsed since the members were awarded their diplomas some of the students have not seen each other since the class party. Several of the students are post graduates at the High school. The committee arranging the affair consists of Miss Louise Prout, Miss Eleanor Whittemore, Philip Halvosa and Sam Prout.

Joseph Merritt, the Y. M. C. A. physical director at Montreal, arrived Sunday with his wife and two children for a two days' visit.

CHANGES AT NAVY YARD

Probability That Some Ships Will Be Built There

Franklin D. Roosevelt, the assistant secretary of the Navy was at the Boston navy yard on Monday. It is expected that as a result of the visit that the yard will be equipped for building revenue cutters and supply ships and later for the construction of larger craft;—that there will be more permanent employment for the men;—that more ships of the dreadnought class will be assigned to the yard for repairs;— that the piece work and bonus system will not be established, during the present Administration at least and that in the future workmen will be represented on the board that establishes the annual wage rates.

PARADE OF ORANGEMEN.

Quincy Loyal Orange Lodge is making the arrangements to take part in the parade and church services to be held in Boston, June 1, under the auspices of Plymouth Rock lodge. The parade will start from the Paine Memorial building and will end at Tremont Temple where an address will be delivered by Rev. Allan A. Rideout, past provincial grand master of New Brunswick.

Rev. J. E. Lillback, pastor of the Finnish Congregational church delivered the sermon on Sunday at the laying of the corner stone for a new Finnish church at Maynard. He translated several sermons from English to Finnish and also spoke in English In the evening he preached at the Congregational church in that town.

Schwab a Witness in the Steel Merger Case

Charles M. Schwab, the new owner of the Fore River Shipbuilding Corporation was a witness in defense of the United States Steel Corporation on Monday at New York in the Federal suit seeking to dissolve the steel merger. He said in part that no plants had ever been dismantled by the corporation except where two were manufacturing the same products in the same district or were obsolete. "No plant was ever purchased," he said, "for the purpose of dismantling it."

Y. M. C. A. ANNUAL.

The annual meeting of the Quincy Young Mens Christian Association will be held in the Association building on Tuesday evening, May 27 at 8 o'clock. Reports from the various committees election of directors for the coming term and other business will be transacted. In addition to the regular business there will be two stirring addresses, one by Dr. A. L. Hudson of First church, and the other by Rev. George M. Bailey of Wollaston Methodist church. A. L. Hayden will sing.

Joseph Haley of Nashua, N. H., a councilman of that city, is here for a few days on business. He has called on several former residents of his city who are employed at the Fore River yard. Mr. Haley is a comparitively young man and is a representative of one of the largest stationery houses in the country.

New Metropolitan parkways are suggested in Cambridge, Somerville and elsewhere, but it was understood that the Metropolitan Park Commissioners were to complete parkways already started before new work was undertaken. The Quincy Shore parkway is a beautiful drive, but it starts nowhere and leads nowhere Land takings were made some years ago to connect it with the Furnace Brook parkway, and Quincy has thought more than once that the Legislature had made appropriations for the work, but there seems to be nothing sure. At least no immediate prospects of the improvement being made. Our Mayor should be a frequent caller at the office of the Metropolitan Park Commission and show that Quincy is not longer to be put aside. The Quincy Shore parkway should be extended this year to Hancock street near the High school; and next year to the Furnace Brook parkway at Adams street.

Like everything else our county tax is going up, but perhaps Quincy should not kick just now because we have a handsome new county building. There was a time when Milton paid a much larger county tax than Quincy, but since Quincy became a city our valuation has jumped a million a year and now Quincy must pay $3000 more than Milton. Brookline pays over one-third of the Norfolk county taxes, and Quincy over one-tenth. Brookline, Quincy and Milton together pay over one-half and very nearly three-fifths of the county tax. Quincy appears to be getting wealthy as well as populous.

The 200th anniversary of the incorporation of the town of Quincy, on May 25th, 1840, was held on the "Hancock Lot" now the Adams Academy Grounds, where the Memorial Day exercises will be held this year. Under a spacious pavilion, says history, a sumptuous repast was served by Daniel French. Again on July Fourth of the same year there was a Democratic celebration on the "Hancock Lot" with a dinner served by Daniel French and Son. The Quincy Light Infantry participated in this jollification and activity in politics caused its abandonment the next year. It will seem like old times therefore to meet on the "Hancock Lot."

Bethany church again demonstrates that it is a church for service. The installation of oriphones at quite an expense shows that this church is anxious to bring the blessings of religious service to the afflicted. They want everyone to enjoy services at this church. The installation of oriphones is something that would be benefactors might well encourage not only in the churches, but in public halls and elsewhere. Then the deaf could own receivers and take them along, connections being easily made. Thus they would better enjoy life.

One sporting writer says that it is now anybody's pennant. But from the claims put forward by the various baseball managers we are led to believe that it is everybody's pennant.

It is nip and tuck in New York between the gangsters and the police. If they'd wipe each other out maybe the city would be better off.

A class of nine men at Cornell, are taking a course in cooking. Nothing like being prepared for these suffragettes and other emergencies.

There is also a mining interest for the Chicago gardener. He unearths many curious mementos of an earlier civilization.

Some of the new paper currency will picture the face of a handsome young woman. Something must be done to make money popular.

Maybe the Japanese will no commit —oh! what is it they commit whenever they are peeved?

HISTORIC QUINCY.

City of Presidents Has Much of Interest

Old historic Quincy settled in 1625 has much of interest to visitors When Braintree was incorporated in 1640, the territory now known as Quincy, was a part. In 1792 Quincy became an independent town, and in 1888 was incorporated as a city.

Quincy was named in honor of Col John Quincy, descendant in the third generation from Edmund, 2d, who settled in Quincy, in 1634; grand-father of Abigail (Smith) Adams, the wife and mother of a President of the United States.

The city includes Wollaston, Atlantic, Quincy Point, South Quincy, West Quincy, Montclair, Norfolk Downs Wollaston Park, Squantum, Houghs Neck, Adams Shore, Germantown and Quincy Neck, comprising in all over 16 square miles, of which 2,530 acres are in public parks.

Birthplace of John Quincy Adams the sixth President of the United States, junction of Franklin street Presidents road and Independence avenue. Built 1716, restored 1896 by the Quincy Historical Society. Open to public afternoons from 2 to 5. Admission charged.

Abigail Adams Cairn.

Penns Hill, erected June 17, 1896 by Adams Chapter, Daughters of the Revolution, to the memory of Abigail Adams, who with her son, John Quincy from the spot watched the smoke of battle at Bunker Hill. Cairn composed of many historic stones, the corner stone being part of the old sleeper of first railroad in United States which ran from Quincy quarries to tide water, Neponset river.

Burial Place of Presidents.

First Congregational Church (Unitarian) at Quincy centre. In auditorium each side of high pulpit, are mural monuments, to the memory of John Adams, the second president, and John Quincy Adams, the sixth president of the United States, and their wives. The funeral of John Quincy Adams was held in this church. Beneath the entrance is the Adams tomb reached by stairways from the vestibule. Near the tomb is the box in which was brought from Washington the body of John Quincy Adams, also the old town hearse.

Hancock Cemetery.

Hancock cemetery across the street from First church contains many old stones. Among the old graves are those of Henry Adams founder of the Adams family who died Oct. 5, 1646; Rev. William Thompson, 1st pastor over the Braintree church who died Dec. 10, 1666; Rev. Henry Flint who died Oct. 11, 1668; Rev. John Hancock father of the Patriot who died May 7 1744, and many other notable people.

John Hancock Birthplace.

Adams street, junction of Dimmick and Hancock streets. A bronze tablet has been placed by the City of Quincy on Adams Academy to mark the place where the house stood in which the patriot John Hancock, the bold signer of the Declaration of Independence was born.

President Adams Mansion.

Adams street, corner Newport avenue, Quincy. Residence of President John Adams and contains many family relics. Occupied by descendants Not open to public.

Presidents Lane.

Now Goffe street, leading from Adams street, near Mansion. Opened by John Adams to drive his cows to pasture.

Dorothy Q. House.

Has quaint old paper on parlor put on for wedding of John Hancock and Dorothy Quincy; also secret chamber and other interesting features. Open free to the public on Saturdays, from 11 A. M., until 4 P. M Other days admission charged.

Myles Standish Cairn.

Squantum heights, erected in 1895 by the Daughters of the Revolution of Massachusetts, in memory of Captain Myles Standish and his men of Plymouth Colony, who landed here Sept. 30, 1621, guided by the Indian Tisquantum.

Myles Standish Spring.

On the beach to the left and back of Squantum Inn. Spring of fresh cold water, where Standish and his party breakfasted and thence started to explore the country around Boston Bay.

Squaw Rock.

Pile of rock, on which is a perfect head of a squaw, frequently mentioned in early Squantum history. Near by is also Sachem's Knoll.

BOY ARRESTED.

William Henry, proprietor of the Fore River restaurant, who resides at 585 Washingtons treet was awakened about 10 o'clock Sunday night by the sound of breaking glass. Getting up he saw two boys trying to break into the store of Howard Rogers on Washington street just across the way. Mr. Henry got up and going out placed the boys under arrest. He then took them to the home of Probation Officer Fahey, who after hearing the story of Mr. Henry and recognizing one of the boys as an old offender, called the police station and the patrol wagon was sent down and the boys taken to the police station for the night. The boys did not succeed in getting into the store as the breaking glass aroused Mr. Henry. When he came out of his house he saw the boys crawl from under a step where they had evidently been in hiding and start to run away. He then placed them under arrest. They will appear at the Juvenile court May 27.

KINCAIDE THEATRE.

Yesterday afternoon and evening two large audiences were well pleased with the big feature show, now playing at Quincy's "Theatre Beautiful." Mitchell Bros. "Dutch Rough House" is a scream from start to finish. Joe Cary sings with a way of his own and does some exceptionally good yodeling. Lee Allen and Lucia Arnold are a classy couple of entertainers with a laugh-provoking skit "Sense and Consience." Claud Fredericks introduces Don, a beautiful Shetland pony with almost human intelligence. The Mutual Weekly is full of interest. And "The unlucky horse shoe" a 3-act play produced in Copenhagen Denmark, is an exceptionally fine picture.

One of the strong attractions coming Thursday is LaPetite Ouri "The girl on the golden wheel." This is the act that made such a sensation at Hammerstein, N. Y. City last week.

MISSIONARIES TO SPEAK.

Two sessions of the Womans Board of Missions will be held in Quincy tomorrow at Bethany Congregational church, at 10 A. M. and 2 P. M., with addresses by Miss Kyle, Mrs. Frank G. Cook, Mrs. W. L. Adam, Miss Susan R. Howland, of Uduvil, Ceylon, Miss Calder, Mrs. Samuel C. Bartlett, Otura, Japan, Miss Edith Gates, of Ahmeduagar India, Miss Preston, Mrs. Charles E. Ewing, Tientsin, India, Rev. J. K. Browne, Harpoot, Turkey and Mrs. Daniels. All people are cordially invited to these interesting addresses.

MISSIONARY RALLY.

A young people's rally of the Norfolk and Pilgrim branch will be held at Bethany church Wednesday evening at 7.30. The opening exercises will be by Rev. Dr. Sneath of the Wollaston Congregational church. Miss Edith Gates will speak on apportunities for young people in India, Miss Elizabeth Pettee on opportunities in Japan and Miss Mary Preston on opportunities in America. The public is invited.

COHASSET ACCIDENTS CASE.

An inquest on the death of Mrs. Beulah R. Smith of Brookline, who died from injuries sustained in an auto accident at Cohasset, May 11, will be held in the Quincy court on Wednesday morning. Frederick G. Katzmann, assistant district attorney will conduct the inquest and Judge Albert E. Avery will be on the bench. Thos. Bates, chief of police of Cohasset and State officer John Scott have made an investigation. Eight witnesses were served with summonses Monday afternoon and evening.

Paul Moulton, a former Quincy resident, who operated the wrecked machine and Francis W. Holmes, another passenger, will probably not appear since they are in a Boston Hospital recovering from injuries.

GIRLS' BEDROOMS.

How to Make Them Attractive at Small Expense.

EFFECTS WITH CUSHIONS.

If You Have an Old Indigo Blue Bedspread In Woven Design Use It by All Means In Your Furnishings—Delightful Color Scheme In Shell Pink. The Charm of Fish Net.

Here are some suggestions for making a young girl's bedroom charming and dainty during the summer months. If you have among the heirlooms in your house an old woven bedspread of wool in indigo blue and white you can make a wonderful cushion out of blue denim, with some embroidered Japanese swallows in flight on it. The stitches can be of the long and easily worked type, and you will be surprised to find how few of them will make a dainty, airy effect in embroidering these white and gray swallows skimming across an imaginary sky of denim.

If your bedspread is of cretonne, with a canary tone predominating, your cushion would be a perfectly charming one made of a pale gold shade of sateen with a small spray of purple wistaria embroidered across it or else big purple clematis. Tie this to the chair with violet ribbon. The bedspread and cushions really give the keynote to the room in color and are very important in the scheme of furnishings. Now, suppose your favorite color to be shell pink. You can carry out the scheme in a bedspread of sateen with appliques of lace medallions over it at intervals, and you can have cushions of the same sateen with smaller lace medallions thereon. Fish net is very "artistic" used over plain color for spread and cushions, with a big, soft bow of ribbon on the spread and one on the tie couch cushion. A simple delft pattern is lovely in cretonne, and this makes a pretty blue and white spread and cushions with delft blue bows. But the most fascinating color for a spread is light green. It is airy and springlike, and the embroidered fern front for the cushion is just perfect in the way of suggesting the return of buds and flowers to the woods.

HOLIDAY MAKERS.

Timely Tips For Vacationists That May Come In Handy.

After walking in the rain it is a good idea to lay one's boots on their sides in order that air may get to the wettest parts. If boot trees have been left at home the boots should be stuffed with newspaper, which will keep them in shape.

The unaccustomed hardness of the water mars the pleasure of holiday makers in some parts of the country. When rainwater is not obtainable a little borax or ammonia will prove a good softener.

A canvas covered traveling trunk may be waterproofed as follows: Make up a liquor of one pound of yellow soap dissolved in a quart of hot water. Add to this three quarts of boiled oil and a quart of turpentine. Mix well together and apply two coats. When thoroughly dry apply a third coat in which about twice its weight of dark brown oxide or lampblack ground in oil has been well stirred. This may now be coated over once or twice with very hard black japan slightly thinned with turpentine or (more cheaply) with a good paint thinned with best copal varnish and turpentine.

Put a few paper napkins in your bag when traveling. When your hands get dirty or sticky use a clean paper napkin to wipe them. If the railway car window is steamed and you wish to look out wipe it with one of the paper napkins. You will in this way save many ordinary handkerchiefs.

If the necessary black boot polish has been left behind a cut orange dipped in a shovelful of soot from the chimney is a makeshift which can usually be turned to account in the most out of the way places. The carbon from a kettle is just as good for the purpose as chimney soot.

New Materials For Pillow Tops.

Moquette velours, new among pillow top fabrics, is a lovely weave of softest coloring in Persian rug designs and, while a bit expensive, is reputed to wear indefinitely. Of equally attractive design and coloring are the squares of silk tapestry or silk damask that come in the various pillow sizes, and somewhat more practical looking are the tops of hand tooled leather in Indian red. Chinese blue and Japanese tea green. A new material of the launderable sort that is ideal for pillow tops and far from costly is an unfadable madras of lacy openwork weave. It comes in lovely shades of green, brown, blue, rose and gold, in two toned effects and in combinations of brown with green or rose and of pale blue with gold or violet.

Linen Economy.

For the woman who has no maid or who has a small apartment and does her own laundry work a great deal of labor may be saved by using paper napkins instead of linen ones when there are no guests present. The laundering of napkins takes quite a little time and care, and one might just as well have that time for a bit of rest or reading. Paper towels, too, have been made quite practical and especially where there are children will also be found a great labor saving device.

MRS. JAMES E. MYERS.

A simple impressive funeral service was held Sunday afternoon for Louise Belle, wife of James E. Myers at her late residence, 36 Cleveland avenue, Braintree.

Mrs. Myers was born at Quincy Point 48 years ago; one of twelve children of the late Mr. and Mrs. Thomas W. Carter, and the first of that number to enter the heavenly life. She was married to Mr. Myers in July 1886 and continued to live in Quincy until about two years ago when they removed to Braintree. Mrs. Myers was long identified with Bethany church, uniting with it during Rev. Mr. Norton's pastorate.

Large numbers gathered for the service which was in charge of Rev. Harry Grimes of the First Congregational church, Braintree, who read the scripture and briefly referred to the deceased as he had come to know her sterling worth during the brief time she had been connected with the Braintree church. Rev. Mr. Norton in a most tender, helpful, comforting way spoke of the consolations of God and Rev. L. H. Austin, of Roslindale, a brother-in-law, referred to the personal traits of character which made her life so rich and beautiful in home and church and so greatly endeared her to a wide circle of friends. Four of these friends: Dr. C. T. Sherman, Mrs. E. C. Moore, Miss Mary Murray and Mr. Joseph Hewes sang three favorite hymns: "Beautiful Isle of Somewhere," "Beautiful Beckoning Hands," and "I am with you."

A profusion of flowers, filling the room where the casket was placed bore silent tribute to the esteem in which the deceased was held. Nine of the brothers and sisters were present at the service, four of the brothers acting as bearers.

Mrs. Myers leaves a husband and two sons. James E., Jr., and Harold C. now grown to young manhood. The burial was at Mt. Wollaston cemetery, Quincy.

TRIP TO DENVER.

Quite a large party of sir knights and their ladies were present at Masonic hall, Monday evening to hear the lecture on "Denver and the west." The lecture at this time is of particular interest as several of the members of Quincy commandery with their ladies are planning to take in the trip to Denver in August to attend the conclave of the Grand Commandery of the United States.

The lecture was given by George W. Penniman, a former well known resident of Quincy, and was illustrated by nearly one hundred stereopticon views. It was an exceedingly interesting and instructive lecture and served to prepare those intending to take the trip of what they may expect to see.

After the lecture an adjournment was made to the banquet hall where ice cream and cake were served.

RAPIDLY RECUPERATING.

Charles J. McGilvray, Crescent treet, one of the pharmacists of the Walsh Drug Co., made his first trip to City Square on Monday for some time. Six weeks ago he was suddenly taken ill and was removed to his home in a dangerous condition. For nearly a week he hovered on the brink of the great beyond but inate strength came to his assistance and he is rapidly recuperating. "Chic" aside from being a popular member of the Quincy lodge of Elks is one of the best known young men about town, and he was busy Monday accepting the good wishes of his many friends.

HIGH SCHOOL PUPIL DEAD

Miss Edith B. Sullivan Passed Away On Monday

Miss Edith B. Sullivan, a member of the class of 1914 of the Quincy High school died Monday morning at home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Frank P. Sullivan. 55 Washington street, in her 18thy car. About five weeks ago she suspended school attendance because of a slight illness. She developed pneumonia and it proved fatal.

Miss Sullivan was born in Lubeck, Maine, and came to Quincy with her parents about six years ago. She was graduated from the Coddington grammar school in 1910 where she had attained a good scholarship record.

Entering the High school she immediately became popular with the students and was gladly welcomed by members of all classes. She continued her high standard of scholarship and had planned to continue in other schools after her graduation.

She was an active member of the Sunday School of the Bethany Congregational Church.

The funeral will take place Thursday afternoon. Services will be conducted by Rev. Benjamin A. Willmott. Interment will be in Mt. Wollaston cemetery.

Besides her parents Mr. and Mrs. Frank P. Sullivan, she leaves two brothers, Russell E. and F. Lloyd, the latter a freshman at the Quincy High school.

TAKEN TO ASYLUM.

Havelock Keith of Wollaston Park, who was injured three weeks ago when he was thrown from his team at Atlantic, was ordered committed to an asylum this morning, as a direct result of the accident. At the time of the accident Mr. Keith was thrown out and landed on his head causing concussion of the brain. He was removed to the City Hospital where he remained some time until his brother succeeded in having him discharged and removed to his home, in spite of some protests that were made.

Monday he became violently insane and Chief Burrell sent down three officers to look after him. They were unable to handle the man and a fourth officer was sent down and he was taken to the police station for the night.

This morning he was examined by City Physician Dr. John H. Ash and Dr. Daniel Bruce, who found him unbalanced and he was ordered committed to the asylum at Taunton. It is supposed that a clot of blood has formed on his brain as a result of the accident.

BRIEFS

It is reported that Councilman Cunningham has purchased a residence north of Boston and is soon to make his home there.

Further arrangements for the annual June Festival of St. Mary's parish were made at a meeting of the general committee Monday evening. The date has been set as June 28 and the St. Joseph's Hall and the grounds surrounding it will be the place. A varied program has been arranged. The committee is headed by William T. Shea, chairman and Michael F. Riley, secretary.

Merton A. Turner, sales manager of the Montiquot Rubber Works Company, South Braintree, is making an extended trip through eastern Canada and the middle west. The high quality of the goods which this company produces and the fair treatment given its customers assures him a trip both pleasant and profitable. Mr. Turner will be away about two weeks.

Olindo S. Taddei of Quincy, who formerly conducted the Quincy School of music has entered vaudeville and recently closed an engagement at Laconia, N. H. During the winter seasons he plays a cello with the Boston Symphony Orchestra and has been the soloist at a number of select Boston concerts in Jordan hall. He has many friends here who wish him success.

The purchase by the city of two lots of land in the rear of the City stables means that the public dump which has long been located on Valley street and has equally as long been an eyesore to that neighborhood, is to be abandoned and that a new dump is to be established on the land recently purchased. The Valley street dump being directly opposite the Mt. Wollaston cemetery made it particularly objectionable.

CREW'S LIVES IMPERILLED

Vesuvius Struck and Badly Damaged by One of Her Own Torpedoes

Newport, R. I., May 20.—Struck by a torpedo which she had just launched, the torpedo boat Vesuvius, with the water rushing through a gash in her stern, was beached on Hope island last evening to save the lives of the members of her crew.

The beaching was accomplished by Chief Gunner Smith, after the boat had plowed through the waters of Narragansett bay with the crew battling vainly to stem the inrush of water.

With the lives of all imperilled, Smith ordered her turned to Hope island, where a few minutes later she swept up onto the beach under full steam.

So far did the boat run on the shingle, that at low tide she was nearly entirely out of water when the gaping hole, caused by the torpedo, was patched. With the incoming tide, late last night, she was floated and proceeded to the torpedo station under her own steam, but slowly.

CITIZEN OF NUTMEG STATE

Taft to Secure Enrollment as a Voter of New Haven

New Haven, May 20.—Ex-President Taft says he has decided to take up his permanent residence as a citizen of Connecticut, and will soon begin formal steps to secure enrollment as a voter of this city.

Under the state law a year's residence will be necessary and he will therefore be unable to vote in the city election this fall. As he is entitled to declare his residence here dating from about March 25, he will be eligible to vote in the state by April 1, 1914.

Whether he can remain a citizen and voter in Ohio while he has announced his intention of becoming a resident of another state and has enrolled his name as a voter is a matter for Ohio law to decide, but it is believed here that he will be fully eligible to vote in Ohio till he becomes a voter with full privileges of the electorate in Connecticut.

EIGHT THOUSAND JEWS HOMELESS

Most Ancient Ghetto In Europe Is Destroyed by Fire

Pressburg, Hungary, May 20.—The extent of the fire in the Ghetto here, Saturday, when 8000 persons were rendered homeless, might have been considerably lessened but for the strict religious observance of the Orthodox Jews in refusing to perform any labor on the Sabbath.

It was only after the chief rabbi gave his congregation dispensation that they consented to save the women and children. The Ghetto, which was the most ancient in Europe, was destroyed.

While the buildings were burning the people stood by and saw all their possessions swept by the flames, but refused to render any assistance in extinguishing the fire.

STRIKE IN SHIPYARD

Action of 350 Men Ties Up Work During Height of Rush Season

Boston, May 20.—A strike of 350 men, representing fifteen trades, at the George Lawley Sons' shipyard, has tied up the work of the yards. The strike was started by about fifty workmen and later the remaining men were induced to join.

Although the officials of the company declare the men have made no demands whatever, it is understood they are to demand increased wages and shorter hours. The strike finds the firm rushed with work on scores of yachts and launches which were being completed in time for the opening of the local yachting season.

Camden, N. J., May 20.—Her skull crushed by an axe, the body of Mrs. Mary Prondero, 40 years old, was discovered on the floor of her home in South Camden by an 11-year-old daughter.

The house had been ransacked and $160, the savings of the family, had been taken from its hiding place under the mattress. Another daughter, Mary, 18 years old, and Dominick Eonkart, 21 years old, her sweetheart, are missing and are being sought by the police.

CITY COUNCIL

Romeri for a common victuallers license and G. Gaudiano for a pool table license. Report accepted.

TEMPORARY LOAN.

Councilman Bailey offered an order authorizing the City Treasurer to borrow $100,000 in anticipation of taxes. This sum is an addition to the sum of $350,000 passed early in the year. Referred to Finance committee.

STATE HIGHWAY.

Councilman Little offered a resolve that the State Highway Commission be requested to take early action on the petition of the city to take Willard street as a State highway. Adopted.

MEMORIAL DAY.

Councilman Ross offered an order appropriating $35 in addition to the sum of $100 appropriated in the budget for the Spanish War veterans for Memorial day. Order adopted.

VACATION FOR VETERANS.

Councilman Ross offered a resolve that the Mayor grant veterans of the Grand Army employed by the city a leave of absence without loss of pay to attend the anniversary at Gettysburg.

Councilman Bryant did not object to granting the leave of absence but that was a matter entirely in the hands of the executive and nothing whatever to do with the Council. If it was legal for the Mayor to grant a leave of absence no action on the part of the Council would have any effect. If it was not legal the action of the Council would not effect the legality of the matter.

The City Solicitor, when questioned, said that he had advised that the Council pass the resolution for its moral effect. The idea was if the Mayor granted vacations of this kind in this matter it might serve as a precedent for other employees of the city to come forward and ask the same privilege. But if the Council gave its moral suport it would probably prevent that situation.

The resolution was adopted.

ADVERTISING.

Councilman Gilliatt offered an order appropriating $300 to advertise ordinances as required by law. Referred to Finance Committee.

Councilman Gilliatt offered an ordinance providing that in all petitions for hearings or other requests which require or provide for the publication or advertising or the notification of the abutters that the expense of the same shall be paid by the party making the application, to the City Clerk. Referred to the Committee on Ordinances.

FOURTH OF JULY.

Councilman Griffin offered an order appropriating $999 for the July Fourth celebration this year, the same to be charged to the estimated receipts for 1913. Referred to Finance Committee.

On motion of Councilman Bryant it was voted when the Council adjourn it be until Monday May 26, at 7.45 o'clock.

JUNK DISTRICT.

Councilman Devaney offered an order amending the junk collectors ordinance which provided that after May 1, 1914, no license should be granted in the Ward Two district to any person whose place of business was located within a district bounded on the northwesterly side of Sumner street about 680 feet, southwesterly by Main street about 600 feet and easterly about 900 feet, as more particularly shown on a plan accompanying the order.

Councilman Bryant moved that the order be referred to the City Solicitor for a written opinion.

Councilman Devaney asked the City Solicitor for his opinion, and Mr. McAnarney replied that he believed it entirely witihin the police power of the city to restrict an area in which certain trades might be conducted, as a protection to the community.

The motion however of Councilman Bryant prevailed.

GYPSY MOTH BILL.

Councilman Bryant asked the Commissioner if he had anything to say on the question asked at the last meeting relative to the bills for gypsy moth.

The Commissioner said that Mr. Holmes of the State department was present and would answer questions.

Mr. Holmes said that there would be no come back to the city unless the amount expended exceeded $5,000. For every dollar expended over that amount, except for private work, the State would reinburse the city one half.

Councilman Bryant said that what he wanted to know was about the advice to hold up the bills.

In reply to this Mr. Holmes said that he had advised his department to hold back the bill.

That closed the incident.

VALUATION LIST.

Councilman Richards offered a resolution that the Mayor be requested to inform the City Council as to why the Board of Assessors had failed to print in its annual report the valuation list as ordered by the City Council.

In support of his resolution Councilman Richards said that the City Reports give only one side of the ledger. There had been much talk about unfair valuations and we want to know why they have not been published. If it was the question of expense they should have come to the Council and so stated.

The resolution was then adopted.

PUBLIC HALLS.

The order establishing an ordinance governing public halls and buildings took its second reading and was passed under suspension of the rules.

This ordinance provides that all public halls or buildings used for public dancing parties, moving picture shows and entertainments shall be licenses by the city and that the licensee of such halls or buildings shall have an officer appointed by the Chief of Police, in attendance when the hall is in use.

Adjourned at 9.35 until May 26.

BASE BALL NOTICE.

Several managers have forwarded blanks to this office with incomplete base ball summaries. In order to assure publication the put-out column must tally 27 each, or 24 and 27, providing a full game is played. In the score by innings time is saved if the winning team is given the top position. In some cases score by innings has been omitted.

The Ledger is desirous of giving scores in full, believing that an interest in the game is thereby stimulated. Scores will be published in full if no previous publicity has been received in Sunday papers; and if by innings if such publicity was given the score.

The base ball situation, now split up between mediocre teams, offers the opportunity of organizing a fast team by drawing the best players under one manager. This would not materially cripple all the teams inasmuch as every team does not consist of stars.

Quincy is not represented by any real fast team, the Makarias coming the closest to the standard. The number of good players here is more than average cities produce, and many good boys are in out of state leagues.

The grammar school league is developing fine material for future teams.

Futhermore, any possible publicity that can be extended to teams now organized will be extended, and all that is asked is the co-operation of the managers in acquainting the Ledger with advance dates and results of games.

FIRE RECORD.

The building on Howard street where the fire took place Monday noon was owned by Abe Lahag and was occupied by F. Metting. Just how the fire started is a mystery. What fire there was seemed to be in the eaves and the opinion of Chief Litchfield is that the occupant was in the attic searching for something with a candle and accidently set the rafts afire. The loss was practically nothing.

The Central Station auto chemical was called on a still alarm at 5.30 Monday night for a grass fire on Merrymount road in the rear of the residence of E. W. Sheppard.

WILL PLAY IN NOVA SCOTIA

Quincy Young Men Engaged for Battery Work

Two more Quincy players have gone to the Provinces for summer base ball Charles Knight, a pitcher and George Barry, a catcher, left this week for Sydney, Nova Scotia, where they will play this summer. Both men were given offers by all managers in the Maine New Brunswick league.

Knight pitched last season for Fredericton. This is his third season in the Down East game and his work is highly approved by the fans. His condition is fine, considering the slight chances he has had of rounding into shape. In a game Saturday he struck out 17 of the strong Colby A. A. team of Roxbury.

George Barry is the son of Michael Barry of the Quincy Fire department. He comes of a race of good ball players. Weighing only 138 pounds he has been able to handle some of the fastest pitchers doing mound work and recently received a tryout with the Brockton team of the New England league. Although he made good with this aggregation he could not be retained because the salary allowance would increase with his stay.

These boys will be the battery at Sydney. On the best terms of friendship and anxious to present only the best possible base ball any doubts of a fine record are dispelled readily by friends who are closely acquainted with them.

ADAMS IS MOVING UP

Scores Another Victory in Grammar School League

Adams school beat the Massachusetts Fields in a 7 to 2 game at Ward Three Monday afternoon. Lack of spirit on the part of the losers had much to do with the defeat. Fox of the losers drove out a homer and scored a man from second in the sixth inning. Few errors were made on either side. The Adams made six hits against two for the Fielders. The battery work of Jenkins and Beaton of the winners was commendable. Whetmore started the game for the Fielders but was succeeded by Fox after he started rattling. Drew of the Fielders caught a listless game. The score:

Adams School	0	5	1	0	0	1	—7

MONTCLAIR VICTORY.

Montclair school beat the John Hancocks Monday afternoon in a quiet game. A strong wind bothered the Players. But a few hits were made by either side. O'Brien the regular Hancock pitcher, is on the sick list, and McDonnell substituted. Cox, the feature of the league because of his strike out performance did not play. Salsberry did well in the box. Imley of the Hancocks and Brown of Montclairs caught a good game.

Montclair	0	1	1	0	2	x	—4
Hancock	0	0	2	0	0	0	—2

WASHINGTON WINS.

Washington school beat the Atherton Houghs Monday afternoon in a pitcher's game. The battery for the winners was McDonnell, Gurney and Thayer. Lemon and Minkle performed for the Neckers.

The score:

Washington	2	0	0	0	1	0	—3
Atherton Hough	1	1	0	0	0	x	—2

TIN SHOWER.

The Delta Sigma Kappa Club, of which Miss Mabelle Damon is a member, tendered her a tin shower Monday evening at her home on Washington street. Accompanying each gift were witty and appropriate verses. Refreshments were served and a very pleasant evening was enjoyed.

Miss Damon will be remembered as a graduate of the class of '09, Q. H. S., whose engagement to Harry B. Smith of Stoughton was recently announced and whose marriage is to take place in June.

Among those present were: the Misses Bessie Brooks, Eleanor Wittemore, Daisy Brooks, Juanita Metherell Bessie Grant, Dorothy Packard, Nettie Pote, Edna Rhodes, Lillian Sutherberg, Edna Thomas and Iva Briggs.

Mrs. N. B. Furnald of Washington street is quietly observing her 81st birthday today.

DESLOVERS' SECOND TRIAL IS BEGUN

Circumstantial Evidence Only In "Headless" Murder Case

Providence, May 20.—Henry Deslovers, twice indicted for the murder of Mrs. Angele Parmentier in Woonsocket, was placed on trial in the superior court after a bitter preliminary fight between the opposing counsel.

The crime for which Deslovers is being tried was one of the most atrocious ever committed in the state. On June 25 last the headless body of a woman, with the arms and feet tied, was found in the Blackstone river at Woonsocket. Subsequent searches resulted in the finding of the head, and the body was identified as that of Mrs. Angele Parmentier. A few days later Deslovers, who is alleged to have been intimate with the woman, was arrested.

It is expected the trial will last about two weeks. The evidence will be almost entirely circumstantial.

USED FLAG UNLAWFULLY

Silk Weaver and Organ Grinder Convicted In New York Court

New York, May 20.—A member of the silk workers' union and an organ grinder were found guilty of using the American flag in an unlawful manner. They were charged with appearing on the streets with a hand organ wrapped in the Stars and Stripes, to which was pinned a printed appeal for funds for 5000 silk workers out of work in New York city.

Samuel Finkelstein, the silk weaver, who said he was simply obeying the instructions of his union, was fined $25. Sentence was suspended in the case of the organ grinder.

KING PETER TO ABDICATE

Servian Ruler Intends to Take Up Residence In Switzerland

Geneva, May 20.—King Peter of Servia intends to abdicate as soon as he possibly can after peace between the Balkan states and Turkey has been signed. He plans to return to Geneva, where he lived for many years before he was called to the Servian throne in 1903.

The health of Peter, who is 69 years old, has broken down, it is understood, as a result of the war with Turkey, and he wishes to end his days in peace among his friends in Switzerland.

Income Tax May Net $100,000,000

Washington, May 20.—According to latest expert figures, the new income tax brings into the national treasury $100,000,000 a year. Earlier estimates had set the amount at $70,000,000.

TINKER FAVORS THE FRESH KIDS

He Says Nervy Players Succeed Better Than Modest Ones.

LIKES THE TY COBB TYPE.

Cincinnati Reds' Manager Declares More of Detroit's Star Class Would Be Welcomed by Him—"Better Be Too Fresh Than Too Modest," Tinker.

"Pepper is the main ingredient in successful baseball, and the boys now breaking in haven't got any." Thus mourns Joe Tinker, manager of the Cincinnati Nationals, and there is reason for his wail. The rising generation has as much pepper in it as a carefully filled sugar bowl.

"When I cut into this game," continued J. T., "I thought it was up to me to be full of life and ginger, to keep things cheered up, to make a noise and keep right on making one. I did so, and a large part of what success I have achieved is due to this part of my character. In my opinion baseball is a vent for life and spirits, an escape valve for healthy noise and harmless vigor. It is also a field where spirit and pepper bring the best results, and the most successful ball teams of my experience have always made good on this idea.

"You'd think that a young player newly come from the brush with all the advantages of life, of strong, fresh physique, of joints and sinews free from the straitened pains of age, would yelp and squawk from the very joy of his existence. You'd think that he'd butt into this game that he has made his profession, this game wherein he makes his living and where he hopes to rise to superiority, with a whoop and a rush, a yell and a disturbance. You might expect an old, tired ball player to be stern and silent, but would you expect clamlike stillness from a kid?

"And yet these kids are as quiet around the whole circuit as so many potatoes. Like potatoes, they have eyes, and most of them show the same quantity of ebullient spirit and brilliant intellect. They come and go like mopping mutts. They walk around like frightened shadows. They go into their work as if they owed an apology for being permitted to cumber the earth. All day long you never hear a squeak out of them—no life, no pepper, no ambition.

"Of course some of them are afraid they will be called down for being too fresh. They think they will be sat upon and classed as nervy lobsters. Not with me they won't. I don't care if they call me a fried monkey or a fossil jackass out there on the field so long as they do it through excitement and sheer interest in the proceedings. If they are afraid of being considered too bumptious let 'em forget it right away. Was Tyrus Cobb a meek, retiring mope, or was he so fresh that all the other Tigers wanted to lick him for his impudence?

"Better be too fresh than too modest. Better be as impudent as a baboon than be as retiring as an oyster. Noise, noise, squawking all the time—that's what I want and what wins in baseball!"

KLING STRENGTHENS REDS.

With Veteran Catcher on Job, Tinker Says Team Will Be Strong.

Now that Johnny Kling has announced he will join the Cincinnati team shortly Manager Tinker declares the Reds will be stronger than ever.

JOHNNY KLING.

Kling says he has been practicing three hours a day and that he is in good condition.

Tinker thinks Kling is not all in by any means. He says managerial duties affected the veteran's catching last year, but now that he is free and clear the old Cub star will shine behind the bat again.

CHURCHILL—CLARK.

Miss Helena Marion Clark, daughter of John A. Clark of the Empire Polishing Co., and Harold Porter Churchill of 32 Calumet street, Norfolk Downs, were married Saturday by Rev. Charles H. Washburn at Boston. The preparations for the marriage were quietly made, only close friends being aware of their intention. Miss Clark is well known in Quincy where she has starred in many basket ball contests being one of the forwards of the Quincy Gym girls. She has become prominent throughout the state through the game and is reckoned as one of the fastest forwards playing with girl organizations.

JUST A PROFESSOR

And He Was a Dry Man, Outside and In, Never Getting Excited.

BY BRYANT C. ROGERS.

Professor Bascomb was a dry man—very dry. He wasn't dry for want of water, lemonade, root beer or lager. He could have quenched most any thirst by stepping into a saloon and saying to the barkeep:

"Whew! Is this hot enough for you? Set 'em up again, old man."

It was that the professor's attitude was dry. He was dry outside and in. He never got excited. A presidential election was no more to him than a local dog fight. He never gossiped. He never took up frivolous questions, such as the tariff on lamb chops. He had few acquaintances, and those he forgot to bow to half the time.

Professor Bascomb was just a professor. He filled the chair of natural history at the state college at Iuka and given the leg of a grasshopper he could tell in what period of the world he lived and died and why he never got to be a clam or a coon.

On his arrival at Iuka the professor was offered board and lodging and all the comforts of home at the Woodbine cottage at what seemed a reasonable rate, and he installed himself there. He didn't care about the name. It would have been the same to him had the cottage been named the Ox Tail Dive. He didn't care much about his room, his food or his bed.

There was one other thing the professor didn't care much about at the Woodbine, and that was Miss Joy Marton. Miss Joy was thirty-seven years old and still heart-free. She and her mother owned the Woodbine. They made it a rule to take one gentleman boarder from the college, and every time the old boarder went and a new one replaced him the town gossips predicted that Miss Joy would succeed in her fall designs. That is, of course, she would lasso him and lead him to the matrimonial altar.

While Professor Bascomb was dry—very dry—Miss Joy was girly and kittenish and romantic. She wanted to read and talk of knights and chevaliers and squires and dames and abducted maidens. Professor Bascomb wanted to talk about the dodo and the mammoths. Where was the common ground?

Miss Joy wanted to read and weep over "The Sewing Machine Girl."

The professor wanted to catch and examine the hearts and lungs of bats and crickets. Why, if they met on the street the professor was as apt to address her as Mrs. Perkins or Miss Schemerhorn as by her right name. They did not lack more than a mile or two of being as far apart as the Poles.

Without admitting that Miss J. ever had any designs upon the professor, it may be stated that at the end of six months the girl mused to herself:

"I give him up. He is impossible. He will never come within 40 rods of being a hero. He would see rats eat me up and not come to the rescue."

All of this was very natural in a weary old maid.

Three or four days later at the dinner table, where the professor seldom spoke at all, he suddenly said:

"I see that there is to be a circus in town."

Gasps of astonishment from mother and daughter. Gasps that there was to be a circus, and gasps that the professor had referred to it.

"And I think we'll attend."

Gasps of the gaspingest kind.

"Yes, I want you both to go with me.

Had Professor Bascomb suffered a sunstroke? The women turned pale as they looked from him to each other.

"I don't care much about the circus part of it, but I should like to study the animals, particularly the lion. Perhaps I shall be able to give you some information you have never acquired."

No, mother and daughter did not know the lion very well. They had heard him spoken of as the king of beasts, but with eggs at fifty cents a dozen, and butter almost as much per pound, with nine liars in the United States to one truthteller, they had taken only a passing interest in Leo.

The day and the hour came and as they stood before the cage of the kangaroo the professor musingly said:

"Australia is the true home of the kangaroo. He is not a flesh-eating animal, and will not attack man unless driven to the wall. You may wonder at the length of his hind legs. Why wasn't he created to run on four legs the same as a wolf?"

Miss Joy looked at her mother, and her mother looked at her. They had run a boarding house for the last ten years, but it had never occurred to them to ask the question or attempt to find the answer.

"The kangaroo is not a predatory animal," continued the professor. "On the contrary, he is as timid as the hare. Both must depend upon their alertness and fleetness to escape their foes. Thus it comes about that their gait is by leaps and bounds, and that by standing up on their hind legs they can look for their enemies."

"Mother, did you ever!" asked Miss Joy as she drew a long breath.

"No, daughter, I never did!" was the solemn reply.

"The tail of a dog or cat is merely ornamental. Behold the tail of the kangaroo! It is a cushion on which he sits. It assists him to rise in a hurry. It acts as a rudder to steer him when leaping through the air. If driven to defend himself he uses claws and tail. One blow of the tail will break a man's ribs or leg."

"Just think of that mother!" gasped Miss Joy.

"Yes, I am thinking of it, daughter!"

"Kangaroo meat is not ranked among the delicacies," said the professor, "but it is very nutritious. In fact, one pound of it has more nutriment in it than a pound and a quarter of Chicago beef, and at half the cost. It is a wonder to me that American capitalists have not arranged to import kangaroo meat."

"If they would only arrange, mother!" sighed Miss Joy as she remembered the price of the last beefsteak.

"Perhaps the Democratic party will bring it about," replied the mother.

At this moment a stranger who had been listening to the wise talk butted in by asking the professor:

"Did you say that kangaroo could knock a man gally west with a blow of his tail?"

"Yes, sir."

"Gosh all hemlock! Say, don't you think the bird could be taught to use his tail as a pile-driver?"

"Ladies—ahem—we will now pass on to the king of beasts," was the evasive reply.

"Mother, what is a pile-driver?" whispered the daughter.

"It's a machine they use to drive money out of a college student when he's behind on his board!"

"Leo, the lion, has been written about by hundreds of hunters and naturalists," began the professor as they came to the proper cage, "and yet we do not know him as he is. He is a beast of moods. One day he will attack a man with great fierceness. The next he will flee from him. By nature he is carniverous. Meat is his sole diet, and his appetite demands at least thirty pounds per day. A full grown lion has been known to devour the better half of an ox in one night."

"Suppose we had one for a boarder?" gasped Miss Joy.

"Lord! Lord!" almost wailed the mother.

"Man is the only living thing the lion fears, and not always him," said the professor. "It is asserted that if man will look Leo steadily in the eyes for three or four minutes—"

He broke off there to draw himself up and fold his arms and stare at the beast with a scowl, wrinkling his forehead. Leo stood it for about forty seconds. Then with a growl and a roar he plunged against the bars with such force that they gave way and he sprang down upon Miss Joy.

"Run! Run! The lion is loose!"

There was a wild scattering. Mrs. Morton fainted away and fell to earth, but the professor never turned a hair. The lion crouched down and laid a pay on his victim and growled.

"The tail of a lion is not the tail of a kangaroo," said the professor as he stooped down and clutched it. "Nevertheless, it is capable of sustaining great weight when used—thus!"

And next moment he had lifted the beast from the ground as a boy might a cat and was swinging him in a circle. There were yells and cheers and cries of "hold him!" and presently the circus people came running with ropes and Leo was thrust ignominously back into his cage.

Miss Joy wasn't hurt, her mother recovered from her faint, and professor Bascomb was a hero. Miss Joy managed to tell him so, and though he called her Mrs. Calhoun and Mrs. Woodhouse and got things badly mixed up, she understood that he was also popping the question and she replied yes.

STORIES FROM FAR-OFF LANDS

Told at Convention of Seventh Day Adventists

VICIOUS HEBRIDES CANNIBALS

Missionary Tells How They Cook and Feast on Bodies of Victims Along With Vegetables From Their Gardens—Bulgarian Who Shot Cowardly General Is Honored

Takoma Park, Md., May 20.—Tales of cannibals who eat their wives along with the vegetables they pluck from their gardens; vivid pictures of Balkan war scenes, where the Servians played wild dance music for the funeral dirge of a general whom a private shot when the general tried to run away during battle; tales of missionaries the Russians have sent to Siberia, because they would not obey mandates of the government—these and other stories from the far away places of the world are to be heard at the world convention of the Seventh Day Adventists here.

The last delegation of the 4000 men and women who have gathered from all over the world, where they are carrying the gospel of the Adventists, arrived in Takoma Park yesterday afternoon. Until June 8 they will camp and prepare to carry what the Adventists believe will be the last message from God before the end of this "gospel dispensation."

Missionaries from the odd places of the earth are at the tented city. One of the most interesting is Elder Parker, from the Hebrides.

"The people there are wicked and vicious," he said, "but we are carrying the word to them. You know, they are cannibals. When they kill their victims they dig a large pit, pile in logs of wood, and make a fire of coals. When these have become red hot they clear away the embers and cook the body in a little oven of stones. Then they squat around and hold a feast."

Vivid pictures of the utter ferocity with which the Balkan allies fought were painted by Elder Huenergardt of Budapest, Hungary, who did missionary work during the great battles. In the battle of Kirk Kalissa, said the missionary, those among the Balkan volunteers who were slightly disabled made capture of the fort possible by impaling themselves on the steel hedges that guarded the approach—thus affording a path over which the crack regulars crawled. Many of these volunteers, he said, were still writhing when the regulars crawled over their bloody frames.

"During this battle," he continued, "one of the Bulgarians shot his officer, and he was arrested. He was taken before a military court.

"'Do you know whom you have shot?' he was asked.

"'I thought it was a Turk,' the soldier answered.

"'It was your officer,' he was told.

"'Well,' the soldier answered, 'he ran. I was told that only Turks ran, and I shot him.'

"The judge advocate congratulated the soldier and pinned a medal on his breast," Huenergardt continued, "and they buried the officer with dance music.

A Fussian missionary who is going back has told his brethren that two other Adventists are serving seven-year sentences in the Siberian mines because they refused to join the army and work on Saturday—the Adventist Sabbath. He didn't dare mention his name, or tell other secrets he says he has buried in his soul, because he wants to go back to Russia.

AWARDED $416,253

Mining Engineer Had "Dummy" to Act as Plaintiff In His Suit

New York, May 20.—Charles D. Flynn, a mining engineer, won his suit against the King Edward mining syndicate to recover $416,253 on the ground that he discovered the company's silver mine in the Cobalt region of Canada and under an agreement was entitled to 10 percent of the company's profits.

The case was tried before a supreme court in Brooklyn. The suit was brought in the name of George Niner, a grocery clerk, who received $25 from Flynn to act as dummy plaintiff so that Flynn could travel in the pursuit of his profession.

WILLIAM, M. WOOD.

Head of Woolen Trust Indicted For "Planting" Dynamite.

DYNAMITE "PLANT" TRIAL

Government Scores Point at Opening of Case In Boston Court

Boston, May 20.—The first point in the legal battle in the trial of William M. Wood, Frederick E. Atteaux and Dennis J. Collins on the charge of conspiracy in "planting" dynamite in the Lawrence strike was won by the government.

With the first witness introduced by District Attorney Pelletier the defense, led by three of the ablest lawyers in the state, opened a campaign of objections on the basis that the testimony offered was immaterial and irrelevant.

Judge Crosby decided the testimony should be admitted with the proviso that if later he should consider that it had not been relevant he should charge the jury to so consider it.

The government gained another point when the petition that the case against Atteaux be quashed was denied.

MISS PANKHURST WILL QUIT FRANCE

New Headquarters to Be Established Elsewhere

London, May 20.—Dispatches from Paris say the French government has not yet notified Miss Christabel Pankhurst, daughter of the leader of the British militants, to leave France, where she has been since her flight from London after her indictment on a charge of inciting to malicious damage of property.

She therefore has arranged to quit the French capital and take up her residence in Belgium or Germany before action can be taken on a fresh demand for her extradition.

JENNINGS IS INSANE

Slayer of McPherson and Mildred Donovan Going to an Asylum

Boston, May 20.—James B. Jennings, better known in sporting circles as "Kid Carter," is insane, according to alienists, and he will be removed from the state prison to Bridgewater hospital for the insane.

Jennings was found guilty of murder in the second degree for killing William McPherson, in March. When he went up for sentence, he voluntarily stated in court that he had murdered Mrs. Mildred Donovan of Revere, whose body was found on the day McPherson was killed.

It is said that for some time past Jennings has refused to eat or drink and that he fears somebody is trying to poison him by putting some drug in his food.

NEEDN'T FOLLOW SPOUSE

Husband Leaving Wife Behind Does Not Constitute Desertion

Kansas City, May 20.—The Kansas City court of appeals overthrew the doctrine that a wife is bound to follow her husband wherever he goes.

The ruling was in the case of James Collet, who sued his wife for divorce because she declined to go with him to a farm. The Vernon county court refused the decree and the court of appeals sustained this ruling.

"She was not bound to follow him, and if he chose to go and live alone in peace, his act does not constitute desertion," said the decision.

DOCTOR GETS A SURPRISE

Baby Makes Debut Into World With Two Fine Teeth

New York, May 20.—There arrived here a young lady, it being the first time she had ever arrived anywhere, and the attending physician, Dr. Abraham A. Levy, looked at her in astonishment when she opened her mouth to speak her first piece on earth—a good big, healthy howl.

For the doctor saw that here was a baby born with teeth. They were almost half grown—two milk white bits of ivory incisors in the front of baby's lower jaw. She is the daughter of B. Axler.

SEGEE IS TAKEN IN TAX SCANDAL

Revere Assessor Charged With Forging Public Record

HELD IN $3000 FOR TRIAL

Arraigned on Grand Jury Indictment Containing Fifteen Counts and Pleads Not Guilty—Town Collecto Charges Books Were Juggled by Use of Fictitious Names

Boston, May 20.—Samuel A. Segee, chairman of the board of assessors of Revere, was indicted by the special grand jury which is investigating the Revere tax tangle.

Segee, who is accused in the indictment of forging a public record, was arrested yesterday afternoon in Revere, arraigned in the superior court and held in $3000 bonds for trial. There are fifteen counts in the indictment. Segee pleaded not guilty.

Segee is accused of committing forgery in the Revere assessors' records. The maximum penalty under the statute is ten years. News of the indictment found against Segee caused the biggest stir since the first revelations were made regarding Revere's tax scandal.

The grand jury inquiry is the result of charges made by Collector Pendergast that the names of fictitious persons had been entered on the assessors' books. These false entries were first discovered by Mrs. Hamilton, who testified before the jury last week.

Pendergast charged that the assessors' books were "juggled with the result that someone was to secure an abatement of taxes. The fictitious name was then to be erased and the name of a real property owner substituted, he declared.

Pendergast not only charged that the books had been falsified, but said he had been attacked behind locked doors in the assesors' office and had been deprived of books by Chairman Segee and Secretary Bates of the board.

Segee has been a lodger at the home of Mrs. Ida McLeod in Revere. Mrs. McLeod was summoned to appear before the grand jury yesterday with her tax receipts. She failed to appear when the jury resumed its inquiries, and sent word that she was ill in bed. Mrs. McLeod is assessed in the Revere tax books for real estate valued at $17,500.

Witnesses who told the grand jury what they knew of the alleged tax frauds yesterday were Mrs. Hamilton, Miss Elizabeth Macadam, a clerk in the assessors' office, and Secretary Bates of the board. Bates returned to Revere with the books he was ordered to produce before the jury.

AWAITING DEATH'S CALL

Walker Wants Flowers and Sound of Music When the End Comes

Macon, Ga., May 20.—Although Banker B. S. Walker, who took bichloride of mercury by mistake, has been told by physicians that he must die in a short while, his handsome residence is outwardly the gayest place in Macon.

The Walker home is kept full of fresh flowers, there is always music and men and women come and go as if at a gay social function. By agreement death is not mentioned; the guests speak of cheerful topics.

"If I did not have so much faith in my physicians and know that the poison is in my system," said Walker, "I would laugh at my sentence of death. Like Miva Bean, I want to die crowned with flowers and to the sound of music."

TWO SHELLS SWAMPED

Half a Dozen Prominent Oarsmen Narrowly Escape Drowning

Boston, May 20.—Six men, all famous as oarsmen and prominent in the club and business affairs of this city, were saved from drowning in the Charles river last evening by metropolitan park police officers.

The men composed the crews of two Union Boat club shells. They were taking their daily workout on the river, when the high waves swamped their boats, throwing the men into the water.

The rescued men are Ernest E. Smith, Ralph May, Lawrence Lunt, William Haines, James P. Ayer and Peter Wiggin.

PRESERVE FISH TWO YEARS

Russian Scientist Claims to Have Discovered New Process

London, May 20.—The Russian scientist, Professor de Levsky, according to reports received here, claims to have discovered a process for preserving fish for two years.

The principal preservations used in the process are salt, vinegar and alcohol, and the cost, he asserts, is only one-fifth of the present system in which ice and salt are employed.

Baby Found In Box

New York, May 20.—Although a peculiar looking box left at the babies' hospital did not contain a bomb it warranted careful handling. It contained a wide-awake baby 2 hours old.

MEASURE SIGNED BY JOHNSON

Reply to Protest of Japan Is Immediately Transmitted to Her Ambassador, Who Later Confers With Secretary of State—Law Becomes Operative In Ninety Days

Washington, May 20.—Secretary Bryan late yesterday handed Ambassador Chinda the reply of the United States government to the Japanese protest against the California alien land legislation. The ambassador immediately cabled it to Tokio. No intimation as to the nature of the reply was given out.

Upon learning that Governor Johnson had signed the Webb land act, Bryan invited Chinda to come to the state department to receive the reply which he had been anxiously awaiting since the presentation of his own note on May 9.

When the answer had been delivered Bryan and Chinda conferred earnestly for an hour regarding the general aspect of the problem which they are trying to solve. The opinions expressed were tentative, as for his part the ambassador felt that he must be guided entirely by the directions of the foreign office at Tokio and he could only surmise what might be the attitude of the officials at home.

Meanwhile it was understood that both the Japanese protest and the state department's answer would be withheld from publication, for the present at least, on the ground that it would be injudicious to submit the delicate questions at issue to heated discussion in the newspapers and at possible mass meetings.

The negotiations between the two governments are now expected to proceed in regular fashion without further reference to what takes place in California. Upon returning to the embassy Chinda dispatched the state department's reply to his own government, and it is assumed that several days may elapse before the next step is taken.

The real weight of objection by Japan is against the spirit of the whole legislation, which is regarded as distinctly discriminatory against the Japanese. While it is not alleged that the treaty in terms prohibits such discrimination, yet the spirit of the convention, as well as the general principles of international law, are regarded by Japan as outraged by the Webb act. The mere fact that America has entered into the treaty relation with Japan is cited as an admission of equality.

In his answer, Bryan is understood to have recounted at length the efforts made by the administration to guard against an infringement of the treaty rights of the Japanese.

Bryan said he had not communicated with Johnson since the receipt of the governor's long message explaining his reasons for deciding to sign the act and probably would not do so.

Bill Signed by Johnson

Sacramento, May 20.—Governor Johnson has signed the alien land bill against the protests of Japan and President Wilson, and the measure becomes a law, operative on Aug. 10.

Three sources of hostility may delay its activity until Nov. 1, 1914. One is the threat of Democrats to invoke the referendum against the bill on the ground that it is not drastic enough; another is the Asiatic Exclusion league, which opposes the bill as faint-hearted, and the third, the Panama-Pacific Exposition company, which opposes it on the ground that it is a violation of faith.

LOOT WENT TO SALOONS

Almost $100,000 of Stolen Canadian Money In Chicago, Says Detective

Chicago, May 20.—Almost $100,000 of the $271,000 in Canadian money stolen from the branch of the Bank of Montreal at New Westminster, B. C., has been exchanged for United States currency by Chicago saloon keepers, according to the assertion of the superintendent of a detective agency.

Mchael J. Flanagan, proprietor of a saloon, was arrested when two men accused him of giving them Canadian money to exchange. Three other saloon keepers are under surveillance and arrests may result.

Lives a Month on Olives

Madrid, May 20.—A 75-year-old navy pensioner lived for a month solely on olives, thereby winning a wager of $200 which he will spend starting an olive grove.

No Duty on Exposition Exhibits

Washington, May 20.—The senate passed a bill providing for the exemption of duty of exhibits for the Panama-Pacific exposition in 1915.

The KITCHEN CUPBOARD

WAYS OF BAKING BANANAS.

BANANAS sold in the markets have been picked when green and ripened off the tree. Thus they contain a good deal of starch, and cooking is needed to bring out the food value and flavor.

Banana Pie.—Take a deep plate and line it with a rich paste and bake. When cold fill with thin slices of baked banana, sprinkle with powdered sugar and then cover with well whipped cream.

Baked In Pudding.

Banana Pudding.—Take enough bananas to make a half cupful of the fruit when it is reduced to a pulp, a pint of milk, a cupful of stale cake crumbs, three tablespoonfuls of sugar, three eggs, a teaspoonful of vanilla and a quarter of a teaspoonful of salt. Scald the milk, then pour it over the cakecrumbs and let them stand until they are soft enough to rub through a sieve. Slightly beat the eggs and then stir these with cake and fruit. Then add the sugar, salt and vanilla. Mix well, then place in buttered molds. Cook by placing in a pan of hot water and baking until firm. Take from the oven and serve at once with the following sauce:

Cream Sauce.—Stir together a half cupful of sugar, a half tablespoonful of cornstarch, the grated rind of half a lemon and the juice of the half lemon, the yolks of two eggs, slightly beaten, and a dash of salt. Place this mixture on the fire in a saucepan and stir until it boils. Then take from the fire and add the stiffly beaten whites of two eggs.

With Lemon Sauce.

Baked Bananas and Lemon Sauce.—Remove the skin and inside pith, place the bananas side by side in a granite baking dish, dust with sugar, and a little lemon juice, put in a little water and bake quickly. Serve with lemon sauce.

Banana Custard.—Take three good sized bananas, place in a dish and squeeze the juice of one lemon over them. Put one quart of milk and one teacupful of sugar in a double boiler. When they come to a boil add the yolks of two eggs and two tablespoonfuls of cornstarch, also a pinch of salt and a small piece of butter. When thick pour over the bananas, stir a few minutes until the bananas are well mixed with the custard. Put the whites, beaten into a stiff froth, on top. Set in the oven to brown.

FUNERAL OF WILLIAM KEMP

Street Railway Men and Organizations Represented

The funeral of William Kemp for more than fifteen years connected with the repair department of the Quincy and Boston street railway company, and later with the Bay State company was held Monday from his late residence on Newcomb street at 2.30.

The services were very largely attended, many of his fellow workers with the street railway company being among those present. There was an unusual large display of floral tributes which included a standing wreath from Mr. Holst, Mr. Conway. Mr. Howard and Mr. Gammon of the street railway, a standing arch from the repair department of the street railway at Taunton, Quincy, Abington Braintree and Lakeville, a standing wreath from the street railway employees at the Hyde Park division of the street railway, a standing wreath from the East Weymouth car barn, wreath from Granite lodge Sons of St. George, an anchor from the United Workmen, a standing wreath from the Boston post office,a pillowf rom the Town River Yacht club, a spray from the Junior order of Moose and many from relatives and friends.

The services were conducted by Rev. R. E. Armstrong. The burial was at Mt. Wollaston cemetery, the bearers being composed of members from the A. O. U. W., Sons of St. George and street railway.

Rev. J. E. Lillback was the speaker today at the noon meeting at the Allston works of the Boston & Albany railroad. He is co-operating with Secretary Peterson of the Boston Y. M. C. A. and will speak at different places.

There is more Catarrh in this section of the country than all other diseases put together, and until the last few years was supposed to be incurable. For a great many years doctors pronounced it a local disease and prescribed local remedies, and by constantly failing to cure local treatment, pronounced it incurable. Science has proven catarrh to be a constitutional disease and therefore requires constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, Ohio, is the only constitutional cure on the market. It is taken internally in doses from 10 drops to a teaspoonful. It acts directly on the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. They offer one hundred dollars for any case it fails to cure. Send for circulars and testimonials.

Miss Cecilia Shea, Copeland street whow as injured int he last Braintree train wreck is still confined to her home with injuries and a nervous shock. Miss Shea sustained a broken collar bone in addition to minor bruises.

The new jury list for 1913 has been printed and will be used the next time jurors are drawn. Considerable care was used by the registrars this year in making up the jury list, and more business men were placed on the lists than usual.

It will be almost a Council meeting at City Hall Thursday evening when four committees will be in session. The Finance Committee, License Committee, Committee on Sewers and Drains and Committee on Health and Poor.

The street railway has had several electric welding cars at work on the Hancock street line welding the rail joints, so as to form a better return line and to prevent the escape of electricity, which when it attacks water pipe causes electrolosis to set in and ruin the pipes.

Quincy chapter, Order of Eastern Star, held a well attended meeting in Electa Hall, Monday evening. Four applications for membership were received. The Dramatic Club of the Chapter is planning a series of dances and another amateur production. Refreshments were served.

Dedicatory plans will be discussed for the new Adams school at the meeting of the Parents-Teachers association this evening. It will be the last time they will meet in the old building Various topics will be considered among them being the formation of an alumni. The graduating class will sing and Albert L. Barbour, superintendent of schools will talk on "Public Education and Public Expenditure."

BRIEFS

Mrs. Jesse F. Curtis of Upland road, who has been at the New England Baptist Hospital for five weeks, is on the gain and expects to return home soon.

The F. S. Girls met with Miss Margaret Clark at her home, 313 Granite street last evening. Refreshments were served and a very pleasant evening enjoyed. The next meeting will be held Monday evening at the home of Miss Grace Brownrigg Garfield street.

Wollaston Masonic lodge holds a special meeting tonight to consider the question of securing larger quarters. Wollaston lodge has been growing rapidly in membership and has outgrown its present quarters in the Odd Fellows building. The question of new quarters is one that has been considered informally for some time.

Plans are being made for a talk to be given in the near future, by gentlemen of prominence, on the question of a public dock for Quincy. Just at the present time there is but little agitation in this line but persons interested in the movement are not idle however.

The funeral of George H. Corliss, who was found dead in a shed at East Braintree Sunday morning, will take place Wednesday afternoon at the chapel in the Village Cemetery, Weymouth. The mystery of the locked padlock on the outside of the door has not been solved by the department as yet.

ADAMS SCHOOL ASSOCIATION

Elect a New President and Have Good Time

The Parent-Teachers Association of the Adams school met Tuesday evening in the old building for the last time. New officers were elected, the graduation songs were sung by the graduating class, speeches were given by the school committeemen present and resolutions were adopted on the death of Charles A. Hobart, who was vice president of the association.

Nearly 150 attended and the decorations were white lilacs, stars of Bethlehem, lilies of the valley and buttercups.

The graduation music was sung under the direction of Miss Mary Egan and was liberally applauded. "The new baby" and "Which shall we drown" was recited by Audrey Butler, a first grade pupil. Little Audrey did very well and received his share of applause.

A vote of thanks was extended to Robert Smith, who is now a member of the Wollaston Parent-Teachers Association for providing gratuitously the music for the play at Music Hall last month. The proceeds of that concert will be devoted to the decorating fund for the new building and his contribution being a large factor.

Short addresses were given by Arthur W. Newcomb of Ward Two and Joseph L. McPherson of Ward Four, both members of the School Committee, and Charles A. Ross, councilman from Ward Three. All complimented the association on their years showing.

Albert L. Barbour, superintendent of schools, spoke on Public Expenditure and Public Education." He elaborated on his topic, showing the relationship of the two principles and urged those present to become better acquainted with the disposition of money appropriated for education annually. He touched on efficient school methods and described the difficulties encountered in trying to obtain the best possible results, financially and educationally.

Robert E. Foy, who has been president, opened the meeting and presided during the evening. Much business was transacted.

Refreshments were served by the hospitality committee consisting of Miss Beatrice Rothwell, Mrs. Angus Martin and Mrs. Alfred W. Goodhue, assisted by the teachers of the school.

The officers elected for the ensuing year are;

President—Alfred Pinel.

Vice President—Nelson M. Spencer.

Secretary-Treasurer—Miss Bessie Roberts.

Executive Committee—Robert Williams, Miss E. C. Sheahan and Mrs. William Wilson.

ONLY A BONFIRE.

The alarm from Box 137 at 6.35 Tuesday night was for a bonfire on Water street. Some boys built a bonfire in the rear of Grossman's building and then rang in the alarm to see the department come out. Chief Litchfield was at the Atlantic station superintending a drill at the time the alarm sounded and made a quick run to the box. After the recall he returned to Atlantic for the drill.

AUTOMOBILE INQUEST.

An inquest was held before Judge Avery this morning on the death of Beulah Smith, who was killed in the automobile accident at Cohasset two weeks ago. The inquest as usual was private and was held in one of the upper rooms of the Court House, each witness being examined separately. Assistant District Attorney Frank Katzmann and State Officer John C. Scott conducted the inquest for the government. Twelve witnesses in all were examined.

LADIES' NIGHT.

Manet Encampment, I. O. O. F., will hold their annual ladies' night in Odd Fellows' hall Thursday evening. A super will be served at seven o'clock and an entertainment by professional talent will follow the feast. The committee have kept their program secret but it is understood that several novelties will be introduced to Quincy.

Rev. Edmund D. Webber, formerly pastor of the Wollaston Baptist church, and Mrs. Webber, have been the guests of Mrs. Frank Burgess of Beach street.

GIVEN A LINEN SHOWER

Jolly Evening Passed by Friends of Miss Nightingale

A heavy linen shower was tendered Miss Alice E. Nightingale of Granite street Tuesday evening. The entrance of a large number of friends with their useful linen completed a well planned surprise.

During the evening Miss Lillian McQueen and Miss Gertrude McQueen of Braintree contributed several duets and Miss Helen Goodoak and Helen Townsend gave several piano solos. Vocal selections were rendered by Miss Eva Bisson and Miss Margaritte Sinclair.

The linen was in a large May basket and was presented by Miss Florence Nightingale. Each article bore the name of the donor and was hung to a line for the inspection of the party. As Miss Nightingale finished her acceptance speech a messenger boy delivered another present from Mrs. Sadie Brown which was useful and ornamental. Refreshments were served.

Those present were: Margaret Gorman, Catherine Gorman, Margaritte Sinclair, Helen McKenzie, Helen Lindblom, Helen Townsend, Margaret Main, Margaret Clark, Marion Clark, Grace Brownrigg, Sadie Bisson, Mrs. Wyhes, Lillian McQueen, Gertrude McQueen, Jessie Souden, Annie Souden, Winifred Bisson, Mrs. W. Clements, Mrs. V. Malcomb, Edith Spargo, Helen Goodoak, Lillian Bisson, Eva Bisson, Cynthia Curtis, Annie Nightingale Nellie Nightingale, Florence Nightingale, Mrs. Sadie Brown, Alice Nightingale, Mr. and Mrs. Nightingale and family.

DORCAS SOCIETY GIVE SUPPER

Followed by a Social Hour and Musical Entertainment

An appetizing supper was enjoyed Tuesday night in the Universalist vestry by about 100 people. The supper was under the auspices of the Dorcas society and Mrs. Frank Hobart had general charge, assisted by Miss Hanson, Mrs. Smith and the young ladies of the Murray club made very attractive waitresses with their white caps and aprons. Salads of all kinds, baked beans, rolls, pickles, fancy pies and coffee were served in abundance.

After the supper a social hour was enjoyed followed by a short and pleasing musical entertainment. Mrs. A. M. McCurdy being the chairman. Selections by the French orchestra solos by Mr. McCurdy and solos and orchestra music by a Victrolla with Fred H. Lord in charge. A pleasant evening was enjoyed.

THE CITY HALL GRANITE

Larger Part of it Came From the Rail Quarry

The attempt to clean the granite on City Hall has caused many inquiries to be made as to just what quarry the granite from which the building is built came from. Many have searched Pattee's history in an endeavor to learn but have been unable to ascertain.

Pattee's history tells us that there was considerable controversy as to whether the building should be of wood or of granite. Solomon Willard who was the architect of the building was very anxious that it should be of granite and he succeeded in carrying that vote after a long and bitter strife.

The building was erected in 1844 and cost $19,115.93 of which sum Solomon Willard received $280 for drawing plans and superintending the building.

The largest contractor for the granite was J. B. Whicher & Co. This firm was composed of Mr. Whicher, O. E. Sheldon, Jonathan Jameson and Samuel Ela. Mr Whicher was the father of Mrs. Dr. Lampson, whose husband was later connected with the Granite Railway Co.

The custom in those days was that when one man received a contract for a granite job that it was divided up between the different granite dealers as it was thought that one man was not able to complete any large contract.

J. B. Whicher & Co., owned and operated the "Rail quarry" and a greater part of the granite was quarried and cut from that quarry. It is also quite evident that some of the granite came from what was known as the "Wigwam quarry" now owned by Badger Bros. Mr. Jameson operated this quarry and as he was a skilled granite worker it is almost certain that some of the granite came from that quarry. The contract of J. B. Whicher & Co. was $4,244.

Some of the granite was also furnished by Wright & Barker, who operated what was then known as the "Greenleaf quarry," later known as the Barker quarry, and now operated by J. C. Ballou. This granite is a little different from the Rail stock and the appearance of the building is such that it is evident that practically all of the granite came from the Rail quarry.

The Wigwam quarry is located not far from the Rail hill so that it would be hard for an ordinary persons to tell which came from which.

Luther S. Anderson, manager of the Granite Railway Co., who has given the question some study says there is no doubt but what the greater part of the granite if not all of it came from the rail quarry.

NOON SPORTS AT GEAR WORKS

Two Man Score Over 24 Feet in Jumping Event

Fifteen men took part in the weekly event at the Boston Gear Works this noon, "Pete" Martin winning out in the three standing broadjumps with a record of 24 ft. 10 in. C. J. Carlson was second, 24 ft. 3 1-2 inches, while J. Hunte took third with a mark of 22 ft. 11 inches.

NEW SPEED LAW.

Under the new automobile law which was passed Tuesday the speed limit was fixed at 25 miles an hour. The recent law was worded so that a man had to be arraigned for going at a speed dangerous to the public travel. Now, however if a man runs his car at a greater speed than 25 miles an hour he can be brought into court and fined.

THE JOY OF THE TASK

Subject Today of the Woman's Board of Missions

The semi-annual meeting of the Woman's Board of Foreign Missions is being held today at the Bethany church. The morning session opened at 10 o'clock and was very largely attended, delegates being present from many places. There were also a number of foreign missionaries who gave interesting talks of their experiences in the countries where they were located and of the great need of additional workers.

Mrs. Charles H. Daniels, president, presided and the general topic was "The joy of the task." The service opened with a hymn and reading of the scriptures and prayer by Rev. I. W. Sneath of Wollaston and Mrs. H. Everett Crane of Quincy welcomed the delegates present.

The first speaker was Miss Kyle, editorial secretary, who spoke on "Our task apprehended." She was followed by Mrs. Frank G. Cook who spoke on "One variety of seed; the conditional gift."

Mrs. William L. Adams followed with a brief talk on "Gathering golden gifts," and Mrs. Susan R. Howland of Uduvil, Ceylon spoke of "Workers together with him."

Miss Calder, home secretary, spoke on "Our hope—a harvest of lives" and Mrs. Samuel C. Bartlett of Otaru, Japan on "Japan's wild fields." Miss Edith Gates of Ahmednagar, India on "Seed sowing in India."

Then followed a service of intercession after which an adjournment was taken until 2 o'clock for the afternoon session.

The ladies brought basket lunches with them and during the noon recess these were partaken of in the chapel. A number of workers in foreign missions were scheduled to speak at the afternoon session.

DEMOCRATIC FIELD DAY

Proposed by the City Committee--Mayoralty Talk

A quorum did not respond to the call of the Democratic City Committee Tuesday evening and a regular meeting was not held. An informal discussion was held by those present.

The plans proposed for a season of organization are being formulated. The committee is now considering a reunion and an effort will be made to secure the premier Democratic orators of the day. The gathering will probably be held out of doors and Democrats and all interested citizens will be invited to attend.

The question of selecting candidates for the mayoralty has been broached several times. No formal action has been taken however, although several have been mentioned. Some of the members of the committee are divided between Jams H. Penniman, last years candidate, and Dr. John H. Ash of West Quincy.

Interested parties who keep in touch with the situation say that William T. Shea will again be a candidate, and that there is a feeling current throughout the city that he would be generally acceptable as a candidate on the Democratic ticket. He may however decline to accept a partisan nomination.

Mrs. Pfaffmann is giving a bird talk tomorrow afternoon if pleasant. Any one interested may join party leaving City Square at 2.20. The objective point is the Braintree woods.

GREAT RIVALRY AMONG SCHOOLS

Rumors of High Records in Athletic Sports

That there will be some keen competition in the big meet Saturday morning in the broad jump was shown this week when two more excellent marks were made by boys of the Quincy and Lincoln schools.

Tuesday noon at the Lincoln school, Alf. Locarni made a leap of 14 ft., 9 in., and George Weedon was credited with 14 ft. 2 in. Several other boys also jumped over 14 feet in this event.

Today at the Quincy school, W. Swanson came within 2 inches of equalling the mark made last week by Isaacson of the Cranch school, who holds the record to date with 15 ft, 2 inches. Swanson jumped 15 feet and will undoubtedly do much better in the meet as the boys have all been working on the standing broad instead of the running event. George Spinney and W. Martin and W. Cullen also jumped over 14 feet, 6 inches.

It is said that the Quincy lads have a high jumper who is good for almost 5 feet; this means that Gilcoyne of the Washington school will have to do some good work to get away with the event.

There are in the United States but 193 cities with a population of 30,000 that is in 1910 according to the National census. Quincy is number 167 in this list, being larger than Cedar Rapids, Iowa; Oshkosh, Wis., Perth Amboy, N. J., Lansing Mich., Pasadena, Calif., Amsterdam, N. Y., Jackson, Mich., Jamestown, N. Y.; San Jose, Calif.; Decatur, Ill.; Mount Vernon, N. Y.; Joplin, Mo.; Williamsport, Pa.; Niagara Falls, N. Y.; Muscoger, Okla.; Lima, O.; Chelsea, Mass.; Aurora, Ill.; New Rochelle, N. Y.; Austin, Texas; La Crosse, Wis.; Newport, Ky.; Orange, N. Y.; Lorain, Ohio; Council Bluffs, Iowa, and Lynchburg, Va.

It is a notable fact, according to the census figures, that only one city in the list above pays more annually for interest than Quincy, and that city is Chelsea, which suffered a conflagration.

In the list of 58 cities larger than Quincy, with a population of less than 50,000, only five pay more for interest. They are Newton, Mass., Atlantic City, N. J., Pueblo, Ohio; Montgomery, Ala.; and Knoxville, Tenn.

It is maturing debt and interest which makes the Quincy taxes so high, and Councilmen should stop and consider these figures before authorizing loans.

That Willard street near the Randolph line is in bad condition is generally admitted and it has been hoped that the State Highway Commission would accept that part of the street as a State highway. Petitions asking for its acceptance have been presented to the Highway Commission by the towns south of Quincy as well as by Quincy, but up to the present time no action has been taken by the said commission. Perhaps the resolution passed by the City Council Monday evening may hurry matters along some.

Thousands of people, many of them residents of Quincy pass the First church without knowing that it is the shrine of notable men of the early history of this country and that side by side are the bodies of their wives, once the first ladies of the United States.

A mural monument seems to be needed on the front of the church reading:

MAY BASKETS FOR TWO

Presentations to Miss Pinel and Mr. MacDonald

A double birthday party was celebrated Tuesday evening at the home of Miss Gladys Pinel, Souther place, in observance of her birthday and that of Otis MacDonald Sr. It was in the form of a May basket party, each guest bringing lunch in a pretty basket.

Very pleasing and amusing games were enjoyed, for which prizes were awarded the winners, Miss Aljuline Keene receiving two gold hatpins and Mr. MacDonald a silver pencil.

In the midst of the merriment the door bell rang. Miss Pinel on going to the door, found to her astonishment, two May baskets, the one for herself containing a set of gold initial pins, the other for Mr. MacDonald, containing an initial stick pin, gifts from the assembled guests. In each basket was an original verse. They showed their appreciation by responding very pleasingly.

All adjourned to the dining room, where the baskets were opened, punch and fruit served, it taking the form of an indoor picnic.

After the luncheon music was enjoyed by all, Mr. MacDonald rendering banjo solos, and Mr. Perry violin solos, Miss Smiley accompanying at the piano.

After singing Auld Lang Syne the party departed at a late hour, wishing Miss Pinel and Mr. MacDonald many happy returns of the day.

The following were guests; Mr. and Mrs. James Hennessey and two sons, James and Wendell, Mr. and Mrs. Otis MacDonald and son, Otis, Mr. and Mrs. W. F. Perry, Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Pinel, Miss Aljuline Keene, Miss Hattie May Lermond, Miss Una Smiley, Miss Gladys Pinel, Russell Tupper, Ray Oliver, Roland Phinney and G. Cleveland Russell.

SQUANTUM BREEZES.

Mr. Paul Lovejoy, Hampden street, left Monday night on a business trip to Maine and Vermont. He expects to be gone about two weeks.

Mrs. Arthur Brigham, the well-known singer who spends her summers at Squantum. starts on a concert tour this week and will sing in the principal cities in Maine, opening at the Lewiston theatre Wednesday evening. Prof. Blanchart, Miss Erminda Blanchart, Mrs. Mary Shaw Swain are the other well-known artists who take part.

Miss Genevive Cliff who has been visiting Miss Phyllis Bostwick is spending this week with friends at Pigeon Cove.

Mrs. Hiram Morse, Bellevue road, is to open her home Saturday evening for a whist party held under the auspices of the Squantum Women's club. This will be the second of a series of whist parties to be given for the purpose of enlarging the clubhouse fund.

The attractive bungalow of Mr. and Mrs. William Donovan, Bellevue road is being painted and repaired inside and out, as they expect to open it for the season about the first of June.

TWO PRESENTATIONS

The Scandinavia Socialist club made two presentations to members who are going to Stockholm, Norway, for the summer at Electa hall, Tuesday evening. Jean Algorin was given a suit case, the presentation being made by Hjalmar Steberg, and Miss Elsie Wallin was given a camera by John Frederickson.

Both have been prominent in the club and will sail on the same boat within a few days. An impromptu entertainment followed. Refreshments were served and dancing enjoyed.

HISTORIC GAVELS.

Two gavels, made from the wood of the Braintree Town hall which was recently destroyed by fire, were presented to Mt. Wollaston lodge Tuesday evening by Andrew Johnson of Wollaston, past noble grand of John Hancock lodge. The gavels are mementoes of th old town hall where Puritan, Neponset, Mt. Wollaston and John Hancock lodges annually held a grand exemplification. All the lodges are now in possession of gavels. The acceptance was made by Matthew Swanson, noble grand. Following the meeting a social hour was enjoyed, ice cream and cake were served.

CALLED TO NEW PASTORATE

Rev. Merrill C. Ward Coming to Jamaica Plain

Rev. Merrill C. Ward, formerly of Quincy has accepted a pastorate at Jamaica Plain. The Lewiston, Maine Journal, speaks highly of his work at Norway, Maine.

On Sunday, June 1, Rev. Merrill C. Ward concludes a very successful five year pastorate of the Norway Universalist Church. During this time the finances of the church have been well kept up, improvements made on the church property, and the Sunday school has been well organized, graded, a system of promotions established, a regular course of lessons instituted, and the school in every way brought into the front ranks. The regular average attendance has been large and the Rally days have marked the largest attendance for many years. Teacher Training work has been carried on. Mr. Ward has been the superintendent of Teacher Training for the Universalis schools of the state, and the denomination has led all the denominations in the state for the number of classes and for the work done.

Last Sunday, Mr. Ward exchanged with Rev. Robert J. Bruce of the Congregational Church. In some preliminary remarks before the sermon, Mr. Bruce spoke of the high position Mr. Ward has occupied in the esteem of the Norway people of all denominations, and he voiced the regret of the townspeople that Mr. Ward is to leave.

At the last state convention Rev. Mr. Ward was elected as the alternate to preach the convention sermon when the state convention meets at Bangor to dedicate the new Universalist Church June 2-4. This summer, Mr. Ward will spend with his family as usual at the Maplecroft Farm in Buxton. Mr. Ward will preach at the church there for the summer.

St. Paul's Universalist Church at Jamaica Plain in Boston, Mass., has extended Mr. Ward a unanimous call to become its pastor and he will enter upon this pastorate the second Sunday in September, this call came unexpectedly and without solicitation, on his part. Mr. Ward's former pastorates at the Ashmont Church in Boston, and at Hingham and Quincy have given him an acquaintance with the church workers there. The church is an attractive structure on St. John's street. The society is active and has recently laid aside $500, as the beginning of a building fund for a parish house in the rear of the church.

Mr. Ward and his family have greatly enjoyed their home in Norway, the fine old church there and the Oxford county association. The Norway Universalist Church is the oldest church in the town, and the oldest Universalist church in the state it having been organized in 1799 with Rev. Thomas Barnes as its first pastor.

It is with deep regret that Mr. Ward leaves his many friends here and he goes knowing that their good wishes will ever follow him and his family.

STATE INSPECTION.

Dr. Elliot Washburn inspector for the State Board of Health is in Quincy today on a tour of inspection of the junk district in the vicinity of Sumner street and Cyril street and also of the rug factory on Sumner street.

TWO MEN KILL WOMEN AT HUB

Bodies Are Found In Hotels at About Same Time

NONE HEARD SHOTS FIRED

Victims In Each Instance Registered as Man and Wife—One Couple Found In the Napoli, Came From Providence; Those In the Essex From Manchester

Boston, May 21.—By a peculiar coincidence a murder and suicide were reported from two Boston hotels at almost the same time late yesterday afternoon, one at Hotel Essex and the other at Hotel Napoli. In each case the deaths were caused by shooting by men, according to indications. No one heard shots fired in either case.

The murder and suicide at the Hotel Napoli, in Friend street, was that of a man and a woman who registered at the hotel as A. Russell and wife of Providence.

The couple occupied a room on the third floor. Their bodies were found by a bellboy, who, unable to gain admittance, broke the door of the room and found the pair dead in bed with a revolver between them. The man was shot in the right temple and the woman in the left. It is presumed the man killed the woman and then took his own life. They had been dead for several hours.

Both man and woman were young. In one of his pockets was a card bearing the name William Janino and a conductor's card issued at Medford. In the woman's pocket was a letter addressed to Margaret Quinn.

Two persons registering as from Manchester, N. H., as Charles Young and wife, both between 30 and 35 years of age, were found dead in room 322 at the Hotel Essex on Atlantic avenue. They had not been seen by any of the employes of the hotel from the time they went to their room until found by servants.

Both bodies were found undressed, both having bullet wounds in the head. They were discovered by the housekeeper, she having been notified by maids who had been unable to enter the room. It was found necessary to force the door.

The bodies were viewed by Medical Examiner Magrath and sent to the City hospital morgue. It is believed by the police to have been a case of murder and suicide, a revolver being in the hand of the man when the bodies were discovered, according to the room clerk of the hotel.

NEXT WORD FROM JAPAN

Washington Not Worrying Over California Land Legislation

Washington, May 21.—Interest in the negotiations between the United States and Japan over the California land legislation has shifted from Washington to Tokio.

The American government, having delivered its reply to the Japanese protest, is awaiting the next step of Japan, and the situation was not even mentioned at yesterday's cabinet meeting.

It is believed here that the visit to California of the Japanese statesmen, Ebara and Hattori, representing both of the great political parties of Japan, will be of great benefit, as they will be able to enlighten their people at home as to the conditions in California affecting Japanese residents. Other influences are working in the same direction.

NO COMMENT FROM DIAZ

Nothing to Say of Possibility of Again Becoming President

Paris, May 21.—Porfirio Diaz, former president of Mexico, who is staying at a hotel here, declines to make any statement in reply to inquiries as to the arrival of a delegation from Mexico to offer him the presidency.

The report current in Corunna, Spain, on this subject was founded on statements made by officers of the steamer Ypiranga. They said passages to Europe on board that vessel had been engaged for a delegation which was to be sent to Diaz in the name of all the factions in Mexico, to offer him the presidency.

Lipton's Challenge Accepted by the New York Yacht Club

London, May 21.—The Royal Ulster Yacht club received a cable from the New York Yacht club definitely accepting Sir Thomas Lipton's challenge for the America's cup.

The races will be held in September, 1914, under the New York Yacht club's present rules as to measurement, time allowance and rating.

Washburn Railroad Bill Passed

Boston, May 21.—Carrying an amendment to include all common carriers in the anti-pass section, the Washburn public service commission bill was passed by the house, 121 to 8. The small size of the final total in favor of the bill was due to the almost complete lack of opposition. It was a voice vote.

THE NEW HAVEN DIVIDEND.

The Pawtucket Evening Times says: "The wisest thing the New York, New Haven & Hartford directors could do was to cut their dividend to six per cent. To have attempted to continue paying eight per cent. in the present circumstances would have given foundation to the wild charges that are being made against the management. To have done so it would have been necessary to deplete the treasury and to that extent to weaken the road's financial position. No stockholder could properly recommend such a course. The cut may seem a hardship to some investors, but it is the safe and economical course.

"At six per cent. the New Haven is doing extremely well for a road "ruined by reckless mismanagement." It is still an attractive proposition. Some of the managers of great Western systems must be convinced that "recklessness" pays. They are providing only three or four per cent. for their owners and nobody is denouncing them; on the contrary expansion and the better service it gives is warmly approved."

SIGNED BY MAYOR.

Mayor Stone this morning affixed his signature of approval to the resolve passed by the City Council Monday night relative to granting the veterans of the Grand Army employed by the city a leave of absence without loss of pay to attend the fiftieth anniversary of the battle of Gettysburg.

NEW TURNOUTS.

The street railway company has commenced work building the turnouts on the Houghs Neck line authorized by the City Council. The turnout upon which they are now at work is that near the junction of Coddington, Canal, Valley and Sea streets. WOMEN'S CLUBS

WHAT THEY ARE DOING AND SEASONS' PLANS

The New England Women's club held its annual breakfast Tuesday at Hotel Somerset, Boston and it was a most enjoyable ending to a season of many good meetings.

* * *

Mrs. Laurance H. Sturtevant of Adams street is to be the hostess for the May meeting of the Hospital Aid association, the date being Thursday May 29 at half past two.

* * *

Already plans have been made by the local biennial board for the biennial of National Federation of Women's clubs which will be held in Chicago. It is expected to be the largest meeting ever held and the Illinois federation is making extensive plans to entertain the general federation. Local committees have been appointed to arrange details of the meetings.

* * *

The Katharyn Crane Memorial club is to have a field day next Saturday as a wind up of its season.

* * *

The last of the literary afternoons of the Literature committee of The Philergians of Braintree is scheduled for May 28, when the class will meet with Miss Thebe L. Hosmer at Thayer Academy. Mrs. Herbert J. Gurney of Wollaston, leader will read John Galsworthy's "The Pigeon" and "The Patrician." These meetings have been held the past four months and have been intellectual feasts.

* * *

The National Housewives' league is planning a country-wide movement for clean food, and the president, Mrs. Julian Heath, notes that the object is the giving of a guarantee to housekeepers that butcher shops, bakeries, grocery stores, and all places where foodstuffs are sold shall be in such a condition as to successfully pass inspection. The league proposes to place signs in the front windows of stores certifying the date and result of inspection, and, in consequence, housewives will be urged to give their trade to the places where the cards are in evidence. There will be no black list or white list made of the places, but the clean markets and clean stores will naturally benefit by increased trade.

* * *

Mrs. Henry Coolidge Mulligan who retires next week from the presidency of the Massachusetts Federation of Women's club gave a reception May 15th at her beautiful home in Natick to the members of the executivie board during her two-year term of office. Mrs. Mulligan, was presented by her guests with an exquisite diamond and pearl pendant, a loving testimonial of the high esteem in which she is held. Among the guests were: Mrs. George W. Perkins of Roxbury, who is mentioned as a probable successor to Mrs. Mulligan. Mrs. Perkins is now first vice president, also Mrs. Nathan N. Denison of Framingham, Mrs. Royal Whiton of Dorchester, Mrs. Emmons Crocker of Fitchburg and Mrs. Herbert J. Gurney of Wollaston.

* * *

A regular meeting of the Squantum Women's Club will be held this evening at the home of Mrs. William A. Reed, Bellevue road. Matters of importance regarding clubhouse will be discussed.

VISITING NURSING.

The largest philanthrophy of the Quincy Women's club is that of Visiting Nursing the club through its Visiting Nurse committee of which Mrs. Albert N. Murray has been chairman the past two years, standing back of the work financially. As the expense entailed for two and sometimes three nurses is more than the club has to do with and also assist other civic, educational and philanthropic work it is necessary to raise considerable money each year to carry on the work. To do this the committee is indebted to many interested societies, club and friends for contributions. The following is a list of contributors:

N. E. WOMEN'S CLUB.

At the annual meeting of the New England Women's Club, at 585 Boylston street, Boston, Monday, Mrs. Horace Mann Willard was re-elected one of the five vice presidents and Miss C. Belle Kenney also of the Quincy Mansion school was elected a director. Mrs. Albert M. Parker continues as chairman of the Press committee.

This has been an unusually prosperous year financially and in increasing membership, the membership limit having been reached.

Fifteen classes, led by club members, with from fifteen to thirty-five in each, show what an interest has been taken in study classes. Any member is free to join as many of these classes as she desires, free of charge as the leaders give their services.

The botany group, has for a leader Miss Cora H. Clarke, daughter of James Freeman Clarke. She has led this class for twenty years and is an authority in scientific research work.

Some other classes are French, elementary, French conversation, Italian reading, (advanced) elementary Italian, Spanish and Italian readings, beginner's Spanish, German conversation, nineteenth century history, current literature with a book review, alternating with discussion is the plan, problems of the home with special leaders, modern drama, art and science.

At the May breakfast held Tuesday at the Somerset, around a large oval table were seated the president, Mrs. May Alden Ward, guests and the executive board. The decorations were American Beauty roses, a huge basket of these being in the center, and a loose wreath, as it were, the length and breadth of the table of the same made it possible for all present to come away with a floral souvenir of a most happy occasion. In front of Mrs. Ward lay the magnificent armful of these beauties, presented to her. The smaller tables set for six also were decorated with these roses.

The guests Mrs. Mary Woolman of the Women's Educational and Industrial Union, where she is serving during her Sabbatical year from Columbia, was a most enthusiastic speaker. She told of her work at the Union and at Simmons college. She aims to connect college training with practical business.

Mrs. Catherine Osborne spoke on the Boston Student's Union of which she is Director. The life in their homelike club, the registries by which the thousands of girl students seeking education in Boston may be helped to proper and congenial lodgings awakened deep interest in her hearers. She asked as did Mrs. Woolman for the co-operation of Boston women, indeed of all Massachusetts women.

Miss Edith Castle contralto, was the soloist and Mrs. Belle Temple Priest was most entertaining in monologues.

STATE FEDERATION ANNUAL.

Mrs. Percy V. Pennypacker, president of the General Federation of Women's clubs, will be the guests of honor at the annual meeting of the Massachusetts State Federation to be held Wednesday, May 28 and Thursday, May 29 in the South Congregational church, Boston, by invitation of the New England Woman's club.

There will be morning and afternoon sessison on both days at 10 A. M. and 2 P. M. The business will consist of the annual reports of officers and chairmen of departments, a report of the council meeting of the General Federation, the election of officers, and other business.

Wednesday the past presidents will be special guests of the federation, and a part of the session will be devoted to anniversary exercises in celebration of the completion of twenty years as a state federation. Mrs. Pennypacker will give an address Wednesday evening which will be followed by a reception by the hostess club in the parlors of the church.

Each club having one hundred members, or between fifty and one hundred members is entitled to one delegate besides the president. For every hundred additional members a club may have one additional delegate.

The Quincy Women's club will be represented at the meetings by Mrs. Chandler W. Smith, president, Mrs. Frank J. Moore, Mrs. Victor E. Miller and Mrs. Charles R. Safford. It is hoped Quincy women will attend the sessions as they will hear and learn much of interest. Admission tickets may be had on application to the corresponding secretary Mrs. Edward S. Tenney.

CIVIC WORK.

Guided by enthusiastic clubwomen as leader and equally interested coworkers, the Women's clubs all over the United States have been doing a tremendous amount of civic work this past year. Beside the general town cleaning day which has been inaugurated by many clubs, some of the unusual methods of beautifying the cities have been the following: Last fall the Columbian club of Boise, Idaho, conducted a bulb planting day and the result was very evident this spring when the public and private grounds of the city are gay with flowering bulbs. This is the second season that the club has conducted this special campaign for a more beautiful Boise. The school grounds of the entire State are being especially overhauled this spring, and flowers planted, for one of the special objects of the clubwomen of the smaller towns is the beautifying of thes chool grounds.

A plot of ground near the railroad station has been secured by the Women's club at Calhoun, Ga., and parked and planted. Then they built a modest clubhouse upon it, which is also used for a rest room for country women shoppers. They have a woman keep the small children of the shoppers and to care for and preserve the property.

The amusement committee of George L. Gill, Rebekah lodge are planning for a public whist party Thursday afternoon at 2 o'clock in Odd Fellows' hall.

HENRY M. FLAGLER

Aged Capitalist Succumbs to Long Illness In Florida

DEATH OF FLAGLER

Noted Capitalist Passes Away at His Winter Home In Florida

West Palm Beach, Fla., May 21.—Henry M. Flagler, aged 83, capitalist, oil and railroad magnate, died at his winter home here after an illness of several weeks. Flagler recently fell down a flight of six steps in his home.

For the past few weeks Flagler had been losing practically all of his faculties, and his death was momentarily expected. Several of his relatives and business associates had been summoned to his bedside.

The body will be buried in a mansoleum at St. Augustine, in the yard of the memorial church which he gave to the Presbyterians.

WOULD-BE LYNCHERS INVADE COURTROOM

Negroes Rushed to Jail and Placed Under Heavy Guard

Frederick, Md., May 21.—Nearly a thousand persons besieged police headquarters here at the hearing of four negroes, Ben Hurd and wife and John Alexander and wife, charged with burglarizing houses.

The crowd surged against a heavy iron railing in front of the judge's desk and it gave way under the weight. The prisoners were hurriedly removed to an adjoining room where, after a brief hearing, they were held for the court.

On the way to jail the negroes and officers were followed by a crowd that jammed the streets. Cries of "Get a rope," "Get a rope" went up.

Realizing the seriousness of the situation, the officers stopped a passing automobile and rushed the prisoners to jail, where they were placed under heavy guard.

REFUSED TO "MOVE ON"

Fifty-Seven Strikers and Sympathizers Arrested at Paterson

Paterson, N. J., May 21.—Fifty-seven arrests were made in the vicinity of the Price silk mill, to which the hands have returned in the face of protests from Industrial Workers of the World leaders conducting the strike.

Twelve hundred or more strikers and others gathered in the streets near the mill to jeer the returning workers. There was no actual violence and those arrested were taken in because they refused to "move on."

MAKERS OF HISTORY

Columbus, Washington and Bolivar Named as Three Greatest

Washington, May 21.—A Spaniard, an American and a Latin-American were declared to be the three greatest makers of history since Christ, by Jose de Diego, speaker of the Porto Rican house of delegates, in an address before the Spanish-American Athenaeum.

He said they were Christopher Columbus, George Washington and Bolivar, the liberator of South America.

Caruso Has Musical Bones

London, May 21.—Dr. William Lloyd, throat specialist, says Enrico Caruso's bones are musical, even his knuckles, when tapped, giving out a more harmonious sound than the average knuckle.

School Closed by Measles

Dedham, Mass., May 21.—Twelve cases of measles were found among the pupils of the first and second grades of the Ames grammar school here. The school was ordered closed for ten days.

Becomes a Daddy at Seventy

Philadelphia, May 21.—Leo Quadenfield, 70, is the proud father of a 12-pound boy. Mrs. Quadenfield is but 15 years old, and was the adopted daughter of the old man's first wife.

"KING OF ALBANIA" IS ASSASSINATED

Probable Revenge For Having a Former Chief Killed

Vienna, May 21.—Reports of the murder of Essad Pasha, who commanded the Turks at Scutari throughout the siege, have reached the Albanians at Trieste, according to a dispatch to The Reichpost from that city.

The assassination took place at Tirana, where Essad Pasha marched with many thousands of Turkish troops after the evacuation of Scutari, formed a provisional Albanian government and proclaimed himself king of Albania.

It is thought the murder may be the result of a blood vendetta and was carried out by relatives of Riza Pasha, who preceded Essad as commandant of Scutari and whose death there was laid to the account of Essad Pasha.

G. O. P. HEADQUARTERS

Secretary of National Committee Says They Are "Under His Hat"

Washington, May 21.—James B. Reynolds, secretary of the Republican national committee, arrived in town to prepare for the meeting of the executive committee on Saturday.

One of the first men whom Reynolds met was "Tom" Pence, in charge of the Democratic national organization headquarters. The two are old friends, although political enemies.

"Hello," said Pence in greeting, "where's your office?"

"Under my hat," snapped Reynolds.

BLACKMAILERS CONVICTED

Verdict of Guilty Against Two Men Who Threatened Wilson

Newark, N. J., May 21.—Zeley Davenport and Jacob Dunn, mountain woodchoppers of Wharton, N. J., were convicted by a federal grand jury of sending threatening letters to Woodrow Wilson, while he was president-elect. In the case of Davenport the jury recommended mercy.

The communications mailed to Wilson were received by his secretary, Joseph P. Tumulty, in May and November of last year, and demanded money in sums of $1000 and $5000 under a penalty of death.

REACTION AGAINST SUFFRAGE.

Conservative women who have been interested in the cause of suffrage are questioning the methods of the leaders and in every state there are new advocates against granting further extensio nof suffrage. The Hartford Times of recent date said: "That there is a strong reaction against the votes for women propaganda all over the country is beginning to be believed. Mrs. Pankhurst is responsible for it in part. The emtoional turbulance of the electorate in California and other states where women have the suffrage is another effective influence in making the intelligent voters of the country at large, feel that the question had better receive a good deal more consideration before we attempt to introduce the politieal methods of Utah and the Pacific coast into the older states.

COLLINS NOW STATE WITNESS

Says Breen Paid Him $50 For "Planting" Dynamite

GIVES TESTIMONY IN DETAIL

Tells of Meeting Undertaker In Boston, Receiving and Transporting Explosive to Lawrence, and There Disposing of It—In Hiding While Breen's Trial Was In Progress

Boston, May 21.—Dennis J. Collins, the Cambridge dog fancier, took the stand at the trial of William M. Wood, president of the American Woolen company, and others on the charge of conspiracy to plant dynamite during the Lawrence strike and discredit the strikers, and testified to the part he claimed he and John J. Breen, the undertaker, took in the alleged plant.

Judge Crosby of the superior criminal court was called upon for frequent rulings on legal points raised by the district attorney and counsel for the three defendants—Wood, Atteaux and Collins.

Collins told of having known Breen for fifteen years and of having met him on Jan. 19, 1912, in a saloon in Court street between 5 and 6 o'clock. They had a drink at Breen's invitation and Breen asked him if he would do something for him and Collins said he would if it would help him. Breen said he was to meet someone and asked witness to carry a bundle. At the same time Breen gave the witness five $5 bills from a roll which he had taken from his pocket.

Breen said, witness testified, that he was to meet some people at Washington and Franklin streets at 7 o'clock. The men did not appear as Breen seemed to have expected and Breen telephoned several times. Breen also gave witness a telephone number, and Collins jotted it down in a notebook and called it up.

Later Breen telephoned and then said he could not understand why the others were delayed. Finally two men came, one carrying a bundle. Witness said he remained behind while Breen went ahead and received the package, the men laughing as they passed it. The witness and Breen then walked down Newspaper row and Breen stopped and put the bundle, which witness thought weghed about forty pounds, on the sidewalk. Collins picked it up and went to the North station, where he took a Lawrence train.

Breen was in one end of the smoker talking with several men. Witness held the bundle on his knees. Collins testified that on arrival in Lawrence he was driven to Breen's undertaking shop. The bundle was taken to a room and opened on a bed. It contained a number of sticks of dynamite.

Collins told of going in a sleigh with Breen on the night they made the trip to Lawrence and of leaving a package containing some sticks at a Syrian tailor shop, saying it was a package to be called for later. They went to a Syrian or Italian printing shop, but it was closed, so nothing was left there. They met someone and Breen asked where Ettor was speaking that night. The pedestrian named the hall but witness could not recall it. They were told that Ettor had finished speaking and that the hall was closed.

Breen, witness claimed, said he wished he could put a package in the basement of Syrian hall, which was closed. They then drove to a cemetery near a mill and a package was left there. The remainder of the sticks were taken from the sleigh and kept with others at Breen's place overnight.

The witness testified that the next morning he met Breen again and they went to the printing shop but left nothing, as there were too many people about. They put a package in a cobbler's shop.

Later, Collins said, Breen gave him $25 more. Collins understood from Breen that the latter was to receive $100 and that he would "split even" with him, $50 each. When he left Breen the latter said: "Mum's the word."

"I asked what it all meant," said Collins. Breen answered:

"'What does it mean? It means that I'll be mayor of this city some day. There are millions behind me in this.

"'Do you know Wood? Well, then—just you watch the papers tomorrow. You'll see what it means.'"

The witness declared Breen had not mentioned the word "dynamite" to him, unless it was when Collins took up the package from the sidewalk in Newspaper row, and then Breen said something which he did not hear distinctly. The first witness knew of the dynamite was when he read of it in the papers.

According to Collins' testimony Breen's brother, Charles Breen, went to his house in Cambridge before 6 a. m. on the morning when John Breen's trial began at Salem, gave him $18 and said John Breen had sent word for Collins to take the cash and "beat it." Witness got out of bed and, taking the money, left town for one week.

John Breen himself will take the stand, probably this morning.

BOUND TO HOLD QUORUM

Granite State Solons Locked In Chamber by Order of Speaker

Concord, N. H., May 21.—Much excitement marked the last day but one of the present legislature, when some of the Republican members of the house attemptd to leave the chamber after Speaker Britton, Progressive, had ordered the doors locked in order to retain a quorum. Although there were some threats of forcing the doors, no violence was attempted and order was quickly restored.

At the forenoon session only fifty Republican representatives were present and the house was forced to adjourn until afternoon. An endeavor to prevent, through lack of a quorum, the passage of administrative bills urged by Governor Felker was alleged by some members of the house to be the reason of the failure of the Republicans to attend the early session.

Two measures advocated by the governor, one abolishing the state board of agriculture and another providing for the abolition of the state bank commission, were passed in the lower branch. Other administrative bills will come up for action in the house today before the legislature is prorogued at 5 p. m.

POLICY ON PHILIPPINES

Democrats Are Divided, So the President Will Investigate

Washington, May 21.—The report that Professor Ford of Princeton university has been sent by President Wilson to the Philippines with a view of investigating conditions there and making to the president specific recommendations relative to independence, is taken here to mean that the administration desires to go slowly in this matter.

There are Democrats who believe the islands should be given their independence at the end of a short term of years. There are also those who are on the fence waiting "to be shown." There are some who do not believe in Philippine independence, but who for the sake of party harmony say nothing about it.

The opinion here is that President Wilson will make no important move affecting the Philippines till Ford returns to the United States.

EIGHTY THOUSAND CHICKENS HELD UP

Boycott by Jobbers Who Discover Cheating In Weight

New York, May 21.—Twenty carloads of live chickens, 4000 chickens to the car, were held in Jersey City because angry jobbers refused to receive them.

The trouble arose over a recent complaint of jobbers that receivers were stuffing chickens' crops with weight-producing sand and gravel to make up for shrinkage sustained in transit.

Until receivers agree to abandon the practice, the dealers say they will boycott all live poultry. Ordinarily about 125,000 live fowl are handled daily.

NINE IN ELEVEN HOURS

Railway Head Protests Against Proposed Act of Legislature

Boston, May 21.—In a statement sent to the members of the legislature last night, President Bancroft of the Boston Elevated Railway company protests against the passage of the nine hours in eleven bill for street car men.

It is contended by Bancroft that, if this legislation is passed, it will be necessary to employ 1700 more men than at present.

It is furthermore contended that an attempt to settle the hours of employment is a plain violation of the agreement existing between the railway company and the Boston Carmen's union.

BALKAN PEACE PARLEY

Better Terms Are Sought by Chiefs of the Plenipotentiaries

London, May 21.—The chiefs of the Balkan plenipotentiaries now in London to renew the Balkan-Turkish peace negotiations met privately for the purpose of preparing a request to the powers that the peace proposals be modified in several instances.

At the same time the ambassadors met with Sir Edward Grey to discuss the situation, particularly the Greek representations regarding the Albanian frontier and the Ægean islands.

The KITCHEN CUPBOARD

SPAGHETTI COMBINATIONS.

SPAGHETTI, though not so popular in this country as macaroni, is every bit as nutritious. The paste from which it is made is exactly the same as that used for macaroni. Instead of being formed into tubes spaghetti is made in the shape of threads. The glutinous flour of hard wheat from which these favorite Italian foods are manufactured is full of nourishment.

Spaghetti may be combined with other foods to make delicious dishes. Some recipes for these follow:

Spaghetti With Tomato Sauce.—Take a cupful of spaghetti and boil and blanch it. Butter a baking dish and pour the spaghetti in it. Add a cupful of strained tomatoes, a little cream sauce and sprinkle with breadcrumbs. Bake in a hot oven for twenty minutes.

To make the sauce place a tablespoonful of butter in a saucepan, adding a tablespoonful of flour. Mix these together and slowly pour in a cupful of cold milk. Stir these together until smooth. Then add a couple of tablespoonfuls of grated cheese, a teaspoonful of salt and a dash of pepper. Mix all together and when smooth pour over the spaghetti.

Excellent Viands.

Eggs and Spaghetti.—Take some spaghetti and cook it with a cupful of grated cheese. When the spaghetti and cheese are cooked, add slices of hard boiled eggs. Serve in a bowl garnished with pieces of soft toast.

Spaghetti and Mushrooms.—Boil a pound of spaghetti for eight minutes in salt water. Then wash and drain. Pour into a saucepan a cupful of rich beef or veal gravy and put in the spaghetti. Cook and add a pound of fried fresh mushrooms, a very small quantity of finely chopped and fried onions and one cupful of stewed tomatoes. Season with salt and paprika and cook for ten minutes. When serving sprinkle grated parmesan cheese over it.

Spaghetti and Bacon.—Take a small package of spaghetti, half a dozen slices of bacon which have been cut into small squares and fried crisp and a half can of tomatoes. Turn the spaghetti into two quarts of rapidly boiling salted water, add a half teaspoonful of pepper and boil hard for twenty or thirty minutes; stir frequently to prevent scorching. Drain the spaghetti in a colander and rinse thoroughly in cold running water. Add to the bacon and tomatoes, season to taste and boil thirty minutes.

Two Tests for Good Butter
Hot Biscuit---Hot Weather.

Randolph Creamery Butter will stand any and all tests. It is the best butter made. That's saying considerable, nevertheless it is a fact.

It has a delicious fresh-churned flavor that pleases. It is never strong, never old. It is made from pasteurized cream in the cleanest dairy in New England. It goes to your table with a marvel of sweetness that tells it is of the highest grade.

It comes from a district noted for its butter products—Randolph, Vermont—and every butter connoisseur knows that this locality has the finest butter in the world.

Just give it a trial. If it isn't all we say, bring it back.

SOPHOMORES VICTORIOUS

Defeat Holbrook High by Score of 6 to 4

The Sophomores of the Quincy High School traveled to Holbrook on Tuesday where they defeated the Holbrook High school, 6 to 4. The win was through the fine work of Captain Browne and Barstow.

Hunt started the pitching but was succeeded by O'Connor in the fifth inning. Capt. Browne made two long runs and gathered in two drives at critical moments. Barstow caught a good game and secured several put outs at the plate.

Arthur put up a good article of base ball at first and Hunt and O'Connor both figured in brilliant plays.

The game was evenly played by the local team. Reynolds who has not been showing up in past games came across like a top notcher. The Sophomores made no errors.

Manager Hunt is endeavoring to secure games with Randolph and Avon High schools. The summary:

MISS LILLIAN B. MOODY.

Miss Lillian B. Moody, Tremlett street, Roxbury, died Tuesday at the Quincy City Hospital from pneumonia. The body was sent to Tewksbury for burial. Miss Moody was well known in Boston business circles and conducted a public stenographers' office. Last fall she directed the stenographers' connected with the publicity campaign of the Massachusetts Progressive party. From 1897 to 1903 she was stenographer at the Massachusetts General Hospital, and secretary to Dr. Howard, the former administrator. She also served as the stenographer at the State Hospital at Tewksbury.

The social committee of the C. E. society of the First Presbyterian church met at the home of Miss Margaret Morrison, Goddard street, Tuesday evening. Extensive plans were made for an entertainment and social to be held June 3. The annual picnic of the society which is always a happy event was talked over and final arrangements will be made at the next business meeting of the society. After the transaction of business a social hour was enjoyed when refreshments were served.

Rising to Higher Life.

The Hindus have a theory that after death animals live again in a different form; those that have done well in a higher, those that have done ill in a lower grade. To realize this they find a powerful incentive to a virtuous life. But whether it be true of a future life or not, it is certainly true of our present existence. If we do our best for a day, the next morning we shall rise to a higher life; while if we give way to our passions and temptations we take with equal certainty a step downward toward a lower nature—Lubbock.

WILLARD'S WIN CHAMPIONSHIP

Must Now Play in the World Series

By defeating Lincoln 3 to 1 in a hotly contested game on Smith's field before 1000 interested spectators Tuesday afternoon, Willard won the championship of the "National League" and will cross bats with the winning team of the "American League" in a three-game "world series" for the championship of the city. Willard clinched the game in the first inning. Minihan, the first man up, drew a base on balls, went to second on Callahan's line drive over short, stole third and came home on a passed ball by Zavatoni, Callahan going to second. Rheinhalter walked. Callahan stole third and Rheinhalter second. Marini knocked a weak grounder to the pitcher and was thrown out at first, Callahan scoring on the play. Egan flied to center and Koegler struck out.

In the first half of the fourth, Lincoln at the bat after Egan had retired the first two men on strikes, Smith was passed, McDonald and Zavatoni singled, scoring Smith. Anderson put an end to any more trouble by rolling one to Wallace and was dead at first.

In their half of the fourth Willard came back with a vengeance. Koegler singled but was caught napping off base. Hinchon fanned. Wallace was given a free ticket to first, stole second and third and sprinted across the plate on Franzi's single. Minihan ended the scoring by failing to connect with the sphere.

Egan, the peerless southpaw of the granite section, pitched gilt-edge ball, allowing but two hits and a single base on balls,—Smith, McDonald, and Zavatoni being the only Lincoln lads to see first.

Anderson pitched well, the quarryites finding him for four hits but he gave five bases on balls.

The features of the game were the all round work of Franzi at first, who made two hits out of as many times at bat, and accepted nine chances without an error also the battery work of Egan and Rheinhalter.

The score:

WALKER NEEDS A NEW KIDNEY

Transplanting Suggested to Save Life of Macon Banker

THE ONLY RESOURCE LEFT

Operation Has Proved Successful In Case of Animals—Patient Making Brave Fight and Showing No Worry —Has Lived Beyond the Time Allotted Him by Doctors

Baltimore, May 21.—To transplant the healthy kidneys from a man who has just died to the body of B. S. Walker, millionaire banker of Macon, Ga., is probably the only remedy that would save the banker's life, if the mercury tablet he swallowed has destroyed one of his kidneys. This was the statement of a prominent physician, a member of the Johns Hopkins hospital staff.

The physician said Dr. Alexis Carrell of the Rockefeller institute of research has successfully transplanted the kidneys from one dog to another and in a short time the dogs walked about and ate as if their organs had not been disturbed. According to Carrell, the same operation could be performed on a human.

Another local physician predicted Walker's recovery, although he said the banker might be paralyzed for life. This doctor said he had had cases just like that in Macon and in only one of them did the patient die.

Critical Stage Is Reached

Macon, Ga., May 21.—It cannot be said that B. S. Walker is more than holding his own, if that is true, against the poison he sustained one week ago when he took a bichloride of mercury tablet for a dose of asperin by mistake. His pulse is very high and respiration is low and attending physicians are very much afraid this is an advanced stage of the severest effect of the poison.

The young man converses with his physicians and shows no signs of worry. He has taken no nourishment during the fight for his life, but there have been favorable signs as to relief for the kidneys. Doctors are very hopeful for the first time of saving his life.

Walker has already lived beyond the time when doctors thought he would be dead and his hardiness of system will still give him at least two or three days. Despite the efforts of almost all local medical skill, combined with what could be gathered from other points, the patient is at a most critical stage and nothing less than a miracle will save him.

AMID PATRIOTIC OUTBURST

Menocal Is Inaugurated as the Third President of Cuba

Havana, May 21.—Amid scenes of intense patriotic enthusiasm, Mario G. Menocal was inaugurated as third president of the Cuban republic. The ceremony was attended by a brilliant assemblage, including a special American mission.

Special fetes were held last night when all the city was brilliantly illuminated. The principal streets, lined with triumphal arches, the buildings draped with the national colors, were thronged. There were superb electrical displays in the Prado and Central park.

A battery of artillery facing the palace, the Cuban naval vessels in the harbor and all the fortresses fired a national salute.

BARBER IS INSANE

Dancing Teacher Who Set Fire to Building Goes to an Asylum

Gloucester, Mass., May 21.—Henry A. Barber, a dancing teacher, who confessed to an attempt to set fire to the Naumkeag building in Salem a week ago, was adjudged insane and sent to the state hospital for the insane at Danvers.

Barber held dancing classes in a hall in the Naumkeag building, and, after his class on the night mentioned, the building was fired. He later confessed and was examined by physicians.

Serious Crash of Autos

Boston, May 21.—Running at a speed of sixty miles an hour while responding to a fire alarm last night, an automobile truck of the Boston protective department struck the rear of the limousine of James E. Rothwell of Brookline, tossing the car thirty feet onto the sidewalk and hurling Rothwell and his wife through its windows, injuring them seriously. Rothwell is not expected to recover.

Widow Keeps Her Vow

Washington, May 21.—"Here's the money I promised God I'd pay back when I was able," wrote a widow sending Secretary of the Treasury McAdoo $164 "conscience money."

Turley For Public Printer

Washington, May 21.—President Wilson has about made up his mind to appoint W. V. Turley of Chattanooga to the post of public printer, which pays $5500 a year.

BRIEFS

New photographs of City Hall showing how the building looks since it has been cleaned are being presented to the city officials by A. B. Smith, the man who cleaned the building.

Miss Clara Thompson of the Quincy High school will relate stories of her travels in Europe to the members of St. Margaret's Guild at the Friday evening meeting.

Walter Birmingham of 40 Morton street is at the City Hospital. Friends will be pleased to learn that the operation was successful, and that he is doing well.

Daughters of Viking, Foresters of America, transacted routine business at a regular meeting in Protection hall, Tuesday evening. Dancing followed the meeting, music being furnished by Harry Niccols.

Mrs. Exelis Nason is at the home of her mother, Mrs. Beaulieu, 53 Buckley street, following treatment at a Boston hospital Mrs. Nason is a member of Paul Revere Woman's Relief Corps and the Daughters of Veterans.

Walter Murray, a popular young man of this city, has been engaged to sing illustraed songs at the new Kincaide theatre. He is introducing the latest song success, "The curse of an aching heart," and responded to several encores at Tuesday evening's performance.

The National conference of Finnish Congregational churches will be held at the Quincy church next week, opening on Wednesday and continuing through Sunday.

The inventory of the estate of Elizabeth Weld Dewson shows real estate to the value of $12,000 and personal property to the value of $18,395. Mrs. Sophia Berry left $11,001 in personal property. The estate of Deborah R. Hammond shows real estate $2,750, and personal estate $3,861.

There is more Catarrh in this section of the country than all other diseases put together, and until the last few years was supposed to be incurable. For a great many years doctors pronounced it a local disease and prescribed local remedies, and by constantly failing to cure local treatment, pronounced it incurable. Science has proven catarrh to be a constitutional disease and therefore requires constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, Ohio, is the only constitutional cure on the market. It is taken internally in doses from 10 drops to a teaspoonful. It acts directly on the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. They offer one hundred dollars for any case it fails to cure. Send for circulars and testimonials.

NEW MASONIC HALL.

Nearly one hundred members of Wollaston Masonic lodge met in an informal way at their apartments Tuesday evening and discussed the question of securing larger quarters. It was the general consensus of opinion that larger quarters, with better accommodations were immediately necessary. Several schemes were discussed but no definite action was taken as it was not a regular communication. It is probable however that some action will be taken at the regular communication in June.

Nelson and Red Tape.

When Nelson returned to England after he lost his eye he went to receive a year's pay as smart money, but could not obtain payment because he had neglected to bring a certificate from a surgeon that the sight was actually destroyed. A little irritated that this form should be insisted on, because, though the fact was not apparent, he thought it was sufficiently notorious, he procured a certificate at the same time for the loss of his arm, saying they might as well doubt one as the other. * * * On his return to the office the clerk, finding it was only the annual pay of a captain, observed he thought it had been more. "Oh," replied Nelson, "this is only for an eye. In a few days I shall come for an arm, and in a little longer, God knows, most probably for a leg."

Preaching and Practice.

In Gladstone Lady Dorothy Neville found a conversationalist after her own heart. She sang his praises many times in her reminiscences, and once she told this anecdote of his methods of self protection at public gatherings:

"I remember his talking about the safety of the times and how public men could now go unguarded everywhere, while he was sitting at a dinner table with two detectives provided by Scotland Yard in order to watch over him standing in the room, while another was upstairs ready to mix with the guests at the party which was afterward to be given. The Grand Old Man's two guardians at the dinner were dressed as footmen, one standing immediately behind his chair, while the other took up a position directly opposite on the other side of the table."

Enough Said.

The teacher in charge of one of the grades in a grammar school wrote on the board a number of words ending in the syllable "tion." After explaining the meaning of each to the class she told them to use the words in sentences. Her pupils wrote busily for a few moments, and then one of them astonished her with the following:

"Father's hair is a recollection, mother's is an acquisition, auntie's is a compilation, sister's is an aggregation, brother's is a conflagration, while baby's is a mere premonition."—Magazine of Fun.

The Penalty of Politeness.

"I noticed, dear," said Mr. Markham to his wife, "you didn't say 'thank you' to the man who gave you his seat in the street car this evening."

"No," replied Mrs. Markham; "you see, I once stopped to say thank you and by the time I had done so I found that another woman had the seat."—New York Post.

Presence of Mind.

QUINCY'S BEAUTIFUL CITY OF THE DEAD

Mount Wollaston Cemetery Very Attractive and Improving Each Year

Some of the More Notable Memorials Recently Erected

With the approach of Memorial Day the thoughts of those who have lost relatives and friends, naturally turns toward Quincy's beautiful city of the dead, Mt. Wollaston cemetery. Always a pretty spot it was never more so than at this season of the year. James Nicol, who has been the superintendent of this cemetery for many years is in charge. A natural landscape artist, he has during the years he has been in charge brought about a wonderful change.

As originally laid out the lots were simply small mounds surrounded on all four sides by paths. Not only were these hard to take care of but for years there was no general attempt made to have these lots properly cared for. The result was that many were overgrown with moss. the grass was never cut and they were anything but attractive.

Then came the advent of the lawn plan system and this has been pushed forward so that today there are but few sections of the cemetery which are not so laid out.

Some of this work has been done by the Managers of Public Burial Places from their appropriation but a greater part has been done at the expense of the lot owners, who have been very ready to co-operate with the managers.

During the past year the department has done considerable of this kind of work over on the Sea street side, near the city tomb. Those familiar with the cemetery will recall that on either side of this tomb these lots were on a kind of side hill and were little more than hummocks. Now all of the lots on the side toward Houghs Neck have been cut down and graded on the lawn plan and look beautiful. It is hoped to complete the lots on the side toward City Square in the near future on the same plan.

POLICY OF EXTENSION IMPROVEMENT AND DEVELOPMENT

So Says Charles M. Schwab Relative to the Future of the Fore River Shipbuilding Corporation

Efficiency and Ability of Company Officers and Managers Has Never Been Doubted ---Quincy Plant Up-to-Date

Charles M. Schwab and a party composed of Mr. Snyder, vice-president of the Bethlehem Steel Corporation, W. G. Cox, president of the Harlan and Hollingsworth Corporation, J. A. Macgregor, president of the Union Iron Works, and H. S. Shick, comptroller of the Bethlehem Steel Corporation, spent the day at the works of the Fore River Shipbuilding Corporation, which the Bethlehem Steel Company has recently acquired.

After making a very thorough inspection of the plant, Mr. Schwab said to the representative of the Daily Ledger that he was exceedingly pleased with all departments of the Fore River company and that it was farthest from his intention to make any change whatever in the staff of managers headed by Admiral Bowles.

The efficiency and ability of Fore River's officers and managers has never been doubted and Mr. Schwab is enthusiastic as to the further success and development of the Fore River Shipbuilding Corporation, and is most pleased to say that his friendly relations and confidence in Admiral Francis T. Bowles, H. Gerrish Smith, Harry Brown, Joseph A. Sedgwick and the other officers of the company is most complete.

Mr. Schwab also says that his policy with reference to the Fore River Shipbuilding Corporation will be the same as the policy at Bethlehem plant and the other works of the Bethlehem Steel Corporation, and that is a policy of EXTENSION, IMPROVEMENT AND DEVELOPMENT and we hope to have the continued support and interest of the City of Quincy and this community in the progress and development of this industry.

Instead of a curtailment of the working force Mr. Schawb says that in all probability it will be increased. The Quincy plant is in an excellent condition and up-to-date, and is bound to prosper.

On leaving the works, Mr. Schwab and party went to Boston and will have dinner at the Copley Plaza, leaving for New York at 4 o'clock.

BODY WASHED ASHORE

Partly Dismembered When Found at Squantum

The body of a man was found this morning washed ashore in front of the cottage of Mrs. John Jepson at Squantum. It was headless and one leg gone at the knee. On the other foot was a shoe. The only clothing was a shirt and trousers. Height about 5 feet, 7 inches.

Mrs. Jepson notified the Quincy police and Sergt. Larkin responded. After the body had been viewed it was removed to Hall's undertaking rooms Sergt. Larkin thinks it is the body of a sailor.

POSTAL RUNAWAY.

After a mad run from Billings street up Hancock street and through Quincy Square, a grey horse used in the delivery of the Wollaston parcel post was stopped on Coddington street by Officer Farrell who jumped from an inbound Houghs Neck car when he saw the animal approaching about 10.30 this morning.

The horse started when the key pole of the wagon parted. When he went through City Square the reins were dragging and the front gear of the wagon was trailing along. Officer Farrell was thrown to the ground and covered with mud, but inunjured.

Arthur W. Holton, the driver was not on the wagon when the pole parted. He pursued the steed up Hancock street with the aid of an electric car. None of the parcels were lost and the horse was not injured . The outfit is owned by M. J. McGrath of Wollaston.

It is reported about City Square this morning that some of the State police were coming to Quincy today to look over the places where gasoline is kept for sale.

HANDS BURNED.

Arthur P. Homer was severely burned about the right hand and the palm of his left hand was also severely burned when a feed pipe to an alcohol stove aboard his 34 foot cruiser Remoh broke and made a lively blaze in the cabin of the boat. Mr. Homer and party who included Dr. W. H. Blanchard of Quincy were on a trip to from Bar Harbor to Marblehead. Mr. Homer was burned while trying to extinguish the fire. The boat was but slightly damaged. Mr. Homer is doing well although unable to use his hands.

ARRIVED LATE AT ATLANTIC.

The special committee of the City Council who are investigating the Fire department visited the Wollaston and Atlantic stations Wednesday night. It was about 9.30 when they reached the Atlantic station and they found all of the firemen attached to the house in bed asleep. Driver Billings got up however and answered such questions as the committee desired to ask of him.

SOME SUGGESTIONS ON TAXATION

Charles H. Johnson, ex-Assessor Speaks Before Men's Club at Wollaston

Would Give the Small Property Holder Relief

Charles H. Johnson, formerly principal assessor of the city, gave a most interesting talk on taxation before the Men's Club of the Methodist church Wollaston, Wednesday evening there being a large audience. The address was well received.

Mr. Johnson began by saying he was glad to have the opportunity to meet the men of Wollaston and present to them some aspects of city affairs inside the heat of a political campaign.

The speaker said he did not come before them as an expert on City Government, but he had served the city for fourteen years in different positions and felt that the experience therein obtained ought in some measure to qualify him to speak.

A high tax rate and unstable valuations have driven the tax payers into an unpleasant and fault finding frame of mind. This has led to an expression from many for a change in our charter and government. This is not called for. If the requirements of the charter were faithfully lived up to as in the early days of our city there would be no complaint. The strength of our charter lies in the divorcement of the Executive and Legislative departments. Today the Legislative is run by the Executive.

The speaker than gave a graphic description of the old town meeting and old methods of assessing. The new method of card index was explained in detail. Under this system there was no excuse for an assessor discriminating as he had before him both card and plan for the property to be assessed.

Interesting and striking figures were then placed before the audience showing the growth of the city all the years of her history. Abatements and Exemptions were explained in detail. At this point the audience was treated to a warm and spirited talk on collection of taxes both personal and real and it was clearly shown that the man who paid his tax as levied also paid for the vast sums of uncollected taxes especially personal. The whole trend of the speakers argument was to give relief from the heavy burden to taxation to the small holder. This he believed could be done by reasonable increases in values in the business section. The largest assessment at present was only $3 per foot; then an increase on water front property that is held today at such fabulous prices. A careful study should be made by the assessors of land held by the owners for investment.

Again the right and demands of the small holder were earnestly set forth by the speaker when he called the attention of the audience to increases in some sections of our city where real estate was at the low ebb of the market. At this point came the final suggestion from the speaker that the Mayor of the city at a salary of $2500 should devote his entire time to the needs of the city, and each dept. should not be a law unto itself as at present.

The attention of the audience was then called to the City Book just issued and the speaker stated that the "Summary report" of the City Auditors was a waste of time and city money. Far better that he scan the bills of the city presented to him, than publish figures that do not agree and then hide behind the printer for protection.

The whole address of the evening was comprehensive, given without that display of haughty criticism, and showed that the speaker had the matter of taxation well in hand. A round of applause was given at the close of his hour and fifteen minute talk.

TEMPORARY LOANS.

The temporary loan problem does not appear to have cleared since the city placed $150,000 of temporary loans in the municipal debt column. Before the first of May, every dollar of the $350,000 authorized by the City Council this year in anticipation of taxes had been borrowed. At the same time the tax receipts to May 1 were larger than last year. Yet there is urgent demand for an additional temporary loan. Undoubtedly this demand would not be so urgent had the water loan bonds for $110,000 been placed, but no one seems to want them at the usual rate of interest. It may not be good financiering to use money thus raised to pay current expenses, but nevertheless it has been done.

Since Jan. 1, 1913, temporary loans of $350,000 made in 1912 have been paid as follows:

Feb. 14, 1913	$175,000
March 10, 1913	75,000
March 21, 1913	100,000
	$350,000

It looks as though these temporary loans had also become permanent loans,—the new 1913 loans being needed to pay the old 1912 loans. In some cases the date and amount of the old and new loans are identical, and the total of the new loans is the same as the old loans. The new temporary loans made since Jan. 1, 1913, are:

Feb. 11, due Oct. 31, 1913	$50,000
Feb. 11, due Dec. 10, 1913	75,000
March 10, due March 10, 1914	75,000
March 21, due March 19, 1914	100,000
April 22, due Oct. 22, 1913	50,000
	$350,000

At the meeting of the City Council this week authority was asked to issue $100,000 more in temporary loans. Should there be a year in which no bonds were issued for improvements, it would be necessary under the system in vogue to raise $600,000 and possibly $700,000 in temporary loans. A temporary loan is issued for one year or less, and is supposed to be in anticipation of taxes of the current year. Towns usually pay temporary loans during the calendar year in which they are issued, and some cities do now.

It is possible that the Quincy granite manufacturers will be asked to answer a list of questions designed to bring out the essential facts as to the needs for a tariff on foreign granite. Senator LaFollette has submitted such a list which was considered by the committee on Wednesday. While Senator Simmons wants the bill sent through the Senate with more of study and less of speech making, others believe the industries are entitled to a hearing.

Austria continues to threaten war against Montenegro, doubtless having laid in a stock of skyrockets for the occasion.

CODDINGTON STREET GRADE

Tracks at New Turnout Being Raised Over Two Feet

Everybody who has travelled over Coddington street is aware that the street has settled very badly between Newcomb street and Sea street. Few however would imagine for a minute that not only has the street at this spot settled two and a half feet but that has also slid over toward the meadow on the northerly side.

How the street has settled is very apparent at this time when the street railway men are putting in the new turnout. This turnout is being set at a grade given by the Commissioner and it looks as though the tracks were way up in the air. They however have only been set to the established grade of the street.

Commissioner Tupper thinks that the street has settled and slid all that it will, and he proposes to regrade the street when the turnout is completed to the established grade. It will make a big differecne in the appearance of the street, being a great improvement.

ARRESTED FOR THREAT

Letter the Basis for a Court Case This Morning

Edwin C. P. Eaton was arrested by Inspector Goodhue Wednesday afternoon at the Fore River, where he is employed in the electrical department on a warrant charging him with threatening to assault Lottie M. McEachern of 43 Chestnut street.

According to the story told the police by the girl she had been keeping company with the young man but had thrown him over. He tried to have her meet him but she refused. She then received a letter from him upon which she based her complaint. In this letter Eaton threatened to kill himself and others by a chemical which he said would produce death in 48 hours. While the letter did not actually threaten the girl it was a kind of veiled threat.

In court this morning the girl testified that she had known the young man for over a year. That she had received the letter, which was shown the court, from him. She however said that she was not afraid of him but wanted the letter explained.

The letter was given to Judge Avery to read after which he said that he would continue the case for a month on Eaton's personal recognizance with the understanding that he should keep away from the girl and not annoy her.

SEVENTY-SIXTH BIRTHDAY

Field Glasses Presented to Lieut. Mark Hanson

Lieut. Mark E. Hanson of the Police department is passing another mile stone today, the 76th. Mark is doing nothing in the way of celebrating the event however. He arose this morning at the usual hour and spent the day at his desk at Police headquarters. None of the department were aware that it was his birthday or they might have given him a little celebration. It is probable, however, that he will receive the congratulations of his brother officers at roll call tonight.

Lieut. Hanson, who is a veteran of the Civil war, is one of the many thousands who took part in the great battle of Gettysburg, the fiftieth anniversary of which is to be celebrated in July, and he is planning to be present at the celebration.

He was pleasantly remembered by his family today on the event, one of the gifts being a pair of powerful field glasses, which he will take to the Gettysburg battlefield with him.

CITY OF THE DEAD

Another change noticed is near the Soldiers Monument. Here also many of the lots were mounds. These have been cut down and placed on the lawn plan, also greatly changing the appearance.

Another improvement desired by Supt. Nicol is to build a stone wall around the little pond near the front of the cemetery which is now down in a hollow. If this is done it is proposed to place all of the lots surrounding it on the lawn plan. Some of the lots on the embankment near by have been placed on this plan and the improvement is very marked.

Over on the Greenleaf street side, men are now at work laying out a new section for lots to meet the ever increasing demand. The department has enough land for lots at the present time but ground for single graves is very scarce. The managers desire to keep all single graves in one section of the cemetery. In order to do this it will be necessary for the managers to have more land in the vicinity of the section where single graves are now located. What the managers desire is that what is known as the old Murphy property belonging to the Woodward Fund be taken and made into single grave lots. This matter is now before the City Council.

Every year there are many monuments erected by people who have relatives buried and the past year has been no exception to the rule. While for the greater part the memorials have been of the smaller sized monuments there have been several large and handsome memorials.

One of the most striking of these is that erected on the Lewis Bass lot on the main avenue. This is a light granite monument very fine hammered composed of a base and die and is very elaborately carved.

Near the Soldiers Monument is a handsome light fine hammered job erected to the memory of ex-Mayor Harrison A. Keith. The name "Keith" appears on one side and the name "Richardson" on the opposite side.

In the main cemetery is also a striking memorial erected on the W. S. Williams lot. This monument is oval in shape consisting of three bases and a die of extra dark Quincy stock, ll highly polished.

Other memorials in this section are the cross erected to the memory of ex-Councilman Elisha Packard and a pretty monument on the lot of A. A. Lincoln of Wollaston.

Over on the Greenleaf side many memorials have been erected during the past few years and several during the past year. Some of these are large and handsome. One of these is a tablet shaped memorial erected to the memory of James E. Curtin. The monument is of light granite finely hammered.

Near by stands a tall celtic cross, very elaborately carved erected by Andrew Milne. It is a very handsome memorial.

The foundation is also being put in for a sarcophagus monument to be erected in memory of Joseph L. Whiton. This memorial will be in position before Memorial day.

Coming to the Valley street side the most striking memorial is that erected by Clan McGregor, O. S. C. and recently dedicated. The monument is sarcophagus in shape and is made to represent a cairn, for apparently it is composed of small rocks, although all are finely hammered. On one side are two panels for the inscriptions, and the names of six departed clansmen are now cut on the tablets. On the opposite, or what might perhaps be called the face, is a scroll in bas relief upon which is the following inscription: "Stones upon the cairn from out the fields of brotherly love." O. S. C. On either side of this scroll is a thistle in bas relief while over it is the shield of the clan also cut in bar relief. It is a very handsome memorial.

Most of the lots have been mowed once and will be mowed again before Memorial day, for while the usual crowd of visitors are not expected owing to the Grand Army exercises being held on the grounds of the Adams Academy there will be many visitors.

The rains and lack of excessive hot weather have kept the grass from drying up and the lots present a green velvet look giving the cemetery a very beautiful appearance.

ASSESSORS IN WARD ONE.

The assessors have about completed their field work of the city, but owing to some stormy days it will probably take the greater part of next week. They are now at work in Ward One, and will finish up their work at Houghs Neck. The assistant assessors, with the exception of Ward Four have completed their work. This ward it is expected will be completed this week.

FINDS NO CRIMINAL ACT

Inquest on Wreck In Which Six Were Killed Exonerates Railroad

Boston, May 22.—Nine months and thirteen days after the New Haven railroad wreck in South Boston, which cost the lives of eight persons, the finding in the inquest on the death of William J. Tirrell, the engineer of the train, is made public this morning.

The ultimate finding is that "the deceased William J. Tirrell came to his death by accident and that the criminal act of no other person contributed thereto."

Judge Logan finds that the train, a Cohasset to Boston local, was taking the 3 percent curve at nearly the speed of sixty miles an hour when the accident occurred.

The train consisted of the engine, tender, two coaches and a combination smoker and baggage car. Besides the eight persons who died as a result of the accident a number of persons suffered broken limbs and burns.

MAY ALTER TARIFF BILL

Senate Democrats Plan to Equalize Live Stock and Grains

Washington, May 22.—Determination to equalize live stock and grains and their respective products in the Underwood tariff bill has been reached by the senate finance sub-committee considering the agricultural schedule.

It has been agreed that if cattle, sheep, hogs, wheat and oats are to remain dutiable, as the Underwood bill classifies them, then a duty shall be placed upon beef, mutton, pork, wheat flour and oats, or if these products are to remain on the free list the raw materials will be placed on the free list.

This is the first basic tariff change to be planned by senate Democrats since the Underwood bill came from the house.

FINDS RARE WEED TO CURE MANY ILLS

Woman Brings It to Attention of Naval Surgeon General

Washington, May 22.—Surgeon General Stokes of the navy has received a letter from a woman, whose name was withheld, in which she informed him that she had a weed which would "cure bubonic plague, also snake bites, tyranchular bites, all kinds of poison insect stings, sentipede sting, and has been said to have cured hidraphobia. It is quite probable that it will cure the bubonic flea bite.

"It won't do any harm if it don't do any good," she says, and closes her letter with a request to near from the surgeon general on the matter.

DYNAMITE IN COURTHOUSE

Two Sticks of Explosive Carefully Prepared to Cause Explosion

Poughkeepsie, N. Y., May 22.—Two sticks of dynamite were found behind a radiator in the corridor of the Duchess county courthouse. The discovery was made by two prisoners from the jail, who as trusties were working in the courthouse.

The sticks were fastened together, carefully capped, and with sixty feet of fuse attached. The spot at which the explosive was found is close to the door of the county treasurer's office.

The police have no clue to the perpetrators except a vague theory that it was the work of some former prisoner.

O'HARA IS EXONERATED

Vice Probing Committee of Which He Is Chairman Is Criticised

Springfield, Ills., May 22.—Lieutenant Governor O'Hara was cleared of all suspicion in a report submitted to the senate by Senator Ettleson.

Having exonerated O'Hara the committee criticised the white slavery examining committee of which O'Hara is chairman, for the methods used in the examinations in Springfield.

Sam Davis, Springfield wholesale brewer, who caused the affidavit to be drawn up against O'Hara, was censured.

OPPORTUNITY FOR APPRENTICES.

The management of the Fore River Company has recently decided to offer a special course of apprenticeship for shipfitters in the iron workers department.

This course will be for three years at $1.35, $1.80 and $2.00 per day with a bonus of $75.00 at the end of the third year and is open to able bodied boys of from 17 to 21 years of age. The opportunity is also given these boys to make more than their daily rate working on piece work as soon as they become proficient and the chance should be a most attractive one for ambitious Quincy youths.

As the number will probably be somewhat limited early application to the Company's employment office is desirable for anyone who desires to take up this branch of the industry.

THE EDUCATIONAL FIELD

High School — Public Schools
Woodward Institute — Parochial School

The public school observance of Memorial Day will take place next Thursday in every building in the city. These exercises will be held at 2 o'clock in all schools except the High school. The following comrades of the G. A. R. have been assigned to the schools:

High—Dr. Marstin, commander.
Coddington,—Edward J. Lennon.
Washington—George L. Phillips.
Wollaston—John C. Grey.
Quincy—Francis P. Loud.
Masachusetts Field—James R. Barrows.
Adams—James W. Pierce.
Lincoln—W. B. Nightingale.
Willard—Warren P. Munroe.
Grildey Bryant, Luther H. Parrot.
Cranch—Calvin S. Dyer.
Montclair,—Charles A. Dutton.
Atherton Hough—Charles A. Cummings.
John Hancock—Asa Pope.

All parents and friends are invited to attend these exercises.

GRADUATIONS.

In all the schools of the city preparations for graduation are going forward rapidly. The separation of the grammar school graduation into three parts this year will lead to a change in the form of programme.

Instead of there being a set address the whole programme will be furnished by the schools themselves and it will be possible this year for the first time to have the music sung with the pupils arranged by voices rather than by schools as heretofore. That the music will be vastly better on that account is very evident. The exercises will still retain all their simplicity however and nothing in the way of flowers, elaborate dress or much that has come in else where in recent years will be allowed.

QUINCY SCHOOL.

It will be welcome news to the parents and citizens of Atlantic that the furnishings of the new school hall have been delivered at the building and are ready to be put in place. It is hoped that everything may be ready and the building have its inspection by the State authorities in time for the Memorial Day Exercises on Thursday afternoon of next week.

The hall is ready in use for graduation rehearsals and the new piano just furnished to the school is found of great assistance.

The school has recently received from the Arts and Crafts department of Quincy Woman's club two pictures "The Castle of Chillon" and "The Aurora." There is an increasing number of such gifts being received by the schools of the city each year.

PUBLICATION OF TAX LIST

Why Was It Not Included in City Book?

Mr. Editor—

We notice your report of the Council meeting of Monday evening made mention of a resolution introduced by Councilman Richards, and adopted by the Council, calling upon the Mayor to explain why the Board of Assessors failed to publish the valuation list, as ordered by the Council of 1912. It is hoped that this action may result in the order of the Council being carried to execution, yet a careful reading of the order passed by the Council last September, and signed by the mayor, shows a flagrant transgression that apparently needs explanation, and if such explanation is ever given the members of the Council, we trust through your columns it will be given to the people.

The original order as passed reads —"Ordered, that the Board of Assessors shall once in three years, beginning with the year 1912, publish as a part of their report in the Annual City Reports a complete list of the taxable valuation of all real and personal estates in the City of Quincy, such publication to be arranged in form similar to the attached copy, giving name and residence of person or persons assessed; the location area and value of each separate parcel of land; the classification and value of building or buildings thereon; the total value of real estate, the aggregate personal tax, the tax on real estate, and the amount of aggregate tax on each estate."

Rumor has been rife since the beginning of the year that this command of the Council was to be ignored. That it was not entirely forgotten is evidenced by the fact that the Assessors had it on their mind sufficiently to perform their part of the work, the expense for which was covered by an addition to their budget appropriation. Having performed their part of the work, the Assessors disclaim further responsibility, and definite enlightenment as to when this information is to be given the people is not obtainable from City Hall.

Presumably the plea of lack of funds will be advanced for disregarding the order, but as the appropriation of money is supposed to be a legislative function, and the request for an appropriation for this purpose has not yet been placed before the Council, this excuse surely cannot carry much weight.

The order as passed was perhaps the most important piece of constructive legislation to the credit of last year's Council, and an attempt to sidetrack it shows a looseness or recklessness of administration that should cause intelligent citizens to sit up and take notice.

Our recently issued City Report is most complete in every detail—except what the people have a right to know concerning that most important matter, the city's resources. It seems rather farcical to build up a well-padded report of six hundred pages containing a lot of trash of absolutely no value to any tax-payer, and yet crowding out information that is given to citizens of practically all other cities and towns of our state. As the publication of the valuation list is called for but once in three years it might not be a bad plan to meet the expense by eliminating some of this useless material, and applying it towards giving the tax payers real information—to which they are entitled.

Although the order if carried out as passed by the Council would have given us this information in the spring, it may not be amiss to have it distributed about the time we receive our tax bills. Let us hope that the administrative wheels are set in motion speedily, and that there will be no further attempt to suppress information that belongs to the people.

A. N. Murray.

The initiation was conducted by the Quincy degree team under the direction of Benjamin Johnson. It was reported that James Doyle was ill at his home, Furnace Brook parkway.

SPRING'S AWAKENING.

On yestere'en a glamoured sheen
Of waning light.
Vibrating bright.
Shimmered on downy grasses green.

And laughing waters danced in play.
Dashing and darkling.
Furling and sparkling.
Over white pebbles on their way.

Soft and sweet from the river banks,
Like an echoed swing
Of bird's rustling wing.
Music from tiny reeds' proud ranks.

On glistening sands I did discern
The print of a hoof.
And on the woof
Of tangled fringe of moss and fern,

Lo, there, half hid and piping, stood
On the quick'ning sod
Pan, the merry god,
Divine musician of field and wood!

Blue beamed the skies, and, whisp'ring
From budding lairs,
Light winged airs
Proclaimed sweet spring's awakening!

Maple Lodge, K. L. & H. held a well attended meeting in Protection hall Wednesday evening. Regular business was transacted and a social hour followed. In a bowling contest Miss Lena Allen and Miss Ethel Jones were awarded souvenirs.

Joseph H. Dasha of Quincy has been appointed by Gov. Foss to the board of directors of the Chattel Loan Co., Boston, to fill the vacancy caused by the resignation of A. S. Aspey. The appointment comes under the law which places companies under state supervision. Mr. Dasha is connected with the Rice & Hutchins Co., shoe manufacturers, and is well known here.

AUTO ACCIDENT.

Unable to jump from his Velie automobile in time to avoid being carried over a 12 foot embankment in the rear of his house, Harry Greenlaw, of Babcock street, Houghs Neck, is today confined to his home with a strained back and bruises on the right leg. The accident occurred Wednesday evening. The machine turned in the air its mud guards were damaged when it struck and Greenlaw was severely jolted and escaped serious injury.

His garage is situated in the rear of his home, almost on the edge of the embankment. It is thought that he overestimated his distance, ran too close to the embankment and that the edge of it caved in. He was examined by a Boston physician this morning.

MEMORIAL WINDOWS.

Two of the Memorial windows for St. John's church arrived this morning. They were subscribed by Quincy council, Knights of Columbus, and the Quincy Catholic club. Other windows will be delivered within a short time.

BRIEFS

An inspector from the State Board of Health, who was in town Wednesday inspecting the rug factory on Sunner street, said after his return that he would write the proprietors telling them what they must do.

The hard rain early this morning was needed by vegetation very much. What is more needed however for the gardens is some warm weather to start things along.

The feast of Corpus Christi, was today observed in the Catholic churches throughout the city. High masses were celebrated followed by the benediction of the blessed sacrament.

Under the new low relating to the keeping of gasoline it is necessary for the party desiring such a license to notify every abutter of the premises upon which he intends to store the gasoline.

Mayor Stone is now occupying his new home on Presidents' hill. He is very much elated over his fine situation and says that the view is unsurpassed, also that the air is considerably cooler than on River street where he has resided for a number of years.

CLASS ENTERTAINED.

A merry party of girls were entertained at the home of their Sabbath school teacher, Miss Helen Sherburne of 608 South street on Wednesday evening.

Games and music were enjoyed through out the evening, the piano being presided over by Miss Sherburne.

Prizes for the solution of certain mysteries were awarded to Miss Frances Ward and Miss Mehitable Knights. Refreshments were served. The girls assured their teacher that they had a delightful time.

Those present were the Misses Nelly Lorentsen, Ruth Kinsman, Marion Bailey, Laura Wight, Catherine McKenzie, Gladys Rowse, Madeline Betts, Roxana Schenkelberger, Frances Ward and Mehitable Knights.

HOME RUN ADDED FOUR

But Quincy High Was Defeated by Rindge School

Rindge "Tech" of Cambridge defeated Quincy High school at Merrymount Park Wednesday afternoon in a long drawn out game. "Bull Moose" Brown, with the bases full in the ninth, drove the ball into the right field hollow for a homer, bringing the local score to six. White's capture of Burke's line drive and his putout of Sam Prout at second killed the chance of Quincy tieing, in the last minutes of play.

White made a home run and a three base hit. He also secured a clean infield hit and in stealing second slid onto the spikes on Paul Larkin's shoes, splitting his finger. The accident did not interfere with a further display of good base ball ability.

"Les" Andrews had things his own way until the eighth when they commenced to fathom his delivery for safeties. He was slightly off color during parts of the game. Crocker relieved the pressure but did no exceptional work. Andrews passed only one man, struck out 10 in eight innings and made two hits.

Paul Larkin made a beautiful assist in the first inning and Sylvester, the visiting left fielder made a pretty catch, after a long run, stumbled and fell and lost the ball.

Sam Prout and "Mecca" Larkin reached first on errors but did not score that inning.

Hamlin caught an unusually good game for a young player. His backstop work was up to the requirements and his throwing was effective. "Mecca" Larkin was on first and filled expectations.

Bates was sent in for Price who was not hitting but he did not get one. Creedon did no hitting, and Martin who played centre until "Bull Moose" Brown appeared after staying after school for breaking the rules, did no hitting.

Sam Prout reached first on a Texas leaguer in the first inning, stole second, reached third on Burke's sacrifice and scored on a passed ball. Quincy scored again in the fifth and might have won the game if White hadn't pulled off the double play. The score:

ASK $400,000,000 AS WAR INDEMNITY

Balkan States' Demand Is Supported by Precedents

London, May 22.—The Bulgarian minister of finance, T. Theodoroff, who is to represent Bulgaria at the financial conference in Paris, in connection with the Balkan settlement, said the Balkan states would ask for a war indemnity of $400,000,000, of which Bulgaria's share would be $200,000,000.

Numerous precedents, he said, supported the Balkan demand. They did not ask to be idemnified for indirect losses due to the state of war, but merely for reimbursement of purely military expenditures and the cost of pensions for those incapacitated and the families of those killed. It was on these considerations that the sum of $400,000,000 was based.

LAST OF WHALING MASTERS

Nantucket Loses Captain DeFriez, Who Became Probate Judge

Nantucket, Mass., May 22.—Captain Thaddeus C. DeFriez, the last of Nantucket's whaling masters, died here. He was 91 years old.

DeFriez went whaling as a youth in search of health. He had been ill for some time, and the island physicians predicted that he had not long to live. But he shipped before the mast, and in the pursuit of the whale found the health he sought. He rose to be captain of his craft and returned from the sea after ten years afloat.

After studying law he became judge of the Nantucket probate court, an office which he held many years, retiring recently on half pay.

LANDSLIDE WRECKS TRAIN

Six Persons Killed as Cars Are Swept Down Mountainside

Hinton, W. Va., May 22.—Six persons were killed and a number injured when a train was swept down a steep mountainside by a landslide. The train, composed of an engine, three freight cars and a caboose, the latter carrying passengers, had stopped between Sewall and Landisburg to clear away debris deposited by a slide caused by a coludburst earlier in the day. Another slide occurred and the train was thrown from the tracks down 300 feet of the mountainside.

Held on Murder Charge

Chelsea, Mass., May 22.—Sebastian Commisso, who, it is alleged, shot and killed his father-in-law, Michael Orlandella, in their Revere home, May 14, was held without bail for the grand jury, in the district court.

HUGH JENNINGS IS IN HARD LUCK

Queer Fate Pursues the Leader of Detroit Tigers.

HIS DISCARDS MAKE GOOD.

Nearly Every Young Player He Has Let Go Has Performed Creditably or Turned Out to Be a Star With Another Club.

Any manager who can win three major league pennants in six years and finish lower than third only once in this period must have class. Hughey Jennings made such a record in Detroit. Hughey is a prince of good fellows and one of the most successful managers of the last decade. McGraw, Mack, Chance and Clarke are the only big league managers who have won more pennants than "Ee-Yah," but these four men have been in the managerial field longer than Hughey.

However smart a manager Jennings is, he is nevertheless the Santa Claus of the big leagues. Hugh has passed up enough talent to recruit a full fledged all star team. It seems that whenever the boss of the Royal Bengals labels a youngster N. G. and casts him adrift into the cold, cold world the kid immediately proceeds to develop into a star.

Among the stars who have been permitted to drift out of the Tiger corral during the Jennings regime in Detroit are Jeff Tesreau, now of the New York Giants; Jimmy Archer of the Chicago Cubs, Birdie Cree and Jack Warhop of the New York Americans, Bob Bescher and George Suggs of the Cincinnati Reds and Ira Thomas.

Perhaps the best player Jennings permitted to get away from him is Archer, the crack catcher of the Cubs. "Squatting Jeems" caught for the Tigers in 1907, but his bingling prowess did not make much of a hit with Jennings. Archer only hit .119 for Jennings in eighteen games, so Hughey sold the prize catcher to Buffalo. From the Bisons Jimmy went to the Cubs and has been a star ever since.

Jeff Tesreau hung his hat in a Detroit locker for about ten days in 1909. The Ozark mastodon in that year was hurling for an Arkansas State league team when the circuit blew up.

Neither Birdie Cree nor Jack Warhop ever wore Tiger toggery, but they were the property of the Detroit club in the winter of 1908-1909. Both men had made fine records with Williamsport in the Tristate league, and Jennings picked them up. Hugh, however, thought he would like to have George Moriarty, then a Highlander, to play third base for his team, and he offered Stallings his Williamsport recruits for the song writer. Stallings promptly accepted the offer, and it was one of the most advantageous deals the big chief made when he was the boss on the hilltop. Needless to say, Chance would not trade Cree and Warhop for a dozen Moriartys.

Cincinnati fans especially have reason to be thankful to Hughey, as he furnished them with two stars of the Redland club—George Suggs, the star pitcher of the Reds, and Bobby Bescher, the brilliant outfielder and leading base stealer in the National league.

Suggs hung on with Detroit a full season—1908—but Jennings did not think much of his ability and passed him back to the minors. Suggs joined the Reds in 1910 and has been a star ever since he was trusted with regular assignments. Bescher, like Cree and Warhop, never played with the Tigers, though he was the property of the Detroit club for one year. Jennings did not think enough of the speed marvel even to give him a trial.

Ira Thomas was not considered more than a fair catcher when he was with Detroit, and Jennings sold the big fellow to Mack in 1909. Since Connie took Ira in hand he has been one of the leading catchers in the game, though his sun is beginning to set. It may be remarked that Thomas caught the only game won by the Tigers from the Cubs in the world's series in 1907 and 1908.

However, Jennings is not to blame for letting all this talent get away from him. Every manager is obliged to cut down his squad in the spring, and as the Tigers were champions the first three years Hughey managed them he necessarily preferred the old boys who were delivering to untried youngsters.

THINKS CHASE VERSATILE.

Stallings Believes Yankee Infielder Can Play Any Sack.

Chief George Stallings of the Boston Braves has a good idea of Hal Chase's ability to conform to the requirements of playing second base for the New York Americans.

He says: "There's no doubt about it. Chase can play every position on the team, all three bases, shortstop, the outfield and pitcher and catcher. He is the greatest baseball player in the game. I believe that Chance will get splendid results with Chase." And Stallings' say so goes further than that of others.

Davis Cup Tennis Matches June 6 and 7

The first of the preliminary matches of the international series for the Davis tennis cup will be played between American and Australian lawn tennis teams on June 6, 7 and 9 in New York.

RECEIVED $700 FROM ATTEAUX

Breen's Fee For "Planting" Dynamite at Lawrence

TELLS HIS STORY TO JURY

Undertaker Already Convicted of Connection With Explosive Received It From Rice and Pitman—Was Offered $7000 Subsequent to Conviction but Rejected Terms

Boston, May 22.—A sensation was sprung in the dynamite trial when John J. Breen, summoned by the government, took the stand and told how he received $700 for "planting" the dynamite at Lawrence.

Breen testified that Frederick E. Atteaux, one of the three defendants, called him to Boston by telephone. Breen said he himself suggested fighting the strikers with dynamite.

He said he went to the office of Atteaux, and that there, as the result of a telephone conversation, he got into communication with Ernest W. Pitman, a Lawrence contractor. He said he called a number in Milton given him by Pitman, and that Pitman and a man named Riec met him at the corner of Franklin and Washington streets, Boston, where he received the dynamite.

Breen said that before he met Pitman and Rice, Atteaux drove up to the corner of Washington and Franklin streets in a taxicab. "Follow me, John," he said, and Breen testified that he followed Atteaux a short distance to where the latter dropped on the sidewalk a package containing money.

Breen testified that Atteaux said to him: "No one can ever say that I gave you anything." He said he and Collins then went to Lawrence, where they "planted" the dynamite.

Breen testified that he had been found guilty in Salem on May 12, 1912, of planting dynamite. It the previous month he said he met Atteaux at Clark's hotel in Boston and later at the former's office. At this time, he said, he needed money, as his expenses were large. Atteaux replied, witness testified, that he had no money at hand, but would send him some.

Breen said that two days later he received a special delivery letter at his undertaking establishment at Lawrence in a plain envelope and containing four $50 bills. This made, he said, $700 in all that he received for planting the dynamite.

In the cross examination of Breen by Attorney Daniel H. Coakley the latter asked the witness if he had had any other conversations with Atteaux other than those he had mentioned.

Breen said he had had one conversation which was in relation to Pitman. He said he and Atteaux talked over Pitman's strange actions and that Atteaux said he feared Pitman was going to kill himself because he feared that Breen, then under indictment and on the eve of trial, might mention Pitman's name in connection with the dynamite.

Breen testified that he told Atteaux to assure Pitman his name would not be mentioned. Breen said Pitman did later kill himself when he learned of his approaching arrest.

Toward the close of his examination Breen said he was offered $7000, subsequent to his conviction, by Attorney Coakley, now counsel for Atteaux, and that he refused this money because of the terms under which it was offered.

Damage suits had been filed by persons in whose homes explosives had been planted, he said, and his counsel had told him these could be settled for $12,000. Later this figure was cut to $7000. Conferences with Atteaux, William B. Watts and Coakley followed; then came the offer.

Speaking of this offer and why he refused it, Coakley intimated at this point that Breen had "tried to sqeeze $12,000 out of Atteaux, later cutting it to $7000."

Breen then turned on the cross examiner by declaring that he had refused Coakley's offer because Coakley had suggested that Breen could "let those poor slobs go as cheap as they could be got off" and pocket the rest of the $7000.

EXTENDS FEDERAL CONTROL

Bill to Block Passage of State Laws Which May Affect Treaties

Washington, May 22.—Representative Bartholdt of Missouri announced that he purposed to introduce a resolution to empower congress to legislate exclusively on all questions affecting the rights of aliens residing in the United States.

The purpose of the measure would be to prevent individual states from passing laws which might cause friction with foreign countries. Lack of federal control, he said, affecting the ability of the government to carry out a treaty in all its integrity, was a palpable defect.

SISSON TONES DOWN SPEECH

Fiery Orator Follows Suggestion of the President

AMOUNTS TO A CENSORSHIP

Inflammatory Utterances by Mississippi Congressman on Japanese Situation Will Not Be Repeated—Will Merely Discuss Legal Phases of Alien Land Ownership

Washington, May 22.—President Wilson disregarded all precedents again in exercising what amounted to a censorship over speech-making in congress, which might complicate the situation growing out of Japan's protest against the California anti-alien land law.

Learning that Representative Sisson of Mississippi intended again to discuss the Japanese situation and bearing in mind the Mississippian's inflammatory utterances several weeks ago on the same subject, the president sent for the congressman and asked him to detail what he proposed to say. He was requested to eliminate any portion of his speech which might tend to inflame of arouse any feeling by Japan.

In his previous speech Sisson declared that he would rather see war with Japan than surrender of any states' rights.

The Mississippi representative assured the president that he had not intended to commit any diplomatic breach and in his speech Friday proposed to discuss merely the legal phases of alien land ownership. He told the president that instead of taking any position against Japan his proposed remarks would be highly complimentary to that nation.

It was reported that the president's warning to Sisson resulted in a toning down of the latter's remarks. The Mississippi congressman is noted as one of the most fiery orators in the house.

STUDYING OUR REPLY

Document Is Not Made Public by Japanese Foreign Office

Tokio, May 22.—The Japanese foreign office is studying the reply of the United States government to its original protest in regard to the California alien land ownership legislation. It declares that, in agreement with Washington, the document will not be made public. The officials make no comment on the subject and no statement as to whether it is satisfactory or not is obtainable in official circles.

The Japanese public apparently is waiting for information before expressing its opinion on the American reply. In the meantime the press reiterates that the question goes deeper than the ownership of land, or the making of treaties, and that it is racial discrimination, which must be wiped out by a common-sense assimilation in the United States and Japan of mutual education and understanding and the fusion of ideas.

COAL STRIKE INQUIRY

Senators Endorse Probe Into Conditions In Paint Creek Region

Washington, May 22.—Federal investigation of the strike of the coal miners in the Paint Creek region in West Virginia was practically assured when the senate education and labor committee agreed to report today, with amendments, Senator Kern's resolution authorizing an inquiry.

The resolution, redrafted by the sub-committee with the understanding that it be laid before the senate with the indorsement of the other members, would allow a "thorough and complete" inquiry into conditions in the Paint Creek region preceding, during and after the strike.

KILLED MAN WITH AUTO

Sentence of Eighteen Months Imposed In Case of Manslaughter

Providence, May 22.—For running down with his automobile and killing Gilbert Mallette here Herman K. Wagner was sentenced to eighteen months' imprisonment.

It is the first time in this state that a person has been convicted and sent to prison as the result of an automobile fatality, and the case was bitterly fought. The supreme court sustained the verdict of manslaughter.

GIRL PICKETS SENTENCED

Seven Thank Judge For Sending Them to Jail "For Their Cause"

Paterson, N. J., May 22.—Seven girl strike pickets thanked Recorder Carroll when he sentenced them to jail for interfering with girl workers at the A. M. Price silk mill. The seven did not seem to mind "going to jail for their cause."

Saran Silverman, their leader, who was a bit more defiant than the rest, was sent up for sixty days. The others got ten days each.

Stabber Convicted of Manslaughter

Portland, Me., May 22.—John Kucun was convicted of manslaughter for the fatal stabbing of Vincinto Szferowich. He will be sentenced later.

KING GEORGE IN GERMANY

He and Queen Mary to Attend Wedding of Kaiser's Daughter

Berlin, May 22.—King George of England and Queen Mary arrived at Potsdam to attend the wedding next Saturday of Princess Victoria Luise, only daughter of the Kaiser, and Prince Ernst, son of the Duke of Cumberland.

The king and kaiser embraced warmly and made much over each other, while the empress and queen were even more effusive in their greeting. Emperor Nicholas has left St. Petersburg for Berlin to attend the wedding.

ESTIMATE FLAGLER LEFT $60,000,000

Son Expected to Receive Bulk of Capitalist's Fortune

New York, May 22.—Sixty million dollars in real estate and securities is the estimate of the fortune of Henry M. Flagler, who died Tuesday, made on Wall street.

When the government prepared its case against the Standard Oil company it found Flagler owned 30,500 shares. That amount of stock now has a market value of $33,000,000. It is reported that Flagler placed most of his property in trust several months before his death, but his son, Harry H. Flagler, is expected to receive the bulk of the fortune.

NASHUA POSTMASTER DEAD

Former Mayor and Served In Both Branches of Legislature

Nashua, N. H., May 22.—John A. Spalding, postmaster of Nashua, died suddenly following a shock, aged 76 years.

He was thirty-two years cashier of the First National bank, resigning to become vice president. He had served in both branches of the state legislature, was mayor of Nashua in 1895, and chairman of the Republican state central committee in 1896.

He was a presidential elector on the Garfield and Arthur ticket and went as a delegate to the national convention which nominated McKinley. The latter appointed him postmaster in 1898, in which office he had since served.

PRINCE PREFERS TENNIS

Albert Fails to Appear at State Reception Arranged In His Honor

Halifax, May 22.—Prince Albert, second son of England's king, chose tennis in preference to a visit to the government house, where he was to have been received in state by the lieutenant governor of this province.

The streets were decorated for the occasion, and hundreds massed the sidewalks hoping to catch a glimpse of the young prince. At the last moment he decided he would rather play tennis with cadets of the training ship Cumberland, now in port, and of whose crew he is "an ordinary" member.

WAR MANEUVERS BEGUN

Submarines Leave Newport to "Attack" Fleet of Battleships

Newport, R. I., May 22.—Favored by a cloudy night and a choppy sea two submarines and a destroyer crept out of the harbor last night to attack a fleet of eleven battleships lying somewhere in Block island sound.

The attack is part of the regular spring maneuvers of the Atlantic fleet. Real torpedoes, with practice war heads filled with water, are being used.

Wide Circulation of the Scriptures

London, May 22.—The British and Foreign Bible society has issued altogether 7,899,562 copies of the scriptures, printed in fifty languages and dialects.

THE BEAUTY TABLE.

How Old Lace May Be Used Without Injury.

Dressing tables modeled on the modest muslin veiled box of our grandmothers' time have recently become popular. The modern variations, however, are fashioned on a much more ambitious scale, albeit one that can never become common, as it lends itself to so many inventions, besides the display of that personal touch which is the acme of distinction in home decoration.

A new toilet table is a plain table, but upon this is hung a "petticoat" of gossamer muslin and satin. The top is a sheet of plate glass (with smooth rounded edges), beneath which are displayed choice bits of embroidery, old lace, flower painted parchment, quaint patterned chintz or even dried rose leaves scattered over a silvery ground and pressed flat by the glass, while flat ruchings of ribbon are used to cover the tackings.

Every variety of muslin is being used, with linings of satin, chintz or sateen, while knots of broche ribbon, posies of silken leaved rosebuds and gold and silver fillet lace are among the beautiful decorations used.

Perhaps the most fascinating shape is one fashioned like a crescent writing table with round ends. A "skirt" of rose pink satin is tacked round the edge of the table, and over this is draped a cloud of gossamer muslin, caught up with tiny posies of forgetmenots and moss rose buds. The top is covered with tightly stretched blue moire, over which is laid an exquisite piece of embroidered lawn—in fact, all that remains of the family christening robe.

The single sheet of plate glass protects it as carefully as if it were in a case, while, besides being an interesting heirloom, it contrives to pay the double debt of use and ornament. A flat ruching of pale pink satin ribbon covers the tacking.

On this table stands an oblong mirror in an old Florentine gilt frame, and an elegant touch is given by a quaintly shaped dull gold basket, with a high handle formed of rosebuds and forgetmenots, containing a hatpin cushion stuffed with potpourri.

This Year's Graduation Frock.

The omnipresent drapery appears on the new graduation frocks of this year as well as on most gowns of a dressy character. This charming model for the sweet girl graduate is of white voile trimmed with the new embroidery that resembles real lace. A novel note is the use of the selvage of the material without hemming in the drapery.

Space Savers.

Pasteboard boxes covered with wall paper are attractive and hold all sorts of small dress accessories. These boxes, bought in an enameled frame, are expensive, but a carpenter can cheaply put together a wood frame of the desired size which can be enameled with two or three coats of white enamel and then fitted with boxes covered with paper matching that of the room where they are to stay. Labels reading "Veils," "Gloves," "Handkerchiefs," "Neckwear," "Stockings" or any other words desired should be pasted neatly on the face of the boxes.

Cleaning Pictures.

Pictures are things that collect dust in a terrible way, said a housewife in Home Notes, so I wash them all over with a damp leather—the backs as well as the fronts. Dirt doesn't show on the brown paper backs, and you may think that there is none there. But just run your cloth over and you'll change your mind pretty quick, for it will come away simply coated with black.

SUMMER FROCK IDEAS.

Graduation Gowns—Quaint Silks—Neck Fixings—Voiles for Summer Wear.

The girls who graduate this year will have so many models to select from that a choice may be difficult, though there is usually some one style that is distinctly most becoming. Draperies are so varied that they lend themselves to any figure except the extremely stout and physical culture and diet have nearly eliminated that type among the younger set.

THE SILHOUETTE.

The fashionable silhouette is wide at waist and hips and tapering at head and foot, in fact were it not for the slashes used in many skirts their narrowness would prevent anything but the most mincing gait. Draperies with a bias line make the figure slighter and the three or four tiers of flounces and puffs that are among the latest developments for skirts of thin materials reduce the height of a too tall girl. Sashes in narrow width tied once and with long straight ends, add the line which lengthens the figure, or wide girdles or pannier drapes increase the girth at waist and hips where that is desirable.

NECK FIXINGS.

Small touches like these are things that count in producing a stylish effect, or the reverse if wrongly selected, so it is well worth while to pay great attention to the details of dress. Everyone recognizes the importance of a man's neck dressing and a woman's fixings here are quite as important. The wired Medici collars now so popular are extremely pretty where the neck is not too short, or the face too full. Ruches of tulle that this year are made up in combinations of color, black and white with blue or red tulle going into the one ruche, are pretty and becoming additions that turn a plain suit or dress into fitness for ceremonious year. Turn over collars on the blouse that are worn over the coat are extremely popular and when well worn very pretty, but one sees so many girls with these who do not seem to recognize that there is definite line where propriety and style join in prohibiting an unseemly display of the neck in public conveyances and on the street. The shops are full of little net gamps with collars easily refitted that can be slipped under a low cut blouse at a moment's notice transforming it into the stylish and refined appearance that well bred people like. Dutch necks and V styles that are in line with the popular surplice waists are pretty, comfortable and in every way admirable for home or evening wear, and the little half gamps that fashion decrees with the V's, adds greatly to their effect, as a contrasting touch of lace or color can be easily introduced at this point.

The above design is by The McCall Company, New York, Designers and Makers of McCall Patterns.

DAINTY BELONGINGS.

The sweet girl graduate, and her brother as well, be it whispered, likes a generous supply of the fine toilet water she favors, and the chances are it is of American manufacture, one of the most popular numbers in the sets of matching toilet fixings that have become faddish and fashionable. The same scent distinguishes the whole outfit if soap, toilet water, powder, essence, and talcum, for each user favors one special perfume, either single or synthetic and will have no other. Therefore it is well before buying a gift of such articles to ascertain the kind liked, though, of course, a dealer will exchange the goods if a mistake is made in ordering.

SILKS AND VOILES.

Flowered taffetas and cotton voiles in similar quaint printings make the prettiest fussy frocks of the season, and while most mothers prefer an all white dress for graduation wear, this rule is not invariable and the all white frock can be easily varied for other accasions by the use of colored sashes in plain tones, flowered styles, plaids, or the old time Roman cross stripes that are once more in favor.

The KITCHEN CUPBOARD

EARLY CHERRIES.

CHERRIES will soon be available, and the thrifty housewife may find a few advance suggestions for their preparation welcome. There is something irresistibly attractive about the name of cherry, which is one of the most popular fruits we have. The woman who eats plenty of cherries and other early fruit and eats them judiciously is bound to improve her complexion.

Pie and Tarts.

Cherry Pie.—Stone one quart of cherries, saving all the juice. Add one and one-half cupfuls of sugar and one tablespoonful of flour and stir until well mixed. Bake with two crusts.

Cherry Tarts.—Roll a rich puff paste into a thin sheet and cut out with a large biscuit cutter. With a smaller cutter remove the centers from two out of every three of the rounds and place the rings thus formed on the third. Bake at once in a quick oven. When cold fill with sweetened stewed cherries from which the juice has been drained and top each tart with whipped cream.

With Sponge Cake Layers.

Cherry Shortcake.—Make a sponge cake of three eggs, one cupful of sugar, one cupful of flour, two tablespoonfuls of hot water and one tablespoonful and a half of baking powder. Bake in two-layer tins in a moderately hot oven. While hot cover with a thin layer of cream and sugar beaten together, then with chopped cherries that have been sweetened. Put one layer on the other and top with whole pitted fruit sprinkled with sugar. Before serving cover with whipped cream.

A Baked Pudding.

Cherry Pudding.—Butter a baking dish and fill it one-third with alternate layers of stoned cherries and sugar. Cream one-third of a cupful of butter with one-fourth of a cupful of sugar. Add a beaten egg, two-thirds of a cupful of sweet milk, a pinch of salt, a dash of grated nutmeg and two teaspoonfuls of baking powder sifted with two cupfuls of flour. Beat the whole until very light, then pour over the cherries and bake in a moderate oven. Serve with hard sauce or whipped cream.

ACT QUICKLY

Delay Has Been Dangerous in Quincy

Do the right thing at the right time. Act quickly in time of danger.

Plenty of evidence of their worth.

Mrs. Ellen Lawler, 51 Meridian St., East Boston, Mass., says: "I praise Doan's Kidney Pills just as highly today as I did some years ago when I gave a public statement in their favor. The cure this remedy effected has been permanent. The principal symptom of kidney complaint in my case was a dull, heavy ache in my hips and back, often accompanied by pains in my loins. I became dizzy when I stooped and lost my strength and ambition. My entire system was run down and I did not know what to do for relief. Finally I began taking Doan's Kidney Pills and it was not long before they restored me to good health."

GOOD WISHES OF MANY

Extended to Pastor on His Departure Abroad

Rev. Fr. Henry T. Grady, pastor of St. Mary's church left Boston for New York at noon today. He will sail from Hoboken, Saturday, on the Princess Irene. Delegations from Ave Maria council, Knights of Columbus; the Ladies Sodality; St. Ambrose court, M. C. O. F.; and Div. 4, A. O. H.; bade him adieu at the South station. Rev. Fr. William J. Duffy, his curate who will be in charge during his absence accompanied him to New York. When Fr. Grady boards the ship at Hoboken he will find his stateroom banked with flowers, orders for which have been telegraphed to New York. He will visit Rome and Ireland, returning the latter part of the summer. Father Grady has been in West Quincy for five years and is beloved by his parishioners.

VOCATIONAL OPPORTUNITIES.

It is interesting to observe the growing demand for a chance to enroll in the Industrial School. Although only one new feature is to be added in the fall, the applications already received more than ensure a crowded school.

Beside the opportunities here there will be still other courses at the Fore River Works in trades which the public school has not yet entered. The shipfitters or iron workers trade, for instance, allows a boy to start at once at 16 7-8 cents per hour for his first year, go to 22 1-2 cents the second year, 25 cents the tird year, with a bonus of $75 at the end of the third year when the apprenticeship is completed. Such a trade of course can take only rugged boys at least 17 years old, but it gives an illustration of how easy it is for a boy who really desires to do so, to enter the ranks of highly skilled labor.

SALE POSTPONED.

The auction sale of the garage formerly used by Abbott & Miller's express, located on Canal street, advertised for Wednesday afternoon did not take place. Lewis J. Bird, the auctioneer, was on hand a little after 3 o'clock, but Mr. Neal the trustee who ordered the sale did not appear. There were quite a few prospective buyers on hand but after waiting until after 4 o'clock for Mr. Neal, the auctioneer announced that the sale would be postponed.

MAY PARTY AND DANCE.

A May party and dance was held under the auspices of the Ladies' Auxiliary, No. 13, A. O. H., in Hibernian hall Wednesday evening. Dancing was enjoyed by a large attendance to the music of Provost's orchestra. Refreshments were served by the following committee who had charge of the affair: Mrs. Catherine Cotter, Mrs. Elizabeth Dinegan, Mrs. Margaret Lund, Mrs. Mary LeCount, Mrs. Annie Powers, Mrs. Margaret Brennan, Mrs Mary Shaughnessey, Mrs. Catherine Kelly, Mrs. J. McFadden and Mrs Mary J. Tanner. A large box of candy was awarded to Mrs. Margaret Brennan.

BRIEFS

Chief Litchfield had the Central station apparatus out for a trial in front of the station Wednesday evening Nightly drills are now being held in the different stations.

Mrs. Mary Pierce died at Fremont N. H., Wednesday. She was the wife of Allen R. Pierce. The funeral will be held Friday afternoon from the home of her son, Curtis Pierce of 165 Putnam street, Quincy.

The funeral of George W. Jenkins, for many years a laundry man here, was held this afternoon from his late home on Spear street. Services were conducted by Rev. Benjamin A. Willmott of the Bethany Congregational church. Interment was in Forest Hills cemetery.

The funeral of Walter Nightingale was held from his home, 42 Bennington street, Wednesday afternoon. Services were conducted by Rev. Benjamin A. Willmott of the Bethany Congregational church. Burial was in Mt. Wollaston cemetery.

John Connelly, for many years a resident of South Quincy and a well known blacksmith and horseshoer, died this morning at his home, 383 Water street, in his 60th year. The funeral will take place Sunday afternoon.

There is more Catarrh in this section of the country than all other diseases put together, and until the last few years was supposed to be incurable. For a great many years doctors pronounced it a local disease and prescribed local remedies, and by constantly failing to cure local treatment pronounced it incurable. Science has proven catarrh to be a constitutional disease and therefore requires constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, Ohio, is the only constitutional cure on the market. It is taken internally in doses from 10 drops to a teaspoonful. It acts directly on the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. They offer one hundred dollars for any case it fails to cure. Send for circulars and testimonials.

SQUANTUM WOMAN'S CLUB

Improvement Committee to Set Out Flowers

Members of the Squantum Woman's club gathered Wednesday evening at the home of Mrs. William A. Reed, Bellevue road, for their regular meeting. There was a good attendance.

Mrs. Hiram A. Morse, chairman of the clubhouse committee, reported that there was an important matter in regard to the building of a club house under consideration but that she was not prepared at this time to give out the details. She said that there should be closer co-operation among the members of the club in regard to its work. Her report was accepted as one of the progress.

Mrs. James Foster, chairman of the improvement committee, reported that on Saturday she and the other members of her committee would begin setting out flowers in various places about Squantum. A start will be made in the square at the Squantum postoffice. The object of the movement is to beautify Squantum and at the same time to interest the children in Squantum to the extent of having them aid in caring for flower beds and taking care that the flowers are not destroyed.

Plans for a drama to be given under the auspices of the woman's club were discussed and the following committee was appointed: Mrs. Charles Bostwick, chairman; Mrs. Louise Holt Mrs. S. H. Adams.

Mrs. James Foster made a financial report in regard to the recent whist she gave for the benefit of the club and turned in the receipts of the party to the club treasury.

Plans were discussed for the whist party to be given Saturday evening at the bungalow of Mrs. Hiram A. Morse, Bellevue road. Members reported that there had been a large advance sale of tickets.

The next meeting of the club will be held at the home of Mrs. Edward Eagar, Harbor View street on Wednesday June 4.

Samuel Gates of Chelsea is spending a few days with Mr. and Mrs. Louis Berman of Franklin street.

SHIPMENT BY WATER

Gasoline Engine Installed in Granite Sloop

Edward J. Sandberg is the first man to install a gasoline engine in a sloop in Boston Harbor. His Marion is at Fallons wharf for its second cargo of rock. The sloop is 55 by 20, carries 70 ton, 520 feet of sail and makes a run to Winthrop in a little over two hours.

The engine was installed by John Stewart of Wollaston. The object was to overcome the delay when the wind was flat, and also to lose no time in making the wharf on Town river. Both engine and sail were used in the first run to Winthrop.

Mr. Sandberg has owned the Marion for several years but recently conceived the idea of setting the engine. It has been most successful and after a few minor adjustments he estimates that he will be able to furnish quantities of building stone for the North Shore within record time. He is planning to operate his line througout the summer.

E. W. BAXTER PASSES AWAY.

Edwin W. Baxter, a native of Quincy passed away suddenly at his home on Greenleaf street Thursday evening, a short time after he had lain down. Death was so peaceful that it was not known until he failed to respond when called. He had been a sufferer from heart trouble.

Mr. Baxter was in his 69th year. He retired from active business a few years ago. He was formerly a member of the firm of Baxter, Stone and Schenkelberger, sole cutting merchants, Boston.

Years ago he was an active member of the Universalist church.

At one time he was the skipper of the yacht "Amy," flying the colors of the Quincy Yacht Club and was a most enthusiastic member, taking an active interest in club affairs and regattas.

He was the son of the late Lemuel Baxter and leaves a wife, Elizabeth H. Baxter, two daughters, Clara L. and Helen H. who formerly taught at the Woodward Institute and Greenleaf School and one son, Arthur Baxter.

COUNCILMEN ALL BUSY

Three Important Committees Hold Meetings

The Council Chamber at Citly Hall was brililantly lighted Thursday night and many thought the City Council must be in session. Such was not the case however for it was simply some of the standing committees that were in session. Three of the most important committees of the Council were debating and considering matters before them. In the Auditor's office was the Finance committee wrestling with some of the financial problems of the city. In the Clerk's office was the License committee, one of the hardest worked committees of the Council at this season of the year, while way down front, seated around the reporters table was the Committee on Sewers and Drains. As each of these committees are composed of seven members it will be seen that nearly the whole Council was present. President Whiton was also at the hall vibrating from one committtee to another.

DISTRICT COURT.

John Callahan was araigned for drunkenness at Quincy. He was fined $10 and his sentence suspended until Dec. 19.

Rosario Spinnelli was arraigned for assaulting John Barravecchi at Braintree. Case placed on file on payment of costs amounting to $15.

George H. Murray pleaded guilty to keeping a common gaming nuisance at Quincy and was fined $50.

LADIES NIGHT OF ENCAMPMENT

Supper Followed by Entertainment by Professonials

The annual ladies' night of Manet encampment was held at Odd Fellows hall Thursday evening and was the occasion for the gathering together of a large number of the patriarchs and their ladies, and it is safe to say that the evening was one that was greatly enjoyed by all.

The evenings program opened with a banquet which was served at 7 o'clock, the menu consisting of cold meats, salads of various kinds, ices and coffee.

Supper over an adjournment was made to the lodge room where a pleasing entertainment was given by professional talent, the program opening with a selection by the orchestra. Roys E. Woodward then appeared in a character sketch entitled "Our friend from Maine." Fannie Stinson and William Partridge, Jr., followed in what they were pleased to style "Moments of nonsense." Their number was a whole show in itself and kept the audience in a roar of laughter. Roys E. Woodward again made his appearance as a singing comedian and was greatly enjoyed His number was followed by a selection by the orchestra and the evening closed with all uniting in singing "Auld Lang Syne." The music was by the Wollaston orchestra.

The committee in charge of the evening were Sam Wood, Jr., chairman, William Richards, Walter H. Walker, Frank L. Carlton, Alex Kennedy, George C. Ela, Frank E. Badger, and James Moorhead, Jr.

ENTRIES FOR THE SCHOOL BOY MEET

Relay Race, School Against School, the Big Event of Day

Broad Jump, High Jump and 75-Yard Dash

The Grammar school boys of the city have about completed their training for the big meet at Merrymount Park Saturday morning, and some of the schools have sent in their entries for the relay race and for the 75 yd. dash.

It is practically impossible to pick a winner in any single event for during the past few days several "dark horses" have been discovered. At the Washington school Thursday the broad jump mark of Bill Isaacson of Cranch, 15 ft. 2 in. which has stood for so long, was smashed all to pieces by Jimmie Gilcoine, who leaped 15 ft. 9 in. With Isaacson, Gilcoine, Swanson of Quincy, Locarni of Lincoln, Prout of Adams, Rheinhalter of Willard and McDonald of Gridley Bryant, Whittemore of Coddington not to say anything of the Wollaston, Massachusetts Fields, Montclair, Hancock and Atherton Hough boys there certainly ought to be some keen competition in this event.

In the high jump, Gilcoine, Swanson Egan of Willard, Whittemore, Cox of Montclair and several other long legged youngsters ought to do some good work and it would not be surprising to see the winner go over 5 ft.

The 75 yd. dash will call for a large bunch of entries and of course it will be anybodies race for the first 50 yds; then strength and grit will tell. Willard school certainly has some fliers if one can judge from the way they got away from the mark Thursday in practice. The Wollaston and Massachusetts Fields boys have been working out at the track for the past two weeks and if familiarity with the runing paths help a man the winner ought to come from one of these schools.

The Willard school has entered the following boys for the relay race, Wallace, Rheinhalter, McMillan, Robertson, Walsh, Marini, Hillstrom and Minihan.

Washington will pin its colors on these youngsters and expects to see them bring home the race—John Gil-

Give Your Trade Where You Can Place Your Confidence

During our forty years of business in this city we have built up a clientage by the most upright methods and straightforward dealing with our customers; and thus to deserve the confidence of those who patronize us.

The success which has been our portion demonstrates that we have done this.

In a large measure we owe much to the fact that we have never been satisfied with "good enough" merchandise; but have always tried to BETTER the quality of our goods and the character of our service.

Now for Memorial Day.

MEN WEARING LAST YEAR'S STRAW HATS

should reflect that these hats are apt to look unpresentable now. So if you have to buy a straw hat this year, as you probably will, why not get it this week and have a spick and span new hat of the latest style to wear for Memorial Day and the week-end? Preferably a Lamson & Hubbard, made with a "cushioned-for-comfort" sweat band.

$1 to $3

EVERY SHIRT IS A BEAUTY FAULTLESS IN MAKE

perfect in fit. The man who buys them now is saving himself a lot of trouble in choice and a lot of expense for the Summer season. Made of the finest mercerized woven madras, in dozens of pretty stripes, in blue, black and lavender. The shirts are fitted with the finest of pearl buttons, with soft collar and French turnover cuffs, or without collar if you wish. High-class shirts, every one.

$1 to $1.50

Outing Trousers for the Holiday

Many a man can make a "half-old" coat and vest do much more service if he had a pair of pants to "patch out" with.

Men's Outing Trousers, made of fine materials, with and without cuffs, moderately priced at $2.50 to $4.50.

You Won't Enjoy Memorial Day, Unless Your Feet Are Comfortable

THE NATIONAL MEMORIAL DAY.

The thinning line of march has been the pathetic central fact of the national Memorial day exercises for the past dozen years. Now in many places you can no longer call it a "line." The sturdy and thrilling tramp about to the resting places of soldiers gone before is very commonly given up. Automobiles and carriages transport the fragment of the veterans.

The orators speak in glowing language of the sacrifices of the battle field and the heroism of the women who waited for the news. Their words seem feeble compared with the picture presented by the fragment of men who are left The transformation from beardless cheeks to seamy faces and grizzled hair is one that talks for itself.

But these flying years that have made these furrows have not been fruitless. The soldiers are passing But the story of their deeds never passes. It grows brighter, as sectional hostilities fade, and as every American feels that heroism on either side of the great conflict is the inheritance of his race and his people.

It was good news for Quincy, the announcement by Charles W. Schwab of the future policy of the Fore River Shipbuilding Corporation. All kinds of rumors are in circulation whenever there is any change of management at the shipyard, and they take a wide range. Where 3000 or more people are directly affected it is not surprising that they are anxious to learn of plans for the future. And so are their families and the merchants and business men of the city. All have much at stake.

But Mr. Schwab's statement in the Daily Ledger interview of Thursday is reassuring. He was pleased to say that the policy of the new management of the Fore River shipyard would be "extension, improvement and development."

It is pleasing to know that Mr Schwab was enough interested in Quincy to make the statement that he did, and that he desires the city and its people to be interested in the shipyard. Quincy has always been proud of the shipyard, for it has given our city national and world-wide fame Certainly no city of 35,000 population is better known in the United States First it was the settlement at Mount Wollaston, then the birthplace of two Presidents, then for Quincy granite, and now for Quincy-built warships and other ships.

The success of the Fore River shipyard means much for the future of Quincy, and all will be happy when new contracts are secured. Rumor has it that Mr. Schwab is interested in large coal mines in South America and may build a large fleet of vessels to transport the coal.

As you can't live solely on divorces and murders, it is felt in some newspaper offices that there must be a war with Japan, or journalism will not be profitable.

The I. W. W.'s are threatening to tie up the whole country, but they will have to pay cash or the merchants will never trust them for the necessary string.

Mayor Gaynor says the Suffragettes need husbands more than the ballot. Anyway the goods were well advertised through the recent parades.

"The high cost of living is a myth" says the president of the National Retail Grocers Association. Also the pay envelope, when the grocers are done with it.

Montenegro's fighting ability is a slap at the drill-masters. The Montenegrins do lots of their drilling without masters.

Now the Government might sum up its business with Japan in a brief but soulful cablegram of two words: "Sorry but—"

LADIES' NIGHT OF MEN'S CLUB

Dr. Wirt Speaks of the "Land of White Elephant"

The last meeting of the Men's club of the Congregational church, South Braintree, until the autumn, was held in the chapel Wednesday evening and was observed as ladies' night. Supper was served at 7 o'clock to an attendance of 117 and it was a delicious repast consisting of cold meats, salads rolls, coffee, cake and a variety of ices, served by Westover & Foss, the Boston caterers.

The following young ladies were waitresses: Miss Winifred Howland, Miss Jessie Campbell, Miss Marion Bradford, Miss Mildred Nickerson, Miss Mabel Borden and Miss Isabel Carmichael.

After supper all adjourned to the upper hall where President Wiggin introduced the speaker of the evening Rev. Loyal L. Wirt, Sc. D., educational director of the South church, Campello. Dr. Wirt spoke at the November meeting of the club on his life and adventures in Alaska, making so favorable an impression that he was doubly welcomed on his return.

This time his topic was "The Land of the White Elephant," being a most graphic and entertaining narrative of his sojourn in Siam. Dr. Wirt has a wonderful faculty of describing scenes and incidents and he pictured in a wonderful way the manners, customs and sights of this little known country of the Orient with its beautiful temples sacred elephants, curious peoples, strange beasts and birds, etc. His remarks are always brightened by flashes of wit and it is a delightful treat to listen to him. He held the undivided attention of the audience and was accorded hearty applause.

The evening concluded with the singing of America by all. The whole affair was well managed and successful and formed a delightful ending to the present series of meetings.

The followingge ntlemen, composing the executive committee were in charge: George W. Stevens, Ralph L. Wiggin, Charles E. Gilman, Ralph B. Woodsum, Ernest C. Woodsum, Harry A. Simonds, Louis N. Hathaway, Robert E. Whitman, Dudley P. Howland and Frank A. Reed.

RINK AT HOUGHS NECK.

The Casino at Houghs Neck will be under the management this summer of the Columbia Co. which operates a string of rinks and bowling alleys. The floor for skating has been resurfaced and 250 feet has been added. Music will be furnished by the latest patterned electric band organ. The alleys have been planed and reset. A. W. Hubbard, treasurer of the company will be in charge and promises that it shall be conducted first class.

KEEPING OF GASOLINE.

One of the State police was in Quincy on Thursday and accompanied Chief Burrell to premises of Meyer Gesmer, Beacon street, who had been complained of for keeping gasoline in his stable without a license and not keeping it in a buried tank as required by law. No arrests were made but the proprietor was informed by the State police that the tank must be buried and that he must apply to the City Council for a license to keep the gasoline.

WHIST PARTY.

Eight tables were in play and a most enjoyable time was in order at the whist party held by the amusement committee of George L. Gill, Rebekah lodge, Thursday afternoon in Odd Fellows hall. Prizes were won by Mrs. J. E. Richardson, Mrs. Jennie McCarty, Mrs. Lois Daverson, Mrs. Jardine, Mrs. Mary O'Neal and Mrs. Robert Wood.

LIBERAL FAITH.

Several from Quincy were in the audience which packed the Arlington Street church, Boston, this week to hear Rev. William Sullivan, formerly of Quincy, deliver the anniversary sermon. An overflow meeting was necessary in the vestry.

"The Vocation of the Liberal Faith" was Mr. Sullivan's topic. The preacher began by speaking of the obligation of Unitarianism and the destiny of the faith. He told of the scientific attitude which so belittles the processes of man's mind, and the theological position, as expressed in so-called modern orthodoxy which would place all revelation with one people, of one specified time, through one individual and one book. Both these ideas must tend to the reduction of the transcendent values of human life.

Against these, the speaker said, the liberal church sets the eternal verities of life; not as a mere sect or a protest, but as a living, vital power based on man's divineness and God's immanence Into a world which is lost in a whirl of vagaries and doubts liberals must announce to the growing pessimism about them the divineness of the spirit of man while revealing it in their own lives. Such a religion is adequate to inspire the loftiest heroism. It must be shown that right, honor, truth and love are not mere platitudes, but are God himself who sets the standard of life by which life's values are to be judged.

MISS EDITH B. SULLIVAN.

The funeral of Miss Edith B. Sullivan of the sophomore class of the Quincy High school was held Thursday afternoon from the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Frank P. Sullivan, 55 Washington street.

A number of classmates and students attended the services and there was a profusion of floral tributes from the many young friends of the deceased.

Rev. Benjamin A. Willmott was the officiating clergyman and Mrs . Frank J. Moore sang "Some sweet day, bye and bye," and "Sometime we'll understand."

Among the floral offerings were a large bouquet of carnations from the pupils of room six of the High school, a standing wreath of American Beauty roses from the employees of George H. Morrill Co., of Boston, a standing wreath of lilies,, white roses and carnations from the Sophomore class of the Quincy High school and a large bouquet of yellow roses from the Y. M. C. A. dormitory boys. Burial was in Mt. Wollaston cemetery.

CARMEN'S UNION.

The Local Carmen's Union initiated seven candidates in the Johnson building, Thursday evening. Important business was transacted. A committee was appointed to confer with Representative William J. Leslie relative to his attitude on the 9 in 11 hours bill which passed the house during his absence. The branch went on record as being satisfied with its progress to date and voted to take every method possible to place their viewpoints before the senators.

GRANITE CONCLAVE.

Granite conclave, Independant Order Heptasophs, held a largely attended meeting in Protection hall Thursday evening. Archon Edward Brown initiated two candidates. It was announced that Prelate William Canty of the Conclave was doing well following an operation successfully performed at the Quincy City Hospital on Wednesday. Herbert Wardwell of Freeman street and Dominick Flynn of Neopnset, both members, are ill at their homes.

BATTLESHIP FLEET.

The battleships North Dakota, New Jersey and Rhode Island, all built at Quincy, are now in the fleet at Block Island sound with the Wyoming, Florida, Delaware, New Hampshire, South Carolina, Virginia, Georgia, and Kansas.

There is more Catarrh in this section of the country than all other diseases put together, and until the last few years was supposed to be incurable. For a great many years doctors pronounced it a local disease and prescribed local remedies, and by constantly failing to cure local treatment, pronounced it incurable. Science has proven catarrh to be a constitutional disease and therefore requires constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, Ohio, is the only constitutional cure on the market. It is taken internally in doses from 10 drops to a teaspoonful. It acts directly on the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. They offer one hundred dollars for any case it fails to cure. Send for circulars and testimonials.

Japan Orders Chinda to Press Treaty Interpretation

NATIONAL PRIDE IS WOUNDED

Our Failure to Express Intention to Seek to Nullify California Anti-Alien Law Is Resented—New Crisis the Gravest That Has Ever Occurred Between the Two Nations

Washington, May 23.—If the Tokio dispatches are to be taken at their face value, Japan has rejected the reply of the United States to the Japanese protest against the spirit of the California anti-alien law. It appears that the American contention that this law does not violate the Japanese treaty is entirely unsatisfactory.

The Japanese foreign office resents the failure on the part of the general government to express any intention to take official steps to nullify the offensive state act. Secretary Bryan's scheme for a referendum is not given any consideration. As a result Baron Chinda has been ordered to press upon the Washington government the Japanese interpretation of the American-Japanese treaty.

It has been made to appear that America has struck Japan on her most vulnerable point—her national honor. As a Japanese official says, it "is like plunging a dagger into our vitals."

The playing of politics on both sides has aroused the Japanese to a high pitch and public opinion demands citizenship of their people in the United States. This will not be granted, except as a part of a rigid exclusion treaty which will make the number having the right few in number and of a quality that will work no economic hardship on any section of the country.

This new crisis is graver than any that has before arisen between Japan and the United States. The ominous feature of this latest development, if the news is to be trusted, is the insistence by Japan that America coerce the state of California.

Those in power in Tokio know that the federal government has no power to nullify a state law that does not contravene the constitution of the United States or the stipulations of a treaty. This was all argued out in the school dispute with California some years ago.

When news of the sudden illness of the Emperor of Japan reached Washington President Wilson and Secretary Bryan expressed deep concern., Charge Bailly-Blanchard of the American embassy at Tokio was cabled immediately to convey a message of sympathy to the Japanese government and President Wilson sent a personal message to the emperor.

It is regarded here as possible that the emperor's illness may have the effect of delaying negotiations in progress regarding the California alien land law.

There were no developments in the negotiations either at the state department or the Japanese embassy, the attitude being one of waiting for the next word from Tokio.

Mikado Has Pneumonia

Tokio, May 23.—The Emperor of Japan is suffering from pneumonia. Six court physicians are in attendance on him and his temperature is very high.

RESIGNATION ACCEPTED

Keefe Will Cease to Be Official of the Immigration Bureau

Washington, May 23.—Daniel J. Keefe's resignation as commissioner general of immigration, tendered May 3, has been accepted by Secretary Wilson of the department of labor, to take effect at such time after May 31 as the president might designate.

During the closing days of the Taft administration, Secretary Nagel recommended Keefe's dismissal and that evidence relating to his official conduct be laid before the department of justice. President Taft took no action, leaving the matter to be handled by the incoming administration.

Anthony A. Caminetti of California has been selected to succeed Keefe.

FIVE KILLED ON SENEGAL

Many Also Seriously Injured When French Liner Hits Mine

Smyrna, May 23.—Five persons were killed and several seriously injured when the French liner Senegal struck a harbor mine on leaving this port. The vessel was beached as quickly as possible, but she is a total loss.

The Senegal carried upward of 200 persons, passengers and crew, and none was injured except those in that part of the ship that came in contact with the mine. The explosion tore a hole in the ship's bottom and wrecked the interior.

Guilty of Attempt to Bribe

LOSS IN THREE PRECINCTS

But City Has More Poll Taxpayers Than Last Year

The returns of the Assistant Assessors who have been at work during the past two months collecting a list of polls, etc., show that the total number of polls is 10,972 as against 10,766 as returned by the assistant Assessors in May 1912. These figures however do not represent accurately the number of polls for it is always the case that new names are being assessed nearly every day until election time. Then again when the registrars meet for the caucuses and elections there are always many who come forward to be registered.

The following table shows the number of polls by precincts as returned by the Assistant Assessors this month in comparison with the number returned by the Assistant Assessors in May 1912. By these it will be seen that only three precincts of the city show a loss. Two of these precincts are in Ward Two, the Fore River district. There is always a shifting population in this ward and it is fair to presume that when the politicians get after the voters in the fall the total number of polls will be greatly increased. Precinct one of this ward, which comprises the territory nearest the Fore River shows a loss of 192 while precinct two, the upper end of the ward, shows a loss of 28.

The greatest gain made by any precinct was by precinct two of Ward Four, 107, while Precinct one of the same ward gains 21.

Ward Five also makes a great gain showing that this section of the city is growing fast. Precinct one gains 37 and precinct two, which is over in the Park district gains 71. Ward Six also is growing fast for precinct one gains 76 and precinct two 61.

Precinct one of Ward One made a gain of 33 and precinct two a gain of 5.

As stated above all of these figures will be greatly increased before the end of the year, and it was said at the assessors office this morning that even now hardly a day passes but some man comes in and asks to be assessed, that he may vote in the fall.

AMUSEMENTS

KINCAIDE THEATRE.

The show now on at Quincy's pretty playhouse is a hummer. One of the season's most sensational acts is La-Petite Onri, "the girl on the golden wheel." Irene McTure and her trained dog Zaza do many remarkably clever feats; Zig Zag Trio have a lively singing skit; LaMont Duo dance, sing and crack lots of good jokes. The pictures are splendid and the music is much enjoyed.

For Monday and Tuesday the management have secured a great Italian detective picture presented in four parts, "Tigris." Nearly 2000 people appear in this picture and there are over 100 breath catching scenes.

BOSTON THEATRE.

Typical of New England's rugged honesty, simple ways, sterling traits and charity, "The Old Homestead" came again last evening to the Boston Theatre, the scene of its first production twenty-seven years ago. Like a piece of old tapestry, or a painting by old masters, its colors, the light and shade of country and city life have stood the test of a generation, and its appeal to old and young is as strong as ever. Such a play that arouses memories of childhood days of clean, wholesome living touches the heart and emphasizes the little virtues that make all humanity better is bound to live and be always interesting, as "The Old Homestead" is.

Denman Thompson builded it as well as he acted it and fortunately no attempt has been made to modernize" such an idyl of New England life and its charm remains unbroken. E. L. Snader wears the mantle of Denman Thompson becomingly and plays the part of "Uncle Josh" with photographic accuracy and at the same time with a sincerity and strength of his own. His impersonation left nothing to be desired. Many of the other principals in the cast have been in it for many years and have become old favorites with the audiences everywhere. Mrs. Maggie Breyer is the same sweet Aunt Matilda and Mr. Kammerlee's Henry Hopkins and splendid bass voice are still one of the features of the performance. Mr. Clark is still the Seth Perkins and Miss Annie Thompson, the Mrs. Hopkins, Miss Bonstead Anna Maria and David Williard plays himself as of yore. Walter F. Kelly as Cy Prime was close to the traditions as were Percy Matson as Ed Ganzy. Fred Clare was a traditional Happy Jack. Special matinee Memorial day.

B. F. KEITH'S THEATRE.

"Neptune's Garden of Living Statues," the beautiful mythological water pantomime with music which has created a genuine sensation all over New England, will commence its fourth record-breaking week at B. F. Keith's Theatre on Monday next. The startling and mystifying water illusions in "Neptune's Garden" have become the talk of the town, and all roads lead to B. F. Keith's, but so far no one has been able to solve the mystery of the wonderful "Enchanted Pool," into which the living statues plunge and never come up. Music dancing, pantomime, singing, and posing are cleverly blended in this spectacle, there being something to suit every taste and not enough of anything to tire one. One startling surprise follows another, from the time the first statue awakens at the scream of Beryl and plunges into the enchanted pool, until the last of the water nymphs arises from the water at the command of Amphitrite. The climax to this feast of mystifying novelties and illusions is one of the most daring and sensational features ever staged anywhere. This thriller of thrillers makes one fairly hold his breath. The surrounding vaudeville bill is of the real all-star variety.

CASTLE SQUARE THEATRE.

Sir Arthur Conan Doyle is a wizard at the writing of short stories and plays. He proved this with "Sherlock Holmes," and he will prove it again at the Castle Square next week, when John Craig will present "The Fires of Fate" for the first time in Boston. This play, which has been successful both in New York and in London, is a powerful romantic drama with its scenes in London, on the river Nile, and in the Egyptian desert. What shall a man do when he discovers that he has only a year to live? That is the theme, and it is worked out sensibly and logically to a rational conclusion and a happy ending. It arouses the continuous curiosity of the audience, being the sort of play that awakens and sustains interest at every moment, and that puzzles the spectator as to its outcome.

Thec ast will give an effective interpretation of the drama, and there will be special stage settings of exceptional scenic beauty. The hero will be played by William P. Carleton, and Mr. Meek, Mr. Ormonde, Mr. Roberts, Miss Shirley, Miss Colcord and Miss Laurett Browne will be seen in the other leading roles.

HOW FORGETFUL.

Anxiety to catch cars very often leads to forgetfulness and within five minutes Wednesday morning one person left a bicycle wheel and the other his luncheon beside the spot where they were seated when their car rolled in.

The first squatted on a bundle of morning papers in a contented way, with his wheel at his side and his paper on his lap. He ran across City Square without his wheel.

The second took his place on the papers and placed his luncheon on his left side. While he was looking over the fight column his car was leaving and after a run without his luncheon he got aboard.

Both treasures were placed in the hands of the law and they can be obtained upon request.

AFTER ALL-NIGHT SESSION

New Hampshire Solons Clear Up Their Work and Go Home

Concord, N. H., May 23.—At 2 o'clock yesterday afternoon, standard time, but at 5 o'clock Wednesday afternoon, May 21, by legislative time, Governor Felker prorogued the New Hampshire legislature at the close of its 142d day.

The bill establishing new senatorial districts throughout the state, which held the legislature in session all night, was passed, the requisite quorum of Democrats having been secured.

During the final hours two important measures were passed. One provides for legislating out of office the present state liquor license commission, establishing a new one in its place. The other provides for the unification of the police commissions of the state.

Amendments to the federal constitution, providing for the imposition of an income tax and for the direct election of United States senators, were ratified.

TO CALL JOINT CAUCUS

Republican Senators Consider Plans to Capture Next Congress

Washington, May 23.—Republican senators at a conference appointed a committee of five to confer with members of the house and plan a joint caucus next week to organize a congressional campaign committee, establish headquarters and organize for the coming congressional campaign.

Senator Gallinger presided at the conference, which was attended by thirty-one senators. It was the prevailing opinion that the campaign to elect a Republican congress in 1914 should begin at once and that the campaign committee should be composed of representatives and senators, the plan already adopted by the Democrats at the suggestion of President Wilson. The conference also developed the unanimous opinion that publicity headquarters should be opened and the campaign committee formed at once.

Senators who attended said that the meeting was harmonious and that was indicated by the appointment on the conference committee of both old-line and progressive senators.

JENNINGS TAKEN TO BRIDGEWATER

Confessed Slayer of Many Persons Is Found to Be Insane

Boston, May 23.—James B. Jennings, the pugilist known as "Kid Carter," was removed from the state prison to the hospital for the criminal insane at Bridgewater late yesterday. Jennings was convicted of the murder of William H. MacPherson. After receiving his sentence, he confessed to the murder of Mrs. Mildred Donovan of Revere, and claimed to have committed other murders in the west.

Jennings was declared insane by Dr. Steadman, an alienist, and Dr. McLaughlin, the physician at the state prison. They reported their findings to Judge Crosby of the superior court and he authorized the transfer.

ITALIANS PUT TO FLIGHT

Arabs Force Them to Abandon Field Guns After Severe Battle

Benshazi, Tripoli, May 23.—The Italian troops under General Ganbratti were forced to retire after a battle with the Arabs at Sidi Garba, according to details just received here.

The Italians advanced in three columns against the Arab position, where they met with a most stubborn resistance and were finally compelled to retreat to Derna, abandoning three field guns damaged during the fighting.

The check is ascribed by the Italian commander to the superior numbers of the Arabs, to the fatigue of the Italian troops and to the difficult ground.

The casualties sustained by the Arabs are said to have numbered 500, while the Italians lost a large number of officers wounded.

MOUNTAIN PEAK BLOWN UP

Had For Many Centuries Threatened Destruction of French Village

Chambery, France, May 23.—Military engineers blasted into fragments the loose peak of a mountain consisting of 86,000 cubic feet of rock which had threatened to fall and destroy at any moment the village of Tormery in the department of Savoie, ever since its foundation as a cluster of huts in the middle ages.

A charge of 900 pounds of dynamite was used for the explosion. Before the fuse was fired, the villagers removed all their animals and portable property to the neighboring hills.

FLAG DAY OF THE ELKS

Lieut. Gov. Walsh Will Be the Principal Speaker

A meeting of the special committee of Quincy lodge of Elks to arrange for Flag day exercises was held Thursday evening at the clubhouse on Foster street.

The exercises will be held at Kincaide's theatre Sunday, June 15, probably at 3 o'clock. Invitations to be present will be extended to the Grand Army and other patriotic organizations of the city and it is planned to make the occasion one of note.

Special musical selections will be given by the Temple male quartette and the address of the afternoon will be made by Lieut. Gov. David I. Walsh The full details of the program have not been completed as yet.

PUBLIC LIBRARY NOTES.

The pictures now on exhibition at the Thomas Crane Public Library are photographs of famous paintings and other works of art, produced during the government of the Medici family in the Florentine republic.

The city of Florence was governed by the Medici family from the elder Cosimo, 1389 to 1464 to Gian Gastone, 1671 to 1737 first as a republic, later as a duchy. With the death of Gastone the family became extinct. It was celebrated for the number of statesmen which it produced and for its patronage of art and letters.

The Library has just added a book which will have decided interest to all women interested in club organization, ideals, and aims. This book is Mrs. Mary I. Wood's History of the General federaiton of women's clubs, call number 60.97, giving a complete history of the twenty two years of its organization, recorded by reciting the work of the biennial conventions and printing the documents pertaining to the organization.

LAST OF THE MUSICALES.

The closing musicale of the Quincy Women's club was by the Grieg Trio—Marguerite Pearson Moss, violinu; E. Thompson Hall, violin-cello; and Minnie G. DelCastillo, piano; who were assisted by Mabelle Dadmun Everett, soprano; and Mrs. Jennie Hocking Hunt, accompanist. Like its predecessors the program was a very pleasing one.

SOCK DAY.

Thursday was sock day at the High school. Almost all of the boys wore socks of different colors, and the combinations of color were comical, to say the least. Some of the bright fellows wore black and tan shoes. Every few weeks an epidemic like this takes hold of the school. It even reached the girls on Wednesday.

BRAINTREE ASSAULT CASE.

Rosario Spinnelli was arraigned in court this morning for assaulting John Barravecchi at Braintree. The alleged assault took place some three weeks ago. It seems that both men were employed by a Mr. Gage grading his lawn. A dispute arose over the use of a shovel and it is alleged that Spinnelli struck the plaintiff a savage blow over the head with the shovel which left a big dent in the back of his head and for a time it was thought to have caused a fracture of the skull.

After committing the assault Spinnelli skipped and a John Doe warrant was issued against him. Recently he was located in Reading where he was arrested Thursday by Chief Horace Hunt. In court after hearing the evidence the case was placed on file on payment of $15 costs.

POOL ROOM RAIDED.

Inspector Goodhue accompanied by Officers Holloran, Cahill and Donovan raided the pool room of George H. Murray in the Poland block near the Norfolk Downs depot at 1.30 Thursday night and arrested the proprietor for keeping a common gaming nuisance. In consequence of complaints Inspector Goodhue has been watching the place for some time and Thursday night decided to make his raid. There were ten or twelve men in the place at the time, and it is reported they were playing Kelley pool, rotation pool, etc., Murray was arraigned in court and entered a plea of guilty and was fined $50.

SCHOOL BOY MEET

coine, George, Gurney, McDonald Thayer, Zillstrom, Reardon and James Gilcoine.

Gridley Bryant will send the following to the tape—Bennett, Scully, McDonald, Crowley, Collins, Connelly, Kelly and Maloney.

The other schools have not yet picked their teams so it is impossible to announce their names. It is not settled as to which teams will race each other and the lots will be drawn just before the event is ready.

It is important that the officials be at the park at 9 A. M. sharp, as there are several details to be arranged and places to be assigned. The running broad jump and high jump will commence at 9.30 sharp, and as fast as the heats are drawn for the dash they will be run off.

The following men have already been selected as officials with several others to be added Dr. Smith and L. F. LaRose, clerks of course; George Sullivan of the B. A. A., starter Capt. Kingsbury of the High school track team and Leon White, judges of track; Sturgis Hunt, W. Mead, Ralph Prout, and Herbert Driscoll, judges of field events and measurers.

WEIGHTS AND MEASURES.

The national association of sealers of weights and measures are seeking to have congress pass a law estblishing a uniform system of weights throughout the country. At the eighth annual conference of the association held in Washington May 14, this matter was the subject to considerable discussion. It came up when the matter of the Underwood tariff bill was under discussion. This bill fixes the various weights of commodities, usually sold by the bushel on a weight basis.

During this discussion it was brought out that nearly every state had different standard of weights for a bushel, and in order that there might be no confliction, a resolution was passed to be presented to congress for the enactment of a law establishing a uniform system to be used throughout the United States.

GAMES TOMORROW.

WOMAN'S GRUESOME FIND

Body of Man Minus Head, Arm and Foot Is Washed Ashore

Quincy, Mass., May 23.—Mystery and a possible murder lie behind the finding by Mrs. William Jepson of Squantum of the body of a man, headless and minus an arm and a foot, in front of her home on Bayside road.

The body was washed ashore with the tide and is unidentified. The Quincy police say the body has been in the water more than a month, although they do not believe it to be that of a sailor. The body was sent to a morgue.

CZAR IS IN BERLIN FOR ROYAL WEDDING

Elaborate Precautions to Protect Life of Monarch

Berlin, May 23.—Czar Nicholas of Russia arrived here to attend the marriage of Princes Victoria Luise to Prince Ernst August of Cumberland.

Precautions much more elaborate than those taken for King George and Queen Mary of England were employed by the government to guard the life of the Russian emperor.

The route between the railway station and the palace was lined with soldiers, while secret service agents mingled with the crowds. The czar was met at the station by Emperor William, the empress, the crown prince and a number of other notables.

SEGEE GOES TO JAIL

One of His Bondsmen Surrenders Assessor to Sheriff

Boston, May 23.—Samuel A. Segee, the Revere assessor, under indictment on the charge of forgery, in connection with the alleged falsifications in the Revere assessors' and tax collectors' books, was surrendered last evening to Sheriff Quinn by John Cazale, one of his two bondsmen, and he was obliged to spend the night in the Charles street jail.

The friends of Segee say that arrangements will be made today to have him bailed again. Besides Cazale, his other bondsman was Charles H. Bates, the secretary of the Revere assessors. Bates will again furnish sureties to secure the release of his fellow-assessor. The amount of bail was fixed at $3000.

FERRY TOLLS JUGGLED

City of Boston Declared to Have Lost About $2000 a Year

Boston, May 23.—The direct charge that the city of Boston has been defrauded to the extent of $2000 a year by the juggling of tolls on the East Boston ferries was made yesterday by the finance commission in a report to Mayor Fitzgerald. As this method has been going on for years, the total amounts to a large sum.

For two years, the commission states, it has had men tabulating the collection of tolls at the ferries and watching the system there in vogue. The commission charges that the count submitted by the commission's agents, when compared with the figures for tolls from the gatemen, indicates that the gatemen turned in an insufficient number of high-priced fares and a larger number of low-priced fares.

The result, the commission states, is that the city has not received the full amount of tolls to which it is entitled. They estimate that the shrinkage will amount to $2000 a year from this loss alone.

UNVEILING OF HALE STATUE AT BOSTON

Memorial of Noted Divine Erected at a Cost of $30,008

Boston, May 23.—"Professor" William H. Taft, ex-Governor Long, Rev. James DeNormandie and Rev. Edward Cummings were the speakers at the exercises in the Arlington Street church, preliminary to the unveiling of the memorial statue of Dr. Edward Everett Hale.

The statue stands on the Charles street side of the public garden, and was erected at a cost of $30,000, secured by popular subscription.

The figure stands on a stone base three feet high, on which is inscribed: "Edward Everett Hale, Man of Letters, Preacher of the Gospel, Prophet of Peace, Patriot. 1822-1909." On another face of the base are the words: "Look Up—Not Down; Look Forward—Not Backward; Look Out and Not In; Lend a Hand."

WARRANT OUT FOR PAGE

Libeller of Clayton Is Alleged to Have Broken His Probation

Washington, May 23.—A bench warrant was issued by the district supreme court for the arrest of Henry W. A. Page, a New York linen merchant, under suspended sentence of five years for criminally libelling Chairman Clayton of the house judiciary committee. The warrant was sent to New York to be served.

Page was placed on probation after conviction last May, but a few days ago sent by express to President Wilson a communication of 113 typewritten pages attacking his prosecution. Page's alleged grievances date back to some unsuccessful legal actions in the New York state courts.

ASKS $75,000 DAMAGES

Triple Slayer Blames Street Car Company For His Troubles

Chicago, May 23.—Charging that injuries he sustained when struck by a street car caused him to commit a triple slaying, William H. Meutsch has filed suit against the Chicago Railways company for $75,000.

Meutsch was struck by a car, incurring injuries about the head, on Jan. 20, 1908. Ten days later he shot his two small daughters and infant son. A plea of insanity caused him to be sent to the asylum for the criminal insane. He was pronounced cured and released in 1910.

Woman Killed by Batted Ball

New York, May 23.—Mrs. John Hosia of Harrison, N. J., was sitting on her front stoop while some boys were playing in the street. A batted ball struck her in the stomach. Internal hemorrhage followed, causing her death.

Boston Man Robbed Abroad

Rome, May 23.—Gardner Curtis, director of the Boston Museum of Fine Arts, informed the police that while on a train between Pistoria and Bologne he was robbed of $20,000.

DEADLY WORK IS COMPLETED

Poison at Last Takes the Life of Banker Walker

EXPRESSES LOVE FOR WIFE

Then Falls Into Deep Stupor From Which He Never Rallied—Survived a Week After Swallowing Corrosive Sublimate Tablet by Mistake—Efforts of Doctors Without Avail

Macon, Ga., May 23.—B. S. Walker, the young banker, whose fight against death aroused national interest following the accidental taking of poison, died yesterday. Up to the last Waker refused to allow any signs of grief about his home, tne house in which Sidney Lanier, the southern poet, was born.

Walker's last words were endearingly addressed to his wife, who sat at his bedside holding his hand until the end came. Wednesday afternoon, in his last minutes of consciousness, when he roused from a heavy stupor in which he had lain all day, Walker pressed his wife's hand and said faintly: "I love you, Marie."

He never spoke again. During the night the stupor deepened and yesterday morning the death agony began.

Walker's death occurred almost seven days from the time he accidentally swallowed the corrosive sublimate tablet, lacking only an hour and a half. As long as he enjoyed a clarity of mind his mental state was such that he materially co-operated with the physicians in their heroic efforts to save him, but when uraemic poisoning developed and his brain became clouded he began to sink. All hope was abandoned Wednesday, the doctors announcing that it was only a matter of hours.

Mrs. Walker, haggard and worn, as the result of the week's ordeal, is almost prostrated over the tragic fate of her husband.

It has developed that Walker carried a life insurance in excess of $150,000.

The attending physicians are said to have exhausted every method of treatment known to medical science.

Members of the family are quoted as expressing much dissatisfaction with some of the reports that have originated in Macon. They declare Walker remained constantly in his bedroom after it was discovered that he had taken the tablet of poison in mistake for a headache remedy.

FIGHTS FOUR BANDITS

Plucky Bank Messenger Saves Money Entrusted to His Care

New York, May 23.—James T. Witress, a bank messenger, fought in the street with four highwaymen who leaped into his carriage and attempted to wrest from him the payroll of the Nathan Manufacturing company. Resisting their efforts to subdue him with a rifle, a revolver and clubs, he struggled to such good purpose that he saved the money, although he was shot in the arm and his scalp was laid open with a blow with a club.

Policemen heard the shooting and ran to his aid. At their approach the highwaymen fled. One of them was shot by a bluecoat; another was captured after a thrilling chase, and the other two escaped. The two prisoners were held without bail by the police, and a squad of detectives was rushed to the upper East Side to search for the highwaymen who escaped.

DEATH OF MLLE. FERRER

Actress' Passing Similar to That of Her Favorite Role

Paris, May 23.—Strangely like the passing of "Camille," which was her favorite and most popular role, death came to Mlle. Paz Ferrer, one of France's most beautiful actresses, at Fontainebleau.

Mlle. Ferrer was the favoriate daughter of Ferrer, the labor leader who was executed in Spain, and the tragedy left the girl heart-broken. She was 22 years old. Constant grieving undermined her health. Tuberculosis attacked her, but she said nothing about it except to intimate friends, and they were sworn to secrecy.

Wasting away, the young actress kept on with her work until she could work no longer and then retired to Fontainebleau "for a rest."

SLAYS FIVE ROOMMATES

Terrible Work of Insane Murderer In an Idaho Asylum

Blackfoot, Ida., May 23.—Peter Bradovitch, an insane Austrian confined in the southern Idaho insane asylum here, killed his five roommates by beating them on the head with a table as they lay asleep.

Bradovitch was committed to the insane asylum two years ago from the state penitentiary, where he was serving a life sentence for murder.

GENERAL ORDERS OF GRAND ARNY

Quincy, May 20, 1913.

GENERAL ORDERS NO. 1.

Forty-five years ago the beautiful custom of strewing flowers on the last resting place of our fallen comrades was first publicly observed, and each year has witnessed a more and more general observance of the day.

To every patriot Memorial Day is the most sacred of the year and its proper observance one of the Nation's strongest safeguards.

It is a day when a grateful people of a redeemed Nation pay honor to the memory of its Soldier and Sailor dead, who gave up their lives that the Nation might still exist, and whose sacrifices and brave deeds shall be told to the rising generations, that they too may learn to love our country and its flag; learn what it cost to make this Nation what it is today, and that its Constitution guarantees to all its citizens free speech, free thought, and justice to all; learn that education and patriotism go hand in hand; that we are one Nation, and that our motto is, "One Country and One Flag;" and that flag the Stars and Stripes, which on this Memorial Day waves over every Union Soldier's grave in this land.

Among the allied organizations affiliated with the Grand Army of the Republic, the National Alliance of Daughters of Veterans are like the Sons of Veterans—our children . The time will come when the fathers and mothers will cease to exist, and the daughters and sons must and will be heard from. Then will be solved the problem, who will teach the lesson of patriotism and loyalty.

On Sunday, May 25th, at ten o'clock, comrades will assemble at G. A. R. Hall, in full uniform, to attend the memorial service held in the First Congregational (Unitarian) Church. An address will be delivered by the pastor, Rev. Adelbert L. Hudson.

At seven P. M., there will be a memorial service held at the Congregational Church, Wollaston, Rev. Isaiah W. Sneath, Pastor, corner Lincoln and Winthrop avenues. Car leaves City Square 6.25.

These services will both be attended by Paul J. Revere Post No. 88, G. A. R., Paul J. Revere Woman's Relief Corps No. 103, Reb. Wiswell Tent No. 53, Daughters of Veterans, Abner B. Packard Camp No. 95, Sons of Veterans and their Auxiliaries, John A. Boyd Camp No. 2, U. S. W. V., and their Auxiliaries; also all soldiers and sailors and the public are cordially invited to attend these services .

The Principals and Teachers of the public schools of Quincy are respectfully requested to invite their pupils to bring flowers on the morning of May 29th and leave them at the school houses where they will be collected by the comrades, for the purpose of decorating the graves May 30th. Kindly make them in small bouquets.

Contributions of food will be gratefully received and may be delivered at the following residences:

Ward One—Mrs. Francis P. Loud, Washington Street.

Ward Two—Mrs. Annie Merritt, Elm Place; Mrs. G. W. Gragg and Joseph Lapham, Quincy Point.

BREEN'S MOTIVE WAS REVENGE

Counsel For Atteaux Thus Hints In Conspiracy Trial

THE "PLANTING" OF DYNAMITE

Claim That Lawrence Undertaker Was Also Interested Because Mother's Estate Suffered Through Strike—Quincy Quarryman Furnished Explosive—Wood's Probable Defense

Boston, May 23.—The defense which will be offered by counsel for Fred E. Atteaux was clearly shown, and the defense which will be relied upon by William M. Wood's counsel was hinted at during yesterday's session of the dynamite conspiracy trial.

Daniel H. Coakley tried to show that John J. Breen, on whose testimony the case of the prosecution in large part rests, had a motive for revenging himself against Atteaux. He tried to show that Breen tried to get $12,000, first from Atteaux and later from William B. Watts, and from Coakley himself, both acting for Atteaux; that this money was refused, and that Breen threatened to "get back" at Atteaux. All these charges, couched in questions, were vigorously denied by Breen.

He tried to show, also, that Breen had a motive of his own in planting the dynamite, as he considered that his mother's estate was losing heavily through the strike. The dramatic suicide of Ernest W. Pitman on the morning on which he had been summoned to appear before the grand jury to tell of the alleged conspiracy he sought to explain by asking witnesses if they knew of any business losses sustained by Pitman in connection with the failure of the Blanchard company, and also by asking Breen if he had not practically driven him to suicide by threatening him with blackmail. This was denied by Breen.

The dynamite which John J. Breen and Dennis J. Collins planted in different parts of the foreign district in Lawrence, and which, the prosecution alleges, Wood, Atteaux and Collins conspired to place in such a way as to discredit the Lawrence strikers, was traced to its source yesterday afternoon in the testimony of William H. Rice, a Quincy quarryman.

The witness, who proved to be the "Mr. Rice" who has appeared in previous testimony as the second of the two men who delivered a package of dynamite to Breen at Franklin and Washington streets, Boston, on the night of Jan. 19, said he himself had loaned the explosive to Ernest W. Pitman for the purpose, he thought, of finishing a building excavation in Worcester. Rice said he was led to believe that Breen was Pitman's foreman.

Though no evidence has as yet been introduced to connect William M. Wood with the alleged conspiracy, there have been indications that the testimony on which the government will rely will relate to some action which took place after the dynamite was planted.

This appears from the persistence with which Henry F. Hurlburt, Wood's attorney, has sought, since the opening minutes of the trial, to obtain a ruling that no evidence relating to acts subsequent to the duration of the alleged conspiracy should be admitted as evidence against Wood.

Judge Crosby has ruled on this point that the subsequent actions of alleged conspirators were admissible as evidence, and that if it could be shown there was a conspiracy any such act would be evidence against all the defendants.

A Persistent Purpose to Have a Better Store

Has been the aim of R. E. Foy & Co.

How well we have succeeded can be seen in the Adams Market. It is a strikingly clean, nicely arranged store, with much underglass and refrigeration. Ceaseless care and our insistence upon cleanliness is making this store talked about as the "Model Store" of Quincy. Careful selection—always buying the best, rejecting all else has gained for this store the sobriquet—"the Store of Sterling Quality."

There's as much difference between markets as there is between people. Some are progressive, alive, up-to-date. Others are always behindhand, "asleep at the switch." To offer you no better goods, no better service than to be had elsewhere would not entitle the Adams Market to your preference. It is a bigger assortment, better values, satisfying service that is building up this business more rapidly than any other store in Quincy. We have just what you want at the price you want to pay. Isn't that better than going to some stores and being sold something you don't exactly like because it is all they had?

JUNE WEDDING.

Dennis S. Sweeney of Quincy Point, one of Quincy's best known young men and Miss Elizabeth Catherine Wall. will be married June 4th at the home of the young ladies parents, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas F. Wall, 112 Main street, Woburn.

Mr. Sweeney is a graduate of the Quincy High school and a Boston business college graduate. He also has appeared as a dispenser of coon songs and ballads at many local concerts and a minstrel show does not seem complete if "Din" Sweeney was not on the ends. His many friends are making elaborate preparations to make the reception one of fond memory to the prospective couple.

The Franklin club will hold a dance this evening at new Colonial hall.

CARD OF THANKS.

We wish to express our thanks for the kind words of sympathy and for the beautiful floral tributes from classmates, neighbors and friends, during our recent bereavement in the loss of our daughter.

MANY STREET REPORTS EXPECTED MONDAY

New Rules Require All Street Loans to be Made Before July 1

Urgent Need for New Temporary Loans of $100,000

From present appearances Monday night's adjourned meeting of the City Council is likely to be one of the busiest of the year. Quite a number of committees have met this week. In fact all of the important committees such as Finance, Streets, Ordinances and Sewers and Water Supply, all of which have made an effort to clean the calendar of much of the business which had been referred to them.

Under the rules of the Council all orders for rebuilding and construction of street must be acted upon before the first day of July, or rather under the rules no appropriation for such work shall be made after that date. As the first of July is but four weeks off it can be readily sen that the month of June must necessarily be a busy one.

One of the most important matters that will come up Monday night is the temporary loan order for $100,000. This money is badly needed to carry the city along. Quite a few loan orders have been passed by the Council carrying interest at four percent, three of these orders alone carrying appropriations aggregating $110,000. These orders were passed early in the year, but no money has as yet been borrowed as it has been found im-

UNITED SHOE AGREEMENTS

In Which Quincy Men Were Well Paid

At the resumption of the anti-trust suit hearing against the United Shoe Machinery Co. in the United States district court on Friday, Nelson W. Page, the company's patent attorney testified to several transactions in which Theophilus King was interested.

It related to an agreement whereby the United Shoe in June, 1900 purchased the patents of Theophilus King, Harry Tolman and Eleazer Kempshall of Boston, owners of the Boston Fast Color Eyelet Company.

It was offered by the government that these men formed a new company, known as the United Fast Color Eyelet Company, with a capital stock of $1,500,000 which took over the business and assets of the Boston company King, Tolman and Kempshall to receive $155,000 of preferred stock of the new company and the United Shoe company to have $1,000,000 of preferred and $145,000 of common stock of the new company and King was to receive $35,000 in cash.

For a period of 15 years King, Tolman and Kempshall should not, jointly or severally, engage in any business which would be hostile to the development of the business of the new company. At the same time the United Shoe is alleged to have acquired from the same men for $75,000 their rights to an enamel eyelet,paying with preferred stock of the United Fast Color Eyelet Company, and the venders could not engage in the trade of such eyelets for 15 years. The eyelet business of J. C. Rhodes & Co. was also acquired by the United Shoe. All those eyelets were made under patents.

The members of Ave Maria and Quincy councils, Knights of Columbus, will attend the exemplification of the third degree under the auspices of Seville council, Brockton, Wednesday evening. The trip will be made in autos.

HEADLESS BODY IDENTIFIED

That of Boy Who Escaped from Rainsford Island

The finding of the body of Harry Sargent on the Squantum shore clears up his disappearance from Rainsford Island on Jan. 30, and it is thought that his companion met a similar fate since the boat they left the island in was washed ashore three days after.

Charles A. Rabethgo, superintendent of the Suffolk School for Boys, identified the body at Hall's undertaking rooms on Friday by marks on the clothing. The body was in an advanced stage of decomposition, the head, left leg and an arm being missing. The body was in such a state that no autopsy could have been performed.

Sargent and his companion made a sensational escape. Their flight was discovered by Officials who found that money had been taken by the boys. The police of this city were notified and the officers patroled the Quincy shore for hours searching for the boat. They picked up no trace of the boys.

Boston Police headquarters have been notified and they are trying to locate relatives who will claim the body.

Francis E. Sargent of Dorchester, father of the boy, claimed the body today.

SWEDISH JUBILEE.

The twentieth anniversary jubilee of Swedish Evangelical Lutheran church of Everett is being held this evening and Sunday. The orchestra of the Quincy Swedish Lutheran church will furnish the music for the Jubilee concert tonight. Miss Emma Witting of this city will preside at the piano. The Quincy Male Quartet, consisting of Fritz Swanson, John Bergvall, John F. Johnson and Nils Carlson, will sing at the Sunday evening service. Prof. J. L. Larson, who supplied the pulpit here during a vacancy is superintendent of the congregation. Many Quincy people will atttend.

JULY FOURTH CELEBRATION

Less Than Six Weeks to Make All Plans

If there is to be any July Fourth celebration in Quincy this year it is high time that the association got a move on and made plans for the raising of funds and outlined its program. The general opinion seems to be, that while it is good idea to have a celebration that the morning parade should be cut out.

The morning parade last year was generally conceeded by all to have been a failure. Had it not been for the sailors of the battleship North Dakota, who paraded, it would have amounted to little.

The trouble is that many remain up late the night before and do not feel like getting up early and making ready for a parade. Then again every ward wants the parade to visit them, and if this is done the route must necessarily be long. Much too long for those who have to do any marching in the hot sun.

The funds raised for the celebration could be well expended in giving the children of the several wards a good time, and in band concerts and athletic sports at Merrymount park, and the day could be wound up with a display of fireworks at Merrymount park. The parade seems to be a thing of the past.

Whether or not there is a celebration probably depends largely on what action the City Council takes on the order appropriating $999 for the celebration. If this is passed the Mayor will probably hand over $200 of it to the Atlantic association as in past years, which will leave nearly $800 for the balance of the city.

That it is almost useless to try and raise any great amount of funds by subscription seems to be out of the question, judging from other years. People are called upon to pay high for all necessities of life and there is a constant demand for contributions for this thing and that so ordinary citizens finds himself without a surplus. Cut out the parade and have a good time without it seems to be the general sentiment.

EXPORTS FIGURE PROMINENTLY

In Adjustment of the Proposed Tariff Duties by Congress

Granite Not Manufactured in Units or Exported

Manufactured granite is not in the same class as many other commodities affected by the tariff, as will be seen by some of the questions which Congress will ask of manufacturers. Quincy granite is not exported and it is not manufactured in units. Here are some of the questions which require answers under oath:

"What part of your production do you export; to what countries and in what quantities and values, and what rates of duty are paid at the several foreign ports?

"What were the wholesale prices charged by you and by any concern in which you are interested for this commodity in the domestic market and what were the prices charged when sold in foreign markets during January, April, July, October, 1912 and in January, 1913?

"What was the cost of production in your plant per unit of your product for the fiscal years 1910 and 1912? Give cost of materials, labor, overhead charges and depreciation charges in separate items and in as much detail as possible. In this connection give capitalization, amount of common stock, preferred stock and amount of bonds issued, amount of actual cash or its equivalent in property received in consideration of stocks and bonds; rate of dividend paid on preferred stock and commonstock, and rate of interest borne by bonds for the past 10 years; how much of your earnings for each of the years 1910, 1911, 1912 have been credited to surplus and how much devoted to additions to the plant; salaries paid during each of the foregoing years to each of your principal officials; statement of assets and liabilities, 1910, 1911 and 1912 and comparative balance sheet for these years.

"Give value for which the property shown in the above statement of assets and liabilities was assessed for taxation in 1912, and transcript of your labor roll for January, April, July, October 1912, and January, 1913.

"State amount of wages paid per annum for the years 1910, 1911 and 1912, and total value per annum of your product for the same years, and the character, quality and age of the machinery used in manufacturing your products.

"What is total cost of production per unit of the same product as yours in competing countries?

"What is the percentage of labor cost to the total cost of a unit of product in competing countries?

"Give cost of transportation from your factory to the principal markets in this country, naming the markets.

"What is the cost of transportation from the principal points of production in competing countries to the markets of this country?

"What part of the duty under the Payne-Aldrich law represents your profit as a manufacturer?

"Have you a pecuniary interest in the maintenance of a high tariff on this commodity?"

Quincy granite manufacturers are not guilty of selling their products at a lower price abroad than in the United States, and exports are seldom made. It is an industry that deserves protection.

HIGHER INTEREST.

The sale of a great block of New York city bonds at a price yielding within a trifling fraction of 4 1-2 percent is an event worth the attention of municipal authorities all over the country. If looked at in the face the tendency here revealed is not favorable to the happy-go-lucky old custom of mortgaging the future.

It was not long ago that an investment of the type of these New York bonds sold to net a 3 1-2 interest return. The fall in price and rise of interest return is not due solely to the factors that have made the stock market drop. What has happened has been that the price for use of money, like the price for use of a house (rent) or the price of eggs, butter or milk, is going up.

Thrift does not stand as high among the virtues as it did. Automobiles are more glorious than bank-books. Your neighbors see your machine and they prostrate themselves before its costly purr, while it is not customary to exhibit your bank-books as parlor bric-a-brac. The consequence is that there is a shortage of loanable capital.

Old fashioned public finance found posterity a rich uncle who stood all bills. No toys of costly buildings were too expensive. By issuing 30 and 40 year notes, your children would pay. But by and by the interest, sinking fund, and payment of serial notes bills began to come in. At last the tax-payer woke up to the fact that he was paying for his town, city, county and state government twice over, once for principal, again for interest.

Higher interest should accentuate the present tendency in well managed cities toward shorter time loans. At 4 -12 to 6 per cent, the cost of double payment for municipal housekeeping will be staggering.

Are the car steps too high, or the women's skirts too narrow, is the dispute in many places. It will be found far easier to rebuild the cars than the skirts.

A new York woman was ordered to stop smoking in a Minneapolis restaurant, but in New York she probably relies on that habit to prove that she belongs to good society.

Now that an Illinois woman has asked Mrs. Wilson for some of her daughters' cast off clothes, there are probably several people who have their eyes on the President's inauguration suit.

Our new ambassador to England will not entertain as lavishly as the Reids, but probably there will be an extra chop in the refrigerator so that Mr. Page can bring a friend home to dinner unexpected.

About 60,000,000 packages a month are being carried by parcel post, but a little ad in the newspapers would inform the public that the express companies still exist.

Secretary Bryan should take Tom Marshall in hand as soon as he returns to Washington, and give him a few lessons in the art of being vague.

James J. Hill's suggestion that congress ought to stand adjourned for ten years makes one wonder where the shoe is pinching Jimmy.

CIRCUS COMING.

Did you ever stop to think how much capital and brains are tied up in a modern circus such as the Downie and Wheeler Shows which will be in Quincy May 31? The beautiful high priced horses, the costly and monster canvasses made up with tons of rope, the mammoth carved animal dens and wagons the trains of modernly equipped double length railroad cars, harness, uniforms, costumes, trappings, the thousands of feet of lumber used for seats, poles, stakes etc., and the modern lighting plants and goodness knows what all—Can you imagine the enormous sum tied up for the purpose of amusing you for the trifle you spend for a ticket— and then you don't have to pay anything for the expensive parade and high class free acts. Then think of the daily expenses which are over two thousand dollars.—Don't it take real brains to manage an institution that has this expense to say nothing of the interest on investment, depreciation of property, etc. When the show comes just take a pencil and pad and try to "dope it out" and you will realize what a monster proposition it is. Don't forget the date Saturday, May 31.

SOCIAL AND DANCE.

A testimonial social and dance was held under the auspices of Court John Adams No. 144, F. of A., for the benefit of Griff Jones in Clan McGregor hall, Friday evening. The hall was crowded, about 300 couples danced to the music of Wilson's orchestra. Vocal solos were rendered by Herbert Collins and Charles Vanner and a recitation by Arthur Tremayne. Refreshments were served.

The following committee had charge of the affair: Fred Bier, chairman, Charles Osborne, secretary, F. Steinbrenner, treasurer, John Troupe, floor director, David Melrose, James Conway, John Prichard, George Clark, Alexander Russell, Robert Craig, Stanley Collins and John Hackett.

BIRTHDAY PARTY.

Ruth Murkland of Walker street celebrated her eighth birthday Thursday afternoon by entertaining several of her little friends at a party. Games were enjoyed and refreshments served. Those present were Constance Stecher, Olive Fuller, Marjorie Dame, Anna, Eleanor, Edith and Ella Olson.

MAY PARTY OF EASTERN STAR

Many Novelties Introduced and Good Time Enjoyed

The dramatic club of the Quincy chapter, Order of Eastern Star, held a May party and dance in Alpha hall last evening. The weather had no effect on the attendance and the affair was one of the most successful parties ever held by the club.

Novelties were introduced which created no end of laughter, among them being the favors which were musical pipes for the men and tissue paper sunshades for the women.

During the evening six pages distributed chocolates to those present, and the ante room, where punch was served was most popular.

The committee consisted of Mrs. Clara E. Catarius, Miss Annie E. Rose, Miss Mildred Crowley, Miss Bessie E. Roberts, Miss Ruth Kemp, Miss Clara E. Call, Arthur L. Thomas and William R. Tarbox.

The girl pages were the Misses Hazel Schools, Marion Peterson, Doris Peterson, Eva Forest, Doris Carter and Jennie Gibbs.

GRAND FAIR AT UNION HALL

Given by Ladies of First United Presbyterian Church

The fair given by the ladies of the First United Presbyterian church in Union hall last evening was attended by a large number of parishioners who braved unwelcome weather to open the annual event under the most auspicious circumstances.

The hall was decorated with streamers of colored paper which hung from all corners and met in the centre, and the booths were set around the hall in a picturesque setting.

The feature of the evening was the comedy depicting a hurly burly "Scene at the Union Station" at the most busy time of day. All did well in their respective parts.

Those who took part in the playlet were: Christine Stewart, Grace McKinnon, Ena McDonald, Sadie McDonald, Jeannie Russell, Marion Russell, Anna McLeod, Bessie Robertson, Gertrude Barnum, Margaret Gordon, Annie Beaton, Ethel McLeod, Alma Harding, Bertha McLeod, Ida Harding, James Ross, Charles Ross, Aleck Ross, Harry Harding, Alexander McKinnon, Murdock McKinnon, John Russell, Daniel McLeod, John McLeod, George Orr and Irving Fletcher.

The affair was under the direction of Mrs. A. Morrison, who was assisted by a corps of efficient aids. Those in charge of the booths and tables were as follows:

Underwear—Mrs. Neil McLeod, Mrs. Robert McLean.

Dresses—Miss Maier, Mrs. John McKinnon,

Fancy—Mrs. Charles Campbell.

Candy—Golden Circle members, Miss Mary Melrose.

Lemonade—Willing Workers Class, Miss Annie McLeod.

Handkerchiefs— Christian Endeavor Society, Miss Marion Russell.

Fruit Table—Men of the church, Neil McLeod, John McPhee, Robert McLane, James Ross and Alexander Ross.

The supper committee consisted of Mrs. John Russell, Mrs. John McPhee, Mrs. Neil McLellan and Mrs. Barnum.

MILK LICENSES.

Daniel Scouler, Jr., the inspector of milk is getting after the milk dealers and obliging them to comply with the State regulations. Up to this year milk dealers have been given to understand that once a milk license was granted it was for all time Now, however they must get a license every year. Furthermore the man who keeps one cow and sells his surplus milk to his neighbors must have a license and comply with all the rules that a larger dealer has to comply with. Milk has much to do with the health of the community and care must be exercised to see that clean utensils are used and that its purity is safeguarded.

Mrs. Isabel Smith, chairman of the committee in charge of the strawberry festival which is to be given in Memorial church. has planned to have the festival June 7.

STREET REPORTS EXPECTED

These three orders were $50,000 for extension of the water services of the city, $40,000 for the extension of the sewer service of the city and $20,000 for the erection of a standpipe on Great Hill, Houghs Neck. All of these matters are important ones and work in this line has been held up as a result of the treasurer being unable to float the loans.

In addition to the business to be reported by the several committees there is always the usual amount of new business to come in, so the indications are that the adjourned meeting Monday evening will be an important one.

The Social Realm

Never in the history of the Quincy Women's club has there existed a more cordial good will among the members of the executive board than that of the outgoing board this spring. At the annual meeting the board presented the outgoing and incoming presidents with large bunches of roses; last week the outgoing president was given a luncheon at Hotel Thorndike, Boston, and on Wednesday afternoon of this week Mrs. Eben W. Sheppard entertained at an afternoon tea from four until six o'clock at her home on Greenleaf street. Nearly every member of the board accepted their president's hospitality. The delightful informality of the hostess; the singing by her neighbor Miss Helen Barter; the enterchange of reminiscences and social chat, and partaking of ices, cake and a cup of tea, all contributed to the enjoyment. The absence of Mrs. Percy Holman was regretted especially as a little surprise, the presentation of a silver card case, had been planned for her to show the esteem of her co-workers on the board and their regret at her removal from the city. The gift was forwarded to Mrs. Holman and next month the board accepts her hospitality for a day at her camp near Plymouth.

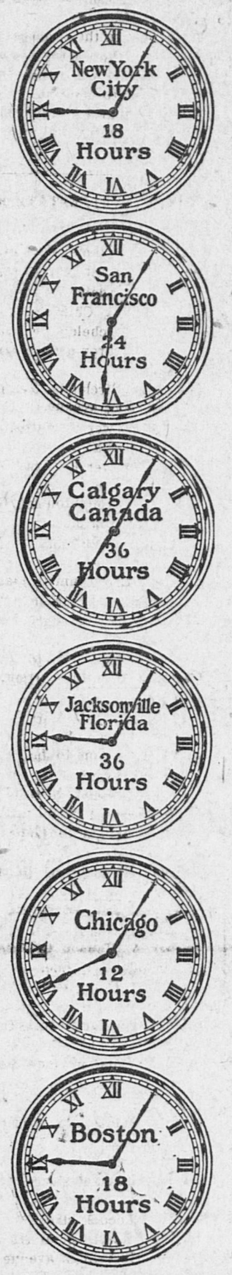
The Wonderful Jeffery Service to Owners



THE Jeffery Company considers that every Cross Country owner is a stockholder in the service organization. His dividends are paid in the increased satisfaction he enjoys through the service such an organization provides.

A stock of duplicate parts, amounting in value to one-half million dollars, is maintained by us at the factory and branches, while all distributing dealers also maintain stocks.

WE have all the original patterns, dies, jigs and tools for every part of every Rambler car ever made. This stock is carried that we may assure to owners quick delivery of parts even of old models.

The price of Jeffery parts is one-half to two-thirds lower than that of parts for other cars.

THE Jeffery service organization not only includes an efficient department at the factory, but it is supplemented by a corps of experts on the road and by nearly five hundred branches and distributing dealers. The branches maintain a complete stock of parts, while the larger distributing dealers have all those for which there would ordinarily be any demand.

The clock faces show the time it would ordinarily require for the owner to get a part after his order reaches one of our distributing points.

A beautiful four-color reproduction of the Cross Country, from an oil painting by R. Philip Brainard, is ready for mailing. See the Cross Country by all means, at any Jeffery branch or dealer's display room, but send for the picture anyway.

The continued case of Carmini Bartolami for violation of the liquor law at Quincy was called and again continued until June 24.

The liquors seized from Frank K. Raymond at Weymouth were forfeited to the Commonwealth.

MAY DANCE.

May party and dance at St. Joseph's hall, West Quincy, Friday evening, under the auspices of the Ave Maria council, Knights of Columbus, drew a large attendance from all parts of the city. Music was by Hamilton's orchestra and dancing was enjoyed until midnight. The severe rain did not interfere with the attendance. The affair was under the charge of Edward Monahan,, assisted by the officers of the council.

BODY TAKEN TO MILFORD.

The body of Angelo Marcolini of Larry place was sent to Milford, Mass., Friday afternoon where the funeral will be held today. Burial will be in St. Mary's cemetery. He was found dead in bed and Medical Examiner John C. Fraser pronounced death due to a cerebral hemorrhage. He has been here for 22 years and was a granite cutter and tool sharpener. Mr. Marcolini was in his 67th year and leaves two sons, Olindo and Joseph, and three daughters, Mrs. Lena Carcorelli, Cecelina and Mariana, all of Quincy. Mrs. Marcolini, his wife, is in Italy.

THE LIFE AFTER DEATH.

Rev. John Whitehead M. A. Th. B. of Cambridge will give the last lecture of his course on "The Life after Death" on Sunday afternoon at 3.30 o'clock, Hancock hall, Quincy. Mr. Whitehead will take up the question of the nature of death, resurrection, and the continuation of life. He will answer the question of the nature of heaven and haw it is attained, Hell; its nature, how avoided and will discuss the question of reincarnation. The public is cordially invited. Seats free.

Rev. Paul Hallin will officiate at the funeral services of Ernest Christianson, of 50 Albertina street on Sunday afternoon.

PEACE SOCIETY.

The members of the Massachusetts Peace Society are quite positive that there should be no more wars. The annual meeting was held Thursday in Boston and the annual dinner in the evening at Filene's hall was largely attended. Samuel B. Capen president of the society made the opening address and introduced Prof. Bliss Perry to preside. The principal speakers were Norman Angell, the London newspaper corespondent and Alfred Noyes, the English poet of peace.

Mr. Angell reasoned to show that wars are illogical or founded on false premises.

Alfred Noyes said: "The United States can do more for abolition of war than any Nation. The future rests with her. No more significant wars will be fought with steel. One is to be waged with ideas, and the United States can set up a statue of liberty such as the world has never seen."

FRANKLIN ASSOCIATES.

The Franklin Associates, a social organization of South Quincy young men and women, held a private dancing party in New Colonial Hall Friday evening. The attendance was large. The matrons were Mrs. J. Higgins, Mrs. J. Ordway and Mrs. J. O.'Connell. Dancing was enjoyed until midnight, Thompson's orchestra furnishing the music. Several feature dances were on the order.

The officers of the club were in charge of the floor, consisting of A. F. Mundie, president; J. O'Brien, vice president; Stanley Nicol, secretary; B. McCarthy, treasurer; V. Erickson, and the following young ladies acted as aides; the Misses Annie Denton, Ruth Dahl, Grace Cairn, Mary Melrose and Mary Summers.

BRIEFS

Rev. Adrian June of Everett will speak at the Memorial church Sunday evening.

The Hospital Aid association meets Thursday afternoon May 29 at 2.30 o'clock with Mrs. Laurance H. Sturtevant of Adams street.

Friends of Miss Ella Horton of East Squantum street are glad to know that she has returned from the Quincy Hospital and is convalescing from the typhoid fever, although it will be some time before she will be able to resume her work as musical instructor.

Herbert Smith. Q. H. S. '16 is still at the Quincy Hospital recovering from a bad fracture of the leg caused by a kicking horse two weeks ago. It will be several weeks before he will be able to return to his home on Madison street.

The master's assistants met with Miss Ruth Taylor of Wollaston, Monday evening. After meeting socially for several months, the master's assistants' club of Quincy was organized and the following officers elected: Miss Laura B. Tolman, president, Miss Ethel Vogler, secretary.

A regular meeting of the Ward Six Patriotic Association will be held at headquarters Wednesday evening, when a large attendance is expected as much business will be transacted. This is the first meeting to be held in the new headquarters which look attractive with the new coat of paint, decorations and furniture.

Squantum residents have tired of waiting for the City of Quincy to improve their streets so they have contributed toward the fixing up of the street by contractors hired by John R. Nelson. A road scraper and a gang of men started work this week in improving Bellevue road. Improvement of other streets will follow.

SALAD SUPPER AT WOLLASTON

Musical Program and a Playlet Presented

The salad supper and entertainment given Friday evening by St. Chrysostom's branch of the Girls' Friendly society was a successful and well attended affair in spite of the weather conditions.

The supper was an excellent onee. The menu included:

Pickles, salmon salad, cucumber and beet salad, potato salad, fruit salad, baked beans and brown bread, cold ham, rolls, chocolate and whipped cream pies and coffee.

Mrs. Walrath Y. Sherman was in charge of the waitresses who were Edith Atkins, A. Maud Briggs, Beatrice Buzzell, Mary Brown, Irene Coleman, Edna Fowler, Zoe Fowler, Mertie Goodspeed, Jean Gorham, Lydia Hennigar, Alice Hennigar, Rita Keith, Helen Ketchum, Addie Nichols, Nettie Parlee, Gladys Parlee, Amy Rhoades, Margaret Sibley and Elsie Whitehead.

The program was very pleasing, the numbers being well executed and thoroughly enjoyed and consisted of piano duets by Misses Croucher and Lavery; solo by Miss Gladys L. Flieger accompanied by Miss Bertha F. Estes; piano solo, Miss Allen. Whistling solos by Mrs. Aylmer N. Hatch; piano solo by Miss Lavery; piano solo by Miss Croucher; Frastes, song by Mrs. Emil A. Retzel, accompanied by L. Howard Emery; piano solo by Miss Lavery; Recitation, selection from Merchant of Venice, Miss Prohaska; Scottish songs by George M. Collins, and a playlet entitled "The Mystery of Miss Smith" was given by Miss Mabel Pratt, Winnifred Pratt and Miss Mildred Bean.

HIGH SCHOOL RECEPTION.

The annual senior-junior reception will be held at Quincy High school, Thursday, May 29, and the students are looking forward to one of the most pleasant times of the school year. The committee is completing the arrangements and a devorative scheme has been designed which will turn the gymnasium into a bower of Fairyland.

Headmaster Ernest L. Collins and the committee conferred on Thursday and it was the sentiment of all not to depart from the custom in vogue at past receptions.

The matrons will be Mrs. Ernest L. Collins, Miss Edith Grant and Miss Frances Whitcomb. The ushers will be members of the classes.

The committee in charge includes Miss Margaret Lennon, Miss Lucy Atwood, Miss Josephine Aulback, Miss Eleanor Jones, Miss Mabel Coughlan, William Thompson, Ralph Prout and Leon White.

POSTPONED.

The monster Grammar school athletic meet which was to have taken place today on the new Merrymount oval has been postponed to May 31, because of adverse weather conditions. An examination of the track this morning by L. F. LaRose of the Y. M. C. A., resulted in the deferred date. The boys have another week in which to train. The meet when first proposed, met with an enthusiastic reception, and this morning the interest seems to have been stimulated through the postponement.

PATRIOTIC SERVICES.

Both Sunday morning and Sunday evening there will be patriotic services at Bethany Congregational church with special music by the choruses of the church. Rev. B. A. Wilmott, pastor will preach at 10.30 A. M. on "The worth of men". At the pleasant Sunday evening service at 7.30 his subject will be "The patriotism of peace." Patriotic hymns will be sung by the congregation.

GRAMMAR SCHOOL LEAGUE

Atherton Hough defeated Quincy at Merrymount park Friday afternoon. The enthusiasm was all on the side of the winners after the second innings. Quincy played two substitute men.

The score:

Batteries—Cullen and Young; Lemon and Bryant.

Postponed games in the Grammar school league will be played next week. The Cranch-Washington game will be played Monday afternoon and the Cranch-Quincy game on Tuesday. Provided Cranch wins they have the championship of the National division. If Washington wins they will make a triple tie with Montclair and Cranch.

MUST CONTROL OUR OWN SOIL

Foreign Nations Should Not Dictate Land Laws of States

SISSON DELIVERS HIS SPEECH

Controversy Over New California Law Thinly Veiled—Pleads For Less Secrecy In Making Treaties—Would Check Hordes of Cheap Alien Labor Coming to America

Washington, May 24.—Representative Sisson of Mississippi, to whom President Wilson made a personal appeal to eliminate from his speech all "war talk and incendiary references to the Japanese situation," took the floor of the house of representatives and defended the right of the United States to protect her own land against the invasion of aliens. Sisson's references to the California alien land law controversy were veiled under a general statement of conditions.

Sisson disclaimed any intention of making a war speech and explained that he merely sought to sustain the right of America to control her own soil. He urged on the house the necessity of curtailing the treaty-making power of the president and senate. He advocated the extension of the right of ratifying treaties to the representatives of the people.

"If any nations," he continued, "should decide that they will dictate how our land laws should be made then we will be unworthy of national existence if we submit to such dictation. Does anyone claim that this is a declaration of war because I announce this truth?

"It is no declaration of war for the United States government to decline to override the rights of a sovereign state at the dictation of a foreign power. If the United States government, with its army and navy and with brute force, which it has superior to any of these states, should take away from the state the right to control its domestic concerns, and deliver the state over to the mercies of a flood of aliens, from any nation, then I maintain the federal government has prostituted its authority.

"Nothing has been further from my mind than to embarrass or tend to render more difficult the peaceful solution of whatever differences, real or imaginary, which may exist between the friendly government of Japan and our own government.

"My judgment is that it only requires patience and cool heads for both countries to arrive at an amicable, fair and just settlement of differences."

Sisson contended that great care should be taken that the treaty making power should not be regarded as supreme and above all other powers. "A treaty," he said, "cannot compel any department of the governmnt to do what the constitution forbids it to do."

Sisson pleaded for less secrecy in the making of treaties. He declared that treaties should be considered in the open session of the senate and the vote of each senator should be made a public record. He declared allowing the importation of great hordes of cheap alien labor would surely lead to great corporation control of land.

"What would become of the farmer if the great corporations of the country should enter the land market and buy all of the best lands of the country and then cultivate them with Mongolian or other cheap alien labor?

"The great land corporation would establish its commissary and compel its horde of aliens to purchase everything which they consume to make enormous profits out of the land and drive the American farmer out of existence."

CIVIL SERVICE BOARD OUT

Resignations Accepted by President and New Men Named

Washington, May 24.—President Wilson has made practically a clean sweep of the United States civil service commission through accepting the resignations of John C. Black of Illinois, president of the commission, and William Washburn of New York, the Republican commissioners. John A. McIlhenny of Louisiana, the other commissioner, will be retained.

Charles M. Galloway of South Carolina will be appointed to succeed Black and George R. Wales of Vermont will succeed Washburn.

JURY FREES VALLESPI

Surrendered Prosperous Position to Face Execution For Murder

Carcassonne, France, May 24.—Miquel Vallespi, who recently returned here from the Argentine republic and gave himself up to the police, declaring that he wished to go to the guillotine for the murder of a woman sixteen years ago, has been given his freedom.

Vallespi related his story in the assize court before a jury, and told of his struggles with his conscience, which finally led to his spiritual conversion and irresistibly impelled him to give up a prosperous position in Argentine to expiate his crime in France to satisfy the law. The jury, without leaving the box, acquitted him, amid applause.

The crime caused a great sensaiton in France at the time, and Vallespi, who was suspected of killing the woman for her money, disappeared. He was adjudged guilty by default, and condemned to be guillotined.

ASKS $10,000 DAMAGES

Roosevelt's Suit Against Michigan Publisher Comes Up Next Week

Marquette, Mich., May 24.—Theodore Roosevelt will attempt to show that George A. Newett, publisher of Iron Ore, a weekly newspaper of the neighboring city of Ishpeming, was in error when he published the statement that "Roosevelt gets drunk, and that not infrequently, and all his intimates know it." The case is set for trial next Monday.

The suit charges libel and the plaintiff names $10,000 as damages. It is estimated that the trial will consume two weeks, although there are a large number of depositions taken by each side to be read and argued over by the lawyers and many witnesses to be heard. Local lawyers estimate that a jury can be obtained in four days owing to the fact that the case has not been "tried in the newspapers."

BULGARIA BEGINS FIGHT FOR SPOILS

Invades Neutral Territory and Begins War Upon Greeks

London, May 24.—Dispatches from Athens say that terrific fighting is going on between Bulgarian and Greek troops in southern Albania. A heavy force of Bulgarians, supported by artillery, crossed the neutral zone established when the armistice with Turkey was signed. The Bulgars refused to withdraw and fighting began.

King Constantine left hurriedly for Salonica yesterday afternoon. It was rumored that he would take the field in person at the head of his army.

OF UNLIMITED SCOPE

New England Transportation Situation to Be Probed by Gregory

Washington, May 24.—Thomas W. Gregory, recently appointed by Attorney General McReynolds a special assistant to investigate the New Haven road under the Sherman anti-trust law, conferred with the attorney general about the inquiry, which will begin at once.

The scope of the investigation will be unlimited, embracing all phases of the New England transportation situation. It will include the New Haven's absorption of the Boston and Maine several years ago.

CAUSED BOY'S DEATH

Trio Who "Snapped the Whip" Found Guilty of Manslaughter

Burlington, Vt., May 24.—Henry Goodrich, who was one of the "whip" when Samuel Rounds, a negro boy, was "snapped" into the Winooski river at Bolton on April 19 and drowned, was found guilty of manslaughter.

Henry McCabe and James Sweeney, railroad section hands, who were also of the "whip," have pleaded guilty to a similar charge.

The boy had been accused of stealing and was an unwilling participant in a game of "snap the whip" intended to make him confess.

May Survive Bichloride Dose

Sioux City, Ia., May 24.—Attending physicians now believe that Robert Palmer, cattle salesman and former football star in Iowa, who took bichloride of mercury, with suicidal intent, Wednesday evening, will live. Indications for recovery are very favorable.

Not a Good Place to Live In Paris, May 24.—Dr. Bertillon says Paris is too small or too many people try to live there, his estimate being that 1,200,555 of them live under unhygienic conditions.

Give Your Trade Where You Can Place Your Confidence

During our forty years of business in this city we have built up a clientage by the most upright methods and straightforward dealing with our customers; and thus to deserve the confidence of those who patronize us.

The success which has been our portion demonstrates that we have done this.

In a large measure we owe much to the fact that we have never been satisfied with "good enough" merchandise; but have always tried to BETTER the quality of our goods and the character of our service.

Now for Memorial Day.

MEN WEARING LAST YEAR'S STRAW HATS

should reflect that these hats are apt to look unpresentable now. So if you have to buy a straw hat this year, as you probably will, why not get it this week and have a spick and span new hat of the latest style to wear for Memorial Day and the week-end? Preferably a Lamson & Hubbard, made with a "cushioned-for-comfort" sweat band.

$1 to $3

EVERY SHIRT IS A BEAUTY FAULTLESS IN MAKE

perfect in fit. The man who buys them now is saving himself a lot of trouble in choice and a lot of expense for the Summer season. Made of the finest mercerized woven madras, in dozens of pretty stripes, in blue, black and lavender. The shirts are fitted with the finest of pearl buttons, with soft collar and French turnover cuffs, or without collar if you wish. High-class shirts, every one.

$1 to $1.50

Outing Trousers for the Holiday

Many a man can make a "half-old" coat and vest do much more service if he had a pair of pants to "patch out" with.

Men's Outing Trousers, made of fine materials, with and without cuffs, moderately priced at $2.50 to $4.50.

You Won't Enjoy Memorial Day, Unless Your Feet Are Comfortable

RALSTON SHOES FOR MEN.

SOLID comfort shoes! That's one of the Secrets of Ralston popularity. But in addition to ease and restfulness the Ralston has character plus.

Authority styles! There's the story of Ralston pre-eminence in a nutshell. You want such shoes—the kind that are all that you can wish for in wearability and style and at the same time footwear that bespeaks elegance and refinement. Ralston superiority is the result of the superior Ralston method of making on foot-moulded lasts. Try on a pair and the Ralston will speak for itself. "Tailored-to-measure effect" is the way one regular wearer speaks of them. Find out for yourself.

A BOSTON GIRL'S BUDGET.

Nuzhat-Fi-Bilad-El-Ajam Is Eagerly Awaited by Hubbites—a Great Persian Pageant of That Name is Undertaken by Back Bay Folk in Aid of a Favorite Charity—The Wonderful Larz Anderson Place Will Be Opened to the Public—Mayor Fitzgerald's Parrot, Swearing in Four Languages, Proves to be Mythical—Art for Children by Children is Shown at the Museum of Fine Arts.

Art for children, chosen by children, has been placed on exhibition at the Boston Museum of Fine Arts. It represents an attempt which will be made during the coming summer to make the Museum as interesting as possible to all sorts and conditions of New England children. Adults, who have the capacity for artistic enjoyment always find plenty of material for their entertainment in the long corridors of the building on Huntington Avenue. The children go frequently, often in charge of their teachers. It is something new, however, to install a special children's exhibition. The things now shown for such a purpose include many grotesque and fascinating objects from the Chinese and Japanese collections. These have a childlikeness that makes them peculiarly appropriate for such a display. The print collection represents the enthusiastic belief of the newly chosen head of the print department, Fitzroy Carrington, that black and white reproductions, of good quality, appeal very strongly to children. In the exhibition are also many beautiful colored reproductions supplied by leading publishers. Such a wealth of interesting material has been gathered that the average small boy will find the museum competing with the movies.

Boston's City Hall has escaped a terrible corrupting influence. A parrot proficient at swearing in four languages was reported to have been acquired by Mayor Fitzgerald, who has been at Panama, and to be on its way to adorn the mayoral chamber on School street. The idea that such language should be heard at the seat of city government in Beantown—heard by aldermen and departmental heads and even innocent little stenographers flitting through the corridors—was too much for many uplifters and there was preparing a great meeting of protest against the parrot's profanity. Invitations were being sent out to the Watch and Ward Society, the Anti-Profanity League and W. C. T. U. Everybody expected one of those really Bostonese tempests in a teapot. Then, however, back came the mayor sans birds, sans swearing and sans knowledge of the source of the misinformation. As usual a New York newspaper writer had faked the information. There never was such a parrot.

The crime of being idle will be punished by banishment to resorts frequented by fashionable people if a speaker at the Hub has his way. A programme of pushing the unproductive is proposed by Martin Kchermerhorn who has been lecturing before the local metaphysicians. This radical claims not to belong to the I-Wont-Works. He preaches a "socialism of useful work as opposed to parasite idleness." His proposition, humorously expressed, is that any able bodied person between the ages of 20 and 70 who shall refuse by habitual industry to contribute to the common welfare shall "forfeit the rights of citizenship and shall be penalized either as a common vagrant" or by being banished to one of the places inhabited by the idle rich. He does not say whether the criminal procrastinator shall be allowed to choose which form of punishment to undergo.

A Persian pageant on the Larz Anderson estate, Brookline, in the afternoon of May 27 has aroused endless interest in Boston and the suburbs. Of this wonderful place, with its Italian gardens, the public seldom gets glimpses, so that a long procession of street cars and automobiles will take spectators out to Brookline on the Tuesday afternoon generously allowed by Mr. and Mrs. Anderson for this affair. The pageant is in the interest of a very worthy charity the Massachusetts Babies' Hospital, one that has a strong hold on the affections of thousands of people throughout the Bay State. The piece is a one act pantomime written by that master of pageants, Joseph Lindon Smith, who has travelled extensively in the Orient and who knows the life and customs of eastern countries. Its title is Nuzhat-Fi-Bilad-El-Ajam, which is said to mean "a diversion in Persia." It deals with the adventures of a Persion prince who takes his harem forth on his 21st birthday for a rural celebration. The group settles on rugs and carpets in a natural amphitheatre of the beautiful Anderson estate. The lawn party thus improvised entertains many delegations of congratulating friends, amongst others being the prince's father who brings in as a gift a squadron of magnificent stallions, (from the stables of Mr. Peter B. Bradley of Hingham,) of a Chinese ambassador who has come overland with camels across the desert of Gobi, and the Shah of Persia himself. The afternoon is enlivened with the antics of an escaped prisoner who is pardoned early in the performance and who thereafter makes a merry buffoon of himself. Society debutantes, club women, Conservatory girls and Harvard students mingle in the delegations and dances. There is music, tea served on the lawns, parking of endless automobiles on the roadways and all told such a medley that one wonders it is a Persian pageant or a society circus.

Ethel Angier.

RECITAL.

The piano and voice pupils of Miss Marguerite Louise Holbrook, assisted by Miss Laura Marion Belden of Somerville, gave a most sucessful recital in Odd Fellows Hall, Wollaston, on Thursday evening. They played with ease, expression and style. Some of the youngest among the performers showed considerable finish. The playing of Francis McCabe was greatly appreciated. Others who deserve mention are Helen Arthur, who played without her notes, and Gertrude Whalen. Miss Holbrook sang the "Caro of Nome," Rigoletto in the Italian. Her voice was clear and true and the pronunciation good. Her piano selection Quartet Paraphrase Rigolleto was very brilliant and was met by a burst of applause.

Miss Irma Douglass of Waltham, formerly of Wollaston, rendered her songs in a most natural and pleasing manner greatly appreciated by the audience. Miss Belden's readings were new and bright. Miss Belden is a pleasant entertainer. Out of a class of forty, fifteen pupils took part.

There is more Catarrh in this section of the country than all other diseases put together, and until the last few years was supposed to be incurable. For a great many years doctors pronounced it a local disease and prescribed local remedies, and by constantly failing to cure local treatment, pronounced it incurable. Science has proven catarrh to be a constitutional disease and therefore requires constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, Ohio, is the only constitutional cure on the market. It is taken internally in doses from 10 drops to a teaspoonful. It acts directly on the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. They offer one hundred dollars for any case it fails to cure. Send for circulars and testimonials.

At a Probate Court holden at Dedham, in and for said County of Norfolk on the twenty-first day of May in the year of our Lord one thousand nine hundred and thirteen.

On the petition of Lillian Cline Moulton of Quincy in said County, praying that her name may be changed to that of Elsie Cline Moulton, public notice having been given, according to the order of Court, that all persons might appear and show cause, if any they had, why the same should not be granted, and it appearing that the reason given therefor is sufficient, and consistent with the public interest, and being satisfactory to the Court, and no objection being made.

It is decreed that her name be changed as prayed for, to that of Elsie Cline Moulton, which name she shall hereafter bear, and which shall be her legal name, and that she give public notice of said change by publishing this decree once in each week for three successive weeks, in the Quincy Daily Ledger, a newspaper published in said Quincy, and make return to this Court under oath that such notice has been given.

POSTPONED TO MAY 31

Too Rainy Today for the Grammar School Meet

Owing to the stormy weather the bird walk to have been taken this week under the leadership of Mrs. Pfaffmann was postponed. If pleasant Monday afternoon there will be a bird walk in Braintree and any one wishing to go will be welcome and should be in City square in time to take the 2.30 P. M. Brockton car for Braintree.

BRAINTREE

Will Minchin of Myrtle street observed his twenty-first birthday Monday by visiting his mother in Dorchester.

Parents' afternoon at the Penniman school last Monday was very much enjoyed by a large number who responded to invitations to be present.

Rev. Frederick R. Griffin of Montreal, Canada, formerly pastor of All Souls' church, Braintree, has been in Boston the past week attending the annual May meetings of the Unitarians.

Mrs. Ann Davis of Sherbrooke avenue is much improved since her severe operation at the Charlesgate hospital Cambridge and is able to work in her garden and perform some household tasks.

Mr. and Mrs. Harry A. Cone and Miss Esther Cone of Sherbrooke avenue left Thursday for Boothbay Harbor, Maine, where they will remain for two weeks preparing their summer home for occupancy.

Rev. and Mrs. C. F. Hill Crathern of Worcester were guests Thursday of Mr. B. F. Dyer and family of Washington street.

The many interested friends of Mrs. Isaline Coy are glad to know that she is slowly recovering from her severe illness and is able to get out of doors.

Friends of Mrs. Annie Brett of Summer street are glad to learn she is enjoying her stay at Pepperell and is regaining health and strength rapidly.

Mr. and Mrs. James D. Leatherbee and family are making preparations to close their house on Taylor street to go to their summer home at Sea View. They plan to depart the latter part of next week.

DRUNKS AND MISDEMEANORS

Sureties Not Generally Required Under the New Law

Several new laws of interest to defendants in courts for drunkenness and misdemeanors have recently been passed by the legislature and are now in force. The new law in relation to drunkenness is that if a man is fined a sum not exceeding $15, and he has not the amount, he can not be committed for non payment except under certain conditions. That is if a man is fined any amount up to $15 and can not pay the court must suspend his sentence on probation. There is a provision however which provides if the court has reason to believe he will be defaulted for non payment or should be confined it may order the man committed but the mittimus committing the prisoner must contain a statement of facts, as to why he was committed.

The method in vogue has been when the court wanted to send a man up for a few days it would impose a fine of $15 under the belief perhaps that the man could not pay and would have to be committed. Now in such case a suspention of the sentence, to give the party time to pay his fine must be ordered.

Another recent law is relative to misdemeanors. Under the old law a man found guilty of a misdemeanor who desires to appeal his case to the higher court would be ordered to recognize with sureties for his appearance to protect his appeal. Under the new law however in such cases the court must release the man on his personal recognizance.

This law would apply more directly to such parties as automobile operators who are found guilty in the lower court and take an appeal. Usually they would be required to make a deposit of $50 or more or furnish two sureties. Now however in such a case the party is simply held on his personal recognizance for the higher court.

This law has the appearance of being passed especially to help out automobiles, although as a rule a man who was able to maintain an expensive automobile would have no difficulty in obtaining sureties or in making the deposit of the sum required. Furthermore these parties are usually persons of some responsibility who reside in the commonwealth and have families and would not default.

On the other hand if the party happened to be a poor man and one with no family ties the chances are that if released on his own surety he might more readily default.

FEW ANXIOUS FOR THE JOB

Limited Time to Print the Assessors Book

According to the Mayor, no one seems to be particularly anxious to figure on the printing of the list of Assessors' valuations. The job is a big one, and who ever gets the contract will have to hustle to get it done in the time given. The trouble seems to be that some printers have been figuring lower than the work can actually be done, on some of the big jobs, such as City Repor, Assessors' poll lists, etc., and a printer who means to do a first class job cannot afford to take the work at the price which the city has been paying. The Mayor said this morning that he hoped all of the local printers would figure on the job that he might have more than one bid to consider.

The Assessors have their copy all ready for the printer to start work on, for the board has had several clerks at work upon it for several weeks.

There is some talk of selling the valuation books in order that they may bring a revenue to the city, although it is possible they may be for free distribution.

BRIEFS

Rose, the daughter of Angelo Bartolomeo of Water street, who was severely bitten by a bull dog in her father's yard, Thursday, is doing well and it is expected that she will completely recover.

Mrs. T. Donovan of Lewiston, Me., who is now the guest of her father at Dorchester, is to be the guest next week of her brother and his wife, Mr. and Mrs. Wilbert Doyle of Berkley terrace.

Quite a few members of Quincy lodge of Elks are planning to attend the session of the grand lodge to be held the coming summer in Rochester N. Y.

Contractor Peter J. Williams stated this morning that the Quincy Mutual Fire Insurance building would start on its journey across Coddington street bright and early Monday morning.

Ben Butler is the only Quincy candidate entered in the Globe contest and today he is at the top.

The soccer teams of the Fore River and the United Shoe company meet today on the South Boston grounds.

A regular meeting of the St. Margaret Guild was held at Christ church last evening. Because of weather conditions the talk which was to have been given by Miss Clara Thompson of the Quincy High school was postponed to Thursday evening. Mrs. Richard T. Armstrong gave a short talk ,and current events were discussed. The nomination of officers will take place Thursday evening.

The funeral of Mrs. May Pierce, who died at Fremont, N. H., was held from the home of her son, Curtis Pierce, Putnam street, Friday afternoon. Services were conducted by Rev. Mr. Neeley of Cambridge. Mrs. Frank J. Moore sang "Beautiful Isle of Somewhere" and "Nearer My God to Thee." Burial was in Mt. Wollaston cemetery.

The June number of the Century magazine is of local interest as it contains a very readable article on John Quincy Adams in Russia with extracts from this correspondence relating to the War of 1812 Napoleon's retreat from Moscow, and conversations with Madame De Stael; the introduction and notes being by Charles Francis Adams of Lincoln, formerly of Presidents hill.

A Persistent Purpose to Have a Better Store

Has been the aim of R. E. Foy & Co.

How well we have succeeded can be seen in the Adams Market It is a strikingly clean, nicely arranged store, with much underglass and refrigeration. Ceaseless care and our insistence upon cleanliness is making this store talked about as the "Model Store" of Quincy. Careful selection—always buying the best, rejecting all else has gained for this store the sobriquet—"the Store of Sterling Quality."

There's as much difference between markets as there is between people. Some are progressive, alive, up-to-date. Others are always behindhand, "asleep at the switch." To offer you no better goods, no better service than to be had elsewhere would not entitle the Adams Market to your preference. It is a bigger assortment, better values, satisfying service that is building up this business more rapidly than any other store in Quincy. We have just what you want at the price you want to pay. Isn't that better than going to some stores and being sold something you don't exactly like because it is all they had?

NEW CITY DUMP.

The Board of Health hope to get the new public dump in the rear of the city stables ready for use early next week. When the new dump is ready for use, the dumping of rubbish on the old dump on Valley street will be prohibited. The order authorizing the Mayor to purchase the land passed the City Council at the first meeting in May and was promptly signed by the Mayor. The delay now is in passing the deeds and it is hoped that this may be cleaned up early next week.

Chairman Teasdale said this morning that the Board were constantly receiving inquiries as to when the new dump would be ready and when the old dump would be abandoned but he is unable to tell at the present time. As soon as possible the occupancy of the new dump will be announced by an advertisement.

MEMORIAL SUNDAY OF THE GRAND ARMY

Present Opportunity and Need--the Call for More Exalted Enlightened Loyalty

Heroism Should Be Characteristic in Times of Peace

Eminently fitting was it that the Grand Army, and kindred organizations should attend Memorial Sunday exercises Sunday morning at the First Church, a church so rich in history, and where some of the country's early patriotis were wont to worship.

The day was a beautiful one, coming after a few days of cold and damp weather and the services were very largely attended. The body of the edifice was reserved for the Grand Army, the Sons of Veterans, United Spanish War Veterans, and the ladies of the auxiliary organizations.

The ladies organizations arrived at the church somewhat earlier than the Grand Army and drew up in two lines near the centre entrance through which the "Boys in Blue" marched, carrying aloft the flag for which they had sacrificed so much. Entering the church the colors of the several bodies were deposited near the pulpit adding to the decorations which were already in place

These included a large American flag which encircled the pulpit while on the two posts on either side of the desk were other flags. The only floral decorations were white carnations, large bouquets of which were placed on the table in front of the desk and on the two posts mentioned above.

The service was an inspiring one, and the most able address by Rev. Adelbert Lathrop Hudson, pastor of the church, received the closest attention of his hearers. Two anthems were rendered by the quartette choir during the exercises, "O how aimiable are Thy dwellings" and "The souls of the righteous."

The scripture lesson was from the 21 and 22 chapters of the book of Acts and the text from the 22d chapter 28th verse of the book of Acts, "And the chief captain answered, With a great sum I obtained this freedom. And Paul said, But I was free born."

The subject of Dr. Hudson's sermon was "The price of liberty," based on that familiar incident in which St. Paul claimed immunity from being scourged without a trial, on the ground that he was a free born Roman citizen, to which the Roman officer replied: "With a great sum obtained I this freedom."

Mr. Hudson said that liberty always has to be purchased at a great price and each generation has to pay the price for itself, if it wishes to retain its liberties undiminished.

The liberties of New England were bought by our Puritan and Pilgrim forefathers at the expense of privation, suffering and death. But it was none the less necessary for our Revolutionary forbears to pay their toll of suffering.

And in less than a century from the battles of Lexington and Concord, the bright new shield of liberty, thus nobly gained, had become so tarnished by the foul crime of human slavery that a still more tremendous price had to be paid.

You, the surviving remnant of that generation who fought to save the Union in the Civil war, have gathered here in memory of those brave comrades who lie in Southern graves, or nearer by where loving friends may scatter flowers over their honored dust.

Each year the circle narrows, but until the last campfire in all the land has been extinguished, a grateful nation will not forget your heroic sacrifice on Southern battlefields.

And yet it would be a fatal blunder for those of the present generation to flatter themselves that nothing remains for them to do save to enjoy the benefits of the sacrifices you have made.

Equally fatal would it be to assume that the liberties of the nation can be preserved by the expenditure of vast sums of money for military defence or commercial supremacy. The price of liberty can never be paid in terms of money.

If the Roman centurion paid a great sum for the privilege of becoming a Roman citizen, as he told St. Paul he

For Memorial Day Wear

True heroism is not sectional or local; it is a natural possession; an international asset. It doesn't involve success or failure; sometimes there's more heroism in losing than in winning.

There's not much that's heroic about the men's furnishing business; it's a matter-of-fact, hum-drum sort of a proposition. But it is possible to do business in a spirit of service; to see that the man who pays his money for merchandise shall get all that's possible to give in value. That's the way I'm trying to do business.

WISHES OF DR. WOODWARD

How an Interested Parent Interpretes His Will

Editor Daily Ledger:—

You have published recently various matter relative to the Woodward Institute and its curriculum for the coming year, in these articles and letters the will of Doctor Woodward has been mentioned.

I think few if any of us would find it possible to quote the will correctly and it seems to me to be opportune that it should be printed in your columns at this time that those interested may read it.

It was my good fortune to be associated with patients and friends of Dr. Woodward who were sufficiently in touch with him to know the spirit as well as the letter of his will, which seems clear and comprehensive and hardly susceptible of more than one interpretation.

Dr. Woodward clearly states that "the selection of instructors and studies to be pursued and all internal regulations," are "to be and to remain under the direction of the following gentlemen forever, viz:—The several ordained and settled ministers of the town, or city, as may be, and all settled ministers to be added to the committee from time to time as they become residents of Quincy."

There seems to be no chance for reading between the lines or misconstruction of so straight forward a statements as the above, and to those who knew why the Woodward fund was left for a school, remains the conviction that it was not the intention of the donor that it should become a part of the public school system or a supplementary school, but should be what was termed in Dr. Woodward's day, a "finishing school" for girls, which should graduate them into the world fitted to take up their life under any circumstance which might arrive and to that end they should be taught—"the ornamental, as well as useful, branches of learning, which are taught in any other similar institute in the state."

To my mind the phrase "similar institute" means institutes such as Lassell, Abbott Academy, Wheaton Seminary before it became a college or Bradford Academy. All of which make it possible today for a girl to continue her education at college, but equally well fits her to become an intelligent citizen and home maker without further attendance at any educational institution.

May I ask that Dr. Woodward's will be printed in the Quincy Daily Ledger.

BLAZE AT WEST QUINCY

Fruit Store on Copeland Street Damaged About $150.

The alarm from box 43 at 2.09 this morning was for a fire in a tonic and fruit store at 141 Copeland street, owned by Mr. LeClair and occupied by Mrs. Tresia Lessiga. The fire is thought to have started from a lamp which had been left burning in the store. The fire was discovered by the officer on the beat who sent in the alarm. The interior of the store was quite badly smoked but the damage by fire and smoke will not exceed $150.

ENGAGEMENT ANNOUNCED

At Reception Given by Mrs. George H. Brown and Miss Brown

There was a continuous stream of guests at the Brown home on Elm street Saturday afternoon in response to at-home cards sent out by Mrs. George Hollister Brown and her elder daughter Miss Madeline Brown. The affair was a coming out party for Miss Brown, but besides being a debutante the announcement of her engagement to Paul Zerrahn, son of Mr. and Mrs. Otto G. Zerrahn of Milton, was added cause for congratulations. Mr. Zerrahn was present and received with his fiancee and her mother, the group standing in front of a bank of flowers made up of bouquets received by the young debutante. Miss Brown was in white with garniture of pink rosebuds and carried a large bouquet of lilies of the valley, a gift from her fiance.

From three until six o'clock there was a crush many of the wide circle of friends of Mr. and Mrs. Brown calling during those hours to extend congratulations. In the dining room at a table decorated with American Beauty roses and red shaded candelabra the tea urns were presided over by Mrs. Otto G. Zerrahn, Mrs. Russell A. Sears, Mrs. C. Theodore Hardwick and Mrs. Sydney Hardwick.

In the evening the festivities were further continued, a card party being given, which was attended by forty of the young friends of Miss Brown.

Miss Lucretia Perry of Pennsylvania and Miss Eleanor Moorehouse of Springfield have been house guests of Miss Brown for a few days coming on to participate in the happy occasion.

VERDICT WILL STAND.

The supreme court has overruled the exceptions filed by P. W. Mannix, against the verdict for $3,000 awarded to Hugh Golden of West Quincy , for injuries sustained while working at the Mannix quarry. The verdict was awarded last November. The accident occurred in December, 1909. Charles J. McGilvray was the plaintiff's attorney.

Rumor That Council Committee Want Automobile Pump

Chief Litchfield was among those at Chelsea Saturday to witness the try out of the new automobile pump. These pieces of apparatus it is reported cost about $10,000 and it has been suggested that Quincy should sell its steamer, located at the central station, and purchase one of these pumps. Rumor has it that the special committee now investigating the department will so recommend.

ONLY A WAX HEAD.

What were the sad sea waves saying when they cast a waxen head on the Wollaston shore Sunday, in plain sight of people on the boulevard who notified the police station, who in turn notified the Metropolitan police headquarters and they telephoned the news to John Hall, Quincy, who sent men down to take it in charge.

When the message was received no one at the undertaking rooms supposed that a practical joker had perpetrated a cruel hoax on the unsuspecting public. When the undertakers reached the spot, however, they made the discovery.

The head with one eye missing, which was probably wrenched from its sockets by a cruel fish, is now in the morgue. It is not awaiting identification, neither is anyone expected to claim it, for it is wax.

END OF SHIPYARD STRIKE.

The chippers and caulkers of the Fore River yard resumed work this morning after a four day suspension. A conference between a committee representing the men and the officials of the company arrived at a satisfactory adjustment Saturday afternoon. The men directly effected numbered 25. The terms of the adjustment have not been made public.

BREAK AT WEST QUINCY

Frank Grenquest Arrested and Held for Grand Jury

Frank Grenquest, aged 21 years, a bolter up at the Fore River, was arrested by Officers Duane and Holloran at 1.50 Sunday morning in the bakery of Alex Philips on Copeland street. Entrance was had by smashing one of the large show windows. Dr. John H. Ash who resides nearly opposite had his slumbers arroused by the sound of breaking glass. Getting up and looking out of the window he saw a man inside of the bakery lighting matches. He immediately telephoned the police station and the wagon with Officer Holloran was sent up. On the way to the bakery Officer Duane was picked up.

When the officers arrived they saw a man inside of the bakery behind the counter in a kneeling position. The front window was completely smashed. The officers crawled in through the window and approached the fellow who seemed to be trying to hide. As they approached he held up one hand and pointed it at Officer Holloran, who thought at first the fellow was going to shoot. He had no gun however and was immediately placed under arrest and taken to the police station and locked up.

Officer Duane says that he met the fellow on the street three fourths of an hour before under the influence of liquor and told him to go home.

In court Grenquest was held in $500 for the grand jury. It also appeared that he was out on a suspended sentence of two months in the house of correction for drunkenness. The suspension would have expired Tuesday when the case would have been placed on file. When this new case came up, however, the suspension of the old sentence was revoked and he was ordered to be committed on the charge of drunkenness.

Frank Flynn, who has played ball here is captain of the Frederickton team of the New Brunswick-Maine league. They won their opening game at Bangor last week. George Fallon of Quincy Point has recently joined the squad.

FLOWERS ON THE WATER

Memorial Service for the Soldier Sailor Dead

The patriotic organization of Weymouth met Sunday afternoon, near the Quincy Point bridge for their annual memorial service to the soldier sailor dead. It was held at 4.30 just after the tide began to ebb, and as the flowers were strewn upon the water they were carried out to sea.

The program was arranged by Corps 102, W. R. C. under the direction of Emma Raymond, patriotic instructor and included:—

Singing, "Nearer My God to Thee."

Scripture reading by Eliza Ferris, chaplain of Corps 102.

Singing, "Jesus Lover of My Soul."

An original poem written by Jennie Stoddard was read by Stella Richards.

Offering of Flowers by members of Corps 102, W. R. C.

Address by Leonard Cain, patriotic instructor of Post 58, G. A. R., telling why service was held.

Members of the Post then strew flowers upon the water.

Service by the Daughters of Veterans, which included song by Marion Bowker and strewing of flowers.

Service by Auxiliary, including reading by Maria Gardner and strewing of flowers.

Service of Corps 36 Sons of Veterans including address by Commander Smith and strewing of flowers.

Singing of "America."

Prayer by Chaplain of Post 58.

DECORATING FOR THE WEDDING.

From now until July 1st is the time of year most favored by all brides. It is a season when flower decorations are least expensive for city dwellers, and the high tide of beauty wherever wild flowers are within reach.

All weddings look alike to the newspaper reporter. The high enthusiasm of his female relatives for the latest hymeneal function, as the very prettiest yet, he does not wholly comprehend. As brides and bridesmaids are always pretty, that being an essential element in their business, it would seem that even a setting of cabbage leaves would still voke applause.

The question of a proper decoration of a home or church is not settled as simply as of yore. You can't leave it to your next friend the day before, and expect it to get past the critics of society. The professional decorator has for some years had his constantly enlarging field. He has brought his exotic plants and flowers, that suggest green-houses and florists shops rather than the tender sweetness of Mother Earth.

Still some return to nature in weddings is observable. Wealthy people who have both town and country homes are apt to forsake the former for a marriage, and seek wild flower adornments in some more secluded resort.

The discriminating florist of today has his eye on a wide range of beauty. His servants traverse many a mountain and plain in search of blooms that never knew the trowel or the flower pot. Some wild tomboy blossom of the hills may have a charm and romance that does not attach to the most costly orchids.

All this and far more is known to the bride, for whom the principles of decoration are a matter of clearly defined conviction, carefully debated among intimates. For her a wedding scheme is a work of classic architecture, in which colors must be massed in unity, harmony, and contrast that is too subtile for the eye of the reporter fully to appreciate.

This is the last week for high priced gas for according to the announcement of the Citizens Gas Light Co., the price per 1,000 cubic feet after June 1, will be $1.20. It has been the policy of the company ever since it took possession of the old plant and commenced to rebuild it to reduce the price just as fast as conditions warranted. This is the fourth reduction made by the company since it took possession, and while it is not as low as some cities in the Boston district, it is considerably lower that $2.50 per thousand, which was the price paid to the old company.

The citizens are to be congratulated upon having a gas company which is doing so much to furnish the city not only with a good quality of gas but plenty of it. Extensions of its mains are being constantly made so that today there are but few sections of the city that is not supplied.

Now that the price has gone down it will be possible to keep lights burning longer on Sunday evenings in the parlor, by the young ladies in entertaining callers, without fear of father kicking because the wheels of the gas meter go around too fast. The overworked house wife will also be able to use her gas stove or gas iron a little longer than in the past for the same amount of money.

People who see the Filipino ball team now touring this country, can learn if the American schools over there are doing good work.

About time to cut down the butchers' and grocers' bills for home comforts, to pay for two weeks' style at a summer resort.

The Mexican government is trying to borrow money at 6 per cent, but can the interest be collected without any more deadly weapons than coupon clippers?

Some are rich beyond the dreams of avarice, while others own umbrella factories and rubber boot mills.

FOR A MERE WHIM

That Is What People Thought, but the Girl Had Reasons for Her Actions.

By MARIAN COOK.

"That's funny! Dick Steffield is over there having dinner at that table in the alcove. He doesn't seem to look our way. I never knew him to be so blind when you were around."

"I suppose, since you are my guardian, that you will have to know that I broke my engagement with Dick last night. That was why I was able to accept your invitation to dinner at such short notice. I was to have gone to the opera afterward."

"You gave up that ring for a mere whim? Really, I'm surprised!"

"There is something besides the ring in an engagement, Mr. Bob."

"Granted, but it was a pretty ring, now wasn't it?"

"Yes, but you see I was going to have to marry Dick!"

"Would that have been such a calamity? Dick is as good looking as the average man in this restaurant, he has lots of money, good manners and the usual assets of a popular society man. What is it about him that you don' like. Do you mind telling me?"

"No, I always tell you everything—that is, nearly everything." She looked across the table at the strong handsome face of the lawyer who was eating his dinner with the eager pleasure of a healthy, hungry man. She leaned a little toward him. "I wouldn't let Dick kiss me so he quarreled."

"He quarreled? I thought it took two to quarrel."

"Not when one of them is Dick."

"Well, such a proceeding would have been entirely conventional. Dick naturally thought that he was merely asserting his manly rights."

"But I have always felt that I wouldn't marry him and I didn't want to have any bitter memories."

A quiet triumphant light gleamed suddenly in the shrewd gray eyes of the lawyer.

"I am glad, Eleanor," he said, "that you are keeping the flower of your youth white for the right man, whenever he comes. Why did you ever enter into an engagement with Dick?"

"I am sorry that you asked me that. I don't like to appear mean and small in your eyes but I was flattered and pleased with Dick's generous wooing and I just allowed myself to be engaged to show another man that I was desirable in somebody's eyes at least and," concluded Eleanor with a rueful little laugh, "I had all my trouble for nothing for the other man didn't even notice."

"That sounds as if you had fallen in love, Eleanor."

"Yes, it sounds that way," she answered enigmatically.

"Suppose you let me take you to the opera tonight! I am not so old that I have forgotten the gallantry due a pretty woman."

"Go home with me and let's talk instead if you are really willing to give me one of your valuable evenings!"

"I am glad that you are not going to marry Dick," said Mr. Bob as they crossed the snowy pavement to his car. "I thought you loved him and that was the only reason I did not try to interfere. Are you sure, perfectly sure, that you don't love Dick now?"

"Yes," Eleanor replied quickly. "Dick has no ability and if he didn't have money, he couldn't make any. I always measure men by you since father died. I remember he said to me one day, 'Daughter, never marry a man who can't make a living. If he has money, he may lose it.' To tell you the truth, Mr. Bob, Dick has been getting on my nerves. He was always somewhere around."

"That objection would only have held until you were married," laughed the lawyer.

"I can't believe that you are cynical at heart. You say things like that because you want to cover up your real thoughts and sentiment from a too curious world."

"Why?"

"I don't know. Nice womanly reason to back up my assertion, isn't it?"

They had reached the girl's home and after chatting with her mother for a while, they sat down to warm comfortably before a big open fire in the library. Mr. Bob, as Eleanor called Robert Ogden, had been her father's partner in the law firm and it had been at the older main's request that he was made Eleanor's guardian.

"Why," he asked, watching Eleanor narrowly, "why do you think that I am not cynical at heart?"

"Because you have shielded both mother and me from every bit of care since father died."

"That was my duty. Your father helped establish me in my profession when I was a young man."

"Many men forget either to feel or to show gratitude. I know of poor sick little children that you have taken to the hospital and cared for at your expense. No man to whom a child appeals is really cynical."

"That," he said, "is charity and charity in a cynic is not an impossible or unknown characteristic.'

"I am always worsted in an argument with you but I am not always convinced," laughed Eleanor. Then seriously, "I have often imagined that you loved somebody who died or went away from you."

"You needn't put it in the past tense for the only woman I ever loved, I still love. I can't tell her about it so after all, I am willing to admit that you win this case for you are right when you declare that I try to appear cynical to cover up my real sentiment."

"Is—is she married?" asked Eleanor in a small weak voice.

"No."

"We ought to be able to comfort each other since we both are unfortunately in love. Let's exchange stories, will you, honestly?"

The lawyer looked at the pretty pensive face in the fire-light. He reached in his pocket for a cigar and Eleanor put matches and a tray conveniently near.

"Thank you," he said. "An old bachelor—"

"You're not very old," interrupted the girl.

"Well, you can't get around the fact that I am a bachelor and as I started to say, a bachelor does appreciate the attention of a pretty young woman."

The cool impersonal voice sent a wave of resentment over Eleanor.

"You are trying to cover up something now."

"You are right again. I was just thinking that it wouldn't be wise to tell you my story."

"Are you afraid that I—that I will tell?"

"Oh no, but it might make you unhappy."

"It couldn't make me any unhappier than I am now. You deserve everything good that life can give and it seems so cruel that you should be denied anything. A poet has said, 'man's love is of man's life a thing apart,' but it wouldn't be to a man like you, Mr. Bob."

"You are forgetting your own hurt in sympathy for me. That is how a woman's instinctive mother feeling to comfort helps her bear a personal sorrow better than a man can under the same circumstances. There is not a time when I can force myself to forget."

"Does the woman love you?"

"No, that is why I have never had the courage to ask her to marry me."

"You have never told her that you love her?"

"No, never."

"Why, maybe she loves you, Mr. Bob. A woman doesn't carry her heart on her sleeve you know."

"I knew this woman when she was a little girl," said the man reminiscently. "I watched her grow to womanhood with many men to love and court her. There was no place for me. She regarded me as a kind good natured old fellow in whom she could confide. That was all. Some day I shall be asked to give her in marriage." Mr. Bob's voice was soft and low and there was a mellow sound of music in it. "I shall feel her arm tremble within mine as we advance to meet the man she loves. Then when I have given her up to him, my arms will drop at my sides, useless and forever empty because of her. I can not be her guardian then."

Eleanor bent forward eagerly, her face radiant. "Are you anybody's guardian but mine?" she asked breathlessly.

Mr. Bob was leaning back in his chair, his eyes closed, his cigar dead in his fingers.

"No," he said, "no, Eleanor."

"It's my time," and the happiness in the girl's voice would have arrested any man's attention. "I love a man who used to come to my house when I was a little girl and bring me dolls and candy. He would take me up on his knee and tell me the most beautiful stories in the world."

There was a little flutter of ashes as Mr. Bob's cigar dropped on the floor.

"I was the happiest thing that drew breath when he sent me on the day of my debut party boxes of violets and lilies-of-the-valley. They are my favorite flowers and I thought—I hoped that he cared for me. He is big, an intelligent giant, men say, and just now, I am wondering how I could ever have expected him to love me. I was engaged to Dick because I thought that maybe when he asked for me—the man manages my worldly interests—he would not give me up to Dick. Now, will I have to ask him to marry me?"

Eleanor felt herself lifted to her feet and her head fitted so that Mr. Bob could look straight into the depths of her eyes.

"Do you know what you are saying? Are you jesting, Eleanor? I love you, now you have a strong man's secret without having had to shear his hair to get it. Who is the man you love, Eleanor?"

"You—always just you," came the smothered answer.

"My arms will never be empty, never," vowed Mr. Bob.

Short Digit Wedding Bar.

Maria Pozea, eighteen years old, who was the betrothed of Flora Opra, twenty-four years old, at the eleventh hour discovered a fatal bar to their wedding. The little finger on the fiance's right hand was shorter "than it really ought to be," shorter than the one on his left hand. This, said the superstitious Maria, between crying spells, was an insurmountable barrier to her marriage; it was a sure sign of a short-lived love, so she called off the wedding. The guests had been bidden to the wedding. The clergyman had been notified. Opra had purchased the ring and furniture and had made all arrangements for housekeeping.—Exchange.

MEMORIAL SUNDAY

did, he made a losing bargain. For when Rome began to sell her citizenship among the provinces in order to acquire revenue whereby to maintain her extravagance and luxury, Roman liberty was already lost in everything but name, and even that soon followed.

"Ill fares the land to hastening ills a prey,
Where wealth accumulates and men decay."

The only price at which liberty can be bought is character, expressed in terms of loyalty to God which we call reverence or righteousness; and loyalty to tribe or clan or country which we call patriotism. And in essence these two are one. For wherever in the history of the world we see reverence declining in any particular form of civilization, we find as an inevitable sequence that that particular form soon crumbles and decays. On the other hand wherever we find men earnestly worshipping the God of righteousness, we find men who have stood the test of loyal citizenship.

The pressing need of the present generation lies just along these two lines. We need to cultivate deeper reverence among the people—reverence for God, for truth, and righteousness.

And then we need to develop a nobler conception of what patriotism means—not the mere physical loyalty which stands ready to take up arms against a foreign foe, but that higher form of loyalty which demands the enactment and enforcement of righteous laws, and inspires each citizen with an earnest sense of responsibility and duty.

The observance of this Memorial Sunday reminding us of the noble sacrifices and devoted loyalty of 50 years ago, and the presence of these men who bore an honorable part in that great struggle for the preservation of the union, ought to awaken every mind to the present opportunity and need—the call for more exalted enlightened loyalty.

In closing the congregation sang "America."

AT WOLLASTON.

Sunday evening, the Rev. Dr. Sneath addressed Paul J. Revere Post No. 88 G. A. R. the Woman's Relief Corps, the Sons of Veterans, Spanish War Veterans, Daughters of Veterans and the Sons of Veterans Auxiliary in the Wollaston Congregational Church. The church had been decorated with flags, guns, and flowers in a tasteful manner by Mrs. S. B. Wiley and Mrs. George H. Murray. The church quartet rendered appropriate selections.

Dr. Sneath spoke upon the "Heroism revealed in the Civil War." He said: In a conflict which cost a thousand million dollars and the sacrifice of a million lives and which set free four million slaves and made certain the declaration that the United States were one and inseparable, there was a heroism which is worthy of remembrance so long as time lasts.

Tonight I want to speak of that heroism, not only to worthily praise you, men of the Civil war, but also to use you as an example of a similar heroism which ought to be characteristic in times of peace.

Born and reared within twenty miles of Gettysburg, I have always honored the man who wears or has the right to wear the brass-cannon button; and I delight to call the attention of the youth of this generation to the courageous, self-sacrificing, Christian heroism shown by the men of the sixties.

An essential element of heroism is courage; not simply physical but moral courage. It is moral courage when men go to war in the cause of righteousness, and not simply a physical bravado. Such courage was shown in the Civil war, when two million men went through 5,574 pitched battles, faced dangers in camp, prison on the field and at the cannon's mouth.

It was a true courage when men fell dead and other men stepped over their sacred bodies to take their places and face the foe in the same cause of right. It was a courage born of faith in God and the cause of righteousness. Such is the courage needed today in all the relations of life.

A second element of this heroism was self-sacrifice. Heroic men are ready to die for righteousness. This makes the heroism complete. A courage that is over-cautious is dangerously near cowardice. The true soldier is not wreckless, but neither can he be a coward. He must be ready to die.

The heroism of the Civil war was a self-sacrificing one. The men were willing to die for their country. This was especially true of the private, whose name is frequently forgotten in the blazing light of the officers. I love to honor the private and by his worthy example call the men and women of today to be ready for any sacrifice for humanity's welfare in a time when selfishness and greed move too many to forget the noble privileges and duties of a great democracy.

The heroism of the Civil War was Christian in that it was inspired by the interest of humanity, which is a true part of Christianity. It sought the disenthrallment of four million of slaves. It cannot be over-emphasized that any heroism manifested today in putting out of existence all forms of existing slavery, is a Christianity worthy of every young man and woman.

Members of the Grand Army, I have used you tonight to make an appeal to the men and women of today to be heroic. May the same heroism inspire you to keep the camp-fires burning until the last comrade fails. Keep your faces set toward the eternal hills and may you finally pitch your tents on the Land where the sun shall no more go down and where the weary soldier rests.

In closing Mr. Everett of the choir sang the solo of "Marching Through Georgia" and all united in the chorus.

FUNERAL OF MR. BAXTER.

The funeral of Edwin W. Baxter of 32Greenleaf street was held from his late residence on Sunday afternoon. Rev. Edward Norton, pastor emeritus of Bethany Congregational church officiated. Mrs. Florence Sturtevant was the soloist. The body was taken to Newton today for burial. Mr. Baxter was a retired leather man and was in his 60th year. He was well known here, having been a life resident.

BURIED IN QUINCY.

The body of Harry Sargent which was washed ashore at Squantum May 22, was taken to Mt. Wollaston cemetery today for interment. Sargent was drowned while trying to escape from the Suffolk County School for Boys on Rainsford Island last January. The body was partly dismembered when discovered by Elmer Harper of Squantum. It was identified by Supt. Ryan of the school by marks on the clothing. He was the son of Frank E. Sargent of Washington street, Dorchester, who claimed the remains.

NEWS FROM THE CHURCHES

Fr. Condon of Jesuits Holding Mission at Houghs Neck

The mission at the Church of St. Frances-by-the Sea commenced Sunday with a high mass. Father Condon of the Jesuits was the celebrant. He will conduct the mission throughout the week. Masses will be said at five and eight o'clock. Evening services will commence at 7.30 o'clock. A short sermon and instruction will be given in the evening and a short sermon in the morning. Father Condon was one of the priests that conducted the mission at St. John's church during the past winter.

WOLLASTON BAPTIST.

The services at the Wollaston Baptist Church on Sunday were all very well attended, especially in the morning. The text was Galations 6:17—"For I bear in my body the marks of the Lord Jesus Christ."

At the Sunday School session, a committee, consisting of Charles E. Goodspeed, William E. Bullock, Mrs. Charles B. Hall, and Mrs. Emma F. Perry, was appointed to make arrangements for the annual picnic.

The meeting of the Junior Christian Endeavor Society at 3:30 was in charge of Floyd Reid. Miss Ruth Bartlett gave a very interesting talk on industrial missions at the meeting of the Senior Society.

The sermon for the evening was taken from the text Isa. 64:8 "We are the clay and thou art our potter." The chorus choir sang at both morning and evening service.

Tuesday evening at 7.45 under the auspices of the Two Men's classes, Rev. S. J. Reid, D. D., of Belfast, Ireland, will give a lecture on "Ireland as it is today—social, political, religious." This lecture is highly spoken of and every one invited. A silver offering will be taken for the needy Baptists of Ireland.

Wednesday afternoon at 3.00, the Women's Foreign Missionary Society will meet with Mrs. George E. Thomas 28 Newton street, Rev. Thomas S. Barbour, D. D. will speak on "The awakening of China." Women invited. Thursday evening at 7:45 the monthly Covenant meeting of the church will be held in the chapel. As it is the night before Memorial Day, the subject will be "Patriotism," both as regards this country and the heavenly country.

WOLLASTON CONGREGATIONAL.

The Memorial Day services at this church Sunday evening are reported in another column. The enthusiasm of the pastor caused his address to be greatly appreciated. His tribute to the veterans was also endorsed.

George A. Smith has been elected to the office of deacon of the Congregatoinal church to take the place of Deacon Harrington who removed from town.

The Congregationalists has decided to install a new church hymn book entitled "The Pilgrim Hymnal."

The Y. P. S. C. E. will hold a social and reception to its honorary members on Tuesday evening.

The violin recital of Mrs. Adelaide Thomas Sutherland at the Congregational church last week was very successful. She was assisted by her pupils.

MEMORIAL SERVICE.

The annual Memorial service of the Sunday School of the First church was held Sunday morning at the close of the session of the school. The school has been very fortunate this year, having lost none of its members by death. Some of its former members however and one of its former teachers have passed away.

Miss Sophia W. French who died in a far away State, was for many years a teacher in the school and Dr. Hudson spoke feelingly of her former connection with the school and of the work which she accomplished in the South.

He also spoke briefly of Mrs. George W. Morton and Mrs. Abby Dewson, members of the church, who were interested in the work of the Sunday School. Mention was also made of Katharyn Crane, and the class which took her name in memory of her.

ST. MARY'S CHURCH.

The feast of Corpus Christi was appropriately observed at St. Mary's church Sunday afternoon with vespers benediction of the Blessed Sacrament and a procession by the Sunday School children. Rev. Fr. William J. Duffy crowned the statue of the Blessed Virgin while the children sang hymns. They also assisted the regular choir in the musical portion of the services.

FINNISH CONGREGATIONAL.

Four members of the congregation of the Finnish Congregational church bade adieu to their many friends at the services Sunday. They were K. E. Djerf, Miss Aino and Miss Elsa Lundgren and Miss Minnie Vanhala. They sail Tuesday on the Laconia for an extended visit to Finland.

Rev. J. E. Lillback presided at the services. He preached on "The past and present in reality." Miss Impi Ketoni, Miss Elsa Lundgren and Miss Aino Lundergren were the soloists.

The children of Mr. and Mrs. Leppata, 75 Suomi road and Mr. and Mrs. Honkainaki of 4 Arthur avenue were baptized.

THE RESURRECTION.

Rev. John Whitehead, A. M., Th. B., of Cambridge, delivered his fourth and last lecture on "The Life After Death," at Hancock hall, Sunday afternoon. He said, science, human experience and revelation agree in testifying to the existence of laws and things which do not come under the known laws of nature. These witnesses to the reality of spiritual entities give us the foundation facts on which rests the belief in the life after-death. If there is such a life it must be in a world distinct from the world of matter. And the resurrection must be a rising into conscious life in the spiritual world.

Some believe in annihilation of the wicked, but this view is based on taking a literal view of the second death, which they think is the annihilation of the person. The second death, however is a symbol of the destruction of the spiritual life of love to God and the neighbor.

CONFERENCE OF BAPTISTS

Delegates Appreciated the Quincy Hospitality

Special services marked the 14th annual conference of the Swedish Baptist churches in New England at the Baptist church, Brewers Corner, commencing Thursday, May 22, and ending Sunday night. Delegates and visitors from five states were present and the reports of the different churches and other business was transacted during the four days of the convention.

Many interesting speakers took part in the meetings and a most pleasant time was had at the Christian Endeavorers' session, Saturday night. At this meeting talent from surrounding cities took part, and the beautiful renditions of a violin, recitation, speeches and a song from the large choir from Lynn added greatly to the evening's enjoyment.

Luncheons and dinners were served each day to the delegates at the church under the supervision of the ladies. The delegates and other visitors were guests of the church members at their homes and at the close of Sunday nights' meeting a resolution drawn up by the delegates was read, showing their appreciation of the many kindnesses and hospitality extended them during their visit to Quincy.

Special services were held Sunday and in addition to the morning service, meetings were held in the afternoon and evening, terminating one of the most successful and enjoyable conferences ever held.

COMMENCEMENT EXERCISES.

The annual commencement exercises at the Quincy Mansion school commenced Sunday when the baccalaureate sermon was preached by Bishop J. W. Hamilton, on "the true worth of womanhood and a plea for women to exercise their influence in a way to help and uplift those around them. The sermon was attended by many relatives and friends of the students, as well as by many prominent in educational circles.

The annual commencement concert by the students will be held this evening.

Value of Foods.

A well meaning meal containing the proper combination of foods is not difficult to prepare. The essential ingredient, a repairing material, is protein, found abundantly in meat, eggs, cheese and nuts. The starches and sugars, technically known as carbohydrates, are required also, together with fats for fuel for effort. These two fuel furnishing foods can be used alternately, thus securing a variation. Scientists who have given the question of food values special attention report that a diet of protein, fat and carbohydrates alone would cause starvation more quickly than if all food were withheld. There is the necessity of introducing some mineral salts that yield iron, calcium, magnesium, phosphorus and potassium.

A supply of iron is obtained from raisins, whole wheat, dried beans, prunes and meats or the yolks of eggs. Calcium is contributed by milk, dried peas and beans, celery and citrus fruits. In meat, peas, beans, milk and prunes there is magnesium. Phosphorus forms a quality in meat, milk, egg yolks, whole wheat, dried peas and beans. Potassium is furnished in potatoes parsnips, cabbage, turnips and apples. —Leslie's.

The Baron's Order.

A worthy Welsh baronet, a member of one of the parliaments of William IV., was asked by one of his constituents who chanced to be in town at the time for an order of admission into the house. With his characteristic disposition to oblige, Sir —— immediately complied with the request and wrote an order in the usual terms and addressed it thus: "To the Door Ceeper of the House of Kommons." The person for whom it was intended discovered the errors in the spelling after he had gone ten or twelve yards from the worthy baronet and, turning back and running up to him, said: "Oh, Sir ——, there is a slight mistake in your order. Two letters have been transposed. You have spelled 'keeper' with a 'c' instead of a 'k' and 'commons' with a 'k' instead of a 'c.' "That's all right," was the answer. "The doorkeeper will see to it. He is sure to know which is which."

A Legend of the Forgetmenot.

The blue bloom of the forgetmenot was christened on the banks of the beautiful Danube. There is a legend that two lovers once walked there. The girl admired some flowers, blue as her eyes, that grew upon an islet in the stream. The boy promised that she should have them, sprang into the river and swam to the island. Returning with the blooms, he had nearly reached the shore when the chill of the water and the strength of the current overcame him. With eyes fixed on the white face of his beloved, he flung the blooms at her feet, cried "Forget me not!" and was swept away beneath the icy waters to his doom. The legend says the girl, in memory of him, wore forgetmenots in her hair until she, too, died of a broken heart. Henry IV. of England in his exile translated the forgetmenot to his friends to mean "Remember me."—Boston Post.

A Natural Query.

In the office window of a certain street railway company there is a sign which reads:

MOTORMEN AND CONDUCTORS EMPLOYED ONLY ON MONDAYS AND THURSDAYS.

A typical Irishman from the old sod happened along, and the sign struck his eye. Pausing, he slowly spelled out the words, while an expression of bewilderment overspread his face.

"Only worruk Moonday an' We'n's day, is ut?" he was overheard to mutter to himself. "Thin phwat th' divil do th' byes do all th' rist av th' wake?" —Lippincott's.

Split Infinitives.

During an examination in grammar and composition an inspector was questioning the highest class of the school, and he presently said:

"What is meant by the saying, 'You should not split the infinitive?'"

One determined looking boy, rather than give no answer at all, hazarded the reply:

"It means that you should not try to divide space."—Exchange.

A Jocular Convict.

"We're starting a circulating library for the use of the inmates," said the prison missionary. "Is there any particular book you'd like to make use of?"

"Why, yes," replied the convict. "If I could only use it right I'd like to have a railway guide."—London Tit-Bits.

Tactful Toast.

At the close of the wedding breakfast a gentleman noted for his lack of tact arose, causing keen anxiety to the bridegroom, who knew his failing.

"Ladies and gentlemen," he cried genially, "I propose the health of the bridegroom. May he see many days like this."—Ladies' Home Journal.

Too Envious.

"I have read three novels by your cousin, Amanda, and in not one of them do the lovers marry. Now, that is peculiar!"

"Oh, not at all! She is much too envious to give others such happiness!" —Fliegende Blatter.

A New Time Table.

"When does this ferry run, Uncle?" asked the would-be passenger.

"Dis ferry, Marse," said the old man, "she runs at quarter arter, half arter, quarter to and at."—Lippincott's.

A slip of the tongue is worse than that of the foot.—Spanish Proverb.

MILLINERY HINTS.

Small Hats With Brims Are the Fashion This Season.

The feature of the season in millinery is the presence of the brim, which has appeared and disappeared like a jack rabbit in the brush. For years we have been wearing all kinds of turbans and caps that had only crowns and were made to fit on the head by reason of an inner crown that held them up.

If you will notice hats closely now you will see that the shapes are really smaller than they have been for decades. This does not appear to the casual observer, who feels that hats have been small for years and that the change, if any, is slight. The truth is that up until now the brimless hats were really very large in size and had to be padded or supported by a separate coronet to keep them from falling down over the nose. It is claimed by the designers that the fashion for small hats which fit the head and do not merely rest on it is due to the constant use of the motorcar by a large number of women. In Europe, where taxis are so cheap, it is not a luxury for women to ride to and fro on their daily errands. In America, where taxis are dearer than any other place in the world for some unknown reason, the mass of women cannot afford to ride, but they take their cue in fashion from those who do.

As soon as the comfort of the tiny hat was discovered women adopted it with enthusiasm. It has its defects for it is too often chosen in its most abbreviated shapes by the woman who can least afford to wear it. A tiny, jaunty hat is not intended for the woman with a large, serious face or one who does not fix her hair to fit the hat.

There are elements of comedy in a small hat as there never could be in a large hat. So beware! As the season advances one sees evidences of the larger hat bedecked with flowers. The shape pictured is in this class carried out in mahogany colored hemp with a simple wreath of big ox eyed daisies as the only trimming, if one omits the streamer of black velvet that hangs at the back of the upturned brim.

Upstairs and Down.

A tailor suggests whisking a black skirt with strong coffee and ammonia to remove dirt. The skirt is first brushed. Then a fresh whisk is dipped into a cupful of strong coffee mixed with a teaspoonful of ammonia, and with this the skirt is brushed. The coffee should be brushed over the skirt quickly, and the brush should not hold too much of the liquid.

Ammonia, alcohol and water in equal parts form a good solution for cleaning skirts. Ammonia, of course, must be carefully used, as it damages some colors. It can be sparingly tried on an inside seam or even on a little stretch of the wrong side of the hem. If it takes out the color alcohol and water can be used instead. Naphtha is objectionable because of its clinging odor and also because a skirt cleaned with it cannot be ironed safely for many hours.

When a skirt of black or other dark colored material looks shiny from much wear it can be rubbed with a solution of borax and water. This solution removes the glaze completely and can be applied whenever the shine returns. Borax, of course, might, like ammonia, have a disastrous effect on some colors, so it, too, should be tried first on the wrong side of the skirt.

Substitute For Grab Bag.

Newer than the grab bag, usually a feature of children's parties, is the huge teapot of heavy earthenware imitating old Canton porcelain. The pot, several sizes larger than the kitchen stove's hot water kettle, has a flat lidded mouth of generous size, into which several pair of juvenile hands can be simultaneously thrust, and its plump body holds a surprising number of small favors. Its wicker handle, high and rounding, is a substantial affair, guaranteed to sustain the weight of the receptacle, and there is a long, projecting spout, from which a stream of tiny candies might easily be poured into the laps of the guests.

An Appetizing Side Dish.

One cream cheese, a gill of pure cream, a small jar of bar le duc jelly and a little paprika may be made into a charming little "side" appetizer for a chafing dish party. First the cheese and cream are beaten to a froth to form a puffy cake almost filling a soup dish; then a hole dug in its center is filled with bar le duc, and finally the entire surface is sprinkled with paprika. To write about it takes longer than to make this side dish, but it lives long in the memory of those who have eaten of it.

It Pays To Buy Good Things

Glenwood Gas Ranges are built for service, and to give the utmost satisfaction to the user. In the first place, they weigh more and are put together more securely than most gas ranges. The castings are smooth, and easy to keep clean. Owing to their sturdy construction and fine workmanship, they will stand the intense heat and last much longer than the ordinary kind.

The Cooking Top is supplied with five burners, three ordinary size, one extra large and one simmering burner. Pilot cocks and burner cocks are at the front of range, and light from in front, safe and sure.

The Baking Oven is big enough to bake for the the largest family, and every square inch is heated exactly uniform.

The Linings of the Oven are made of white aluminoyd sheets, a new rust-resisting metal which does not scale, but keeps neat and smooth and lasts with the rest of the range. The bottom and side linings of both broiling and baking ovens are a bar-locking, removable type, securely fastened, but very easy to take out.

The Glenwood Patent Oven Heat Indicator is dependable, and what gas range users have long been looking for.

"Glenwood Range" is to-day a household word the country over and the standard for cooking and baking wherever sold.

Folk Dances as Part Of Celebrations of CHILDREN'S DAY

LITTLE ONES DANCING IN CENTRAL PARK, NEW YORK.

DURING the last few years dancing has taken a prominent place in the school life of Young America. Only recently exhibitions of folk dances were given in Central park, New York, in which thousands of children participated, and the movement to introduce dancing as a part of the regular school life has spread rapidly.

But while dancing is only now entering into the regular school routine of American children it has long held a prominent place among other nations and people. Right here in the United States the native Indians have long held dancing to be one of the principal functions of official ceremonies. In fact, dancing had its bad effects with the Indians, for they used to dance themselves into frenzies which led to massacres.

In China, in the pingyou, or dance of the bucklers, and in the taou, or dance of warriors, similar appeals to war are made. Another Chinese dance, the ouwang, is a veritable ballet, in which the different movements describe the struggle of the emperor against revolt.

The nautch girls are attached to the temple of northern India and dance before the idols daily; also they dance at entertainments and at funerals. They constitute a distinct class by themselves, the girls being trained by their mothers and positions in the temple being handed down from one generation to another.

The bayaderes are the dancing girls of southern India and are much like their northern sisters. They are recruited from the families of the working people and merchants and receive a small fixed salary from the temples to which they are attached.

The sarunga, who dance the dances of Java, are famed for the courtier-like grace and delicacy with which they move their hands and fingers. With their faces covered with gold powder, their heads crowded with heavy helmets of flowers and precious stones, these girls look like little idols.

The geishas of Japan often start their education in singing and dancing at the age of seven years. Some of the purely poetic dances remaining are the dance of the butterflies, of the flowers, of the rain, of the tea leaf and of the fan.

ONLY ONE "BEST"

Quincy People Give Credit Where Credit is Due.

People of Quincy who suffer with sick kidneys and bad backs want a kidney remedy that can be depended upon. The best is Doan's Kidney Pills, a medicine for the kidneys only, made from pure roots and herbs, and the only one that is backed by willing testimony of Quincy people. Here's a case:

Charles J. Somers, barber, 17 Newcomb street, Quincy, Mass., says: "It is a pleasure for me to tell of my experience with Doan's Kidney Pills, for the benefit of other kidney sufferers. This remedy worked wonders in my case. Lame back and weak kidneys bothered me for ten years and nothing helped me until I procured Doan's Kidney Pills. The promptness with which this remedy cured me was astonishing. My strength and energy was restored and my health improved one hundred per cent. I shall always endorse Doan's Kidney Pills when I have the opportunity." (Statement given September 2nd 1908.)

LATER ENDORSEMENT.

Several years later Mr. Somers was interviewed and he said: "I am only too pleased to verify my former endorsement of Doan's Kidney Pills. I still take this remedy occasionally and it keeps me in good health."

BROUGHT HOME SOCCER CUP

Fore River Defeats United Shoe for Championship

The Fore River team defeated the United Shoe Machiney team of Beverly in the final soccer game for the Williamson Challenge Cup Saturday afternoon at the Locust street grounds, South Boston, 2 to 1.

The heavy weather in the morning promised a postponement of the final, but the sky cleared and the teams lined up on time. The field was soggy and damp. Little pools had formed and the players had difficulty in keeping their feet, several of them narrowly escaping injury.

McLean played right half back in place of Elliot who is ill, and Steel went in at forward.

The Fore River opened their snappy close passing game, but found Beverly on their mettle and ready to dispute every inch of turf. Their opposition forced the Fore Rivers to open up.

Almost maddened in their enthusiasm, the players roughed it considerable and the hurrahs of the onlookers urged them on. Referee Lambie through a great deal of effort succeeded in keeping the game in hand.

W. Black was taken from the field after he collided with Harrison. He received a scalp wound but reentered the game after it was dressed. The first half passed with no scoring.

On the resumption of play Fore River was the first to become dangerous. Croft, goal for Beverly, had to act quickly to stop hot shots from Harrison and Steel. McLean tripped Stott of Beverly after ten minutes of play and was ordered from the field. Stott had his wound dressed and reappeared with a bandage around his head and was greeted with loud cheers.

Up to this period neither team had secured an opening. Sharples picked a hot one from Pinkerton and play was transferred to Beverly territory. Harrison, then juggled the ball and through the neatest of footwork shot it past Crafts for the first point. Stott then evened things up, by making a fine run from midfield.

The winning point for Fore River was scored by Harrison who beat the whole Beverly line in one of the prettiest pieces of field work that was probably ever seen in the world.

The cup was presented by Councilor Walter Ballantyne of Boston and was accepted by President McLeod of the Fore Rivers. For three successive years the Fore Rivers have turned victory out of defeat dissolved ties in their own favor, and attained laurels in the Williamson Cup series which have gained the plaudits of the soccer devctees throughout the country. The summary:

TWO CUP RACES EACH DAY

Said to be the Plan for the Quincy Cup

The time for filing challenges for the Quincy Yacht Club Challenge cup, now held by the Boston Yacht club, has expired and there have been several challenges for the trophy, which insures a series of races the coming season. Two years ago when the cup was held by the Boston club the races were held off the Hull station. It is announced this year, however, that the races will be held off Marblehead. The challengers for the trophy are the Quincy yacht club, Eastern yacht club and the Corinthian yacht club. It is planned to hold two races each day until one of the yachts has won three races. There will be a race each morning and each afternoon.

HEAVY FOG AND LITTLE WIND

Ten Yachts Enter Opening Race of Quincy Club

The Quincy Yacht club opened its racing season Saturday afternoon with a race for all classes but the weather conditions were rather unfavorable for good racing. There was quite a heavy fog so that boats could not be seen two hundred feet away. What wind there was came from the northeast and was light, and after the boats had rounded the Peddock's island mark, this flattened out, so that there was really but little racing for the four classes, it being a simple case of follow the leader.

The new government buoy off Harry's rocks caused some inconvenience as the boats had to keep well up to the eastward to pass outside tne mark.

In class A. the new Hellis Burgess boat from New York, the Evangeline had an easy time in getting away from the Little Haste, although how much she beat her on corrected time cannot be given as neither boat had been measured.

In the Cape cat class, the Clara of ex-Commodore Herbert W. Robbins came in ahead of the Dartwell and Iris, the crew of the latter boat putting in most of their time on the first leg in bending on a new mainsail.

In class B the Wawenock had things her own way and easily won out over the Lomaru of Winslow Bros.

In class C. the old Gleamer, with Dr. H. Almon Jones at the helm made her first appearance of the season and beat out such boats as the Hush and Wanderer.

The Flirt which started from City Point to witness the races got too near the shore on Quincy bay, in the thick fog and grounded on The Veaseys. It was about half tide when she went ashore so that she had to remain until 3 o'clock Sunday morning before she could be floated off. She rested easily however and was not damaged. The summary:

NEW BRASS BAND.

The interest manifested in the organization of a brass band at the Tubular Rivet & Stud works at Wollaston is based on the attitude of all employees. Already 35 have flocked to the call of Walter Stewart, the drummer, originator and perfector of the idea. Devotees of music are numbered among the factory employees and while the girls are not to figure in the makeup they are nevertheless doing all that is possible to interest musicians. Most of the members are mechanics who at some time or other have played with Boston bands. Rehearsals have commenced and will be continued if possible at the Squantum Yacht club.

NO GAMES SATURDAY.

No games because of rain and wet grounds was the bulletin posted on all the base ball diamonds Saturday. A contest had been scheduled on the playground of each ward and all were of a high calibre. The dates will be arranged for next Saturday, if possible.

After this week ashes will be collected only once a month.

STILWELL GUILTY OF SOLICITING BRIBE

New York Legislator Had Been Exonerated by Senate

New York, May 26.—Stephen J. Stilwell, state senator from the Bronx, recently exonerated by the New York senate of charges of bribery, was found guilty of bribery by a jury.

The maximum penalty for the crime is ten years' imprisonment and $500 fine. He will be sentenced Wednesday.

The jury deliberated a few minutes more than two hours in reaching the verdict that automatically takes from Stilwell his seat in the senate.

The crime for which Stilwell stands convicted is soliciting money in return for his promised influence in reporting a bill aimed to set aside a regulation of the New York Stock Exchange against listing securities not printed by designated banknote companies. This bill was urged by George H. Kendall, president of the New York Bank Note company.

LOCKS FAMILY UP

Robber Then Easily Gets Away With $20,000 Worth of Jewelry

Chicago, May 26.—A burglar took possession of the residence of William A. Yager early Sunday morning, and after locking the family and the servants in their respective quarters, cutting the telephone wires and switching off the electric lights, stole $20,000 worth of jewelry. The jewelry had been hidden in a closet off a bathroom.

Police are seeking for a butler and maid who left the employment of Yager a few days ago, in the hope that they may give some information about the robbery.

M'CARTY HAD A WEAK HEART

Doctors Say Death Was Not Caused by Pelky's Blow

FIGHTER IS HELD IN $10,000

Says He Was Most Surprised Man in Arena When Champion White Pugilist Fell In First Round—Definite Cause of Collapse to Be Determined by Coroner's Inquest

Calgary, Alberta, May 26.—Arthur Pelky, who killed Luther McCarty with a blow below the heart in the first round of their world's championship battle, is under arrest on a charge of manslaughter, but released on $10,000 bail pending the result of an autopsy to be held today.

Pelky was so dazed by the sudden and fatal ending of the fight that he seemed unable to realize that one short right arm blow over the heart had ended the career of the man who claimed the world's white heavyweight championship.

Even while the arrangements for Pelky's release on bail were being made and while "Tommy" Burns, his manager, and F. L. Lowes of Calgary were offering bail, Coroner Costello called an inquest and summoned a jury, which met and adjourned until today.

James Short, king's councillor, said that an information would be lodged against Pelky and possibly all those closely associated with the arrangements for the bout. Under the laws of Alberta every one of the 10,000 spectators is liable to arrest for manslaughter.

The general opinion is that McCarty's heart was affected by the high altitude, as Calgary is 3400 feet above the level of the sea, but Dr. Birch, one of the physicians in attendance, said that as McCarty was not examined before the fight it is impossible now to tell the cause of death.

Dr. Aull, an athletic expert and a physician, said not one of Pelky's blows had power enough to cause death. A council of physicians who attended McCarty declared unanimously that death was due to heart disease and not to Pelky's blow.

Pelky said: "I scarcely knew the bout had started when the end came. I was putting little or no force behind my blows, for my manager, "Tommy" Burns, had instructed me to get a line on McCarty, as we knew practically nothing of his form of fighting because of his secret workouts. I was the most surprised man in the arena when McCarty fell."

Luther McCarty was considered by the sporting public as the most promising of the "white hopes." He was a finely built young man and would be the last man anyone would suspect of having a heart that was not right.

Traveling about the world as a cowboy, sailor, farmer, messenger boy, etc., made him strong. He was born March 17, 1892, on his father's ranch, outside of Lincoln, Leb.

Mrs. McCarty Hears News

Fargo, N. D., May 26.—Mrs. Luther McCarty did not let the news of her husband's sudden death interfere with her duties in a restaurant here. When first told of the death of McCarty she refused to believe it and when the death was confirmed refused to make any comment.

Mrs. McCarty was working in a restaurant here when her husband became a claimant for the championship.

No New Developments Concerning California Land Legislation

Washington, May 26.—Gratification was expressed in official circles here over news of the marked improvement in the condition of the Japanese emperor. Latest reports from the emperor's bedside indicated that he was steadily gaining strength and might be well again in a few weeks.

The are no developments, either at the embassy or at the state department, in connection with the negotiations concerning the California land legislation. Both sides are awaiting with interest the next word from Tokio.

POET'S ASHES SCATTERED

Services In Memory of Joaquin Miller Held at "The Heights"

Oakland, Cal., May 26.—Services honoring the memory of Joaquin Miller, "poet of the Sierras," were held Sunday at the poet's former home, "The Heights," and from the pyre which he built his ashes were scattered to the winds.

The ceremony was conducted by the Bohemian club of San Francisco. The poet desired that his body be cremated on the pyre but this was impossible because of municipal regulations.

WILL ACT AS OWN LAWYER

Roosevelt to Cross-Examine Witnesses In Libel Suit

EDITOR NEWETT IS DEFENDANT

Intimated That Ex-President Drank to Excesss and Was Untruthful and Profane—Defense Will Be Based on "Privilege" and Justification—Hadley to Give Testimony

Marquette, Mich., May 26.—Former Governor Hadley of Missouri arrived here last night to testify in Theodore Roosevelt's $10,000 suit for libel against Editor George A. Newett of Iron Ore, a trade paper in which last fall was published the broad intimation that Roosevelt drank to excess and that he was untruthful and profane.

Roosevelt will act as his own lawyer in cross examining the witnesses for the defense who make the strongest allegations against him. The active part to be taken by the former president, who is accompanied by a galaxy of political and personal friends, who will act as witnesses, promises to be a lively one.

Roosevelt is relying on the long list of prominent men who have known him for years, whose standing in the nation is such that they cannot be questioned, and who are coming here to testify for him.

The list of witnesses for the defense has not been disclosed. Both sides are under pledge to Judge Flannagan not to reveal the contents of depositions which have been taken in many states. It is only known now that Newett's defense will be based on first, "privilege" in the criticism of a public man, and second, justification.

Roosevelt's attorneys do not appear to be anxious about the outcome of the case. They admit, however, that the plaintiff may be embarrassed by lack of opportunity to get witnesses who could testify to unexpected allegations.

Roosevelt's attorneys in the case are James H. Pound of Detroit and W. S. Hill of this city. In addition to his $10,000 damage suit Roosevelt has instituted suit again Newett for criminal libel, the penalty being $100 fine or ninety days in jail.

Hadley's entrance into the case in behalf of Roosevelt was a surprise, as the last the public heard in the record of acquaintance between the two there had been somewhat of an outbreak when Roosevelt expressed his opinion of Hadley's desertion of the Progressive party's cause in Chicago, and the two parted.

KAISER'S DAUGHTER WEDS

She and Her Husband to Receive Throne as Bridal Gift

Berlin, May 26.—Pealing bells and the roar of cannon throughout the empire announced the wedding of Princess Victoria Luise, only daughter of the kaiser, and Prince Ernst August of Cumberland.

Love and politics are declared to have united to crown with happiness this royal nuptial feast. It was a love match which the diplomats and chancelleries would not have arranged otherwise, since by the troth which was plighted before the ancient altar in the chapel of Potsdam castle, the forty years' feud between the Hohenzollerns and the Guelphs of England passed into history.

Emperor William, who can deny his daughter nothing, put the final happy touch on this idylic romance. He will confer upon the married lovers a throne as a bridal gift.

Branswick, on the throne of which the Cumberlands sat in other days, will be proclaimed an independent German duchy, with Prince Ernst and Princess Victoria as its reigning sovereigns.

HOSTILITIES SUSPENDED

Greeks Suffered 250 Casualties In Their Fight With Bulgars

Salonica, May 26.—The losses of the Greek troops during the fighting against the Bulgarians are given as one captain killed and 250 men killed or wounded. Hostilities have been suspended.

A mutiny is reported to have broken out among the Bulgarian troops at Berres, the men demanding to be disbanded. When their commanding officer found that he was unable to quell the disturbances, he committed suicide.

Old Man Killed by Train

Pittsfield, Mass., May 26.—Patrick Quisley of Stockbridge was killed by a freight train yesterday afternoon. Quigley, who was 93 years old, was out on his daily walk of five or six miles. He was on the railroad tracks when the freight train approached. Because of deafness he did not hear the whistle until too late.

Mrs. Atwood Gets Divorce

Reno, Nev., May 26.—Mrs. Sarah J. Atwood was awarded a decree of absolute divorce from Harry N. Atwood, the aviator, upon her allegation that he deserted her on Feb. 1, 1912. She retains the custody of their daughter.

THIRTY-THREE DEAD

City Government of Los Angeles Guilty of Murder, Says Councilman

Long Beach, Cal., May 26.—"In my judgment the death of the thirty-three persons in the pier disaster was wholesale murder. The pier was rotten. There was no arrangement for the handling of the enormous crowd. The people were allowed to group themselves into such a solid, compact mass that the crash was inevitable. The city of Los Angeles is guilty of murder."

In this fashion John Topham, a councilman of Los Angeles, who narrowly escaped death in the collapse of the municipal pier at the "British Empire day" celebration, places what he considers the responsibility for the loss of life when hundreds of persons crashed through two floorings of the pier to the sand below.

It is impossible to give a definite number of the persons injured, but they amount to more than a hundred. It is feared the death list will grow to at least forty.

There is widespread denunciation today of the authorities for permitting the pier to be thronged as it was when the accident happened. The pier had been washed out several times and was not in the safest condition. Most of the dead were women.

HELD FOR WIDOW'S DEATH

Visit to Invalid's Home Caused Death From Heart Disease

Natick, Mass., May 26.—On account of an attack on Mrs. Bridget Hall, a widow, 61 years old, which resulted in her death, John F. Branagan, aged 31, was arrested. He will appear in court on a charge of assault and drunkenness. An autopsy on the body of the woman showed that death was caused by heart failure, superinduced by fright.

Mrs. Hall, who was an invalid, was alone in her home when a stranger attacked her. Branagan was identified, it is claimed, by neighbors from whom he had asked the way to the Hall house.

WANT BURLESON TO SEGREGATE RACES

Petition Presented by 8000 Railway Mail Clerks

Washington, May 26.—The race question was put squarely up to Postmaster General Burleson in a petition signed by more than 8000 railway mail clerks, urging the segregation of white and negro employes in the service.

It is contended that from fifteen to twenty clerks work on the same "run," and that the white clerks at times are outnumbered by the negroes. It is further declared that in some instances the whites are subject to the jurisdiction of negro superiors.

A special protest is made in the petition against existing conditions, because on long runs members of the two races frequently have to share the same sleeping quarters.

CHILDREN SENT AWAY

Draper Plant Strikers Temporarily Part With Their Little Ones

Milford, Mass., May 26.—Twenty-five children of the striking foundrymen at the plant of the Draper Manufacturing company were sent to Providence yesterday to remain until conditions are more settled here. They were given a sendoff by a large crowd of men and women, accompanied by a band.

There were no disturbances of consequence during the day. The twenty-three metropolitan police who have been on duty during the strike went home, and their places were taken by officers from Newton, Southbridge, South Framingham and Fall River.

M'CUTCHEON MAY LIVE

Chicago Man Took Bichloride of Mercury by Mistake

Chicago, May 26.—W. L. McCutcheon, an automobile stalesman, who took three bichloride of mercury tablets by mistake and who doctors thought was sentenced ot death, received his reprieve yesterday.

Physicians after an examination and consultation at the hospital decided that McCutcheon had eliminated most of the poison from his stomach before it had entered the intestines, and concluded that in all probability he would recover. McCutcheon was taken to his home last night.

FOUR LEGS AND A HORN

Queer Appendages of a Fish Caught at Catalina Island

Los Angeles, Cal., May 26.—That Catalina island is the veritable treasure house of queer things was the declaration of A. W. Furstenau, a Denver naturalist, who has just finished an exploration of the island.

"I caught there," he said, "a fish with four legs and a horn on its nose. I discovered a new species of crab that has two big feet and is unlike all its kindred."

Aviator Flies Up the Mississippi

St. Louis, May 26.—Tony Jannus made a hydro-aeroplane flight from Paducah, Ky., to St. Louis.

NEED OF REFORM WITHIN PARTY

Not Denied by the Republican Executive Committee

GAIN BY PROGRESSIVE WING

Council to Meet Sixty Days After Adjournment of Congress and Decide Question of National Convention In 1914—Permanent Heaquarters to Be Established In Washington

Washington, May 26.—To create a new and vigorous Republican party out of the thing of shreds and patches left by last year's fight, the Republican national committee will meet within sixty days after the adjournment of the special session of congress. The leaders think the effect of Democratic tariff revision then will be apparent. The committee will decide whether it can put Humpty Dumpty together. If not, a national convention of the party will be called for some time in 1914.

The need of reform within the party was not denied and steps were taken to bring about changes in party methods which members in discussion declared were of paramount importance. The suggestion of the progressive element for a national convention in the near future was heard and it was practically the unanimous opinion that such a convention should be called. It was decided to submit this question to the national committee and the agreement of opinion among the executive committeemen was taken as an indication of what might be expected from the larger body.

This program was determined upon by the executive committee of the national committee, at a meeting here. It was an auspicious beginning of the "get together" movement.

Charles D. Hilles, chairman of the national committee, opened the meeting of the executive committee with a statement that it was called to consider:

Establishment of headquarters and an inauguration of a publicity campaign.

Correction of the inequalities of representation.

It was agreed unanimously to establish a headquarters in Washington, in charge of James B. Reynolds, secretary of the national committee. Reynolds will conduct the organization and publicity work, such as already is being done by Thomas J. Pence for the Democratic national committee, and O. K. Davis for the Progressive national committee. For the first time the great parties are maintaining permanent headquarters here between elections.

It was likewise agreed that the national committee shall co-operate with the congressional committee, for it is realized that the result of the congressional elections in 1914 will go far to determine the presidential campaign of 1916.

CHILDREN TRAMPLED UPON

Crowd Storms Woman Suffrage Meeting With Serious Results

London, May 26.—Victoria park, in the East End, was the scene of rioting Sunday when trades unionists and Socialists attempted to hold a demonstration in support of votes for working women. Fifteen platforms had been erected; they were elaborately decorated with flags.

The crowd stormed a truck on which were militant suffragettes and dragged it outside the park.

Mounted and foot police by repeated charges finally drove the crowd away. Women and men fainted in the crush and children were trampled upon. Many of the women had clothing torn off. There were innumerable free fights and the ambulance corps were kept busy.

Suffragettes paraded with their colors, the standard bearers wearing red liberty caps. This was the cause of more disorder. The mob tore the decorations from the platforms and carried away the flags as souvenirs.

CUT THROUGH AT GRADE

Steam Shovels Meet at Culebra Cut and Separate Continents

Panama, May 26.—When two steam shovels met at Culebra cut, one working from the west and the other from the east, the first through cut of the Panama canal at grade from ocean to ocean was completed.

The whistles blew and hundreds of workmen quit their jobs to cheer when the big engines scooped out the last thread of earth that joined the two continents.

There is still excavating to be done in broadening the canal.

Dolorita O'Gorman a Bride

New York, May 26.—Miss Dolorita O'Gorman, daughter of United States Senator O'Gorman, was married to John A. Maher of Albany, in the chapel of St. Loyola's school.

Forty Persons Drowned

London, May 26.—A dispatch from Smyrna says forty persons were drowned by the sinking of the steamer Nevada, which struck mines in the Gulf of Smyrna.

ANOTHER GIRL BITTEN.

Spring in Quincy has opened with more than the normal number of "dog bites." The latest victim is Mary Reynolds, 14 years old, who was bitten in the left arm Sunday as she was driving a strange dog from her yard on Wesson street. She was treated by Dr. John H. Ash; who pronounced the wound not serious.

The dog escaped before it could be captured, but it is thought that the dog did not belong in West Quincy.

In conversation Saturday, Dr. Abele, the well known veterinery said that rabbies, in mild form, was prevalent in towns south of Quincy and that all dogs showing any signs of the malady were being held for examination. No fully developed cases have been diagnosed as yet.

WEDDING ANNIVERSARY.

On Saturday evening, May 24, Mr. and Mrs. Herbert F. Seldon of 20 River street celebrated their seventh wedding anniversary. There were present friends from Somerville, Everett, Malden, Weymouth and Quincy including Mr. Seldons mother, Mrs. John S. Seldon, Mr. and Mrs. Lauriston Hall Mrs. Laura Buckminster, Mr. and Mrs. George Brown and Mr. and Mrs. James Leggett. After partaking of a dainty dinner the guests were entertained by singing, playing and recitations.

Mr. and Mrs. Seldon were the recipients of some very beautiful cut glass.

The party left for their homes at a late hour wishing Mr. and Mrs. Seldon many happy returns of the day.

HELD FOR LARCENY.

Michael Hellens was arrested in the South Station early this morning while on his way to work in Cambridge for breaking and entering and the larceny of tools at Quincy from John W. Trickey. According to the police Hellens, who is a carpenter was employed by Trickey on a house on Merrymount road. One night he visited the house and carried off his own chest of tools and it is alleged he took tools to the value of $8.40 belonging to Mr. Trickey. This alleged larceny took place May 16 and he has not been seen since.

This morning one of the workmen for Trickey was in the South Station waiting to come to Quincy when he spotted Hallens going through the depot. He pointed him out to an officer who placed him under arrest and notified the Quincy police. Sergt. Larkin was sent in and brought him to Quincy. He was arraigned in court and held in $200 until Wednesday.

The KITCHEN CUPBOARD

HOT BISCUIT.

MANY persons who are otherwise successful cooks do not make good biscuit. Their biscuit may taste of the soda, be heavy or hard and indigestible. All these are faults that may be overcome with a little care. Biscuits which are too heavy are not necessarily without enough baking powder. Their heaviness may be due to the heat of the oven, hardening the crust before the gas formed by the chemical change in the baking powder has had time to expand the dough.

Tempting Hot Breads.

Baking Powder Biscuit. — Take a quart of flour, two teaspoonfuls of baking powder and a teaspoonful of salt. Sift these together three times. Rub in quickly and thoroughly one tablespoonful each of lard and butter combined. Add one cupful and a half of milk. Mix and turn out on the molding board, roll into a sheet a half inch thick, cut out with a small, round cutter and lay in a greased baking pan so they will not touch. Bake in a hot oven for about twenty minutes.

Whole Wheat Biscuit.—Take a quart of whole wheat flour and sift with it a teaspoonful of salt and two teaspoonfuls of baking powder. Work into this prepared flour a heaping tablespoonful of shortening, and when this is well combined add enough sweet milk to make a soft dough. Mix quickly and lightly, touching as little as possible. Roll out, cut into rounds and bake to a golden brown.

Useful Recipes.

Beaten Biscuit.—Take a pint of flour, two and a half tablespoonfuls of lard, a level teaspoonful of salt and enough water to make a stiff dough. First mix the flour, lard and salt together. Then add water carefully, for the dough must not be too thin, and to use more flour mars the proportions. Beat the dough until it is thoroughly smooth and pops as you roll it. The biscuit should be about a third of an inch thick. Bake about twenty minutes in a moderate oven.

When the housewife wishes to make biscuit in a hurry this method is recommended:

Emergency Biscuit. — Select the ingredients in the proportion of any good recipe for biscuit. Then add milk or water enough to make the dough soft enough to drop from the end of the spoon. Drop on a buttered pan in spoonfuls an inch or so apart. Brush over with milk and bake for eight minutes in a hot oven.

There is more Catarrh in this section of the country than all other diseases put together, and until the last few years was supposed to be incurable. For a great many years doctors pronounced it a local disease and prescribed local remedies, and by constantly failing to cure local treatment, pronounced it incurable. Science has proven catarrh to be a constitutional disease and therefore requires constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, Ohio, is the only constitutional cure on the market. It is taken internally in doses from 10 drops to a teaspoonful. It acts directly on the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. They offer one hundred dollars for any case it fails to cure. Send for circulars and testimonials.

A meeting of the children's committee in connection with the triple observance of St. John's parish will be held this evening. Miss Catherine Larkin is chairman.

Harry Greenlaw of Babcock street, who was slightly injured when his machine toppled over an embankment in the rear of his house is making good improvement. He escaped with minor injuries and bruises.

Mayor Stone announced this morning that he had instructed the Tax Collector to immediately get after the 1912 real estate taxes that remained unpaid and it is probable that a number of parcels will soon be advertised for sale.

The funeral of Ernest Christianson was held from his home, 50 Albertina street, Sunday afternoon. Services were conducted by Rev. Paul Hallin, pastor of the Swedish Baptist church. Several selections were rendered by the church choir. Burial was in Mt. Wollaston cemetery.

The summer meeting of the Norfolk conference of Unitarian and other Christian churches will be held with the Eliot Unitarian church at South Natick, Wednesday, June 4, at 10 A. M. and 3.30 P. M. It is expected that several from Quincy will attend the meetings.

Frank Hoyt of Atlantic, under contract with the Brockton New England league team, has been spending the past few days here. Since Frank joined the squad he has had but little time to remain in Quincy, but the few days of wet weather resulted in his reappearance after a long absence. Reports show that he has been making good and fulfilling the expectations of John McCue and Thomas Burns, the controlling forces of the club.

Mary, the six year old daughter of Mrs. Mary Irwin of Foster street who has been at the Quincy City Hospital for about 12 weeks recovering from a broken leg and other injuries received when she was struck by an automobile at Foster and Washington street, is at her home and is able to use crutches. She was struck by the machine while crossing Washington street shortly after the close of the morning session at the Coddington school where she was a pupil.

DYNAMITE "PLANT" CASE

Private Secretary of Wood to Give Testimony For Government

Boston, May 26.—William M. Wood's private secretary, George W. Simpson, will be one of the witnesses for the government at the trial of Wood, Fred E. Atteaux and Dennis J. Collins for conspiracy to plant dynamite near the homes of striking employes of the American Woolen company in Lawrence.

Through his testimony and that of several other officials of the company, the prosecution expects to fill in some of the gaps in the chain of evidence which, the government claims, will show that the president of the American Woolen company was a party to the alleged conspiracy.

IN QUANDARY OVER SUNDRY CIVIL BILL

Much Buffeted Measure May Reach Wilson This Week

Washington, May 26.—President Wilson may have actually before him this week for his approval or rejection the much buffeted $117,000,000 sundry civil appropriation bill, which includes the provision exempting labor unions and farmers' organizations from prosecution through funds appropriated for the enforcement of the Sherman anti-trust law.

What the president will do with the measure because of the exemption clause, which caused former President Taft to veto it, is engaging country-wide attention and it is reported that the chief executive has not made up his mind what to do with the bill.

During the week just passed the executive office has been flooded with letters and petitions regarding the measure, some urging him in emphatic language to veto it because of the exemption clause and others appealing to him to give it his approval.

PROTEST WITHOUT RESULT

New Rule of "Right" and "Left" In the Navy Will Stand

Washington, May 26.—Although Rear Admiral Winslow protested against the use of "right" and "left" instead of "port" and "starboard" in giving orders to the helmsmen in the navy, Secretary Daniels announced that the change which he recently ordered will stand.

Winslow based his protest upon the similarity of sounds of the words "right" and "left" when given as orders in a strong breeze. The general board, to which Daniels referred the protest, did not agree with the admiral, however, and recommended that the change stand.

THREATENED BY WANT

Family of Three End Their Lives by Inhaling Gas

Philadelphia, May 26.—Despondent because his barber business was failing and the sheriff was about to sell him out, Frederick Schimmel and his wife ended their lives and that of their 5-year-old daughter by inhaling gas.

A note found in the room and evidently written by the husband, according to the police, told the story of the man's failure in business and the decision to end their lives.

Miss Ethel Morst and Master Parker Reed acted as score keepers.

RABIES AT BRAINTREE.

An extreme case of rabies caused the death of a dog at Braintree Sunday owned by John Merrill. The dog exhibited symptoms early in the week and was imprisoned for observation. A complete paralysis affected the dog Sunday and before a veterinry of police officer arrived he expired.

The police of Braintree are watching every dog in the town. Rabies are prevalent and several family pets have contracted the disease within the past month.

The tagging system in vogue in Quincy is a protection and assists an officer in determining whether the dog is astray and any dog coming here without a tag can be picked up and held.

The Quincy and Chelsea police will play at the Ward three grounds Tuesday at 11 o'clock.

Mary Monroe of Randolph was arraigned for neglecting to pay for the board of her minor child. Case continued until June 24, n the condition that she pay to the woman who boarded the child the sum of $30.

THE FAIR SUCCESSFUL.

The annual two night fair given by the Ladies of the First United Presbyterian church closed Saturday evening in Union hall with a large attendance. The program for the evening consitsed of a comedy sketch, "The Paper Match" by the pupils of the Sunday School who presented on the first night "A Scene at the Union Station." The booths and tables were in charge of the same ladies of the congregation directed by Mrs. J. A. Morrison of Goddard street, general chairman. A neat sum was netted which will be devoted to church purposes.

PASTORATES OF BETHANY CHURCH

Rev. B. A. Willmott Will Become the Eighth in Eighty Years

The Third to be Installed in Last 40 Years

It is a notable fact that Bethany Congregational church has installed but two pastors in 40 years, the Rev. Edward Norton in 1874 and the Rev. Edwin Noah Hardy, Ph. D., in 1895. Therefore the installation of Rev. Benjamin A. Willmott tomorrow is an important date for the church.

The order of services for the installation is subject to approval of the council, and therefore cannot be announced officially in advance. It is proposed, however, that Rev. A. Fredric Dunnels of Lowell, long acquainted with the pastor shall deliver the sermon, and that Rev. Edwin N. Hardy, Ph. D., for fifteen years pastor of Bethany church, shall give the charge to the people. It is probably that the following will also take part: Rev. Edward Norton, the pastor emeritus; Rev. Asher Anderson, D. D., of Boston; Rev. Adelbert L. Hudson of the Unitarian church and others.

BUT SEVEN PASTORS.

Bethany church was established in 1832 and was known for many years as the Evangelical Congregational church, but in 1904 was incorporated as Bethany Congregational church.

During the first year or two the pulpit was supplied by Rev. T. Field and Rev. Stephen S. Smith. The first pastor was Rev. William M. Cornell who was installed Aug. 20, 1834, and continued until July 8, 1839.

In 1841 Rev. William Allen was installed, his pastorate continuing until Aug. 28, 1849.

The Rev. Nelson Clark was the third pastor, being installed Jan. 2, 1850, and continuing until 1859.

The Rev. M. Thayer followed but was never installed.

Nov. 19, 1862, the Rev. Edward P. Thwing was ordained, and continued until 1867.

The Rev. James E. Hall the fifth pastor was installed April 16, 1868 and continued until 1873.

The Rev. Edward Norton, now of Quincy, became the sixth pastor June 16, 1874 and continued until 1895, the church becoming firmly united and prosperous during his pastorate.

The Rev. Edwin Noah Hardy, Ph. D., now of La Grange, Ill., commenced his duties here in July 1895 and was installed as the seventh pastor in October of that year. His pastorate was also a long one as he resigned Jan. 18, 1911, and continued until May 1, 1911, nearly 16 years.

The Rev. Benjamin A. Willmott will be the eighth pastor. It was in May 1912 that he began his duties here, and it is with great pleasure that Bethany church now installs him as pastor, with the wish that his pastorate may be as long as his recent predecessors.

THE NEW PASTOR.

Mr. Willmott was born in a suburb of London, England, where his mother seven sisters and two brothers still reside. He was educated in England, and came to this country in 1890, entering Bangor Theological seminary, graduating in the class of 1896.

In 1896 he maried Alice Lowell Upton, daughter of Elisha Upton, editor of the Bath Times, of Bath, Maine and the same year was ordained to the Christian ministry in Lee, N. H., over which church he was installed for four years, his only child, John Frederick, being born there.

In 1900, Mr. Willmott was called to the pastorate of the Congregational church in Townsend, Mass., where he remained for over five years and in 1906 was called to the pastorate of the First Congregational church in Lowell where he was very successful. From Lowell he came to Quincy last year.

OBSERVATIONS

Not What They Seem

There is a market and a demand for merchandise of all grades, and there is not a shadow of opprobrium attaching to either seller or buyer of even the lowest grades. Everything has its use and its value, if sold at an HONEST PRICE.

But competition is unfair which puts a good profit-paying price on a low-grade article and claims a value equal to a similar article of better quality—advertising it as a "bargain." Such competition gives us little real concern, because we have faith that eventually most buyers will discover where such practice prevails, and learn that giving things their right names, true valuation and fair price, is the very foundation principle of this Store.

PRESENTATION.

Twenty-five young ladies of the Goodyear stitching room of the Rice & Hutchins, South Braintree factory surprised Miss Winifred L. Hart in her home on Phillips street Monday evening and presented her with a purse containing $35 in gold. The presentation was made by Miss Jennie Chesley. Miss Hart resigned after three years service as forelady of the Goodyear stitchers. The gift was a token of the esteem in which he is held by the young ladies.

The appearance of her friends was unexpected and when the gift was presented she was overcome. In making a brief acceptance she spoke of the loyalty of the girls during her connection with the room and said she would always recall with pleasure the happy moments of the past.

Cake and fruit punch was served and an impromtu entertainment was rendered by those present. The gathering adjourned about 10.30 P. M.

Quincy lodge of Elks have several candidates for initiation at its regular meeting tonight in Colonial hall. The meeting of the Grand lodge in Rochester, N. Y. will be talked up after the meeting. Several members of Quincy lodge are planning to take in the trip.

A DELIGHTFUL PROGRAMME

At Commencement Concert of the Quincy Mansion School

The commencement concert at the Quincy Mansion school was given by the pupils, Monday evening and was thoroughly enjoyed by relatives and friends who filled Livermore hall. It was under the direction of Messrs. William Howard and S. Newton Cutler teachers of violin and piano and Mrs. Bertha Cushing Child, vocal teacher. The program was varied and well interpreted showing the careful and systematic training given the young ladies and meriting the appreciative applause.

It was a pleasurable evening beginning with the quartet which rendered "Whispering Hope" by Hawthorne, and ending with singing by Mrs. Child, who is always a favorite, not only at the school but in Quincy where her rich contralto voice is often heard. She delighted the audience with her thorough musical sympathy, dramatic instinct, and splendid voice in the rendering of "O don fatale" from Don Carlos by Verdi, which aroused the greatest enthusiasm.

Mr. Howard accompanied on the violin and Miss Irene Worthen on the piano. Those rendering of the vocal numbers showed the most satisfactory results in voice culture. The instrumental work showed such technic as is best adapted to the needs of each individual pupil in the study of the best piano forte literature and the violin solos showed a sure and delicate touch rounding out a very enjoyable musical evening.

Individual parts were taken by: Bernice E. Savage, Darthea Heald, Louise Sanders, Mary Williams, Katherine Pike, Doris E. Haley, Barbara Switzer, Miriam Goodspeed, Ivis Thompson, Priscilla Briggs, Lillia H. Slayton, Barbara Switzer, Villo A. Latcher, Fentress S. Kerlin, Beatrice C. Perry and Caroline Hayden.

In the quartet were: Miss Briggs, Mrs. Childs, Miss Perry and Miss Switzer.

DISTRICT COURT.

Fred W. McCelcheon was fined $10 for drunkenness at Quincy, and Frank J. Kerrigan $10 for drunkenness at Milton.

Four Milton youths were summoned into coure for hunting rabbits on the Blue Hills Reservation. After hearing the evidence however the court dismissed the complaints.

Today is juvenile day at the court and a large number of juveniles cases were heard in the juvenile session.

QUINCY MUTUAL BUILDING

On Move today to Make Way for Improvement

The building of the Quincy Mutual Fire Insurance Co., which for years had occupied the lot on the corner of Washington street near Coddington street has started on its journey across Coddington street to the Faxon lot adjoining the Court house. In order to move it across the street it was necessary to take down the trolley wire as well as the numerous telephone and electric light wires on Coddington street. At one time there was a building between the Insurance building and Coddington street, occupied by N. B. Furnald, Ewell & Josephs, Warren W. Adams and others. It was razed when Coddington street was widened. Now the street will be widened again.

At one time there were four buildings on Washington street between the Public Library and Coddington street, and two on Coddington street between Washington and Spear streets. These were the residence of the late Joseph T. French which was moved to the City farm; the Quincy House once occupied by Mrs. Esther Hayden as a drug store; the Insurance building and the Furnald building; and on Coddington street the residence of the late James E. Tirrell, moved to Woodward avenue, and the residence of the late Elbridge C. Comey moved near Newcomb street.

Now the Public Library grounds will be bounded by Washington, Coddington and Spear streets, and the view of the building from City Square will not be obstructed.

Mr. and Mrs. John W. Hersey of Medford, formerly of Coddington street are in town for a short visit to their niece Mrs. Henry McLean of Winthrop avenue.

FOURTH OF JULY APPROPRIATION

New Building Ordinance and New Plumbing Ordinance Reported

Orders for New Sidewalks and Acceptance of Streets

Monday night's adjourned meeting of the City Council was an important one from many points of view. Not only were there a large number of committee reports submitted, the Street Committee alone reporting on twenty matters, but there were many other important matters not the least of which was the order authorizing the City Treasurer to borrow an additional sum of $100,000 in anticipation of taxes, which the Finance Committee increased to $150,000. Orders were reported creating a new plumbing ordinance and a new building ordinance. The only debates of importance occurred on the temporary loan order, the order for $999 for the July Fourth celebration and the new plumbing ordinance. Every member of the Council was present.

LICENSE REVOKED.

The Mayor forwarded a communication from the Chief of Police stating that George H. Murray had pleaded guilty and paid a fine of $50 for maintaining a gaming nuisance at his pool room and recommending that his license be revoked. Laid on the table until later when Councilman Gilliatt offered an order revoking the license which was adopted.

CEMETERY ENLARGEMENT.

The Mayor forwarded a communication from the Managers of Public Burial Places recommending that the property known as the Murphy house belonging to the Woodward Fund be purchased for an addition to the cemetery. Referred to the Finance Committee.

PETITIONS.

A petition of the Telephone company for a relocation of poles was granted.

A petition that David Silverman be granted a junk collectors license was referred to the License committee.

Councilman Cunningham raised a point of order that the petition could not be received. The chair ruled that as the party's application was still pending before the committee it could be received. An appeal was taken from the ruling of the chair but he was sustained on a rising vote of 15 yes and 5 no.

Two petitions favoring the restricting of junk collectors in Ward Two to a particular district were received and referred to the Committee on Licenses.

A large number of applications for minor licenses were received and referred to the Committee on Licenses.

Councilman Thompson presented a petition that the name of Goffe street be changed to Presidents Lane. Referred to the Committee on Streets.

STREET REPORTS.

The Committee on Streets reported on the following matters.

Reference to the Executive on the orders for a retaining wall on Kent

THE WALKING HABIT.

Edward Payson Weston plans one more notable pedestrian achievement in his tramp starting from New York June 2, for a 1500 mile walk to Minneapolis. He hopes to reach his destination Aug. 2.

Mr. Weston's feats upon the road are probably regarded by the generality of men as interesting, but exceedingly eccentric. Like the six-year old boy who plays the piano skillfully they might be worth attention, but of no universal application.

The popular method when persons of sedentary occupation feel their physical vitality low, is to gulp down many copious gallons of mineral water or erect pulley weights in their sleeping rooms. They yank at these weights desultorily morning and night. They count their motions carefully so as to be sure not to do too many. But it is not easy to manufacture health to order in this way.

The man who enjoys walking is regarded as singular. When his friends meet him piking along, they pick him up, feeling that they do him a favor in helping him reach his destination.

Mayor Gaynor of New York has had the habit for many years of walking daily to his office and back, three miles each way, and may have it still. He says the young men and women who crowd the street-cars many of the fellows puffing at cigarettes, look at him trudging along as a curiosity. Probably though, had Mr. Gaynor not kept up this exercise, he would today be underground as the result of the assassin's bullet.

Even country people do not walk as they used to. Formerly the youngsters thought nothing of a three mile trudge each way between home and school. Now if they have to tramp more than a mile, they must have a transportation wagon.

Mr. Weston is now 74 years old. His abundant physical vitality shows the possibilities of a ripe and vigorous old age for every man and woman.

It seems as though there were an unusual large number of dogs running about this year who have not been licensed. Certainly many do not wear the brass tag which is furnished licensed dogs by the City Clerk. Many of these dogs make a nuisance of themselves by running over peoples gardens and flower beds tearing up the ground where new seeds have been planted. It would be a good idea if many of these dogs were taken care of.

It looks after all as though the Glorious Fourth would not go by default in the City of Presidents. There is luck in three of a kind—999—especially with a dollar mark ahead.

AFTERNOON OF ENJOYMENT

Malcolm and Robert Kennedy Entertain Young Friends

Malcolm and Robert Kennedy gave a very unique party Saturday afternoon to their little friends. It was a novelty to the participants and proved very enjoyable to all.

The invitations announced a "moving picture party" but no one actually knew what this signified until they assembled at the boy's home, 81 Botolph street at 2 P. M. when they were soon escorted to Music hall.

The invitations caused the party to vary from most others; for the children were requested to dress either as cowboys or as Indians, which all were delighted to do, and as they marched in line to Music hall theatre the cowboys, Indians and squaws were a very pretty sight. Thomas Phillips was captain of the cowboys and Malcom Kennedy chief of the Indians.

At 4.30 the party returned to Mr. and Mrs. Kennedy's home where games (both in and out-of-doors) were played. A contest between the cowboys and Indians resulted in many being captured and several children reported at home that they were among the captured. Music was furnished by Mr. Kennedy's graphophone which entertained the children for some time Refreshments consisting of strawberry ice cream, cake and confectionery were served by Mrs. Kennedy and her assistants and it was 6 o'clock before the children departed for their homes.

Those present were: Thomas and Herbert Phillips of Houghs Neck, Lorimer Hanson of Squantum and the following Atlantic young people: Mildred Newman, Marjorie Dame John Fuller, Olive Fuller, Ada York, Corydon York, Eleanor Holt, Ruth Beeman, Earl Beeman, Dorothy Buckley, Robert O'Doherty, Constance Stecher, Emma Walker, Murray Hamilton, Earle Hersey, Meta Miller, Ralph Smith, Lawrence Coombs, Fred Brown, Fred Murkland, Stanley Murkland, Ellsworth Littlefield, Jackie Coombs and Wilmet Prey.

TORPEDO BOAT DESTROYERS

Government to Ask for Bids for Six Large Ones

Quincy is already interested in the announcement that Secretary Daniels of the Navy will ask for bids in a few days for six new torpedo boat destroyers. The largest vessels of their class yet designed for the Navy are provided for in plans approved on Monday by Secretary Daniels. Plans specifications and advertisements for the vessels will be issued about June 1, and bids will be opened on Aug. 4.

In brief the requirements for the new ship will be:

Length, 110 feet: beam, 29 feet 10 inches; draft, 9 feet 3 inches; displacement, 1090 tons; battery, four 4-inch rapid-fire guns, four twin torpedo tubes; machinery, steam turbines and oilburning water-tube boilers.

VALLEY STREET DUMP.

The Board of Health give notice today that on and after Monday, June 2, the old dump on Valley street will be discontinued ,and dumping of rubbish there will be strictly forbidden. On and after that date rubbish may be deposited at the new dump in the rear of the City Stables off Sea street. As previously stated the old dump on Valley street has long been a source of nuisance ,and people living in that vicinity and on Edgemere road will be glad to learn that it is to be discontinued.

HOLIDAY GAME.

One of the warmest games scheduled for Memorial Day is the afternoon contest between the Fore River Apprentices and the Orients on the Ward Three playground. The Orients won the amateur championship of the city last season after real base ball ability. The Apprentices, a few seasons ago were the fastest in the city. Last summer no team represented the yard and the aggregation was reorganized this year by Joseph Larkin, supervisor of the apprentices. Both teams have been playing good ball to date.

CITY COUNCIL

street, and for catch basins on Webster street. Accepted.

An order appropriating $7,000 for changing the grade of Elm avenue. To Finance Committee.

An order granting the Street Railway company a location for a double track on Elm avenue between Hancock street and Huntington square. One track to be built immediately and the second track to be laid inside of ten years. The order also calls for the street railway company to concrete at the street crossing, to rock ballast the reserved space and revokes the present location on the side of the street.

Leave to withdraw on the petitions for tar sidewalks on Merrymount road, for a granolithic sidewalk between Saville street and School streets to replace the present brick sidewalk on Hancock street, and for a tar sidewalk on Washington street near the corner of South street. Accepted.

An order for a public hearing June 2, on petitions of the Electric Light Co. for a location for poles. Adopted.

An order granting the street railway company a location for poles on Sea street and Manet avenue. Ordered to a second reading.

Leave to withdraw on the petition of the Electric Light Co., for a location for poles on Moscow street. Accepted.

An amendment to the order for $800 for rebuilding Miller street adding the borrowing clause. Referred to Finance Committee.

A request that the rules of the Council be suspended in order that an order for a public hearing on the acceptance of Ocean street for June 16, might be adopted. Suspension of rules refused.

An order for $12,375 for permanent sidewalks on the following streets: Stewart, Cross, Grand View avenue, Newport avenue, Elmwood avenue, Huntington Square, Copeland street, Billings road, Hancock street, Atlantic and Faxon road.

Councilman Bryant moved to amend by adding Deldorf street for $400. Order read and referred to Finance Committee.

Orders were also reported to accept the following streets:

Fairmount way, $2,200.
Morton street, $100.
Staunton street, $600.
Muirhead street, $1,100.
Abaigail avenue, $3,500.
Curtis avenue, $2,000.

Also an order for $10,000 to widen Sea street from the Willows to Winthrop street. All referred to Finance Committee.

FINANCE REPORTS.

The Finance Committee reported on the following matters:

Reference to the Executive on the order to pay John Hennigan $25 or for work done at the Gridley Bryant school. Accepted.

Ought to pass on the order for $1,225.11 to pay deficit bill for Gypsy Moth work. Rules suspended and order passed.

Ought to pass on the order appropriating $300 for advertising new ordinances, charging the amount to estimated receipts. Ordered to a second reading.

FOURTH OF JULY.

The Finance committee reported ought to pass on the order for $999 for the July Fourth celebration charging the amount to the estimated receipts.

Councilman Ross spoke at length in opposition to the order. He opposed because of the financial condition of the city. If the public will not contribute the money we should not appropriate the money. He said that he would probably be accused of being unpatriotic, but he was ready and willing to fight for his country but would not vote for this order. The city cannot afford it. In olden times town constables looked after the boys the night before. They were looking for trouble and usually found it. Now the police co-operate with the boys and we have no trouble.

If we should expend the money in building sidewalks in the different school districts, so that children could go to school with dry feet it would be better. Our streets are in a deplorable condition, still we are willing to blow in money for fireworks. Property owners are now overburdened with high taxes and on the Fourth of July you will find many poor women hard at work trying to earn money to pay their taxes. He had two boys and he believed if he had $2 to spend it would be better to buy them clothing.

Councilman Bailey said he could go him one better. He had three and if he had $3 it would be better to spend $2 on a pair of pants and give $1 to the celebration.

Councilman Beeman spoke at length in favor. Looking at it from a business standpoint it was a good asset. In Ward Six for every dollar given by the city ten are contributed. There are less fires and less calls for the police auto when we have a celebration at home. The business men are benefited as it brings thousands to Quincy on that day. It is a good advertisement for the city and shows that we are alive.

Councilman Cunningham opposed the order on the same grounds as he opposed last year. His ground of opposition was the financial condition of the city. He believed in celebrations and that we should have rousing ones, but we are in no condition to burn up $1,000. It is said that it will be an asset to the city. Did you ever know of a big convention where the money for it was not subscribed by the business houses? If it is to be a big asset to the city it is up to the business men to contribute.

Councilman Duffy strenuously opposed on account of the financial condition of the city. There are today city laborers who are out of work, simply because the city has none for them. It would be better to give these men work.

Councilman Griffin said that he could not take the remarks of the Councilman from Ward Six seriously, meaning Councilman Cunningham.

Councilman Devany opposed the order. The city could not afford it.

Councilman Richards agreed that the finances of the city were hard pressed but what we want to do is to inculcate a spirit of patriotism in the youth and the foreigners of our city This money is an investment. We want to inculcate a spirit of love and reverence for the Stars and Stripes a flag that stands for something.

Councilman Duffy replied that we are expending $200,000 a year in our public schools to inculcate this spirit of patriotism.

In reply to a question by Councilman Cunningham, Mayor Stone said that last year the public subscriptions amounted to about $1,400.

Councilman Sandberg believed in the expenditure. It brings people from all about us to Quincy, and he believed that $25,000 would be expended in the city on account of a celebration

The order was then ordered to a second reading.

Councilman Bryant offered an amendment which provided that the sum should be expended by the July Fourth celebration committee under the direction of the Mayor. The object of this was, as he stated, to have the money expended for a general celebration and not have it divided among different wards. If the amendment passed Ward Six would not get any part of the appropriation as in other years.

Councilman Cunningham raised a point of order that the motion was not in order for the reason that there was no question before the Council The chair ruled the point not well taken. An appeal from the ruling of the chair was taken and the chair was sustained. The amendment was adopted. The rules were then suspended and the order passed by roll call Councilman Cunningham, Devaney, Duffy, Gilliatt and Ross voting against. All others voted in favor except the President who did not vote.

TEMPORARY LOANS.

The Finance Committee reported an amendment to the temporary loan order for $100,000 making the amount $150,000 and providing that these notes should be paid during the year 1913.

City Treasurer Tilden in reply to questions by Councilman Richards said that they could be paid by renewing the $175,000 of notes coming due this year.

Councilman Richards then argued at length against the part of the amendment making the notes come due in 1913. It was not good business to renew notes. There are certain liabilities that must be paid but as best he did not like temporary notes If we could live up to the ordinance and city charter so that money appropriated for one purpose could not be expended for another it would be a good thing. He moved to amend by striking out the words "To be paid in 1913."

Councilman Bailey spoke in favor of the amendment. There was nothing wrong about temporary notes Every city and town has to issue them. This is an attempt to live up to the ordinance and charter. It means that when money for current expenses comes due they shall be met by money from these temporary loans. This year the tax sales ought to bring in more money and it may not be necessary to renew the notes. He believed that the Mayor intended to advertise the 1912 taxes this year.

At this point Tax Collector Sandberg was called before the Council and asked many questions by Councilman Bryant. He was asked what he intended to do about the resolve passed by the Council and signed by the Mayor, that taxes of 1912 unpaid in September 1913 should be sold. He was also asked a number of questions if his office force was sufficient and if he had appropriation enough to do this work.

The Tax Collector said that he had sent out one summons and was getting another ready to send out. That he did not have office force enough to get out the advertisements and not enough in his appropriation to pay for the advertising of the 1912 taxes.

Mayor Stone said that he had a conference with the Treasurer and Tax Collector and that a sale of 1912 taxes would be held.

The Tax Collector in reply to further questions said that there were from 3,000 to 4,000 parcels of 1912 property unpaid. It would be a big job to get the sale ready .

City Auditor Fairbanks was asked if he agreed with the statement of the Treasurer, and replied that everything depended upon the amount of taxes collected.

The amendment of Councilman Richards was then rejected, the order as amended read and ordered to a second reading.

The Committee on Licenses reported orders granting a number of minor licenses all of which were adopted.

NEW ORDINANCES.

The Ordinance Committee reported a new building ordinance to take the place of the present building ordinance to take the place of the present building ordinance. Ordered to a second reading.

The Committee on Heath reported a new plumbing ordinance. The new ordinance is similar in many respects to the present ordinance, the main point of difference being that it provides for the use of larger soil pipe.

Councilman Richards offered an amendment striking out section 6 of the new ordinance and substituting section 6 of the present ordinance. This is the section which refers to the weight of pipe to be used.

He argued that the use of heavy pipe put an unnecessary burden on the man who was building a house. He had been called on the telephone by one contractor who said that he figures from a plumber who had told him the difference on one house would be $40.

Inspector of Plumbing Kenney was called before the Council and in reply to questions stated that ninety percent of the cities were now requiring the heavy pipe to be used. It was impossible to properly calk the light pipe, and there was constant danger of its being broken in handling. There must have been some mistake in the statement made, for the difference on a single house between the light and heavy pipe would not be more than from $4 to $6. The heavy pipe was also better from a health point of view. Plumbers often broke the light pipe when putting it in and somebody had to pay for it, so that he did not think the extra cost would be excessive.

At the request of Councilman Richards, Contractor Nelson appeared before the Council. He said that he did not object to heavy pipe in large houses but did not think it necessary in smaller houses.

Councilman Bailey stated that at the hearing before the committee both the master plumber and the men had agreed that there was constant fear of breakage with the light pipe and the heavy pipe was the best.

The amendment of Councilman Richards was rejected and the report of the committee accepted and the order ordered to a second reading.

Under a provision of the new ordinance it does not go into effect until Jan. 1, 1914. This will allow plumbers to use what light pipe they have on hand.

The Committee on Public Buildings reported ought not to pass on the order of 1912, appropriating $300 for land for a public dump as this had been taken care of in a recent order that had been passed. Accepted.

NEW ORDERS.

Councilman Gauthier offered a resolve authorizing the Mayor to petition the legislature for authority for the city to pay to the children of Willard E. Nightingale, who was killed by the fire apparatus, the sum of $500 each. Referred to Finance Committee.

Councilman Gilliatt offered an order appropriating $4,400 for the purchase of land for a playground for the Massachusetts Fields school. Referred to the Committee on Public Buildings.

Councilman Bailey offered an order amending the order passed some weeks ago by the City Council appropriating $50,000 for water extensions changing the interest from 4 per cent to 4 1-2 per cent. Referred to the Finance Committee.

BEAUTY SPOT AT SQUANTUM

Squantum Woman's Club Have a Flower Garden

Squantum now boasts of a municipal flower garden. The movement of the Squantum Woman's club to beautify the little parks and squares in different parts of this section was inaugurated Saturday when a committee of ladies assisted by a number of boys laid out a handsome flower garden in the plot of land across from the post-office. A variety of plants were set out in the garden and the improvement was plainly noticable to the large number of Sunday visitors. The square is now defaced by a number of unsightly bill boards which it is hoped will be removed in the near future.

Mr. and Mrs. C. H. Ramsdell and Miss Kate Dane were week end guests of Mr. and Mrs. Hiram A. Morse of Bellevue road.

Mrs. Helen McGowan has as her guests over Sunday Mr. and Mrs. Mark Redmond of Dorchester.

TIGRIS AT KINCAIDE'S.

"Tigris," the four reel film at the Kincaide theatre, tells the life of an elaborate criminal who also has a fine side to hi snature. His double nature is in revolt against existing conditions.

Tigris is an outlaw and so conducts himself. Suspended attention is absent, constant action is present. The film terminates in an agonizing nightmare which runs riot through Roland while sleeping off a drugged potion. Because of the demand it will be shown on Monday and Tuesday only, and then in connection with a bill of vaudeville that is appreciable.

JUNIOR ORDER OF MOOSE.

Quincy lodge, Junior Order of Moose ttained its 90th member Monday evening at a meeting in Protection hall. Two candidates were initiated and four applications received.

Albert Halvosa of the senior lodge, who is instructor of the J. O. O. M. was present and gave a short address on "Moosism," and Albert J. Williams, governor of the lodge, gave a short talk on accomplishments.

Arrangements were made for the degree team to go to the Providence field day on June 19. New uniforms will be purchased and the team will enter the contest for the silver cup offered the best drilled team. They will work under the direction of John H. Kemp, captain. The following committee was appointed to take charge: Roy Horseman, John H. Kemp, John McCarthy and William Holt.

The committee in charge of the annual May party and dancing reported that the affair had been a grand financial success.

Roger P., the three months old son of Mr. and Mrs. Philip Conroy, died Monday at the residence of his parents 68 C street, South Boston. The funeral was held this afternoon from the home.

Grossmith and Irving.

Mr. Weeden Grossmith in "From Studio to Stage" tells how he very nearly spoiled his chances with Sir Henry Irving at the outset of his acting career. Mr. Grossmith in his studio days was in demand for his "imitations," and at the rehearsal of this play he was told that in his part of Jacques Strop he must "imitate" the gestures and so on of his master, Maclaire.

I rushed at it, hit the table and gave them my regular, conventional back drawing room imitation of the great man himself. Jogging my head, and waving my hands in the air, I shouted, "Hi, hi—er—er—landlord—er—er—why the devil—er—er—don't you bring—er—er—some—er—er—refreshment—er—for—myself and—er—er—er"— I never got any further. Fifty people on the stage collapsed, some with fear, others with laughter. Never had such a thing been known within the sacred walls of the Lyceum. The late Harry Loveday, the stage manager, turned pale with fright. The great chief glared at me for a moment with eyes dilated and then gave me a push, saying, "Stupid fellow!" He practically pushed me off the stage.

Enduring It Calmly.

In "The Fourth Generation," her volume of reminiscences of English social and literary life during the last century, Mrs. Janet Ross adds the name of Nassau W. Senior, the English economist, to the already long list of persons who consider music "a horrid noise that stops conversation."

Once at Bowood, Lord Lansdowne's place, Tom Moore had been prevailed upon to sing. All the party drew near to the piano save Mr. Senior, who sat at a small table and began to write with a quill pen on Lord Lansdowne's very ribbed paper. He was compiling an article on statistics or something of the sort.

Moore began, but he was so much worried by the persistent scratch, scratch, that he stopped to see who was making the odious noise.

Senior raised his head. "Oh, you don't disturb me, I assure you," he said innocently. "Pray, go on; I rather like it."

Insolence of Wealth.

A southern negro put up a sign on his place, "For Sail." He was ridiculed and changed it to "sell" and finally tried a third time, his sign reading "sall." It had not been up an hour when an old colored man came along and queried:

"Does you mean dat dis place am fur Sally? What yer gwine to giv' de place to Sally fur?"

"Am you findin' fault wid dat sign?" asked the other.

"Well, I doan' quite cotch on to de spellin'."

"You doan', eh? Has you got seben hundred dollahs to pay cash down fur dis place?"

"No, sah."

"Den you pass on an' shet up! Maybe I doan' spell just de same as you do, but I's got prospecks of handlin' seben hundred dollahs, while you got boaf knees out to de weddah. Go 'long, ole man; yo' too fly on jogerfy."

Weather Reduced to Prose.

The weather was once a picturesque and poetic thing. It came up in the night with a boom and a bang through the trees. It was a sort of mystic king that asked no questions, but just swung a scepter. It was grand in "red sky at night, the sailor's delight; red sky in the morning, sailors take warning." It was a wholesome lesson to proud man that he always had a master, and it made us more reverent toward nature and the Creator. There was such a difference in receiving our weather direct from heaven and receiving it by wire direct from Washington.—New York Mail.

Sounded Funny.

An individual of considerable importance, by name Tootle, once attended a reception, accompanied by his wife. The announcement was made, "Mr. Tootle!"

"And Mrs. Tootle," was suggested sotto voce in corrective tones.

"And Mrs. Tootle, too!" resounded like the blast of a horn through the room, to the evident amusement of the large assembly.—London Answers

Weighing the Baby.

"How many stamps will this baby take by parcel post?"

"It weighs fourteen pounds," announced the clerk. "The number of stamps required depends on where you want it to go."

"I don't want it to go anywhere, thank you. I just wanted to ascertain its weight."—Kansas City Journal.

A KNIFE OF FLAME

Wonderful Work Done by the Oxyacetylene Torch.

A MARVEL IN CUTTING STEEL.

This Astonishing Tool Will Slice a Massive Metal Beam Almost as Quickly as Though It Were Made of Cheese—It Is Also Used For Welding.

One of the most curious instruments used by the structural iron workers and steel shipbuilders, the most astonishing in its performance and the most spectacular when seen at work is the oxyacetylene torch. It is made in two forms—a welding torch and a cutting torch. With the former cast iron, cast steel, steel, wrought iron, aluminium, brass, copper, platinum and various alloys can be welded with ease, while a perfect weld can also be made between any combination of cast iron, steel, brass and copper. Welds are often made in steel and iron with this torch up to eight and nine inches in thickness, the heaviest weld of which there is any record being fourteen inches.

With the cutting torch steel and iron (other than cast iron) are readily cut, with the aid of mechanical devices for guiding the torch, up to a thickness of eight or nine inches. This means that with the oxyacetylene torch a piece of steel eight of nine inches thick and of any width can be cut squarely in two, just as a carpenter saws through a board or a beam. The kerf in cutting the steel—that is the part of the metal that is burned away where the cut is made—is only about one-eighth of an inch wide.

Steel six inches thick can be cut in this way at the rate of one foot in three minutes.

To the man who knows nothing of chemistry or what actually takes place when any object burns this seems incredible. When the process of combustion is explained the mystery is swept away. Combustion, then, in its simplest terms, consists in raising the temperature of an object to a point where it will unite chemically with the oxygen of the air. When this chemical action takes place it is accompanied by light and heat, and the object is said to "burn."

This temperature varies greatly with different objects or substances. Many substances that burn at a comparatively low temperature can be set on fire with a match. With these substances every one is familiar, and other substances that will not readily burn when a match is applied to them are popularly regarded as "fireproof."

But this is a wrong view. It may simply mean that the temperature at which the object will burn—called the "kindling temperature"—is too high to be reached by the burning match. This is the case with iron and steel, and when the oxyacetylene flame cuts through a bar of steel nine inches thick and three feet wide it simply burns up a layer of the metal one-eighth of an inch in thickness.

The welding torch, to describe it as simply as possible, consists of a handle through which extend two tubes of brass. These tubes are connected with two gas tanks, one containing oxygen and the other acetylene, and these gases are admitted to the tubes by valves at the rear, the oxygen entering the upper tube and the acetylene the lower. Both tubes open into the head of the torch, into which is screwed a nozzle or tip. The gases enter this tip by separate passages and are there mixed together and, being under pressure, spurted from the jet. The acetylene is first turned on and lighted. This is the fuel of the flame. Then the oxygen is turned on. This supports the flame.

The quantity of each gas can be regulated by the valves, and thus there is produced what is called a "neutral flame"—that is to say, it contains neither an excess of oxygen nor of acetylene, but just enough of each to accomplish complete combustion. The temperature produced by this flame, with an almost pencil point concentration, is approximately 6,300 degrees F.

In the cutting torch there is a difference in construction, because the object now is not only to heat the metal, but also to burn it—to consume it by fire. The torch is so made, therefore, that at first a "preheating" flame, which is the same as the welding flame, is directed against the metal, its purpose being to heat the metal to incandescence, or "white heat." When this point is reached a slight movement of the thumb on the hand holding the torch opens a valve that sends rushing against the hot metal a separate stream of oxygen under high pressure.

At its great heat of 6,300 degrees and in the presence of this free oxygen the metal readily burns. The iron or steel is the fuel, and the stream of oxygen supports the combustion.

The cutting torch is now used in the repair of ships in many ways. A new ventilator hole, a porthole, a piece of damaged deck or side plating can be cut out and removed in a few minutes. Very often when new boilers are to be installed in a vessel the old ones are cut into pieces with the torch and removed in a few hours.—New York Tribune.

The attitude of unhappiness is not only painful; it is mean and ugly.—James.

FEDERATION MEETINGS.

By invitation of the New England Women's Club, the State Federation of Women's Clubs will be held in the So. Congregational Church, Boston, Wednesday and Thursday. The programme will be opened at 9.30 A. M., Wednesday by Mrs. May Alden Ward, president of the hostess club and the response will be given by Mrs. Henry Coolidge Mulligan, president of the State Federation. Mrs. Percy V. Pennypacker, president of the General Federation, will give a greeting.

Reports of officers, Mrs. Herbert J. Gurney, Miss Jessie M. Fisher, Mrs. Arthur A. Hibbard, Mrs. Lena R. Wellington, Mrs. O. W. Bullock and Mrs. Emmons Crocker will follow, also of special committees: badge, Mrs. W. H. Alline; meetings, Mrs. Donald McIvor Blair; press, Miss Grace M. Burt; endowment fund, Mrs. Nathan N. Denison, and settlement work, Mrs. Sara T. S. Leighton; of the council meeting, Mrs. George W. Perkins, and of the American Peace Congress, Mrs. Fannie Fern Andrews, will conclude the morning session.

At 2.30 P. M., there is to be a fine programme of music by Miss Asunta Michelini, soprano and Louis Schalk, baritone, with Miss Gladys Alma Cooper, accompanist. Miss Michelini will sing the "Jewel Song" from "Faust," the "Prayer," from "Tosca," "Mavourneen" by Lang and "At Dawning," by Cadman. "So Sweet is She," "By the Short Cut" and "Macushla" are Mr. Schalk's numbers.

Reports of civil service reform, Mrs. John T. Tabor; industrial and social conditions, Mrs. Clarence W. Clark, and civics, Miss Maud Folts, will follow.

"The Beginning of the Federation" will be described by Mrs. Ward; "Early Federation Ideals," by Miss O. M. E. Rowe; "Twenty Years of Retrospect," by Miss Helen A. Whittier and "A Look into the Future," by Miss Georgie A. Bacon.

Music by the Durrell Orchestra from 7.30 to 8 will open the evening session. An address on "Some Dangers to the American Home," by Mrs. Pennypacker, will be followed by a reception.

The election will be an important feature of Thursday morning session, which will open at 9:30 o'clock. Interest centres, naturally, in Mrs. Mulligan's successor. It is generally believed that a club woman of prominence, wide experience and broad training, whose admirable work in the City Federation has increased her recent opportunities, will be unanimously chosen for that responsible office.

Reports of departments of work will be continued: Legislative, Mrs. Snow Rich; public health, Mrs. Lilias Folger; food sanitation, Mrs. Charles O. Tyler; home economics, Mrs. Schuiler Herron; conservation, Miss Mary C. Sweet and bureau of information, Miss Leila C. Pennock. Greetings from other States, Mrs. Pennpacker's speech on "The Endowment" and the announcement of election will end the session.

Music by Miss Elinor Whittemore, violinist and Miss Amee Lister, accompanist will open the afternoon session. The introduction of twelve new clubs comes next, then reports of the education department, Mrs. William Croswell Brown; art, Miss Helen A. Whittier; music, Mrs. Edward Newton and literature, Mrs. True Worthy White. The report of the committee on resolutions and the presentation of the new officers will end the meeting.

The rooms of the New England Women's Club, Chauncy Hall building Copley square, will be open to visiting club women for rest or conference during both days.

LABOR SMOKER.

Loftsmen and Helpers Branch, No. 14322, A. F. of L., held a successful smoker in the Johnson building, Monday evening. The affair was the first of a series planned for the members. Among those who sang solos were Hugh McLellan, John Hamilton, John Brockett, Robert Auld, Vernon Payne, the latter four rendering several quartette selections. John Tierney gave several whistling numbers and John McLean completed several recitations while those about heartily laughed. Wallace Stanford also received a fine reception for several recitations. A series of stories by Frederick McLellan was followed by buck and wing dancing by John Smith. Refreshments were served.

The committee in charge was Angus McDonald, Walter Stanford, Frederick McLellan and John Tierney.

True heroism is not sectional or local; it is a natural possession; an international asset. It doesn't involve success or failure; sometimes there's more heroism in losing than in winning.

There's not much that's heroic about the men's furnishing business; it's a matter-of-fact, hum-drum sort of a proposition. But it is possible to do business in a spirit of service; to see that the man who pays his money for merchandise shall get all that's possible to give in value. That's the way I'm trying to do business.

WILLARD vs WASHINGTON

Quincy Point Boys Accept West Quincy Challenge

The Willards who have not played a team game for a week will meet the Washington school on the Ward Three playground Wednesday afternoon in a practice game. Mr. Upton, their principal, realizes the result of inactivity and challenged Mr. Pollard's aggregation. Both teams are playing standard grammar school ball, and it would not be surprising if Washington won. They will have to work hard however to outplay the strong Willard infield, captained by Walter Egan, the pitcher.

HOLIDAY SPORTS.

Thomas J. Shortle, chairman of the sport committee of the St. Mary's C. T. A. & M. R. Society field day which will be held on the Ward Four playground, Memorial Day has received many entries. The games are open to the world and consist of 100 yard dash, 440 yard dash, broad jump, hop-step and jump. In the morning athletic games for boys will be held.

Three base ball games are arranged, the Orients and the Station Outing Club playing in the morning, the Colonials and the Rail Reds playing at noon and the St. Mary's and Ave Maria council, K. of C., in the afternoon.

Mr. and Mrs. Francis J. Fahy were called to Worcester recently by the death of Miss Rose Carver of that city. The late Miss Carver was a niece of Hon. James B. Carroll of Springfield and a cousin of Mrs. Fahy.

COBB GREATER BASE RUNNER THAN MILAN.

"Is Clyde Milan a better base runner than T. Cobb?"

This was a question asked of George Moriarty, the crack infielder of the Tigers, recently.

"No," instantly replied George.

"But Milan set a new record for base stealing last year," persisted the questioner.

"Admitting that, but Milan is not as good or as dangerous a man on the base paths as Cobb," returned the Tigers' assistant manager. "Milan is unquestionably one of the fastest men in the major leagues, and he earned all of the bases he stole last season, but Milan gets on first oftener and has more chances to steal second—the popular stealing point—than Cobb.

"Cobb stretches a lot of hits that to Milan would be singles. Cobb, therefore, is on second base and it is the general opinion that it is harder to steal third than it is second, for the reason that the catcher has a shorter and better throw.

"The records will show that Cobb gets many more doubles than Milan, and each one of these doubles counts against his chances of stealing. Then, again, it isn't always good policy to steal third. A single will score a fast man like Cobb or Milan, and once such a player is on second it is tempting fate to start to steal third.

"But so far as a base runner is concerned Cobb is Milan's superior, despite the Washington star's mark of last year."

GANDIL IN GRAND FORM.

Washington's First Baseman Putting Up Fine Article of Ball.

Take your hats off to "Chick" Gandil, the Washington first baseman. The guardian of first sack for the Nationals is putting up a grand article of ball and doing much to put his team where they are in the race.

"CHICK" GANDIL REACHING FOR A HIGH ONE.

Gandil is a wonderful mark for the infielders to throw at. It seems to matter little where the ball is thrown so that it is in the direction where Gandil is playing. If it comes near him he will do the rest.

Without Gandil on first the Washington infield would be weak.

Big Season For Motorboats.

Owners of fast motorboats are preparing for what promises to be the best in the history of power boat racing. Although the contest for the British international trophy will not be held in this country this year, the elimination trials to select the challenging boats will be very interesting. It is conservatively estimated that nearly $250,000 will be offered in the different competitive events throughout the country. This includes the Perry centennial celebration at Lake Erie.

Build Olympic Stadium at Chicago.

A permanent stadium patterned after the one at Stockholm, Sweden, will be built in Grant park, Chicago, this summer at a cost of $250,000, if plans considered recently by the officers of the American Olympic Games association materialize. Profits of the games at Grant park, June 28 to July 6, will be the nucleus of a building fund.

CRANCH HEADS THE LEAGUE

Whitewashes Montclair in a Great Game

Cranch, through the showing of Arbuckle, its mound artist, maintained its base ball stride Monday afternoon and defeated Washington, 2 to 0 in a game that essentially depended on box work. In the fourth innings with one out and the bases full, Arbuckle fielded a hot grounder and caught the man who was forced from third. Then, with the bases again full he succeeded in fanning the batsmen and closed up one of the most critical moments of the game.

A large crowd of Montclair rooters attended in hopes of seeing the Cranch defeated. This would have made a triple tie between Washington, Cranch and Montclair. At various periods they let lose their enthusiasm in an effort to rattle Arbuckle, but his heady work squirmed Cranch out of ticklish situations. He secured five strikeouts, two of them retiring the side.

Gurney pitched well, and managed to keep himself in control. The runs which were scored in the first two innings were earned by Cranch and in no way reflected on his ability as a deliverer. The score:

BRAINTREE FIRE.

The first alarm whistles heard just before midnight was the sounding of Box 147 in Braintree for a fire in a barn owned and occupied by an Italian on Granite street. The fire made quite a blaze which could be seen for a long distance. So clear did the whistle sound that many thought the fire must be in Quincy.

SCOTT'S BODY WILL NOT BE DISTURBED

Companions' Bodies Will Also Remain In Frozen South

London, May 27.—No effort is to be made to disturb the body of Captain Robert F. Scott nor those of the heroes who died with him while returning from the expedition to the South Pole.

Lord Curzon made this announcement at the annual meeting of the Royal Geographical society, when the society's medals were presented to the widows of Captain Scott and Dr. Edward A. Wilson and to the surviving members of the expedition.

The relatives of the dead men had expressed the unanimous desire that the recovery of the bodies should never be attempted.

WON'T WAIT A YEAR

Progressive Republicans Want an Early Reform Convention

Washington, May 27.—Senator Cummins announced that the conciliation committee of progressive Republicans would meet again within the next two weeks to prepare another appeal for a Republican national convention this fall to consider party reorganization and changing the method of delegate representation.

The progressive Republican leaders will urge the national committee, when it meets sixty days after adjournment of congress, not to postpone the convention until next year as was tentatively agreed as a result of the national executive committee meeting here last Saturday.

Woman a Thief For Seventy-One Years Asks Prison Sentence

New York, May 27.—Eighty years old and a thief since she was 9 years old was the confession made to Judge Swan in the general sessions court by Ellen McCarthy, who was charged with grand larceny.

Through her attorney, she said she was penniless, and requested the court to send her to Auburn prison, where she would have a place to sleep and receive three meals a day. She was remanded for sentence.

ALLIES STILL AT ODDS

Greek Fleet Is Fired on by Bulgarian Batteries at Kavala

London, May 27.—The strained relations between the Balkan allies show little improvement.

A Times dispatch from Athens says the Greek fleet, while passing Kavala, was fired upon by the Bulgarian shore batteries. This new incident, following the severe fighting at Salonika, has created a painful impression at Athens, and the Greek government is making urgent representations to Bulgaria.

JURY IS CHOSEN IN LIBEL SUIT

Roosevelt Will Take Witness Stand In His Own Behalf

ADMITS AN OCCASIONAL GLASS

Rumors That He Has Been Intoxicated Will Be Denounced as Campaign Lies—Lights Fresh Cigar Every Time He Drinks Whiskey, but—He Never Smokes

Marquette, Mich., May 27.—In order to hasten the libel suit of Theodore Roosevelt against Editor George A. Newett, which went to trial here yesterday afternoon, a night session was held with the purpose of completing the jury. By 11 o'clock the twelve men to complete the panel were selected.

The arrival of Roosevelt, accompanied by Gifford Pinchot, Truman H. Newberry, James R. Garfield, Jacob A. Riis and others, caused scarcely a ripple on the placid surface of this little city. Only a few persons were at the train.

The plaintiff entered the courtroom with rapid strides, and there was a craning of necks for a moment to see him, but there was no demonstration, and presently the spectators had eyes only for the veniremen examined.

George A. Newett, the defendant, whose paper, the Iron Ore of Ishpeming, alleged that Roosevelt "got drunk and that not infrequently," sat at a table with his lawyers. He appeared exhausted from his recent serious illness and sat much of the time with his eyes closed.

Roosevelt will be one of the first witnesses to testify for the prosecution. His direct evidence will not take up much time. He will deny he has ever drunk to excess or that he has the alcoholic habit. He will admit that he takes a glass occasionally at his dinners and at public functions. He will denounce as "lies" campaign rumors that intoxication frequently overwhelmed him. Then he will be turned over for cross examination.

During the day Judge Flannagan, who presided, received a telegram from Minneapolis as follows:

"Don't let this sensational trial continue until I have arrived." It was signed "Jacob Miles."

Flannagan turned the message over to Frank Tyree, who was one of Roosevelt's guards while president and who is here as a witness. Tyree notified the chief of police of Minneapolis, who wired back that Miles was insane and had been arrested.

"I light a fresh cigar every time I take a drink of whiskey," Roosevelt said, as he declined a Havan proffered to him by George Shiras, whose guest he is. "And you know I never smoked a cigar in my life.

"I am afraid I am here strictly on business. I have been invited to speak to the high school and before several organizations, but I shall not be able to do so. I have also been invited to attend the performance of the 'Prince of Pilsen' Thursday evening out of compliment, no doubt, to my old Dutch ancestry.

"But it sounds too much like Pilsner, and the association just at this time is distasteful. So I will not go."

Roosevelt and party made the trip from Chicago on the special car 'Clearwater." The colonel smiled when his attention was called to the fact. "It is the water wagon special all right," he said.

RILEY WILL RESIGN

Chairman of Massachusetts Democrats Is Opposed to Foss

Boston, May 27.—Thomas P. Riley, who is opposed to Governor Foss, will tender his resignation as chairman of the Democratic state committee at a meeting of that organization to be held on Thursday.

An attempt has been made to induce Riley to reconsider his decision, but he stated last night that despite any pressure that might be brought to bear he intended to quit.

Riley favors as his successor Secreary Michael O'Leary of the state committee and it is probable he will be elected. The question of reorganization of the state committee will come before the meeting on Thursday.

What Labor Troubles Cost Lynn

Lynn, Mass., May 27.—Lynn shoe manufacturers have issued a statement declaring that owing to labor troubles twenty-nine concerns have left Lynn during the last three years, with an annual loss to the city of $12,000,000 in business and $2,500,000 in wages.

Foss Pension Veto Too Late

INSISTED UPON PAYING ATTEAUX

Wood Wanted Him Fully Reimbursed For Strike Services

WOULD AVOID OBLIGATIONS

Treasurer Dwelly Says $30,000 In Addition Was Given Attorneys During Strike Trouble—American Woolen Company Settling Expenses of Trial of President—Defense Shows Hand

Boston, May 27.—That the services for which checks were paid Fred E. Atteaux by the American Woolen company were given the company during the Lawrence mill strike in a general way, and that the company paid Atteaux for his services under the latter's strong protest, will be one line of defense resorted to by President Wood of the American Woolen company, who, with Atteaux and Dennis J. Collins, is on trial, charged with complicity in planting dynamite in Lawrence.

This, the first intimation of any line of defense yet given by Attorney Hurlburt for Wood, was revealed in the cross examination of William H. Dwelly, Jr., treasurer of the American Woolen company, and showed how the defense intended to combat the attempt of the government to connect Wood with the defendant Atteaux.

Dwelly, in response to questions, declared he heard Atteaux in Wood's presence declare he did not want pay for what he had done; that the services he had been able to render he had been very glad to give to the company, and that he would do the same again.

The witness related that at this conversation the defendant Wood had declared to the witness that he did not think it well for the American Woolen company to be under obligations to any firm with which it was doing business, and especially to Atteaux, from whom large bills of mill supplies were purchased annually.

The witness declared the check was made out and given to Atteaux with the direct understanding that he should give Wood a receipt, as had the attorneys he had paid.

Important testimony showing that while Atteaux was paid a total of $2605 for services to the company, more than $30,000 was paid to other persons for services in connection with the strike, was brought out on cross examination of Dwelly by Hurlburt.

Taking the witness after the completion of the direct examination by District Attorney Pelletier, Hurlburt at once took up the matter of the checks paid by the company which were placed in evidence by the state on Friday.

He showed that on March 22, the date on which Atteaux was given a check for $595, a check for $10,090.50 was paid to Attorneys Powers & Hall for strike service, and at a later date another check for strike services was paid to Attorney Butler for $19,410.

That the American Woolen company, by a vote of the directors, is settling all the expenses of the trial of its president, was the testimony of Dwelly.

LITTLE WANDERER FOUND

Baby In Woods Thirty Hours While Posse Hunted For Him

Fitchburg, Mass., May 27.—After wandering about for more than thirty hours, while a posse of 100 people searched the countryside for him, 4-year-old Romeo Debonville was found in the woods five miles from his home.

The child disappeared Sunday morning at 9:30, and when found was extremely weak and in a delirious condition. He did not recognize his relatives and it is feared bronchitis has set in.

Yesterday afternoon the boy's father and his uncle were returning from Westminster on bicycles, where they had been following a false clue. On passing an open space in the woods they saw the child stumbling along. The men shouted to him, but he only increased his pace, and they left their machines and soon overtook him.

BOMB KILLS GENERAL HSU

Missile In Box Which He Thought Contained Precious Porcelain

Shanghai, May 27.—General Hsu Pao San was killed by a bomb while opening a box in the belief that it contained porcelain, of which he was an ardent collector. He sent for a piece of porcelain and when the box arrived he attempted to pry off the cover. A servant was also instantly killed.

The general, who was known as "Tiger Hsu," was a strong supporter of President Yuan Shi Kai and the object of bitter hatred to the southern extremists.

ROBINSON SENTENCED

Six to Ten Years In Prison For New York Graft Policeman

New York, May 27.—Thomas F. Robinson, until lately a policeman, was sent to Sing Sing prison to serve from six to ten years for extortion.

Robinson was convicted of collecting "protection" money for Police Inspector Sweeney from a Harlem hotel keeper. Sweeney is one of the four former inspectors recently convicted and imprisoned.

TRIO SENTENCED FOR DROWNING BOY

Get Not Less Than Six Years In Vermont State Prison

Burlington, Vt., May 27.—Prison sentences were imposed on Henry Goodrich, Henry McCabe and James Sweeney, who, in an attempt to make Samuel Rounds, a negro boy, confess to stealing, accidentally drowned the lad in the Winooski river at Bolton.

McCabe and Sweeney pleaded guilty to manslaughter before the trial in which Goodrich was convicted of the same crime.

The court imposed the same sentence on all three, of not less than six or more than eight years in state prison.

WILL NOT GRANT RAISE

Governor Foss Turns Down Demands of His Employes

Boston, May 27.—Governor Foss refused the demands of the employes of the B. F. Sturtevant company, of which he is the treasurer, in which they have asked for a 20 percent increase in wages.

This action may precipitate a strike. The men have already threatened to take action unless some concession was made them.

Foss is also president of the Becker Milling Machine company and the Meade-Morrison Manufacturing company. The international officers of the metal trades unions announced that a strike in any one of these plants would be followed by a general strike. This strike would extend to all three plants, involving more than 150 men.

Capture of Boy Burglar Throws Light on Several Breaks

Newton, Mass., May 27.—In a confession to the police yesterday, Karl B. Sanborn, scion of a wealthy Salem family and a student in an aristocratic school here, declared himself responsible for several burglaries in Newton and Middleton.

Sanborn and John W. Meachen, a schoolmate, early yesterday morning were caught in the act of robbing the hardware store of E. W. Tomlinson in this city.

Armed with loaded revolvers and wearing black masks, they had entered the store by a back window and were preparing to leave with hundreds of dollars' worth of goods, when Patrolman Monaghan discovered the break and arrested them.

SEEKING TARIFF AMENDMENTS

Extraordinary Exertion by the "Special Interests"

PRESIDENT WANTS IT STOPPED

Says Newspapers Are Filled With Advertising to Mislead, Unlimited Money Being Spent to Turn Public Opinion—Urges Wider Publicity as Evil—War Declared on Lobbyists

Washington, May 27.—President Wilson declared that one of the most concentrated efforts ever made is now being made by the "special interests" to open the tariff bill to amendment and change in their favor. Washington, he intimated, is swarming with lobbyists who are conducting a campaign of systematic misrepresentation.

By lobbyists the president does not mean the legitimate representatives of business and industry who have come to Washington to set their cases before the committees of congress; what he has especial reference to is the vast number of persons who are inducing other persons to write letters to congress about tariff schedules which it is obvious the writers know little if anything about. The president later issued the following statement:

"I think the public ought to know the extraordinary exertions being made by the lobby in Washington to gain recognition for certain alterations of the tariff bill. Washington has seldom seen so numerous, so industrious or so insidious a lobby. The newspapers are being filled with paid advertisements, calculated to mislead the judgment of public men not only but also the public opinion of the country itself. There is every evidence that money without limit is being spent to sustain this lobby, and to create an appearance of a pressure of public opinion antagonistic to some of the chief items of the tariff bill.

"It is of serious interest to the country that the people at large should have no lobby and be voiceless in these matters, while great bodies of astute men seek to create an artificial opinion and to overcome the interests of the public for their private profit. It is thoroughly worth the while of the people of this country to take knowledge of this matter. Only public opinion can check and destroy it.

"The government in all its branches ought to be relieved from this intolerable burden and this constant interruption to the calm progress of debate. I know that in this I am speaking for the members of the two houses, who would rejoice as much as I would to be released from this unbearable situation."

The president moved to "take to the country" his fight against the lobbies because he said he did not believe the nation was advised of the extremities to which lobbying against the tariff bill has gone. He gently chided newspapermen, whom he received in his semi-weekly talk, saying he did not believe the public press had adequately told the country of the organized forces at work at the Capital.

That a brick could not be thrown in Washington without hitting the head of some lobbyist, was the humorous declaration of the president.

He was almost defiant to the lobbyists, asserting his lack of fear that their efforts would result in anything.

COST FALLS ON FARMERS

Must Pay For Benefits Derived From Reclamation In the West

Washington, May 27.—More than 10,000 farmers on reclamation projects of the west will be affected by the supreme court's decision that they must pay to the government the cost of maintaining and operating the various reclamations projected, pending their completion.

The decision was in the suit by farmers on the sunny side of the Yakima, Wash., project, to have the reclamation service enjoined from cutting off the water supply to enforce collection of such charges, imposed under instructions from the secretary of the interior in 1902. Nearly $1,000,000 has already been collected by the government and $500,000 more is about due.

Justice Lamar announced the court's unanimous decision and declared congress intended the settlers should pay the cost of maintenance and operation.

Rome, May 27.—Twenty-eight parliamentary candidates in Italy have pledged themselves in favor of woman suffrage.

THE DECORATION DAY LADY.

There she comes again!" cried Eloise.

"Where?" asked Dudley.

"Down Tulip Pathway; she almost always comes that way. And oh, look what lovely flowers she's brought today, such a great basketful!"

Both children thrust their heads through the hedge that separated their own ground from the cemetery proper, for Eloise and Dudley Drummond lived in "the cemetery house," as the other children called it. In the winter it was rather bleak and lonely, though the white shafts rising out of the surrounding feathery snow looked beautiful. And underneath the soft coverlet rested many quiet sleepers.

Eloise often thought of them, and some of the names followed by the words, "aged eight," or "aged ten," grew familiar to the children. Every pleasant Saturday for months they had seen her come with her basket full of flowers; violets in early spring, roses in their season, and later the many-hued summer flowers were brought by the "Decoration Day Lady" as Dudley named her when they began to notice her regular visits.

"We'll call her the 'Decoration Day Lady,'" said he, "'cause she decorates every week, 'stead of only once a year as the soldiers do."

Often as they had watched her coming, they had never yet been brave enough to address her. Usually they hid behind the hedge and watched her lay flowers tenderly on the graves. The children noticed that it was beside the smaller one that she lingered longest, and on that she spread the most beautiful flowers.

"I'm going to speak to her," announced Eloise, boldly, one day.

"O Eloise, would you dare?" whispered Dudley.

"Yes, I would. Every week for months and months, she's put flowers on 'Baby Bessie's grave, more than it could possible hold, and there's Margaret Grace, aged ten,' and 'Lillian May, aged nine years and fourteen days,' and lots and lots of others that never had a single flower, only the grass growing up so tall and wavy over them. I'm so glad," and here Eloise's voice dropped to a whisper, "that God made the grass so tall and pretty for when the wind blows it seems to bow its head as if to whisper 'Be still, little children! I'm here, I'm here.'"

Dudley drew a quick breath. "You do think such queer things Eloise. But let's crawl through and tell her before the basket is empty. Maybe if she knew, she'd put just a few on the other graves."

He started to wiggle through the small opening, but Eloise clutched him excitedly by the arm.

"Dudley! wait a minute! I've thought of something lovely. It's a great deal better than telling her. You know when they are going to decorate the soldiers' graves they mark each one with a tiny flag, so that when they come marching in it will be easy to find them."

"Yes," said Dudley. "I've helped put the flags on. But what's that got to do with this?"

"Why," and Eloise's eyes were shining like stars, "we'll make some tiny white paper flags"—

"A white flag means peace," interrupted Dudley.

"Yes, I know. And white is what they always use for children; it means innocence, I guess. Anyway, she'll see white plainer. And on the flags we'll print large, so that the Decoration Day Lady will see it, something like this: 'Please put a few flowers on his grave, for a little child lies here,' and p'raps she'll spare some."

Dudley was delighted with the plan and soon the children were busy with their flags, which were carefully put away until the all-important Saturday.

The Decoration Day Lady had another name which the children had not yet learned and which, had they known it, would have caused them some astonishment. She was a very rich woman who lived in another part of the city, and it was her only child, a little daughter, whose grave she cared for so tenderly.

Ever since the death of Baby Bessie Mrs. Swain had known no joy like the sad pleasure of covering the little mound weekly with fresh flowers and so she brought the fairest and sweetest in great abundance.

Early that eventful day Eloise and Dudley crept through the hedge and soon the sun shown down upon white flags of peace stuck in a few small mounds, those nearest the Decoration Day Lady's lot having been chosen by the children.

Down Tulip Pathway came the sad black figure with its burden of beauty while the children watched with anxious eyes. Would she see the white flags, and ,seeing read their gentle message.?

A few steps further and the fluttering bit of whiteness caught her eye. She stooped and read the childish words: "For a little child lies here."

Then there were other children? She hadn't thought of that. Children of long ago, and other mothers whose hearts had been rung with sorrow; mothers who had gone to join their little ones; perhaps that was why the graves had only waving grass to guard them.

Quickly with eager hands, she placed flowers on the little mound. Then she noticed the other tiny flags and laid a tribute on each marked grave—all this before she went to Baby Bessie's—and with awestruck, wondering eyes the children watched.

When she finally reached her little daughter's resting place she had only one flower left—a pure white rose. But in her heart had blossomed another flower. Out of the cloud of selfish grief that so long enfolded her had sprung a love and sympathy for others who had suffered. And thus remembering the dead a thought of the living came; sick children, sad children in homes and hospitals, to whom a few fragrant flowers would mean a heaven-sent message from the great All-Father, and whose lives could be brightened by her care and bounty. And so the Decoration Day Lady became God's messenger to the living rather than the dead.—May W. Clymer.

The KITCHEN CUPBOARD

FRESH TROUT.

TROUT is delicious served in the ways mentioned below:

Trout Marinaded.—Take two large fresh trout and place in a shallow baking dish. Sprinkle with salt, pepper and a little flour. Add a sprig or two of parsley, a cucumber sliced thin and a very small onion or shallot either sliced or finely minced. Put in a bay leaf, three lumps of sugar, the weight of these in butter and an eggcupful of white vinegar. Bake the fish three-quarters of an hour.

Served Cold.

Spiced Trout.—Cut into slices a trout weighing two pounds. Wash, wipe dry and sprinkle with a little salt and let stand for one-half hour. Then wash and let come to a boil in a bouillon made of five cupfuls of water, one-half cupful of cider vinegar, a half dozen cloves and pepper balls, two bay leaves and salt to taste. Take the fish out and put into a deep dish and add one-half cupful of sugar, one large onion and one lemon, sliced, to fish liquid. Boil until the onion is tender, then remove from the fire and gradually pour on the well beaten yolks of two eggs into which one tablespoonful of flour has been mixed. Return to fire, boil one minute and pour over fish. To be eaten cold.

Daintily Browned.

Fried Trout.—Rub the trout well with salt and pepper, dredge with flour or dip in a well beaten egg and roll in cracker dust. Have a lump of fresh lard and a little ham or bacon fat in a pan. Cook fish golden brown on both sides. As soon as it flakes when tried with a fork drain off the fat carefully, then put a piece of butter in the pan. Let this bubble, but not get too brown. Turn fish carefully. Serve on hot platter.

Served With Sauce.

Baked Trout.—Wash the fish carefully and wipe dry. Take two cupfuls of breadcrumbs and moisten with cold water. Chop one slice of onion and half stalk of celery fine and add to breadcrumbs. Season with one-quarter of a teaspoonful each of salt and pepper, one large teaspoonful of butter, and cook ten minutes. Stuff the fish as full as possible and tie it together with a white cord. Put two tablespoonfuls of lard in a dripping pan, with hot water enough to keep from burning, and rub the fish thoroughly with salt. Cut fine thin slices of salt pork and lay on the fish and bake one and one-half hours. Serve with the following sauce: Take two tablespoonfuls of browned flour, one heaping tablespoonful of butter and one of cream. Rub the flour and butter to a cream; add cream, one-fourth teaspoonful each of salt and pepper and six or seven capers. Add boiling water until it is the right consistency and pour around fish. Serve hot.

There is more Catarrh in this section of the country than all other diseases put together, and until the last few years was supposed to be incurable. For a great many years doctors pronounced it a local disease and prescribed local remedies, and by constantly failing to cure local treatment, pronounced it incurable. Science has proven catarrh to be a constitutional disease and therefore requires constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, Ohio, is the only constitutional cure on the market. It is taken internally in doses from 10 drops to a teaspoonful. It acts directly on the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. They offer one hundred dollars for any case it fails to cure. Send for circulars and testimonials.

BRIEFS

Mr. and Mrs. Francis E. Wharton returned today from their wedding trip and are at their home on Merrymount road.

William Hewett, formerly depot master at the Norfolk Downs station, has accepted a position with the Hood Milk company.

John Swanson of Parker street cut the tendons of his left arm Sunday morning and was taken to the Quincy City Hospital where he was treated. He is doing well today.

Master Gordon Baxter entertained four of his young friends at his home 32 Rawson Road, Norfolk Downs, on Saturday afternoon in honor of his birthday.

Mrs. Jennie Eley of Berlin, New Hampshire is visiting her mother, Mrs. Lizzie Ramsey of Malden. Mrs. Ramsey and Mrs. Eley visited in Atlantic on Sunday, where they formerly lived.

Mrs. Royal Eastman of 357 Hancock street has been called to her former home in Potsdam, N. Y., by the serious illness of her sister, Mrs. Jasper Barnum.

Miss Alice G. White, librarian of the Thomas Crane Public library, attended the convention of the American Library Association at Williamstown and was elected a vice president.

As Memorial day this year falls on Friday, and as Saturday is always a half holiday at City Hall, Mayor Stone has decided to close City Hall for the entire day on Saturday, May 31.

Commander Marstin and other officers of the Grand Army have been at the Adams Academy grounds planning for the exercises to be held on the afternoon of Memorial Day.

The ladies of the Hospital Aid Association meet Thursday afternoon at the residence of Mrs. J. Henry Emery, Adams street, instead of with Mrs. L. H. Sturtevant as previously announced

Dr. Fred E. Jones, of the Board of Health, who has been on an extended European trip, is on his way home and is expected to arrive the latter part of this week.

A. I. Heirronen, a classmate of Rev. J. E. Lillback, who has been assisting him as a trial missionary, will be ordained as a minister at the Finnish Congregational church on Memorial day, and will be located at Copper-cliff, Canada.

BRIEFS

Mrs. Baxter of Dennis is visiting her son, George Baxter of 32 Rawson Road Norfolk Downs.

The City Council Committee on Finance will meet tonight. They have considerable business before them, which came over from Monday night's Council meeting.

Mr. and Mrs. C. O. McClintock, (nee Mary Falvey of West street, of Pittsburg, Pa., and Portland, Me., sailed today for Rotterdam on the Rotterdam from New York. They will spend the summer in Holland, Weisbaden, Germany, and Switzerland. They spent Sunday here with Mrs. Joanna Falvey, mother of Mrs. McClintock.

The Entertainment committee of the Granite City club is planning to keep open house on Thursday evening, the night before the holiday. An orchestra will be present the entire evening and a buffet lunch will be served during the entire evening in the dining room. As usual on such occasions friends of the club members are given a most cordial welcome.

The Quincy Yacht club has been officially notified that the series of races for the Quincy Yacht Club Challenge cup will begin Monday, July 28, and continue each day until one of the challengers has won three races. There will be two races each day the morning race starting at 10 o'clock and the afternoon race at 2 o'clock. Commodore Crane has not as yet named the official judge for the Quincy club. He will probably do so this week.

SPANISH WAR VETERANS

Memorial Day Services at Grave of Lieut. Bumpus

John A. Boyd Camp, United Spanish War Veterans, will as usual hold memorial services on Memorial day at the grave of Lieut. Edward Bumpus.

The general orders of the camp for Memorial day call for the assembling at headquarters in full uniform at 1.30 The line will be formed and the national and naval colors parading under guard, headed by the fife and drum corps, and escort the Grand Army to the junction of School and Franklin streets where cars will be taken for West Quincy where appropriate services will be held at the graves of comrades.

In the afternoon at 1.30 the line will be formed and a march taken to the depot to receive Bumpus camp, Army of the Phillipines, the Coast Artillery, Co. U. S. A., and the British Naval and Military Veterans association, who will be escorted to headquarters.

After escorting the Grand Army to the Adams Academy the line will proceed to Mt. Wollaston cemetery where appropriate exercises will be held at the grave of Lieut. Bumpus. On the return from the cemetery the command will pass in review of the Grand Army in City Square and then escort them to headquarters where the line will be dismissed.

QUINCYS WIN FROM CHELSEA

Thirty Runs Scored in the Policemen's Game

Who won the game today between the Quincy and Chelsea Police is unsettled. The score shows Quincy leading 16 to 14. Chelsea claims it is one too many. In addition they have entered a protest stating they were not credited with a run. If correct the score is tied at 14 and Quincy should have played the last half of the ninth innings to determine the score.

A solemn body of officers are now discussing the game from recollection assisted with two score books. President Parsons of the Massachusetts Police League was at the game.

The score as the book reads:

Quincy	0	0	3	0	4	8	0	1	x	—16
Chelsea	1	0	0	0	5	6	0	0	2	—14

Batteries—Canavan and Duane. Borden and McCarthy.

Mr. Sisson of Mississippi will resist the Jap advance to the last ditch by shedding the Congressional Record's high priced ink.

1200 FEET IN AIR

Airship Takes Fire and Two Men Narrowly Escape Death

Salisbury, Eng., May 27.—Volplaning from a height of 1200 feet in a blazing aeroplane, the British aviator, Coloyns Pizey, and a passenger, H. Fellows, reached the ground in safety last evening and stepped from the machine just as an explosion of the gasolene tank completely wrecked it.

The aeroplane was in easy flight when the carburetter took fire. Breaking the inlet valve, the aviator shut off the gasolene and started a steep volplane.

The rush of air fanned the flames. Tongues of fire swept under the passenger seat and Fellows drew himself up and clung to the stays while the aeroplane drove down its swift descent.

Pizey held the wheel in firm grip, although the flames scorched his hands, and succeeded in making a splendid landing. Just as the men sprang from the machine, the gas tank blew up, but they practically escaped all injury.

FOR POLICE PROTECTION

Head of Nashua Force Said to Have Accepted Bribes

Manchester, N. H., May 27.—Testimony to the effect that Frank H. Wingate, chairman of the Nashua police commission, accepted bribes for the police protection of a gambling house and a house of ill-repute was offered during Wingate's trial in the superior court by two employes of a detective agency.

Guy B. Biddinger, chief of the agency, and William A. Sullivan, an operative connected with the Boston office, described the methods which they used last winter to secure evidence in the sweeping investigation of Nashua conditions made by Harry A. Gregg, clerk of the police commission of that city.

Gregg, who was responsible for the investigation, was also on the stand. He told of starting the probe, and admitted he had personally furnished the money for it, amounting to more than $8000.

GUILTY OF MURDER IN SECOND DEGREE

Lynn Woman and Man Are Given Life Sentences

Salem, Mass., May 27.—An unusual record in murder trials was made here when the cases of Mrs. Rose Spogard and Marsoob Casparian of Lynn, both charged with shooting to death their respective helpmates, were disposed of in quick succession by sentences of life imprisonment.

Both pleaded guilty to murder in the second degree. Mrs. Spogard shot her husband, Sven, Feb. 22, because, she claimed, he assailed her character by reference to her life before they were married. She was sentenced to the women's prison in Sherborn.

Casparian, who killed his wife, Queenie, last October, because of jealousy, was sent to the state prison.

BACK TO HOLLOWAY JAIL

Mrs. Pankhurst Must Complete Her Interrupted Sentence

London, May 27.—Mrs. Emmeline Pankhurst, the militant suffragette leader, who was released from Holloway jail on license on April 12, owing to the serious condition of her health arising from her "hunger strike," was rearrested when she was leaving the house where she has been staying.

Mrs. Pankhurst's ability to leave the house where she had been convalescing was apparently accepted by the authorities as evidence of her complete restoration to health. She was formally arraigned at Bow street police court and ordered by the magistrate to be taken to Holloway jail to complete her interrupted sentence.

When she was arrested Mrs. Pankhurst was just about to drive to the weekly meeting of the militant organization.

NO FAITH IN "CURE"

Gotham Health Officer Asks For Ban on Friedmann Treatment

New York, May 27.—Dr. Joseph J. O'Connell, health officer of the port of New York, sent a letter to Health Commissioner Lederle requesting him to submit to the board of health at its next meeting a resolution prohibiting the administration of the Friedmann treatment for tuberculosis in New York, "until such time as those interested affirmatively in its administration shall satisfy the health department of its innocuous character."

O'Connell asserts that some patients innoculated have become worse, evidently due in part to use of the "cure."

REMICK'S

Copyright 1913 The House of Kuppenheimer

Don't allow anyone to convince you that you cannot get in Kuppenheimer ready-for-service garments at this live store, all and more than you can possibly secure elsewhere.

The misfit bugaboo has been worked to death lately and it is high time that this class of argument (?) against ready clothes should be relegated to the place where it belongs.

Of course, you cannot expect to secure "Fifth Avenue style" and a "custom tailored fit" in clothes for which you pay $8.88 or $10.49. Cheaply made clothing deserves all and more criticism than anyone can give it.

But, Kuppenheimer Clothes are not cheaply made. True, they are reasonably priced, but that with their pure, virgin wool quality, exclusive style, originality and perfect workmanship, is simply another strong point in their favor.

Be SENSIBLE in your clothes buying — come in and let us DEMONSTRATE wherein Kuppenheimer Clothes are the economical, logical garments for you.

Words may not prove it, but THE CLOTHES ARE HERE — ready for your judgment. What more can any merchant offer?

Annual Election by School Committee Several Passing Probation Period

Industrial School to Have New Location in September

A regular meeting of the School Committee was held Tuesday evening with Dr. N. S. Hunting, acting as chairman protem.

Plans for an assembly hall at the Washington school, which also provided for four additional rooms, were presented by A. H. Wright and were considered.

The amendment to the rules of the committee as reported by the special committee were accepted and adopted.

The contract for the years supplies was awarded to Edward E. Babb & Co.

EVENING GRADUATION.

A request was received from the Parents and Teachers association of the Wollaston school that the grammar graduation of that school this year be held in the evening, and it was voted that the grammar graduations of the Wollaston and Massachusetts Fields school be held in the evening this year as an experiment.

NOON TRANSPORTATION.

The committee on transportation was instructed to see what arrangements could be made for a car to that children of the Quincy school living at Squantum could go home to dinner.

PLAYGROUND.

The use of the Coddington school grounds was granted to the Quincy Playground Committee for a summer supervised playground.

INDUSTRIAL SCHOOL.

It was voted, beginning next September, to transfer the industrial school, that is now being held at the High school building to the old Adams building. The evening schools will also be held in the old building as at present.

It was voted to add the following branches to the industrial school commencing in September; Iron workers, sheet metal workers, ship plumbers and pipe fitters.

ELECTION OF TEACHERS.

The election of teachers was then held. As is usual those teachers who have served for a certain number of years are elected on tenure, while other teachers are simply elected for one year:

The following is a list of the teachers elected on tenure; who will continue as long as their service is satisfactory having passed the probation period:

TENURE.

High school—Ivan G. Smith, Atrhur Ray, Harriet B. Whitaker, Bertha M. Kirmayer and Frances M. Whitcomb.

Adams and Cranch schools—Arthur S. Townsend, as master.

Atherton Hough school—Gertrude M. Burke and aMrgaret C. Carey.

Coddington school—Mary D. Bragdon, Elizabeth H. Litchfield and Grace Elcock.

CLASS DAY EXERCISES

Many Interesting Features at Quincy Mansion School

Class day exercises at the Quincy Mansion school took place Tuesday afternoon. The first part of the program was given in Livermore hall which was filled.

As 3 o'clock in marched the pupils singing the school song, and as the dignified Seniors in caps and gowns marched forward, upraised hands formed an archway through which they passed to the platform. The class of 1913 number 16 graduates.

The "Class Will" by Miss Ellsworth was a well executed document. It was bright and clever and the gifts destributed by Miss Perry which accompanied the reading caused many smiles among the pupils who fully appreciated their appropriateness. She read bequeathing of the class spirit. Miss Parks unsurpassing brillancy and great self poise, Miss Drinker's ability in gymnastic feats, Miss Switzer's golden tresses, Miss Cooke's constant and ever faithful smelling salts Miss Brigg's breadth of mind and ethical theories, Miss Latcher's nightly epistles, Miss Rothmann's wonderful vocabulary, Miss Hayden's buoyant spirits and bubbling enthusiasm. Miss Fuller's marvellous knowledge of current events, Miss Perry's love for the South Station, Miss Smith's ability in graceful dancing, Miss Simon's readiness for performing in public, Miss Faxon's beautiful portrait, Miss Sheffield's sturdy constitution, Miss Creamer's power of keeping silent on all exciting disputes, to the undergraduates.

The "Class Prophecy" by Miss Park, who told how in 1920 the second year that the suffragettes were in power, news of a great Anti-suffrage movement that was now menacing all England, came to America, and she was sent by a New York paper to interview these threatening invaders of the peace, who were now serving a term in Holloway jail. As she entered, everywhere were traces of the New Women's prison reform tasteful pictures on the walls etc. "You will find the prisoners taking their afternoon tea, said a stern looking individual dressed in blue and white, "Why, Theo" they exclaimed, "It was the Senior class of 1913, complete." Her conductor motioned for silence and explained. "This the homemakers club you wished to see with their motto "Woman's place is in the Home," they have been winning men to their cause.

The suffragettes decided to stop this outrage and last week raided the club. "Horrid old cat," said Caroline Hayden. "It is nothing to laugh at" observed Elizabeth Ellsworth. "Far from it, this is business with me" Theo said getting out her notes for the interview. "Priscilla Briggs what are your impressions of prison life?" "Do have a cup of tea said Mary Sheffield. She's a trusty whispered Dorothy Cooke, Who set all these flowers?" She asked. "Our husbands and children. You see we were all married said Beatrice Perry, Eleanor Drinker is captain of Halloway base ball team. Mary Sheffield was to happy in her home life which was winning converts by her examples, Villo Latcher is charged with inculcating the spirit of home among immigrant children where she is doing settlement work, Katherine Smith was taken on suspicion of being a sympathizer. Barbara Switzer was asked to start, "Home Sweet home," and she noted with surprise Katherine Rothmann as she seated herself at the piano, but they were told that there was a written statue against that song. Dorothea Creamer was arrested because when getting married the minister left the word "obey" in the marriage service. Hannah Simon said "Those suffragettes are too tyrannical." She was taken up for just kissing her husband goodbye at the boat. Rhea Fuller threw a burned meat pie through the plate glass window of suffrage club. Mary Faxon acknowledged that it was her husband who was gathering an army in revolt of all this. "Time's up" called the harsh voice of the turnkey as she said goodbye and the door clanged shut, Theo remembered she had forgotten to learn their married names.

After singing the Class Song all adjourned to where the class planted a spruce.

Ye Maye Daye Revels was given on the spacious lawn back of the mansion, an ideal setting for such a spectacle, where were arranged the throne, flower bower and Maypole.

Miss Sheffield was grand and stately as Queen Bess in royal robes, her train carried by the sweetest of pages Misses Bennett and Knowlton. The Misses Dexter and Rothmann dignified in their positions as Ladyes-in-Waiting. Miss Fuller was an exceedingly clever Courte Foole, Misses Partridge and Pike where effective Heralds Miss Faxon was especially graceful and charming as the Maye Queene. The Misses Keerlin and Woodward were her pleasing attendants. The little Misses Goodspeed and Mead were the cutest of country laddes. Those in the pageant were beautifully costumed and they made most picturesque scenes.

Thep articipants who danced around the Maypole were in pink and green skirts with laced black velvet bodices and white guimps, were: Miss Caroline Hayden, Miss Hannah Simon, Miss Theodosia Park, Miss Beatrice Perry, Miss Priscilla Briggs, Miss Eleanor Drinker, Miss Dorothy Cook, Miss Dorothea Creamer, Miss Katherine Smith, Miss Villo Latcher, Miss Elizabeth Ellsworth and Miss Barbara Switzer and their measured steps as they moved merrily around the pole to the rhythmical music of an orchestra called forth merited and appreciative applause. Miss Mary Addison Newall selected and rehearsed the players. The guests were served refreshments on the lawn.

DANCES OF YEARS AGO

Given at Spring Reception of the Colonial Dames

The annual spring reception of the Colonial Dames was held Tuesday afternoon at the Dorothy Q House on Butler road, and aside from being a very enjoyable afternoon was very largely attended, many prominent people from Bostno, Brookline and Cambridge being present, among whom were Prof. and Mrs. Barrett Wendell, Prof. Muensterberg of Harvard, Horace B. Lamb, secretary of Simmons college; Mrs. Dwight Prouty, Mrs. John B. Grain, Mrs. Everett C. Bumpus Mrs. Cunningham of Milton and many others.

The afternoon was in charge of Mrs. Wheeler and the usual program was changed somewhat, for instead of an an address the guests were entertained with an exhibition of dances of the eighteenth century.

Chairs were placed on either side of the broad walk, in front of the house. These were occupied by the guests and the dancing exhibition was given on the broad walk by four professional young ladies. The young ladies were gowned in Colonial costume and danced to the music of a violin, the violinist also wearing a Colonial costume with powdered hair.

Following the program an adjournment was made to the house where cocoa, ices and light refreshments were served.

Many of the guests also improved the opportunity to look at the many articles of a historic nature with which the house is furnished.

CHANGE AT THE WOODWARD

Soon to be Entirely Separate from Public Schools

At a meeting of the Board of Directors of the Woodward Institute held on Tuesday, May 27, 1913, it was decided to employ Mr. A. L. Barbour for the coming year at a Salary of $500.00 but with the understanding that, as soon as practicable, the relations of the Woodward Institute and the Public Schools of Quincy be entirely separated.

It was also resolved that a definite statement be made to the public through the local press that it will be the policy of the school in the near future to continue the vocational studies heretofore taught in the school, to wit, in Business and Domestic Science, as set forth in the published schedule of its courses of study.

But in the Freshman and Sophomore years, pupils hereafter entering the school will be required to take the general course, and may take Business Courses in the Junior and Senior years and Domestic Science in the Senior year.

ANNUAL REPORTS OF THE Y. M. C. A.

Review and Recommendations by General Secretary Bromley

Financial Statement and the New Directors

The annual meeting of the Quincy Young Men's Christian Association held Tuesday evening shows that the institution is flourishing in this city and doing a great variety of work, which is a power for good.

Prayer was offered by Rev. George M. Bailey of the Wolalston Methodist church.

President R. D. Chase did not make a report in writing but told of the great growth of the Y. M. C. A. and what the Quincy Association was trying to do. He said it dealt in staple goods.

W. F. Cummings, the treasurer, reported a cash balance of $54.67 on April 30, 1913. The receipts of the year were $8,616.43, and the expenses $8,617.72. The largest item of receipts was from dormitory rentals but subscriptions were nearly as large, and membership fees about $500 less.

CITY SLUMS.

Mrs. Woodrow Wilson is spending considerable time, so the dispatches say, in studying slum conditions in Washington. May she be able to bring about some amelioration in these nightmare realms of dirt and disorder.

Says the comfortable man: "Why will people live amid these sticky smells, when Kansas is shouting for wheat harvesters? If in order to keep within reach of the moving picture show, they persist in living in this conglomerate of dirt and decay, it is their affair, not ours."

It is the affair of the community, though, just as much as to nail a red card on the house infected with small pox. Among these high buildings and narrow courts, which imprison the air as in a cellar, where the atmosphere becomes a heavy and adhesive steam, there is brewed a hell-broth of tuberculosis and typhoid. Housekeepers in fairer neighborhoods become worried about the smell of one garbage pail, when the contamination of a city slum is carried by human contact to the remotest village.

In spite of all that has been done by sanitary laws and philanthropy, students of slum conditions say little improvement is shown since America first began to study how the other half lives. Meanwhile in Germany, which Americans regard as almost an inferior civilization, the government builds sanitary tenements wholesale, kept clean by determined inspection. Any condition that impairs physical health is intolerable to the people of Germany.

City slums could be kept clean and sweet just as the deadly Panama isthmus was turned into a health resort. It needs a strong authority and an honest city government. The people who make the best machines and the best railroads in the world, ought to be ashamed of the childish stupidity with which the American plague spots have been dealt with.

There is an agreement among the people who are making their millions from commercialized vice, that it is not proper for this subject to be mentioned or discussed by respectable persons.

The American beef trust is making big purchases of cattle in Argentina, but of course that is benevolently done to keep the South Americans from raising prices.

The schools keep right along in session every day in spite of all the time it takes for the graduates to have their clothes tried on.

Many people feel that the motorcyclists should at least slow down so that people can see them go by.

Disasters like the Long Beach pier affair might happen less frequently if those responsible were told something more than "Don't let it happen again."

An Arkansas Congressman is trying to get a pure shoe bill through Congress, in spite of the fact that it would compel manufacturers to use leather.

The one safe prediction about the stock market just now is that it will do what it didn't do the day before.

Sometimes it looks a little as if Dr. Friedman has encountered a branch of medical ethics that resemble the third degree.

ANNUAL REPORTS

mosphere" regarding the Association during the past two years. Without a much more favorable sentiment upon the part of the good people of the city towards the organization it will be a difficult task to attract anything like the membership we should have. A beginning has also been made in the creation of a better spirit of cooperation between the members and the Association. Instead of letting up this summer, we are proposing to put on more steam. Our membership stands today. Senior 301, Junior, 138, total 438.

A NOTABLE EVENT.

One of the most successful events of the year was the annual Business Men's banquet. Those present pronounced it a success. The next will take place in the fall.

FIGURES.

The figures in the different departments you have from those departments. I wil not repeat them.

HOSPITAL CAMPAIGN.

The Association opened its doors to the Quincy City Hospital and the building was used as headquarters for the campaign.

INDUSTRIAL SITUATION

The Young Men's Christian Association was organized to work among clerks. Among these men and young men it has done its best work in days gone by. Today Association leaders are endeavoring to reach the whole community. To this end special emphasis is being placed upon the work for men employed in the industrial plants of the community, and this is being done with special reference to the foreign speaking young men in the industrial plants. In November we began the shop meetings at the Boston Gear Works and the Fore River Shipbuilding Co., plants. No startling results can be cited. It is our belief however, that in this way we have paved the way for a closer relationship between the men and the Association. A person only slightly acquainted with the facts cannot realize how shy of the Association these men are as a class. In Hartford, Conn., a pastor told me he believed the large attendance at their theatre meeting was largely due to the class relationship formed through their shop meetings.

DR. SEERLEY'S CAMPAIGN.

Some day, gentlemen, we will awaken to the dangerous condition that exists, in relation to the morals of our young people. The three days campaign of Dr. Seerley was to my mind three of the most important days we have spent in the Association this past year. Ask Judge Avery; ask Probation Officer Fahey; ask Miss Purchase what they know about the need of this work in view of the conditions they know exist. He spoke at the Father's and Sons banquet and at the Parents and Teachers meting in City Hall, Friday evening. Saturday he spoke to the boys in the morning at the Fore River at noon, attended a conference at 6 o'clock, and spoke to a specially invited group at the Court House at 8 o'clock. Sunday afternoon he spoke to 450 men at the Auditorium theatre.

PROGRESS CLUB.

Mention has been made to the putting on of steam this summer. A membership meeting was held then another and at the third, the Progress Club was organized. It is composed of Senior members and its purpose is the keeping of something doing by and for the members during the coming summer season. It is going to accomplish its end.

CONCLUSION

More and more can be seen the results from the efforts of the Women's Auxiliary. The delightful change in the appearance of the parlor, is due to their efforts. With the cordial relationship existing between the clerk and the Association; between school authorities and the Association; between the management of our manufacturing plants and the Association this coming year ought to be strengthened as well as an enlarged work to be caried on by the Young Men's Christian Association.

The reports were interspersed with solos by A. L. Hayden which delighted all, and there was a presentation of a large travelling bag to W. F. Cummings, the treasurer for 17 years.

The following directors were elected for the year ending April 30, 1916, there being a continuous board: Frank Burgess, Alexander Clark, John L. Miler, Joseph A. Sedgwick, George A. Sidelinger and W. G. Shaw.

Director for one year,—Charles A. Campbell.

Advisory Board,—Joseph A. Dasha, Charles C. Hearn, Henry L. Kincaide, Dr. C. E. Monroe, Frank Hobart and George G. Gragg.

Two addresses by local clergymen were features of the evening and should be reported at length. Dr. A. L. Hudson spoke on "The boy who is not all there," and Rev. George M. Bailey on "Hammers and Men."

MEN WANTED IN WOOD CASE

Two Witnesses Called by Government Have Disappeared

CHAUFFEUR AND A TREASURER

Both Employes of President of Woolen Company at Time of Dynamite Planting—Pitman Furnished Guards—Defense Scores When Telephone Records Are Excluded by Court

Boston, May 28.—That two persons, one an official of the American Woolen company and the other a chauffeur of William M. Wood, both of whom might have proved valuable witnesses to the prosecution, have disappeared, and cannot be located by the government, was the startling intimation made by District Attorney Pelletier during his examination of witnesses at the trial of William M. Wood, Fred E. Atteaux and Dennis J. Collins yesterday.

One of the persons as to whose whereabouts Pelletier questioned closely was Charles A. Hardy, third assistant treasurer of the American Woolen company. Assistant Treasurer Currier, who was on the stand, testified he had not seen Hardy for eight weeks and did not know where he was. Hardy occupied a desk in the next office to the one in which took place the now famous meeting between Wood and Atteaux, in which the check of $2100 was paid to the latter.

Oville Readig, a chauffeur for Wood on the day of the dynamite planting, likewise cannot be located, and his alleged disappearance precipitated a sharp colloquy between the district attorney and Henry F. Hurlburt, counsel for Wood. Readig has not been seen in Andover, according to a witness, for several months.

The district attorney questioned Daniel J. Mahoney, an employe of Wood, very closely as to Readig's possible whereabouts, and in answer to an objection by Hurlburt, said: "I am trying to find out where this witness is, and we propose to find him if he can be reached by the government's process."

Last week, during the testimony of William H. Rice, the Quincy quarryman who furnished the dynamite to Ernest W. Pitman, Pelletier asked very minutely as to the description of the automobile and chauffeur which drove Pitman to Rice's house on the afternoon of the day of the dynamite planting, and appeared to attach much importance to the matter. Spectators in the court who recalled this examination suspected that it is the purpose of the government to show that this automobile belonged to Wood, and that the chauffeur who drove it was Readig.

The testimony of James R. Bailey, Jr., who had general charge of affairs in the Lawrence mills during the strike, developed the fact that Pitman, the contractor who committed suicide on the day of the grand jury investigation of the alleged dynamite conspiracy, and who is mentioned as a co-conspirator in the indictments, was, like Atteaux, "specially employed" during the strike. He furnished a number of the mill guards, and was frequently in Lawrence.

In two respects the defense scored heavily during the day's testimony. Telephone records, by which it was intended to show alleged telephone conversations between Atteaux, from the offices of the American Woolen company, with Breen and Pitman on the day before the planting of the dynamite, were excluded as evidence, and the two central telephone operators of the company were unable to recollect any such conversations.

CALLAHAN IS DEAD

Man Who Shot Sweetheart and Self Succumbs to His Wound

Boston, May 28.—James Callahan, who, on May 3, in a despondent fit, shot Miss Johanna Bradley and then turned the gun on himself, died at the City hospital. Callahan failed to recovered from the self-inflicted wound in the right temple. Miss Bradley is still at the City hospital.

The shooting of Miss Bradley occurred in the parlor of her home after Callahan had asked her to marry him. She had told him he must conquer his habit of using drugs before she would marry him.

MINISTER DIVORCED

Mrs. MacCallum Granted Decree on Ground of Extreme Cruelty

Manchester, N. H., May 28.—Mrs. J. W. MacCallum, wife of the former pastor of the Westminster Presbyterian church, was granted a divorce by Judge Peaslee on the ground of extreme cruelty.

The minister, who is now an evangelist, is reported to be in the west, and did not appear to contest the libel.

New England Postmasters

Washington, May 28.—President Wilson nominated Robert J. Crowley for postmaster at Lowell, George P. Cooke at Milford, John Howe at North Brookfield, and Thomas E. Luddy at East Bridgewater, Mass.

TENNIS A THIG HSCHOOL.

The students of the Quincy High School organized an Tennis Club at the school on Tuesday. Richard Crane was chosen president and Frederick Atwood was elected business manager. This is the first year that tennis has been considered in connection with school athletics. The membership is now 25, and as this is only about one half of the players at the school, the club may increase. Games will be arranged with other High school teams. An interesting playoff for club honors is scheduled in the near future.

REQUIRED TEN INNINGS

Cranch Did Not Find Quincy School an Easy Mark

It took 10 inings for the Cranch to maintain its lead in the National Grammar School league Tuesday afternoon. Quincy, one of the weakest of the school teams fought it out, losing 3 to 2 in the last half of the tenth. The game was a pitcher's battle. Cranch made four hits and Quincy three. Only seven passes were allowed by both pitchers. Most of the balls went to the infield where they were well handled.

The score:

	1	2	3	4	5	6	7	8	9	10

Cranch and Willard will play Monday in the first of the post season games for the city championship. The first game will be played at Merrymount park. The contesting pitchers will be Egan for the Willards and Arbuckle for Cranch.

NOT GUILTY OF LARCENY

Missing Tools Were Not Taken by Michael Hellins

The continued case of Michael Hellins, who was arrested in the South station Monday morning for alleged larceny of carpenters tools from John W. Trickey at Quincy came up in court this morning when he was discharged.

It seems that Hellins had been at work for Trickey but as work had become quiet he had gone to work for A. W. Parker. Going to the Trickey building he removed his own chest of tools but did not bother any other tools. When Trickey missed his tools the supposition was that Hellins had stolen them.

As previously stated Hellins was arrested in the South station and immediately brought to Quincy. Contractor Parker, however, convinced that a mistake had been made, secured the keys of Hellins chest from him, and going to Cambridge with the owner of the missing tools a search of the chest was made, but nothing was found. A search was also made of Hellins' room with the same result and as it was evidently a case of the wrong man being arrested Hellins was found not guilty and discharged.

BRIDGE BILL.

In the Masachusetts House on Tuesday, the bill for a new bridge over the Neponset river on Granite avenue was passed to be engrossed without debate.

NORWEGIAN SOCIETY.

The Norwegian Society of Quincy met in the Johnson building Tuesday evening with a large attendance. Three candidates were initiated and one opplication persented. On May 10 they will hold a ladies night in Electa hall and a picnic outing is planned for June 22, at Olsen's pond, South Braintree. The society numbers 55 members and it has a record of retaining all its original members who have not removed from Quincy.

The committee in charge of the entertainment and picnic consist of Nils Loddengaard, L. A. Jacobsen, Andrew Olsen and Thorwald Johnson.

To add to the fund started by Mrs. Pfaffmann for a girls' recreation room in which the Quincy Women's club is much interested, an entertainment is to be given Saturday afternoon June 7 which will take the form of picture dancing on the lawn at the home of Mrs. Henry M. Faxon. Beside several Wellesley girls the young people are entering into it with much enthusiasm and rehearsal indoors and out are held every day insuring a perfect as well as a beautiful and nevel entertainment.

SCHOOL HYGIENE CONGRESS.

The congress which will be the first to be held in this country, is announced for the last week in August at Buffalo and the General Federation of Women's clubs has been invited by the executive committee to participate in the effort to place school hygiene before the world.

The active clubs of the United States are requested to co-operate in the movement and each individual club is requested to send a delegate to the conference.

The clubs are also asked to make the congress known in their respective communities and those whose co-operation is desired include local clubs, Mother's Congress, Parent-Teacher Organizations, Board of Trade, Homes and Orphanges, School boards, Boards of Health, the mayor and other officials of each city.

The congress will be held under the patronage of President Wilson. The president is Dr. Charles W. Eliot of Harvard University. The secretary general of the congress is Thomas A. Story, college of the city of New York.

WOMEN'S CLUBS APPRECIATED.

What is true in Somerville is equally true in Quincy and substituting the name of the city of Somerville for Quincy we endorse every word of the following editorial from the Somerville Journal:

"What Somerville Owes to Its Women's Clubs" would be a fruitful theme for a talented essayist. There is no phase of municipal activity but is affected in greater or less degree by the aggressive work or mental attitude of Somerville mothers and daughters and wives.

Their philanthropies are the most conspicuous feature to outsiders, but in countless other ways the women in mutual discussion have illuminated problems and outlined policies which the men have been delighted to take up and support. The women have given an intellectual dignity to social life in Somerville. They have chosen to think on things worth while, and although the club women of this city rank high in talent and culture with those of the country at large, they have not sacrificed their home and family interests.

The women of Somerville deserve a tribute far deeper than a gracefully-worded after-dinner toast or a complimentary reference by orator or statesmen. They are indeed the strength of the municipality in everything except government, and in government their influence is potent to a degree little realized by either men or women.

VALUE OF CLUB WORK.

A prize of $10 was offered recently by Mrs. S. S. Crockett, Tennessee editor of the General Federation Magazine for the best article not to exceed 1000 words on "What is the value of Club Work to the Individual." written by a federated clubwoman of Tennessee. The prize winner was Mrs. Elizabeth Fry of Nashville and the following extracts will be exceedingly interesting to the clubwomen of our city.

Some of the important facts Mrs. Fry stated were that an individual working alone, is inclined to develop as an only child, dogmatism which is mental selfishness as well as a childish desire to have her own way and an absorption in her own concerns that slams the door in the face of her broader usefulness.

"As many hands lighten labor" so many minds working earnestly and harmoniously together elucidate the problems of our complex life.

"A well conducted club is a pair of "shur-on" spectacles for mental short sightedness.

"Learning to co-operate with others in club life developes in the individual woman the most desirable qualities. To yield a point graciously, if the common good demands it; to hold one's ground firmly, but without heat, if a principle is at stake; never to shirk a reasonable share, thereby depriving someone else of the privilege of helping; to keep an open mind to new ideas offered by fellow workers; to stifle prejudice against any measure because of a personal dislike to the member who offers it; to qualify by working faithfully in the ranks before aspiring to leadership; to avoid being a wet blanket or firebrand; to loyally uphold the leader chosen by the majority of her co-workers; to meet promptly all financial obligations to serve without being meddlesome and to officiate without being officious; all of these are essential to the preservation of club ethics and the promotion of prosperity and benefit alike the individual and the club."

Mrs. Fry further says that foolish class lines are obliterated in club life and the discovery is made that any small minded person can be exclusive, while the more one broadens the more inclusive one must become. What, and not who one is, become the vital question. Each contributes something through her personality to the capital stock of the organization from which she in turn draws her per cent. of profit. The society woman communicates her tact, her ease and dainty refinements of dress, manner and speech to the business woman, who returns to her self reliance definiteness, exactness and many fine positive qualities. The timid sister is brought forward and the aggressive one acquires the habit of putting on the brakes. The silent one finds speech and the chatterbox is brought to realize the value of silence.

WOMAN ON A PEDESTAL.

"Woman is on a pedestal and she should stay there." When she comes down from that pedestal she loses her influences and that is the truth of the matter in a nutshell," says Mrs. W. E. Rowe of Wollaston, one of the most talented members of the Mothers' congress, and who was chairman of the committee on arrangements for the entire assemblage at the national Mothers' congress which was held in Boston.

In striking contrasts to the statements, uttered by Mrs. Margaret Stannard, who declares that women will never fulfil her human possibilities until she has the ballot, this busiest of busy mothers, Mrs. Rowe, declares that woman gains her greatest influence over man when she is "just a woman."

"I won't discuss woman suffrage," she said. "But I will say this: There is hardly a woman living who cannot influence for good the man who loves her, and she doesn't need any outside influence in order to do it. She can get anything she wants if she is simply her own womanly self."

Mrs. Rowe declared she was "old fashioned in her views" and she seemed glad to admit it. "Home is the Alpha and Omega of life for woman and she should be happy that this is so. Nothing in the world is so beautiful, nothing in the world is so important as just being a successful wife and a successful mother."

Get a Loaf of Your Grocer

TO REDUCE THE COST.

A novel way to reduce the cost of living is being tried in one of the Western towns, so we are informed. A grocery store there has fixed two prices on its goods, one price if delivered and another price if not delivered. The idea is to save the consumer the cost of upkeep of an elaborate delivery service. It is said that a store which delivered nothing whatever would be able to offer very material discounts. Most of the ten-cent stores are operated on this principle now, deliveries being made only if large purchases are made. But how many people would be willing to take their own groceries home? Very few. Everybody insists on the most modern service to be had. They are delighted if their groceries are delivered by automobile. It shows that they are dealing with a strictly modern store. They prefer butter in a fancy package at forty-four cents the pound to loose butter at thirty-five cents the pound. It is easy enough to reduce the cost of living materially if the people are willing to have it reduced, but they must expect the reduction to cost them something in the way of convenience.—Charlestown News and Courier.

JUMPED FOUR FOOT WALL

Runaway Team Not Injured in Its Wild Career

There was a peculiar runaway on Hancock street Tuesday afternoon which fortunately did not end disastrously. A West Quincy express wagon backed up to one of the houses on the end of Alleyne terrace, adjoining Thayer street, to take on a piano. While left alone the tooting horn of a passing automobile frightened the horse which started to run. The horse turned around and started through Alleyne terrace across the lawn toward Hancock street. On the Hancock street end the lawn ends with a stone wall, but this did not stop the horse for he continued over the lawn then jumped down a four foot wall to the sidewalk dragging the covered wagon after him.

Going between the wall and a telephone pole the now thoroughly frightened animal ran on to Hancock street and started toward Wollaston. When he came to Grant street, however, he turned in and started toward the railroad tracks which is protected from the end of the street by a high embankment. Near the end of the street he became caught between a dwelling house and a hen house and was held fast so that he could not move either way. Here he was captured. On taking account of stock it was found that the wagon had escaped without a scratch and the horse had not been injured in any way.

INSTALLATION TONIGHT.

A council of Congregational clergymen is being held today to examine Rev. Benjamin A. Willmott as candidate for pastor of Bethany church and arrange for his installation this evening.

An invitation was extended yesterday by the Seniors to the Juniors at the High School to attend the Senior-Junior reception on Thursday evening, May 29 in the schol gym.

WOODWARD TEACHERS

Principal Rice Re-elected for Another Year

The annual meting of the directors of the Woodward Institute was held Tuesday afternoon at the school, with Dr. A. L. Hudson, chairman presiding.

A. L. Barbour was re-elected as superintendent for the ensuing year.

The following teachers were then elected:

Principal—Horace W. Rice.

Commercial subjects,—Charlotte J. Burgess.

Art—Georgiana C. Lane.

Vocal music—John D. Buckingham.

Physical training—Martha E. Maccarty.

Mathematics—Grace L. Burke.

English and Latin—Mary W. Dinegan.

English—C. Louise Steele.

Natural science—Lillian M. Annis.

French and German—Gertrude F. Holland.

A petition was received from the seniors asking that the sewing classes be retained during the fourth year.

There was some little discussion on the subject after which it was voted to refer the matter to the Superintendent and principal for investigation and action.

LOCAL ORANGE LODGE.

Quincy Loyal Orange lodge held a largely attended meeting in Protection hall, Tuesday evening. Three members were reinstated, one by certificate and one by initiation. The Royal Arch Purple degree was exemplified on two candidates. Visitors were present from Prosperity lodge of Hyde Park.

It was reported that Murdock Gillis ,an active member, had recovered from injuries sustained at the granite yard of Joss Brothers a few weeks ago.

Final arrangements were completed for the lodge to attend the parade and church service under the auspices of Plymouth Rock lodge at Boston, June 1. The services will take place in Tremont Temple and a lecture will be delivered by Rev. Allan A. Rideout, past provincial grand master of New Brunswick. Eight ministers will assist in the service and music will be by an augmented choir.

W. B. Jones reported that the committee from the lodges preparing for the July 12th celebration were arranging a program which will be completed this week.

There is more Catarrh in this section of the country than all other diseases put together, and until the last few years was supposed to be incurable. For a great many years doctors pronounced it a local disease and prescribed local remedies, and by constantly failing to cure local treatment pronounced it incurable. Science has proven catarrh to be a constitutional disease and therefore requires constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, Ohio, is the only constitutional cure on the market. It is taken internally in doses from 10 drops to a teaspoonful. It acts directly on the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. They offer one hundred dollars for any case it fails to cure. Send for circulars and testimonials.

LA FRANCE SHOE for WOMEN

BACK of every pair of LA FRANCE is a reason why. Women prefer them because they know they look better — know they feel better — know they are better.

THERE is a style for every occasion, all uniformly excellent. Here we show No. 6563, a Gun Metal, welt sole pump, with tip and leather bow; or, if you prefer, there is a similar model with plain toe, without tip.

SCHOOL MEET TOMORROW

Drawings Have Been Made for the Great Relay Race

The athletic meet of the Garmmar schools which was to be held on Saturday morning has been moved forward to Thursday afternoon. Many of the masters and teachers of the schools naturally desired to get away from the city over the holiday and added to this the fact that a circus is scheduled for aSturday morning it was thought best to advance the date.

The boys are all prepared for the various events and judging from the preliminary records set up in practice, the competition ought to be of a high grade.

The first event, 75 yard dash, will start promptly at 3:30 o'clock and as fast as the boys get through with this event they will compete in either the high jump or the running broad jump. Drawings for the relay were made at the Y. M. C. A. this morning and the schools will run as follows:

The first race; Wollaston, Cranch, Hancock and Atherton Hough.

Second race: Lincoln, Gridley Bryant, Adams, and Quincy.

Third race, Willard, Massachusetts Fields. Monclair, Coddington and Washington.

The relay races will follow the field events and it is hoped to have the meet over at six o'clock.

The officials are requested to be at the field at 3 o'clock.

LET THERE BE LIGHT

Gas Refuses to Burn for Lecture on Ireland

The lecture on "Ireland" at the Wollaston Baptist church, Tuesday evening, by Rev. S. J. Reid, D. D., of Belfast, might well have been named "Darkest Africa."

Although Dr. Reid's lecture was bright and sparkling with Irish wit and he had many illuminating things to say, the actual light in the church was dim, very dim.

For some reason the gas refused to come though the pipes that connect the church and for a time darkness prevailed. President Hall of the Walther class, who presided, stated that last month's gas bill had been paid and as the church did not have a quarter meter he was unable to acount for the situation.

The ladies of the parish rallied nobly to the emergency and soon the best room lamp of one of the deacons was occupying a place of honor on the choir rail, while others from different houses made their appearance. A lantern from pastor Walther's cellar lit up the vestibule ,while in the auditorium many lamps of varied colors and styles made a notable display.

The occasion was a public social of the Walther and Rand classes. Dr. Reid's subject was "Ireland as it is today social, political, religious."

Dr. Reid is a member of the Irish Baptist Missionary Society and in dealing with his subject he spoke with an air of absolute conviction.

Dr. Reid declared that Americans had been hoodwinked concerning the state of affairs over there ,and did not mince matters in reference to the public press which he affirmed, was dominated by an undercurrent that cultivated public opinion for one side only.

A silver offering was taken at the close of the address and during the evening selections were rendered by an orchestra.

QUINCY HIGH WINS AGAIN

Defeat Stetson High at Holbrook 12 to 7

Quincy High School beat Stetson High at Holbrook Park Tuesday afternoon, 12 to 7. The listlessness of both teams resulted in a quantity of errors. Quincy men made five and Stetson nine. The hitting was done mainly by Quincy, nine drives placing men on first against three for Stetson.

"Bull Moose" Brown got a double and triple and had no fielding chances. A noticeable feature was the small number of passes issued by the four pitchers participating in the game. This is the second defeat administered Stetson by Quincy.

Braintree High will play here Thursday afternoon. A fast game is expected inasmuch as the visitors have been surging into the forerank of high school teams, although they were off in their hitting at Milton on Tuesday, securing only three hits off Stanley of the High school and losing 15 to 4.

The summary of the Holbrook game:

KERN HAS SUFFERED FROM WHITE PLAGUE

Tells of New Vaccine Which Completely Cured Him

Washington, May 28.—The introduction of a resolution by Senator Overman in the senate calling for investigation by the public health service of a new anti-tuberculosis serum revealed the fact that Senator Kern, Democratic leader of the upper house, had been treated with the serum in 1906.

"After several physicians had diagnosed my case as tuberculosis," Kern explained, "I went to a sanitorium at Asheville, N. C., conducted by Dr. Karl von Ruck and remained four and a half months. I was absolutely cured. I know of many others there with me who have since completely recovered. Some cases were far advanced.

"Dr. von Ruck uses a vaccine made from tuberculosis germs taken from rabbits and guinea pigs. They injected the serum into my arm once or twice a day. I brought some of it with me and injected it myself. I am sorry the matter was mentioned by Senator Overman."

SHOT WITH OWN WEAPON

Dying Policeman Refuses to Make Charge Against Actor

Jersey City, N. J., May 28.—Patrick Considine, the policeman of Cliffside, who was shot Saturday night with his own revolver by James Devlin, a vaudeville actor, died yesterday of his wound. With his last breath he refused to make any charge against his assailant.

Devlin accused Considine of being too attentive to Devlin's wife. "If you think I am the man you say I am, you had better end it all by shooting me," said the policeman, proffering his revolver.

Mad with jealousy, Devlin snatched the weapon and fired. Devlin was overcome with grief in jail when he heard of Considine's death.

PELKY IS REARRESTED

Again In Toils After Being Exonerated by Coroner's Jury

Calgary, Alberta, May 28.—Arthur Pelky was rearrested yesterday after a coroner's jury Monday night had exonerated him on the charge of manslaughter in connection with the death of Luther McCarty in a prize fight here Saturday.

The move is unexplained, but it is understood the authorities propose a further examination into the circumstances of McCarty's death before releasing Pelky.

True heroism is not sectional or local; it is a natural possession; an international asset. It doesn't involve success or failure; sometimes there's more heroism in losing than in winning.

There's not much that's heroic about the men's furnishing business; it's a matter-of-fact, hum-drum sort of a proposition. But it is possible to do business in a spirit of service; to see that the man who pays his money for merchandise shall get all that's possible to give in value. That's the way I'm trying to do business.

ROOSEVELT NOT A TEETOTALER

But Never Under Influence of Liquor, He Swears

TEASPOONFUL OF BRANDY HIS LIMIT

Tells Court of His Drinking, Which Eliminates Beer, Dark Wines and Barrooms—Uses Light Wines and Occasionally Champagne—Riis Says Ex-President Is "a Gentleman"

Marquette, Mich., May 28.—One of the most extraordinary statements ever made by a public man in an open gathering was made by Theodore Roosevelt in court, when he gave, almost in detail, a list of the alcoholic drinks he has swallowed in the course of his life.

Bending toward the jury, drawn from all sections of a country where drinking is common, he snapped out a crisp, detailed denial that he is a drunkard or ever has been under the influence of drink.

George A. Newett of Ishpeming, the editor whom Roosevelt is suing for $10,000 damages for publication of charges against the colonel's sobriety, sat grimly listening as the witness told his story.

"I am not a teetotaler," said Roosevelt, "but I am abstemious to the extreme. I never have been drunk in my life, nor in the slightest degree under the influence of alcohol."

This was his declaration of faith. His story covered the minutest details of his daily life as a soldier, governor, president, African hunter, contributor editor and candidate for re-election. He told with whom and where he had tasted drink and specified how much was in his glass.

A smile stole over the faces of the spectators as he testified he never touched beer, whiskey or red wine. These are the only tipples of the north peninsula of Michigan.

Editor Newett sat near enough to the ex-president to touch him on the knee, but did not look at him.

The leading points in the ex-president's testimony may be quoted as follows:

I am not a total abstainer.

I have never drunk a high ball or a cocktail in my life.

I do not smoke and I do not drink beer, and I don't drink red wine.

I have never drunk whiskey or brandy except when the doctor prescribed it, or possibly on some occasion after great exposure when I was chilled through.

The only wines I have drunk have been white wines, maderia, champagne or very occasionally a glass of sherry.

At home at dinner I often drink a glass or two of white wine and Poland water.

At public dinners I sometimes drink a glass of champagne, or perhaps two. On an average I may drink one glass of champagne a month.

There was a fine mint bed at the White House and I may have drunk half a dozen mint juleps there in a year.

On the African trip the expedition took along a case of champagne, a case of whiskey and a bottle of brandy. The brandy was for me because I do not drink whiskey. In the eleven months of the trip the doctor administered just seven ounces of it to me for medicinal purposes. I never touched it except on his advice. The champagne was used for three or four of our party who were ill of dysentery and for some sick strangers whom we met.

On speaking tours, by direction of Surgeon General Rixey, I sometimes took a goblet or two of milk before retiring, and in each there was a measured teaspoonful of brandy.

Since leaving the White House I think I have tasted mint juleps twice—part of a glass at St. Louis and a sip from a loving cup at Little Rock, Ark.

Jacob A. Riis, the writer, called as the first important witness for Roosevelt, testified he was 64 years old and was born in Denmark. Riis said he became acquainted with Roosevelt because of their mutual interest in the welfare of the poorer classes of New York. "During the fifteen years you have known Mr. Roosevelt did you ever see him under the influence of liquor?"

"Oh, Lord, no," replied Riis. "The statement that he is a free user of liquor is a lie."

"Is he a blasphemous man?"

Newett's paper charged that T. R. "curses disgustingly."

"He is a gentleman," said Riis, emphatically. "About the worst I ever heard him say was 'By Godfrey.'"

Argument followed between counsel as to whether it was competent for "witness to testify whether Roosevelt was a gentleman."

The court sustained an objection that "the law presumed the plaintiff was a gentleman."

STUDENTS PLEAD GUILTY TO BREAKS

Two Boys Are Fined and Held For Action by Grand Jury

Newton, Mass., May 28.—Karl B. Sanborn, son of a wealthy Salem family, charged with breaking and entering on two counts, larceny and carrying a loaded revolver, and his schoolboy chum, John W. Meachen of Huntington, Conn., charged with breaking and entering and carrying a loaded revolver, pleaded guilty before Judge Kennedy in the district court.

The two were fined $50 each on the charge of carrying a loaded revolver. Sanborn was held for the grand jury in $1800, while Meachen was held in $1000. Bail for both boys was furnished by Sanborn's father, who also settled the fines.

The boys have been students at the exclusive Allen school in Newton, in which vicinity they broke into stores.

MUSICA PLEADS GUILTY

Goes Before Grand Jury After Temporary Arrest of Sentence

New York, May 28.—Philip Musica pleaded guilty to larceny in connection with charges that he, his father and two brothers swindled banks out of nearly $600,000 by fraudulent invoices on exportations of human hair. Philip was president of the United States Hair company, now bankrupt.

After Musica pleaded the district attorney secured a temporary arrest of sentence and took him before the grand jury. It is understood he has agreed to give evidence against half a dozen curb brokers suspected of manipulating stock of the company.

Antonio Musica, father of Philip, and two other sons, also indicted, are awaiting trial.

CUTS RATES BY $500,000

Chicago Council Passes 'Phone Ordinance After Three-Year Fight

Chicago, May 28.—A reduction of $500,000 a year in telephone rates is provided for in an ordinance passed by the common council. A large majority of the subscribers are affected by the cut in rates, which ends a three years' fight.

The ordinance calls upon the telephone company for an annual contribution of $100,000 to the pension and disability fund for employes, and it devotes $195,000 of the surplus established by the council's expert investigator to granting increases in wages.

RODE IN PULLMAN CAR

New Orleans Negro Almost Pays For It With His Life

Pensacola, Fla., May 28.—S. W. Green of New Orleans, chancellor of the negro Knights of Pythias, was nearly the victim of a lynching party at Milton, Fla., two miles east of here, when he was taken from a drawing room in a Pullman car used by whites.

His presence among the whites aroused intense feeling, and a mob took him from the train. He was roughly handled and barely escaped with his life through the intervention of the sheriff.

A Sensational Drama on a vital subject dealing with the cruel methods of the Loan Sharks

The Attitude of the Present-Day Storekeeper Is Curious

Almost every concern ranks itself as the "greatest," "biggest," and "most perfect thing in existence." How the world ever got on until each of us came along is our enigma.

It takes a long time for some people to get off the old country roads of storekeeping and make up their minds to travel along the new turnpike of mercantile reconstruction.

This store finds new satisfactions in serving the people in a larger and better way. It is unlike other stores as day is from night. It has created something in this city not in existence before. It is improving day by day—yet it is still human, but growing better and better.

This is a good city, and this is a good store. It is just what you see it is, and not what it will be tomorrow, for it will be a great deal better as rapidly as we know how to make it so.

The period of regeneration in food stores in Quincy began when we opened this new market. Sooner or later all the people are sure to learn that they can always get here the best goods that are going at the lowest cost.

MUSICAL TREAT AT ATLANTIC

Cantata of "Ruth," Presented by Choral Union

The Atlantic people were given a rare treat Tuesday evening when the cantata of Ruth by J. Astor Broad was rendered by the Atlantic Choral Union in the Memorial church. The cantata was given under the direction of Spencer Apollonio with Miss Hazel C Davison as organist. The efficient training of Mr. Apollonio was apparent from beginning to end especially of chorus work.

Miss Maude E. Read who took the part of Ruth entered into the reverent spirit of that rare Biblical character. Her voice and manner showed her familiarity of the character she was representing. Her well rounded contralto voice won great applause.

Mrs. Helen Apollonio Holt took the part of Naomi and her high soprano solos thrilled the large audience, and in the pathetic parts of the cantata she gave an excellent interpretation of the sorrows felt and the dramatic experience of the mother-in-law.

Miss Lora M. Churchill enacted the part of Orpah. Her well trained voice was at it's best, and her rendering of the separation was given with great dramatical effect.

The part of the Jewish Maiden was taken by Miss Jordine E. Davidson. Her prophetic songs with her girlish voice prophesying better things for the people of her land brought prolonged applause from the audience.

Hargrave Heap with his genial personality took the part of Boaz well. Mr. Heap gave a remarkable interpretation of the personality, impulses and religious character of Boaz.

W. Norton Stetson took the part of the First Reaper. Mr. Stetson sung his parts well, interpretating enthusiasm and hope.

The part of the Messenger was taken by J. C. Ward. He brought the news of prosperity in Moab and exhorted the people to look to Jehovah for help.

The male quartette was composed of J. C. Ward, B. F. Thomas, Arthur A Hall and Mr. Butterworth.

The chorus was made up of Edwin Heap, Phyllis Smith, Ruth Buckley Marjorie Young, Jane Seaver, Pheobe Buckley, Mrs. J. C. Ward, Miss Tabener, Mrs. George Hight, Jr., Ouida Keay, Margaret Read, Winnifred Cole, Mrs. A. H. Hall and Miss Tabener, Alvin Johnson, Percy L. Brown, Herman Keay, Kenneth Blake.

The ladies of the chorus were dressed in light dresses and wore sheaves of wheat.

The church auditorium was filled and the gallery and chapel had to be used to accommodate the large audience.

The Atlantic Choral Union is made up of the two choirs of the Memorial church with a few extra volunteer singers.

ELKS' GRAVES DECORATED.

A committee of Quincy lodge of Elks Secretary John D. Smith, are busy today decorating the graves of brothers who have passed away and are numbered among the brothers of the grand lodge above. Eighteen brothers are on the list of those whose faults are written on the sands and whose virtues are written on the tablets of memory. Not all are buried in Quincy for some lie in cemeteries in Braintree, Weymouth, Randolph, Waterbury, Conn. and at Lynn.

There will be no special memorial service at this time, for this comes in the month of December when public memorial services are held, but at each grave there will be deposited a wreath and flag, as a reminder that although gone from the lodge room they are not forgotten.

SHORT TERM IN FAVOR

Mt. Wollaston Lodge Would Return to Semi-Annual Elections

A referendum vote was taken at the meeting of Mt. Wollaston lodge of Odd Fellows on Tuesday evening on the question of the term of office for officers of the subordinate lodges. A similar vote is being taken by all of the subordinate lodges throughout the state.

For a few years the term of office for officers of subordinate lodges has been one year and the vote was to see if this should be retained or a six months term should be re-established. The sentiment of Mt. Wollaston lodge was very largely in favor of the six months' term, the vote being 28 for the six months term to 5 for the year term.

The business of the evening was the third degree which was worked on three candidates.

Don't allow anyone to convince you that you cannot get in Kuppenheimer ready-for-service garments at this live store, all and more than you can possibly secure elsewhere.

The misfit bugaboo has been worked to death lately and it is high time that this class of argument (?) against ready clothes should be relegated to the place where it belongs.

Of course, you cannot expect to secure "Fifth Avenue style" and a "custom tailored fit" in clothes for which you pay $8.88 or $10.49. Cheaply made clothing deserves all and more criticism than anyone can give it.

But, Kuppenheimer Clothes are not cheaply made. True, they are reasonably priced, but that with their pure, virgin wool quality, exclusive style, originality and perfect workmanship, is simply another strong point in their favor.

Be SENSIBLE in your clothes buying — come in and let us DEMONSTRATE wherein Kuppenheimer Clothes are the economical, logical garments for you.

INSTALLATION AT BETHANY CHURCH

All the Pastors During Last Forty Years Take Part in Services

Rev. Dr. Hardy Made Journey of 2,000 Miles

All the pastors and acting pastors of Bethany Congregational church since 1873 were present Wednesday evening at the installation of Rev. Benjamin Albert Willmott as the eighth pastor The list is not a long one including only Rev. Edward Norton from 1874 until 1895, and Rev. Edwin Noah Hardy. Ph. D., from 1895 to 1911 as pastors and Rev. Asher Anderson as acting pastor from 1911 to 1912.

It was therefore a happy reunion for many who were present to greet old pastors and congratulate the new pastor. Although the installation services were over two hours long, all parts were so interesting that the program was thoroughly enjoyed. The edifice was crowded and the congregation was not confined to the regular attendants of the church. White and green was the color scheme for decoration and there was a bank of white bloom front of the desk. The ladies of the choir were also in white adding to the beauty of the scene and the music was excellent.

THE COUNCIL.

The minutes of the afternoon council were read at the opening of the evening session by Rev. W. H. Connors, the scribe. The council was called to order in the afternoon by Rev. Henry C. Alvord of South Weymouth and Rev. Alan Hudson of Brockton was moderator. The minutes of Bethany church relative to calling Mr. Willmott, and the certificate of the council dismissing Mr. Willmott at Lowell were read to the council, and also the resolutions adopted by the Lowell church upon the resignation of Mr. Willmott. Voted that these were satisfactory.

The candidate then presented a paper setting forth his Christian experience. his conception of the ministry and the mission of the church. The delegates then propounded questions of vital interest which were answered by Mr. Willmott. Voted unanimously that the statement of the candidate and his examination be deemed satisfactory, and that council proceed to his installation. Rev. Dr. Hardy and Rev. T. W. Davison were the committee to apprise Mr. Willmott of the action of the council.

THE DELEGATES.

The council was made up from the following Congregational churches.

THE SERMON.

Rev. Fredric Dunnels of Lowell delivered the sermon. His topic was "The Compulsion of a Christian Faith." Throughout he brought out happenings of the day in connection with the irreligious tendencies of various people.

He said it was not by having stronger church government that we developed alone of God. Man is not sufficient unto himself. If the love of righteousness will not promote a higher religious conviction, compulsion cannot do it. Your master and teacher is weeping over the inefficiency of the church with all the glorious strength and beauty he has to offer.

There is no compulsion for the soul that loves Christ? You will come forward with your hand, heart and strength and you will give it to your church until your church shines forth a bright light that cannot be hidden in all the earth.

REV. BENJAMIN A. WILLMOTT

Here and there, are those who can only be inshore fisherman. Your church is like the vigorous fleet of ships, with its mighty auxiliaries in the stern, ready to launch into the deep because through the haze of the morning you see Him standing on the shore, and here I am saying, launch out into the deep, you that love justice and truth and God.

"I am not to charge the pastor or the people, I am here with the gaspel message, "The Compulsion of Christian Faith," and in asking you to accept the faith so that you will enjoy the great companionship with that boy of Nazareth who was found in the Temple.

"The compulsion of faith is a compulsion of faith is a compulsion of your justice, believeing and righteousness. A godly quality, is compulsion through a love for the great master, Christ Jesus."

INSTALLING PRAYER.

Rev. Edward Norton in his prayer prayed that the heart of this pastor and the heart of his people ever be sure of each other and as we all join hands in the vineyard may we have a beautiful springtime, a fine summer and an abundant harvest.

RIGHT HAND OF FELLOWSHIP.

Rev. Isaiah Sneath, D. D., of Wollaston, who is a member of the Suffolk conference while the Bethany pastor is in the Old Colony conference said he had come in the kindliest and sincerest way to assure that right hand of fellowship.

"We think you are a magnificent shepherd in this vineyard. I cannot tell you of the satisfaction of the ministers through your presence, and I know there is tremendous joy here. We have heard of the good things you have done elsewhere, and because of those good works and the splendid reports we have an optimistic outlook, and a hopeful conviction that you will achieve like and possibly greater results than you did in Lowell.

"We rejoice in the peculiar gifts you have for effective service. This is a time honored church and the loyal people will go forward with you. You have the gifts to do the work in this community, that the naked are to be comforted, that the strong will be strengthened and sustained. We of the clergy welcome you and in their behalf I extend to you the right hand of fellowship."

CHARGE TO PASTOR.

Rev. Asher Anderson in delivering his charge to the pastor said "Love this people. I am abundantly satisfied with their conception of a pastoral relation. They made me love them. The affections of this people will grow. I could choose the text 'You have charge of this household.' I like the term 'Father Willmott.' We

GRADUATING EXERCISES

Several States Represented at Quincy Mansion School

Mrs. Willard is heartily congratulated on this the seventeenth annual commencement of the Quincy Mansion school.

The graduation exercises were held Wednesday afternoon in Livermore hall which was filled with pupils, alumnae, teachers, parents and friends.

THE LATE DR. WILLARD.

Soon after 2 o'clock lavender and green cords were drawn down the aisle and the processional "Angel of Peace" was taken up by distant voices accompanied by Messrs. S. Newton Cutler at the piano and William Howard violinst. The voices became more distinct as the juniors and undergraduates entered the hall. They continued to the front where they faced the audience as the seniors in beautiful white gowns made their appearance.

This class followed the usual cus-

A MAIL ORDER TAX.

A bill has recently been introduced in Congress calling for an internal revenue tax of one per cent of the total amount of sales of mail order houses through inter-state commerce. Leading wholesalers say this tax is too small.

While such a tax would be a protection to the retail store, it should not be sought primarily as a protective measure. There is a real basis for such a levy, as a fair contribution by these houses from their great traffic.

Under present conditions, probably none of these concerns pays a fair share of the country's burdens.

The retail merchant pays a stiff tax because he must keep a large assortment of goods on hand. The public will not buy his goods "unsight and unseen." People demand a chance to see them, and a considerable assortment, so that they can select from various styles and prices. The merchant thus carries much tangible property, which the assessor sees, and which he taxes.

By clever advertising, the mail order house escapes the usual necessity of business, that the purchaser be shown the goods. The purchaser buys on faith. The proportion of goods kept on hand is very small compared to what the retail merchant keeps. The assessor cannot find much taxable property in catalog books. What the mail order house pays of course varies according to the laws of different states. But the assessable property on hand must usually be very small in proportion to the business done and the profits thereof.

It seems only fair that such houses should pay a liberal excise tax. Otherwise they enter into competition with the retail merchant without the handicap of taxation which he must always carry.

are not ashamed to say "Our father who art in Heaven." You are in a high place here.

"As father of this household, have special care of the children coming into the faith, provide for them. You are providing strong hearty material that befits the wonderfully good men and strong women. Watch their growth and as a loving father finds a place for his children that you will find a place for them, hope for them. Faith enlarges hope, affection begets stronger hopes and aspirations and if you love these people you will pray for them. The more you pray for them the more you will love them, and for that love you will pray for them.

"The word love is my charge in their prosperity, adversity, health and sickness, trials and woes and perplexities. Love them and it will be mutual. May God bless you, I envy you. These are your people."

CHARGE TO THE PEOPLE.

The "home coming" of Rev. Dr. Hardy, the beloved pastor for fifteen years, proved a trying ordeal for him when he saw the large gathering of old friends. So much so that he retired to the pastors study for awhile. He was visably affected at the opening of his address and the people enjoyed his heart to heart talk. He said in part:

"I wish most heartily to congratulate both pastor and people on the prosperity and promise of dear old Bethany church. I wish also to voice my deep and genuine satisfaction that the church is steadily growing stronger. It is the proof that those of us who labored here in other days labored not in vain. For I consider the successful continuance of the work the golden crown of the ex-pastor's service. I would also give expression to my appreciation of the fact that those who for fifteen years were most loyal in the old pastorate are among the most staunch supporters of the new and this with the maintainance of the old time friendships. And may I add that they best honor the old pastor who are most loyal to the new.

I hardly need to say that after the investment of fifteen of the best years of one's life in the honest endeavor to interpret the will of God to the people and to lead them God-ward that this work is linked to the deepest experiences of a pastor's life, and that this place is a shrine most precious and holy. I certainly would be false to the gospel I have here proclaimed if I did not rejoice in your success, and if I failed to use what influence I possess to enlarge and enrich them. And while I am confident that there is no need of such declarations from me yet I have made the journey of two thousand miles that I may leave nothing undone which I can possible do to add to the joy, efficiency and fruitfulness of the new pastorate.

"And further I wish to assure you out of my own varied deep and rich experience here, that I consider the action of the council of churches this afternoon in setting apart this minister to this pastorate and the committal of this man and his family to your support, consideration and affection and the most significant act of Congregational fellowship and the creation for you of one of the most sacred obligations known to human relationship. More largely than you think the minister's happiness, efficiency and spirituality are entrusted to your care. Give to him the best you have in consecration, loyalty and affection, and the best in him shall come back to you. You produce the mental and spiritual atmosphere which will either depress and dishearten him and make his work burdensome, or that which will stimulate and encourage him and make his life and work among you a constant sacrament of joy. So much for the sacred trust which now is committed to your care. Guard it so graciously so generously, so lovingly, that he and his may ever hereafter bless God for that which today has been done.

"I think I know something of ministerial aspirations. The pastor's work always bulks larger in his thought than any mere personal interests or advantage. And I would be false to the pastoral ideals of my successor if I in anyway intimated the highests services you here may render is a personal one. All that has been thus far said is essential to the highest ministerial efficiency. But there is much more to be said for you have now established a sacred partnership by which together you are to build a more lofty and beautiful spiritual structure on these foundations which others have laid. With your pastor you are engaged in the greatest, the grandest, the most fascinating work upon which human energy can be expended; character-building in the likeness of Christ in the unfolding structure of the Kingdom of God in the world.

To this end I would remind you of your peerless opportunity. Bethany church is at the heart of a large and growing city, so stragetically located that the great stream of human activity for the whole South Shore here converges in its deepest and swiftest current. This is the strongest Church in the city and in the district this side of Brockton. Hence whatever you do here has something more than a local significance. For you are called by your position, strength and reputation to the civic, moral and religious leadership not of a parish but of a large and populous region. You have here at your very doors a mass of people many of them unchurched, of all nationalities, the rich and the poor, the cultured and the illiterate, the virtuous and the vicious, the old and the young. You are this in the most direct, immediate and vital contact with the real, typical life of America. You never need to pray that you may reach the masses for your work impinges on these masses at a thousand points. Your task is to make that point of contact, touch or impact the mediums through which may flow your influence to Americanize, Christianize and spiritually leaven the whole I have often said and now repeat that to my mind there is scarcely a better opportunity in the old Bay state. Thank God for the opportunity though almost appallingly great and urgent, yet so succeptible to religious impression and so big with promise.

"But you will fail unless you have the real life within to impart to that which is without. There will be therefore the inner task of purification and elevation and stimulation. You must sight the vision of redeemed humanity: have faith that man can be redeemed—this man in Quincy must feel the responsibility that God has set you here to redeem this man in Quincy; and must have the passion which will impell to the successful attempt. This translation of the incomparably valuable treasure of the Word of God into the thought, life and customs of the day: the fusing of these multitudinous local interests into the imperative aspiration for that which is highest and best: The merging of ideals, creed and nationalities into that which is American, Christian and of the Kingdom of God is your task in this community.

For this task you have a splendid ecclesiascical plant, a fine organization, the historical asset of a glorious past, the inspiration and of numbers and enthusiasm. You have here a fellowship which is not dependent on the identity of theological opinions, but broad enough to win the allegiance of all wro follow the gleam of light of him who is the light of the world: a fellowship not dependent on intellectual attainments and gifts but wellcoming all who wish to better and know more today than yesterday; a fellowship no dependent on the accident of want or wealth but open doored to rich and poor alike A fellowship based on a common purpose to do justly, to love mercy and to walk humbly with God stimulated by a common passion to serve the world; enthused by a common loyalty to Jesus Christ and his church.

"I confess that sometimes I would be pessimistic when I consider the gigantic task before the church to day and the dire disaster which will follow her failure to measure up to her opportunity, were it not for one thing that the God of Israel has not advicated his throne. His hand can more and more readily be seen in the unfolding history of our age and our country. More and more Christ, whose right it is to reign is being crowned king of kings and lord of lords. The forces of evil so appalling strong carry within themselves the germs of dissolution, distruction, defeat and death. The forces of righteousness are growing stronger, more aggressive, more imperative, can be marshalled and mobilized for defense and conquest as never before. The church of Christ is steadily marching forward to her triump. Not evil but right is to prevail; not darkness but light; not selfishness but altruism; not evil but righteousness, for he whose word cannot be broken hath promised it.

From churst the head of the church shall come the power that is to strengthen you for your task here for he who has overcome the world will teach you how to win the world for his sake. Hence I charge above all else to keep near to him. For the closer you follow him and the more you become like him the better will you be able to meet your splendid opportunity and the more faithful will you be to the obligations of this new pastorate. And in the words of Bishop Brooks I conclude my word to you.

Do not pray for tasks equal to your powers
Pray for powers equal to your tasks

"And may the choisest of the divine blessings rest upon you and your pastor is the sincere desire and prayer of a pastor who will never cease to love Bethany church and who will always rejoice in every evidence of your prosperity. God bless you now and in the future as he has in the past."

In closing Dr. Hardy quoted these words of Sam Walter Foss:

Bring me men to match my mountains
Bring me men to match my plains
Men with empires in their purposes
And new eras in their brains
Pioneers to clear through marshlands
And to cleanse old error's fen
Bring me men to match my mountains
Bring me men.

WELCOME TO CITY.

Rev. Adelbert Lathrop Hudson of the First Parish church of Quincy, in welcoming the Rev. Mr. Willmott to the city, emphasized the cordial relations existing between their two churches. About a century ago, he said, when the so-called "Unitarian contraversy" swept over the old Congregational churches of this Commonwealth, it seemed to result in permanent antagonism among those favored churches which had inherited the noble traditions of New England Congregationalism. But now, quoting the words of Dr. Gordon at a recent meeting of Unitarians, "We have transcended our ancient disputes, and are learning to work together with cordial sympathy for the things we hold in common."

He further illustrated this growing friendliness by several recent expressions of mutual confidence and fraternal esteem between the Unitarian and Trinitarian Congregational churches of the state. In fairness it should be said that this increasing spirit of co-operation does not imply any lack of clear and definite adherance to our respective forms of faith. It means rather that we are coming to recognize our relations as no longer antagonistic, but supplemental—each doing, in its own way and among its own constituency, the work of the master, and thus fulfilling its especial part in building up God's Kingdom upon earth.

I believe, he said, that this same spirit characterizes the other denominations represented in this city, and I therefore welcome you, my brother to the unique, affectionate brotherhood of the Ministers Union of Quincy, and to the joy of mutual fellowship. All of these churches have reason to rejoice in your coming, and in the success which has attended your ministry thus far.

No intelligent man today can see in the weakness of a sister church an opportunity for building up his own. "We fight not against flesh and blood but against principalities and powers," —especially against the power of the indifference, the irreverence and the materialism of our time.

Any awakening therefore, of dormant interest and activity in one church is a help to all against the common foe. I welcome you therefore to this large apportunity for service in helping to bring about a real revival of religion among the churches of our city.

Mr. Hudson spoke also of the opportunity and need of civic work on the part of the Ministers Union and then of the most sacred duty of a minister's life in the bearing of burdens, closing with the words: "To this highest and holiest of the functions of a Christian minister, I welcome you, my brother, as a bearer of the cross."

LOAM MIXED UP.

One day early last week a load of loam came up to the house of James T. Kelley on Butler road, and thinking it was some that he had ordered the driver of the team was told where to dump it. A little later the man who owned the loam came around and said that it had been delivered in the wrong place and upon Mr. Kelley's refusing to pay for it a warrant was issued for his arrest charging him with larceny.

According to the story told in court Mr. Kelley had ordered some loam from David Roche and John J. Keniley had ordered some loam from Henry Frazier.

Frazier's man was the first to appear on the scene and approaching the Kelley house the teamster inquired where he wanted the loam left. Thinking that it was what he had ordered from Mr. Roche, Mr. Kelley told the driver where to deliver it. It was not until later that Frazier learned that his man had delivered the loam at the wrong place. Then he wanted pay for it, but not getting it, swore out a warrant. After hearing the evidence the court dismissed the complaint finding Kelley not guilty.

SAILOR DEAD REMEMBERED

Interesting Services at Town River by the W. R. C.

The stormy weather Wednesday prevented a very large attendance at the exercises to the sailor dead by the Women's Relief Corps. The exercises however were held as scheduled at Town river at the foot of River street.

They were in charge of Mrs. Eliza A. Penniman, patriotic instructor of the Woman's Relief Corps, and were attended by a delegation from the Grand Army the Boy Scouts as well as by members of the corps and allied organizations.

The exercises opened with the singing of "Columbia the gem of the ocean," the repeating of unison of the Lord's prayer and salute to the flag.

Brief remarks were then made by Mrs. Penniman, Mayor Stone, Mrs. Richardson, president of the Woman's Relief Corps; Dr. C. M. Marstin, commander of Paul Revere Post, G. A. R., Benj. Hodgkinson of the Boy Scouts and Charles H. Johnson.

This was followed by the strewing of flowers on the water by the members of the corps. The Boy Scouts then formed into line, each carrying a bouquet of flowers and marching to the waters edge they formed a line and each cast upon the water a bouquet of flowers.

Then came a salute to the flag by the Boy Scouts and the Woman's Relief Corps and the singing of America.

There was also singing by the school children.

LADIES NIGHT.

Ladies night of the Wollaston Citizens Association will be observed on the evening of Memorial Day of Brasee hall. A cordial invitation has been extended to the presidents and secretaries of all improvement organizations of the city. If any have been overlooked they may consider this an invitation to attend. Charles H. Johnson will speak on the needs of the hour, and entertainment will be furnished by professional talent. Patriotic songs will be sung. Ice cream and cake will be served.

SCHOOL NOTES.

At the School committee meeting on Tuesday evening, Architect Albert H. Wright showed the committee most interesting plans for the enlargement of the Washington school building which was originally built by him. This school has increased in enrolment very decidedly in the past year and though there are now but ten rooms, twelve teachers are required to take care of the number using all available space.

The suggested plans would provide four more rooms each 23 by 29 ft. placed in extensions at each end of the present building together with master's office, teacher's room, library etc. A school hall is also provided for with entrance from the first floor commencing at about the middle of the building and running out in the rear toward the street line. Such additions would care for 180 more pupils than at present, and provide a good hall for civic purposes in a part of the city which is rapidly growing and has no hall at the present time.

NO SCHOOL SIGNALS.

The School Committee has just adopted a new book of rules and will soon have them printed, the old books having done service for the past ten years. It is proposed to print in the new books, the essential state laws bearing on school attendance, quarantine for contagious diseases and so on.

The new rules also provides for a change in the no-school signal to be given in stormy weather at the discretion of the superintendant. Hereafter there will be no signal for the High school; the signal 2-2 repeated three times at 7.30 A. M. will suspend the morning session of the elementary schools; while the same signal given at 8 A. M. will close the first four grades.

For the afternoon session, the signal given at 11.45 A. M. will close all grades and at 12.30 will close the first four grades.

With a signal applicable to the grades attended only by the smaller children the situation can be met much more satisfactorily than with the former system of signals.

A unique series of school readers has recently been adopted by the School Committee for use in the six upper grades known as the Golden Rule series, edited by Prof. Sneath of Yale, Dean Hodges of Cambridge and Supt. Stevens of New York. Aside from being a series of reading books they embody a graded system of moral instruction by the indirect method.

The pupils, are introduced to the subject matter of morals by means of fairy tales, myth, fable, allegory, parable, legend, stories of real life, of heroes and heroines, biography and historical incident.

This method of moral instruction has been found far more practical and efficient than the direct method and is in line with scientific pedagogy. The subject matter, far from being of the wishy-washy type, is drawn from the very finest of literary sources, and combined with its undoubted moral influence should be of great help to the schools. The series will be introduced gradually as needs for new readers arise until all the schools have been supplied.

FRESHMAN CLASSES.

The prospects now indicate an entering class at the Quincy High school in September at least 50 larger than that of the last year and possibly 75. The School Committee will establish the Industrial School in the old Adams building as soon as the new building is occupied which will leave more room for the expansion of the High school.

The general public is not awake to the steady gain in school population nor does it realize the average amount of building new rooms that the city should do each year to take care of this increase. The present average gain is now 175 to 200 pupils per year; five school rooms in other words should be provided each year to take care of the increase.

The Montclair school in 1912 gave eight additional rooms, the old Adams gives but 2 in 1913. With nothing new coming on in 1914, conditions would become congested very rapidly. The situation in the Massachusetts Field district already promises to be serious with no way of relieving it.

PUBLIC LIBRARY NOTES.

Friday evening, May 23, marked a new epoch in the history of the West Quincy reading room when the opaque projector given to the library by the Quincy Women's club was exhibited to the public for the first time.

Through the kindness of Mr. Upton, principal of the Willard school, chairs were brought from the school to the reading room by numerous pupils at the close of the afternoon session.

Long before the hour appointed for the exhibition more than two hundred excited children had assembled on the boulevard in front of the reading room. At 7.30 o'clock, 200 children were admitted to the room and half as many more were turned away disappointed and forlorn on account of the rain, which deprived them of even remaining on the walk outside in an endeavor to catch a glimpse of the pictures now and then, or draw from their imagination a mental picture suggested by the merry laughter and hand clapping from those within.

The library was represented by six members of the staff and Charles R. Safford, chairman of the Board of Trustees.

The pictures, shown by Miss Wainwright the branch librarian, were colored scenes of New York, Chicago, old stage coach days, and southern plantation days. Views of several of our best known birds were also shown upon the screen, illustrations from Mother Goose stories were greatly applauded by the little folks happily cuddled up on the floor in front of the screen.

The hour was declared a great success by all present and a repetition of the enjoyment will be looked forward to next month with much anticipation by the children.

DECORATION DAY.

We march to the sound of the fife and drum,
Not like the Boys of '61,
But comrades on this sacred day.
The horrors of war are thrust aside
When peace with love our footsteps guide
To leave a tribute where some soldier lay.
And why not do it, say.

There are many others, tried and true,
Loyal to our flag—red, white and blue,
Who join with us on this sacred day:
And by their presence the glad hand give
To every comrade while he live,
To leave a tribute where some soldier lay.
And they left it, say.

In the ever ceaseless flight of time
May we, while here, fall into line,
On Decoration Day,
In memory of some soldier boy,
The father's pride and mother's joy.
To leave a tribute where the soldier lay.
For his mother's sake, say.

There'll be a time that will surely come
When we fail to march with the fife and drum
On Decoration Day.
No more we hear the bugle call:
The great divide will summon all,
So leave a tribute where we soldiers lay.
Why not? You do it! Say.

Comrade White,
167 School Street,
Roxbury, Mass.

SURPRISE PARTY.

Miss Elizabeth Conway, 42 Bunker Hill street, was tendered a surprise party in Protection hall, Wednesday evening and given a bracelet. About 20 couple attended and dancing was enjoyed, music being furnished by William Provost. The presentation was by Miss Ethel Rendle. Miss Conway is a well known young lady, and has taken a prominent part in minstrel shows the past winter. Fruit punch, cake, fruit and coffee was served. The gathering adjourned about 11 o'clock.

GRADUATING EXERCISES

tom of grouping all the flowers on the platform it was a veritable bower, roses predominating.

Mrs. Willard read a few messages of congratulation of the many sent, which were of especial interest to the seniors, and spoke briefly of her regret that the time had come for leave taking of the class of 1913. She as well as Dr. Willard like the old fashioned graduation and she thought the parents and friends did. She was given hearty applause.

Mrs. Willard said the class had selected their own subjects; their enunciation was much improved since Miss Sibley took charge; they had done their work well and earned their diplomas.

Rev. George Mervyn Bailey of the Wollaston M. E. church offered the prayer.

Miss Drinker delivered the salutatory address in which she bid all a hearty welcome, paid a loving tribute to Dr. Willard and to Mrs. Willard whose character and ideal was ever before them.

Life in a fortified city was a lovely description by Miss Park of a villa in Strasburg where with her parents, brother and sister she lived when a child. She described the neglected garden, orange trees, etc., the long low house, the military activity, the balloons, the making of mud pies, hunts for Easter eggs and the long nosed men at carnival time, all of which appealed to her childish mind.

Miss Perry who sang "The Lord is my light" by Allitzen has a beautiful voice, sympathetic in quality, thoroughly trained and of good range.

Miss Creamer's subject was St. George, that quaint old town, its low dwellings unchanged for generations. The market place used by the earliest settlers, Duke Clarence's visit and the church of St. Peter on York street were all delightfully told.

"The Rose" by Miss Simon described the most beautiful flower we possess. She traced its origin, gave its mythological eversion, how it became the national flower of England, associative with France royalty and told the meaning of the different colors of these silent messengers of God.

Miss Latcher's rendering of Barcarollo in G minor—Tschaikowsky, and Miss Hayden's Novellette in F major-Schumann, showed the result of careful instruction in foundation work, and a thorough study of pianoforte literature, modern and classic.

Miss Smith gave a fine description of Biltmore, Mr. Vanderbilt's wonderful chateau near Asheville, the most splendid country seat in America in virgin woods. This palace of pleasure, its white marble, sunken gardens, artificial lake and its interior was pleasingly told.

Miss Switzer said few northerners knew anything about the little insect which caused wide and general destruction to the cotton plant. She told of methods employed to rid Texas, Oklahoma, Louisiana and Missisippi, of this pest, because cotton growing is the greatest thing in the sunny land of the South.

The playground movement by Miss Cooke told of the essential need of places to play for city children. She gave many incidental narratives, some amusing, others sad, because of results, which would not have been, had the boys physical strength and energy been turned while young in the right direction.

Miss Rothmann gave an excellent paper on our National hymns,—America, The Star Spangled Banner, Yankee Doodle, and Dixie; their origin, authors, etc., which proved most interesting.

As the school sang "The Heartsease," by Pinsute; "A song of the Fairies" by Lohr and "Forest Worship" by Abt was very apparent they had cultivated the singing voice.

Miss Faxon admirably sketched Pictureque Holland which is a picture of have resistance, toy country, hyacinths and tulips, dykes and windmills, Dutch scenery, full skirted women with white caps, men, women and children in wooden shoes which never cross a threshold, were all presented most interestingly.

Class history by Miss Briggs told of the many happy times together and of the enjoyment of several noted guests, the kindness and always helpful aid of the teachers and Mrs. Willard.

Court ladies of Versailles by Miss Ellsworth were truthful pen pictures of famous women of the French court, Catherine de Medici, Marie Antoinette, Vigee Le Brun, Empress Josephine, the German Marie Louise and Euginie that queen of sorrow.

Miss Sheffield valedictorian spoke of school days ended, the unseen influences drawing out the best in us. The love and reverence for Dr. Willard's memory, the example of Mrs. Willard's true Christian character, the helpful teachers, the ever faithful Annette and sorrow of the class in leaving Q. M. S.

Mrs. Willard presented the diplomas passed to her by Miss C. Belle Kenney.

The class picture was presented by Miss Faxon in a few well chosen words. Miss Ellsworth pulled a cord that lifted a veil of greenery; Mrs. Willie Foster president, accepted the picture for the alumnae, of which Mrs. Cowan is vice president and Miss Elizabeth Walsh is secretary and treasurer.

Mrs. Child and Mr. Howard delighted the audience with their rendering of "Repentir," by Gounod.

Rev. Dr. Leander C. Manchester gave the peace and blessing.

The graduates were: Priscilla Alden Briggs, Brookline; Dorothy Spear Cooke, Germantown, Penn.; Dorothea Creamer, Dorchester; Eleanor Rodman Drinker, Quincy; Elizabeth Ellsworth, Bronxville, New York; Mary Munroe Faxon, Quincy; Rhea Ruth Fuller, Los Angeles, Calif.; Caroline Winchester Hayden, Haverhill; Villo Adelaide Latcher, Utica, New York; Theodosia Warner Park, Wollaston; Beatrice Coates Perry, Newburyport; Katharine Elizabeth Rothmann, Chicago, Ill.; Mary Morse Sheffield, Newport, R. I.; Hannah Julia Simon, Montgomery, Ala.; Katharine Dilworth Smith, Birmingham, Ala; and Barbara Switzer, Vicksburg, Miss.

NEWS ITEMS FROM MILTON

Mrs. Emily Campbell Jones, widow of Major Edward J. Jones, who died in Winthrop on Sunday aged 87, was brought to Milton Wednesday for interment.

Mrs. Lucia Ames Mead, a prominent peace advocate spoke before the school pupils on Peace Day:

An extensive program has been arranged for Graduates Day at Milton Academy which will be observed May 30. Athletic events are the principle features.

The spraying machines of the Tree Wardens department are now in use. Trees near the street line are receiving attention, but private work is done at cost. The spring has opened unusually free from pests of the moth and beetle species.

A portable school building will be placed in the Belcher school yard for manual training purposes.

Prof. Ephraim Emerton of Harvard addressed the Alliance of the First Congregational church Wednesday evening.

Milton's share of the Norfolk County tax, amounting to $23,156, an increase over 1911 of $3,610 is being generally discussed in East Milton.

The Academy graduation dates are June 12 for the lower school, June 13 for the girls' school and June 14 for the boys' school.

A "hiking club" is being considered by the young ladies interested in the development of thletics at Cunningham gym.

Chester Whittemore of the Hammers pharmacy is an active member of the Cubs and has secured several dates with strong base ball teams.

A street commissioner has not been appointed to succeed Edward McCue who was chosen chief of the fire department to fill the vacancy caused by the death of Chief Choate. James Gallagher of Mechanics street has been prominently mentioned.

Parents' Day, Memorial exercises and exhibitions, particularly of prevocational classes were the program at the grammar schools today.

Kidney Troubles Attack Quincy Men and Women, Old and Young.

Kidney ills seize young and old.
Often come with little warning.
Children suffer in their early years.
Can't control the kidney secretions.
Girls are languid, nervous, suffer pain.
Women worry, can't do daily work.
Men have lame and aching backs.
If you have any form of kidney ills
You must reach the cause—the kidneys.
Doan's Kidney Pills are for weak kidneys—
Have brought relief to Quincy people.
Quincy testimony proves it.

Mrs. W. H. Lowe, 246 Washington street, Quincy, Mass. says: "We still recommend Doan's Kidney Pills as strongly as we did in 1907. A member of our family was afflicted with kidney complaint. He suffered from lameness through his back and the least exertion tired him. Finally he began using Doan's Kidney Pills and they improved his condition in every way."

If your back aches—if your kidney's bother you, don't simply ask for a kidney remedy—ask distinctly for Doan's Kidney Pills, the same that Mrs. Lowe had—the remedy backed by home testimony. 50c all stores. Foster-Milburn Co., Props., Buffalo, N. Y.

FOURTH OF JULY COMMITTEE

Program to be Outlined at Meeting on Saturday

A meeting of the July Fourth Celebration committee has been called for Saturday evening at the rooms of the Board of Trade, to outline plans for the celebration. The committee are very desirous of having the morning parade and hope to be able to get some of the adjoining towns to send features for a horrible parade. From now on the committee will be active, and although a little late in getting started they hope to make this year's celebration even better than that of the past two years.

PEACE MOVES ARE FRUITLESS

Balkan Alliance May Soon Be Entirely Dissolved

WAR CLOUDS ARE GATHERING

Sofia Reports Active Preparations For Real Hostilities—Meanwhile Bulgarian-Greek Fighting Goes On—Bulgars Prepare to Capture Hill Dominating Salonica

London, May 29.—The military circles of the Bulgarian capital expect an almost immediate outbreak of hostilities between Bulgaria and Servia.

The Times correspondent at Athens says Bulgaria is striving to come to an agreement with Greece in order to have her entire forces free to operate against Servia. The Bulgars propose to give up their claims on Salonica on condition that Greece abandons certain territory in the Panghaion district. Should this arrangement succeed Servia and Greece will be separated by Bulgarian territory.

A Sofia dispatch says: "More than 80,000 troops massed here are on a war footing and Bulgaria is making most active preparations for real hostilities. Word has been received there that the Servians are rapidly advancing on the Bulgarian frontier, prepared to take the offensive if their ultimatum is ignored.

"From a semi-official source it is learned that Bulgaria has not the slightest notion of yielding to the demand of Servia.

"Failure of Bulgaria to accede to the Servian demand, which provides for the modification of the treaty of alliance, would be apt to mean the entire dissolution of the Balkan alliance. Greece, already at war with Bulgaria, would likely join issues with Servia."

The most severe tension still exists between the Greek and Bulgarian armies facing each other some distance to the north of Salonica. Several clashes occurred Tuesday and yesterday, and the Greeks accuse the Bulgarians of assuming the aggressive.

In spite of the declaration made at the Bulgarian capital that the Bulgarian troops have been ordered to observe a moderate attitude and to avoid conflicts with the Greeks, the Bulgarian commanders apparently are preparing to attack Eleftheria, with a view to gaining complete occupation of the dominant position of Mt. Panghaion. They already have placed guns on the crests of the hills to the southeast of Prave, commanding Eleftheria. The Bulgarian troops also have occupied the heights commanding the village of Bujukta, to the south of Lake Doiran and the town of the same name, which is occupied by the Greeks.

It is the belief of the Greek generals that the Bulgarians are systematically ereating incidents and endeavoring to drive the Greeks toward the sea and seize the positions vacated by them.

The Austria-Hungarian military reservists, recently mustered out, have again been ordered to mobilize. The order is said to indicate that Austria-Hungary deems the Balkan situation extremely critical, and means to be prepared for any emergency. Should Greece, Servia and Bulgaria go to war, it is said to be probable that Austria-Hungary would be drawn into it.

SUNDAY BUSINESS.

Chief of Police Burrill is getting after parties who keep their stores open for business on Sundays, and as a result of the campaign that has been started one Italian was in court this morning. Officer Broberg testified that he entered the store at 43 Water street last Sunday evening and purchased a package of tobacco. He also visited several other places and made purchases but the other parties had made application to the City Council for a license, which are pending.

True heroism is not sectional or local; it is a natural possession; an international asset. It doesn't involve success or failure; sometimes there's more heroism in losing than in winning.

There's not much that's heroic about the men's furnishing business; it's a matter-of-fact, hum-drum sort of a proposition. But it is possible to do business in a spirit of service; to see that the man who pays his money for merchandise shall get all that's possible to give in value. That's the way I'm trying to do business.

BEAUX—ARTS CLUB.

The Beaux-Arts club composed of ten young ladies of the Cranch hill district with their friends making a party of twenty enjoyed a banquet Wednesday evening at the Quincy house, Boston. This delightful occasion was the closing of the year's work which has been both social and charitable. The after dinner speakers were Councilman Edward J. Sandberg Tax collector Oscar Sandberg, and Theodore Andrews. After the banquet dancing in a private room was a pleasurable ending of the evening's enjoyment. Miss Agnes L. Dean was chairman of the affair.

WOULD ABOLISH SOLDIERY

Danish Invention Can Replace Large Armies With Automatons

Copenhagen, May 29.—Automatons may replace soldiers in the next war if an invention just patented by a Danish engineer named Aesen does what is claimed for it.

Aeson says he has invented a cylinder which may be buried in the ground for years in the same fashion as submarine mines are placed in harbors, doing no damage until they are fired. The cylinder is operated by electricity from a station four or five miles distant. When a button is pressed the cylinder jumps two feet from the ground and fires 400 shots horizontally, the shots being effective at a range of 3000 yards.

Any number of cylinders may be placed around the places to be defended in one or several lines, and the inventor claims that they would mow down 90 percent of the attacking force. He asserts, moreover, that crops may be grown over the automatons in time of peace and they would be so completely hidden that the enemy would not know their position until they started firing.

TAUNTON RIVER BILL.

Frank Fessendent Crane, Quincy's dock and water front commissioner, was one of the speakers at the hearing before the Harbor and Land Commissioners at Taunton this week on the bill now pending before the Legislature to improve Taunton river for the purposes of navigation. Many other proimnent waterways men of the state were also present at the hearing and spoke on the importance of improving the navigable waterways of the state.

People having business to transact at City Hall should do so today for the hall will be closed at 5 o'clock tonight until Monday morning. City Hall is always coelsd at noon at Saturday's and as Friday is a holiday Mayor Stone has decided to close it all day on Saturday.

One thing is certain and that is that there will not be much dust flying Memorial day.

IS INTERESTED IN LOBBY BILL

Weeks May Introduce Measure In the Senate

RESEMBLES BAY STATE LAW

Would Require Listing of "Legislative Counsel" and "Legislative Agents" In Both Branches of Congress—Democrats Worried Over Possibilities of Cummins' Resolution

Washington, May 29.—Senator Weeks of Massachusetts is interesting himself in the "lobby" question and had prepared a resolution calling for an investigation of the charges in that connection made by President Wilson, but was forestalled by Senator Cummins' resolution providing for the appointment of a committee of five to investigate "lobby" conditions at the Capitol. The senate adjourned without action on objection of Mr. Owen.

Weeks is preparing and may introduce a bill modelled after the Massachusetts law governing the lobby, which has been in operation many years. This would require the listing with the clerk of the house and the secretary of the senate of all "legislative counsel," and "legislative agents," but it would not go to the lengths of the bill introduced by Mr. Kenyon April 15, which would make it a crime for any constituent to "consult with' a member of either house of congress with reference to any pending legislation unless requested by the member so to do.

"I have had my share of callers to discuss tariff matters," said Weeks, "and I do not recall more than two or three who were not personally interested in the articles affected. The others were reputable lawyers employed by business men who were unable to come to Washington. My conconstituents are welcome to consult me at any time regarding the tariff or any other matter, nor would I class them as 'lobbyists' because they do.

"Now, on the other hand, the public has the right to know who are appearing before legislative committees, whom they represent and what they want. We are conducting a public business, and I believe it would be quite in line with the modern demand for publicity that men who are making a business of trying to influence legislation should place themselves on record."

The Democrats are more worried than the Republicans over the possibilities of the Cummins resolution, for men who want things of congress usually apply to members of the party in power, and in the case of the tariff Democratic senators have been overwhelmed with visitors whose first word of introduction usually has been that they "always voted the Democratic ticket."

Such an inquiry as Cummins proposes would show very many Democrats tearing their own party bill to fragments. This would amuse the Republicans, who always made a specialty of giving protectionists about what they wanted. In fact, the distribution of protection to all who asked for it has been the cement which for forty years has held the protective system together.

GOVERNMENT ARMOR PLANT

Naval Expert Says Its Establishment Would Cost $8,000,000

Washington, May 29.—Former Secretary of the Navy Meyer's purchase of armor plate was vigorously defended by Rear Admiral Twining, chief of the bureau of ordnance, before the senate committee on naval affairs.

The committee had under discussion the resolution of Senator Ashurst providing for the establishment of a government armor plant at a cost of $1,600,000. Twining told the committee that to make the 80,000 tons of armor plate used annually in the navy would require a plant costing not less than $8,000,000 and entailing an expense of $1,000,000 a year to operate.

The committee postponed further consideration of the Ashurst resolution for two weeks to permit Secretary Daniels to complete some statistics he is preparing.

The little girl was found asleep on a doorstep in the Bronx, miles from her home.

Frieda said Anna and another young woman took her from in front of her home Sunday. Later the nurse left her and she slept that night in a strange house with the other woman. Monday night they slept in a hallway and Tuesday walked until noon, when her companion abandoned her.

Boston, May 29.—By a voice vote the resolve providing for the appropriation of $250,000 for the representation of Massachusetts at the Panama-Pacific exposition in San Francisco was passed to be engrossed in the house after a hot debate had preceded the vote.

The Conway amendment, reducing the appropriation to $150,000, was defeated on a roll call, 144 to 65. The house also refused to pass the amendment providing that the Massachuetts building at the exposition should be closed on Sundays.

STEREOPTICON LECTURE.

A very pleasing and entertaining stereopticon lecture was given at the Washington Street Congregational church, Wednesday evening by Rev. Leon H. Austin, of Roslindale, a former pastor of the church.

The lecture was given on the land of Nathan Hale, Coventry, Conn. Mr. Austin's pictures were taken by his wife when on their vacation last summer. Coventry was the birthplace and boyhood home of Mr. Austin.

The girls vested choir under the direction of Mr. Pollard, sang very pleasing selections, Miss Helen Lincoln accompanying them on the organ.

After the lecture Mr. and Mrs. Austin greeted their old friends and parishoners in the vestry, where ice cream in charge of Mrs. A. Foster and Miss Cora Barnes, assisted by the girls choir was served.

A goodly sum was netted in spite of the rainy night which is to be used in buying chairs for the vested choir.

DOWNIE & WHEELER SHOWS.

What is there about a circus that thrills the blood of a healthy person? What is it that makes you restless and stand up on your toes when you hear the band coming up the street playing that music with a swing and vigor only heard in a circus band? You say circuses are all alike and when you have seen one you have seen them all, but still you will walk fast—or even run—right in the heat of the day in order not to miss one bit of the fascinating street parade and then when the calelope has passed you will rush over to the return street and push several children out of the way to see it again. Think it over. Why do you do it?

Does not the flash and glare and ginger have a lot to do with your enthusiasm for a circus? Don't you like the scintilating brilliancy and gaudiness of the ensemble? Sure you do and even if you do wear a modest suit and boast of being conservative, you secretly admire and envy the man who has nerve to wear a red necktie and Shepard's plaid suit. Let's all be human when the Downie and Wheeler shows are here. Circuses do not come often and they are not expensive. Meet us in front of the elephants when the Downie and Wheeler shows come and we will all throw trouble to the winds and peanuts to the elephants.

PARSONAGE AT QUINCY POINT

Movement to Raise Funds Meeting with Success

The movement to raise funds for a parsonage for the pastor of the Quincy Point church is meeting with great success. Already over $500 has been pledged, and it is thought $800 cash will be ample under the plan proposed. The sum raised will be loaned to the church, and will be returned in twelve years when shares taken in a co-operative bank mature. Not only will the subscribers get back their money, but also interest at the rate of four percent compound interest. It is possible that the amount may be over subscribed, but good uses can be made of any sum. How nice it would be if the church could also have a parish house.

JUNE MAGAZINES.

Surban Life. — After looking though Suburban Life for June there comes the impulse to close up desk and office and get out in the open till the end of summer. It is the travel and vacation number of this magazine of the countryside.

The issue is full of good things, "Gypsing in an Automobile" tells of a unique vacation trip of four people who lived in tents and the car for a month, and had a mighty pleasant time of it. "Touring Europe in a Motor Car" is of great suggestive value to those who plan to cross the "big pond" and see foreign countries from an automobile—perhaps the best way of all to see them, "A City Man Who Found His Work" is a splendid story of the practical farm of a New York business man. Fine vacation stories are: "Our Summer in an Old Shed." A Camp of Commuters" "Camping in the Yosemite—as Told by the Cook," "My Seaside Garden," "Roughing It—From the Wife's Point of View," "A Nation's Playgrounds," and "Lake and Mountains that Call."

Lippincotts.—Ralph Henry Barbour has a reputation for writing delightful romances, so when we say that he has excelled all his former efforts in his latest novel, "Lady Laughter"— published complete in the June Lippincott's—we realize that we are making a strong statement. But it's all true. "Lady Laughter" is both clever and funny. As for the heroine—well, the only reason there are so many bachelors in the world is because there aren't more girls like Betty. We appreciate her at once, and feel annoyed because the hero doesn't. He does later on, though. The scenes are laid in the Berkshires—that picturesque region so popular with summer pleasure-seekers.

There's an unusually fine collection of short-stories in this number. "The Middleman" by E. F. Benson, amusingly describes how a "middleman" skilfully "plucked" two unsuspecting victims, only to be even more skilfully plucked in turn. "Mr. Winkler's Signs," by Hattie C. Vaughn, is a humorous tale of a man's superstitions and how they got him into trouble.

ADDRESSES AT THE Y. M. C. A.

Valuable Talks by Dr. Hudson and Rev. George M. Bailey

Arrangements were made to print abstracts of the addresses at the Y. M. C. A. meeting in connection with the report of the business, but space did not permit. Yet they were too good to pass over.

Rev. Adelbert L. Hudson of the First Church was asked to speak on "The boy who is not all there." He said in substance:—When we say that a man is "not all there" we mean that he is lacking in some element which is essential to a sane, wholesome and efficient man. So also of a boy. And what element is so essential to either boy or man as reverence?

The men who have made New England great and have bequeathed to us our noblest traditions, have been men of profound reverence. Reverence for God and for the rights of man, for Religion, as the great steadying and directing power in human progress, for the Bible as the greatest text book of religion and the chief source of inspiration to high ideals and noble conduct, for the church as the rallying point in every community of religious and moral influence, the truest safe-guard of social progress, and reverence for the law of the land as the bulwark of life, liberty and property.

The recognized decline of such reverance among the so-called "rising generation" is one of the most serious symptoms of our modern life. We cannot blame our boys or our girls for irreverence, indifference or a lack of moral responsibility. It is a disease of the time and must be treated constitutionally. Boys are close observers and have keen intuitions. If the successful men whom they admire as "men of the world" show by their conduct that they do not regard religion, the Bible or the church as anything of very vital importance, then be sure that that will also be the attitude of the bright boy who wants to rise. As Josh Billings says: "If you want to train up a child in the way it should go, you must go that way yourself sometimes."

The speaker said he was not making a special plea for religion, the Bible or the church, but for our present civilization with its splendid gains, for the permanence of our national ideals. History shows that wherever reverence has suffered decline among any people, the civilization of that people has crumbled and decayed.

Much is said about the danger from aliens coming in large numbers to our shores; and it is a menace not to be ignored. But a far greater and more insidious danger lurks in the loss of reverence for high ideals among our growing youth.

"Hammers and Men" was the subject of Rev. George M. Bailey of the Wollaston Methodist church who followed Dr. Hudson. He said that there were hammers that could be bought for ten cents, and so there were men who could be bought cheap. But hammers and such men were not up to the standard, and not reliable.

He told of a contractor who arrived in a New York town to do a large job. He needed some good hammers and was told there was a man in town who could make them. He sought out the man and gave him orders for six of the best hammers he could make. Perhaps you will not want to pay the price said the man. He was assured there would be no quibble over the price if furnished a superior hammer. The hammers proved very satisfactory and the fame of the manufacturer spread, and his business grew and prospered.

So with the man, the best possible man you can develop is wanted. The ten-cent hammer is the most expensive, and cheap men are the most expensive in the long run. Build men along all lines. Any man who puts conscience into his work makes large manhood for himself. All types of men are being turned out today. The best men of this generation are the ones with reverence for the church. It is the business of the Y. M. C. A. to make good men.

There is more Catarrh in this section of the country than all other diseases put together, and until the last few years was supposed to be incurable. For a great many years doctors pronounced it a local disease and prescribed local remedies, and by constantly failing to cure local treatment pronounced it incurable. Science has proven catarrh to be a constitutional disease and therefore requires constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, Ohio, is the only constitutional cure on the market. It is taken internally in doses from 10 drops to a teaspoonful. It acts directly on the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. They offer one hundred dollars for any case it fails to cure. Send for circulars and testimonials.

AMUSEMENTS

BIG HOLIDAY BILL.

Thousands of pleased patrons pronounced the show given the first half of this week as the best ever at Kincaide's Theatre. And the management claim the bill is even better this last half. It surely looks good,—doesn't it?

The Emelie Sisters are clever, comely misses who make a big hit with their athletic act. William Browning is a pleasing dialect comedian whose act is exceedingly good. Mildred and Huntington are lively singers and dancers, who stir up a storm of applause by their clever work. Harry Crandall and Company, late of Joe Webber's All Star Co., New York City, present their laughing hit "Fun in a Grocery"—And it's well named, for it's overflowing with pure fun, and the managers have spared no expense to give the scene the appearance of a real grocery store.

And the Sunlight Pictures are splendid.

Memorial Day the matinee begins at 3.30 P. M. Other days at 2.30 every evening at 7.45. Tickets ordered by telephone held only until 7.30 P. M.

B. F. KEITH'S.

"Neptune's Garden of Living Statues," the sensational mythological water pantomime which has created so much talk and speculation during the past four weeks at B. F. Keith's Theatre will begin the fifth and positively last week of its engagement at this popular playhouse on Monday. This will be positively the last opportunity given to the people of New England to witness this novel and startling series of aquatic sensations and surprises, for these effects are all protected by letters patent and may be produced in no other theatre in New England. This is the last week of Neptune's Garden of Living Statues" in Boston, as it goes to Philadelphia upon the completion of the engagement at B. F. Keith's for the remainder of the summer. Surrounding this beautiful spectacle will be an excellent vaudeville bill of the genuine all-star variety. Valerie Bergere and her players will present that most amusing of comedy, "His Japanese Wife," with a beautiful Oriental stage setting and another strong attraction will be the first vaudeville appearance in several years of Ethel Green, the dainty little prima donna and character comedienne, who last appeared in Boston in "Doctor De Luxe." Other features of the week will be John T. Murray, "the man in lavender; Flanagan and Edwards in their latest behind the scenes skit, "Off and Onn"; Ronair and Ward, in songs and dances"; The Kratons, hoop rollers; Eckart and Francis, comedy acrobats and the Edison Kinetophone.

CASTLE SQUARE THEATRE.

"Julius Caesar," which John Craig will present on Monday at the Castle Square, is undoubtedly the most popular of all Shakespear's historical dramas. Its plot is taken from actual events in Roman history, it is thrillingly dramatic throughout, and its three leading personages, Brutus, Cassius and Marc Antony, have no equal on the stage in the way of contrasted temperaments. And Caesar himself is no small factor in the play. In "Julius Caesar," as presented at the Castle Square, the audiences will see the eternal city of Rome as it was in Ceasar's time; it will see the Roman populace running hither and thither through the streets, it will see the death of Caesar, it will hear the speeches of Brutus and Marc Antony in the Forum, it will witness the greatest quarrel between Cassius and Brutus. In fact it will be a vividly realistic series of glimpses of Roman life as it existed in the Rome of nineteen centuries ago. And the cast will be so effectively arranged as to bring out all the strong romantic qualities of this play. Mr. Craig has chosen the part of Marc Antony, and he will play it for the first time, his previous appearances in "Julius Caesar" having been made as Brutus. To Mr. Carleton has been assigned the "noblest Roman of them all," Brutus, and as Cassius Mr. Meek will again display his exceptional versatility.

PLYMOUTH THEATRE.

The Plymouth Theatre, Boston, will reopen its doors on next Monday. This time it will be for the purpose of housing a high grade stock company, headed by Miss Eleanor Gordon, and including such competent and well known players as Mrs. George A. Hibbard, Elizabeth Rathburn, Ida Jeffreys Goodfriend, Rosamond Carpentier, Francesca Rotoli, Cordelia MacDonald, Louretta Hoadley, Douglas J. Wood, Wright Kramer, Edward Langford, Frederick Burt, Roland Rushton and Alfred Smith. Miss Gordon recently closed an engagement in this city in Harrison Grey Fiske's production of "Kismet," and at time had no idea that she would appear again before Boston audiences in the line of work that has made her the most popular stock actress in the country. In this case however, Miss Gordon, aside from the important task of assuming the leading roles, will have complete charge of staging and managing all of the plays that are to be produced. For the opening bill Miss Gordon has selected Mrs. Fiske's version of Sardou's delightful three-act comedy "Divorcons," a piece in which Mrs. Fiske and Grace George have successfully appeared in. During Miss Gordon's engagement at the Plymouth the matinees will be given on Tuesday, Thursday and Saturday only.

The family of Franklin Curtis of Franklin street have taken the new house of Frank C. Packard at Merrymount for the summer and moved down Wednesday.

Credits Colonel With One Less Child Than He Really Has—Court Bars Certain Kinds of Hearsay Testimony—O'Loughlin Tells of Measure Taken to Prevent War With Japan.

Marquette, Mich., May 29.—Men who have been asosciated with Theodore Roosevelt in public and private life, who met him on the Nile when he returned from his African hunting trip and newspapermen who accompanied him on his various political campaigns, testified yesterday in Roosevelt's libel suit against George A. Newett, a newspaper owner of Ishpeming, Mich., that the former president not only was not a drunkard but that he was notably and extremely temperate in the use of intoxicants.

It would have been impossible, the witnesses said, for Roosevelt ever to have been under the influence of liquor without the fact becoming known to his associates. It would have been equally impossible, they testified, for him to have drunk liquor with any regularity without the smell of it on his breath being apparent to his friends who testified.

Throughout the hearing of the case in which the former president is suing for $10,000 damages because of the publication last October of an editorial charging him with getting drunk, Roosevelt listened with evident satisfaction to the testimony of former members of his cabinet and of newspapermen.

Once Roosevelt gave vent to an audible chuckle. That was when Robert Bacon, former secretary of state, in telling of his acquaintance with members of the Roosevelt family said the colonel was the father of five children, although he has six. Roosevelt's sense of humor was awakened at once by this lapse of Bacon's memory and the hearty chuckle which he vainly tried to smother in his hand caused a ripple of laughter about the courtroom.

The day's proceedings were marked by an important ruling by Judge Flannigan, which in the introduction of evidence by the defense will have the effect of excluding certain kinds of hearsay testimony.

This ruling came after a prolonged argument during which the jurors were excluded from the room and after attorneys for Roosevelt had urged the exclusion of a certain kind of testimony which they said might be introduced by the defense through depositions taken from persons in different parts of the country.

The effect of the ruling was that Roosevelt's general reputation is an issue in the case and testimony bearing upon his reputation may be introduced but that rumors or reports about his reputation coming from persons not qualified by experience to judge shall not be admitted.

In the future progress of the hearing, it was explained in court, a person who has traveled extensively with the former president, or who has been associated with him with any degree of constancy, may testify as to his reputation. But a man who heard the colonel deliver a political speech or saw him for only a few moments in a crowd may not testify as to his general reputation, although he may tell how the colonel acted or appeared at that particular time.

Almost every phase of Roosevelt's public life was touched upon by yesterday's witnesses. All of them spoke with emphasis when they expressed personal knowledge in denying, as the editorial charges, that the colonel "gets drunk, and that not infrequently, and all his intimate friends know it."

Former Assistant Secretary of State O'Loughlin testified to going on a mission to Japan for the Roosevelt administration during the year Roosevent ordered the Atlantic fleet to the Pacific.

"Was that a measure taken because of the relations between this country and Japan or was it to prevent war?" asked Mr. Belden for the defendant.

"Well, yes; it was perfectly evident that Japan would not go to war with this country if it was apparent that this country was the more powerful. It was one of the measures taken by Colonel Roosevelt to prevent war. It was a measure of peace."

MAN WITH FOUR ARMS

Two Fake Stumps Used to Lure Coin From Sympathetic People

Boston, May 29.—John A. Farren, 38, who has been standing in South End streets displaying the stumps of both arms and selling pencils, appeared before Justice Bolster in the police court, charged with being a vagrant.

Officer Fagney surprised the court when he announced that John had two arms that were, just as good as his, but that while plying his trade he secreted both arms inside his coat and through his coat sleeves "he showed two fake stumps." John will summer at the state farm.

Strike Declared In Shops Controlled by Governor Foss

Boston, May 29.—The employes of the Sturtevant Blower works and Becker Milling Machine company at Hyde Park, in which Governor Foss has controlling interest, voted unanimously last night to strike today.

French's opera house was packed when the strike vote was taken. More than 1200 of the 1700 employes of the two plants rose cheering when the order came from the chair to vote on what action they should take.

"Those in favor will stand!" shouted Chairman Thompson. There was a shuffle of feet and the men arose as one.

"Those opposed, stand," came the second order, as the men became seated. Not a man moved. A moment later cheers were ringing through the hall.

COMPLIMENTARY DINNER.

Major General Thomas R. Mathews retired, entertained a distinguished party at his home on Fenno street, Wollaston, Wednesday evening. A dinner was served, complimentary to Hon. William A. Morse who is to be the orator Memorial Day for Edward Kinsley Post 113, G. A. R., at Tremont Temple. Among those present were: Col. Alexander M. Ferris, Commander of the post; General Nathaniel Wales, Major Albion P. Pease, Dr. Horace E. Marion, Dr. John Dixwell, E. B. Stillings, General Mathews is a past commander of the post and the dinner was in keeping with a custom he instituted years ago.

QUINCY EXHIBIT.

A meeting of the special committee of the Board of Trade relative to an exhibit at the New England Educational and Industrial exposition to be held in the Mechanics building in the fall was held Wednesday evening at the rooms of the board. Chester I. Campbell, manager of the exposition was talked over. Mr. Campbell promwas talked over. Mr Campbell promised to reserve a space for Quincy and the subject will be brought to the attention of the granite manufacturers at their meeting Monday evening.

Enthusiastic grammar school athletes are holding an interschool meet on the Merrymount Oval this afternoon before a large number of pupils.

THAT WAX HEAD.

The wax head that was found on Wollaston beach early in the week, and which was at first thought to be a human head, and was removed to Hall's morgue is now claimed by Sergt. Garrett of the Metropolitan police as he desired it to put with the galaxy of curios and relics that adorn his headquarters at Milton. Sergt. Garrett says that it was he who telephoned Mr. Hall to come after the head, and insisted that it had been examined by a physician, whose name he does not disclose, who declared it a human head. Whether the physician was trying to play a joke on Sergt. Garrett or not is a matter of supposition, but the fact remains that it was not learned that the head was of wax until it was turned over to Mr. Stancomb at the morgue who quickly discovered what it was.

BOARD OF TRADE.

A meeting of the directors of the Board of Trade will be held this evening to arrange for the regular meeting next Wednesday. The campaign for a membership of 350 ends with this meeting and from the number of applications now received it is probable that more than that number will be secured. The speaker for the meeting next week will be Gen. E. LeRoy Sweetser, subject, "the State Militia."

FEDERATION ENDOWMENT FUNL

Elizabeth Denison, field agent of the Massachusetts Federation of Wamen's club in her annual report at the meeting in Boston Wednesday, reported on the work of the Massachusetts clubs toward the endowmen fund of the General Federation.

At annual meeting in Templeton much enthusiasm was manifested Many clubs increased their gifts and individuals pledged various sums During the year the Upland club of North Reading, the Ludlow club, the Philergians of Braintree an dthe Worcester club have added to their previous gifts; the Worcester club completing its full quota and being added to the honor list, making the fourteenth club to have given the full amount asked for; fifty cents per capita. The Weymouth Monday club, the Medford Women's club, the Quabbin club of Enfield, the Marlboro Woman's club and the Concord Woman's club have joined the list of contributing clubs, 125 in all.

A personal gift of $100 has been received from Mrs. Emmons Crocker and a pledge of $500 from Mrs. Alvin R. Bailey. Your chairman sincerely hopes that Massachusetts will press forward to the goal of the $10,000 mark set for us by the General Federation.

Seven states have paid their full apportionment and Massachusetts must be in the forefront. We feel proud of our achievement so far Massachusetts having given nearly one-sixth of all that has been contributed. By the report below it will be seen that over $4,000 is needed to reach the $10,000 mark.

ONLY ONE BID.

Bids for printing, what is known as City Book, No. 2, which is a transcript from the Assessors book, were opened by the City Clerk this noon There seemed to be no one particularly anxious for the job, for but one bid was received. One reason for the lack of bids was the odd size of the paper upon which thec opy is made and the short time allowed for the completion of the book.

REMICK'S

Copyright 1913 The House of Kuppenheimer

Don't allow anyone to convince you that you cannot get in Kuppenheimer ready-for-service garments at this live store, all and more than you can possibly secure elsewhere.

The misfit bugaboo has been worked to death lately and it is high time that this class of argument (?) against ready clothes should be relegated to the place where it belongs.

Of course, you cannot expect to secure "Fifth Avenue style" and a "custom tailored fit" in clothes for which you pay $8.88 or $10.49. Cheaply made clothing deserves all and more criticism than anyone can give it.

But, Kuppenheimer Clothes are not cheaply made. True, they are reasonably priced, but that with their pure, virgin wool quality, exclusive style, originality and perfect workmanship, is simply another strong point in their favor.

Be SENSIBLE in your clothes buying — come in and let us DEMONSTRATE wherein Kuppenheimer Clothes are the economical, logical garments for you.

Words may not prove it, but THE CLOTHES ARE HERE — ready for your judgment. What more can any merchant offer?

$16.50 to $27.00

Our $10.00, $12.00, and $15.00 Suits that are worth $2.00 to $3.00 more can be found here in all styles and fabrics. Neat, Nobby Effects in the Norfolk styles for young men.

MEMORIAL DAY OBSERVANCES

Quincy People Generally Show Interest in the Grand Army Veterans

New Location for Exercises Meets With Favor

Another Memorial Day has come and gone. Again with time honored custom have the veterans of one of the greatest, and one of the most righteous wars, the country ever knew laid aside their usual vocations and given up the day to the recalling to memory those trying days, during which the country's honor was at stake, and with faltering steps, yet quickened with martial music, marched, with flags flying aloft, to the various cemeteries throughout the city and once more covered with flowers, the graves of those comrades, who lie buried in the beautiful cities of the dead.

Each year sees the ranks of these battle scarred veterans growing thinner and thinner, and the time is not far distant when the sacred duty of Memorial Day must be left to the kindred organizations, who even today take an active part in assisting the veterans in their sacred duty.

Paul Revere Post 88, G. A. R., has lost two members by death since last Memorial Day: Isaac M. Holt, who died Oct. 13, 1912; and Lucius Longendyke, who died Jan. 24, 1913. The latter veteran was in his 93d year and was the oldest member of the post.

The day dawned bright and clear. There was a cool northwesterly breeze, but it was not too cold, as it made marching more comfortable. The flags on the headquarters of Post 88, were placed at half-mast at sunrise, and flags on many of the private residences of the city as well as on all public buildings of the city including the school buildings were also at half-mast.

In accordance with the general orders, issued by Commander Marstin, the Post assembled in full uniform at headquarters at 7 o'clock.

Comrade Luther S. Parrott proceeded to Mt. Auburn and decorated the graves of Col. Paul J. Revere and of Comrade Samuel W. Spear.

Senior Vice Commander Mark E. Hanson with a detail visited the National Sailors' Home and held services for the sailors buried there.

Junior Vice Commander Edward Richardson with a detail of the Sons of Veterans visited Mt. Wollaston cemetery and decorated the graves of the many comrades buried there. They were ably assisted by the Boy Scouts.

Officer of the Day Warren Dunbar with a detail visited the Hancock and English cemeteries, and Past Commander Thomas Ring visited the cemeteries at West Quincy.

TO WEST QUINCY

In the meantime the comrades of Camp Boyd, United Spanish War Veterans, under command of John S. Blagdon, a company of 21 men from company 152, Coast Artillery, in charge of Sergt. McCorey, from Fort Banks at Winthrop, and a detail from the Boy Scouts were assembling at headquarters preparatory to visiting the Hall and St. Mary's cemeteries at West Quincy.

The line was formed in front of headquarters at 9.30, and proceeded in the following order to the junction of School and Franklin streets where special cars were taken for West Quincy.

Quincy Fife and Drum Corps.
Camp Boyd, United Spanish War Veterans.
Co. 152, Coast Artillery.
Abner B. Packard Camp, Sons of Veterans.
Paul Revere Post, 88, G. A. R.
Carriages containing the chaplain of the day, Rev. Dr. Adelbert Lathrop Hudson of the First church, and disabled veterans.

Alighting at the junction of Copeland and Crescent streets, a short march was taken to the Hall cemetery where after decorating the graves a square was formed about the Willard monument where appropriate exercises were held and a salute fired by the color guard.

From here the command proceeded to the St. Mary's cemetery where similar exercises were held with Rev. William J. Duffy as the chaplain. Special services were also held at this cemetery by the United Spanish War Veterans.

At 1.30 the Sons of Veterans accompanied by the drum corps marched to the Hancock cemetery where they held services at the grave of Col. Abner B. Packard, for whom the camp is named. At the conclusion of the exercises three volleys were fired and taps sounded by the bugler.

AFTERNOON EXERCISES

At 2.30 the command formed in front of headquarters and marched to the Adams Academy lot in the following order:

Chief of Police Burrell
Squad of Police
Quincy Fife and Drum Corps
Co. 152 Coast Artillery
Sergt. Mc Corey, Commanding
Camp Boyd, Spanish War Veterans
Commander, John Blagdon
Boy Scouts
Benj. Hodgkinson, Commander
A. B. Packard Camp S. of V.
Commander, Harry Ford
Officer of Day, Warren Dunbar
Wollaston Band
Post 88, G. A. R.
Commander, C. M. Marstin
Carriages containing Senior Vice Commander Mark E. Hanson, Mayor Eugene R. Stone, Rev. Dr. Hudson, chaplain of the day; City Clerk Emery L. Crane, President of the City Council Joseph L. Whiton, Assessor Warren W. Adams, City Physician, Dr. John H. Ash, Chief Engineer Amos L. Litchfield, Chairman William H. Teasdale of the Board of Health, and disabled veterans.
Squad of Police in command of Capt. D. R. McKay.

After escorting the Grand Army to the Adams Academy the Spanish War Veterans were drawn up on the east side of Hancock street and the remainder of the line passed in review and entered the Academy grounds through two lines of ladies composing the Woman's Relief Corps, the Ladies' Auxiliary and the Daughters of Veterans.

In the centre of the lot on the green in front of the academy a monument had been erected, which was covered with the American flag. In a hollow square about this monument the several organizations formed.

The exercises opened with music by the band after which Commander Marstin said, "We are gathered here today to pay honor to those who were ever ready and willing to give their lives for liberty. We are now in the tricentennial of the Civil War and before the tricentennial has passed more than 200,000 Grand Army men will have died. We meet here today to honor them."

A brief prayer then followed after which Adjutant James H. Webb read Gen. Logan's speech at the formation of the Grand Army in 1868 and Lincoln's address at Gettysburg. Mayor Stone was then introduced. The Mayor spoke very briefly saying that not far from this spot the Pilgrims landed for the betterment of all mankind and better religious liberties. Not long after the landing of the Pilgrims the time had come to preserve that peace and we had Washington and the Continental army and the great United States was born. Then came the Civil War and you all know what happened then, for many gave their lives to preserve the union. This is an ideal spot for these exercises and he hoped before another year had passed that the Grand Army would be occupying this building.

ADDRESS OF DAY.

Rev. Dr. Hudson was then introduced and he gave a most forcible and stirring address which could not have helped but to send a thrill through the heart of every loyal citizen. Several times during his remarks he was interrupted by applause which caused him to stop long enough to say that he fully appreciated the responding chord. Dr. Hudson's theme was "Patriotism and the war spirit."

He said in substance: "Last Sunday morning you took part in the services of the First Parish, accompanied by allied organizations and bearing the uniform, the flags and the emblems of your several orders.

Since then a great many of my people have told me of the delight and satisfaction it gave them to have you with us on that day. They have spoken especially of the great value of your presence in impressing upon the young the vital importance of patriotism and loyalty. I have had much the same feeling all day today as I have gone about with you in your service of loving and loyal remembrance of your fallen comrades. What a lesson to the youth of Quincy! How the example of your self-sacrificing devotion ought to stir their hearts and minds with eager desire to serve our country, in their turn, in whatever way it may need to use the strength of their young manhood! But in what way can they be of any real service to their country? Of course they can stand ready to offer their lives in its defense in case of attack from without or disorder from within. But is that all?

Some of my friends tell me that all forms of military display, and even such expressions of gratitude to the military defenders of the nation as we have been giving today, are demoralizing to young men, because they tend to keep alive the war spirit, and thus delay the development of international peace.

I cannot fully agree with their position. I believe that the annual observance of Memorial day should be of great aid in the cultivation of all noble patriotic virtues. And yet as good citizens and loyal defenders of the flag we ought to be willing to consider the full force of the objections urged by many excellent citizens against the cultivation of the war spirit among us, and against the placing of undue emphasis upon military glory.

We can not, of course, anticipate the millenium. As long as war, or the danger of war, exists as a fact in any part of the world, those nations which have, or claim to have, enlightened and civilized ideals of government, must stand ready to enforce those ideals by an appeal to arms, if such a necessity should arise. And this makes it necessary for them to maintain effective naval and military forces, and to keep alive what is called "the fighting edge" among the people.

On the other hand if the sight of the flag inspires in us no other sentiment than a willingness to fight, we are in no respect more advanced or civilized than the crudest savage.

Surely, with all the gains civiliza-

Rev. Fr. William Duffy was the orator at St. Mary's cemetery. Standing on a hillside where he could overlook the spacious city of Catholic dead, he spoke in glowing terms of the patriotism of our veterans.

The line of veterans and their auxiliaries stood at attention, with bared head, as Father Duffy launched into the motives that stirred the Boys of '61. He observed that religious animosities and narrow prejudices were forgotten when the call for volunteers was sounded. Catholics as well as others rallied to the flag. No strained relations existed. All fought for the flag, against dissolution.

Continuing his fervent beliefs in the rotective spirit, he said that sentiment at one time challenged the fulfillment of civic duty by the Catholic because of their allegiance to the Pope ,but all now understand it is a spiritual allegiance, and one that is patriotic enough to answer a countries' call. Catholics have fought beside Protestants against armies that were similarly constituted.

And, it it true today as in the past that the population teems with loyal defenders. But, we must apply our patriotism to current tendencies which confront us.

Referring of a recent demonstration by foreigners he said their principles were inculated form irreligious contentions. Rebellion is a foe to a countries welfare but this spirit is more insidious. It is a war against ourselves by a misled people who must be guided and our patriotism should stir us to exert our efforts to counteract further demonstrations.

Let us in the future as our brethren have in the past "fight the good fight" firmly establishing our relations with God and strongly protecting ourselves sinecerly following righteous principles for "Our Country and our God."

Father Duffy's stirring address was applauded and Commander Marstin hurriedly reached his side when he finished and grasped him by the hand, saying, "Fine." His comrades nodded their approval.

The line was then reformed and a short march taken to the junction of Copeland and Crescent streets where the special cars were again taken for headquarters. The command alighted at the junction of School and Franklin streets and marched to headquarters.

TRIBUTE AT NOON.

It had nearly reached headquarters when the hour of twelve sounded. Immediately the command was halted and for five minutes the veterans and other bodies stood with heads uncovered. At the expiration of this time, flags, which had been at half-mast all the morning, were run up to the mast head and the command then proceeded on its march to Faxon hall. Comrade Calvin Dyer and the ladies of the Woman's Relief Corps and the Daughters of Veterans had been busy all the morning preparing a lunch for the noon hour. The church bells were rung at noon.

LADIES NIGHT AT WOLLASTON

Citizens' Association Entertain Mayor and Others

The Wollaston Citizens Association observed ladies' night on the evening of the holiday entertaining at Brasee's hall Mayor and Mrs. Eugene R. Stone, President John L. Hamilton of the Board of Trade and Mrs. Hamilton Secretary John O. Hall of the Board of Trade and Mrs. Hall, and others. There was a gathering of about 75 ladies and gentlemen. It was a patriotic night as well as ladies' night, the hall being decorated with flags and patriotic songs being sung. Mrs. Geo. B. Curran was the accompanist and Mr. Curran led the singing.

William Dean Sanford, the president, welcomed the guests and told what the association had accomplished in its brief career.

The principal speaker of the evening was Charles H. Johnson of Quincy who spoke on "the demands of the hour." It was a patriotic address in appreciation of the Grand Army of the Republic. Our duty today was to keep alive the memories of what the Boys in Blue of the 60s fought. Reverence the flag. He had a tribute also for the women. We have need of more organizations like the Wollaston Citizens Association.

Mayor Stone spoke briefly. He said Quincy needed more of these patriotic meetings. The Grand Army exercises, of the day had been wonderful, and thousands of people showed their interest. He hoped before another year that the Grand Army of Quincy would have a permanent home. Quincy should also have a new Soldiers Monument located near the Memorial hall or in a public square.

During the evening several impersonations were given by Ernest C. Wright. In plain sight of his audience he madeup as an Italian, a Scotchman, a colored man, an old farmer, etc. He was chock block full of stories and interspersed them with songs, so there were no dull moments.

At the close ice cream and cake were served and there was a social hour during which Mayor and Mrs. Stone held a reception.

CIRCUS DRAWS A BIG CROWD

Downie & Wheeler Give a Good Street Parade

Downie & Wheelers combined shows arrived in town on schedule time this morning from Dedham by train. Tents have been pitched on the River street grounds and two shows will be given. One at 2 o'clock and the second this evening. If there is anything that draws a crowd of people it is a circus parade so that it was not surprising to see a large crowd of women and children begin to gather in City Square soon after 9 o'clock. It was not until after 11 o'clock, however, that the procession appeared in sight.

The parade was a remarkably good one and was freely applauded. There were three bands in the parade, one of which was a clown band, and the second a band of colored musicians, the procession being led off with the main band. A steam caliope brought up in the rear. There were quite a number of features in the parade including a number of wild animals, whose cages were opened to public view. The show also had some fine horses and beautiful women.

Is Your Train Moving?

—or is it the train on the next track?

Everyone has experienced the peculiar illusion that the train he was in was moving when in reality his own train was standing still and it was the train on the next track going ahead.

Many a man has stood still in his tracks in the position he was holding and the other fellow went ahead because he studied the situation to ascertain how he could make himself more valuable to his employer.

Many a business has had to take down its sign and shut its doors because it has remained stationary, while the fellow next door or up the street has spread out like a green bay tree because he studied and planned to better serve his customers.

You have always seen that we are constantly studying, planning and working to make this a better store.

Every facility is afforded our good people to improve themselves and increase their efficiency. Those who will not avail themselves of their opportunities, as occasionally happens, soon find that this hive of busy workers is no place for drones.

The train is moving steadily ahead and we have a plentiful supply of sand on board to keep from skidding on the tracks. All aboard.

Come in this evening and see the many good things you can get for your Sunday dinner—things not to be found elsewhere, and things that other stores have—but fresher and better than can be found elsewhere.

OLD TIME ECONOMY.

Miss Betty Rogers of Austin, Texas, has started a campaign of old time thrift. She is going to teach girls "how to scrimp and save in the kitchen and throughout the household."

This may be viewed with secret approval by Mr. Newlywed. But has either he or his wife the moral courage for any of the old arts by which family resources used to be conserved?

Who today, for instance, would be willing to use lamplighters in order to save matches? Yet many prosperous business men of today can recall perfectly this means of economy, as an element in their early home life. In many substantial homes of 25 years ago, Mother would carefully extinguish all of the oil lamps that were not actually being used for work or reading. Today one is ashamed to turn out electricity or gas, for fear of being thought "saving."

"Many a little makes a mickle" was good sound gospel yesterday, but today it has gone by. But the people who have the money to do large things are usually those who at some time or other have devoted thought to the wise use of the nickles and the dimes.

The Sons of the Revolution are going to journey over Washington's route from Philadelphia to Cambridge but if they travel as Washington did, some of them should take along a little witch hazel for sore muscles.

A Cornell professor advises students to borrow rather than earn money for their course, but it is noted that he did not advise any one to lend to them.

If the old saying relative to the last Friday of the month comes true, June will be a delightful month. Perhaps Memorial day brought settled summer weather, so long anticipated.

They are talking of night sessions in the Senate. Probably several Senators will come around and see that the one who is speaking does not fall asleep.

The last White House garden party was spoiled by a storm. Mr. Wilson seems to know how to go to work to get rain for the vegetables.

Now that department stores are selling bonds, a counter of house lots would seem the next logical step.

MEMORIAL DAY

tion has made, and with the influence of nineteen centuries of Christianity, patriotism ought to mean something more to us than merely a barbaric passion. The deep impulse of common feeling which brings together great bodies of men, and stirs them with passionate affection for their own land, its history, its heroes its monuments and its songs—this fundamental instinct of humanity which has played so large a part in the history of the world, must be capable of broader and nobler development, until it shall embrace in its scope the whole vast brotherhood of man.

But if Patriotism is to have this larger and finer interpretation in men's thoughts and speech and lives the strongest impulse in that direction ought to be given by the men to whom the old flag means so much—those who have rallied to its colors on many a hard fought battle field and have followed its folds upon the weary march.

It therefore seems most fitting that, while we pay tribute to the memory of the heroic dead, who have given such sublime attestation of their pure unselfish love of country—We make this day stand also for higher ideals of the dignity and responsibility of American citizenship. It is for you, the veterans of the Civil War to sound the key note of a nobler nationalism, in which righteousness and justice and good will among men and nations shall be the foremost aim.

No people can keep the good they have already won without striving for more. They must climb or they must slip. They must mount or fall grow or decay; have more of Freedom, Honor and Purity or less. These are the alternatives of choice. Let us choose the nobler destiny, making our flag the world wide symbol of Righteousness and Liberty and Peace—a universal emblem of the brotherhood of man.

Following the address came the depositing of the red wreath by Commander Marstin, in the name of Fraternity, the red, white and blue wreath by Senior Vice Commander Hanson blue wreath by Junior Vice Commander Richardson in the name of Loyalty and the white wreath by Adjutant Webb in the name of Charity.

Music by the band followed, after which the Woman's Relief Corps held their service to the unknown dead under the direction of Mrs. Celinda Richardson, president after which Mrs. Richardson deposited the red white and blue wreath and Mrs. N. A Savage the wreath of evergreen.

The corps than sang an ode after which Mrs. Kate A. Blaisdell read a poem, entitled "When the boys in blue are gone."

Three volleys by the color guard and taps by the bugler closed the exercises after which the commands marched back to headquarters where it was dismissed.

SPANISH WAR VETERANS.

After escorting the Grand Army and Sons of Veterans to the Adams Academy lot the Coast Artillery escorting the Spanish War Veterans marched to the Quincy depot to meet the Coast Artillery company from Fort Andrews, under command of Sergt. McDonnell, escorting Bumpus camp, Army of the Philippines, under command of Commander Henry E. Sterling.

These bodies headed by the drum corps, then marched, via Hancock, Greenleaf and Valley streets to the Mt. Wollaston cemetery, where appropriate exercises were held at the grave of Lieut. Edward Bumpus, who lost his life in the Philippines.

These exercises consisted of the ritual service by Bumpus camp Army of the Philippines, an address by Charles H. Johnson and a brief address by Hon. E. C. Bumpus, father of Lieut. Bumpus, the depositing of flowers, three volleys by the Coast Artillery from Fort Andrews andt aps by the buglers.

The address of Charles H. Johnson was brief but right to the point. His main thought was the place of the Spanish War Veterans today and what it would be in the future, and the part that they would do in keeping alive the memories and the spirit of the old veterans. Their place in the future was to perpetuate the memory of these veterans and to inculcate in the young men of today a spirit of patriotism for the country. By so doing, while not actively engaged in warfare, they were doing a great service for the country at the same being ever ready and willing to give the best that there was in them on the field of battle, if occasion should arise. In closing his address he read one of Oliver Wendell Holmes poems on the flag.

Judge Everett C. Bumpus, father of Lieut. Bumpus, followed Mr. Johnson and spoke briefly of his son and a word of appreciation for the thoughtfulness of the young men in the giving of their time to come to the grave of his son and hold exercises, which he assured them he appreciated very much.

The exercises over the commands marched to City Square by the same route halting in front of the old Hancock cemetery where there was a dress parade and review. The two companies of Coast Artillery and the Boy Scouts were entertained by the Spanish War Veterans with a lunch in Electa hall. It was intended that the commands should pass in review of the Grand Army in City Square but the Grand Army escorting the Woman's Relief corps, the Ladies Auxiliary and the Daughters of Veterans went immediately to headquarters after the exercises at the Adams Academy grounds.

NOTES OF THE DAY.

One of the pleasing events at the exercises at the Adams Academy grounds was the poem recited by Mrs. Kate A. Blaisdell. The poem was entitled "When the Boys in Blue are gone." It was a recital of who would care for the graves and perform the duties of Memorial Day when the Boys in Blue are gone, and answered the question by saying that the auxiliary bodies left behind would continue to perform the sacred duty. It was a beautiful poem and was finely rendered.

The newly organized tent of Daughters of Veterans paraded for the first time Memorial day and they made a fine appearance. Their uniform consisted of a white duck skirt with braided white duck military jacket with hat to match, the number of the tent appeared on the coat collar. It was a striking uniform and excited much favorable comment.

It was noticed that some patriotic citizens did not understand fully how flags should be displayed on Memorial Day. The rule is half mast until 12 o'clock noon and then the flag should be at the mast head.

The sun came out hot in the afternoon, when the wind which had been in the northwesterly quarter all the morning swung around into the southwest, and those who had on top coats found them uncomfortable.

Now that the custom has been broken, and the afternoon exercises held away from the Soldiers' Monument is is probably that hereafter they will be held at the same place. It was an ideal place for the exercises as the spectators could stand on the embankment on the street side and overlook the heads of the lines forming the hollow square and see what was going on.

A moving picture was taken of the paraders as they passed through City Square on their way to the Academy grounds and another moving picture was taken of the exercises at the grounds about the monument.

For the first time in many years the Quincy Post Office remained closed all day, not even the corridor being open to box holders.

LADIES' NIGHT.

Quincy lodge, No. 413, L. O. O. M., held their ladies' night in Alpha hall on the holiday eve. An entertainment was provided consisting of songs by William R. Teasdale, Miss Mildred Leighton and William Biganess. The accompanists were Miss Grace Gooding of Weymouth and Leon Biganess of Atlantic. The management of a local theatre contributed his vaudeville bill for the week. Dancing was enjoyed until midnight and music was furnished by Provost's orchestra.

GRANITE CITY CLUB.

Following out its usual custom the Granite City club kept open house the night before the holiday and extended its well known hospitality to the members and their guests of which there were quite a few. An orchestra of seven pieces was present all of the evening and gave a fine musical program.

In the dining room there was a continuous buffet lunch consisting of fruit of all kinds, sandwiches, doughnuts, lemonade and hot coffee . The billiard and pool tables were in constant use while those that preferred cards enjoyed themselves in the card room.

The rooms were thronged all the evening and everybody enjoyed themselves. T. G. Smith made his first evening appearance at the club rooms since undergoing a surgical operation and he was the recipient of many congratulations.

GOFFE STREET AND HISTORY

Named for Men Distinguished in Cromwell's Time

Editor of the Ledger:

A few weeks ago a petition was put in circulation by residents of Presidents Hill and vicinity to have the name of Goffe street changed to Presidents lane, and there seems to have been only slight audible opposition to the movement. Personally I should be sorry to have such a change made, and I am inclined to think that a good many of the signers lent their names good-naturedly and out of neighborly feeling for the promoters, when they would never have started the scheme themselves.

Up to a few years ago we had three streets on Presidents Hill bearing respectively the names of Goffe, Whalley and Dixwell. Then Whalley, for some unknown reason was changed to Monroe, whether to commemorate President Monroe or some representative of the name does not appear.

It may not be amiss to recall the significance of the three names, Goffe, Whalley and Dixwell were men of distinction in their day, and figured prominently in the stormy times of English history away back in sixteen hundred and something, not far from the Pilgrims' time. William Goffe was a general in Cromwell's army, a graduate of Oxford, a member of Parliament, and was expected to succeed the great protector. Whalley and Dixwell were associates of Goffe, and it was their lot to sit as a court to try and condemn King Charles. This was at a time when the usual fate of defeated politicians, whether royal or otherwise, was to lose their heads along with the rest of the game.

After Cromwell's star waned and the royal line was restored, it suited the royalists to brand the three judges as regicides, and the latter found that the only way to keep their own heads on their shoulders was to flee secretly to the wilds of America, though they could not in any proper sense be called assassins or king-killers. They spent the remainder of their lives in this country, notably at Hartford Conn., and Hadley, Mass., and there is a well-founded tradition that they lived in seclusion for a time somewhere in the wilderness not far from Presidents Hill.

Some person of education and sentiment, perhaps a member of the Adams family, or possibly Dr. Everett, succeeded in having this tradition embalmed in the names of Goffe street, Whalley road and Dixwell avenue. Surely such a bit of local history, connecting Quincy with Cromwell's time and old England of nearly 300 years ago, should not be allowed to drop lightly out of mind. Other towns and cities are making careful and intelligent study of every scrap of local history, and they would be quick to seize and perpetuate a tradition of this kind.

It will be rather surprising if the Quincy Historical Society and the Women's Club, with its home on Goffe Street, allow the proposed change to be made without protest.

But apart from sentimental considerations, it seems superfluous and uncalled-for to have a Presidents Lane on Presidents Hill, especially as there is already a Presidents Avenue at South Quincy, and Presidents Bridge close by. Moreover Goffe Street intersects our beautiful Adams Street, and there is Adams Shore over by Merrymount. Perhaps over-repetition of an honored name may tend to cheapen rather than dignify it.

Instead of obliterating these significant street names, it would be more fitting to mount a suitable tablet on one of the stone walls at the corner of Goffe street and Whalley road which should perpetuate the ancient tradition for coming generations.

One very practical objection to the change would be the inevitable confusion of mail delivery between Presidents avenue and Presidents lane, and a no less important consideration is the confusion of land titles which always follows for many years in the wake of street name changes.

An excellent new Goffe street sign has just been put up at the corner of Granite street, and I certainly hope it will remain there for good and all, and that the proposed change will, upon further reflection, be abandoned.

THOMAS CRANE REMEMBERED.

On the morning of Memorial Day, flowers from the beautiful garden of the late George W. Morton were placed in front of the portrait of Thomas Crane at Memorial Hall, as has been the custom for years. Also a large bunch of beautiful fleur de lis from Mrs. Thomas Addison who continued her custom of bringing flowers on that day in memory of her uncle.

SOCCER CUP PRESENTED.

A smoke talk under the auspices of the Quincy Soccer football club took place in Clan McGregor hall Thursday evening. A beautiful silver and gold cup standing fourteen inches high was presented to the club by President Burton of the Boston District elague. The cup was given to the Quincy club, the champions of the league, by Mr. Greeves, who was present. A shield was also presented to the team. Refreshments were served and vocal solos were rendered by David Melrose and John Mason. William Elrick presided.

There is more Catarrh in this section of the country than all other diseases put together, and until the last few years was supposed to be incurable. For a great many years doctors pronounced it a local disease and prescribed local remedies, and by constantly failing to cure local treatment pronounced it incurable. Science has proven catarrh to be a constitutional disease and therefore requires constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, Ohio, is the only constitutional cure on the market. It is taken internally in doses from 10 drops to a teaspoonful. It acts directly on the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. They offer one hundred dollars for any case it fails to cure. Send for circulars and testimonials.

Next Saturday, June seventh, is the day of the pageant to be given at the home of Mrs. Henry Faxon, on Adams street, and the young folks as well as their elders are looking forward with pleasure to the occasion. The legend of Proserpina, which is to be presented in dancing, tells of the carrying off of the beautiful maiden by Pluto the ruler of Hades; of her imprisonment in the underworld; of the untiring search made by Ceres, the mother of the lost maiden; and finally of Proserpina's return to earth. Besides the solo dances, there will be a group of maidens attending Proserpina, a company of mischievous elves aiding Pluto in his theft and a band of merry reapers gathering at sunset to frolic on the green. The artistic costumes and the exquisite setting afforded promise to make the pageant most picturesque.

ENTERTAINED AT SQUANTUM

Whist, Dutch Supper and Dance-Personals of Interest

Miss Mildred Hersey gave a novel entertainment at her home on Wednesday evening to the young people of Squantum. Whist was played the first of the evening and Miss Hazel Harvey won first honors for the ladies and Warren Fifield captured the first gentlemen's prize. James Loughan had to be satisfied with the consolation prize. At 10.30 the guests were invited to adjourn to the dining room where Mrs. George Hersey had prepared a bountiful Dutch supper and every thing that was ever included in any Dutch repast was daintily served by Mrs. Hersey assisted by Miss Mildred. Later the spacious living room was cleared and dancing was enjoyed until midnight. Among those who were present are: Viola Rich, Francis Allen, Anne Allen, Margaret Allen, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Hogan, Hazel Harvey, Thelma Holt, Helen Simpson, David Olson, Warren Fifield, John Jepson, Jr., Russell Rich, James Loughan, Gustave Newberger and George Hersey, Jr.

The regular meeting of the Squantum Women's club will be held next Wednesday afternoon at the home of Mrs. Edward Eagar, Harbor View street.

Half hour car service went into effect Thursday.

BOY RUN OVER.

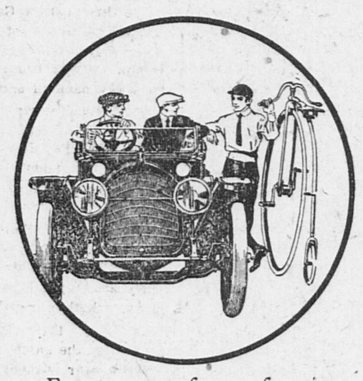
Leo Grant, son of Mr. and Mrs. William Grant of Whitwell street was knocked from a bicycle and run over by Lilja's express team this morning at Maple and Washington street and escaped serious injuries. He was unconscious for a few minutes but recovered. Willing hands carried him into the Post Office building where he was treated by Dr. C. W. Garey. Then he was taken to his home.

The wagon passed over his legs, above the knees. When the doctor arrived he said he was unhurt and was able to walk freely. The bicycle was scratched, the handle bars smashed and the rim on the front wheel was split.

The accident occured within view of many people who were hurrying down Washington street to see the circus parade which was coming down Elm street. The confusion at the corner was probably the cause of the accident.

The Company Behind the Cross Country

Look up the rating given The Thomas B. Jeffery Company by the great national commercial agencies. You will find it is the highest that can possibly be given to any concern.



Forty years of manufacturing experience and the result of constant striving toward ideals of accuracy constitute the greatest asset of this company today.

The Boston sales and service building, 640 Commonwealth Ave., Boston, Mass., one of nearly five hundred branches and distributing houses maintained by this company and by Cross Country dealers.

Rambler Motor Cars

Fifteen fundamental facts we offer in conclusion. These are the facts that every buyer must consider if he chooses wisely. Study them carefully and consider their meaning.

1 The 1913 Cross Country is the product of forty years of manufacturing experience.

2 The Jeffery Company has the highest financial rating that it is possible for the commercial agencies to give.

3 Capital three million dollars, all paid in, with a large surplus.

4 The Company is owned practically in its entirety by one man and is absolutely independent of any alliance with any other concern.

5 Every piece of equipment and every particle of real estate owned by this company is paid for in full and never has a bill been allowed to pass discount.

6 Ninety-six per cent of all parts are made in the Jeffery works.

7 Twenty-five thousand Rambler cars are on the road.

8 The Jeffery organization includes a factory manned by two thousand men, with a sales and service force including nearly five hundred branches and distributing dealers.

9 The factory ground area is one hundred and four acres and the floor area twenty-five acres.

10 Cross Country parts sell from one-half to two-thirds less than parts of other cars.

11 Fifteen employes of this company have been in its employ twenty years and over; fifteen from fifteen to twenty years and nearly all the rest from one to fifteen years.

12 The Jeffery Company was the first American company to adopt the demountable wheel, universally used abroad and now being imitated widely in this country.

13 The Jeffery service facilities in every part of the United States are under direct company supervision and are unexcelled.

14 The Jeffery organization is an organization of young men, who have built up a reputation for fair dealing which entitles them to expect to be in business for many years.

15 The Jeffery Company is notably conservative, valuing permanent success beyond temporary profit.

The Jeffery organization produces nothing but the Cross Country car. We cannot, in view of the facts enumerated above, do anything else but build it right.

A beautiful four-color reproduction of the Cross Country, from an oil painting by R. Philip Brainard, is ready for mailing. See the Cross Country by all means, at any Jeffery branch or dealer's display room, but send for the picture anyway.

HANDSOME MONUMENT.

One of the handsomest monuments erected in the new part of Mt. Wollaston cemetery, which was much admired by the many visitors Memorial day, was that erected to the memory of the late Joseph L. Whiton. The monument is on the Greenleaf side of the cemetery. It is sarcophagus in shape, the bottom base being 8 by 5 feet. It consists of two bases and a dark die of extra dark Quincy granite, highly polished, with the name "Whiton" on the face of the base. The monument was cut by John L. Miller and is a credit to the skill of Quincy workmen.

DR. CROSS TO PREACH.

Batteries: Little and Leary; Williamson and McDonald; Umpire, Duggan.

ORIENTS WIN.

The game between the Orients of South Quincy and the Station Outing club went 11 innings and was the feature of the meet. The Orients with an unbroken string of victories won in the 11th by a score of 6 to 5 each team made 5 hits. Only one error was credited to the Orients and 2 to the Stations. The score by innings:

Orients	3	0	0	0	0	2	0	0	0	1	—6

Batteries: Bradley and Markham; DiBona and McDonald, Umpire, Rooney.

SOUTH QUINCY'S WIN.

The Harvard Pilgrims of Cambridge tried to play baseball at the Old Colony g rounds Friday afternoon against South Quincy, but their correspondence course did not benefit them. Their one redeeming feature was their gentlemanly conduct which was so well carried out that they declined to take a base until a player secured the ball and had at least an equal chance to copping a putout. South Quincy defeated them 15 to 2.

South Quincy	3	0	3	0	0	4	1	4	x	—15
Pilgrims	1	0	1	0	0	0	0	0	—	2

Batteries: Woods and J. Kelly; Dearborn, Melvert and Carlisle. Umpire, Patterson.

EXHIBITION AT WILLARD

Parents Surprised with Work the School is Doing

Regardless of the fact that the comrade of the Paul Revere Post, G. A. R. who was detailed to speak at the Willard school failed to put in an appearance, the parents' day execises on Thursday were of unusual interest. Invitations printed by the boys of the prevocational class in the form of a folder with the American flag in colors and the pledge to the flag beneath on the cover and the announcement of the Memorial day exercises and Lincoln's Gettysburg speech on the inner leaves were sent to each home, and in response many more parents were present than on previous occasions.

The rooms were tastily decorated with flags, bunting and flowers while exhibitions of the pupils' work were shown in profusion. The excellent results secured in drawing, under the careful and faithful guidance of Miss Lillian Newman, director of drawing, were much in evidence. Japanese booklets, calendars, landscapes in colors, lamp shades, portfolios, sofa pillows attractively stenciled, difficult work in perspective drawing, together with many kinds of raffia work showed that the children have their hands as well as their heads trained.

Aside from the regular patriotic exercises, those present were given an opportunity to see the work in dramatizing started this year and to visit the prevocational classes at their tasks. It mattered not whether the second grade pupils were presenting the "Giant in the Woods" or the fourth grade children were acting "Aunty Prudence" the playlets were uniformly good.

The girls of the cooking class set a table on the snow white covering of which were yeast bread, macaroni and cheese, peanut cookies, corn meal muffins, salad dressing, chocolate pudding and hard sauce, the fruits of their forenoon's labor. A part of the girls were busily engaged in cooking; others were equally industrious with sewing. Around the room were displayed cooking uniforms, towels, aprons, complete sets of underwear, all kinds of embroidery such as jabots collars, dusting caps; also shirtwaists various kinds of mending and sofa pillows, all made by the pupils this year.

In the boys' department one pupil was running off on the large press some invitations for a parents' and teachers' meeting, another was binding pamphlets printed a few days before, some were distributing type, others were caning chairs and doing different kinds of carpenter work, making drawing boards, jumping standards, small bookcases and bread boards.

CANNOT REMOVE CLOTHING

Bill Stopping Stripping of Female Prisoners Signed by Foss

Boston, May 31.—Governor Foss placed his signature upon the bill to prevent the police removing the clothing of prisoners in conducting the physical examination called for by a recent act of the legislature. The new bill is intended chiefly to protect women from the danger of insult in police stations.

The new law is an amendment to the law just passed and answers the criticisms of Police Commissioner O'Meara, who attacked the first law as imposing duties that the police ought not be asked to assume.

Y. M. H. A. WINS.

The Y. M. H. A. nine defeated the Norfolk A. C. at Ward Three Playgrounds on the holiday by a score of 3 to 1. A lead of three runs obtained in the first inning won the game for the Y. M. H. A. Asnes for the Y. M. H. A. and McIntire of the Norfolk A. C. both pitched good ball. Asnes found himself in several tight places, but, by good pitching pulled himself out. Swartz caught a very good fly in deep right centerfield and made the last put out in the game.

DEFEAT FOR QUINCY HIGH.

Quincy High lost to Braintree Thursday afternoon at Merrymount Park, 5 to 2. The locals made six errors. Gorman, the visiting pitcher secured 16 strikeouts, Morgan got 10 and Crocker five. The day was rainy the grounds were heavy and neither side had a real opportunity to make good.

Batteries—Gorman; Morgan, Crocker and Hamlin.

APPRENTICES WIN.

The Fore River Apprentices defeated the hitherto undefeated Orients, amateur champions, at Ward Three on the holiday afternoon, 8 to 7. The game was won in the sixth when the Apprentices scored six runs. The feature was the pitching of Kerr. Boyle made two two base hits. Kerr fanned 12 men and Bradley 4. J. Markham secured a double play unassisted. The score:

Fore Rivers	1	0	0	0	0	6	1	0	x—8

MODEL OF MAINE SUNK IN HUDSON

As Monument Commemorating Havana Tragedy Is Unveiled

CEREMONIES ARE IMPRESSIVE

Eleven Warships Each Give Twenty-One-Gun Salute as Colors Are Broken Out—Representatives of National, State and Municipal Governments Participate

New York, May 31.—Amid all the impressive ceremonies of a national festival the national Maine monument was unveiled on the commanding site where it has been erected at the southwest entrance to Central park.

Commemorating the heroism of the men who went down with the battleship Maine in Havana harbor on Feb. 15, 1908, but dedicated to all the sailors and soldiers who died for their country in the Spanish-American war, it is the loving tribute of a grateful people to the nation's defenders.

Made possible by a fund to which every section of the country has contributed, the unveiling—appropriately fixed for Memorial day—writes another glowing chapter in the history of the nation. From every quarter of the United States the representatives of the people of every rank and station gathered in remembrance of the nation's dead. Along the Hudson river front were eleven battleships, which roared a national salute in honor of those who stood by the colors.

The flower of the American navy was assembled—the navy's chief at their head—to pay their mede of tribute, and the men in blue from the military arm of the service marched before the beautiful memorial. Those veterans who survived from the earlier war, with the younger generation who carried the flag into the tropic jungles of Cuba, and a gallant little company of soldiers and sailors from the Cuban republic, made possible by the heroic acts of those to whom the monument is reared, likewise passed in review before this concrete manifestation of a nation's gratitude.

Representatives of the national government, governors of states, mayors of cities—all that is characteristic of the national life—participated in the history-making dedication of the monument to the heroes of the Maine.

Chaplain Chidwick, whose ministering hand lightened the horror on that February morning in Havana harbor, and Rear Admiral Sigsbee, who commanded the ill-starred fighting ship, each placed wreaths in token of loving remembrances.

The ceremonies attendant upon the unveiling began formally at 1:30 o'clock yesterday afternoon, when the national Maine monument committee entertained at luncheon at the Hotel Plaza the guests who later participated in the exercises. From the Plaza the guests were conveyed in automobile coaches to the speakers' stand in front of the monument, Fifty-ninth street and Eighth avenue.

In the meantime, the procession, which was a brilliant feature of the unveiling, had formed under command of Rear Admiral Winslow, the chief marshal. The parade moved in four divisions and reached the scene of the unveiling at about the time the guests from the Plaza had taken their places on the speakers' platform.

At the monument Rev. Dr. David H. Greer, bishop of New Jersey, delivered an invocation, and the unveiling address was delivered by General Wilson, following which the United States navy band from Brooklyn navy yard burst into the strains of "The Star Spangled Banner." With the national anthem swelling in the breeze, the signal was given for breaking out the colors in which the monument was draped and simultaneously the guns of the eleven warships in the Hudson boomed forth, each in a twenty-one-gun salute.

Then followed the placing of the wreaths, that from President Wilson being placed first, and after that those from the state of Maine, from New York state, from New York city, from the republic of Cuba and from Rear Admiral Sigsbee.

And as the last of these wreaths was placed at the base of the monument there was released upon the waters of the Hudson, at the foot of Ninety-seventh street, a model of the old battleship Maine which, as the last saluting gun belched forth its tribute, sank beneath the river, in re-enactment of the tragedy of Havana harbor.

The oratorical program followed. Responding to General Wilson's presenting address, Mayor Gaynor made a response in behalf of the city. Former President Taft's oration was next in order, and he was followed by Secretary of the Navy Daniels.

Other addresses were made and the ceremonies were concluded with the sounding of "taps" by buglers from the Atlantic fleet.

DRAGON FLY IN THROAT

Big Insect Hatched From Egg In Stomach of Pittsfield Man

Lenox, Mass., May 31.—John Corkhill, Jr., a member of the big Pittsfield firm of the John Corkhill company, had been suffering for several days with a ticking, choking sensation in his throat, which continued to grow worse. Finally he was seized with a fit of nausea, and coughed up a live, fully developed dragon-fly, familiarly known in the country as "Devil's darning needle." The insect fluttered its wings for a moment and then flew away.

Corkhill is of the impression that he must have taken the egg into his stomach while drinking some water from a small pond a few weeks ago while on a fishing trip, and that the egg, in the warm interior, either of the stomach or esophagus, hatched out.

GIBSON NOT LIKELY TO BE TRIED AGAIN

One Juror Stands Out Against Conviction and Saves Lawyer

Newburg, N. Y., May 31.—Following the disagreement of the second jury which has had the life of Burton W. Gibson, the New York lawyer, accused of murdering his client, Mrs. Rosa Menschik Szabo, in its hands, it was announced that in all probability the lawyer would not be tried again on this charge.

Gibson owes his life to Charles A. Reynolds, a farmer, who, despite the appeals of the other eleven jurors, held out nearly twenty-four hours. The other eleven were for conviction.

When the jury reported an agreement was impossible the jurymen were dismissed. Gibson was remanded to the county jail at Goshen until autumn.

HAVERFORD IS FLOATED

Wireless Shows Its Efficiency When Liner Strikes on Rocks

Queenstown, May 31.—With 134 cabin and 850 steerage passengers safely transferred to small boats and taken ashore, the American line steamship Haverford was pulled off the Cork Head rocks yesterday. There is fifteen feet of water in the forward compartment, but the bulkhead is holding and there is no danger of the vessel sinking.

The Haverford was bound from Liverpool to Philadelphia when she went hard aground in a fog. Wireless again demonstrated its efficiency, and before dark all the passengers and their light baggage had been taken ashore. The company arranged to forward them to their destination.

BLESSES 3000 PILGRIMS

Pope Gives First Open Air Audience Since His Recent Illness

Rome, May 31.—The first open air audience granted by the pope since his recent illness was accorded to 3000 pilgrims who assembled in the courtyard of the Vatican and sang hymns while waiting for the pontiff to appear.

The pilgrims all fell on their knees and silver trumpets were sounded when the pope appeared on the balcony. After the pontiff had bestowed the apostolic blessing the pilgrims cheered. The pope waved his hand in a gesture of thanks.

NEWETT STANDS SMALL CHANCE

Witnesses Back Roosevelt's Reputation In Suit

DEFENSE WILL TRY POLITICS

Expected to Claim Alleged Libel Was Merely an Incident of Bitter Campaign—Witnesses of Note Testify That Onetime President Is Temperate at All Times

Marquette, Mich., May 31.—While Theodore Roosevelt rescinded his acceptance of an invitation to make the chief address at the Memorial day exercises here and attended the exercises only as a spectator and an auditor, interest in the trial of his suit for libel against the editor of Iron Ore overshadowed the holiday ceremonies, and discussion of this subject was general even among those taking part in the ceremonies.

While the defense for Mr. Newett has practically conceded its inability to win its case on the reputation of Mr. Roosevelt in the White House and in private life, it is now believed it will concentrate on the habits of the plaintiff on his campaign tours. Newspapermen and others who have traveled extensively with Roosevelt will be the leading witnesses for him on this part of the allegations.

Indications now are to the effect that the defense will emphasize the bitterness of the political fight in Michigan last autumn, when Roosevelt won a commanding lead over Taft, and at which time the allegel libel was printed by Newett. The inference is that that the defense will take the position that the alleged libel was merely an incident of a bitter campaign and, as such, had no personal bearing, and was justified by the exigencies of politics.

Ten witnesses on the fourth day of the trial, most of them men of prominence in this country, testified that Roosevelt was at worst a very mild drinker, and was at all times a sober and temperate man. All indignantly denied that he had ever been seen intoxicated. Tiffs between counsel were frequent and the court found it necessary many times to rebuke the attorneys for both sides.

OLD ASTOR HOUSE EMPTY

"Finis" Written In Register as Friends Sing "Auld Lang Syne"

New York, May 31.—In the eyes of thousands who for years sought the comfort and shelter of its walls while they were in New York, the Astor House has the appearance of one condemned. Once the acme of perfection and the height of grandeur in hotels, the historic structure, after seventy-seven years of service, awaits the hand of the wrecker.

At midnight yesterday the last toast to the old hotel was drunk. Spontaneously 300 of its faithful and reverent admirers sang "Should Auld Acquaintance be Forgot." There was handshaking, and then never to meet within its walls again, the gathering scattered. At the same moment the cashier wrote "Finis" on the register and closed the book.

TRAIN HITS AUTOMOBILE

County Treasurer and Wife Killed by Electric Express

Hull, Mass., May 31.—Horace T. Fogg of Rockland, treasurer of Plymouth county, and his wife were killed here yesterday afternoon when the automobile in which they were riding was struck by the Nantasket electric express at the Kerberma station.

Mrs. Fogg was instantly killed. Her husband was removed in an unconscious condition to the Allerton hospital, where he died a few minutes after his arrival.

The train was an express, which had left Nantasket Beach at 3:45 o'clock for Pemberton to catch the Nantasket steamer for Boston.

SCHOONER TURNS TURTLE

Captain and Crew of Two-Master Rescued by Gloucester Fisherman

Boothbay Harbor, Me., May 31.—The crew of the two-masted schooner Fred C. Holden of Millbridge, which turned turtle of Damariscove island, was brought here by the Gloucester fishing schooner Actor.

The Holden sprang aleak in a heavy blow, and, slowly filling, turned completely over. Captain Wallace and his men made their escape in the small boat and were picked up by the Actor.

Commonwealth of Massachusetts.

Norfolk, ss. Probate Court.

To the heirs-at-law, next-of-kin, creditors and all other persons interested in the estate of Alice I. Bostwick late of Quincy in said County, deceased, intestate:

Whereas, a petition has been presented to said Court to grant a letter of administration on the estate of said deceased, to Perley P. Bostwick of said Quincy without giving a surety on his bond. You are hereby cited to appear at a Probate Court to be held at Dedham in said County of Norfolk, on the fourth day of June A. D. 1913, at ten o'clock in the forenoon, to show cause, if any you have, why the same should not be granted. And the petitioner is hereby directed to give public notice thereof by publishing this citation once in each week, for three successive weeks, in the Quincy Daily Ledger a newspaper published in said Quincy the last publication to be one day at least before said Court.

Witness, James H. Flint, Esquire, Judge of said Court, this sixteenth day of May A. D. 1913.

JOHN D. COBB, Register.

THOUGHT HIM A BURGLAR.

A telephone was received at the police station Friday evening that an unknown man was trying to break into the house at 22 Field street. The wagon was sent down, but when it arrived the man had gone. The family said that the fellow had tried to enter by the front door. He did not carry away anything but left behind him an old fashioned clock and a plaster statue. After leaving the house the wagon went through Newcomb street and picked up a young man who gave the name of Henry Webber, who was very much under the influence of liquor. He was taken back to the house and identified as the man who had tried to get into the house. Where the clock and statue came from the man could give no clear idea. In court Webber was arraigned for drunkenness and fined $15. As the judge pronounced the sentence the clock struck one.

DISTRICT COURT.

Morris J. Sheehan was fined $15 for drunkenness at Weymouth, Edward Quinn of Weymouth $15, Henry Webber of Quincy, $15, and Edward J. Kilcourse of Quincy $3 costs for the same offence.

Fred Knox was arraigned for non support at Quincy and had his case continued until June 6.

Fred L. Allen was arraigned for being idle and disorderly at Braintree. Case continued for two weeks on probation.

DO YOU WANT BUSINESS?
ADVERTISE IN THE LEDGER.

FORECLOSURE SALE.

By virtue of the power of sale contained in a certain mortgage deed, given by Walter T. Babcock of Quincy, County of Norfolk and Commonwealth of Massachusetts and Frederica C. Babcock, his wife in her own right, to Hannah B. McLean, Maria A. Leeds and Francis Leeds all of Brookline, County of Norfolk and Commonwealth of Massachusetts, as executors of the will of Charles R. McLean late of Boston, deceased, dated May 25th, 1896, and recorded with the Norfolk Deeds Libro 761 Folio 171, and for breach of the condition contained therein will be sold at public auction on the premises at ten o'clock in the forenoon of June 9th, 1913, all and singular, the premises described in said mortgage, viz:—

A certain parcel of land with the buildings thereon situated in Quincy in said County and bounded and described as follows, viz:—

Northeasterly it is bounded on Whalley Road, so called, one hundred and twenty-five feet; northerly by a curved line forming the intersection of said Whalley Road and Dixwell Avenue fifteen & 71-100 feet; northwesterly on said Dixwell Avenue one hundred and ten feet; southwesterly on a portion of lot thirty two on the plan hereinafter mentioned one hundred and thirty-five feet; southeasterly on a portion of lot thirty-four on the plan hereinafter mentioned one hundred and twenty feet. Containing 16178 square feet of land more or less, and being the same premises conveyed to said Frederica C. Babcock by deeds of James Thompson et als, Trustees, dated September 18th, 1895 and May 23d 1896 recorded with Norfolk County Deeds. The plan hereinbefore referred to is entitled "Plan of House Lots owned by the President's Hill Real Estate Trust, Quincy, Mass." dated 1895 and recorded with Norfolk Deeds.

Said premises will be sold subject to such restrictions contained in said deeds as may now be in force, and any encumbrance, taxes or municipal assessments affecting the same.

FRANCIS I. AMORY.
Assignee and owner of said mortgage.

GOLD BRICK FOR SQUANTUM

What Are the Duties of the Street Committee

Editor Daily Ledger:

Squantum people and particularly the Squantum Improvement association is all fussed up about what has become of the petition for the acceptance of Huckins avenue and Bellevue road. They are asking the pertinent question—What are the duties of the Street Committee of the Quincy City Council?

The situation is this. Way back in the time when members of the present City Council were looking for votes just before election time, they came to Squantum and told of their undying love for this beautiful sea girt section of Quincy. They said that the city treasury was low, but that if Squantum people would be moderate and considerate in their demands they might get a few thousand dollars back of the $16,000 paid this year into the city treasury in taxes.

Then came the election and Squantum people got together and made their modest demands. They wanted 15 street lights and the acceptance of one or two streets. They asked for two in the hopes that anyway they might get one. They packed a special car and went before the City Council proud of the fact that they had been given an opportunity to be heard before that solemn body known as the "city fathers."

They presented their case with the modesty and directness of the innocent. They listened to jibes and alleged humor from even their own representatives in the Council and came away troubled and hurt but still remembering the pre-election promise that "be modest and you will be prosperous."

In the question of lights Mayor Eugene R. Stone proved himself the worthy occupant for the high office he fills, for there was little delay and the promise he made before election was a solemn duty that he performed after election. Squantum has a deep debt of gratitude and honest admiration for His Honor. It also has 15 additional street lights.

But what has become of the prayers and petitions of the poor, modest tax payer when it comes to streets? Who has pigeon-holed the petition for the acceptance of Huckins avenue and Bellevue road.

Great to the amazement of Squantum people they read in Tuesday night's Ledger of the doings of the City Council on Monday night. They read with amazement of the wealth in the city treasury doled out for streets and granolithic sidewalks in sections where the lords and barons of things politically in Quincy reside. Where were the guardians of the bankrupt treasury of the city when an order appropriating $7,000 for the changing of the grade of Elm street went merrily on its way. And an order for $12,375 for permanent sidewalks mostly in Wollaston where there are miles of accepted streets and fine sidewalks. Even upon the word of a councilman money was appropriated where the abutters do not want these improvements.

Mayor Stone added to the gaiety of things by announcing that the city was "not so poor as it had been made to appear." Still where is the order for Squantum's streets.

Is it the duty of the petitioners to see that public hearings are properly advertised or has the president of the City Council and chairman of the street committee any responsibilities in the matter? Because of a lot of silly squabbling about rules, all at the expense of the taxpayers, must Squantum be made a goat. So far as Squantum people are able to learn, not a step has been taken nor a word spoken that would have any bearing upon the petition of Squantum residents for the acceptance of Huckins avenue and Bellevue road. Why? Why are they now told that it is too late to take any action anyway?

Why was not Squantum even given the honor of the burial of its dead? Atlantic was not made to suffer such indignity. Ocean street was taken before the council and given an honorable burial? Why were such obsequies denied Squantum.

O Death, where is thy sting.

O Squantum people, what is the use of paying over $16,000 annually into the coffers of the treasury of the well-governed, business-managed, historic City of Quincy? W. A. B.

At Ward Two on the morning of the holiday the White Sox defeated the Red Sox 21 to 0. In the afternoon the Pope's Hill team defeated the Quincy White 13 to 6.

GRAMMAR SCHOOL MEET

Higgins of Wollaston Wins the 75 Yard Dash

Rain interferred with the Grammar School meet Thursday afternoon on the new Merrymount oval. Very few pupils were present and all schools were not represented. But three events were run off. The regular meet will take place on the oval June 7.

The first and second places in the 75 yard dash preliminary heats, were won as follows:

1—Higgins and Prout.
2—McDonald and McMillan.
3—Wallace and Isbister.
4—Bradshaw and Reardon.
5—Hillstrom and Gilliatt.
6—DeLucca and Arbuckle.
7—Egan and Anderson.

In the semi-finals the first heat was won by Higgins of Wollaston with Wallace of Willard second.

Second heat won by DeLucca of Adams; Bradshaw, of Massachusetts Field, second; and Hillstrom of Willard, third.

The final was won by Higgins of Wollaston with Wallace of Willard second, Bradshaw of Massachusetts Field third, and Hillstrom of Willard fourth.

The second race between Willard and Massachusetts Fields was won by Willard.

In the running high jump trials the following qualified with a jump of 4 feet: Hillstrom of Willard; Isbister of Wollaston; Prout of Adams; Higgins of Wollaston; Gilcoine of Washington; Lundquist of Cranch; Ryan of Coddington; Sears of Massachusetts Filds; Beaton of Adams; Wetmore of Massachusetts Fields; Gurney of Washington and McDonald of Washington.

The judges were William King and George Sullivan of the B. A. A., Ed. Newcomb, Walter Williams and John Hyland of the Quincy High school. The meet was under the direction of Louis L. LaRose.

TWO FOR DEWEY'S.

The Deweys at Weymouth, won two games on the holiday. In the morning, they defeated the strong Stetson Shoe team, 3 to 2. In the afternoon they beat the Makarias of Quincy 7 to 3. Stan Bates, of the New York giants pitched for the Makarias, and things broke bad for him when a homer by Gillis followed a triple and three singles. Bates is going to Mobile, Ala., this week. The game was fast throughout.

AMONG THE PRIZE WINNERS

Quite a large number of Quincy yachts participated in the opening race of the season of the South Boston yacht club on the holiday off City Point.

In class A the Nutmeg finished first but as the boats were not measured corrected time can not be given. The Eleanor, a Wollaston boat finished in the fifth position.

In class D the Dartwell of ex-Commodore Ira M. Whittemore finished first with the Iris second Clara third and Mudjekewis fourth.

In class S. the Waweenock of the Wollaston club was first, the Zoe of the same club second. About fifty boats took part in the race.

WORLD'S SERIES.

The world's series of the Grammar School league will open Monday afternoon at Merrymount Park, lower field, when the Willards and Cranch teams, leaders in the American and National leagues, play the first of the past season games. Water Egan, a big boy, will compete for pitchers honors with Arbuckle, a dimunitive Cranch Hiller. One has speed to burn because of his strength. The other although lacking in speed, compared to Egan, uses fine judgment. The game will be essentially a pitchers battle. The second game will be played at Ward Three playgrounds Wednesday and the third, if necessary will be played on the upper Merrymount field.

RALPH C. NICHOLS of Boston, has become (Director and Manager) of the Boston School of Music, Hancock Chambers, City Square, Quincy, No. 8 Washington street.
